

'Our Gang' Star to Be on Stage at Catlow Saturday

Mary Ann Jackson in Person
Feature at Matinee and Evening Program

Friday and Saturday nights of this week The Catlow theatre will show Ken Maynard with his famous white horse, Tarzan, in a western story of color and action, titled "Two-Gun Man." A Benny Rubin comedy, a football slant, news and cartoon will be other screen subjects of interest.

An added attraction for this show for Saturday matinee and evening only will be the personal appearance of Mary Ann Jackson, dainty star of "Our Gang" comedies. All screen fans remember the little freckle-faced Mary Ann whose antics in "Our Gang" series have added so much to their popularity; and followers of "Our Gang" will welcome the opportunity to see Mary Ann on the stage at The Catlow in her singing, dancing, talking act.

"The Honor of the Family," Bebe Daniels' newest feature, will be the screen offering at The Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday nights. This is a screen version of one of Balzac's drooliest, and yet most dramatically romantic tales.

Miss Daniels plays the part of a coquettish young lady, who is companion and nurse to an aged and wealthy French nobleman, who succumbs to her charms. His nephew, a dashing young officer, arrives on the scene, and after duels, disasters and other amazing doings, is able to free the old gentleman from the wiles of Mlle. Laura—only to be snared himself.

Short subjects will furnish their share of entertainment on this program. These include a Mickey Mouse cartoon, stuttering Roscoe Ates in comedy, news and act. In addition Don Keller, popular young singer, will introduce some new songs in the community sing.

Grete Garbo's productions are looked forward to as being of special interest and her last feature, "Susan Lennox, Her Fall and Rise," which was held over in the loop for an extra week's showing has been received with great enthusiasm everywhere. This is not only due to Garbo's outstanding work, but also to the appearance of Clark Gable in the male lead.

This unusually strong feature will play The Catlow theatre, friend's night, Tuesday, Nov. 10, and the Wednesday following.

For Thursday night of next week The Catlow theatre will present William Powell in "The Road to Singapore."

Paper for Currency
Paper currency is engraved and printed on one grade of paper, which is purchased under contract from the Crane company, Dalton, Mass. Representatives of the Treasury department are stationed in the Crane factory during the manufacture of this particular paper. The Crane company is also under the supervision of the Treasury department's representatives during the delivery of the paper to the bureau of engraving and printing. No outside person can buy this paper.

Clever and Dangerous
The centipede abroad in eastern lands is a formidable, and often poisonous, insect, but its wisdom might well instruct human beings of every age and clime. Afraid of the tarantula (a species of great spider), the centipede always takes care to build a cactus fence round itself ere it goes to sleep. It is most entertaining to watch the security of the centipedes as they lie at ease, while their arch-enemies cannot crawl over the cactus, which they will never tackle.

Gas Freezes Fire
Carbon dioxide, which is expelled from your body whenever you exhale, has been put to use by the Los Angeles fire department to put out fires in which streams of water are of little use, as in chemical and oil fires. The gas is carried in high pressure cylinders, and when released a cloud of dry ice like that used in certain kinds of refrigeration is squirted over the fire. This reduces the temperature and prevents oxygen from reaching the blaze, thus smothering it.

Tinned Stuff Used in Navy
More than 10,000,000 pounds of canned goods are consumed by the sailors of the United States navy in a year. Canned tomatoes take the lead in vegetables, followed by beans. Among fruits, peaches lead, followed closely by pineapple, then come prunes, applesauce, apricots, pears, figs and raisins. Figs are relatively new to the canned goods products, but the navy uses them to the extent of 540,000 pounds annually.

How About a New Bell?
"You've been ringing this bell for twenty minutes," remarked the enraged householder to the house-to-house agent. "What is it you want?" "Well, I thought you might be interested in a new door bell," Detroit News.

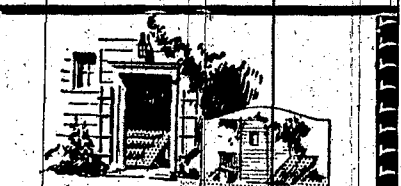

Transmitting Hatred
Every generation enjoys the use of a vast hoard of hatred bequeathed to it by antiquity, and transmits that hatred, augmented by fresh acquisitions, to future ages.—Lord Macaulay.

Castle of Sleeping Beauty
The ancestral castle of the counts of Eltz is one of the finest in Germany, resting high on a precipitous rock, with cloud-piercing towers and flanked with dark green woods. This is the castle made famous by Sleeping Beauty, if legend is to be believed. It dates back to the twelfth century and its gray walls have seen many a battle waged. It might almost be said to be three castles in one, grouped about an inner court, and each of the three has its own entry. It is full of the paraphernalia of dream-haunted rooms, heavy iron-bound chests, carved doors, old pewter, massive, refectory tables which surely have often trembled beneath their loads of venison, wine and the thunderous merriment of feasters.

Double-Mounted Castle
Notwithstanding its rather remote position on the island of Jutland, in Denmark, on the banks of the Limfjord, Castle Spotttrup has lured many visitors to its walls of recent years. Although its age and builder have been forgotten, it has been there for many centuries, and is one of the best double-mounted castles of Europe. Its dividing bulwark of earth on the eastern side reaches almost to the eaves of the structure, and with its grass-clad ramparts adds immensely to the impression one receives of its ancient formidable strength. It is only restored in part, and the visitor can easily visualize its ancient extent and form.

Hollywood Now Obscured
The somber walls of Hollywood palace, Edinburgh, have lost remembrance of the grandeur of its former days, yet it holds some of the most glamorous and the saddest memories of Mary Queen of Scots, here on the 9th of March, 1560, Lord Darnley murdered David Rizzio, an Italian, whom he accused of improper relations with Mary, his wife. Exactly 12 months afterward he himself was murdered by the earl of Bothwell, who married Mary after less than three months.

The Empty Bag
It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright. "A man who is a misogynist is a man who is a woman hater."

Petroleum Long Known
Use of petroleum dates back to the beginning of history. It is one of the oldest natural products used by man. It was as a curative for man's illness that petroleum principally appears in legend and early history.

The people of ancient Japan and China, Judea and Persia used petroleum in a primitive way centuries before the Christian era. Noah's ark was caulked with a form of petroleum gathered from the shores of the Dead sea. Job told of a rock which "poured me out rivers of oil." Nehemiah is supposed to have used oil for altar fires—he called the substance "Naphtha" from which the present word "naphtha" was derived.—Detroit News.

Sausages as Tithe
In the town of Dumen, Germany, it seems, the church is entitled to receive 130 pounds of a certain kind of sausage, known as Mettwurst, every year from the local tithe-payer. Recently the latter refused to supply the ration of sausage. The church invoked the aid of the law, and the tithe-payers had to deliver the customary Mettwurst. But the church was still unsatisfied—the sausage, it was alleged, was not up to standard—it contained too much beef. Mettwurst has always been a source of trouble in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. In many parishes the local clergyman was entitled to so many ells of the sausage from his parishioners. He always got the length, but if he were unpopular, the Mettwurst was of the smallest possible thickness, there being nothing in the bond regarding its diameter.

Quaint Epitaph
The proudest boast of the obscure village of Boleover is that one of the quaintest epitaphs in England is inscribed in its churchyard.

The epitaph is that of a watchmaker buried nearly 100 years ago. It reads:

"Here lies in a horizontal position the outside case of Thomas Hinde, clock and watchmaker, who departed this life wound up, in hope of being taken in hand by his Maker, and being thoroughly cleaned, repaired and set going in the world to come on the 15th of August, 1830, in the 19th year of his age."

Nearly is the two-line epitaph of a butcher:

"Here lies the body of poor John Higgs, A famous man for killing pigs."

Shakespeare Home Seized
Researches in the calendar of Old Chancery court have revealed a document showing bailiffs were once in possession of Shakespeare's old home at Stratford-on-Avon, to receive judgment for debt. "They did breake open ye doores of ye study of said house and rashly seize upon and take divers books, boxes, desks and moneys," says the document. But it was not Shakespeare's trouble. The house had passed into the hands of his daughter, and his son-in-law had contracted the debt. Shakespeare himself had played his last part a few years before the time of this document.—London Mail.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodstock, L. I., writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one 19 and the other 18. Every one of my friends say 'I'm marvelous the way I reduced.' To lose fat with speed take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—don't miss a morning—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—get it at Fredlund Drug Co., or any drug store in America. It not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back."

Gulf Stream's Course
The course of the Gulf stream is influenced to a large extent by the coastline. After leaving the Gulf of Mexico, it encounters the Bahama Islands and is turned northward, following the trend of the American coast. On issuing into the ocean it is met by the so-called "cold wall," which crowds into the Gulf stream water off toward the east. Being forced out farther and farther from the coast, it is spread into a fan-shaped drift of continually diminishing depth.

Total Assets—One Small Daughter

By LEETE STONE

MARY BAIRD, "mother of the films"—Astoria, Long Island, where many creditors had been kind over many years, sat staring at the inevitable petition in bankruptcy which coldly listed her liabilities at $5,500, and her assets at $105. But the investigator had forgotten Doris, ten-year-old daughter of Mary Baird. At least he did not list her as an asset, which she was. However, that comes later.

Trouble looked Mary Baird square in the eyes. An invalid husband to feed, care for and nourish with the tenderness of true affection; three small children to look out for, the oldest of which was Doris. An apartment to pay rent for! Food to buy for five mouths! And Mary Baird was on the verge of forty-five. Small wonder that she sat before her mirror, combing out the beautiful silk-giver hair that had helped to win her little title of "mother of the film," in an agony of doubt and distraction on that morning after the bankruptcy statement arrived.

Her mind centered on the kind, rather sorrowful smile of Frank Hanway, casting director of the studio, a few blocks away—the look of tender concern he bent on her just yesterday morning when she appeared at his office, as usual, at nine. He had said, as if he hated to say it:

"Sorry, Mary, my dear. There's not many 'mother' bits in the talkies, you know. If I can swing anything your way, trust me! I'll surely do it! How're the kids?"

"Fine, Frank—and thank you!" she had replied. Pride prevented her from confiding her straits to him. His hand would have gone down into his pocket to that ample roll of bills.

This morning her mind raced back to those gilded days of youth, when her mind was unhampered and unworried by lack of luxury and sincere acclaim. When stage was all legitimate! When the spell of personal appearance before an audience was unthreatened and, as it seemed to all, secure in its regal artistry.

Then, shortly after the "Great Train Robbery," pioneer moving picture, followed its theatrical way across the crude screen of the Eden Musee in New York. Mary, by reason of her fame receiving an enticing offer from the old Biograph studios on Fourteenth street. From then on she was a movie actress until her hair commenced to silver—fitting between Hollywood and New York. At last the reviews, fairly dripping with praise from celebrated critics, of her work as the mother in "Mountain Woman." From that day till this day, when she faced starvation and want, not only for herself, but for a beloved family, Mary Baird was ticketed in casting offices as the perfect "mother of the films."

But the advent of talking pictures had done away with many of the old rivals. Mother parts were few and far between.

So mused Mary Baird, facing the last ditch before destruction.

Her husband sighed and jerked in troubled sleep in the big bed in one of their two rooms. The younger children breathed peacefully, still asleep in the crib in the corner. Suddenly her terror at everything lighted on Doris, for whom she had made a few mouthfuls of the last of the oatmeal, and sent out to play an hour since. Where was Doris? The child never stayed out long, and it was two hours now since she had last been seen.

From the door at her back came a musical, throbbing voice, just like her own before tragedy had dulled its sweetness:

"Mother! 'm back!"

"Oh sweetheart! I was worried. You've been away a long time. Where were you?"

"I'll tell you, mother," the childish, precise tones, in that voice which had once been hers winged their way in magic directness into Mary Baird's sorrowful heart.

"I knew you were worried about money. Member, mother, the day last week when we sat on the set of 'Home, Sweet Home,' together," the beautiful child's words rushed together in a torrent of loving confidence, "an' mother—that big man in the blue shirt that you said was the director? Well, he kept looking at me whenever I spoke to you. He's a beautiful man, mother." A pause.

"All right, dear—of course, he's a beautiful man; but that doesn't tell me where you've been to make mother worry so."

"But you won't need to worry about money any more, mother, 'cause I met him an' his little boy on the street this morning. We played together. An' this big director took me over to the studios an' made a test of my voice. He held me on his lap while he heard it run through, an' oh, mother! He told me to run straight home to you and tell you to bring me out right away to see Frank Hanway about a contract. He's got a star child part or me, he says, mother."

Mary Baird wasted no time in hers of happiness. Knowing great directors she rushed to the closet or Doris' best dress and proceeded to capitalize Lady Luck and her daughter Doris without delay.

"Thalers" and "Dollars"

A rich silver mine was discovered in Joachimsthal, Bohemia, in 1516, and in commemoration a large number of silver coins were struck, having the effigy of St. Joachim. These were called Joachimsthalers or thalers, a name that was modified to "dollar" and was applied to other silver coins of a similar size. The Spanish dollar was current in America before the Revolution and it was natural that this name should be given to the coin of the new republic. Various explanations of the dollar sign have been suggested, but the most plausible one is concerned with the design of the old Spanish dollar. This bore on one side a representation of two pillars, symbolic of the Pillars of Hercules. Our dollar sign shows these pillars with the ribbon or scroll interlaced.

Summing It Up

Always there is a black spot in our sunshine. It is the shadow of ourselves.

Colonial Mail

The following is from "Colonial History of the United States": "The mail was carried by post-riders, who followed the main roads as far as there were any; and reaching the roadless settlements they found their way through the forest as best they could by the trails and bridle-paths. The postman left a city, not at regular intervals, but only when he received enough mail to pay the expenses of the trip. The remote settlements were fortunate if they received mail once a month. Benjamin Franklin was appointed postmaster general in 1753, but he served about 29 years. He soon made the service a paying one to the crown. Yet even then the amount of mail delivered in the whole country in a year was less than that now delivered in the city of New York in one day."

Thank Offering Programs a Success

The "Thank Offering" program given at the Salem church Sunday evening was both pleasing and educational. The several musical numbers were most enjoyed as were the readings. Rev. Heuser gave a brief talk and a short play, "Lighting the World's Darkness" was presented by seven of the missionary members. The fruit, jelly, pickles, canned goods and vegetables that were a part of the "Thank Offering" will be sent in part to the Deaconess hospital in Chicago and to the local hospital. Mrs. Nellie Schultze was in charge of this program.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson, 125 Harrison street, entertained the following group of friends Saturday evening at a Halloween party. Mr. and Mrs. J. Vondruska, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rice, Miss Eldora Hutchinson, Howard Rice, Miss Thelma Cans, Anton Hansen, Miss Edith Reppke and Clayton Landwer. In the games of the evening, Miss Vondruska and Howard Rice received awards. Enjoyable refreshments were served by the hostess.

Entertains in Honor of Daughter

Mrs. Hugh Calkins, 614 Grove avenue, was hostess Saturday evening at a Halloween party in honor of her daughter, Ruth. Twelve young people enjoyed the evening playing Halloween games in which prizes were awarded and refreshments in keeping with the season were served.

Y. P. M. C. Holds Rally

The Y. P. M. C. of the Salem church held a rally program Tuesday evening in the church parlors with guests from the following churches: Deerfield, N. Northfield, Prairie View and Highland Park. Each visiting church gave one number on the program after which a social hour followed. About sixty young people were present.

Barrington Woman's Club

The Barrington Woman's club was represented at the guest day of the Des Plaines Woman's club on Monday afternoon, Nov. 2.

Mrs. George Barrett and Mrs. Lester Higgins attended a meeting of the press committee of the seventh district in Chicago on Tuesday of this week.

The club, through its school welfare committee, is sponsoring Peace Week, Nov. 8-14, inclusive. Pastors of all churches will take "Peace" for the subject of their sermons. Sunday school teachers will stress it in their work, the grade school children will make posters and a very fine peace program will be presented by the students of the junior high school. About forty business establishments of the village will cooperate by having window displays of foreign goods sold by them. This will show how necessary world peace is to international trade and prosperity.

Mrs. Frank Pundt and Mrs. Elden Gieske will attend the Governor's concert on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 7, in the Governor's room of the Merchandise Mart. This is a musicale sponsored by Governor Emmerson, the proceeds of which will go to the unemployment relief fund. The talent is the best offered in Chicago and the tickets are reasonably priced at $1.00. Women who are interested in good music and who happen to be in Chicago on Saturday will want to take advantage of this double opportunity of hearing a fine program and helping the relief fund. The time is two o'clock.

Interest in the reading course presented by the literature committee of our club has been growing from year to year. The first meeting of this season at which "The Good Earth" was reviewed, was attended by a larger number of women than any previous afternoon session. Mrs.

Entertains at One o'clock Luncheon

Mrs. John Dueschler, 217 E. Liberty street, was hostess Thursday at a 1 o'clock luncheon and bridge party in honor of Mrs. Joseph Welch, 218 W. Main street. Baskets of fall flowers added much to making the afternoon pleasant, and at the close of the games awards were received by Mrs. Arnold Schanble, Mrs. Jack Welch and Mrs. Clyde Carr.

Auxiliary at School of Instruction

The Legion Auxiliary School of Instruction was to be in session Thursday, Nov. 5, at 2 o'clock at Mel Tierney Post Home, Grace street, Park Ridge. Mrs. Ruth Whitcomb, Mrs. Bertha Frey, and Mrs. Rosetta Kuebler and the chairmen of all committees are in attendance.

Keystone Class Meets

The Keystone class of the Salem church was entertained by Mrs. Harold Homuth, 303 S. Hough street, Monday evening. A social hour followed an interesting program and dainty refreshments were served. Miss Dorothy Solt assisted Mrs. Homuth.

Barrington People at Party in Chicago

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Church, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Bieko, and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Meier, all of Barrington, were guests Saturday evening at a Halloween party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lyons of Chicago.

Hammond, who presided last Thursday, called attention to the literary treats to come and assured the women that the books were in the hands of very capable speakers. These meetings are not restricted to members of the Woman's club but are open to the public. Anyone interested in good reading will want to take advantage of them. A list of the subjects and speakers for the year is given below:

World Famous Men of Army and Navy

The Congressional medal of honor is the highest American award for valor. It is granted only to officers of enlisted men of the army who in action involving actual conflict with the enemy distinguish themselves conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of their lives above and beyond the call of duty. There is also a corresponding medal of honor for the navy. The Distinguished Service medal, established in 1918, may be awarded to "any person who, while serving in any capacity with the army of the United States, shall distinguish himself or herself by specially meritorious service to the government in a duty of great responsibility." There is a corresponding medal for the navy. The Distinguished Service cross is purely an army decoration to reward individual extraordinary acts of heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy. There is also a navy cross. Some of the most notable foreign decorations are: British Victoria cross; French Legion of Honor; German Iron cross; Belgian Order of Leopold; Japanese Order of the Rising Sun; Italian Order of St. Maurice, etc.

Rises From the Water

For a short period each year the ancient ruins of Philae, in the Nile, are to be seen. It is in the early winter and many tourists visit the place at this time. Then the water rises and the Nile buries the lovely island of ruins and temples beneath its waters. Much ancient beauty has gone, but anyone who looks on its ruins today can see what a lovely spot it was in the days of ancient Egypt. The villages and palms have gone, as modern need has changed the dashing cataract into a reservoir, but the damage done to Philae is slight, its scriptures are still clear on the walls and columns in spite of their annual drenching.

In a survey which included nine of the largest cities in Illinois it was found that out of 1,820,384 painful workers only 162,815 are definitely out of work. This does not include 24,087 additional workers who were temporarily laid off. The research was made by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Scientists Delve Into Secrets of Upper Air

Until recently we knew very little about the higher parts of the atmosphere which surrounds the earth. The growing importance of flying and the development of the science of weather forecasting have made it necessary for us to know something more about the upper air. Kites carrying delicate measuring instruments were tried first, but these soon gave way to balloons filled with hydrogen. With balloons, heights of from 15 to 20 miles have been reached, and a great deal of valuable information has been collected. Tiny instruments are attached to the balloons, and when it bursts these are brought to earth by a parachute. The fact that shooting stars are seen at heights up to almost 100 miles showed that the atmosphere must extend to this distance. Shooting stars are tiny pieces of stone or metal from space, made white hot by the friction of air. Now experiments are to be made with giant rockets designed to carry thermometers, barometers and other instruments to a height of at least 50 miles.

Old Washington Cemetery

John Clagett Proctor in "Washington, Past and Present," says: "Land was donated for Rock Creek church in 1720, and there was sufficient ground around the church for the cemetery, which has received the dead for over 200 years. Richard Queen also provided land for a Roman Catholic chapel near Langdon, and burials were no doubt made there in due time. These two places are, therefore, the earliest places of interment in the District of Columbia, and the custom of providing sites for graves was thus started, and continued around the early churches of the Federal city."

When Coffee Was First Used Mere Speculation

The early history of coffee as a beverage is traditional. There are many stories as to who first discovered the food value of coffee. One is that Leonhard Rauwolf, a German physician, was the first to make coffee known in Europe in an account of his travels, published in 1559. In some parts of Europe the discovery is credited to the inmates of a monastery in Arabia who had discovered that their goats after browsing upon the coffee berries were decidedly lively. Prompted by curiosity they decided to taste the berries to find out if they would be affected in the same way. They tried chewing the berries and boiling the berries, but the result was not satisfactory. They then roasted the berries and found out that it gave them a delightful flavor. Pilgrims to whom the monks gave shelter and food were pleased with the new beverage and spread its fame. The French have preserved the following picturesque version of the legend: A young goatherd, Kaldi, noticed one day that his goats, whose deportment, up to that time, had been irreproachable, were abandoning themselves to the most extravagant prandings. Kaldi attributed this gaiety to certain fruit or berries. He picked and ate the berries and became the happiest herder in Arabia.

Grouse Come High

The shooting of grouse in Scotland and the north of England is said to be one of the most expensive sports in Britain, or perhaps in the world. It is estimated that about $5 is spent for each bird.

Remarkable that the experts still disagree over the bidding in this hand. The following hands have been submitted by experts and they failed to agree on any of them. It goes to show that there is still very much to learn about Auction and Contract. This very variety of opinion, however, helps the game. The most interesting ever played. As long as the personal element is as strongly as it now does, there is bound to be this. Here's hoping that it always continues.

AUCTION BIDDING:

The question in this hand is: Should the dealer bid one no trump or contract? The no trump bid seems the better, but gives partner more accurate information. With this bid, partner will know that there is a very strong chance that the dealer will deceive partner and pass. The result in a big loss. The only safe bid is a safer bid than no trump. The dealer's ace of clubs and spades are out of his hand, he may not score one no trump. This is a safe bid to be more than offset by a probable loss resulting from a partner.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

In Contract, where game must be bid for, it is always better to bid a contract, rather than no trump, in a hand like this. One heart is, therefore, the proper bid.

AUCTION BIDDING:

There are three possibilities in this hand. Z may bid one spade, one heart or pass. The writer is of the opinion that one spade is the best call. The hand is too strong to pass and the spade bid is preferable to the heart bid as the former suit is much the stronger and the one that should be the trump.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

At Contract there are two choices, either a three spade bid or a pass. The latter seems preferable.

The Old Brass Kettle Did Its Stuff

By CLARISSA MACKIE

IT WAS Jack Benson who named his yellow car the "brass kettle." Some of his friends hinted that because Jack had bought the car when it was no longer new, and had thus discovered its weakness, he had given the car a flippant name and poked around her, thankful because he had any car at all.

Jack never denied the accusation, and seemed to find a lot of comfort in the old "brass kettle." The girls he knew were rather upish about riding with him.

Jack went and came, free as a bird, staying at the old Craddock farm because he had said that he liked the home cooking and plain ways, and every day saw him growing bigger, browner, more like a young god than was quite necessary, as one irritated spinster at the hotel remarked.

When one of the boys repeated that remark to Jack, he blushed awfully, and demanded to know what he could do to help himself.

"Buy a new car," Jack, laughed young Fred Spinner.

"What is the matter with this one?" demanded Jack.

They all laughed. Jack regarded Spinner's newest racing model with a calculating eye. "The 'brass kettle' can beat your car up Sully's hill and out to the lighthouse," he said flatly.

Spinner leaned back among his crimson cushions and shouted gleefully. "I'll take you on, Jack; what about this afternoon?"

"Now, if you like," said Jack steadily.

"No—make it three o'clock this afternoon, eh?"

"You'll want to scrape a little mud off your kettle, and put in some gas and true her up," laughed Spinner in an assured way, and then they separated, he and his cronies to race off in a riotous group, while Jack backed the brass kettle, turned about and then waited an instant, with a mischievous glance toward the group of girls who walked back to the hotel.

"Anyone want a ride?" asked Jack.

The girls laughed as if it were a good joke and waved their hands at him, but one arresting voice came from the newest girl there, one whom Jack had admired but never met.

"Thank you a lot, Mr. Benson," she said demurely, "but I would like to drive out to the farm if you are going that way."

"Certainly," said Jack, coolly, wondering who in thunder the new girl could be, and deciding that she was the best-looking one that he had ever seen. In another instant she was sitting beside him, waving a little brown hand to the girls.

It was not until they were out on the Locust road that Jack dared to steal a glance at her. Indeed, she was lovely—all a beauty of soft coloring kissed by the sun, wonderful hazel eyes with thick, curling lashes of jetty black to match the boyish cut of her hair and the impudent curl of black against the rounded cheek. She was dainty in every way, though her clothes showed wear.

Then he stole a glance at the girl, and surprised her own reconnoitering eye, quickly withdrawn.

They both laughed then, and felt better acquainted.

Jack fell to dreaming about the girl—what a quiet little thing she seemed to be! When they reached the farm, she shook hands with Jack and thanked him for the ride. "I shall be on your side," she assured him, when they parted, "and I do hope that you will win the race!"

"I shall win it," he told her confidently.

dently, "just because you have faith in me—and my old 'brass kettle!'"

Before the start of the race people found the most strategic places along the road. When the pistol shot broke the stillness and the two cars started there was a shout of laughter that was never afterward repeated. Spinner's car shot up the hill, and the "brass kettle" loitering for an instant, suddenly took breath, swooped after it and in an amazingly short time the whole thing was over—the "brass kettle" going like the piece of majestically tuned machinery that it was, won the race! The first person whose hand Jack held for one proud moment was that of Mildred, and then the reporters came up and the truth was all out!

"Hello, Jack Benson," said the first reporter, "we heard that you were trying out a new racing car, but why the camouflaged upper cost?" And then, very soon, the big yellow top to the old "kettle" was off and there was the new shining chassis with its perfect engine.

"Oh, Jack Benson? His dad's that millionaire who has just bought the Black Motor works. He is perfecting this racer—some car, eh?"

After that, dozens of girls and young men looked eager-eyed at Jack Benson and his old "brass kettle"—the joke was on them; he had chosen that locality because of its hills. But the girl who had been sorry for Jack and his apparently old car would eventually marry him, and Mildred was only a poor little school teacher!

Fur-Breeding Industry

Growing in Illinois

Illinois is growing in importance as a fur-breeding state, according to Director Ralph E. Bradford of the Illinois Department of Conservation. Numerous requests are being received by the Department of Conservation for information on how to raise and breed foxes, mink, skunks, and other fur-bearing animals," says Director Bradford.

People who request this information are supplied with copies of "More Outdoor Life in Illinois," an authoritative work that deals with the breeding of such animals. This book was prepared by members of the Department of Conservation staff, and deals with the specific problems that confront the Illinois breeder.

"It explodes the idea of fabulous profits which has deluded many people in making unsound investments. Instead, it shows how fur-farming can be made into a profitable business."

The booklet also deals with other subjects of general interest to sportsmen. One section is given over to fish, which are for artificial ponds or in small natural ponds. Among these are different varieties of bass, the crappie, the sunfish and the catfish.

Another section of the work describes various forms of game birds, and tells how they can be raised. This section of the booklet has proved especially popular with sportsmen, as they are anxious to see this form of outdoor life preserved.

A Man's Place in the World

There are two kinds of energy in this world—energy which comes of motion and energy which belongs to position. In youth every man can so direct his activity that he will have attained a substantial position during his prime of life. The sole requirement is that he shall not waste energy—nor throw away its results. The product of his youthful surplus energy should be saved that he may possess the means to help him to position. Now GAS IS CHEAPER and it's not too late to heat your home with this ideal fuel THIS WINTER

THERE is still time to have carefree gas heating service for your home this winter. And because a new gas has been brought into northern Illinois, it has been possible to reduce the cost of this most modern of fuels approximately 30%.

Let us figure your cost

To show you just what this reduction means to you, we will be glad to send one of our house heating engineers to call at your home. At once—and without obligating you in any way. He can prepare an estimate of just what it will cost to heat with gas under the new rates.

Remember in comparing gas with other fuels that it offers you completely carefree heating service. A temperature regulator in the living room takes full charge of the furnace—orders your fuel as you need it—keeps the whole house comfortably, healthfully warm.

Install gas heat now

Why not install gas heat now—for the coming winter. You can begin to enjoy its many advantages during changeable fall weather. When temperatures drop temporarily, your gas heater will start up automatically. As soon as the house is comfortable, off it goes again. Because the heater works automatically, you waste no fuel.

And, of course, you're through with shoveling coal, fussing with drafts, carrying out ashes forever.

In most cases your present heating plant can be "converted to gas" at small expense. A gas-burner can be installed in the fire-box whether your system is warm air, hot water or steam. The Public Service Company's testing laboratory has approved half a dozen of these conversion burners—will be glad to recommend one exactly suited to your home.

Mail the coupon

If you will mail us the coupon below, we'll send one of our house heating engineers to call on you. He will not only tell you all about the new gas heating rates and conversion burners—but also estimate just what gas heat will cost during an average heating season.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Gentlemen: Without obligating me in any way, please send one of your heating engineers to tell me all about the new gas heating rates, gas conversion burners—and to estimate what it will cost to heat my home with gas.

HAS THE TURN COME?

There is a different tone noticeable in the conversation of business men in the past week or two. Instead of wondering how much deeper into the financial hole the country was going to get, more people are expressing confidence that business is going to get better very soon.

This is a very hopeful sign. The principal trouble with the general situation lately has been lack of confidence on the part of those who have money. They have been unwilling to spend their money, to invest it where it would be doing useful work, because of the feeling that perhaps, after all, prices had not yet touched bottom. That has been one serious drawback to a speedier recovery, and another has been the fact that a great many banks and financial institutions, perfectly sound in the long run, have had so much of their depositors' money tied up in securities which cannot quickly be realized on that they have been unable to extend the lines of credit which are absolutely necessary for the normal course of business.

We think Mr. Hoover did perhaps the wisest thing that has been done in his career as President, when he called leading bankers into conference and with their assistance worked out a plan for providing credit beyond what the banks extend. And in calling in leaders of both parties in Congress to reassure the country that this project was not a partisan bid for popularity, but a genuine, patriotic effort to save the nation from worse trouble he acted with a breadth of view which must meet the approval of people of all parties.

It looks at this time as if the $500,000,000 credit which the bankers committed, under the Hoover plan, has arranged for, would turn the trick. It certainly has given the country at large, a better feeling. While it cannot in the nature of things, start all the factory wheels turning instantly and put everybody back to work at once, it ought to speed up the resumption of industrial operations very materially.

Customs of old Egypt would have cramped the style of present-day Senators. There the bull was held sacred and never shot.

When a Denver man recently claimed that he was Napoleon, a clever detective quickly proved he was an imposter.

The Way of Life

By BRUCE BARTON

WINDOW DRESSING DUMMIES

On my first business job it was necessary for me to call one day at the office of a bankrupt company which had sold in small units all over the country.

His literature had followed the familiar pattern, pointing out how much you would be worth if you invested one dollar in telephone stock in 1895, or if Ford had asked you to lend him a nickel in 1900.

Perhaps the officers were irresponsible rather than deliberately crooked. They were sure that their enterprise was destined to make fortunes for every one associated with it, and they backed their judgment with their own money. But that did not mitigate the sufferings of the people who crowded the office on the day of my call.

A station agent and his faded little wife from a country town in Pennsylvania. They had invested $15,000, their savings of a lifetime.

A poor preacher from South Carolina. The $6,000 which he had saved by incredible economies had been his only bulwark against the poorhouse.

A school teacher; a dentist; many men whose gnarled hands and bent backs were eloquent of heavy burdens. They wept; they cursed; they threatened, but it did no good. No one of them ever recovered a cent.

Walking away from all that tragedy, I resolved never to be associated with any company which financed itself by selling stocks to the public, not even if George Baker were the president and J. P. Morgan the sales manager.

Everybody whose name gets advertised a little is invited to go on boards of directors. It has happened even to me. I have a nice form letter that says "no."

To be on the board of a business with which you are not intimately connected means that you attend a meeting once a month, vote on a lot of things that you know nothing about, receive $10 or $20, and go away. The public, reading your name, believes that you are directing. Actually you are not.

In England most boards are made up of the men actually conducting the business. Once a year the chairman has to stand up before the stockholders and answer questions about every detail of the operations.

In this country the habit of being a director is a piece of business vanity. A man with a lot of directorships after his name thinks of himself as a "big shot."

Many of the famous dummies have lost money and sleep during this depression. It will be interesting to see whether the return of good times will bring many resignations.

Directors should direct. Window dressing dummies should go out.

MORE EVIDENCE

A very old adage has it, "Fools make feasts; wise men eat them." But we are living in a different age; I don't call anybody a fool because he spends a feast—if he can afford it; the very much bigger fool is the fellow that gorges himself at the feast!

Last evening, (much against my better judgment), I accepted an invitation to dine at 6 o'clock with a professional brother—our wives were in attendance. The cares of the day were past and gone; it was the time for recreation that is so essential to the brain worker. Everyone in the happy group, except myself, adored the six o'clock dinner, and indulged in it at every opportunity.

To say that this was a fine, sumptuous meal, does not half describe the setting. It was a triumph of culinary skill—the quantity was limited to capacity only. Incidentally, one of the physicians present said he was a little ticklish about coffee—he had a blood-pressure of something over 200, and was a bit apprehensive about it; he was only sixty and looked forty-five. Yet, he was being seriously threatened.

My wife and I went to the party in a neighbor physician's car. As we came home at 10:30 p. m., the doctor said to me, "I've had to be a little guarded here lately! Mrs. C. and I are both developing high blood-pressure."

June one thing, dear readers: THE SIX O'CLOCK DINNER. Protein poisoning, from the absorption of excessive amounts of undigested food. A heavy meal, partaken of when the mind and body were tired and needed rest. REST. Stomachs compelled to work when relaxed and weakened from mental and physical tire.

Such a meal for BREAKFAST would have done no harm! The digestive organs rested from seven or eight hours of refreshing sleep. But, after this fine, sumptuous, six o'clock dinner, every guest awakened next morning with little or no appetite, feeling heavy, mentally foggy, lack of vim and energy for the new day's work. When shall we wise up?

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By National Editorial Association
(Special to The Review)

REAL OPINIONS

may always be overheard in the wake of parades. It is particularly true in politics. Some weeks must elapse before the congressional sessions will provide the public forum for ventilating piled up prejudices. Just now United States senators, jealously defending their prerogatives as individualists, are whetting the axes for Borah of Idaho. It seems that in realizing his life-long ambition of stealing the front page spotlight from the president, "Sir Oracle," as Borah is sarcastically dubbed, had blindly ignored his colleagues. If the jibing manifest in private conversations reaches the debate stage in the senate the solon from the West will find that his flair for interjecting his views into the Hoover-Laval matter counts for naught with the other ninety-five gentlemen of the senate. It is possible that Borah may lose the chairmanship of the senate foreign relations committee and bear out the predictions of the senators that "his own great mind" he then consulted.

FIARE-BACKS in sentiment are not confined to politics. The recent decision of the interstate commerce commission in which railroads were granted certain freight rate advances but denied their main demands has already provoked action in the business world. The railroads through their executives and numerous stock and bondholders are hopeful that motor bus and truck traffic will be controlled by national and state laws.

The rail carriers' complaint is against the relative freedom of motor transportation from regulation. Curiously the railroads believe that their tramp card will be held by the private car owner and operator. They calculate that millions of motorists forced off highways by heavy trucks and buses will favor legislation to make drivers responsible under conditions similar to those now imposed by law on engineers and train crews. Measurement of public resentment against the "road-hogs" is difficult but in the end it may swing the necessary votes for stringent regulation of commercial motor vehicles.

RETRENCHMENT

in federal government expenditures will do much to break party lines at the next congress. The inevitable pressure from various groups which follow economy measures will undoubtedly be exerted against well-meaning legislators. An estimated deficit of more than one and one-half billion dollars provokes serious thought in official circles. One of the contemplated economies is to eliminate many government bureaus through merging or abolition. The president has made his position clear to officers of the naval and military establishments, and other departments. These subjects were discussed in the intimacy of the Rapidan camp this summer and autumn. The army has been told that scores of military posts, of no value in defense must be wiped out. The same sad story was unfolded to the navy regarding obsolete bases along the coasts. Thrift measures will raise storms in all camps at the capitol.

DISILLUSIONMENT

is in store for enterprising commonwealths now anticipating marked gains in prestige and political influence at Washington as a consequence of last census. Congress has been side-stopping reapportionment for many years. In fact, while passing amendments to the constitution the legislative body has been a most persistent violator, refusing to change the membership by states on the basis of decennial census returns. It is characteristic of our lawmakers that they prescribe rules and regulations for the people's conduct but not make the shoe fit themselves. It seems unlikely that the reapportionment will be authorized until after the elections next year. The number of delegates to

It is now possible to see the curious gases of which the air one breathes is composed by means of a new and unique exhibit just installed at Field Museum of Natural History. In this exhibit the gases have been segregated in separate tubes, and made visible by passing an electric current through the tubes, thus producing the characteristic spectrum of each—brilliant blues, reds, oranges, yellows, greens, and other colors. The gases, eight in number, are shown in the order of their quantity in the atmosphere. This order begins with nitrogen which is the most abundant, and is followed by oxygen, argon, hydrogen, neon, helium, krypton, and xenon. Argon constitutes about one per cent by volume; neon about one part in 50,000; helium, about one part in 250,000; krypton about one part in two million, and xenon one part in seventeen million. However, several of these have proved to be of much commercial importance. Argon is now used to fill electric light bulbs, having been found more satisfactory for this purpose than nitrogen, which was previously used. Neon, owing to the brilliancy of its spectrum, is now widely used for illuminated signs. Helium, because of its lightness and non-inflammability, has proved ideal for filling airships and balloons.

The Bedouins have been centuries wanderers like the gypsies of Europe; but recently efforts have been made, with some degree of success, to have them settle, and many of the tribes are located in little settlements on the fringe of the Sahara desert. Occasionally one of these tribes will get restless and go on the move again, but the majority have learned that the settlement life is easier and are inclined to be contented.

Inspect Forest Preserves

Thirty public officials of Wisconsin, mostly from Milwaukee, were the guests Tuesday (Oct. 27) of the Cook County and DuPage County Forest Preserves commissioners and the Chicago Regional Planning Association on a tour of the forest preserves and an inspection of the highways of the two counties. Outstanding accomplishments shown the visitors were the wide highways, traffic separations of grade, new improvements in the forest preserves, and the system of more than 1,000 miles in Cook county alone. Much interest was shown by the visitors in the 300 miles of 40 foot wide concrete pavements in Cook and DuPage counties, as well as the design of pavement separated by center strips of park, such as North avenue, west of the Des Plaines river, and State Highway 54 between Roosevelt Road and Ogden Avenue in DuPage county. In the forest preserves the visitors were shown the forest type of tree planting, with the 700,000 small forest trees set out in the last year, and some of the bank planting on high fills and deep cuts which were made for highway purposes.

Living on Desert's Fringe

The Bedouins have been centuries wanderers like the gypsies of Europe; but recently efforts have been made, with some degree of success, to have them settle, and many of the tribes are located in little settlements on the fringe of the Sahara desert. Occasionally one of these tribes will get restless and go on the move again, but the majority have learned that the settlement life is easier and are inclined to be contented.

Inspect Forest Preserves

Thirty public officials of Wisconsin, mostly from Milwaukee, were the guests Tuesday (Oct. 27) of the Cook County and DuPage County Forest Preserves commissioners and the Chicago Regional Planning Association on a tour of the forest preserves and an inspection of the highways of the two counties. Outstanding accomplishments shown the visitors were the wide highways, traffic separations of grade, new improvements in the forest preserves, and the system of more than 1,000 miles in Cook county alone. Much interest was shown by the visitors in the 300 miles of 40 foot wide concrete pavements in Cook and DuPage counties, as well as the design of pavement separated by center strips of park, such as North avenue, west of the Des Plaines river, and State Highway 54 between Roosevelt Road and Ogden Avenue in DuPage county. In the forest preserves the visitors were shown the forest type of tree planting, with the 700,000 small forest trees set out in the last year, and some of the bank planting on high fills and deep cuts which were made for highway purposes.

Wandering From This to That

See Breath Gases

It is now possible to see the curious gases of which the air one breathes is composed by means of a new and unique exhibit just installed at Field Museum of Natural History. In this exhibit the gases have been segregated in separate tubes, and made visible by passing an electric current through the tubes, thus producing the characteristic spectrum of each—brilliant blues, reds, oranges, yellows, greens, and other colors. The gases, eight in number, are shown in the order of their quantity in the atmosphere. This order begins with nitrogen which is the most abundant, and is followed by oxygen, argon, hydrogen, neon, helium, krypton, and xenon. Argon constitutes about one per cent by volume; neon about one part in 50,000; helium, about one part in 250,000; krypton about one part in two million, and xenon one part in seventeen million. However, several of these have proved to be of much commercial importance. Argon is now used to fill electric light bulbs, having been found more satisfactory for this purpose than nitrogen, which was previously used. Neon, owing to the brilliancy of its spectrum, is now widely used for illuminated signs. Helium, because of its lightness and non-inflammability, has proved ideal for filling airships and balloons.

Chicago Man Injured When Car Upsets on Highway and Burns Up

John Jankowski of Chicago was injured early Sunday morning in an accident between Barrington and Fox River Grove when the car in which he and four other men were riding skidded and turned over.

Mr. Jankowski was brought to the local hospital for first aid treatment where it was found that his back was injured but after receiving medical treatment he was able to be taken to his home.

The other occupants of the car were not injured even though the car burned.

The party was enroute to Lake Geneva.

C. & N. W. Official Inspects Crossing for Improvement

Work of installing a new crossing at Hough street over the Chicago North Western tracks will start next week or early the following week. W. A. Krenner, assistant superintendent of the Wisconsin division, was in Barrington Wednesday morning inspecting the crossing. Both installation of the new crossing and elevation of the north tracks will be done by railroad section workers, it was reported.

The village officials are considering the suggestion that the new outer strip of pavement near the tracks remain raised off and not used by traffic until after the crossing widening work is complete.

Second October Baby Announced; First of November Not Arrived

Although no qualifiers have been announced for the November stork race, a second baby, eligible for the October second prize race registered with the village clerk last week. The baby was a girl born at 10:30 a. m. Oct. 27 to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Albert Kramer of Cuba township. The young lady was named Lucille Evaline and is a vigorous healthy young individual. Second prizes in the First Baby of the Month race of October were offered by Plagge's Home Furnishing Co. and the Barrington Review. The father or relative of the new baby can get the prizes by calling at the places named.

When will the first baby of November arrive? That may be answered before next week.

Depot Smoke Shop Adds Three New Pool Tables

The building formerly occupied by Trestrick's Market has been leased by Arthur Walthausen, proprietor of the Depot Smoke Shop, and has been redecorated and turned into a modern pool room. The two buildings have been joined by cutting away part of the partition and the two businesses will be run together.

Three new pool tables have been installed in the new addition and a billiard table will be installed later, Mr. Walthausen announced.

Chicago Youth Badly Cut in Automobile Accident

Charles Pence, son of P. E. Pence of Chicago, was injured early Sunday morning near Fox River Grove in an automobile accident.

Flying glass caused painful lacerations about his face and the young man was brought to the Barrington hospital for first aid.

He was taken back to his home later in the day.
