Select May 7 Date for Junior Senior Banquet at E.T.H.

Ela Township School Notes Compiled Weekly by the Pupils

The date of the Junior-Senior banquet is set for May 7. The committees which will make preparations for the banquet have been appointed. They are as follows: entertainment, Gladys Sturtz, Vivian Unkenstock, Richard Beckman; invitations, Emma Tins, Ethel Krueger, Ruth Schwaner; food committee, Violet Unkenstock, Pearl Sonne, James Liska; decoration, Jack Lemm, Caroline Schwaner, Edward Peterson, Gladys Kropp.

The freshmen class is now studying electricity in general science.

The sophomores had no assignment in English for last Friday. We wondered if Miss Hinchliff forgot? We'll say she didn't. That big test she had assigned days ago, which none of us remembered, certainly had to come and spoil the rest of the day.

The junior girls played the sophomore girls Monday in the basketball tournament. The score will be announced later.

Ethel Rudinski was absent from school the last three days. Last week Earl Kane and Hermie Grever were absent from school.

On Monday, February 22, the senior girls won a hard fought game of basketball from the sophomores. The sophomore team is at least one team which can scare the seniors.

The freshmen and sophomore boys played an interesting basketball game. The score was 18 to 12 in favor of the sophomores.

We hear from friends of Ruth Johnson's that she is ill. Hurry up, Ruth, we'd all like to see you back again!

On Thursday morning the Sewing and Animal Husbandry classes, consisting mostly of sophomores, had the good luck to get out of studying for once. They saw a moving picture on the construction of sewing machines.

On Wednesday, the boy coached branches attracted every one on the bus, especially when Elton Sturtz kept reminding us of them, with her phrase, "Isn't it pretty?" every few minutes.

Circuit Court Calendar for March Term Smaller

Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county Circuit Court has scheduled 140 cases of divorce, separate maintenance and annulments off of the docket since the October term of court. It is revealed with the issuance of the calendar for the March term.

Today there are 148 of these three types of domestic cases pending, and on October 5, when the term of court was opened, there were 281.

At present there are 25 divorces pending, 20 bills for separate maintenance and three annulments. In October there had been 248 divorces cases, 29 separate maintenance actions and four annulments.

This means that he has heard more than 140 cases, because there have been a number of divorces filed that failed to get on the October calendar that were disposed of before the March docket was printed. A number of couples decided to try domestic life over again and had the cases stricken by their lawyers.

In addition Judge Dady, through keeping to the bench almost daily, has been able to cut off a number of criminal, civil and chancery cases until the docket now is reduced from 207 to 280 pages for a saving of 27 printed pages.

To Urge County Teacher Salary Cut at Meeting

Steps toward a cut in pay for all elementary school teachers and a slash in the general expense of the schools will be made at a meeting of all school boards from the 88 elementary schools of Lake county at a mass meeting to be held next Saturday evening, Mar. 12, at the Grayslake community house.

Resolutions for a sweeping wage reduction will be made by officials of the Central Lake County Taxpayers' association, headed by Everett Davis of Round Lake and other taxpayers groups, who have called the general mass meeting of school officials.

While no fixed amount has been decided upon, a reduction of ten per cent or more on all salaries of teachers in elementary school will be asked, it was reported.

The Really Happy

There is only one kind of happiness worth while or possible—that which comes by growth. This can be achieved by any human being. Some have the opinion that people who merely vegetate are truly happy. Such people are pictured as being free from the hurry and bustle of the more complex civilization. It may be a pleasing picture, but it is not true. The men who achieve real happiness are those who grow, feeding on the best, exercising their powers, and pushing upward against the opposing forces—F. Exchange.

Had His Laugh, but Not the Last One

By JACK WOODFORD

THE little woman hurried along, glancing furtively from right to left. The street was a nesting place for shadows.

The smooth-faced man, luxuriating in the shadow cast by a building corner, as another might have luxuriated in sunlight, watched her interestedly. When she drew opposite the shadowy nook he had selected, he suddenly stepped out upon the walk before her.

"Oh," she gasped, standing paralyzed with fright. It was not, however, a figure to frighten one, ordinarily. One might even have said that his twinkling eyes indicated a kindly disposition. True, there was a latent, almost ominous hint of muscular power in his heavy shoulders and stocky frame; but he was neatly dressed, and, in all outward respects, he appeared to be a gentleman.

"Did I startle you?" he asked, smiling. "I'm so sorry!" The hollow street of nesting shadows echoed back his words. She was breathing hard. Scrutinizing her with eyes which had become accustomed to the dark, he saw that she was about thirty or thirty-five; once, and not long ago, she must have been pretty. Clothes of good materials; but not flashy. Decently shod and decently gloved.

"You frightened me so," she got out at last, apparently reassured by the humble and contrite way he stood there, hat in hand. "You see," she went on, breathing more easily now. "I read in the paper today that Smiles Pete had escaped from jail; and this is his neighborhood you know. They say he's killed in this district alone, not less than—"

"Half a dozen men," smiled the man; "but never any women. There is no case on record of his having molested women, is there?"

"Well, no," she admitted; "but—"

"If you like, Ma'am," he said, with a calm, reassuring smile, "I'll walk with you to the street car, or wherever it is that you're going. It's rather late, and rather dark and lonely hereabouts."

"Oh thank you!" she returned, obviously relieved. "I'm going to the 'L' Came down here from where I live out on the North side, to visit my sister. Her baby's sick and her husband doesn't get in till late. He wanted to walk to the 'L' with me, but I wouldn't let him. My sister is much younger than I, and she gets frightened over a little thing like chicken pox."

"I made him stay right there with her and the poor little baby."

"I suppose," he said, making conversation agreeably, "that you've been married some time, and no longer fear such trivialities of family life as chicken pox?"

"Oh, no!" she said, with a little nervous, almost apologetic laugh. "I'm not married. Never been married. After all, it is bad, I suppose; chicken pox! But do you know, I lead such an uneventful life that such things sort of interest me. They're at least exciting. There's never anything happens in my life. Just uneventful day after uneventful day, at the apartment hotel where I live."

"A great many other unmarried ladies live there—and we just talk and talk, and go to the movies; most of the others have exciting things happen to them now and then; things they can tell about for months afterward. But me—well, I never have anything to tell. Nothing ever happens in my experience." He listened attentively, visualized her bare, uninteresting life. Chuckled a little to himself, mostly in sympathy. He was a bachelor; but plenty of interesting things filled his life. He had lots of places to go and things to do.

"Well, here we are," he remarked, as they reached the 'L' steps.

"It was ever so kind of you," she told him. "I don't know how to thank you. Usually I'm not afraid. But that Smiles Pete person—The way the newspapers talk about him!

"If I ever saw him Pd drop dead or fright."

He smiled and tipped his hat. "Oh, no, you wouldn't, Ma'am," he contradicted; "I'm Smiles Pete, and you haven't dropped dead at sight of me." He turned and walked rapidly off into the shadows, as though he were a man who loved shadows. And as he walked away from her, Detective Harry Watrous, of the gangster squad, chuckled to himself. At first he had been suspicious of her, and had stopped her for that reason. But she was far from the type he had expected that she might be. He pictured her arriving at the old mads' retreat with the biggest story ever heard there to tell. She'd be happy for months over what she would suppose was the adventure of her lifetime. Fortunately the newspapers had no pictures of Smiles Pete. Detective Watrous felt as happy as a Boy Scout is supposed to feel after his daily good deed.

And as she walked up the "L" steps, Smiles Pete's decoy—who had made herself up as a respectable woman, with extraordinary success, in order to get out and lure Detective Watrous away from the shadows where his presence prevented the issue of Smiles Pete from his hiding place near the street—also laughed.

Only Photosphere Seen When One Gazes at Sun

The scientists are introducing us to the sun. We never see the surface of the sun. When we look at it we see a layer of gas about 600 miles deep. This is called the photosphere, and lies just above the real surface of the body. It shines. On top of it is the chromosphere, that cannot be seen with the naked eye except during total eclipse. The third and top layer is the corona, magnificent beyond description. It completely surrounds both the photosphere and the chromosphere, and sometimes is twice as large as the sun itself.

We are chiefly interested in the sun as the source of our light and heat. Both of these come to us from the photosphere, the bottom layer of the three. What is boiling and burning under it we may imagine, but that is all. We know it is hot stuff, the hottest stuff in all creation so far as the world is concerned. If it would cease functioning we would be in darkness, and speedily frost and intense cold would put an end to all human activities. The ancients who worshipped the sun as the source of our blessings were not far astray. All they overlooked was the deity who gave it its photosphere!—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Betrothal Ring First Constituted a Pledge

The giving of a betrothal ring was an ancient Roman custom. The ring was originally probably a pledge that the contract would be fulfilled. It was at first made of iron, the change to gold coming about the second century, A. D. The ring was purely secular but received ecclesiastical sanction in the eleventh century, from which grew an elaborate betrothal ceremony. A good description of this is given in George Eliot's story, "Romola." Its more spiritual symbolism probably rose at this time, too, in the days of chivalry, when a finer attitude toward women began to develop. How the custom grew to the giving of a wedding ring can no longer be traced, but wedding rings were used in Shakespeare's day. In those times men as well as women wore both betrothal and wedding rings. The custom of putting the ring on the fourth finger of the left hand came from the belief that there was a nerve from there direct to the heart.

Mixed Figures

It is not always the merely slipshod writer who sets down mixed metaphors. Here are two specimens from the writings of professed literary critics, one of whom, at all events, was not a fastidious, Mark Pattison, in the first chapter of his autobiography, wrote: "Even at this day a country squire or rector, on landing with his cub under his wing in Oxford, finds himself as much at sea," etc. The other is from Mr. Gosse's book on the literature of the eighteenth century: "When he (Gibbon) was sailing on the deep waters of his theme, he proved himself a master in the craft of language." There is a double shuffle about the words italicized in the last passage, says the finder of this odd phrase, which is more irritating than the frank absurdities of the rector of Lincoln.

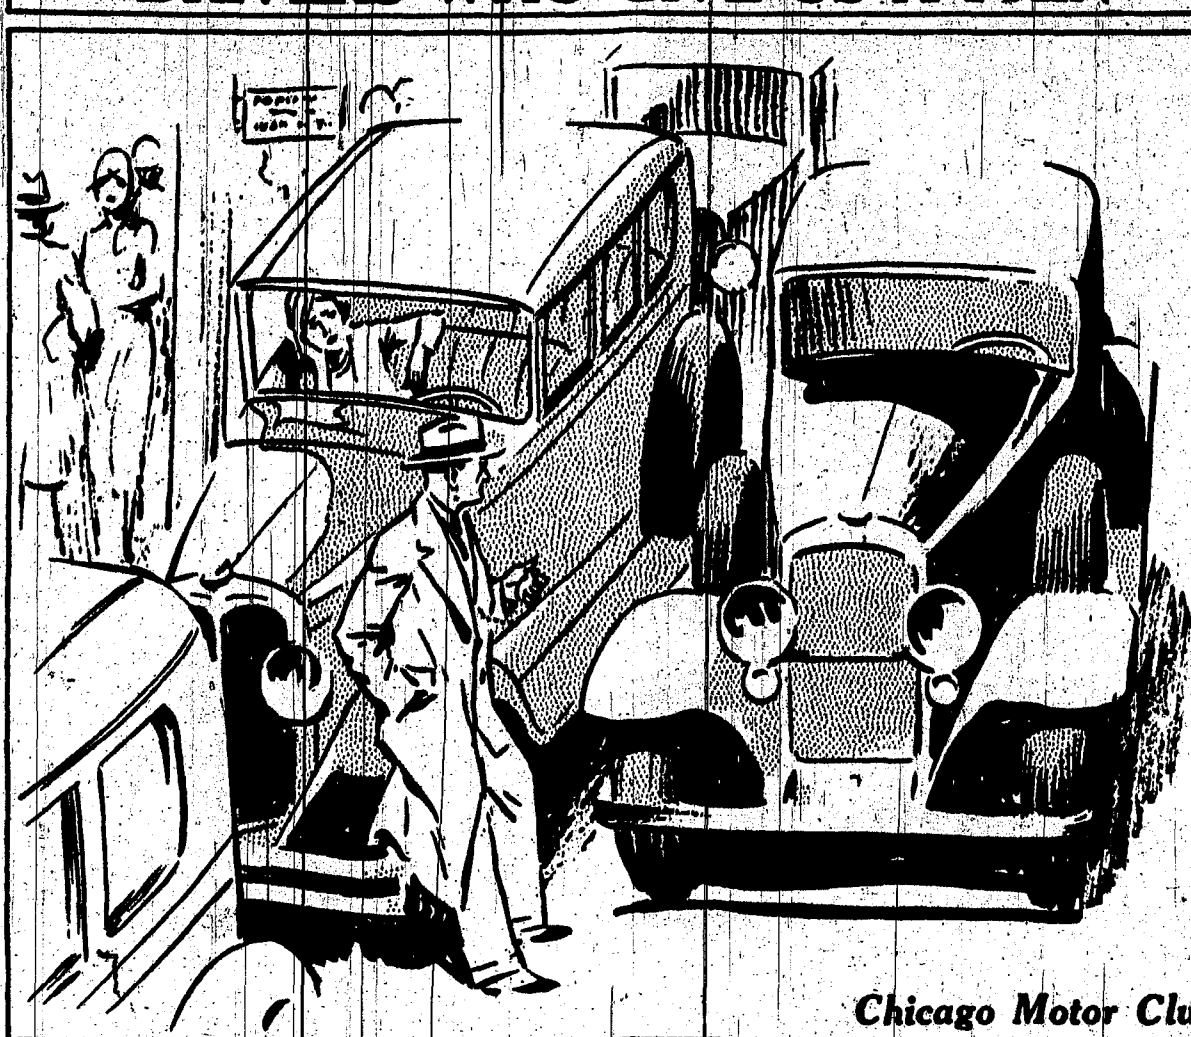

Of the Citrus Family

The calamondin is a variety of citrus fruit (Citrus mitis) which is unique among citrus fruits in being the hardest of the acid species now being grown in America. Its dense head with bright green leaves, upright habit and small fruits resembling tangerines in shape and color make it one of the most ornamental of the citrus allies. The fruits are bright orange red, 1 to 1½ inches in diameter, with deep orange flesh. The juice is well flavored and very acid. It is a valuable garden fruit adapted to those sections where the satsuma and kumquat are grown and is unsurpassed among acid-making fruits.

Pithy Quotations from Public Addresses of MELVIN A. TRAYLOR
President, First National Bank, Chicago

"It is time some leadership and some party called our attention to the fact there is no magic cure for the ills and the evils of human folly. We trod the primrose path of extravagance, of thoughtlessness and of almost criminal neglect of every sound principle of human conduct, from the individual to the government, and the individual was aided, encouraged, and abetted on that path by the government and those responsible for its administration."

"One of the biggest things was a watered state of mind in which we all thought we were richer than we were, and were living beyond our means."

"In my opinion, no great division of human society has ever been led to, and led about, as much in the same period of time as has the American farmer."

"This then is my hope for our future—that we may be rich without forgetting to be righteous; that we may be powerful without being offensively proud; that we may be nationally minded without being narrow-minded; and, finally, that we may live in a world of fact without surrendering our faith."

"I would urge consideration of the complete abolishment of so-called floor trading, which, as I am informed, has about it most of the characteristics of plain crap shooting, and few, if any, more redeeming features than that delightful Ethiopian pastime."

"It is bad enough when the intelligent and wealthy speculate and lose, but when scrubwomen, day laborers, small home owners, wives and youths speculate and lose, simply because they can go to a broker's office and get credit for small sums, the practice ceases to be defensible on any ground."

"Out of the stress and difficulty of the situation I believe gradually we shall return to simpler thinking and simpler living. For it seems to me that we want above everything to abandon the struggle to live up with the Joneses, and to rediscover the true purpose of life, which is the joy to be found in the simple virtues of industry, thrift and sane living. I believe in our people, in our country, and in the God who directs our destinies, and I welcome the future with confidence and unshaken faith."

Not Serious Error

A preacher and a lawyer who were traveling together fell to discussing mistakes in speaking. "What do you do?" asked the preacher. "If you have a slip of the tongue and say something you didn't intend to say?"

"That depends," replied the lawyer. "If it is a serious mistake I go back and correct it; if only a slight mistake I pass on and do not notice it. What do you do?"

"I follow the same rule," responded the preacher. "For instance, last Sunday in the course of my sermon I intended to say that the devil was the father of liars, but by a slip of the tongue I said that the devil was the father of lawyers."

"What did you do?" asked the lawyer.

"It was such a slight mistake that I went on without noticing it."

"We have not failed because of ignorance of economic theories, but because of our utter disregard and defiance of all economic laws. Ambition, stupidity, and greed have dictated policies, and trouble has been the result."

"All through history . . . the nations that have been agriculturists and have included in their agricultural and domestic pursuits the breeding and raising of livestock have been the nations that have endured the longest and performed the greatest work for mankind."

"Open the door of an agricultural school, and you close the door of a poorhouse."

"Relief from owing too much money does not lie in borrowing more."

"Human welfare, I believe, means more than the mere assurance to the individual of political rights—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—as enunciated in the Declaration of Independence; it means also the opportunity to exercise these 'inalienable rights.'"

"Knowledge is one thing, but courage of leadership is another."

"Falsehood and error make the headlines, while truth and fact are lost in the maze of half-point type."

"What does freckle-faced Johnny, snub-nosed Bill or red-headed Jim care about composition, translation or conjugation? The only cub root life will ever give them is a chance to extract will probably be that of a hickory or sassafras sprout; the only unknown quantity they will ever seek to find will be the measure of the stubbing they can produce on the worn-out fields their fathers have robbed before them; the only conjugation they will ever undertake will sound something like 'We Work, You Work, They Work.'"

"We cannot trade the hungry, the united, the feeble voice of the sick, the empty basket of the unemployed, against the maintenance of party preference or individual advantage or personal achievement."

"I believe I am a better farmer by a long shot than I am a banker."

"We must either all thrive together or all suffer disaster."

Biblical Plays

Halleck, in his "English Literature," says that "a miracle play is the dramatic representation of the life of a saint and of the miracles connected with him. A mystery play deals with Gospel events which are concerned with any phase of the life of Christ, or with any Biblical event that remotely foreshadows Christ or indicates the necessity of a redeemer."

Marvel of Nature

The Grand canyon of Arizona was cut down, according to scientists, through millions of years by the Colorado river, which still flows in the bottom of it.

Somebody's Always Right

The best lawyer is the man who can also see the real force of the opposing case.—Woman's Home Companion

Butterflies Are Travelers

One of the greatest long-distance flyers is the large cabbage white butterfly, to be seen everywhere in the summertime. These insects sometimes hatch out in millions on islands in the Baltic and, finding food supplies insufficient, collect into hordes and migrate to places all over Europe. They are sometimes seen passing over Germany in clouds so thick that they resemble snow-storms. The painted lady's real home is Central Africa. In some seasons, millions upon millions of these insects cross the Sahara desert, spend a short time on the shores of northern Africa, and then continue their journey northward. Many reach the British Isles, and it is not uncommon for a fair number to arrive in Iceland.

Rats and Plagues

Rats in Europe for centuries were responsible for the spreading of plague. This disease, carried by fleas on the black rat, was not exterminated by improved sanitary conditions so much as by hordes of brown rats from Asia, which entered through Russia about 1700. The black rat was driven to the wharves and ships by this stronger rival. But eventually the brown rat fought back human company and lived principally in sewers, thus relieving Europe of plagues.

Watchdog and Workers

Even the man who watches the clock does more work than the man who watches the thermometer.—Hamilton (Ohio) Evening Journal

Hoarding Is Costly

FEW persons who hoard their money and hide it in "secret" places have an adequate realization of the costliness of such a custom. That fact is obvious . . . for no one who understands the consequences will risk their savings in a hoarding way.

Hoarding takes money out of circulation . . . which is harmful to business. Hoarding robs money of the interest it should be earning . . . and that is costly to its owner. Hoarding subjects one's savings to loss by theft or fire . . . and this is too risky.

There is a nation-wide movement to curb hoarding, because it is all too costly to the American people.

Put your saved-up dollars into an interest account at this bank . . . or come in and let us tell you about the Government's Reconstruction Bonds . . . do it as the best safeguard for your accumulated money!

England's Small Churches
Two of the smallest churches in England were submerged in a new reservoir to supply Manchester with water. But even when these two churches had disappeared Lakeland could still boast of having the smallest church in England—that of Wadale Heath, the roof of which is believed to be partly formed of the hull of a Norse galley. Wadale Heath, however, has rivals for the honor of being the smallest church. Among them is the little church of Tullington, in Sussex, which is only about sixteen feet square. It is really the church of a former building. The registers of Wadale church date from 1084, and the calm beauty of its setting has impressed visitors throughout many years.

Delayed Letter Gave

Grant Son to "Nassau"

In the delivery of a letter from Princeton university a distinguished Princetonian who later became its president, according to family papers, brought to light the parting and recipient of the letter was Rev. Ashbel Green, president of Princeton, and the letter was one of the great-grandfather's.

Green's son revealed that the letter President Green wrote to him at New Haven for information about Yale. No answer came until the meantime another letter, which apparently was from the same source, was received there. Two weeks later, a letter arrived. It had been sent by post office.

Two invitations to reciprocity days of other clubs have been received by the Barrington club this week. One comes from the Mayfair Woman's club whose meeting will be held on March 28 at 2 p. m. at the Mayfair field house. The second is from the Hermosa Woman's club which meets for its guest day at the Hermosa Park field house, Kildea and Belden avenues, on March 18 at 2 p. m. This program will include harp selections by Miss Marion Parnell and a reading of the play, "Death Takes a Holiday" by Miss Anna Anderson. A notice has come from the garden department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs that the third annual garden luncheon will be held, March 14, at 12 o'clock at the administration building of the University of Progress. There will be a tour of the building preceding luncheon and a visit to Fort Dearborn in the afternoon. There will be no flower show this year sponsored by the Woman's club so that this luncheon will be the only garden event of importance for the year. Those of our members who are "garden minded" and who want to attend, may make reservations and purchase tickets through Mrs. Pundt. Reservations must be made by March tenth.

THE importance of the funeral lies chiefly in the memory pictures that remain with those left behind. Through the long years they will recall this hour as the final parting with a loved one. For that reason, we do all that we can to make this sacred rite impressive and sublime.

Unusual Interest Shown in "Death Takes a Holiday"

The Great Northern hotel Friday, Mrs. Whitcomb reported that the units of the different districts will be asked to bring discarded silver and gold jewelry to the next meeting and this will be sold and the proceeds used for child welfare work.

R. E. Drover, father of P. R. Drover, 129 Coolidge Avenue, returned from the Wesley Memorial hospital Thursday where he had spent four months. He is recovering from a broken hip and wrist and is now able to walk again. Mr. Drover's seventy-sixth birthday will occur this month.

Miss Alice McBride of Knoxville, Ill., spent the week-end in Chicago with her sister, Miss Esther Strouss at the N. O. Plagge home.

Wallace Henderson has returned to Barrington after three months spent at Rochester, Minn.

Miss Maude Gossell, 338 W. Lake Street, returned to her work in Chicago Monday after a two weeks' absence due to illness.

Mrs. Chris Stover is ill with influenza at her home, 326 W. Lake Street.

Mrs. M. H. Schreiber has been ill for the past week at her home, 302 S. Cook Street.

Mrs. Dewey Nightingale, 135 N. Garfield Street, is ill with influenza and her little daughter, Carolyn Mae, is under quarantine for chicken pox.

Races of Mankind
There are various classifications of mankind according to race. One classification gives six races. Mongolian, Caucasian, Negro, Semite, Malayan and Red Indian. The late Professor Brinton, American ethnologist, divided mankind into five chief groups—Caucasian, Mongolian, Malay, Ethiopian and American Indian. Doctor Hrdlicka of the division of physical anthropology, United States museum, gives three main human races, as follows: White, including the Mediterraneans, the Alpines and the Nordics. Yellow-browns, including the Mongoloids, the Malays and the American Indians. Blacks, including the Negro, the Negrito and Bushmen, the Melanesian negroes and Australian aborigines and African negroes.

Products in Kinship
Naphtha and gasoline are both petroleum products. They are both solvents, fuels and illuminants. Naphtha is intermediate between gasoline and benzene, and consists largely of heptane, called also Dunforth's oil.

Chicago now has an outstanding comedy hit in "Death Takes a Holiday," at the Playhouse. George E. Wintz, the producer, has assembled one of the greatest casts ever brought into Chicago for this beautiful vehicle of love, passion, beauty and life.

"Death Takes a Holiday" is an unusual story wherein Death, disguised as a mortal, decides to visit this world and discover for himself just why men and women, in fact all mankind, are so loath to leave life for his domain. He takes on the guise of charming young Prince Sirk, and becomes the week-end guest of Duke Lambert at his Italian palace. For three days he studies the hopes, ambitions, joys, griefs and emotions of his fellow guests. He meets and falls deeply in love with the lovely young Princess Chastel, and so learns to know to full potent power the true meaning of life about him. With the necessity of his return to his old domain, a real dramatic climax is also attained, a climax so compelling, so intriguing, so fantastic as to leave the theater patron and his neighbor in a state of breathless discussion.

Effect of Sunspots
Some ornithologists contend that migratory birds are "pulled" south in the fall by a yearning for ultraviolet light. When the fall light loses its glare, birds turn toward the brighter sunshine in the South—like moths to a flame. That's the story.

Since biological light affects animals and parasites oppositely, the study of zoology is very complicated. In one way or another, the whole world of life seems to be affected by sunspots. Different organisms in different ways all have their ups and downs, which apparently run in cycles.—Los Angeles Times.

Wall Paper Inventor
Jean Papillon, the second wood engraver to bear the name, was the first to plan and execute continuous repeating designs in wall papers, matching on the sides the sheet that was placed next to it. These were first used in 1688 and were soon an established fashion.

BIRTHS
Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hunt, 610 Summit Street, are the proud parents of a baby boy, David Allen, born at the Sherman hospital in Elgin Saturday.

Hard for Humanity to Meet These Conditions

There's a halo, a pair of wings and a through ticket on the heavenly express countersigned by St. Peter, general passenger agent, all ready and waiting for:

The husband who has never wished he could get back the amount he paid for his wife's engagement ring.

The man who can preserve a light heart with a heavy liver.

The girl who marries for love and can honestly say that she has never wished she had married for money.

The man who, in time of drought, can pray for rain when his own roof leaks.

The bride who promises to obey without having her fingers crossed.

The man who can stand up for his own rights without sitting on everybody else.

The real estate agent who tells the truth about that walk to the station.

The man who can turn the other cheek when he finally gets his enemy in his power.

The married woman who has never complained that all men are alike.

The man who can forget an injury without forgetting he has forgotten it.

The man who is as perfect as his wife thinks he ought to be.—Town Topics.

Respect Carried Too Far

Nature of Electricity Not Fully Understood

Electricity is known to be a form of energy, just as we have chemical light, heat and other forms. According to one authority: "Innumerable attempts have been made to ascertain the true nature of electricity, but it cannot be said that as yet there is any true knowledge of what this subtle agent really is." According to the electronic theory or hypothesis, the atom of matter is made up of smaller bodies called electrons, electrical in their nature, and consequently all matter ultimately is electrical, the atoms of the different elements of matter consisting of a certain number of electrons, thus 700 in the hydrogen atom and 11,200 in the oxygen atom. While this, of course, is only a theory, it serves to explain a great deal of the properties and manifestations of electricity, just as other theories of science help us to understand the nature of light, heat, etc.

"Rattlesnake" Flag

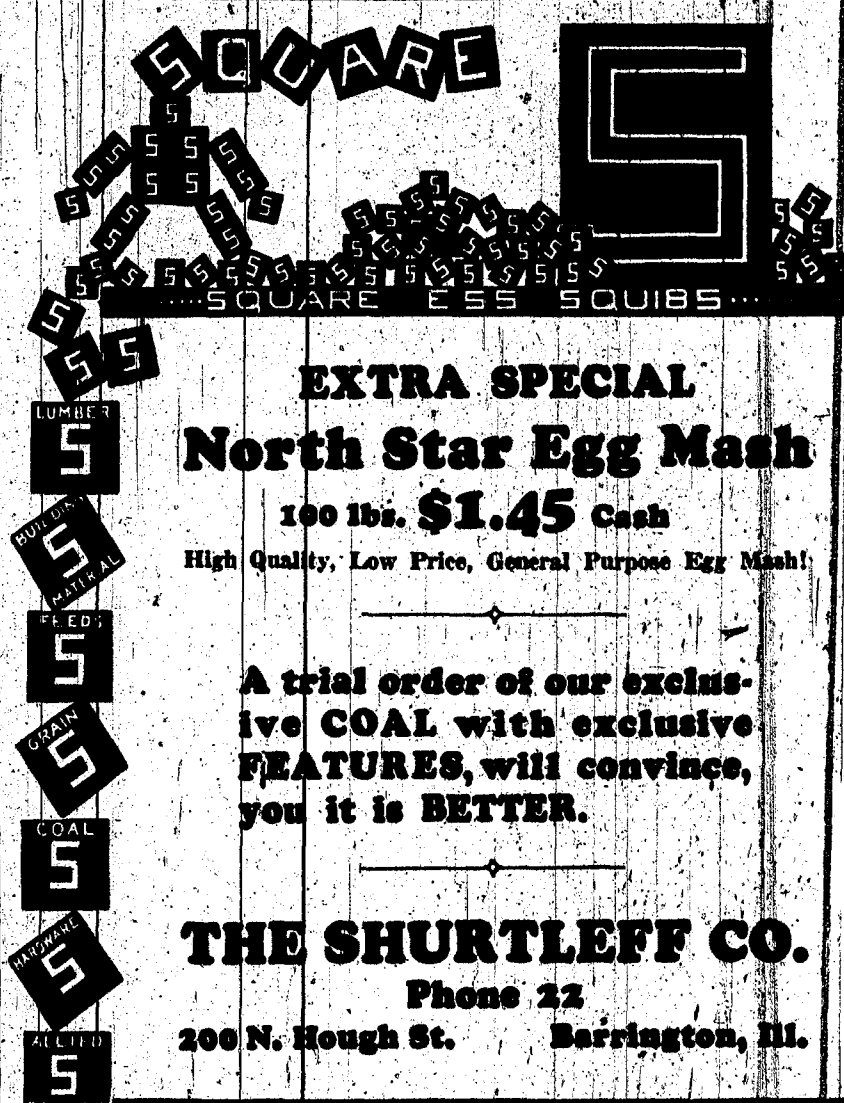

It has been stated that the use of the rattlesnake flag grew out of a humorous suggestion made by a writer in Franklin's paper—the Pennsylvania Gazette—that, in return for the wrongs which England was forcing upon the Colonists, a cargo of rattlesnakes should be sent to the mother country and "distributed in St. James' park, Spring garden and other places of pleasure." Colonel Gadsden, one of the marine committee, presented to congress on February 8, 1776, "an elegant standard, such as is to be used by the commander in chief of the American navy, being a yellow flag with a representation of a rattlesnake coiled for attack."

Cromwell's Wise Words

Does a man speak foolishly? suffer him gladly, for you are wise. Does he speak erroneously? stop such a man's mouth with sound words that cannot be gainsaid. Does he speak the truth? rejoice in the truth.—Oliver Cromwell.

PAY YOUR TAXES

The 1930 Cook county tax bills for Barrington have been mailed out by the town collector, and some 95 per cent of them are now in the hands of the property owners or have been returned accompanied by checks to cover amounts due.

In many cases the bills are for higher amounts than the 1929 bills were. One point for encouragement is that as a whole, they represent the peak in high taxes from which a decline for 1931 and subsequent years is assured. Local government and school expenses have been reduced and Cook county government expenses are finally being pruned down. The pleasing result of these expense cuts will be noticeable when tax paying time comes again.

We cannot even guess what response there will be to the 1930 tax bills. One thing is certain. The taxes must be paid eventually. Some people will not pay the taxes immediately and as a result will pay a penalty later. A few will never pay the taxes, and as a result will lose the property on which they are levied.

There is a danger that a few property owners will confuse their status with that of Chicago property owners who have really been the victims of wasteful extravagance and inequitable assessments. Chicago property owners have a court's decision to back them up on refusal to pay 1930 taxes.

That does not affect Barrington taxpayers in the slightest degree. Eighty per cent of the local tax money remains at home to pay the cost of schools, village administration, parks, etc. The other 20 per cent goes to the state and to the county. That small part of each Barrington man's dollar which goes to the Cook county court house is not increased or reduced by the Chicago tax collections. If Chicago fails to contribute its full share to support of the county government, the county government suffers—county employees are paid smaller salaries or lose their jobs, the general county administrative and construction program is held up and the county's credit is impaired. But taxes for the outlying county territory is not increased.

Barrington people MUST pay their taxes. They should WANT to pay taxes to help keep the schools operating, to help keep the necessary village expenses paid, to help keep the credit of their community sound. The local collector will have the books until March 21. Those property owners who pay before that date will be exempt from penalty.

FARMERS' TAXES TERRIBLE

Farmers are taxed out of all proportion to their earnings, according to figures gathered in Washington by Tom Catburch, editor of The Country Home. All over the country he finds, agricultural taxes rose steadily from 1924, and remained at their high level of 1930, although meanwhile the farmer's income has gone down enormously. It takes two to three times as many crops to pay a tax bill this year as it would have taken to pay the same tax bill a few years ago. A practical program for lower and more just taxes is the test which will be applied to every candidate up for election in farming areas this year.

EVEN PACIFISTS PLEASED

Pictures from Shanghai that show the marching of the American troops through the streets of Shanghai are being roundly applauded. At the same time Washington hears there have been tremendous expressions of satisfaction over the fact that the American navy has been mobilized for the Pacific. Still nobody wants war with Japan.

The American nation is a peaceful one but it is very noticeable that the most pronounced pacifists have been quite as enthusiastic in their military gestures as any one else.

WHAT THE R. F. C. WILL DO

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has organized for active business in remarkably short order, will not only give stability and renewed impetus to the railways, but to agriculture, banks, industry and trade. This institution will mobilize many times the actual sums it disburses in loans. Once the financial institutions of the country know that a government reserve fund is available for assistance when needed they will have the necessary assurance to relax the stringent restrictions upon credits which have been a prudent policy during uncertain times.—Washington Post.

NORTH DAKOTA'S SHAM BATTLE

When North Dakota's Republican voters go to the polls in the presidential primary election on March 15, they will find the names of only two men on the ballots as aspirants for the presidency. The candidates are Joseph I. France, former senator from Maryland, and our old friend, "General" Jacob S. Coxey, of Coxey's Army fame.

Enough said, to illustrate the futility of the primary as a registration of the popular will. No wonder North Dakota papers are demanding repeal of the law, which entails an expense of more than $100,000 to the taxpayers of that state every four years.—Minneapolis Journal.

A very favorable sign is evident in the fact that during the month of January the number of men who went to work in the manufacturing industries was greater than those laid off. According to the federal department of labor, the automobile industry showed the greatest increase.

At Virginia, Ill., two buildings are being combined and remodeled at a cost of over $2,000 for labor and materials. The newly remodeled building will house a modern food center.

The weekly payroll of the Charleston, Ill., unit of the Brown Shoe corporation amounted to $12,250 recently. The unit at Mattoon, Ill., had a payroll of $4,900.

The "Bobby Dick" mine at Herrin, which has been closed for almost a year has been re-opened and is being operated on a mechanical basis.

The Owens Illinois Glass company at Streator now employs approximately 420 men and further increases in the payroll are expected within a short time. Employment will be afforded to between 75 and 100 additional men.

At the Chicago shops of the Pullman Manufacturing company, about 400 former employees have been called back to work. During the next two or three months work will be done on air conditioning of passenger and dining cars for various railroad companies.

Within a few weeks, construction of more than $4,500,000 worth of world's fair buildings will begin in Chicago.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By National Editorial Association

(Special to The Review)

AN ERA of agitated speech and electioneering will soon replace the brief period of cooperation on legislative action. The tide will be raised on partisan clamor when the essential tax bills are out of the way. It is reliably reported that no major legislation will pass after the revenue measure and the remaining departmental appropriation bills are out of the way. Obviously political consideration of the tax-raising measure is scheduled to dispose of the revenue proposition within a few days without much change in the committee's recommendations. A Republican senate may have another interpretation of tax producing methods, differing from the democratic house.

ANXIETY as to their political future is evidenced by many legislators.

It was openly charged in the senate recently that the Congressional Record was cluttered up with articles and other data for the sole purpose of sending it through the mails without cost. These "leave to print" sections became official when printed in the congressional proceedings. They are reprinted as "official documents" and sent out for propaganda. An appeal was made to stop these abuses in the interest of economy. The saving mood of congress never affects congressmen.

There has been no reduction in employees' salaries in the legislative branch of the federal government.

Congress has, however, authorized economies elsewhere.

SMUGGLING BY AIRPLANES

is increasing, according to reports reaching the house appropriations committee. Fraudulent transactions at ports of entry have increased 100 per cent. The only effective method of halting air smugglers is based on advance tips from neighboring countries. It seems that importers and travelers are more willing to defraud customs officials in times of depression.

Contrary to current movies the narcotic service reported this week that opium smoking is a vice confined to Orientals and few white folks fall victims. Actually estimates show less than 100,000 drug addicts in this country. The average age is 38 years which indicates that the youth of the country is "not narcotic minded."

THE AVERAGE TAXPAYER

feels the cost of collecting federal taxes. A reduction in revenue has the effect of boosting the cost because it is almost impossible to reduce the salaries or numbers of employes handling these matters in lean years.

For instance, it cost $140 to collect every $100 in taxes in 1931 as compared with $113 in 1930. A smaller force collected in other years taxes averaging close to $180 per $100. The lowest cost occurred in the fiscal year

1918, when it was 33 cents per $100.

That low cost was due to the very sharp increase in revenue and to the fact that the personnel of the bureau had not at that time been increased to any extent. In 1931 the treasury garnered nearly two and one-half billions as compared to $45 millions in 1913.

ALL DOUBT as to the ability of political leaders to soporolize the debate on the national convention has been dispelled. The significance of 145 house members calling for a discharge of the committee considering "wet" and "dry" bills forced the subject to the front. Not even the best optimists among the modificationists really expect favorable action by the congress. They have nearly succeeded in riveting political attention on a matter which might otherwise have been side-tracked by powerful elements in the major parties.

ECHOES OF THE NEWBERRY.

Vand and Smith's ouster proceedings are heard in the senate committee's proposal to declare Senator Bankhead's seat vacant. The three excluded from senate membership because of doubtful or illegal election methods are republicans. They were removed on a bi-partisan vote. The senate committee's action on Bankhead was strongly partisan. There is some doubt that the advocates of ouster can muster sufficient votes to have the committee recommendations endorsed. The subject will bring Tom Teffin, the loser in the Alabama election, into the limelight.

"Emancipation Day"

June 19 is observed as emancipa-tion day by many negroes, because on that date in 1862 congress passed a law prohibiting forever slavery in the federal territories. The date is observed particularly in those states such as Oklahoma, which were later carved out of federal territory. By a coincidence the negroes were proclaimed free in Texas in June 10 by the Union commander and in that state also June 19 is observed as a holiday.—Pittsburgh

Magazine

Traveling Cinemas

Traveling moving picture shows are the latest cinematic development in Soviet Russia. At present there are more than 1,200 such units traveling from one village to another. The popularity of the exhibitions may be judged by their rapid growth in number during the past two years. At the end of 1925 there were less than 400 traveling movies.

This figure rose to 900, and, for the present year it is planned to produce 2,000 projectors.—Wastain elements "strikingly suggestive"

ica and the Yucatan; indicating a migration of ancient peoples from Siberia

the great body of North American

How to play Bridge AUCTION and CONTRACT

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 19

One of the most interesting hands was given for analysis by Wynne Ferguson. A comparison of your opinion with the author's will be most interesting and should help to one club, A one heart and Y doubled. B was bid one spade and Z A. passed. What should Y now bid and why?

Solution: Y should bid one no trump at either Auction or Contract. This bid indicates at least one stopper in spades and is fair outside hand. His previous double of one heart has shown his partner great strength in the suit, so it is now up to Z to decide whether it is better to try for game in no trump or a suit.

Junior High Loses to Algonquin; Latta Makes All Points for Locals

A plan whereby nearly 80 Barrington Junior High boys can participate in athletics during the early spring has been completed, and interest is running high as which of the eleven teams will finish as winner in the newly organized basketball league.

The schedule calls for games on Monday and Thursday afternoons, Wednesday evenings, and Saturday mornings during the next six weeks. An opportunity will be given every boy in each squad to play a part of every game, providing his school work is satisfactory.

The teams are captained by members of the Junior High conference team and the referee will be chosen from the high school.

That this plan is meeting with great success is proved by the fact that all but three of the Junior High boys have signed up. This is an increase of 30 per cent over the number taking part last year. The entire program is under the supervision of Mr. Watson. Those chosen as captains are Latta, Grabenkov, Ker-shaw, Muir, Lohman, Workman, Stout, Ryan, Ulbrich, Hager, and Rick.

Hager's Pin Team Pushes to Front in Lion's League

Race Between Cadwallader and Hager Teams Tightens as Season Progresses

Hager's team topped first place from Cadwallader's team in the Lions bowling league Monday night, when the league resumed activities after a three weeks' intermission.

With the season drawing to a close, it appears that the final lap will be a close race for first place between the Hager and Cadwallader teams. The former team now leads by only 61 pins. Before the season is brought to a close, however, the league will go back and play off four more games that were postponed during the season.

The teams are captained by members of the Junior High conference team and the referee will be chosen from the high school.

Unemployment Got Short Shift in Olden Days

"A correspondent has written to draw attention to an act against vagabonds, passed in the reign of Edward VI, which, he thinks, would make short work of the unemployment question," writes a columnist in the Manchester (England) Guardian. "The act says that 'all that should anywhere loiter without work or without offering themselves to work, three days together, or that should run away from work and resolve to live idly, should be seized on; and whoever should present them to a justice of the peace was to have them adjudged to be his slaves for two years; and they were to be marked with the letter V imprinted with a hot iron on their breast.'"

This act would certainly live the labor market up a bit. Unfortunately it was repealed in 1803, Victorian politicians, with overweening confidence in the future of British industry, have snatched this weapon from the hands of the economists. But no doubt a diligent search of the statutes would disclose others as good."

Matilda's Dream and What Came of It

By FRANCIS T. McCUTCHEON

"EZRA! Ezra!" called Matilda from the back porch, cupping her hands to her mouth. "Be you sleep diggin' long enough to eat your dinner?"

"Comin', Matilda!" bawled Ezra, as he dropped his spade and made for the back porch.

"Ezra Fogg, don't you dare come in here on my clean kitchen floor afore you wipe that mud from your feet," called his wife from the stove.

"All right," replied Ezra meekly, and backed out of the door. Cleaning his boots he crossed to the table and slumped into a chair.

"Ezra, ever since your Uncle Cyrus died six months ago an' left you this little farm—what have you done?" asked Matilda, pouring out the coffee. But his wife beat him to the answer.

"I'll tell you!" said Matilda, putting the coffee pot back on the stove. "For six months, I reckon, you've been diggin' holes all over the place like a ground hog. What have you found? Nothin'!" said his wife with sarcasm. "Just because Uncle Cyrus left no money in the bank, is no reason that he buried it in a hole in the ground." His wife ate sparingly, her eyes never left his face.

"Ezra, ain't you gonner stop this fool nonsense?"

"I reckon not, Matilda. I ain't gonner give up yet."

"You better had," she replied. "Think of the neighbors."

"You worry too much about other folks' gossip," he said.

"I reckon not, Ezra. But folks can't figure out them holes an' they're doin' a powerful lot of talkin' an' snickerin'. Why's your mind set on this fool diggin'?" she asked.

"Because Uncle Cyrus had no faith in banks. I've looked from the cellar to the attic but found nothin', so I reckon he buried it."

"Ezra, do you remember the time your Uncle Cyrus went to New York an' stayed two days? Of course you do. An' maybe some of them slick city fellows sold him some oil stock?"

"Stuff, an' nonsense," he replied. "Them fellows would have to stay up all night to pull the wool over his eyes. Uncle Cyrus was slicker'n a fox."

"Well, Ezra, I'm tellin' you that they've got smart fellows in New York who don't have to lose any sleep sellin' oil stock to country folks like your Uncle Cyrus," called Matilda for a parting shot.

"Next morning when Ezra came in for his breakfast, Matilda asked, as she poured the coffee, 'Ezra, do you believe in dreams?'"

"Well, sometimes I do an' sometimes I don't. What's on your mind?" he asked.

"Last night I dreamed of your Uncle Cyrus. I saw him settin' at this table, bendin' over a tin box."

"Was that all?" asked Ezra.

"No," said Matilda. "I saw him close the box an' tuck it under his arm. Then he picked up the lantern from the table an' left the house."

"Did you see, Matilda, where he took the box?" he asked.

"Sure I did," she said, continuing. "He slowly made his way to the rear of the barn, where he stopped as though listenin'."

"Yes, Matilda, go on," said Ezra. "Then, Ezra, I woke up."

"Well, of all the darned old dreams," said Ezra, slumping in his chair. "Why didn't you keep a sleep a minute longer?"

"Well, for land sakes, an' sleep, an' you on your back, snorin' like a bass-fiddle. But I've been thinkin' a powerful lot since that dream. Get your spade an' come out to the barn."

Matilda led the way to the rear of the barn, where she paused. "I saw him standin' right here," and she pointed to a spot midway between the barn and the corn-crib. "I'm figurin' he was lookin' for that corn-crib, Ezra."

"By crucky, Matilda, maybe you're right," and started digging with nervous energy. In a few minutes he straightened up with a small tin box in his hands. "There she be. Come on," he called, and swiftly made his way to the house.

"Them pesky neighbors won't think it so funny when they know I've found Uncle Cyrus' cash box." His nervous fingers opened the box and four eyes were centered on its contents.

"Well, Matilda, I reckon you're right. Them New York slickers got Uncle Cyrus' cash an' we got a lot of worthless oil stock."

With head down he dejectedly started for the door.

"Where you goin'?" called Matilda.

"I reckon I'm goin' to start my spring plowin'," he called back as the door banged. She sat for a period looking at the box and reminiscing aloud.

"That was a lucky find when I came across that old box in the attic," Matilda chuckled. "And the old box did some good when I buried it under the corn-crib," and again Matilda chuckled. "And the old farm will be lookin' natural again with wheat an' corn ripenin' in the sun next year."

This time Matilda smiled.

Unchanging Demand for Silver in the Orient

Colonial America used Spanish pieces of eight as well as British silver coins. In 1794 the mint struck off the first United States silver coins—half dimes, half dollars and dollars. Two years later the silver dime and quarter appeared. From 1873 to 1887 a trade silver dollar for use in China was struck off, and from 1881 to 1873 appeared a silver three-cent piece.

Oriental have developed a genuine affection for silver. The metal is so malleable that it can be easily worked by artisans. It can be beaten to a thickness of one-one-hundred-thousandth of an inch.

Until 1893 Indians could exchange silver for rupees at the Indian mint. In prosperous years excess money of the peasants was used to purchase silver which they fashioned into jewelry for the feminine members of their families. In lean years the silver objects were exchanged for rupees at the mint to keep the wolf from the door.

Although the mint discontinued the exchange, the Indian affection for silver has not waned. Indian brides still are ashamed to face the public without silver ornaments. The silver market in China and India booms when crops are good and many marriages take place—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Color Production From a scientific or technical standpoint, black is the absence of all color, while white is not a color, but the combination of all of the colors of the spectrum. The colors are produced by the difference in the length of light waves, those that produce red being about twice as long as those that produce violet; white paper has no color because it reflects all wave lengths equally. Of course, from a popular standpoint and for all practical purposes, both black and white are considered as colors.
