AT THE CHICAGO THEATRES

POWERS.

James Forbes' latest comedy, "The Commuters," has made a most pronounced hit with all Chicago critics and there is every evidence that its run at Powers' theatre in Chicago will equal that of its predecessors, "The Chorus Lady" and "The Travelling Salesman."

"The Commuters" is a domestic story of the Sunday supplement type; as a play, in fact, the fabric is rather out of the ordinary. With the characters familiar in daily experience, the amusing situation and the clever dialogue, it forms a excellent entertainment and is likely to have a career as long as "The Travelling Salesman" or the Chorus Lady." Certainly the audiences are delighted with it, for the laughter is continuous.

The principals with a visitor from the city to some friends who have recently taken a cottage in the country. The young wife jealous of his influence over her husband, and with good reason, for he is a person of disorderly habits, and in a little while upsets the household. Many phases of rural life are touched upon—the gardening, foul-raising, mischief-making neighbors, the woman's club and the difficulty in keeping servants. A serious element develops when the injured wife who has been kept up late night after night by a husband "detained in town," undertakes reprisals. All ends happily of course, and the visitor from the city, who has had a miserable experience, hurries back to his beloved Broadway. The satire of the comedy is good-natured and the author directs it fairly upon all.

Matinees are given Wednesdays and Saturdays.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.

"The Penalty", the great Henry C. Colwell drama, dealing with the evil fruits of American divorce and in which Hilda Spong is seen surrounded by a company of brilliant ar ists, has scored a tremendous hit at the Chicago opera house and it now seems certain that it will have as long and prosperous a run there as did "Madame X". Miss Spong has made a positive triumph in the role of Mrs. Rutherford, a divorced and revengeful woman. The play, the players and the subject matter of the drama are matters of discussion where ever people meet. While "The Penalty" deals with the divorce evil, it aims to teach no lesson nor preach a sermon. It presents a series of pictures of ultra-modern life in New York with the object of interest, entertainment and excitement first and foremost in view. The playgoer is supposed to draw his or her own conclusions.

MAJESTIC.

One of the most important bookings of the season, which is for the week of November 14, at the Majestic theatre, Chicago, is that of Robert Drouet & Company in "The Shirkers," a play in two scenes by C. M. S. McLellan, author of the famous play "Leah Kleschna." Mr. Drouet who was not long ago seen in this city in an important role in "Madame X" and who has played many characters with unusual distinction, was selected by Arnold Daley, who owns this play and who is responsible for its production, on account of his ability as a dramatic artist of the highest rank. The play is a tense tragedy with melodramatic colorings, and is believed to be one of the strongest vehicles for genuine art yet presented on the vaudeville stage. Another play on this program will be presented by that famous comedian, Bert Coote, whose ability as a comedy entertainer is known on both sides of the Atlantic. The farce is entitled "A Lamb on Wall Street" and involves some of the most humorous situations yet presented in a production of this kind. Still another novelty will be an entirely new act by that eccentric comedienne, Elise Ray, whose ability has been tested so often. Charming Amy Butler, with her dancing boys, will be another important incident of the bill. While a dozen other high class artists will fill out a bill of unusual variety and excellence.

Not Sorry for Blunder.

"If my friends hadn't blundered in thinking I was a doomed victim of consumption, I might not be alive now," writes D. T. Sanders, of Harrodsburg, Ky., "but for years they saw every attempt to cure a long-racking cough fail. At last I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. The effect was wonderful. It soon stopped the cough and I am now in better health than I have had for years. This wonderful Medicine is an unequaled remedy for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, hemorrhages, whooping cough or weak lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free.
