Life's Little Jokes

"COPPER OF BRAZILIAN CATTLE, STRIFE OF SÃO PAULO."

Washington.—Fully four and a half out of every five gallons of coffee drunk in the United States comes from Brazil, and the proportion is growing steadily higher, partly because the Brazilian bean is of a superior quality and flavor. The generality of coffee drinkers have a hazy idea that "Mocha and Java" enter largely into the morning beverage, but it is a fact that all the Mocha and Java that reach this country in a year would not supply St. Louis for six months.

It is generally known and understood that the greater proportion of fine Brazilian coffee comes from the state of Sao Paulo in that country, and the statement that Sao Paulo the richest state in the Brazilian Union, is "one vast coffee estate" has been made so frequently that the general impression has gone abroad that little else but coffee is produced in the state. It is true that the Sao Paulo last year produced 1,124,000,000 pounds of coffee—but that's a value of $140,000,000, and that this vast aggregate of wealth was produced through the greatest coffee pen in the world. Rather, but it is also true that Sao Paulo has a host of other industries that are developing at a rate that is astonishing. It is to Sao Paulo that the great bulk of European colonists have been granted. It is from Sao Paulo that the enormous shipments to Europe of live cattle will be made. It is Sao Paulo that now contains three hundred factories engaged in a truly remarkable array of industries. These factories alone represent an investment of over $48,000,000 and are employing 50,000 workmen.

It is true that coffee is the staple but these factories are turning out cotton and woolen fabrics, they are making rope, twines and papers. There are breweries, marble quarries, metal industries of various natures, vast estates that are devoted to the culture of rice and square miles of territory that produce countless qualities of fruits that are shipped in all directions. Sao Paulo has gone extensively into grape culture, and is turning out wines that are becoming vastly popular in several countries. Agriculture of a general nature has engaged the attention of the residents of the state to a greater extent in the last few years, and as a consequence the railways are extending in every direction throughout the state. As an indication of the volume of business transacted through the port of Santos it last year reached a grand total of the value of $300,000,000. This was compared very favorably with the trade of Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Ayres, the two largest South American ports.

In great measure this has been due to the far-sighted and patriotic efforts of the statesmen who have directed the destinies of the state and to the fact that some years ago a South American historian that the history of the State of Sao Paulo was the history of all Brazil.

His Real Calling

There is a writer in New York who has achieved little success, but who being amply supplied with worldly goods, continues to write because it keeps turning out books the merit of which he has expressed always at sixty of mouth and heavy purchases from publishers. Last year, at the time friend of Simeon Pord, boniface, will and philosopher, Pord is the only one who ever read all of the friend's books, and he explains this by reason why the attenuated hotel man is one of the most welcome looking of humans.

They were at dinner recently when the author said: "Sim, you've been faithful and to me you are my real audience. for you've read every book friend and read all I have written. Sometimes I think that I have made a great mistake and I am not really an author after all.

"I think you're right," assented Mr. Pord. "You're a hotel proprietor!"

Sim's chair "surprisingly asked the author.

Well, remarked Simeon, "every book you write becomes a drug on the market.

Putting it Up Uncle

Henry G. Davis, well-known New York lawyer, talking about dramatic critics, said: "Critics are slaves of the servant problem, though he would hardly like to admit it. I once heard a critic tell one on himself as he did recently at the Gridiron dinner.

"We have a mighty good girl who got wind that her uncle was ill. She asked to be allowed to go away on a few days and go to the funeral. After a week had passed she came home, quite nervous. So a note was sent to her employer, saying she would be able to return and how her uncle was.

"We got a reply something like this: 'Dear Mrs. —: Will be as soon as possible. Uncle is getting weaker every day.'"

Adornment.

To adorn ourselves seems to be a part of our nature. Everybody seems to be everywhere and to every thing. Even the aborigines thought that the desire for beauty covers the earth with flowers, birds, pattern wings and moths, even the chamber of the shell with alcove and the ocean with coral and the song. O dangerous and wives, if you would be adorned be adornment, if you would be adored be beautiful.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Vanity of Life.

How small a portion of our life it is that we really enjoy. In youth we are looking forward to things that are to come. In old age we are looking back upon things that are gone past. In the meantime, although we appear indeed to be more occupied in things that are present, yet how little we are absorbed in vague determination to be valid hence or some future day when we have time.

IN A SERIOUS CONDITION.

A Case of Terrible Kidney Trouble.

Henry Palmer, Cole and Walnut Sts., Barnesville, O., says: "My kidney trouble was caused by hardships and exposure in the army. The awful pains across my back grew worse and more severe until I was in constant misery. My feet and hands were swollen to twice their natural size. The kidney secretion was in a terrible condition—for months I walked when second to be clear blood. I became so dizzy everything seemed to whirl. My condition was alarming when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Before long I improved and was soon strong and well."

A Tart Tongue.

Col. Robert G. Carter, a Nash ville banquer, was talking about campaign economy.

"Then there was Dash of Company," he said. "Dash had the reputation of being the most economical man in the regiment.

"In the Private Dash, you know who, out foraging one evening on a farm, stumbled upon a chicken coop, the owner's wife, a grande dame in consequence.

"Dash asked her for food. She refused. Dash insisted. She still refusing, she walked away.

"'No, she said, 'I have you nothing. Trespassing like this! Why, you belong, don't you, to the army?'

"Made up, is it?' said Dash. 'Like the rest of you, ma'am.'"

Honored by the Governor.

Effusive compliments have been paid to Governor Marshall many times but it remained for an old lady woman to rap the climax.

The governor met her at a funeral which he attended the other day and she was full of admiration for the ladies executive.

"Ah," she said, "as 'tis the governor, and she swallowed up the governor's slim right hand in her own right hand, made large and muscular by many days of toil. 'Tis the governor, an it's glad I am to see ye, for I've heard of the corpse in honored by your presence.—Indianapolis News.

Why He Quit.

"Somebody has given up smoking." "Impossible! He's been a slave to the habit for years."

"He's given it up, all right."

"Why? Did some doctor order him to lie on account of his nerves?"

"No, he's been smoking, but you know that peach of a stenographer we had for the past few weeks? Well, it happened to overhear her say one day, when thinking herself unheard, that she would be as willing to kiss a dog as to kiss a man who was always smoking."

Pared.

She was an absolute old lady, and volunteered much information to the chief attorney of some local trolley to see an important event in the country town the laying of the foundation stone of the new church.

The trusted old lady "that is the duke and duchess and the duke's brother, and they are all very good and nice, and those two to the right are the vicar and—and—the ideas

A DETERMINED WOMAN

Finally Found Food That Agreed Her.

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to make the trial on a woman in Salisbury, Mo. At that time there was some doubt in my mind but my husband ordered some from a Chicago house.

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained no permanent relief. Now as soon I began to use the new food the cramps disappeared and have never returned.

My old attacks of sick stomach and dizziness have left me, and I am continuing the food that trouble has disappeared and the pattern wings fectly well; can eat anything and enjoy things that I could not before, the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts.

My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received from the food, that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his customers and has built up a very large trade on the food. He sells them by the case to many of the leading physicians of the country, who recommend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientifically prepared food." Why He Whitewashed

A country doctor tells a story of a man who moved into a dilapidated old cottage and was found by the doctor busily whitewashing it inside and out. "I'm glad to see you making this old place as nice and neat," said the physician, "it will be healthier for the neighborhood for years." "Ain't goin' to do no good," the newcomer. "Ain't the reply "The last couple what lived here died three times, and I kept whitewash in a good disinfectant. 'Ts the wife and children, I reckon."

THE FIRST APPLICATION OF

RESINOL

STOPPED EXCEPTIONALLY PAINFUL ECZEMA ITCHING ALMOST INSTANTLY

Dr. Hobart Ames Fitch, of 1 Exchange Place, Providence, R. I., writes: "I have used Resinol in a very severe case of eczema of the face, which had been pronounced by several physicians to be incurable. The patient was a young lady, who had been under treatment for over a year, and was so disfigured that she was ashamed to appear in public. Her face was a mass of scabs, and she was in constant agony from the itching and burning. Her sleep was broken, and she was nervous and irritable. Resinol stopped the itching almost instantly, and she slept all night for the first time in months. The eczema healed rapidly, and she was soon able to appear in public without shame. I have since used Resinol in many cases of eczema, and it has never failed to give the greatest satisfaction."

Dr. Fitch's experience is that of thousands of other physicians who have used Resinol in treating eczema, rashes, and other skin troubles. Resinol is a soothing, healing, antiseptic ointment, and a mild laxative. Sold by druggists, and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Sample free. Dept. 2-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.
