recent withdrawal of $20,000,000 previously allocated to Illinois for WPA work will not handicap completion of the present projects now working and he is of the opinion that funds will be sent from Washington to carry the work program to July 1.

Hat-Bands and Baldness

Baldness says a writer in the Los Angeles Times, is not due to parasites, dandruff, nervousness or brain-work, but to the pressure of hat-bands upon the blood vessels in the scalp. Heretofore, women wore loosely fitting hats, and escaped baldness. Narrow-headed men do not feel the pressure of hat-bands as much as do the thick-headed, and narrow heads are seldom bald. According to the United States Department of Public Health, it is impossible to restore hair which has vanished. Baldness cannot be cured, but may be prevented.

Will Rogers' Last Picture Is Billed at Catlow Theatre

Christmas Program Features Jane Withers in "This Is The Life"

Will Rogers' last picture, "In Old Kentucky," will usher in Christmas week at the Catlow Theatre. It is scheduled for Sunday and Monday showing.

In this glorious romance of horses and humor, Will Rogers again reveals that simple, unassuming Americanism that has endeared him to all followers of the screen.

The feature chosen for Christmas Eve and evening, and Thursday following is "This Is the Life" starring little Jane Withers. Jane will be remembered, made famous in "Bright Eyes," with Shirley Temple. Since then she has been accorded star rating.

The story centers about a brilliant child performer who is made a social slave by her guardians and is rescued from torment by John McGuire, falsely accused of theft and seeking to avoid capture by the police.

Disappearing as a boy, she returns across the continent to her new-found friend while a nation searches frantically for her. They have numerous adventures until McGuire gives himself up to the police to prevent Jane being returned to her guardians.

McGuire is subsequently able to establish his innocence and permanently remove Jane from the custody of her guardians who had been defrauding her.

Short subjects for the Christmas program include the latest cartoon from the "Our Gang" series. It is titled, "Our Gang Follies of 1936." In addition there will be a Christmas cartoon in color, special scenic and late interpretive news.

Gene Stratton-Porter's, "Freckles" will be shown for the last time tonight.

"The Rainmakers" with Wheeler and Woolsey, plays Friday and Saturday. The story centers around the desperate efforts of the beam workers of Lima Junction to obtain moisture for their parched crops.

The "Rainmakers" are sent for, and there immediately begins a succession of storms—dust storms, hail storms, snow storms, and heat storms—with storms of merriment topping the wild confusion.

Saturday night two subjects of interest will be offered: Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's adventure info "Little America," and James Dunn in the Vina Delmar story, "Bad Boy."

"Powder Smoke Range," the bargain night offering for Tuesday, is a Western opus in which ten noted stars of the range are cast in prominent roles. Harry Carey, Hoot Gibson, Bob Steele, Tom Tyler, Quinn Williams and William Farnum head the list.
