Dionne Quints Are Stars of Feature Starting Sunday

"Reunion" Has Famous Babies Headlined; Week's Bill Contains Variety

Charlie Chan meets his match at last in "Charlie Chan at the Opera," playing Saturday at the Catlow theatre, in which the wily Chinese sleuth faces the most dangerous opponent of his career.

Warner Oland, of course, plays Chan, with Boris Karloff co-starred as the king of terror. The supporting cast includes Keye Luke, Charlotte Henry, Thomas Beck and Margaret Irving.

The Dionne quintuplets have a "role" all their own, and it's becoming quite a famous one. It isn't a line of chatter (though they have one of those, too), but a plain ordinary clothesline from which, in simple dignity, are suspended their dresses, shirts, sleepers, socks and other garments.

This clothesline, clearly visible from the outside of the six-foot wire fence that encloses the celebrated Dafoe hospital in Callander, Ontario, is the most photographed object among all those at which the thousands of daily visitors level their cameras. Dr. Dafoe, nurses and guards are also good game for amateur photographers.

A vast amount of home camera film was used recently in photographing Jean Hersholt, Rochelle Hudson, Helen Vinson, Slim Summerville, Robert Kent and other members of the cast of "Reunion," coming Sunday and Monday to the Catlow theatre, which was made at the Quint's nursery with Cecile, Marie, Emelie, Yvonne and Annette in starring roles.

The "pixilated" sisters aren't so "pixilated" now.

The pair, Margaret Seddon and Margaret McWade, who appear in Paramount's "Let's Make a Million," with Edward Everett Horton and Charlotte Wynters, and which comes to the Catlow theatre Tuesday, are still cast as sisters—but they are also a first-class pair of menaces.

Opposed to Horton, who wishes to use his soldier's bonus to get married, they try to get him to invest his money in a statue to Uncle Ezra. Not content with this villainy, they spy on neighbors, faint conveniently to win their point and generally make a nightmare of Horton's otherwise reasonably placid existence in the picture.

Double-featured with "Let's Make a Million" Tuesday night is "Fugitive in the Sky," starring Warren Hull, who plays the role of an intrepid young reporter who captures a "killer."

All the roisterous color and excitement of life in the great lumber camps of the north woods is brought to the screen in "Come and Get It!" Samuel Goldwyn's production of Edna Ferber's greatest novel, which comes to the screen of the Catlow theatre for three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with Edward Arnold, Joie McCrea and Frances Farmer.

This powerful story from the pen of the author of "Cimarron," "So Big," and "Show Boat" offers Arnold his greatest role as Barney Glasgow, the ambitious chore boy who became a great lumber baron.

Fishing Licenses for 1937 on Sale

A. C. Burandt, village clerk, announced that 1937 state fishing licenses have been received this week and devotees of the piscatorial arts may now make their purchases. He also reported that the sale of 1937 village tags has been increasing.

To-date, 264 licenses have been purchased for pleasure cars, 35 for trucks, 3 dealers', and 3 taxi. No police action has been started yet.

The sale of dog licenses has been the poorest of any. Mr. Burandt reported, only 15 tags having been sold.

"Oh, Please—Don't Sit on That Chair!"

Hardly a home without one . . . the chair with the shaky leg and broken springs that Uncle Henry broke when he sat on it, back in 1929. (He was heavier then.) The whole family knows about it, but for eight years it has kept its place in the living room . . . a dubious decoration, a constant menace to the unsuspecting guest.
