Revival Will Close Sunday

(BY WALLACE TUTTLE)

The union revival which has been in progress for the last two weeks at the Salem church will close Sunday night. As the end approaches the interest is increasing and it is expected that many of those who are now thinking seriously, will decide before the last service is held to take their stand with the followers of Christ.

There have been 25 conversions to date and this number should be doubled before the meeting closes. The meeting cannot continue beyond Sunday, for the Dow party begin a union meeting with the churches of Mt. Sterling, Ohio, Tuesday night, February 14.

The Sunday morning service will be a union service at the Salem church and it should be a time of great rejoicing.

NOTES.

Sunday will be the last day of the revival.

Hen parties and stag parties are never dance parties.

"Forgiveness of sin is not something that takes place in the nervous system of the sinner, but something that takes place in the mind of God.

"There are two phrases that I want to hurr into the soul of every girl and woman in Harrington. They are: 'Hugging Sal' and 'Shop worn.'

"Great as is the physical ruin of the dance, the moral and spiritual ruin is far greater. Immoral ruin is due directly to the indirect contact of the soul in dance."

"Dancing girls and women of Harrington, do you realize that you are shop worn? It cuts, don't it? God grant that it may cut deep until you realize the truth."

"This address on the dance is given as a preventive rather than as a cure. I have as much hope of weaning the drunkard from his cups as of persuading the devotees of the dance to turn from it."

"The physical ruin of the dance is appalling and why should it not be when a girl will go to a dance with her collar unbuttoned and her shoes and after dancing, will sit in a draft to cool off."

"We are not to depend upon our feelings for assurance of salvation, but we are to depend upon the word of God. When we comply with the conditions laid down in God's word we know that we are saved regardless of feeling or lack of feeling."

"Champions and defenders of the dance! I want you to understand that you will not have to fight alone for this institution. Every harlot and every lecherous libertine in the land will stand shoulder to shoulder with you and battle for it as long as they have power to strike a blow."

"The dance tends no so grave-ful" DOH!

How did you like that address on the dance?

The choir is doing some especially fine singing this week.

Mr. Dow will pay his respects to the theatre and cards Sunday afternoon.

If you want Mr. Tuttle to repeat any of his solos put in your request at once.

SERMON PARAGRAPHS.

"Salvation is not an emotion, but a condition."

"The dance intoxicates as truly and as surely as do alcoholic liquors."

"The modern round dance is essentially immoral and indecent."

"Every town and village has its fallen girl or girls and 95 per cent of them are due to the ruin of the dance."

"The commingling of the sexes is essential to the success of the modern

BEAUTY IN DRESSED WOODS

Enlarged Butt and Irregular Growths Produce Most Beautiful Lumber When Dressed.

Beauty in dressed woods is from two causes which can be found by a study of the growth of trees. The interest comes in the grain, or the silver lines which radiate from the pith to the trees circumference and separate each season's growth. The foreign rising is the result of irregular growth.

During the growing life of a tree there are many chances of accident that may divert a cylindrical growth or cause a variation in fiber that become accentuated as the tree attains its growth. When one side of a tree receives the stress of the weather, and the other is sheltered, it gives the tree a spiral growth, or a twist, as in the accompanying illustration. Each year this growth becomes more pronounced. The breaking of limbs and enlargement cause odd growths. An early warm spell will cause the sap to ascend and a cold snap will set in and check the flow of moisture before it reaches the tall branch or limb. This causes an odd rigid knot and irregular fiber. These irregular growths produce the most beautifully dressed lumber.

TO PLANT TREES CORRECTLY

Planting Board is of Great Convenience Where Base Lines Have Been Established.

A good method is to establish base lines at right angles on as the south and east sides of the ground and measure accurately the distance and drive a peg exactly where each tree is to stand. A planting board is necessary. Place to measuring the peg where a tree is to stand place the end of the board against the nearest notch inclose the peg. Stakes for the purpose are pushed in the ground through the holes at each end.

of the board. The hole at one end is large enough to permit of lifting that end of the board without withdrawing the stake. This being done, and the board swung around out of the way the opening for the tree is dug. Now the board is swung back in its first position by inserting the stake in the tree in the notch it occupies the position marked originally by the peg.

Pruning and Tree Surgery.

Systematic pruning and tree surgery are two very closely related. Tree surgery includes the intelligent protection of all mechanical injuries and cavities. Pruning requires a previous knowledge of the habits of growth of trees, surgery, on the other hand, requires in addition a knowledge of the best methods for making cavities air tight and preventing decay. The caring for cavities in trees must be urged as the only means of preserving valuable specimens and the preservation of many noble specimens have been at least temporarily saved through the efforts of those practicing this kind of work.

Manure for Small Fruits.

Many practical growers find it profitable to use manure rather freely for raspberries and blackberries. This may be applied at any time during the winter, but should not be too coarse or it will interfere with tillage. Ten to fifteen tons per acre should make quite increase profits.

GROW ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Tubers With Sprout May Be Taken Off Her Propagation Without Injury to the Plant.

Mrs. Speck of Washington state sends a spray of the asparagus sprengeri plant, adding its name and if the remembrance of some of its little tubers will injure the Plants can be divided, or the tubers with a sprout may be taken off for propagation without injury, or the single tubers may be removed, but they will not form plants unless an eye or sprout is taken with them.

says Park's Floral Magazine. The plant becomes large with age, and should be shifted into a larger pot or vase as it grows. The branches will often grow three or four feet long, branching and making a graceful and beautiful display. It will grow in any rich, well-drained soil. It should have a season of rest once a year at which time some of the branches will turn yellow and should be cut back.

RABBITS DAMAGE THE TREES

Considerable Loss Each Year May Be Averted by Proper Application of Remedies.

(BY J. F. WOLCOTT.)

The time of year is at hand when, in many localities, the rabbits will begin to do damage to young shoots and fruit trees which they are not protected by some means. Considerable loss occurs each year at the rabbits girdling the trees. Painting the trunk of the tree with either of the washes mentioned in the following formulas will prevent the injury if properly done.

Formula No. 1. Slack lime water until the quantity of unslaked lime needed for the work. In the morning add enough lime to make a good thick wash; add the milk or melt, and to each 2 gallons of the wash add two tablespoonsful of Paris green. Take care to mix well in the wash. Apply to the trunk of the tree with an ordinary paint brush, keep the wash stirred up so the ingredients will not settle to the bottom of the pail.

Formula No. 2. Slack the lime as above and stir in foot before using in place of the Paris green from one half pound to one pound of arsenate of lead to each pail of the wash. A handful of salt added to the wash of the tree. Apply this wash in the same manner as in No. 1.

Formula No. 3. Take equal parts of unslaked lime and raw manure and add enough water to make a thick wash, and apply with a brush. This makes a cheap and effective remedy to keep rabbits from gnawing young trees.

Formula No. 4. Make a wash of equal proportions of sulphur, store soot and unslaked lime. Put in enough water to make these ingredients make a thick paint. Apply with a brush in the ordinary manner.

It takes no extraordinary skill or practice to make and use any of the mixtures given in the above formulas. All the care that will be necessary will be to mix them carefully and apply in a workmanlike manner. In formulas 1 and 2 two ounces of strychnine may be added instead of the Paris green or arsenate of lead.
