Transplanting 150 Elm Trees Started by Village Crews

Being Used as Replacements for Trees Removed From Parkways

The village of Barrington started work this week transplanting 150 elm trees on parkways where are to replace trees and stumps removed during the past winter by crews of men working under the direction of Paul Purcell, superintendent of streets. The trees have been obtained free of charge for the village of Barrington by Trustee Rudolph L. Berg, chairman of parkway committee. The elms are coming from the nursery of Herbert Bell in Barrington township.

Prior to starting the planting, Mr. Berg had the trees inspected by William R. Jack, senior nursery inspector for the state of Illinois, who "certified" the trees were in good condition and free of disease. As an extra precaution, the chairman of the tree committee had the trees sprayed with insecticide.

The transplanting is being done under the supervision of Mr. Purcell, and Frank Roth, local tree expert, has charge of the crews.

After transplanting the trees in the stead of those removed by order of the board last fall, a number of the elms will be placed in the village's disposal plant where they will be used for future replacements.

Mr. Berg's committee is working in conjunction with the Village Garden club, which started the tree planting in the parkways, and on which is to also put in some trees along South Hough street.

Sales in Stores Yield $93,912 Hidden Taxes

Families of Barrington and vicinity pay $93,912 in hidden taxes annually on their retail purchases alone, a survey by the national consumers tax commission showed today.

This burden, the report stated, is paid as a concealed part of the price of food, clothing, fuel, medicine and other daily purchases forced onto manufacturers and wholesalers. The figure does not include sales tax revenue.

The commission is a non-political organization of women combatting through local study groups unnecessary taxes that penalize consumers by increasing the cost of living. Groups are active in about 150 communities in the Illinois drive, led by Mrs. Franklin M. Miller of Chicago, national committee member.

The analysis, directed from the NCTC headquarters in Chicago, was based on total retail sales in Barrington of $4,692,560 as reported by the U. S. bureau of the census. The same tax ratio is figured on sales in all Illinois cities and villages.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingfords" Still Suckers for Chain Letters

Experience should be a good teacher, but according to Postmaster L. B. Paddock there are many people in Barrington who have not profited by the past mistakes of others. Mr. Paddock revealed this week the postmaster office has not been weaned of the habit of sending "chain letters" despite the fact so many individuals have been bilked in the past, particularly during the time chain letter frenzy of two years ago. Letters for money, handkerchiefs and various articles are being collected to reach the local post office. It was learned.

The Paddock calls attention to the fact that "chain letters" sent through the mails are fraudulent, and stated the public should know that "endless chain" enterprises designed for the sale or disposition of merchandise or other things of value through the circulation of "introductions" and the like have been held to be illegal lotteries and of a lottery, and as such are illegal.

Such matter, when offered for mailing, is refused, but in most cases endless chain communications are deposited in mail drops and the sender is unknown to postal employees. In such cases the communications, if detected, are withdrawn and sent to the dead letter office. Considerable mail of this character is detected because the sender omits return introductions on postal cards, or enclose them in unsealed envelopes bearing third class postage. A number of postal cards from a single source bearing an identical message will attract the attention of postal employes engaged in facing, cancelling or distributing and dispatching such mail, while unsealed letters not mailed by firms known to be informed as to postal rates are always examined when time permits.

Written and typewritten matter in first class rate, which is used as an ounce for local letters and 3 cents an ounce for out of town mail, Mr. Paddock said.
