

China Has Longest History, Speaker Tells Local Women

About 100 years after Confucius various other schools came into existence. One of the most outstanding was that of Mohse. His emphasis was not so much on formality, terms, or definitions, but on utility. He saw the need of work... one cannot dwell on decorum when hungry and cold. He taught the doctrine of Universal Love and preached against war.

"Later came the Taoistic (pronounced low-tick) period. This was more metaphysical, getting away from social relations, paying not so much attention to ambitions of life as such. All things change but there is an unchanging manner within. Man changes every moment but the principle of man goes on. Stillness within is not laziness. He stressed the courageous facing of facts."

"In the first century A. D. Buddhism came in as a foreign element. Later Chinese students went to India to study this religion, bringing back notes which they interpreted into Chinese thought. To the cultured, Buddhism came as metaphysics to the common people it brought images... ideas of heaven and hell (in fact 33 heavens and 18 hells)."

In closing, Professor Chang spoke of the present disturbances in China and expressed the opinion that the commercial needs of the two countries will outweigh the political graspings of the few in power and the trouble will soon adjust itself.

"History has demonstrated that force will bring its own ruin in time," he concluded.

Pioneer Railroad Trip

Impressed New Yorkers

For four days, after reading the announcement that the DeWitt Clinton would undertake a passenger run the full fifteen-mile length of the road, the hangers of the Hudson valley bickered. Some said the notion was absurd; some said they would keep an open mind.

Then September 24, 1831, arrived. Conductor John T. Clark, first passenger railroad conductor in the North, tooted a tin horn as signal to the engineer to start, and the DeWitt Clinton, with a three-car train rocking behind it, was off on the first trip over the entire route from Albany to Schenectady.

It was the beginning of railroad ing in New York state and the pioneer was the Mohawk & Hudson railroad, original unit of the New York Central lines.

The engine had no headlight, no bell, no whistle, no spark arrester in the stack, no cab.

But it got close up to twenty miles an hour, with three coaches and did better than that on the slight down-grade. Today's electric locomotives do sixty miles an hour with a thousand-ton train.

Part of Famous Trail

Preserved in Chicago

A 10-foot section of the old Cruces trail over which was carried the treasure wrested from the natives of Central and South America during the Spanish colonial times, and the gold from California in the days of the "Forty-niners," has been transferred to Chicago, where it is preserved in the Museum of Science and Industry.

The trail, which ran from the village of La Cruz on the Chagres river was partially destroyed by the construction of a road to the side of the Madden dam, built to increase the water supply of the Panama canal.

The engineers building the heavy duty concrete road to the Madden dam site removed the ancient paving stones where their modern highway crossed the old trail.

Dispute Over "Asparagus"

"The term asparagus is one of doubtful origin," writes Frank F. Vizetelly, dictionary editor. "It has been traced to the Latin from the Greek asparagos. In Medieval Latin it occurred as sparagus, and was found in English in the form sparago as early as the year 1000. One scholar traces it to asphragos, the windpipe. Cotgrave explains the French asperge as 'the herb sparage or sparagus,' which Skeat pronounced mere corruptions of the Latin word. The French asperges is a holy water sprinkler, a term derived from the Latin aspergere, to sprinkle, yet the asparagus of modern times scarcely seems suited for the purpose of sprinkling, much less so when tied up in bunches."

Light on Past Ages

Buried forests, the vestiges of past ages, come to light now and then to reveal new facts to the scientists about climate and vegetation. Trees which are known to exist today only in tropical climates have been found far beneath the surface in temperate or Arctic sections, indicating that a climate suitable for their growth existed in those regions at one time. Tree fossils have been found in the Antarctic, for example, and their discovery indicates that the Antarctic continent, now in its ice age, possessed a temperate climate in remote ages. Possibly it once supported a varied plant and animal fauna.

Another Old Industry Lost to Great Britain

One of the oldest and most picturesque industries in Britain is the preparation of woad as a dye. Nowadays the manufacture of this dye has fallen into decay through the competition of Indigo in its markets.

But its history goes back to the time when it was used as war paint by the British warriors who fought under Boadicea against the Romans. And, in modern times, it was employed for a period in dyeing the uniforms of policemen, sailors and officers in the Guards.

The plant from which the dye is made is of a bluish-green color, rather like that of spinach and possesses a yellow flower. It is crushed to pulp by huge wheels revolving on the stone floor of a woad mill.

The wheels are rotated around central posts by horses. When the horses have gone round with the wheels a certain number of times, the pulp is scooped out by workmen, and rolled on a board into lumps about the size of Dutch cheeses. After drying for three months in special drying sheds, these lumps shrink to the size of baseballs.

These are then crushed down, and mixed with water, after which they undergo a process of fermentation, to get rid of certain vegetable elements which spoil the purity of the dye.

Trippers to Sorrento

Older than Rome, Sorrento, in Italy, goes back to the day of Greek mythology. It was a Phoenician colony older than Tyre. Its name came from the famous sirens, and its power to lure men, and women, too, is as great today. Here Tasso was born, and here lived Goethe, Gorki, Marion Crawford and many others. Ibsen stayed at a little inn on the Corso Umberto and finished his "Peer Gynt," and wrote "Ghosts" here. Wagner, Byron, Scott, Cooper, Dumas, Verdi, Renan, Longfellow, Bulwer-Lytton, Hygge, Wilde, and Nietzsche, all have made this trip, so lovely is the little town of the sirens by the sea.

Buy Heat—not Tons!

It's how much heat you get for your money that counts when you're buying coal—not how many tons you have in your coal bin.

You can buy cheaper coal than genuine Zeigler—but it's worth nothing until you burn it, and when you burn cheaper coal you get far less heat per dollar. Not only that, but you have to put up with a lot of soot and dirt and clinkers and heavy ashes. That's why genuine Zeigler Special Stove Nut Coal is easier on your patience and pocketbook.

If you've learned the economy of buying the strongest instead of the cheapest baking powder, your next coal will be

William Sloan Is President of Cary Grove Rifle Club

Elected at Annual Meeting Monday; Will Have Winter Range

The Cary-Grove Rifle Club held its annual meeting and election of officers Monday evening at the Cary-Grove hall.

William Sloan was elected president; Gordon Kamholz, vice president; H. B. Stewart, executive officer; E. L. Stewart, secretary; F. D. Stewart, treasurer, and F. L. Metch, city officer.

The rifle club was organized year ago with a membership of 10. During the past year the club has established a rifle range on the Northwestern railroad, with a place set of target as required by the regulations in order to comply with the winter months. During the winter months the members will use a 50 foot range which has been provided on second floor of the village hall.

Fame of Heidelberg

Heidelberg is now the center of German aspiragus culture. It is growing the "finest asparagus in the world over." A single stalk asparagus weighing 1½ pounds cut recently at Waldorf, a town in the immediate outskirts of Heidelberg. The Waldorfers claim it is the biggest, heaviest and most edible stalk of asparagus raised by man. Incidentally, Waldorf is the birthplace of John D. Rockefeller, who emigrated to America in 1783 and eventually laid the foundation for the enormous A. fortune. He donated $50,000 to home town for the construction of the Astor house in Waldorf, a fine for aged poor.

English Philanthropist

William Tuff was a philanthropist and English family, several generations of which were celebrated for their efforts in the cause of philanthropy. He was born at York March 24, 1732. His name is linked with the humane treatment of the insane, for whose care he projected in 1792 the Retreat at York under the management of Society of Friends, which became famous as an institution in which a bold attempt was made to cure lunatics without the excess restraints then regarded as essential.

Model Town a Failure

Pullman, which is now a part of Chicago, was founded in 1892. George Mortimer Pullman, the founder of the Pullman Palace company, attempted to build a model town, and even the works were the property of the company and managed as a business. Popular discontent over the conditions led to the annexation of Pullman to Chicago in 1893, until 1910 the corporation held of the property.

Trees 5,000 Years Old

Estimated to be 5,000 years old, "dragon trees" have been found on the Cape Verde islands, the coast of northern Africa. One of the Portuguese colonies. Ancient beliefs that the seed sprang at least 3,000 years before the birth of Christ. Some of the trees are 60 feet tall and have a trunk of short branches.

Curious and Wonderful Cures for Various Ills

An ancient cure for toothache was to leave an offering of meat on a stone. Whatever bird took the food away assumed also the burden of the complaint. Almost incredibly childish was that procedure for removing a sty from the eye. All that was needed here was to push one end of a stick in the fire, point the blazing end towards the affected eye, and whirl it round rapidly in a circle, repeating "Go back, go back, sty." An old fisherman persisted that he had seen this cure, and that it actually worked. Hiccup was quite simply cured by accusing the patient of theft, but a stiff neck was to be squeezed between the legs of the tongs before it would yield to treatment. Another curious treatment for toothache. The malady would at once be banished, if a dead man's fingers, or a nail from his coffin was put in the mouth. The afflicted person had to go to the graveyard himself to procure this.

Voice of Community in the Advertiser's Words

The person who fails to read advertisements is missing one of the most valuable parts of the newspaper. Editorial writers moralize on changes and tendencies which are first indicated in the advertisements. What is the trend of the stage? What are women wearing? Are prices going up or down? What is the condition of the labor market? Are food prices still declining? What new national products are on the market? What have the great national concerns to say in their institutional advertising? What sort of furniture are people buying? What's new in the way of household appliances? What are the large stores pushing?

Craftsmen Banded

While the New England colonists were very eager for skilled crafts men to start up their trade in their villages, they nevertheless were very cautious and wary, fearful that the stranger might prove shiftless and end in being a burden on the community, unless, of course, he had visible means of support. To protect the colonists, the town officials required that some one go bail for the newcomer.

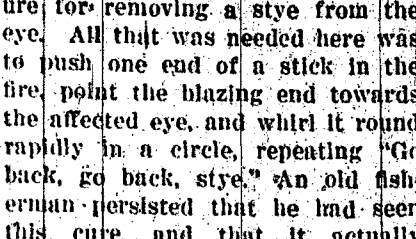

Famous Old Bible

Among the relics of the old Fairfax family of Yorkshire are the famous Bible, prayer book, and psalter of Archbishop Nolle. They date from 1618, and were given to the first Baron Fairfax by this celebrated prime of York, who the son of a tallow chandler, became dean of Westminster, and passed through five bishoprics on his way to the primacy. As bishop of Rochester he had as his chaplain Laud, afterwards the celebrated archbishop of Canterbury. The Bible contains an entry of the baptism of Thomas Fairfax, the general who was commander in chief of the army of the parliament (1645-50). He was one of Charles I's judges, but afterward became a supporter of the Restoration.

Coffee Takes Long Machine Ride Through Jewel Tea Co. Plant But Is Not Handled by Human Beings

preparation, while each hopper is being refilled from the mixers below.

The roasting process is carried on by gas flames, playing through the continuously rotating coffee. The writer noticed that the term "roaster" had a double application. The men who tend the roasters and who determine when the supply in each machine is done are also called "roasters." The roasting is judged by sight-work. These men tending the machines, draw out a scoop full of the beans at regular intervals and compare them with a sample of properly roasted coffee. These "roasters" can not be color blind or otherwise deficient in sight. They must be able to detect the slightest difference in color and shade. Occasionally a "roaster's" eyes go back on him temporarily, but this misfortune is immediately discovered in the testing laboratory where samples of the roasted beans are sent from each batch that comes out of the roaster.

A trip through the coolers—the hot coffee beans are cooled by a suction of cold air through the slowly rotating mass—and the product is dropped to the stoners on the fourth floor. These machines are in pines in which the coffee beans are drawn straight up by a suction air current strong enough to elevate the coffee but not strong enough to draw up heavier materials such as nails, stones, etc., that may have gotten into the sacks at the plantations.

Vacuum Cleaned

Through elevators to the hoppers on the roof, back to the roasted coffee bins on the fifth floor and thence to the granulators. In each of the machines through which the product passes, it undergoes a process of vacuum cleaning. At the granulators a suction draft of air, not as strong as that in the stoners, draws off the pieces of lint and string which get into the mixture in its early stage of roasting.

The thoroughly cleaned coffee is gravity fed to the second floor where it enters the packages without being touched by a human hand.

Packages are automatically fed to a belt conveyor, opened, lined with fresh waxed paper, sealed, and covered with label paper, in a series of machines that do the work of human beings with such precision that they appear even to think. Each filled, but unsealed package, passes over a set of scales which detects these "not quite full" or a "little overloaded" and shunts them aside for proper disposal.

Into Cartons by Hand

Not until this time does the coffee undergo handling by people. The sealed and labeled packages are packed by hand into cartons which are opened by hand. The filled cartons are moved to the ground floor for temporary storage, ready for shipment to the branch warehouses located at various points in the country.

The blending and packing of tea, the preparation of spices, of cocoa, of vanilla, lemon-extract, and toilet articles is also of interest to the visitor conducted through the Jewel plant. Of equal interest are the building and institution itself, the immaculate general office room which occupies more than one-half of the fifth floor of the building, the library, the attractively paneled and furnished private offices, the completely equipped Home Makers Institute, the laboratories, and the basement, much of which is occupied by recreational gymnasiums such as the bowling alley room, the squash and hand ball courts, the locker and shower rooms.

Barrington people who arrange for a sight seeing trip through the building will be impressed with the system of the entire institution, one which gives employment at the present time in Barrington to 250 men and women with a force varying in number to more than 300. Visitors will marvel at the cleanliness of the institution.

Governor Louis L. Emerson, State Treasurer Edward J. Harrett, and State Auditor Oscar Nelson, who comprise the tax levy board, will meet in December to fix the 1931 tax rate.

Town Clings to Old Method

In spite of the encroachment of the telephone and the telegraph,
the inhabitants of Kungsberger, Sweden, have decided to retain the medieval "bid-stick" communication service.

The "bid-stick," a stick with a writ fastened around its center, is circulated among the inhabitants of the village, and every one who receives it has to carry it to his nearest neighbor after reading the message.

The Kungsberger villagers declare that its use is much more dependable than postcards or telephone calls. Since there is a fine of $21.75 for anyone who keeps the "bid-stick" too long, or who neglects to forward it, the "stick" triumphs over the modern means of communication.—Baltimore Sun.

Here the American visitor comes upon traces of La Salle, Marquette, Cadillac, Duluth, Hennepin and other illustrious pioneers who preceded the cities which today perpetuate their names or their proper speech in the Middle West of the United States. Buildings dating back to 1690, monuments to Marquette, who visited Indian Hochelaga at the foot of Mount Royal, in 1696; to Champlain, who built a fort there early in the Seventeenth century; and to Maisonneuve, who founded Montreal as Ville Marie in 1642; tablets showing where La Salle lived before setting out to discover the Mississippi; and where General Montgomery lodged before joining Benedict Arnold in their unsuccessful attempt to capture Quebec—these are some of the shrines of a history shared equally by the people of the United States and Canada.—Philadelphia Record.

SHALL WE KEEP OUT?

It is not hard to remember that immediately following the World war the disposition prevailed throughout the United States to let Europe settle its own affairs. The League of Nations plan fostered by President Wilson and which had been supported in principle throughout the United States while our soldiers were overseas, was accepted throughout most of the world, but it was repudiated by the American Senate.

There has not been much disposition until within the last two or three years for the United States to participate in matters involving international affairs. President Hoover and the State Department and a few leaders in Congress who have been thrown into close touch with developments in the Old World feel that there are opportunities at this time to establish better relations between Governments so that Nations will be able to satisfactorily settle their differences without recourse to war. In the face of such opportunities our American statesmen are meeting a plain duty in exercising their efforts to quench the smoldering flames in European nations, particularly in France and Germany.

But politics are rampant in the United States, and our nationally patriotic people are heard demanding "why don't we keep our nose out of Europe's affairs?" In the face of such a condition, the politicians in Washington are likely to continue to play up to this do-nothing sentiment, even with Japan and China threatening the peace of the World. It is perfectly plain that the people of the World are crying out to their governments to do their duty to civilization in clinching bargains and treaties to end wars.

THE SEVEN WONDERS

Nearly everyone has heard of the seven wonders of the world, but probably few could name them and fewer could tell what became of them. Those interested in such things might clip this out for their scrap book.

The seven wonders of the world were so named by Antipater, a writer of Palestine, about 200 B. C., as follows:

- The Hanging Gardens of Babylon, destroyed in 484 B. C., more than 100 years before they were listed among the wonders.
 - The Temple of Diana at Ephesus, burned in 262 A. D.
 - The Statue of Zeus at Olympia, destroyed in 408.
 - The Colossus of Rhodes, sold for junk in 653.
 - The Lighthouse of Pharos at Alexandria, fell in an earthquake in 1375.
 - The Mausoleum of Artemisia destroyed in 1402.
 - The Pyramid of Cheops the only one of the "Seven Wonders" still in existence.
- Such were the seven wonders of the ancient world. Many lists of modern wonders have been made, but a recent writer selects not the perishable works of man, but the discoveries and inventions which have revolutionized civilization.
- He names the radio, the telephone, the airplane, the antiseptic, spectrum analysis and radium. Whether his list is the best that might be made or not, the wonders mentioned will survive as long as humanity exists, bestowing untold benefits upon mankind.

The Way of Life

PRAYERS

A lady from Kansas sends a very personal question: "Have you," she asks, "ever known of any instance of the efficiency of prayer?"

The answer is, Yes. And this is the story. Years ago when my reverend friend Dr. William Goodell Frost left his comfortable professorship of Greek at Oberlin College to take the presidency of the struggling little college at Berea, Kentucky, his friends thought he had made a terrible mistake.

The buildings were old and dilapidated. The faculty was underpaid. There were plenty of debts, and no income. The president, in addition to his scholastic duties, was expected to ride the rails from city to city and beg for funds to meet the current expenses.

Frost was a seer and a prophet. He knew the sterling character of the Kentucky mountain people; he was thrilled by the vision of what Berea College could mean to them. Full of courage, he journeyed up to Cincinnati and called upon the pastor of the leading Protestant church.

"Will you invite some of the generous people of your city to a meeting and let me tell them about the needs of the mountains?" Frost asked.

"Oh, no," replied the pastor. "I couldn't think of that."

"Will you let me preach in your pulpit Sunday morning?"

"No. We have a positive rule that the Sunday morning service is never to be devoted to any charitable appeal."

"Well, I don't suppose you get many people out in the evening," Frost persisted. "Will you let me speak Sunday evening?"

Again the preacher refused. "How about the Wednesday evening prayer meeting?"

"No."

"Well, then, will you pray for the mountain people and the success of the college?" Frost demanded.

The preacher said he thought it would be hypocritical for him to ask the Almighty to help a cause to which he could give no aid himself.

"My brother, since you can do nothing to help us, will you join me in prayer for your church and your ministry?"

The pastor could not refuse. Down on their knees they went together, and Frost proceeded to send up to the Heavenly Father not only a prayer for the church but a most eloquent and moving presentation of the needs of the Kentucky mountaineers and the little college that was struggling to help them.

When the prayer was finished the preacher's eyes were full. "You must come to my church Sunday morning," he said. "My people must hear you."

Frost went, and so began the friendship of many people in Cincinnati for Berea College.

Mrs. V. W. Burridge, librarian, today submitted the November report of the local library. It is one of the best reports to come before the library board for some time, and attests to the popularity of the local library.

It shows a growing interest in the reading of good books by residents of Barrington. A number of interesting new volumes have been added to the shelves recently.

December Art Program Varied

The month of December offers a most interesting variety of exhibitions at the Art Institute of Chicago. Beginning December 3, the Third Annual International Exhibition of Lithographs and Wood Engravings will open in the Print Rooms. Beginning December 22 the following exhibitions will be held: Mexican Arts under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts; the Florence Dibell Bartlett collection of Peasant Wall Hanging of Sweden, under the auspices of the Antiquarian Society; Exhibition of Paintings by Morris Kantor. The showing of Necessaries in Hutchinson Wing, lent by Mrs. Fred L. Mandel, will continue until February 1, 1932.

Great Lakes to Sea
A United States-Canadian insuring construction of a seaway through the St. Lawrence river which will bring the Atlantic seaboard 1,500 miles closer to the heart of America is expected to be announced shortly. It will be sent to the senate where a two-thirds majority vote—65 votes—is required.

That a treaty would be ratified if put to a vote is probable. But there are grave reasons to believe that the St. Lawrence seaway may be postponed at least two years, possibly indefinitely, merely because it may never come to a vote when it gets caught in the legislative traffic jam in the senate. Even if the treaty itself is passed it will be ineffective without accompanying enabling legislation.

National Park Museum
A museum of colonial relics will be set up in the proposed Shenandoah National Park. Horace M. Albright, director of the National Park Service, announced in a statement just made public by the Department of Interior urging the public to donate relics and heirlooms of the area to serve as a nucleus of the collection.

There are now 20 museums in the national parks which attract considerable attention, Mr. Albright explained, and one in the Shenandoah National Park "should become a colonial treasure house."

OUR
LETTER
By National Editorial Association
(Special to The Review)

IF THE OPENING numbers are a true indication of what the nation may expect from the current congressional political show, the winter and spring months will keep the public in a turmoil. With partisan control changed, it is small wonder that the participants in the spectacle should be excited at the pounding of drums in every quarter. The echoes are heard in the drawing rooms, for the congressional season means endless debate by day and endless rounds of entertainment at night. The president's report on "the state of the union" has been received by a hostile congress and is now in dissecting committees.

Necessity for new sources of school revenue and need of changes in Illinois tax laws were discussed by speakers at the Illinois superintendent's conference held in connection with the state high school teachers' convention at Champaign. Lester H. Grimm, director of research, Illinois State Teachers' Association, said that present sources must be maintained and new sources developed.

Sunshine Helps Children
Dull children may be made brighter by the use of ultraviolet light, is the conclusion of an English medical officer quoted in Good Health magazine.

"When I first used ultra-violet irradiation for the various physical disabilities of children," the article quotes the doctor as saying, "I was struck with the marked improvement in the mentality in many of the cases treated. The pining, querulous, irritable, nervous, self-centered, sleepless child who is often pot-bellied and emaciated, is transformed into a robust, well-nourished and perfectly healthy little animal, full of life and gaiety. All this happens in a few weeks." With the exception of those children who are out to be definitely mentally deficient, it is unusual to find one who does not show signs of both physical and mental development.
