

Will Roger's Film on New Year's Bill at Catlow Theatre

German Dialog Picture to Be Presented on Screen
Next Week

"Ambassador Bill" with Will Rogers is being presented by the Catlow theatre for the New Year's Eve and night shows with a midnight matinee showing of this film Thursday night.

Saturday night "Lascia of the Rio Grande" will be the feature offering at the Catlow.

John Mack Brown, erstwhile All-American football star and handsome hero of "Bully the Kid" plays a big, strapping Texas ranger in "Lascia of the Rio Grande." Slim Summerville, the lanky comedian, and the squatty Frank Campana engage in a hilarious laugh-duet.

The story, based upon the romantic poem, "Lascia," retains all of the romance, action and color of the poetic creation, and the photography has caught the glamor of the great Southwest.

A Jimmy Gleason comedy, news and cartoon are among the short subjects added to this bill.

Mac and Bob, the two blind musicians who entertain daily over WLS, will make a personal appearance at the Sunday matinee and evening bill. In their act these boys will play and sing the songs which have built up their popularity on the air.

The screen feature for Sunday will be "Blonde Crazy" with James Cagney and Joan Blondell featured.

Cagney plays the part of a wise-cracking bellhop who watches the tricks of the tricksters who hang about the peacock alley of the hotel, and then decides to fleece them at their own game—and does so, amazingly, daily.

A Slim Summerville comedy heads the short subjects included in the program.

Sunday's screen show will be repeated Monday night at reduced prices.

Milk runs instead of rival gangsters form the targets for machine gun bullets in "The Ruffing Voice," a picture of big business grafting which comes to the Catlow theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Walter Huston, as head of the grafting syndicate, wages war with the milk industry. The supporting cast includes Doris Kenyon, Loretta Young, David Mann, and Dudley Digges.

On Thursday and Friday, Jan. 7 and 8, The Catlow will present one of the most outstanding of the new German productions. Filmed in the old world with the Austrian Alps as a background and with Charlotte Stoen and Gustav Froelich in the leading roles, this picture, "Zwei Menschen," will bring the true foreign atmosphere of the best of the German film products to this community.

Not only those anxious to see and hear a German dialog picture will be interested in "Zwei Menschen," but also regular fans will be interested from the standpoint of comparison with American films.

The Sandwich Islands

The Hawaiian Islands were called the Sandwich Islands by the discoverer, Captain Cook, who found them in 1778 and named them for the earl of Sandwich, first lord of the admiralty. They were quite generally known as the Sandwich Islands until on closer acquaintance with the Hawaiian people, the rest of the world came to adopt their name for their land.

Warrants were not always entered as of the month in which they were paid.

Many warrants did not show whether they were paid by check or in cash.

The payroll and time record now kept is inadequate, but even that record was not maintained for the period covered by our audit.

It is to be noted from foregoing comments that the existing records were so incomplete and defective as to require the compilation of figures and other information from original sources and under such conditions, the work required exceeded what could be reasonably anticipated in connection with auditing work.

Letter in Part From Auditors, Arnold Himmelblau & Co.

In September, 1931, we were authorized to make an audit of the Special Assessment Funds of the Village of Barrington, Illinois from the date of the institution of special assessments to April 30, 1931, and of the General and Water Funds from May 1, 1927 to April 30, 1931, for a maximum fee of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00).

When we undertook this engagement, we expected to find completed records properly balanced with a general ledger containing the necessary control accounts. Instead, we found that no general ledger was kept, that no satisfactory detail record of cash receipts was available, and further, after considerable checking had been done, that the available records contained many errors and omissions.

For your information, we have outlined below some of the major difficulties we encountered in this investigation to date:

Special Assessment Funds—The greater part of the minutes of the meetings of the Board of Local Improvements, which have been made for the day are in the control of Mr. Ely, the attorney who, we understand, has admitted being responsible for the over-issue of Special Assessment Bonds. Accordingly, it will be necessary to refer to other sources for a verification of final estimates, changes in bonds and separate levies, details of bonds legally or illegally issued, etc.

For substantially the entire period during which collections have been made on special assessment taxes, no made record of these collections aside from the duplicate receipt, has been kept.

If proper controls for Special Assessment Taxes and Interest had been maintained, the numerous errors in footing on special assessment tax bills disclosed by our audit would have been discovered by the Village Collector, but in this case, it was necessary to check the footings on all duplicate receipts. Our check of footings disclosed that the Village Collector had made errors in footing of tax bills which resulted in a loss of $472.05 to the Village and had overcharged the taxpayers for sum of $70.10.

We attempted to verify the correctness of tax and interest collections by analysis of entries appearing in the various tax registers and found many differences. In checking for the causes of the variations, we discovered many errors in posting from the duplicate receipts to the tax registers. We also found taxes marked "Paid" on the register for which we could not locate either duplicate receipts or credits to the cash account. These errors and omissions make it necessary to check substantially all the duplicate receipts.

A considerable amount of time was spent in making comparisons and analysis for the purpose of properly classifying and verifying the collections received from the County Collectors of Cook and Lake counties, because the Village Collector advised us that he was checked in one day to locate lists upon which his entries in the tax registers were based. These entries consisted merely of a "Paid" stamp, no dates or amounts being shown. In the case of the Cook county remittances, it was necessary for our representatives to spend about a week in the county building.

Our audit of disbursements was made more difficult by the fact that the Village Treasurer, in many cases, failed to check the amount of cash on hand, but failed to record the disbursements against the proper special assessment fund until days, weeks or even months later.

As no general ledger was kept, there was no record of Village assets or liabilities in proper form and extra time was, and will be required to establish taxes and water rates receivable accounts payable and outstanding warrants to the Village.

It was impossible to make a satisfactory audit of vehicle taxes, water rates and other income received by the Village Collector because of his failure to operate either a proper cash receipts book, or to maintain and retain duplicate receipts for his collections.

The appropriation ordinances as drawn were found to be of little value for audit purposes. They were defective in that they bore hardly any relation to the accounts and funds kept.

The difficulties in auditing cash disbursements and warrants issued were increased by the following weaknesses in accounting routine:

Warrants were not always entered as of the month in which they were paid.

Many warrants did not show whether they were paid by check or in cash.

The payroll and time record now kept is inadequate, but even that record was not maintained for the period covered by our audit.

Some interesting data: "It has been calculated that the billions spent on the World War would have been sufficient to have provided a home site and furnished a cottage worth $4,000 for every family in Great Britain, the United States, Canada, France, Germany, Belgium and Russia." After carrying out this kind scheme, sufficient money would have been left to supply every city of 200,000 inhabitants, in the countries mentioned, with a $5,000,000 library, a $5,000,000 hospital and a $10,000,000 university. Then a trust fund could have been established from the remainder which at 5 per cent would have provided an annual subsidy of $1,000 a year toward each of the salaries of 125,000 teachers and 125,000 nurses.

The book review of Andre Siegfried's "England's Crisis," as given by Mrs. Robert Work at a recent meeting of the study class, follows: "To turn the corner from the 19th into the 20th century is, in a word, because that delicate transition was still unaccomplished by 1914 that England is suffering today from a crisis, the intensities of which can scarcely be exaggerated. Although almost a third of the present century has passed, Great Britain still depends on an economic structure and on methods which often definitely belong to the previous century.

"England still lives in the atmosphere of the past, and this is one of the secrets of her extraordinary charm. But if she wishes to continue as one of the great powers of the world or indeed, to exist at all, a complete revision is imperative. The British economic system as a whole, coincides historically with the reign of the steam engine. The Victorian Era, high water mark of England's prosperity and power, was based on coal, for as long as England's mines enjoyed a quasi-monopoly and coal was the only fuel used by industry her manufacturers were practically un-

As her cost prices were the lowest she captured the world's markets without resistance and was thus able to create a paradoxical structure of over-developed factories in a restricted and not particularly suitable territory.

"England's trouble really started with the Industrial Revolution in the early 1800's; when inventions of spinning and weaving machinery transformed conditions under which men worked. Craftsmen of early times were conscious of their dignity as able, responsible workmen; after the installation of machinery they no longer felt creative joy in their work. . . . this always has devastating effects on life. From handicrafts carried on in peaceful, village homes great numbers were crowded into unsanitary, hopeless dwellings in cities. The population tripled in less than 100 years. With the desertion of rural districts, agriculture failed to support the workers and England came to depend on imported food and supplies.

"Free Trade seemed to have been conceived especially for England by an attentive and partial providence. Although having a stronger sense of nationality than most European peoples, the English are also the most dependent on international prosperity. Banking and commerce rise on trade and desire the greatest possible liberty.

"England had become accustomed to wealth and easy living. . . . there was a consciousness of security which made life very comfortable. Report followed report warning of changing business conditions. Intellectually they were read but instinctively unbelieved. . . . confidence in their country could not be shaken.

"The first signs of danger appeared about 1880 and Germany was the first dangerous rival, flooding the markets with low-priced merchandise. The balance was further upset when after the World War a monetary policy was imposed by London which in strangled industry, and industry, in self defense, evolved a system of protection which threatened commerce and finance. The fact that a choice had to be made, and that any choice, whatever it was, was bound to hurt someone showed that the system was seriously wrong. . . .

How to play Bridge. AUCTION and CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Contract bidding is a game that does not justify a title as a "game" but rather as a "club" or "club."

CONTRACT BIDDING:
Z should bid two clubs and on the second round show the heart suit. The bid at Contract is a forcing bid. Z is sure of another chance to bid. The bid is a sure small slam if partner assists either clubs or hearts, and Z is sure the best way to find out. Partner fails to assist either suit, Z should bid a grand slam.

Hand No. 3
Hearts—none
Clubs—none
Diamonds—A, K, Q, J, 8, 4, 3, 2
Spades—A, K, Q, 9, 7

When A and B have a game in Z dealt a passed. A bid one club and Y bid one heart. What should B bid with the passing hand?

CONTRACT BIDDING:
It should bid three diamonds. In this hand, A has nothing to gain by a forcing bid. Both of the other suits have been shown and the purpose of a forcing bid is to shut out information. If the information has already been given, what would B accomplish by a forcing bid? Such bid would only give the opponents that B had a good hand in diamonds and incite them to overbid to save game. Bid with a hand by easy stages and the results will be much more satisfactory.

CONTRACT BIDDING:
It should bid three diamonds, which is a forcing bid and requires A to keep the bidding open. If by any chance A bid bid spades, B should bid a grand slam. With any other bid by A, should bid a small slam in diamonds. A should bid a small slam in diamonds. B should bid a grand slam in diamonds.

Hand No. 4
A: A, Y, B, Z
Hearts—A
Clubs—none
Diamonds—A, K, J, 10, 7, 4, 3, 2
Spades—A, 7, 6, 3
No side, rubber game. What should A dealer, bid with the foregoing hand?

CONTRACT BIDDING:
Z should bid two diamonds. This is a forcing bid and requires A to keep the bidding open. If by any chance A bid bid spades, B should bid a grand slam. With any other bid by A, should bid a small slam in diamonds. A should bid a small slam in diamonds. B should bid a grand slam in diamonds.

CONTRACT BIDDING:
This bid Z should bid two diamonds. This is a forcing bid and requires A to keep the bidding open. If by any chance A bid bid spades, B should bid a grand slam. With any other bid by A, should bid a small slam in diamonds. A should bid a small slam in diamonds. B should bid a grand slam in diamonds.

Bennett led the scoring group with three while the high school team had two field goals, one by Meister, Coach. He put up a scrappy fight but couldn't make much of a difference since they were just a couple of their shots. The game was a good game and the rest of the teams should look rather bright.

The senior team had not had enough practice together smoothly. They won 20 to 14. Eugene Wolf was the point man for the team while Dave Dwyer had eight points for the team.

Attend Preview of New Hudson and Essex Cars

With an estimate of 101,000 automobiles which must be replaced with new cars in the very near future in the Chicago area in which Barrington is located, prospects for the 1932 sale of new automobiles in this territory are far brighter than at any time during the past few years.

This was the report brought to Barrington by R. L. Mundhenk and John Frye of the Barrington Hudson-Exess Co. who, on Monday, attended in Chicago a private preview of new 1932 Hudson and Essex models which they will establish a new record for the number of advanced features.

Because of light buying during the past two years, Mr. Mundhenk said that the heads of Hudson selling organizations attending the meeting reported that thousands of replacements must be made in the very near future, and that as a result there are more prospective purchasers of new automobiles in this area than at any time since 1925 or 1926.

"Deficiency of sales during the last two years, plus normal expectancy, makes an unprecedented potential market for the sale of approximately 101,000 new automobiles in this territory in 1932," Mr. Mundhenk said.

"Similar conditions existing in all parts of the United States," the meeting was told by William Tracey, of Detroit, Sales Manager of the Hudson Motor Car Co., "have led leading financial authorities to predict that the pressing need for motor car replacements will result in the automobile industry leading the march back to general prosperity."

Demonstration of new cars and the showing of sound motion pictures, detailing their designing, building and outstanding features, were received enthusiastically by the dealers, Hudson-Exess selling organizations from Aurora, Peoria, Rockford, Joliet and Danvers were represented at the meeting.

The meeting at Chicago was one of a series of similar Hudson-Exess meetings being held throughout the United States in one of the most extensive preview showings of new cars ever held by any automobile company.

SECTION 1: That all raw milk offered, exposed or kept for sale or distribution to the milk dealers or wholesalers of raw milk in the village must come from animals under State and Federal Supervision and proven free from all contagious and infectious diseases, shall not contain more than 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter nor any pathogenic bacteria and shall be produced under the following conditions:

All persons living upon the farms, employed thereon, handling or coming in contact with the milk in dairies or other places shall be free from contagious or infectious diseases and shall not have been exposed to any one having such disease.

No person who is a typhoid, paratyphoid, diptheria or other septic throat carrier shall be employed in the production or handling of such milk.

It shall be the duty of every person, firm or corporation with a knowledge of the facts to notify the Health Authorities or other legally qualified authorities at once by telephone or otherwise of the occurrence of any of the above afflictions in persons living or employed in and about the place where milk is produced, handled or sold. Milk and milk derivatives that have been exposed shall not be shipped into or sold in this village without the proper consent.

There shall be attached to each milk pasteurizing machine an automatic recording device by which the temperature of milk and the length of time it is heated shall be recorded upon a chart. These charts shall always be available for inspection by the Health Authorities and shall be so arranged when constructed as not to be accessible to change before such inspection.

Each bottle or container shall have plainly marked thereon the word "pasteurized" in conjunction with the name of the producer. "Buttermilk," "skimmed milk" as the case may be.

Certified milk is defined as a milk produced under a regularly constituted Medical Milk Commission in accordance with the methods and standards adopted by the American Association of Medical Milk Commission in San Francisco, California, June 25 and 26, 1923 and any amendments thereto which may be adopted by said association, or milk which has been produced under conditions inspected and approved by the Health Authorities of the Village of Barrington.

Health Authorities as in this ordinance defined shall be understood to mean the Health Authorities of the Village of Barrington, Cook and Lake Counties, Illinois.

As we take the old calendar down from the wall and put the bright, new one in its place, we all naturally pause to review the events of the old year and make plans for the new. For all of us, 1931 brought its mixture of joy and sorrow, of disappointment and success, and 1932 waits at the door with new opportunities for achievement and happiness. We wish one and all the best that life has to offer in the New Year.

Picks Pansies in Flower Bed on Christmas Day

California has nothing on Lake country. At least Victor Ekloff, 1725 Runyard place, Waukegan, has a right to think so, for on Christmas Day he picked pansies from a flower bed in his yard and looked over his forgotten bed where the plants were still fresh, although having no blossoms. On Thanksgiving Day, Mr. Ekloff picked three roses from a bush outside and used them for holiday decoration in the home.
