Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Hagenjos, 544 Division street, and daughter were returning from Chicago when a car cutting in front of them forced them to the curb near the Old Peoples Home at Arlington Heights. Four men alighted from the machine and ordered Mr. and Mrs. Hagenjos to get out of their car. Mrs. Hagenjos pleaded that a child was asleep in the rear seat to which one of the intruders answered "that the child would not be hurt." Instead of forcing the occupants out, the men climbed into the car, it was reported, and the car was driven northwest on the highway while the robbers ordered the Barrington people to turn over their money and jewelry, it was reported.

Mrs. Hagenjos had taken her coin purse from out of her large purse slipping the latter under a newspaper on the floor. The coin purse was taken by the robbers. Mr. Hagenjos' watch was also confiscated but was given back to him when he declared that it had been a graduation present from his mother.

The robbers had planned to confiscate the automobile "to use for two or three more stick-up jobs that night," but Mr. Hagenjos convinced them it was in poor running order.

The car was stopped near the viaduct. As the gasoline indicator showed very little motor fuel left, in the tank, one of the robbers returned a coin to Mr. Hagenjos so that he could buy gasoline. After that he advised him regarding the doctor's orders.

The largest meeting ever attended by the Lake County Tuberculosis association was held at Karcher hotel, Waukegan, Friday, Feb. 12.

The following members were elected by the board of directors to serve for a period of three years:

Mrs. Barney Treger, Antioch; Mrs. Austin Niblack, West Des Moines; D. S. Libertyville; Mrs. H. Smith, Libertyville; Mrs. Jenny Gosland, Benton; David Van Pelt, Newport; Mrs. Mabel McCullough, Warren; Mrs. Herbert Handelman, Grant; Mrs. Almon Rockenbach, Cuba; W. Lockhead, Vernon; Mrs. F. B. Hitchcock, Shields; Mrs. Myron M. Morrissey, Libertyville; Mrs. Helen A. Bourne, Deerfield; W. E. Hall, Waukegan.

Following the business meeting Dr. Wilson R. Abbott talked on the "Responsibility of the County in the Control of Tuberculosis."

"Tuberculosis, today," says Dr. Abbott, "is still as serious a problem when we first began this campaign. One of the greatest problems we have today is the control of contact cases."

"The nurse's part is in the control of this disease is very important," says Dr. Abbott. "Her work is to have the patient ready for the doctor; to advise him regarding the doctor's orders."

20 Million American Citizens Pledge Their Support Against Hoarding of Country's Money

Through their national organizations, twenty million American citizens have pledged their support of the nation-wide movement to end hoarding. State committees are already being formed in practically all states and a national campaign is being formulated to acquaint all people with the facts which mark hoarding of money not only as unpatriotic but as an injury to the personal and community welfare of American citizens. The state committees are being appointed and representatives from each of the national organizations participating in the movement, such as the Federation of Labor, the American Legion, Lions, Rotary, and Kiwanis clubs, farm and fraternal organizations, women's organizations and many others, are to be selected. The state committees will work closely with local committees throughout their respective states.

The national campaign will employ the use of all educational agencies to reach the American public; the public press, platform speeches, the radio, the pulpit, and where necessary, a house to house canvass will be made and personal contact used.

Proves Successful

The local application of the campaign against hoarding is the direct objective of the movement, and has been worked effectively in many communities, and to a large extent the associations participating will exercise their own initiative and formulate their own plans to meet particular local situations. Lions clubs through a reconstruction plan known as the Aurora plan have been able to salvage the financial structure of many communities when the entire club membership has acted promptly to gain the support of every resident of the community in the adopted plan.

Many cases of hoarding of an extreme nature have been brought to light, one involving the sum of $800,000 which was withdrawn from account and placed in a safety deposit vault on moment's notice.

Another case concerns a school boy who became the subject of investigation because he kept up a continual squirming at his school desk. It was discovered that his parents had seven $8,000.00 in bills to his underwear.

The first material evidence of the gathering momentum of the anti-hoarding sentiment was received at the white house immediately following the conference during which the campaign was initiated and came in the form of a telegram reading:

"First effort to stop hoarding reported from Tottenville, Staten Island. Yesterday John Massey digging claims on

Annual Banquet Will Be Held Wednesday, March 2

The annual Chamber of Commerce banquet will be held Wednesday evening, March 2, the board of directors of the club decided at a recent meeting. As the banquet is one of the outstanding undertakings of the organization, it will probably be attended by a large number of men and women and will of necessity be held in one of the larger halls of the village.

The exact place and the program for the evening will be announced later. M. H. Schreiber is chairman of the entertainment committee. C. E. Billings is chairman of the ticket training station.

No interruption of service was caused in any of the communities where current is supplied by the Waukegan plant.

Theodore Blech, district manager of the Public Service Co. at Waukegan, explained that all of the equipment in the yard surrounding the transformer is automatic and is surrounded by a high wire fence. No man ever enters the enclosure except to make repairs. As no one had been in the place, it is believed that one of the transformers suddenly went bad causing a short circuit that ignited the transformer.

The exact place and the program for the evening will be announced later. M. H. Schreiber is chairman of the entertainment committee. C. E. Billings is chairman of the ticket training station.

The members of the party were returning to Woodstock from Elgin, where they had attended a festival, when a Buick sedan followed to be the same one as used in the other hold-ups, pulled up alongside the machine and with drawn guns, the bandits ordered them to stop. The party at first tried to elude the bandits by driving their car to a stop after the bandits had shot and punctured one of their tires. After obtaining their loot, the gunmen jumped into their car and turned around, sped south on Highway 10.

The victims reported the hold up to officers at Woodstock when they arrived there but no trace could be found of the bandits.

Ask Local Housewives to Join Pioneer Meal Plan

The Barrington Relief Committee has been requested by the Joint Emergency Relief organization of Cook County to enlist local support in the Pioneer Meal project.

The Pioneer Meal project proposes that each housewife serve a nutritious but inexpensive meal once a week for ten weeks, laying aside the amount of money saved on each pioneer meal.

This money laid aside from the savings on ten meals would be dedicated for relief work according to the plan. Persons interested in joining the pioneer meal movement will contact M. H. Schreiber at the Public Service Co.

Bandits Hold Up Barrington Folks Near The Heights

Two Barrington people held up highway robbers at the edge of Arlington Heights last Friday evening, defeating their assailants in a struggle without much inconvenience except the loss of a few dollars and the natural panic feeling which would accompany such an experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Hagenjos, 544 Division street, and daughter were returning from Chicago when a car cutting in front of them forced them to the curb near the Old Peoples Home at Arlington Heights. Four men alighted from the machine and ordered Mr. and Mrs. Hagenjos to get out of their car. Members are to report to the police department and then to the Chamber of Commerce to find out what the police are doing in the community, it is believed.

4 Gas Stations Reported Robbed Thursday Night

Bandits Hold Up Montgomery Station Getting $74, Ring Coat

Eight customers in the Montgomery Service station, restaurant, and gas bar, were held up and robbed last Thursday evening by five highway thugs who circled through Barrington, Dundee, Crystal Lake, and Belvidere robbing four stations in quick succession.

The five bandits stopped at the station at about 9:30 p.m. and ordered coffee, it was reported. While the order was being filled, the men drew guns and forced eight people back into another room, robbing them of their money, jewelry, and an overcoat from one person.

The customers reported losing a total of $74.25 in addition to one overcoat, a diamond ring, and small articles. When the "job" was finished, the robbers left in a Buick sedan. It is believed they went to Dundee, where a gas station was robbed later in the evening. In Belvidere and in Crystal Lake, gas stations were held up and robbed. The reports from Dundee and from Crystal Lake stated that $18 was the loot from one place and $35 from the other.

Reports of the series of hold-ups were issued to state and city police throughout northern Illinois who have been on the lookout for the gunmen but have failed to find any clews which would lead to their arrest. James R. Bailey, local state highway patrol, in reporting the hold up to a Review reporter, stated that in case of further molestations from the gunmen he could be reached by telephoning Barrington 442.

Bandits Rob Motorists

The hunt for the five bandits received renewed vigor Tuesday morning after it was reported that a party of four motorists traveling on Highway 19, four miles southeast of Woodstock were robbed of $80 in cash and change.

Members of the party were returning to Woodstock from Elgin, where they had attended a festival, when a Buick sedan followed to be the same one as used in the other hold-ups, pulled up alongside the machine and with drawn guns, the bandits ordered them to stop. The party at first tried to elude the bandits by driving their car to a stop after the bandits had shot and punctured one of their tires.

Committee Will Seek Odd Jobs for Unemployed

An opportunity to have odd jobs done by men not regularly employed—nearly three hours of work for $1—will be offered every family in Barrington in the near future.

A committee of six women, members of the Barrington Woman's club, will call every home in town listing odd jobs for unemployed men. Each family will be asked to contribute $1 for which work will be done at the rate of 35 cents an hour. This "employment exchange" hopes to find at least some work for every man in the community who is at present out of work and to establish contacts through which many men may find more employment later.

The woman's club committee, which is working in conjunction with the Barrington Relief committee, includes the following: Mrs. A. C. Lines, Mrs. Earl Virilen, Mrs. Jack Welch, Mrs. Sanford Rieke, Mrs. Herman Wentz, and Mrs. Ketel.

This plan was announced by the Relief committee Wednesday. The report of the Relief committee for January, given out Wednesday, revealed that $650.45 had been spent for relief work during the month. Thirty-three families were assisted.

The itemized report showed that $65.00 had been spent for food, $27.40 for milk, $60.12 for fuel, $6 for telephone, $1.50 for medicine, $1.05 for clothing, $2.50 for laundry, $1.05 for gasoline for a gasoline stove, and $2 for lodging.

The plan has been endorsed by the Waukegan police department.

Open doors to left and right showed dark linoleum floors; a gas range stood oddly in what would have been the drawing room; opposite, two long kitchen tables covered with dozens of little square pans filled a possible library. A strong, pungent odor floated out of a back room, from which an elderly man in a black rubber apron peered curiously at them, glass pipkin in one hairy hand.

As they stood staring about them, steps sounded on the stairway and Doctor Schaffner came down, leaning frankly over the banister to get quick sight of them.

"Why! It's not—What do you want?" he said abruptly, striding toward them.

"Doctor Wentzel," said his guest, in a pleasant low voice. "I found that Miss Lingstrom could get off last night, after all, and some friends of mine were coming down this way, so they brought us. I thought you'd be pleased if we made a little time."

"I've seen him once, sir."

"But not Schaffner?"

"No, sir, never."

"All right. Remember your names. And mine. You might just say 'doctor'—it's easier."

"Yes, sir. I'll remember."

The time of the Roman occupation of Britain, the knowledge of dial construction had advanced greatly. A most interesting example, dividing the day into twelve parts, was found, done in mosaic, on a tessellated pavement in a Roman villa in the Isle of Wight, in occupation about the third or fourth century. Hundreds of tourists go to Brading to see it. There is also a piece of a broken Roman sundial in the museum of Chester, which divided the day and night into 24 hours.

Ireland possessed dials of the seventh or eighth century, some of which can still be seen. They are on upright stone pillars, with lines on them to divide the day into four parts.

Fruit of the East
In size the lychee is about that of a strawberry or small English walnut. The shape more nearly resembles that of the strawberry, however. When fresh the skin has the toughness of a thick-skinned grape. It is eaten like a grape, too—the pulp being removed after the skin is broken. When dried, though, the skin snaps open with the brittleness of our paper-shelled almonds. The dried fruit resembles a raisin.

Sundials Long in Use as Recorders of Time

The sundial of the Chaldean astronomer Berossus, who lived about 340 B. C., remained in use for centuries, and four specimens have been found in Italy, one of which was unearthed at Pompeii in 1762.

The Romans obtained dials from the Greeks, which divided the day into equal portions. Papirius Caesar placed a sundial in the court of the temple of Quirinus, in 203 B. C., and during the first Punic war a sundial was captured by Venerius at Cumae, in Sicily, and set up in the forum in 203 B. C.

By the time of the Roman occupation of Britain, the knowledge of dial construction had advanced greatly. A most interesting example, dividing the day into twelve parts, was found, done in mosaic, on a tessellated pavement in a Roman villa in the Isle of Wight, in occupation about the third or fourth century. Hundreds of tourists go to Brading to see it. There is also a piece of a broken Roman sundial in the museum of Chester, which divided the day and night into 24 hours.

Ireland possessed dials of the seventh or eighth century, some of which can still be seen. They are on upright stone pillars, with lines on them to divide the day into four parts.

Father and Son Banquet Enjoyed by Many

The Father and Son Banquet which was sponsored by the Brotherhood of St. Paul church last Thursday evening was very successful; nearly 100 guests being present to enjoy the dinner at 6:30 o'clock and the address given by Rev. Charles R. Drusel.

Rev. Drusel spoke on the relationship of father and son; taking for his subject, "There Is a Lad Here."

The speaker said some very fine things about sons as he did also, of fathers and then quoted the following memorable lines, long ago spoken to Alexander Hamilton by his mother: "Remember always that you are to be a great man, not merely a successful one; your mind and will are capable of all things. Unless you identify yourself with great principles of the world you will be a failure."

A quartet of young women entertained with a group of delightful songs. The banquet was served by the Woman's Union of the church.

Sawyer Bible Class Is Entertained

Members of the Sawyer Bible class and the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Rieke, 337 W. Main street, Monday evening. The party was in honor of Mrs. W. A. Evans who, with her family, will leave Barrington in the near future. The thirty guests enjoyed games and an old-fashioned spelling contest. One interesting feature of the program was a bundle of notes written by the guests to the honor guest, expressing many reasons for which she will be missed. Mrs. Evans was the recipient of a lovely gift, a token of appreciation for her splendid service in the church work. The hostess was assisted by several members of the church organizations.

These islands, 1,200 miles southeast of Australia in the Pacific ocean have a total area of 104,751 square miles. North Island is the scene of considerable volcanic activity.

On the eastern coast are situated nearly all the fertile plains, most of the population, towns and harbors. There are many beautiful scenes throughout these islands with their wild grandeur, enormous trees, lakes, mountains, caves and torrential rivers.

lands for 900 years. About 140 years ago the British Empire started to colonize and take possession and now New Zealand is governed much the same as the Dominion of Canada.

The climate is temperate and rainfall is abundant. Cattle and sheep raising form an important part of the industries.

Miss Bloomfield touched on many amusing features of the country. She told how the government-owned railroads, telegraphs, telephones, etc., being poorly managed, afford inconvenience. The trains have no diners so many stops are necessary to satisfy the Britisher with tea. Telephone booths are stationed every few blocks as our mail boxes are.

Shades of the Past
It has been estimated that in approximately 1800 generations since B.C. 2,000,000,000,000 people have lived in the world. It is impossible to state, even as an estimate, the number of human inhabitants of the earth since its creation, more accurately, since the principles of human life, since this point, have not been definitely dated.

Spitting as Method of Aggression or Defense
Early legends of the dragon's fiery breath, be it a monster of the sea, land, air or all three, may have been inspired, some zoologists believe, by the tendency of many living creatures to resort to spitting as an act of aggression.

A type of beetle known as bombardier, common in some districts of England, expels a volatile liquid that, exploding, leaves a tiny cloud of smoke—actually a fiery breath—to confuse its enemies. Many snakes eject thin streams of venom from their fangs and the serpentine ringhals of South Africa have developed proficiency in aiming at a victim's eyes. Newly confined reptiles often cover the glass panes of their pens with venom intended for passers-by.

Several species of fish rise to the surface in aquaria and spout at visitors, possibly in an effort to attract the attention of those who have food. The archer fish found in the fresh water of the Malay archipelago, spouts water at insects resting on floating twigs. The jet knocks the insects within reach. Among land animals the house cat's "purr," accompanied by a swipe with extended claws, seems to be its natural reaction to the presence of a dog.—New York Times Magazine.

Compass Needle Never Quite Without Motion

Ask the next dozen people you meet where the compass needle points, and some of them may reply, that it indicates true north. Actually there are very few places in which it does so. The Magnetic pole, to which the needle points, is some distance from the North pole. In Great Britain the compass needle shows a direction considerably to the west of true north. Every year the error will become a little less, until it is quite small. Then the needle will begin to move westward again, the error growing and growing as the years pass. Columbus, Drake, and other early users of the magnetic compass must have been sorely puzzled at times by its antics, for in some parts of the world the deviation, as it is called, is enormous. Curiously enough, the compass needle does not remain quite steady at any place during the 24 hours. It swings a very small amount, first in one direction and then in the other, each day. If you look at a compass needle carefully you will see that it has a slight downward tilt. This inclination varies slightly during the day and night.

Character and Climate

Racial character depends largely on climate. Where the climate is stimulating it is easy for people to be industrious. They are more likely to be inventive, to make improvements, and to carry out reforms.

They do not necessarily have more ideas but they have the energy to put the ideas in action, says Prof. C. V. P. Young of Cornell university.

Habits of life and occupations, and even social practices and philosophies of life, are largely determined by climate and geographical conditions. In the Far North nomadic life is necessary, because hunting and fishing grounds must be changed. Family ties are not likely to bind strongly. Families are small and in the precarious subsistence there is little pity for those who cannot support themselves.

In the tropics life is too easy and the scurvy labor yields abundantly. Families are large and the parents are known to be the proper parents. The word "parent" means of a distant country, which are centuries old, have the union of the best horses. The horse can be gay such as cattle.

Climb Up to Fiesole
When in Florence, climb the hill to Little Fiesole, above the Arno, says a traveler. Watch as you go along on the right for the monastery of St. Domenico, for that is where Fra Angelico once lived. Look out also for Boccaccio's villa, although its American owner will probably not let you in. Read again Browning's "Andrea del Sarto," for it has scenes of this place. Visit the Villa Bondi for its "Dante" memories, and then go on to the little Franciscan monastery on the top, behind the cathedral. If you are looking for curios which the Franciscan missionaries have sent from many lands. Rest of all, look for its bird refuge, where the feathered songsters keep the monks in mind of St. Francis.

Fixing His Size
Tommy who will soon be three years old, is proud of how much he has grown since he's finished all his spinach every evening. For weeks now his song has been, "I'm a big boy; I'm not a yiddish boy any more, I'm not."

Attempting to take advantage of his special weakness one day last week, his mother said: "Now you're a big boy, Tommy, and you're not going to cry when mamma washes your head this afternoon, are you?"

Tommy considered the proposal for a moment and then, placing the palm of his hand on the top of his head as if to press himself down, he retorted: "No, I'm not really a big boy, because I'm away down to here."—New York Sun.

Conscience Fund

The first contribution to the conscience fund was made in 1811. Money received for this fund is not carried on the books of the Treasury department itself, but is listed as miscellaneous receipts. The amounts sent in range from 2 cents for a person who failed to put a stamp on a letter when mailed to several thousand dollars from persons who smuggled goods into the United States without paying import duty. Usually the sums sent are small. No special use is made of the money; it simply goes into the general fund of the department.

"Nationality" and "Race"

Nationality of course should not be confused with race. For example, included in American nationality are representatives of almost all races. The Caucasian or white races include most of the European peoples except the Turks, Magyars and Poles who are at least partly of Mongolian origin; the white people of the American continents, Australia, South Africa and other lands colonized by whites; the Hindus, Persians, Arabs, Hebrews and some of the races of northern Africa.

STARTING UP THE HILL

In every mail this newspaper receives enough neatly mimeographed sheets of paper, which, if placed side by side and end to end, would paper a fair sized room.

Each of these sheets is supposed to be disguised as news but the disguise is very thin, so thin in fact that even the office boy can tell that hopeful manufacturers are seeking thereby to obtain valuable advertising without paying for it. And so the huge waste paper barrel fills rapidly.

Occasionally these mendicant "advertisers" have a real pearl hidden away in a labyrinth of words. So it was this morning for at the very end of some six pages of closely typewritten "puffs" received from a tire manufacturer appeared the following paragraph:

"In 1930 according to statistics, 20 per cent more tire mileage was consumed than was sold and approximately the same was true in 1931. We feel, therefore, that this vacuum must soon be filled and that we can look forward to a considerably greater volume of business in 1932."

Right here, in those few words, is the history of this depression part of the real reason for it, and a prediction of business recovery based on a sound premise.

Just insert the word "clothes" or "shoes," or "automobiles," or "furniture," or "building materials" in place of "tires" in that paragraph omitting the word "mileage" or substituting one more appropriate, and you have the correct picture so far as those other industries are concerned.

Retail stocks in all lines are at low points. Goods in the hands of consumers are being used to the last ounce of good but must wear out eventually.

Roger W. Babson, noted statistician and economist, points out that as soon as retailers are convinced that commodity prices have reached the low mark, stocks will be replenished and the wheels of industry will begin to turn. When industry becomes active and wages are paid new buying power is created and we start up hill toward another prosperity peak. Economically speaking, this is the gloomiest portent and the brightest future that we have faced in many, many months:

Effects of Fluctuating Prices

Proposals for currency inflation are now the fashion and their name is legion. Nor is this surprising. Commodity prices in the United States have fallen off 30 per cent in the last five years. And the sole benefactors of this movement have been the recipients of fixed incomes. Satisfied men, if they have not yet been forced to accept cutbacks or surrender their jobs, have been able to purchase increasing quantities of goods with their salary checks.

Bondholders and the owners of mortgages, if their debts have not yet been forced into bankruptcy, have found their interest receipts increasingly valuable in terms of goods. But these groups constitute a minority of our population. Falling prices have increased the difficulties of borrowers, be they farmers, industrial corporations or governments, for they must take payment in dollars which are harder to get. They have forced business liquidations which have entailed serious losses and, by restricting industrial operations, have thrown millions of laborers out of employment.

Naturally, everybody who does not have a relatively fixed income would like to see prices rise again. Rising prices would decrease the real incomes of bondholders and salaried men, because they would raise the cost of living. But everybody else in the community would stand to gain. Businessmen, encouraged by the prospect of profit, would resume their operations. Labor would find increasing employment. Borrowers would find it easier to repay their creditors. Capital value would gradually be restored to higher levels, and long-term credits which are now frozen would again become liquid. This is a movement, then, which the majority of people would welcome with enthusiasm.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

PROSPERITY NEWS

BY H. L. WILLIAMSON
Secretary, Illinois Press Assn.
Springfield, Illinois

State-wide activities of the American Legion in Illinois have made possible new jobs for more than 6,000 employed during the past month, according to Frederick J. Ashley, chairman of the Legion's state unemployment committee. Aside from the 3,000 men and women placed in Cook county, conditions in other sections of the state are decidedly improved.

Employment at the Caterpillar Tractor company at Peoria has increased 40 per cent since August. The increase in employment is due to the four-day-a-week schedule and increased production.

Actual construction of the $3,000,000 Federal Hospital for Defective Delinquents has begun in Springfield, Mo. Excavation for the main building has started. The work will require about sixteen months.

Officials of the Chicago and North Western railroad have announced that 500 men will soon be called back to work at its locomotive shops in Chicago.

There are about ten miles of work in Franklin county. These mines average a payroll of approximately $25,000 every two weeks, or a combined monthly payroll of about $500,000.

The Granite City enameling plant of the National Enameling & Stamping company is running three eight-hour shifts, seven days a week. According to present orders, that schedule can be maintained two or three months longer, officials state, with the possibility of further extension if business continues picking up.

Work has begun on a new $100,000 two-story structure which will be the headquarters of the W. T. Grant company, Rockford. The present Grant store which is just west of the proposed new structure will be entirely remodeled and the new and old places will be merged into one.

LIBRARY NEWS

The library will be closed Monday, Feb. 22, because of Washington's birthday anniversary.

New books that have recently been added to the library are:

"Gallows' Orchard," Spencer; "Joseph and His Brothers," Freeman; "Mr. and Mrs. Pennington Young"; "Lords of Love," Parish; "Honeyflow," Williams; "Told at the Explorers' Club" and "When Washington Was Young," Murphy; "The Piccaniny Twins," Perkins; "Westward Passage," Barnes. The first two books were gifts.

Members of the Bookworm Club had Mr. Watson from the public school, as their guest speaker Wednesday. His talk on the types of books he read when he was their age was greatly enjoyed. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in planning a Washington party that will be held February 24 for the Bookworm members. About 25 members attended the meeting Wednesday.

Story hour on Saturday at 2 is a very exciting time these days. Come and hear of the travels of Pinocchio and how naughty the Piccaniny Twins are. Library pins are still being given out to those who attend five times.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By National Editorial Association
(Special to the Review)

WITH PRACTICALLY every worth-while agency bending its energies to aid economic recovery, the natural query arises "Who and what is holding the bond back?" Congress, to the surprise of its critics, has given its best thoughts and side-stepped partisan matters to provide essential aid. Industrial and commercial groups have pulled manfully at the oar. The banker, on the other hand, once respected whether deservedly or not as a fount of business wisdom, has steadily lost ground with the public. It seems that the banker has fallen from the high pedestal he occupied in various communities and is blamed for the depression. Of course, it is unfair to the average banker to lay this responsibility to his door but the public is not inclined to delve deeper into underlying causes. The inescapable fact remains—no anti-hoarding campaign, or general business recovery will succeed until bankers see the light and re-establish public confidence in the banker as business counsellor.

SENATOR HIRAM BINGHAM, representative of Connecticut in the Senate, is undoubtedly a sincere advocate of the "wets" cause. Yet, his blunder tactics in the face of sound advice from other senators of similar views undoubtedly helped the "drys" more than all the best efforts of the Anti-Saloon League and kindred bodies. Bingham has been styled as "high-lin" by his colleagues. He insisted on forcing a test vote on an insignificant measure at a time when the "wets" were not in a position to muster their strength. His poor strategy was regarded as the worst blow to the moderation program of many years. Bingham has gained popularity for his ineptitude. It will be recalled that the senator officially reprimanded him for breaking faith in smuggling a tarpaulin lobbyist into executive committee hearings. Obviously, the leaders do not entrust Bingham with much responsibility for important bills.

THE HCB-BB over the presidential nominees of both parties provides only casual interest among the men and women who make their living in the great game of politics. Nearly four months ahead of the actual balloting, statements from candidates or their friends are regarded as trial balloons—sent up to determine the drift of the wind. The anti-Hoover republincs plot along taking pot-shots at the president, the carbals are staked against them next June. Alfred E. Smith's statement has not cleared the haze over his real intentions. Speaker Garner's boom is destined presidential timber seems to confine itself to the Hearst press. The actual work of rounding up delegations proceeds without fanfare. It is too early to count noses as many delegates have not yet been selected.

THE BI-PARTISAN bill to expand credit facilities will probably be enacted into law within a few days. It would be a faring and foohardy legislator who would oppose any general agreement on the part of the administration and the legislative branch especially designed to fortify banking institutions against ever-increasing failures. The various measures for unemployment relief are obviously not "preferred" legislation. There is no doubt that relief bills have now become a football of politics and therein lies the danger to the distressed groups of citizens. The senate, having disposed of one phase of the unemployment controversy, must await an adjustment with the house of representatives. These relief proposals will have their flare-backs in the primaries and elections. In states where the present incumbents are confronted with inter-party fights for renomination the votes this week will probably bring newcomers to the next congress in 1933.

LEGISLATION of the utmost importance to our national life is now pending before the congress. Oddly enough, the rank and file of citizens do not give these economic and financial matters the attention that is accorded an ordinary ball game. Only the more thoughtful folks realize that in various measures of unemployment relief and liberalization of credit facilities are interwoven our immediate present and above all the entire future. The concern of some thinkers is directed at the country's prospects in event current plans for general recovery fall short of the mark. The most promising aspect of the whole situation, politically and economically, is the tardy awakening of the national legislators to the gravity of the nation's needs.

Radio Advertising Banned — Regulation of commercial broadcasting in Europe, with a few significant exceptions, is unfavorable to the development of this form of publicity, according to a bulletin made public Feb. 2 by the department of commerce.

Despite a variety of governmental restrictions and natural economic limitations, there are, however, some opportunities for exploitation of American products and services by radio.

Commercial programs are the exception not the rule, and the possibilities of effective coverage of the continent by broadcast advertising are limited.

In some countries commercial broadcasting is definitely prohibited, and in others the restrictions upon ownership of radio sets are such as to disconcert their general use, the bulletin says.

Traffic Lights in Cars — Individual red and green traffic lights inside of automobiles and controlled from a central station.

That, according to the Chicago Motor club, is the latest automotive innovation, and is now in process of development. The method of operation recently was described by an electrical engineer speaking before the American Institute of the city of New York. The individual traffic lights will receive their impulses from an electronic tube, a device which "handles" the electron, smallest particle of matter.

The motor club added that the engineer was not reported to have solved the traffic signals on an individual basis for pedestrians, and pointed out that this phase of the invention seems to be as important as that dealing solely with automobiles.

Ladies of Long Ago

The ladies to whom the treasured diary of Anne of Cleves belongs are as soft as silk and shimmering with a sheen of the finest gold. In ancient Spanish romances the bath is either pure gold, or definitely fair. In ancient Germany, Gretchen had to have "fair hair, like gold; long, bright, and curly."

There is a famous description of a French lady of the Thirteenth century. "Her hair had the brilliance of gold, and was twisted into ribbons and curlis"—so evidently permanent waving was known.
