"The Crusades," Drama of Middle Ages, at Catlow

"Freckles" to Be Shown Wed. and Thurs. as Campfire Girls' Benefit

The magnificent and terrifying spectacle of the armies of two worlds at battle; the color, pageantry and rustic beauty of the Middle Ages; the poignant romance of a king and queen whose love changed the course of world history.

From these story elements Cecil B. DeMille created the plot of the most spectacular and daring picture he has ever produced, "The Crusades," which will be presented by the Catlow theatre starting Friday and Saturday.

Featuring Loretta Young and Henry Wilcoxin with a supporting cast of over one hundred name players and thousands of extras, the picture recreates that magnificent period of history when the combined armies of the kings of Europe followed the fanatical preacher on the crusade to wrest the Holy Land from the Saracens.

Wilcoxin plays Richard the Lion Heart, commander of the combined armies. Loretta Young is Berengaria, the girl he had to marry in order to secure supplies for his army.

Keith is cast as Saladin, and Cecil B. DeMille, C. Aubrey Smith, Joseph Schildkraut and Alan Hale are prominent in the supporting cast.

"Dodsworth," playing Sunday and Monday, is the startling drama story of the U. S. Cryptograph bureau as told by the man who organized and headed it during the World war.

Based upon Major Herbert O. Yardley's sensational best-seller "The American Black Chamber" it is crammed with the startling revelations of the secret espionage department, where foreign diplomatic or enemy communications were secretly intercepted, decoded and deciphered for official information.

Through this amazing tale of codes and ciphers has been woven a romance with William Powell as chief cryptographer and Rosalind Russell.

Others in the cast are Blanche Yurka, Henry Stephenson and Paul Harvey Atwill.

"Castle's Broad" will be the bargain night offering next Tuesday. William Boyd is starred as Hopalong Cassidy in this new episode of the colorful West.

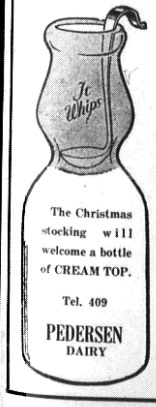
"Freckles" representing a departure from the regular movie formula as depicted in "Freckles," Gene Stratton-Porter's outstanding novel of life in the brave beauty of these backgrounds, the story narrates the difficult course pursued by an orphan boy in his search for happiness.

Jim Brown as the title character and Carol Stone have the romantic leads, with Lumsden Hare and James Bush in other roles.

"Freckles" will be presented as a benefit for the local Campfire Girls organization, and will be shown next Wednesday and Thursday nights. "Runaway Kids," a short in color, Sportlight and other news will be other items of interest on the bill.

Grows Largest Leaves

A water lily whose name is Victoria regia grows the largest leaves of any plant in the world. They often measure 30 to 40 feet round. The edges turn up and the leaves lie on the water, looking like giant trays. A man can quite easily sit in one of these leaves.



The Christmas stocking will welcome a bottle of CREAM TOP.

Largest Real Estate Deal

The largest real estate transaction in history was the Louisiana Purchase, in 1803, when the United States bought from France the middle third of this country—a piece of land five times larger than France itself. Moreover, its low price probably constituted a record, for although it is the richest agricultural region in the world, it cost us only four cents an acre.—Collier's Weekly.

Dead Branches Fire Hazard

Forest fires are a frequent aftermath of serious insect outbreaks in the woods. Large forest areas hit by defoliating or boring insects that kill a high percentage of the timber are often swept later by conflagrations that are very difficult to control, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. The dead branches both in the insect-killed trees and on the ground provide plenty of fuel for any chance spark or flame. Furthermore, the defoliated trees offer little resistance to the sun and the litter on the forest floor is more readily dried out. Some insect outbreaks, such as those of the mountain-pine beetle in lodgepole pine, kill from 50 to 90 per cent of the timber in the stand where they occur. Even a 50 per cent kill opens the forest canopy enough to keep the material on the ground highly inflammable, and, in addition, supplies numerous dead stems which aid in starting lightning fires, in supplying fuel for the flames, and in throwing burning twigs or pieces of bark across fire lines.

Joyful Street Names

Three streets in New Orleans are named Polymnia, Euterpe and Terpsichore. They are names of mythical Greek gods or muses. The first, according to Greek antiquity, was the muse of the sublime hymn, and of the faculty of hearing and remembering. According to some authorities she was the inventor of the lyre. Euterpe was the muse of joy and pleasure, patroness of flute players, associated often with Bacchus, the god of conviviality. Terpsichore was the muse of the choral and interpretative dance.

Jerusalem's "Wailing Wall"

The "Wailing Wall" in Jerusalem is near the Moslem Mosque of Omar. A portion of it is 50 feet high, and it is supposed to contain some of the stones of Solomon's temple. It is the gathering place of Jews on Fridays to lament and pray. It is said to have been built 3,000 years ago by King Solomon to protect his temple. The Wailing Wall has been a shrine sacred to the Jews since Titus destroyed the temple in the year 63 A. D.

Medical Men Loved Music

Perhaps the most famous of medical men who have loved music was Billroth, close friend of Johannes Brahms, and one of the greatest surgical pathologists in medical history, says Hygeia, the Health Magazine. His home in Vienna was the scene of frequent musical evenings, and many of Brahms' finest string quartets, vocal and piano duets were first heard there.

Name of Cod Fish

The province of Nova Scotia, the Acadia of French days, was once named in honor of the cod fish. Daring Basque fishermen, who crossed the Atlantic in the Sixteenth century to fish off the Grand Banks of Nova Scotia, called present day Canada's most easterly province "Baccalaos," meaning cod fish. Baccaro Point, near Shelbourne, is the only surviving place-name derived from the old Basque term.

Old Pavement

During the war, Australian soldiers, trench-digging near Beersheba on the road to Egypt, turned up ancient pavements with Christian signs and inscriptions. For a week the Australians, continually under airplane bombing by the enemy, dug away, carefully raised it and dispatched it safely to Cairo.
