"IN AS MUCH."

Is What He said.

"In a low whisper, looking up, she said, 'I am hungry—do not turn away. Give me some food, quick, for I am faint.'

"For I have eaten nothing all this day."

"They gathered face and whisper soft and low.

"Fled with a power that would not be denied.

"And she spoke, her pale lips trembling as one.

"Crushed in an instant all my selfish pride.

"She sits beside me, to them happier years,

"With angel face, the still a child in years.

"And when she prays I hear they gratefully.

"Her Deliver, if Him who shelters from the storm."

Twenty-one years ago three little children were suddenly bereft of father and mother—they were friendless and homeless, but it was only one of the many similar instances happening every day—only three little children left friendless and homeless; that was all. But it was a crucial moment in at least one life. Rev. J. G. Lemen was at that time pastor of a large church in Council Bluffs, Ia. This man, whose heart was large enough to find a place for every unfortunate one, took these children into his own home, where they shared the same loving tender care that was bestowed upon his own little ones. It was not long before he learned of other children who had been left to the cold mercies of a selfish world. Moved with compassion, he took these, also, to his already overcrowded home. Then came the test; money was needed. He had a few thousand dollars which he had saved for a rainy day, the little knew what the Master had in store for him but he was obedient and when the news came that other little souls had been left alone, fatherless and motherless, no one to care for them, and the command came to also take these, to the ordinary man, with his house filled to overflowing and a large congregation looking to him to be fed spiritually, it would have seemed like an impossibility; not so, however, with this man, was he enough for him to know that his Master approved of it and bid him do it. As he stepped out upon promises and obeyed the command to go forward, the way opened before him, and when he had exhausted his own competency, never doubting but that a way would be opened to supply their needs, he who owns the cattle upon a thousand hills moved upon the hearts of the faithful subjects to send of their abundance to these little homeless ones might be cared for. Larger quarters became necessary, and they were secured. Other children were left homeless, and found under his roof only better from the storm, but a loving tender father at a time when it seemed right to call him, and, more than this to his stricken wife, now deceased who presided over the household affairs and was continually looking after their welfare.

From a small beginning, twenty-one years ago, the Christian Home has grown until now about one hundred and fifteen children are cared for there, and two thousand have been placed in good Christian families. The cool state contains of about twenty-five cottages and other build-ings, all owned by an organization which has been formed through the efforts of Mr. Lemen with a view of making it a permanent institution. Mr. and Mrs. Lemen have been blessed with four lovely children—three sons and one daughter. Each of them take great delight in the work of the Home and on visits, no doubt, the mantle of their father and mother will fall. The oldest son is giving his entire life to this work also.

The scrupulous neatness and order that pervades the entire institution, the loving salutation of Hello, page," that rings out from every quarter as he passes about the grounds and the remarkable executive ability he displays in all the management of the affairs of the Home, are sufficient to impress every visitor that it is no ordinary man who has been called to this great and noble work. Children are taken here from any part of the globe, and have the best possible care and training. You, my readers, wherever you may be, may have a part in this grand work. It is a labor of love in behalf of all homeless, suffering children everywhere. The children are frequently adopted by Christian people, but are never allowed to go from the Home excepting into Christian families who are properly vouched for. The Christian Home is non-sectarian, but is heartily indorsed and supported by all denominations. It takes child ren from every state and it is not a local affair, but belongs to the world.

We have given this brief description of the Christian Home with the hope that all who read it will become interested in its welfare. If you have money which the Master directs you to use for such purposes, send it to this Home. There is no institution that is more worthy of your gift than this.

They publish a valuable paper called the Word and the Way; subscription price, only twenty-five cents per year. We assure you that if you will subscribe for it, you will get more than your money's worth, and we hope you will forward at once twenty-five cents or $1 for yourself and three friends. Volumes might be written about this institution did space permit.

For further information and proper description of the work, address Christian Home, Council Bluffs, Ia.

MEN WHO BURN MONEY.

Smokers Who Use $1 and $2 Cigars Not Uncommon.

"There are not many men who smoke cigars at $2 each," said the cigar man in a downtown restaurant being patronized by customers who do not have to worry about the cost of their luncheons, "but we have to keep them in stock. When they are called for it is usually by a couple of old chums who are lunching together after a long parting, who are feeling good, and who want a heavy smoke after a liberal meal. As a matter of fact, most men think they are burning money when they pay $1 for a cigar. Forty cents for one cigar, and from that down to three for 50 cents is considered about the right thing. We sell a good many cigars at 25 cents each, or three for $1. In fact, they are the standard thing in high-priced cigars. Occasionally a customer will buy a box of two-dollar cigars, or even more expensive ones that, for a birthday present, or to send to some friend going to a distant city. These cigars are made only by skilled workmen and represent the highest perfection in cigarmaking."—New York Times.

Old Soldier's Story.

Sonoma, Mich., June 13.—That even in actual warfare disease is more terrible than bullets is the experience of Jonathan Hutchins of this place. Mr. Hutchins as a Union soldier was three years of service under Butler Banks in the Louisiana swamps, and as a result got crippled with rheumatism so that his hands and feet got all twisted out of shape, and how he suffered only a rheumatic will ever know.

For twenty-five years he was in misery, then one lucky day his druggist advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of the result Mr. Hutchins writes:

"The first two boxes did not help me any, but I got two more, and before I got them used up I was a great deal better. I kept on taking them and now my ankles are gone and I feel better than I have in years. I love Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure rheumatism."

To the housewife who has not yet become a regular buyer of these things of everyday use in the market, and who is reasonably satisfied with the old, we would suggest that a trial of Deshane Cold Water Starch be made at once. Not alone because it is guaranteed by the manufacturers to be superior to any other brand, but because it will increase your profits. It does not lack all the other kinds contain, but it does, and now we say that the Deshane Cold Water Starch will use no other. Quality and quantity must win.

Chances in Journalism.

He is a journalist, but began life as a bookkeeper. "Journalism," he says, "leads to everything, you know, but one does not stick to it too long."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
