Birds of the Bible

There are 200 references to birds in the Bible, according to a recent story in American Field. Ornithologists say that 115 are of general use in the sense that they refer simply to birds and are not directed to any particular species. Of the species mentioned by name the dove holds first place being mentioned 35 times. The eagle is mentioned 32 times. The raven, cock and hen are mentioned 12 times each. Reference is made 11 times to the owl, 10 to the pigeon, 7 to the sparrow, 6 to the stork, and 5 to the pelican. Four passages refer to the quail, swallow and vulture, 3 to the ostrich, bittern, peacock and cormorant. The crane, partridge, osprey, kite, cuckoo, hawk, heron, nighthawk and lapwing are mentioned twice each. The swan and gier eagle once each.
