Blazing Body Found Lying in Old Deserted Ice House

Ice House Is Burned To Ground Early Thursday Morning

An unidentified man, the victim, was found Thursday morning in the old house which stood along with a nearby early-morning was made by four boys returning to their skating rink in the new one were: Harry Shultz, William Wiedenbeck, the two men who nipped the skirish before it developed into an unignited brawl.

This came as an anti-climax to Ober's election to the post of chairman of the board. Mr. Stripe as president of the Taxpayers Association of Waukegan, had attempted to address the board in protest to the selection of chairman. He did not go through the proper channels in getting permission to address the board as a whole it was reported, and was ordered to surrender the floor.

Escorted Out

When he did not conform to this demand, he was escorted from the room by John Froelich, deputy sheriff, according to report from Waukegan.

Following the organization meeting, Mr. Ober encountered Mr. Stripe in the court house with resulting exchange in words and near physical clash.

The organization of which Mr. Stripe is president objected to Mr. Ober's election on the ground that latter was superintendent of construction of the addition to the court house in 1923-24 while he was a member of the board making him interested in a contract or performance of work in the making or letting of which he was called upon to act or vote.

1st Before Committee

Before addressing the board of supervisors, it is necessary to get permission by first appearing at a committee hearing. When this preliminary is not followed out, a speaker may be denied the privilege of addressing the board. It was reported that Mr. Stripe did not conform to this rule of order.

A letter from the Waukegan Taxpayers' association and signed by H. Stripe explains the point of difference. The letter in part is:

"We are informed that Mr. William Ober, of Highland Park, for years a member of the board of supervisors of Lake County, is a candidate for chairman of the board."

"In view of this we wish to call your attention to the facts that during the years 1923 and 1924 Mr. Ober was superintendent of construction of the addition to the court house."

"If you will ask State's Attorney A. V. Smith, he will tell you that it is against the statute of the state of Illinois for any supervisor to do work for the county or its representatives other than that which is necessary in the performance of his official duties as a supervisor."

Mr. Ober drove to town to while Shultz and died at the place where the flames converged to the place where the fire extinguished the flames in a charred stump.

The group returned home where the body was discovered to be completely incinerated.

The body was salvaged teeth and bones to be used for identification.

Mr. Ober, Gammisch, who lives on the Otis spur in the old ice house, testified that she had seen three men at the ice house about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, dressed, the other appearing to be a tramp. The three left the ice house, she said, and sought?

She brought out the points that the body lay on a stone and not the floor, that the only debris in the building was straw on the floor, that the body so fiercely as to might have been oil set afire that the completely incinerated or identification salvaged teeth and bones to be used for identification.

The new members, as elected by the voters last week, were declared duly qualified and elected by the village board of trustees meeting last Friday night for the purpose of canvassing the votes and lists of voters. No discrepancies were found.

New Chairman of County Board and Objectors Clash

A personal combat between William Ober, new chairman of the Lake county board of supervisors, and Harry Stripe of Waukegan, in the court house Wednesday afternoon, was barely averted when other members of the board stepped between the two men and nipped the skirmish before it developed into an unignited brawl.

102 H. S. Golfers Are Entered in Hillcrest Meet

Qualifying rounds for the north section of the Illinois High School Golfers Association, which will be held Saturday at Hillcrest will bring between 75 and 100 youthful golfers to Barrington from 13 high schools located in cities and villages of northeastern Illinois.

Mr. Brown, superintendent of schools at Arlington Heights, who has been placed in charge of these qualifying rounds, had received 102 entries prior to Wednesday evening. A few more were expected Thursday, but probably from 15 to 25 entered will fail to appear, Mr. Brown suggested. The northern territory includes everything from the Chicago district north to the Wisconsin line, although many schools in the district are not represented by golfers or golf teams.

Start 9 a. m.

The boys entered will start on their qualifying rounds not later than 9 a.m., and if a foursome is on hand earlier than that time the boys will be sent out on their first flight in order to keep the play moving steadily without crowding later in the day. The boys will go out in foursomes with four schools represented in each group, and an instructor from a fifth school, accompanying each group as scorer.

The fact that only the four lowest can qualify and each of these must make the course in not more than 18 above par, means that the boys in play very good golf. The golfers from this district also face the fact that they are playing at Hillcrest, a difficult course.

Prizes and honorable mentions were awarded in each of the following classifications: editorial, biographies, local issues, and descriptive charts.

Published in Magazine

Six weeks ago 50 members of the social science class under the direction of Miss Minnie Sheel entered this theme contest.

Mildred Folkes' first prize biography, "Jane Addams," was published in "Current Topics" and was selected for Mildred Skinner's third prize for biography, "Howard Da Silva." Fern Petersen's fifth prize for biography, "Vernon Plaeger," fifth prize for cartoon, awarded $1.

Prizes and honorable mentions were awarded in each of the following classifications: editorial, biographies, local issues, and descriptive charts.

Final Costs on Assessments for Pavement Found

Final cost of construction on 10 of the 13 special paving assessment projects by Arthur J. Haggens, village attorney, were checked by Attorney Bardwell with the estimates prepared by the engineering firm of Suber, Berryman, Peterson and Sulz, corrections made, and they are now ready for approval by the committee. The committee these will be forwarded to Cook and Lake county judges for final disposition.

The estimates prepared on these projects by Arthur J. Haggens, village attorney, were checked by Attorney Bardwell with the estimates prepared by the engineering firm of Suber, Berryman, Peterson and Sulz, corrections made, and they are now ready for approval by the committee.

The difference between these figures, representing final cost of construction, and the figures on the bonds issued by Mr. Hay, is the amount of the over-issue which Hay has agreed to refund along with the interest on the over-issue.

Payments Made

Mr. Hay has refunded the village for interest payments made Dec. 15, 1928. No interest payments on over-issues other than those were made by the village, as the discrepancies came to light shortly after that.

The assessments, the final costs of construction which have been determined, and the amount of the over-issues on these, along with the over-issues on previously determined assessments are:

Assess. No.	Cost	Overissue
20	$2,505.00	$165.08

Some Already Completed

Among the above listed assessments, in which the final cost of construction is not listed, are the assessments on which the final costs had been determined previously and referred to the county judges.

The final cost of construction has not been determined on assessments No. 46, 55 and 58. These are being checked and will be determined in the near future, Mr. Bardwell said.

No over-issues were made on assessments not listed. Some payments were made by Mr. Hay personally, amounting to about $1,000. He has been credited with this and the amount will be applied to the over-issue payments he owes.

First in Awards, Wins 5 Places in National Contest

Honors were heaped on the junior high school of Barrington this week with the announcement from the national school magazine, "Current Topics," that Barrington had won five places in a national American essay contest conducted by the high school.

In competition with pupils from hundreds of high schools scattered over the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii, Barrington boys and girls won more than those in any other school. Many schools won a single honor each, a great many more probably failed to place in the prize winning column.

Start 9 a. m.

The boys entered will start on their qualifying rounds not later than 9 a.m., and if a foursome is on hand earlier than that time the boys will be sent out on their first flight in order to keep the play moving steadily without crowding later in the day. The boys will go out in foursomes with four schools represented in each group, and an instructor from a fifth school, accompanying each group as scorer.

Three Biographies

The Barrington pupils who won prizes were:

Mildred Folkes, first prize for biography, awarded $10.

Mildred Skinner, third prize for biography, awarded $3.

Fern Petersen, fifth prize for biography, awarded $1.

Vernon Plaeger, fifth prize for cartoon, awarded $1.

Virginia Deissler, fifth prize for descriptive chart, awarded $1.

Howard Da Silva, fifth prize for cartoon, awarded $1.

The following trees and shrubs were planted Saturday: 15 bird cherry trees, 10 juniper, 26 dogwood, 22 elderberry, 22 sumach, 26 meadow rue, 20 high bush cranberry, 20 arrowwood, and 20 sheepberry.

Varied Programs at Catlow Theatre

Edmund Lowe, the popular star of "What Price Glory," is again in a comedy of love making and beautiful women, "Don't Bet On Women," which is now playing at The Catlow theatre. Lowe has the leading role, that of the social lion, who makes a bet with his attorney that within forty-eight hours he can kiss the first woman who crosses his path. Featured with Lowe is Jeanette MacDonald.

"Don't Bet On Women," the screen feature at The Catlow theatre Friday night, is being presented as a benefit for the Junior and Senior commercial classes of the Barrington high school. Jack Oakie, who comes to The Catlow theatre Saturday night in "June Moon," will offer breezy and fast-moving comedy in this Broadway play transferred to the talking screen.

"Small Towner"

The theme of the story is that a small town "soph" thinks he can write popular music. He goes to New York. The big city has just about convinced him that a song writer, he'd make a good bus boy when a tune of his takes hold. Frances Dee makes an admirable playing mate for Oakie, and a supporting large cast adds zest to the story.

A variety of short subjects will round out the evening's entertainment.

Submarine Mystery

"The Seas Beneath," coming to the Catlow theatre next Sunday and Monday, is based on the activities of an American "mystery ship" working in conjunction with an American submarine to capture a noted U-boat off the Canaries.

Marion Lessing, the Viennese star, makes her feature picture debut as the German heroine of this production, and the supporting cast includes George O'Brien, Warren Hymer and William Collier, Sr.

Double Feature for Friend's Night

Ernest Schoenbeck, producer of the greatest motion pictures thrillers of 1931, the Sumatra jungle film "Rango," spent eight months in the Achin fever belt, almost on the equator, photographing his story.

Tropic Picture

"Rango" is a story of the struggle for existence in the matted, steaming depths of the tropical Malayan jungle. It shows the parallel that exists in the lives of a native tiger hunter and his son, and a red-haired ape (the orangutan) and his two-year-old ape son, "Rango."

"Rango" comes to the Catlow theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday as the main attraction in a double feature program.

The second feature of the bill is "Captain Thunder" in which Victor Varconi and Fay Wray portray the leading roles in a galloping adventure of Old Mexico.

Indian Peace Medals

The early peace medals given to the Indians were struck in any design to suit the fancy of the donor. Beginning with Jefferson's day, a standard official medal was adopted and those following were the same size, design and metal, with the names of the respective Presidents, until the administration of Fillmore in 1850, when the reverse was entirely changed.

No More in Life

When he is pushing his first around in a perambulator he looks happy enough, but twenty years later when he is taking the wife's pet poodle around the block for airing you don't have to ask him—his looks fairly shout that he wishes he had remained a bachelor. —Kansas City Star.

PLAN MODEL ROOMS IN HOME INSTITUTE DEMONSTRATION HERE

Plans for the Barrington Home Institute are now nearly completed, and those who have seen the proposed program promise that the day is going to offer one of the most interesting and unusual programs Barrington women have had an opportunity to attend.

In addition to lecture-demonstration on nutrition, food preparation, interior decoration, floral arrangement, and wardrobe planning, there are to be model rooms, arranged by the Plage Home Furnishing Co. and the J. & A. Studio Shop of Barrington. The program is being sponsored by the Women's Relief Corps of Barrington, for the purpose of swelling their welfare fund. Preparations are being directed by Mary Dunbar, director of the Jewel home service division.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

MUSHROOM RECEIPES

There are so many delicious ways of serving mushrooms that it is a very easy thing to choose one that appeals to any taste, any occasion. The mainstay of luncheon may be mushrooms, a mediocre dinner may be lifted high above its level by the addition of a well chosen mushroom dish, mushrooms may be served for party refreshments.

BROILED STEAK WITH MUSHROOMS

The steak should be dusted with pepper and salt and broiled quickly. The mushrooms should be treated the same way. After being cooked, pour mushrooms over steak. A hot platter should be used.

Eggs and Mushrooms

One pound of fresh mushrooms cleaned in several waters. Don't let them stand. Peel and put them in a stovepan, with two ounces of butter, one-half teaspoon of salt and white pepper. Set them over the fire until thoroughly heated; turn into a shallow dish and top with stale bread crumbs. Dot with bits of butter. Dust with salt and pepper. Bake in a hot oven five minutes. Spread them on hot buttered toast and serve.

Stuffed Mushrooms

Half a pound of medium-sized mushrooms, tablespoon butter, two tablespoons each of bread crumbs and chopped ham, one teaspoon of minced parsley, small piece of onion (minced), salt and pepper. Fry the onion in the butter, and then add to it the bread crumbs, ham, parsley, and seasoning. Stir all together, and remove from the fire. Next, skin the mushrooms and cut off their stems; fill them with the mixture from the pan. Grease a baking tin, place the mushrooms carefully in it, and upon each put a small piece of butter. Bake in a moderate oven for a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes, and while cooking make some neat rounds of buttered toast. Place one mushroom upon each piece, and serve while quite hot.

Dr. Andy Hall, director of the state department of public health, has issued an appeal to the public to exterminate the housefly. Giving startling statistics as to the fly's ability to multiply, and of the health hazards they present, the director observes: "A ruthless and vigorously prosecuted birth control program applied to the fly family is therefore in order."

The state department of public health has placed its approval upon the use of pasteurized milk, exclusively, for city milk supplies. It warns that raw milk, unless surrounded by rigid sanitary precautions, readily becomes unwholesome and unsafe, particularly in warm weather. The department urges the liberal use of milk from a view-point of health, but insists that milk, to be wholesome must be properly handled.

These two southeastern Illinois counties received a very slight degree of infection in the reports of tests performed by veterinarians in the animal industry division of the state department of agriculture.

Ralph F. Bradford, director of the state department of conservation, has announced several important changes in the regulations that effect migratory fowl. The new regulations, approved by President Hoover, become effective in this state under provisions of the Illinois fish and game laws. They alter the lawful hours and days for hunting migratory birds; include brant with geese in the bag-limit provisions; limit live goose decoys to 10 to the blind; and forbid hunting mourning doves where bait of any kind has been distributed. Specific information concerning revised regulations are available upon application to the department of conservation.

"Old Fashioned" Party

For 40 Guests
Mrs. Florence McLeister was host at a unique party given in the Baptist church parlors Friday evening. About 40 guests attended this "old fashioned" party dressed accordingly. Wearing apparel that had passed the hundredth birthday was in evidence, some pieces of which were beautiful. Progressive games were played later in the evening and prizes went to Mrs. Myrtle Abbott, Mrs. Mabel Seavens and Mrs. Eleanor Carmichael. For the costumes, Miss Annette Sheel received a bouquet of beautiful roses; for her, a humorous gown and bird cage; Mrs. Eleanor Carmichael, a bouquet for having the oldest gown; Mrs. Madge Lindberg, flowers because of the style of her costume; and Mrs. Anna Lines, the most beautifully dressed, in a black silk lace gown also received flowers. The party was completed by a very lovely luncheon served by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Biechel, Mrs. Virilen, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Hoglund.

cept Amy Lowell, who died recently. The author further brings out that a liberalized intellectual attitude determines whether or not a poet is modern.

The selected modern poets together with their best known poems are: Robert Frost (American) "West Running Brook"; "Meeting Wall"; Amy Lowell (American) "Patterns"; Edith St. Vincent Millay (American) "The King's Henchman"; Edwin Arlington Robinson (American) "Tristram"; Carl Sandburg (American) "Chicago"; "American Folk Songs"; Walter De La Mare (English) "Peacock Pie"; Alfred Edward Housman (English) "Thorpshire Lad"; "Last Poems"; Rudyard Kipling (English) "Barrack Room Ballads"; "Ballad of East or West"; Alfred Noyes (English) "Flower of Old Japan"; John Masefield (English) "Salt Water Ballads"; "Everlasting Mercy"; "Cargoes."

Mrs. DeLong summarized her review by saying that modern poetry is full of beauty and vigor and is meant to be read aloud. She said that we need the old and we need the new—it best expresses the spirit of our times.

Ninth Inning Rally Gives Locals Victory Over Cary

Barrington Wins 11 to 10 In First Game of Season; Trail Visitors Until Final Inning; Elgin Parkside Here for Game Sunday

The Barrington baseball team staged a thrilling ninth inning rally scoring four runs, to win their opening game of the season played on the local diamond from Cary Sunday, by a score of 11 to 10.

The cold weather made fielding difficult and as a result several costly errors were made by both teams contributing to the large scores made. Barrington trailed most of the game except the third inning when the locals scored four runs to gain a 5 to 4 lead only to lose it to Cary in the fourth inning after the visitors had scored two runs.

In the last half of the ninth with Cary leading 10 to 7, the locals got busy with their bats and scored the tying and winning runs. R. Berg, the first man up, singled, McGowan singled, sending Berg to third, McGowan stole second and both runners scored in the centerfielder's muf of A. Altenburg's long drive. Scherf singled and scored. A. Altenburg with the tying run. C. Altenburg singled sending Scherf to third from where he scored when Scherf was safe on an error.

Four Hits

R. Berg lead the locals attack with four safe hits. Scherf, McGowan and Berg were next with two hits each. Oceauka led for Cary with three hits.

Next Sunday Barrington will play the Elgin Parkside here. The Park sides are known as the strongest team in this vicinity and were the only team to take a three game series from Barrington last year when they won two games to the locals one. With several practice sessions on tap for this week the home team expects hard fought game Sunday.

MINIATURE GOLF WILL START NEXT SATURDAY

R. B. Eiters has purchased the Barrington miniature golf course from Spencer Rieke and will open it up Saturday, May 2, he announced this week.

The course has been equipped with halfitet greens and cement runways and has been decorated with flower beds, shrubbery, and other improvements.

With the opening Saturday, Mr. Eiters will inaugurate a plan of prizes with no additional cost to players and open to all. Plans of the opening are told in an advertisement published on another page of this issue of The Review.

Applying science to behavior problems of juvenile delinquents, the Illinois Institute for Juvenile Research, offering its aid to the state department of public welfare, suggests the reversal of the adage, "Be good and you'll be happy." The theory that child psychology offers is that, if the homeless victims of wretchedness and vice are given desirable surroundings, they will react with good behavior.

Barrington Wins Triangular Track Meet at Palatine

Barrington High School Bronchos won a close and exciting victory over Libertyville and Palatine last Friday night on the Palatine track. One half point was the margin of victory for Coach Clark's boys who came through with 41 points while Libertyville was able to annex only 43½ and Palatine was 20.

Although Libertyville had all their runners present, they were saving three of their field stars for the meet at Ottawa last Saturday. Those three boys placed their school second among the forty-nine schools entered in the meet—proving their merit. It was a good track meet nevertheless and despite the winter weather some excellent marks were made.

Barrington took six firsts, four seconds, and one third. Droyer won the 50 yard dash and Grabenhorst, Trebilcot, and Callow each gained a first in their respective specialties, the shot, the discus, and the javelin. Bennett was high point man with a first in the high jump, a tie for first in the vault and a second in the low hurdles. Williams got three points in the running broad. Garbisch ran a nice race to finish second in the half mile while Meister surprised himself by winning the second in the 220.

Relay Exciting

The relay was probably the most exciting event of the afternoon. Moore and Bennett ran two pretty laps in this race but were slightly behind their rivals when Roth got the baton. Roth put on a burst of speed to pass his man and gave Williams a lead which he never lost although the Libertyville boy was pressing him for the lead all the way around.

Barrington is also the apparent winner of the triangular meet between Arlington Heights, Palatine and the Bronchos which is being run off on the installment plan. The score is even up with Arlington Heights at present but there are three events which have not been run off as yet. Unless the dope is upset either Palatine or Barrington should win the most points in these three events and so the Maroons should come out on top.

Two Meets This Week
On Saturday Coach Clark is taking the squad to Crystal Lake, where there is a triangular meet between that school, Arlington Heights and Barrington. There should be plenty of competition up there. On Friday night of this week the sophomore and freshman boys are going over to the Palatine track to meet the two classes of the Arlington high school. Barrington is eligible to enter the Lake county meet at Waukegan on Wednesday but probably will not compete.

Approval of changes in service from manufactured to natural gas in Springfield and Peoria, has been asked of the Illinois Commerce Commission by the Illinois Power Company and the Central Illinois Light Company, which serve those two cities. This new plan is contingent on the application of the Panhandle-Illinois Pipe Line Company, now before the commission for a certificate to construct and operate a pipe line for transmission and sale of natural gas in Illinois.

The two companies which have entered into a tentative contract with the Panhandle Company for purchase of natural gas, reserve the right to preserve their present gas manufacturing plants and to resume manufactured gas service if the supply of natural gas, to be piped all the way from Oklahoma and Texas should fail.

FALSE IMPRISONMENT

In spite of the many legal safeguards which surround those accused of crime, a good many innocent persons suffer imprisonment, and even death, as the result of perjured or otherwise unreliable evidence. A few instances are related by Margaret W. Stewart of the Library of Congress in a recent article.

There is the case of William Wilson of Alabama, convicted in 1914 on the charge of murdering his wife and given a life sentence. After he had served more than three years the supposedly murdered woman was found living in Indiana, and Wilson was pardoned. He was given $3,500 by the state as partial recompense for his wrongful imprisonment.

Another victim, J. B. Brown of Florida, served 12 years for a murder of which he was finally found innocent. The state gave him $2,422 in installments, or about $200 for each year in prison.

Mississippi was not quite so liberal with Moses Walker, who served five years under a false charge, but awarded him $500 upon his release.

These payments by the states concerned were made through the passage of special bills by their legislatures. Two states, North Dakota and Wisconsin, have permanent compensation for wrongful imprisonment.

It is hard to imagine anything more tragic than the punishment of an innocent person. When such unhappy occurs, it seems that compensation should be made a fixed policy in every state. No money payment can really compensate for the mental and physical suffering experienced by the victim of false imprisonment, but it would at least assist him in making a new start in life.

HOW MANY SOULS?

Prof. Frederick H. Sears, eminent astronomer of Mt. Wilson observatory, has been making some interesting estimates concerning the inhabitants of the universe, which run into big figures.

First, he notes that there are about 30 billion suns, many of them immensely larger than our own, each of which may have at least one world spinning around it, while many may have several.

The earth has an estimated population of about two billion people, so if each of these suns has only one inhabited planet and these planets average as many inhabitants as the earth, it would mean that there are 60 quintillions of living people. To write this in figures you have only to put down a 6 and 19 ciphers after it.

This estimate, or guess, assumes only the possible number of people inhabiting the now visible universe. How many more suns there may be no one knows, and it is not likely that a telescope will ever be made powerful enough to discover them all.

But, taking the estimate as it stands, it refers only to people now living. The number that have lived and died, and those who are yet to live and die is left entirely to the imagination. Supposing that all have or will have immortal souls, it appears that there is little likelihood of anyone's getting lonesome in the hereafter, whatever his destination.

REASON ENOUGH FOR VETO

Now that the high tension caused by Governor Emerson's repealer bill veto in the face of strong opposition has subsided, many anti-prohibitionists not in favor of the Volstead Act, are satisfied with the governor's action. They realize that children must be protected by law from liquor traffic.

The following quotation from Governor Emmerson's veto message should convince many died-in-the-wool wets that the governor acted wisely in preventing the repealer from removing all state liquor law:

"It is apparent, therefore, that House Bill No. 1 would remove from the statutes all these laws on this subject and the serious consequences of such a situation cannot be ignored by any thoughtful citizen. The police, sheriffs, constables and other law enforcement officers, numbering tens of thousands, could not under state law interfere with the sale of liquor to school children, the operation of stills and dramshops near schools and colleges or any other trafficking in intoxicants. The only protection from these evils would be the activities of a comparatively few federal agents, unless some measure of power remains in municipalities by ordinance, but this would necessarily be weak and ineffective."

The flag of the United States should be displayed on the following days:

Lincoln's Birthday, February 12th.
Washington's Birthday, February 22nd.

Lexington Patriotic Day, April 19th.
Mother's Day, 2nd Sunday in May.

Memorial Day, May 30th.
Flag, June 14th.

Independence Day, July 4th.
Labor Day, 1st Monday in September.

Constitution Day, September 17th.
Columbus Day, October 12th.

Navy Day, October 27th.
Armistice Day, November 11th.

Illinois Day, December 3rd.
All Election Days.

The flag should be displayed at full staff on all occasions except Memorial Day, May 30th. On this day the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and full staff from noon until sunset.

AD-LESS RADIO CHAIN?

It is reported that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other philanthropists may finance a $100,000,000 broadcasting system which will permit no advertising in connection with its programs.

A first step in the plan to raise the cultural standard of radio broadcasting is seen in the formation of a national advisory council on radio in education, with eminent educators, scientists, public officials and other leading citizens as council members.

The prospect of better radio programs, unmarred by advertising harangues, will be most pleasing to the millions of owners of receiving sets.

Experiences in Early Barrington

BY MARCY B. DARNALL

I think it was in 1855, father bought a larger log house from Henry Elfrink of Deer Grove, and moved it on 80 acres that he owned, and where it still stands today. The farmer helped move it. We moved there in the month of March, 1855. I had a good time with the prairie chickens and made a trap and caught some of them. One spring I had 5 dozen prairie chicken eggs and I set them under hens, and when they hatched they ran away and I could not raise any of them.

One day I was in the prairie and saw two young sand hill cranes and I caught them and brought them home and raised them so that they would eat from my hand, and got them quite large. One day the wind blew so hard, they got hurt and died, which made me feel quite bad.

One Sunday father and I came from Deer Grove, as we attended Sunday services at Elfrink's house. As we came through the prairie, we saw two wild geese which were shot in the wings, and so we caught them and took them home and had them quite a while, and one day, our distant neighbor, Hildebrandt, who was quite a hunter, came to our house and saw them and claimed them, because he had shot them sometime before, and so he took them home, which made me feel quite bad.

One day I was driving through the prairie with the oxen. I walked beside them and led them, and the oxen started to jump and I saw quite a few rattlesnakes, so I jumped up in the wagon and whipped up the oxen and drove away as fast as I could, as I was very much scared.

I think it was in the winter of 1856 that I went with father to the woods to help him saw some logs for firewood, and froze my feet so badly that in the spring I had to follow the oxen in my stockings, as I could not wear any shoes, as my feet were in very bad condition.

I remember in 1853 or '54, there were many mad dogs around that winter. One man was bitten and died. So they sent out men to kill all the dogs around the country, and one day two men came around and took my dog, that I thought so much of, and well broken, to the wood-pile and cut off his head.

Washington's police department has announced that in future persons indulging in "decent" petting in public parks would not be disturbed. Plans and specifications for "decent" petting have not been made public.

Roberts who broke into the home of Mrs. Ann Jacobs of Cleveland, during a bridge party were very polite as one of the bandits stopped working long enough to get a glass of water for a guest who had fainted.

Among the baseball records often recounted by the "hot stove league," is that of Everett Scott, famed shortstop of the Boston and New York teams in the American League. Scott never missed playing in a scheduled game of his team for nearly nine years, from June 20, 1916, to May 6, 1925, during which time he played in 1,307 straight games.

New inventions are making this more and more a thingless world. To mention only three or four, we have bloodless surgery, wireless telephony, smokeless powder, caffeine-less coffee, and now the Germans have developed a nicotineless tobacco. In the meantime there has been no diminution in the crop of spineless politicians.

The cabbage is the world's most versatile plant, according to the director of Kew Gardens in London. From one original wild growth, which is still found in Europe, has been developed the present cabbage, kale, Brussels sprout, cauliflower, broccoli and the Kohlrabi family. As someone rather aptly said long ago, the cabbage and the rest are only cabbages with a college education.

The wedding of two midgets on the stage of a New York theatre in which they were appearing in a show recently attracted a large crowd, as a result of extensive advertising of the interesting event. Later it was disclosed that the happy pair had been married under similar circumstances no less than forty times in seven different countries.

Believed in Influence of Good Spirits

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

IT WAS Marjory's first trip up to the Maine coast and naturally she had never before seen the Wishing Tower.

Tradition had it that, since the old light-house had been abandoned for something more modern, the good fairies which had always guarded those at sea, still lingered there. And so an enterprising townsman conceived the splendid idea of turning the light-house into a Wishing Tower and for five cents one could enter, write his or her most cherished wish on the wall and, because of the influence of the good spirits, expect it to come true.

Marjory firmly believed in the influence of good spirits and went straight into the tower to write down a wish. Once inside she found that she must return on three succeeding days and put a tiny cross beside her wish. This repetition, it seemed, showed a keen interest in one's wish and incidentally put twenty rather than five cents into the pockets of the enterprising townsman.

Having the usual amount of romance still waiting within her unspoiled heart, Marjory drew a picture that somewhat resembled that important organ of one's anatomy and wrote carefully, "I want to be loved by a nice, black-haired man with brown eyes."

She hurried away lest any of the several people strolling about reading the wishes should laugh at her.

In her haste she almost collided head on with a fine big man whose curiosity had carried him also to the Wishing Tower. He, however, liked the all too swift glance he got of Marjory and fell to wondering whether or not she had made a wish or whether she was just idling about like herself seeking amusement.

Tony McVane arrived at Marjory's wish, but, of course, he had no idea that the hasty young lady with whom he had bumped elbows was the writer. The hasty drawn heart amused him. Suddenly a spirit of fun he drew another heart just over the line of Marjory's, and wrote, "I want to be loved by a black-haired, misty-eyed girl."

The next day when Marjory went in to attach her cross to the wish, there were several other people there, and one young man had apparently taken up position for life right in front of her wish. She lingered about casting shy glances at this human screen and wondering when he would move away. Marjory wouldn't for the world let this big man with the twinkle in his very blue eyes know that she had put down so sentimental a wish. Her hair, closely cropped, was of red-gold, with a strong accent on the red.

She felt a vague tug at memory's cord and was hung back suddenly to her seventh year when she and a lanky red-haired boy had been inseparable companions.

But coming again as swiftly to the present she realized that the way was now clear to putting a cross beside her wish. She did it quickly and turned away.

Tony McVane, out of the corner of his blue eyes watched and smiled. When Marjory had left the wishing tower, he went back to the two hearts and wrote something beside his own wish. After that he went away and was pleasantly thoughtful.

When Marjory returned next day for her second cross she was highly amused to see that an addition had been made to the heart overlapping her own. Reading it, the clever color fanned her cheeks.

"Have changed my color scheme and wish for tawny hair and clear hazel eyes," she read.

She slipped out quickly and went along to the nearest soda fountain as the day was thirst begetting.

Tony McVane, who had been watching her from a nearby bench, arose and leisurely went into the same shop.

Marjory was about to sip the first spoonful of her luscious drink when the color mounted high in her cheeks.

The man sat down quite near to her and removed his tweed cap.

Memory gave another sharp tug at Marjory's brain when the red hair came into full view. She cast a startled glance at the man; saw a tiny scar that lay up against the left eyebrow, then smiled brightly.

"Carrots! It is Carrots!" she called softly.

The big man bounded over to Marjory's table and gripped both her hands and gazed into her hazel eyes as if there had never been a better.

other pair of such beautiful eyes. "It isn't really possible," said Tony McVane, "you used to be spindly and straw-colored and—"

"I wasn't half as spindly as you were lanky and red headed," finished Marjory.

"But you're the most beautiful thing I've ever seen. When I saw you in the Wishing Tower something took me back to childhood, but I never dreamt of anything like this. How did you recognize me?"

"Well, Marjory, since we have about fifteen years' conversation to make up and I have to change your mind about color schemes in men, we had better get started. My heart is already joined to your own in the Wishing Tower, you know."

Marjory blushed and didn't mind a bit.
