MILITIA FIRES ON UNION MEN

Guardsmen Are Attacked From Buildings While on Their Way to Make Arrests at Place of Meeting, Where They Wound Twenty Men.

Victor, Colo., special. Anarchy, riot and bloodshed have reigned in Victor and the surrounding region since Friday early Monday morning, when an informal machine was set off under the station platform at Independence, six miles from here on the Florence and Colorado Creek road.

That coal thirteen lives and result in the injury of several persons, six of whom are injured almost beyond the hope of recovery.

Upon the news of disorder were transferred to this city, and a riot, in which ten persons were killed outright and several fatally injured, was followed by an attack by the militia upon the hall where the miners' union was in session. It is said when the smoke of battle broke away twenty union miners were found wounded.

The dead: Blown up at depot, 13; in riot at Victor, 2.

The injured: Blown up at depot, 8; in riot at Victor, 11; in attack on union hall, 20.

Armed Men Throng Streets

Monday night armed men thronged the streets, and conflicts were of hourly occurrence. Militiamen were marching hither and thither, making arrests by wholesale. A number of union men were placed in the military bull pen and others were being gathered in at frequent intervals.

City and county officials have been compelled to resign their offices by reason of their recent proceedings.

The sheriff who was in office Monday morning is deposed, and Edward Zell was chosen to succeed him.

City Marshal O'Connell is now a prisoner in the military bull pen, charged with being a union sympathizer and in his place is Maj. Naylor of the militia, whose deputies are nearly all militiamen.

The union men are in the minority and many of them are seeking the shelter of the military prison in order to save their own lives.

Militia in Control

Two companies of militia have been ordered out by Lieut. Gov. Haggott, acting for Gov. Peabody, who is in St. Louis.

There were three sensational affairs during the day, the first one taking place at Independence station, six miles from Victor where the station was blown up by an infernal machine and twelve men killed and six injured.

Later in the day a riot was started in the city and one man killed and twenty hurt.

Following upon this the militia turned out and started for the miners' union hall, where a meeting was in progress. The troops were ordered to arrest the "agitators."

The militiamen were fired upon from buildings as they passed and were pelted with missiles of various kinds until they neared the hall.

Volleys of shots were fired at them from the windows of this building and for a time the situation was almost desperate.

Raid on Union Meeting.

The militia men were ordered to take the hall by storm and a squad of men armed with repeating rifles was sent through the front door. These men pumped bullets into the hall as fast as they could operate their weapons, and a sharp fire was returned from the inside.

Then the miners surrendered and came out, not caring to hunt any longer.

It was found that about twenty of the miners had been injured, and it is feared some of them are seriously hurt.

Just before the militia raid on the miners' union hall, a massacring was staged at Forth and Victoria streets by Clarence Hamlin, secretary of the Mine Owners' association.

This case, it will be had declared that the men who are responsible for the industrial disturbance should be hanged from a telephone pole and that he would be only too glad to help pull the rope if the murderers could be discovered and captured.

Secretary Hamlin, concluding a short address, said:

I want to hear what the boys in the mines have to say about this trouble.

Union Miner Is Shot.

William Hoskins, a union miner from Goldfield threw up his hand and shouted:

"Let me talk."

At that the crowd began to hiss Hoskins and cry "Put him out."

A fight followed and shooting began. Most of the shots were directed toward

Hoskins fell with a bullet in his body and the crowd scattered in every direction.

Secretary Hamlin, who had been standing on a wagon, kept talking, unmindful of the hail storm of bullets that whizzed about his head.

After the first excitement had cleared away the injured and the dying were gathered up.

R. McGee, who was instantly killed, had been standing on an embankment further back where the men who had been fighting and was an innocent spectator.

Alfred Miller and J. D. Davis were carried to the Victor hospital.

Sent Men Carried Away.

An eyewitness of the shooting said: "I saw them carry three men away, one shot through the head and another shot through the arm. I think that more than five were shot."

Among those wounded in the affair is the chief of the fire department, John Murphy, who also was a spectator.

After the riot the mob dispersed and the union men gathered in the union hall, which was only a few weeks old.

Word was sent to the militia that the union miners were arming and the attack on the hall followed.

The trouble started in Victor as soon as the word reached here that the Independence station had been dynamited and a dozen lives wiped out.

The first thing the majority of people did was to procure guns and prepare for serious difficulties. As the first train with dead and injured from Independence pulled in there were isolated fights between individuals, which showed how intense the feeling was and how little was needed to start a riot.

Force Sheriff to Resign

As the miners, both union and nonunion began to assemble, the mine owners called a meeting in the Armory hall and sent for Sheriff Henry S. Robertson. He was met by a committee composed of C. C. Hamlin, secretary of the association, J. S. Murphy, manager of the Findley mines, and L. E. Hill of the Portland, and his resignation was demanded. He yielded to the demand. Then Edward Bell was appointed by the mine owners committee to fill out Robertson's unexpired term. Robertson was a union miner before he was elected sheriff. Bell is a member of the Citizen's Alliance.

HEARST WILL NOT BOLT DEMOCRATIC TICKET

Presidential Candidate Says He Does Not Have to be Bribed to Support the Nominees.

Philadelphia, Pa., dispatch. The question of my nomination for the presidential office by the Mr. Lodge convention is to me as well as to the party, of minor importance when compared with the real problems that the convention must determine. My candidacy is of no moment except as it bears upon the greater questions of which the Democratic party shall be dominated by that element which does not look beyond the offices and whether it shall have been pleased to term progressive Democracy shall be dominant.

In these words William Randolph Hearst discussed his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. It has been rumored if Mr. Hearst should not be nominated he would bolt the ticket and platform. An editorial in his newspaper last week to this, but Mr. Hearst denied emphatically that the popular constitution placed upon the editorial in question. In accordance with that was intended to convey and answered a question relating to his intentions about bolting by saying:

"I am a loyal enough Democrat not to have to be bribed into supporting the nominees and platform of my party. Politicians and conventions do not make the issues of a political campaign. They may write the party's platforms, but they are the things that directly and seriously affect the interests of the masses of the people. These are too frequently neglected by both politicians and conventions. The moment, I believe, is ripe for the advent of the progressive Democracy, which shall go to the people as a genuine advocate of the honest, consistently disregarding the things that are ordinarily held out to it.

In my opinion the one preponderating issue in the campaign this year is that which concerns the things that are the outgrowth of the exactions practiced by those trusts that seek to create monopolies in the necessities of life, and out of the depredations of the purely speculative trusts.

Home Carpet Cleaning.

Old and faded carpets and rugs may be cleansed and brightened without much trouble or expense of sending them out. Take a bar of laundry soap and shave it into a quantity of water sufficient to melt it, say, a pint or perhaps a little more. Put this on the stove and let it remain until it boils or until the soap is melted. Then remove and when cool add half a bottle of household ammonia.

This should make a soap about the consistency of jelly. To apply to the carpet take a bit of soap on a scrubbing brush, dampened just a little, and scrub a small portion. Then wipe the soap off with a damp cloth, and see that the carpet is not walked over until dry. Care should be taken not to use a drop more water than is absolutely necessary.

The effect of this treatment is really surprising, the carpets looking as more than five years old, when done at the cleaner's. Bagdad curtains and Oriental rugs may be cleaned in the same manner, care being taken not to leave the soap on long enough to make the colors run.

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 5.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very nearly losing his wife and one little boy. She is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been bed for years. Her doctors with her two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her condition when we heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day.

"She used to have rheumatism so bad that it would swell her joints all over her body and this is all gone now.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God send to those who suffer as my wife and all. Mrs. Wilson, I'd Morrow her. We can't praise them enough."

Were Too Enthusiastic.

At the time of Queen Wilhelmina's coronation there was a banquet given at which stands at the end of the Kalverstraat in the middle of an open square, in which, notwithstanding the vast grounds, was surrounded by crowds of singing, shouting and dancing people as early as 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The merriment went on all night. The next day was passed a piteous notice, coupled in terms of appeal to mercy, the unknown, reminding the loyal Dutch that the foreign whom they had assembled to honor, was the mother of sick.

"The Queen's Quality" by Maurice Hewlett, one of the most recent books Heations of the Marmillan Company, is the story of a minor Queen of Scots. Probably no other woman in the world has been so violently attacked or so stanchly defended. Certainly no one can read the history of her times without feeling that she exercised over men a sway that has been equalled by any other woman, and since the world moved. Mr. Hewlett's story opens while Mary, a widow, is still living in the secret of Catherine de Medici and continues through all the stormy era of her life in Scotland. Plot, counterplot, conspiracy, murder and cross and move to ward the end.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the Eustachian lining. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BULL FIGHT MOB BURNS STADIUM

Gov. Dockery Refuses to Allow Exhibition to Be Given at St Louis.

DECLINES TO GIVE UP MONEY

Management is Heedless of Demand for Return of Admission Fee and Crowd of Angry Spectators Set Fire to the Structure.

St. Louis, Mo., dispatch. Failure to carry out the Spanish bull fight which had been advertised in take place in the stadium at the exposition grounds Sunday resulted a riot of 2,500 men and boys that only ended after a fierce fight between the mob and county officers and by the burning of the immense structure in which the fight was to have taken place.

The crowd waited for almost an hour for the grey battle horses and the matadors and bulls to begin. The bulls had been driven into the arena by cowboys who had represented to the sheriff entered the ring and declared that the fight could not be carried out.

The crowd heard the announcement with hoots and angry cries for his money. When the management refused to pay back the price of each ticket and called upon the police to drive the riotous mob from the building the fight began.

Set Fire to Building

Once outside the mob began to bombard the frame building with stones. Some malicious person set fire to a bale of paper and it quickly blazed to low roof. The idea caught the crowd's fancy, while I hundred clubs brought the police other hundred armed men ready for fire and toss at the building.

In five minutes the place was filled with the fiery balls. Some one crept through the burning building by a rear entrance and threw a lighted match into the hay piles.

In less than half an hour the building was in ashes. It was valued at $15,000.

During the progress of the fight four of the rioters were placed under arrest. The police attempted to take deputy sheriffs attempted to rescue them.

Governor Stops Exhibition.

Governor Dockery had been advised of the intention of the management of the bull-fighting enterprise and was prepared to prevent the special affair. He issued orders that the fight should not be allowed, but despite this the management of the company the show officials continued in their plans. Gov. Dockery, with his staff, climbed the arena to overbowing in a head

Since the beginning of the feature of the evening a number of cowboys, lured by the hope of a fight, came out of the arena, emulating the rides of a circus with west riders. The crowd was disappointed and yelled for the real carnage to begin. Still the cowboys left the arena and dale and chased the bulls about the ring, until the crowd was in a wild state of rage, ready for a mass battery for the coming battle.

Finally, it was seen that something desperate would be done because the feeling mass of humanity was appeased in a manner. A gaily bedecked announcer stepped forth and called upon the fact would immediately proceed.

Refuse to Refund Money

Then amid great applause, until the matadores appeared. His reception was cheered and echoed throughout the fair grounds. But then there came a hitch. A county official stepped into the ring and handed the announcer a written order to stop the proceedings where they were.

The matadors disappeared and the crowd sat in wonder—not knowing the truth dawned upon them, and with cries of indignation the disappointed spectators leaped into the arena and tore down the fixtures of their house. It was not fortunate—and then the crowd one of the most disgraceful and revolting scenes ever witnessed in the city known. The office outside of the Stadium was broken and the place was soon demolished with rocks.
