Ela Township School Notes

the Pupils

The girls in the home economics department, under the supervision of Mrs. Loomis, entertained their mothers, the faculty wives, and the girls in school last Monday afternoon. Attractive little programs announced a mock wedding, a style show, a kitchen cabinet, band, and delicious refreshments of punch and cake. The freshmen girls were in charge of the refreshments and the sophomore girls modeled the sport suits which they had made in class. Faculty members were also invited and enjoyed the delightful entertainment fully as well as the students.

Girls' Club Hikes to Forest Lake
Last Thursday afternoon the Girls' Club hiked to Forest Lake. The weather, which at first looked doubtful, turned out to be fine for the occasion. Winners were rewarded over a fire, and deliciously roasted marshmallows, potato salad, and cookies rounded out their meal.

As the sun began to set, the hikers started their journey back, on foot, to Lake Zurich, and tired but merry, they all agreed it was an afternoon of fun.

The other day Miss Hinchliff had the freshmen write a description of Ellen, one of the characters in "The Lady of the Lake." Ellen must have looked very much like Eva. A very nice compliment, eh Eva?

Pete Dowell pitched a five-hit game, while his teammates were collecting 14 hits off the pitching of Avang and Dehan of the McHenry team.

Ancients Named Fishes Well Known to Anglers

Few fishermen have ever given thought to the derivation of the names of the fishes which they know so well. There are a host of fishes named after the animals they resemble, such as the dogfish and cut fish. The derivation of the names sunfish and bluegill is obvious, but where did the word trout come from?

Trout was originally tracta, which in turn is lost in a very old Greek word, meaning eat or gnaw, says William Beebe in his book "The Log of the Sun." Perch harks back to the Latin perca, and the Romans had it from the Greeks, among whom it meant spotted. The Romans said minnows when they meant small, and nowadays when we speak of any very small fish, we say minnows.

The pike is so named from the sharp-pointed snout and long slim body, bringing to mind the old-time weapon of that name, while pickerel means doubly a little pike, the "er" and "el" being diminutives. Smelt was formerly applied to any small fish and comes perhaps from the Anglo-Saxon smelt, which meant smooth. Salmon comes directly from the Latin salinus, which means to leap. Sturgeon comes from the Saxon stirlga, literally, a girder, from the habit of the fish to stir up the mud at the bottom of the water.

Washington's Supremacy

Many estimates of George Washington's character have been written, but perhaps none is more interesting than that of the historian George Bancroft, who summarizes the great first President as follows: "His faculties were so well balanced and combined that his constitution, free from excess, was tempered evenly with all the elements of activity and his mind resembled a well-organized commonwealth; his passions, which had the intensest vigor, owned allegiance to reason; and with all the fiery quickness of his spirit, his impetuous and massive will was held in check by consummate judgment. He had in his composition a calm which gave him in moments of highest excitement the power of self-control and enabled him to excel in patience, even when he had most cause for disgust."

Leading Pictures Appear on Catlow Program for Week

Fannie Hurst's "Symphony Six Million" Booked for Saturday

"Symphony of Six Million" which features Ricardo Cortez and Irene Dunne in a stirring story of sacrifice and romance plays The Catlow theatre Saturday night. Like most of Fannie Hurst's stories from which motion pictures have been made, the film focuses on the intimate happenings, the small failures, the successes and joys and sorrows of a section of humanity.

"Symphony of Six Million" is a story of a young doctor who returns from the ghetto to become a famous surgeon.

The pains and sorrows of his people eventually wear him back to the ghetto where he finds life worth living in the development of an old romance. In support of Miss Dunne and Cortez appears one of the most distinguished casts seen in pictures. Short subjects including new comedy, and cartoon will be added to the bill.

"The Monthpiece" which appears in the Sunday Morning feature deals with the tragic fate of a great legal big who sends an innocent youth to the electric chair in an excess of prosecution. He learns his ghastly error too late. His conscience destroys his value as a prosecutor. In a reversal of feeling the turns to the defense persons accused of crime, bringing a new energy and skill that had been him fame as the criminal's nemesis the defense of those same criminals.

Warren William and Sidney Fox play the leading roles.

The "Boy Friends" in comedy are other short features of interest are included on this program.

Robert Montgomery comes to The Catlow next Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the delightful comedy "Be the Flash Is Weak."

The picture shows Montgomery as a "bachelor" and aristocratic London fortune hunter—who tries to marry for money until another girl comes along with whom he falls in love.

Comical trials and tribulations in high and Montgomery romps through a maze of whimsically comic adventures, in which there is also a dramatic heart-interest story.

The chest in that it brings back to the screen Nils Asther, the famous Swedish screen actor. (Edwina Dagnall Horton also plays an important role in this picture.)

In "Lettie Lynton," booked for next Thursday and Friday nights, one of the most famous women on the American stage plays a "seren mother."

The role is played by May Robson, who achieved an international stage reputation for her work in "The Intervention of Aunt Mabel," "Mother's Millions" and other plays. In "Lettie Lynton," she plays the stern mother who when her daughter gets into serious trouble, makes an amazing sacrifice to save the girl from her own folly.

The picture deals with the reckless morals of the modern generation as a romance which has its locales in South America, New York, and aboard a trans-oceanic liner. Nils Asther appears as the jealous South American.

Few Idle Moments in Life of Colonial Wife

Friend Christopher Marshall, Burgess of the City of Brotherly Love, while confiding that he himself was easily fatigued by exertion, was as eloquent in his admiration for his faithful, elderly spouse.

He writes, "As I have in this memorandum taken scarcely any notice of my wife's employment, it might appear as if her engagements were very trifling; the which is not the case but the reverse."

She is constantly employed in the affairs of the family, which calls for her constant attendance, not only to provide, but also to attend at getting prepared in the kitchen our bread, meat, pies, etc.

Added to which her attendance is demanded in the orchard, cutting and drying apples. . . . In the making of elder without tools for the constant drink of the family, her seeing all our washing done and her fine clothes and my shirts, which are all smoothed by her, added to this her making of 20 large cheeses, and that from one cow, besides her sewing, knitting, etc.

"Thus she looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness, yea, she also stretcheth out her hand to her needy friends and neighbors."

My dear wife meets little respite all the day; the proverb, being verified, that "Woman's work is never done." With becoming piety the memorandum concludes, "For the constant assiduity and press of her daily and painful labor in the kitchen, the Great Lord of the Household will reward her in due time."

Immense Stalactite Caverns

One of the largest stalactite caverns in the world is in Slovakia. It has been given the name Domestica after the mountain within which it lies. The cave is nearly 5,000 yards in length and consists of a labyrinth of corridors and halllike caverns. The stalactites take the form of waterfalls, yells, chapters of water lilies and mounds which look like coral islands. A professor of Prague university has established that the caves were once inhabited by primitive man.

Measure for Life's Span

Sir William Moulton, speaking locally at a banquet in Orillia, remarked that the best way to live a long time is to select good healthy parents. As a matter of fact, the best rough-and-ready test of a person's probable span of life is to add together the ages of parents and grandparents and divide it by six.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Barrington Eighth Grade and High School Students Analyze Accident Causes

nearly 4,000 pedestrians and 1,600 lost their lives when they attempted to cross the street from behind or between parked cars.

A further analysis shows that nearly 300,000 pedestrians, injured by motor cars, were injured because of the following:

- Crossing between intersections 25.7%
- Children playing in street 16.5%
- Cross intersection, no signal 15.0%
- Cross intersection, against sig. 13%
- Behind parked cars 11.9%

The remainder were walking on rural highways, crossing intersections with signals, at work in the roadway, getting on or off vehicles, waiting or getting on or off street cars, and miscellaneous.

Analyzing pedestrian accidents according to age groups, we find that more than 1,500 pedestrians who were killed were under the age of 5; 3,800 between the ages of 5 and 14; and 5,270 between the ages of 15 and 54; 3,540 were 55 years of age and over.

The solution of the traffic problem, it has been pointed out, lies in the knowledge of traffic laws, respect for drivers' rights by pedestrians, respect for pedestrians' rights by automobile drivers, and ability to make quick decisions that often mean the difference of life or death.

Driver Qualifications Stressed

The following seven qualifications were stressed as those which make a good driver—willingness to accept the responsibility that goes with the operation of a powerful machine; willingness to concentrate on the job at hand; realization of the necessity of being awake; willingness to comply with the rules of the road; understanding of state motor vehicle laws; and the belief in the statement, "Careful driving is not timid driving. It is competent driving. It requires skill and concentration. It is an art."

Dell Coon Dance Orchestra to Play at Grove Saturday

Dell Coon and his orchestra will be featured next Sunday night at Louis' Fox River Grove ballroom, now operating under the management of H. Linder and Charles Richter.

Dell Coon and his band will come direct from a successful dance engagement at the Fontenelle hotel, Omaha. They have often appeared at the Miralago Cafe and Drake hotel in Chicago and have been heard over several radio broadcasting stations.

The new management announces a new policy of each Saturday a famous orchestra, each Saturday a new name, and each Saturday a new star. Several leading dance bands have been booked for future events. Further announcement appears in an advertisement on page 2 of The Review.

Intricate Problem Is History of Mankind

Five hundred years may not seem to be many if put against the years of which man has left written or pictured record of himself. The first we know of him in that way is of a certain King Menes of Egypt and of the first dynasty, who met an unfortunate death in an encounter with a hippopotamus. The date of this tragic accident, singular as the first record in man's history, was no further back than 4,000 years before the Christian era—say 6,000 years ago. But what is that in comparison with all the years that man has been a reasoning, problem-solving creature on the earth? Worked flints have been found in strata of the end of the Pliocene period, at a date reckoned by geologists to be about 600,000 B. C. A creature that could shape those flints, adapting them, as we have to suppose, to a preconceived end, is surely to be complimented with the name of "man."

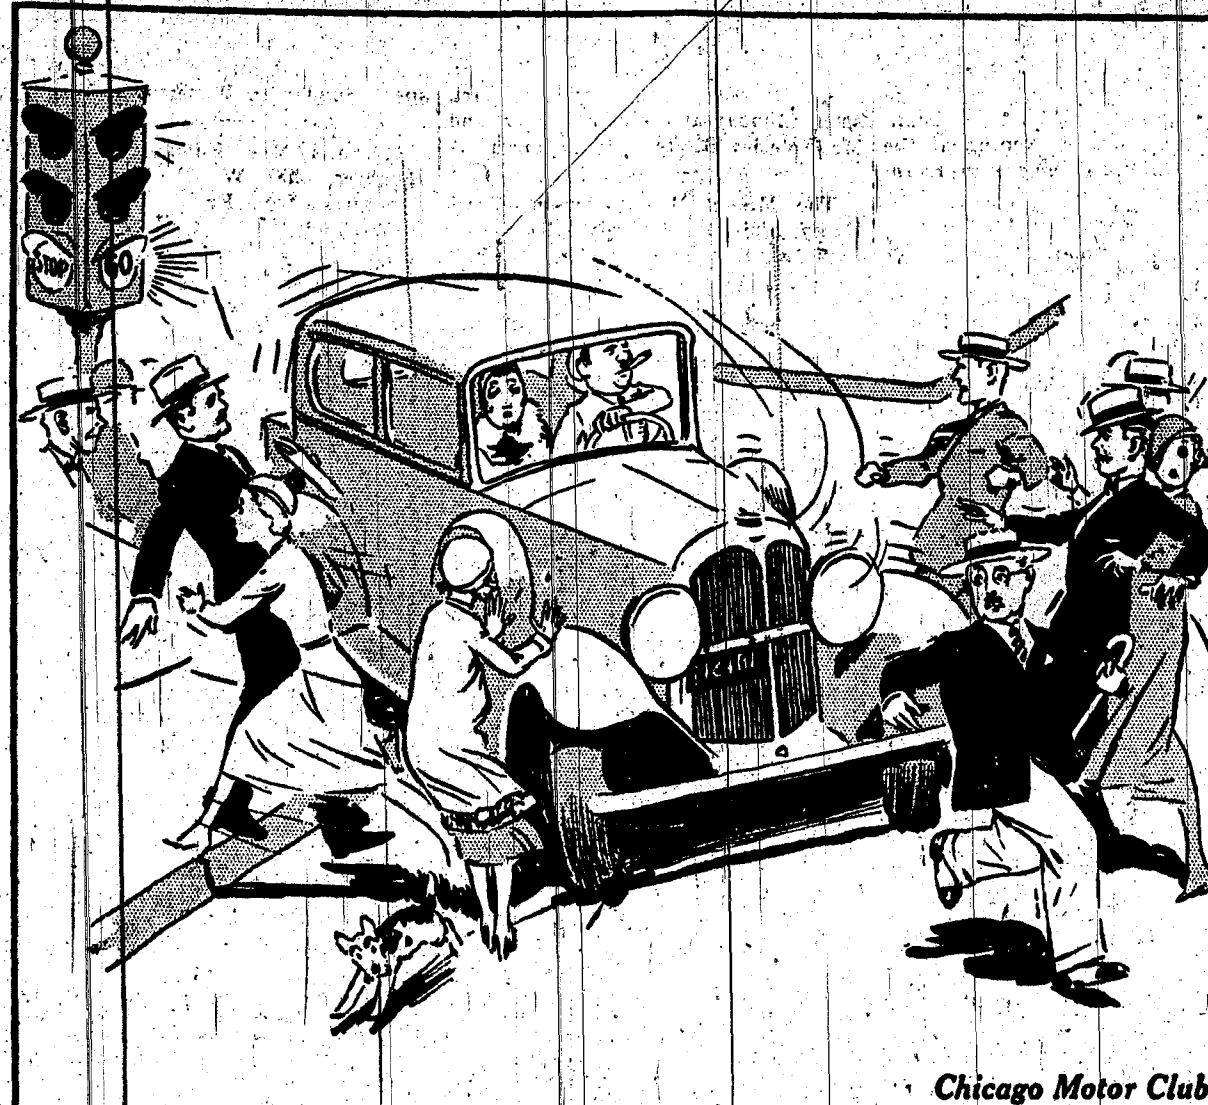

The few years for which man has left us any records other than his handiworks, the tools and artistic things that he has wrought, and, especially, those great edifices and tombs made for his dead, are, therefore, almost as nothing in the entire story's length.—Horace G. Hutchinson in London Quarterly Review.

Early American Furniture

The furniture made in America during the Hepplewhite and Sheraton periods compares very favorably with English pieces of these periods. While lacking on the one hand the greater sophistication of the pieces made for the nobility and wealthier classes in England, it seldom shows the crudity of English provincial furniture, and there is often a nice balance and a delicacy of line and proportion that made these pieces most attractive. The best furniture of this type seems to have been made in New England, New York and Maryland.

Bobby Was Second

A writer of note tells the case of his little five-year-old niece, who, on her return from a party, was asked by her mother how she enjoyed the festivities.

"Oh, the party was all right, I guess," the little girl said, "but Bobby was no gentleman. He knocked me down."

"Well," from her mother, who believes in children fighting their own battles in life. "Why didn't you knock him down?"

"I already had," from the little girl, meekly.

Orderliness

Don't forget to have lower hooks in the closet if you wish to teach the youngster to take care of his clothes. He cannot reach those high ones, you know, then the game ceases to be fun but is a nuisance.

W. C. T. U. to Meet Near Political Convention Site

Women of Cook, Lake, Kane and Will counties in Illinois have a definite part in the "Loyalty Convention," in Chicago June 10-13 to be staged by the leaders of the dry forces of the country. The convention is to be held in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland and Ogden avenues, near the stadium where the political nominating and platform making conventions will be held. Nationally known speakers will appear.

Two events in the convention program are especially for women. An entire session of the convention will be devoted to women under the auspices of the Illinois W. C. T. U., beginning Saturday, June 10, at 2 p.m. Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the World's and National W. C. T. U. and Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, Boston, Mass., chairman of the Women's National Committee of Law Enforcement will be the principal speakers. The session will be presided over by Mrs. Ada Reed Ferguson, of Chicago, president Illinois W. C. T. U.

For every one hundred dollars which the Illinois Emergency Relief commission allocated for relief work up to April 30, less than 18 cents was spent by the commission in carrying out its functions, according to Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., chairman. In other words, operating expenses of the commission have been less than one five-hundredth of its allocations, it is pointed out.

YOU BE THE JUDGE

Let the services your telephone has rendered you, in the past month, for example, testify to its value. Judge it by what it has done for you... what it has saved you. Consider its small cost. Judgments of this sort are the telephone's best recommendations. For some it may have saved a life; for others, property. Still others—and many of them—have saved money by using their telephones for business. To all a telephone is a convenience, a comfort, a protection and a business aid. Judged by what it does for you, what else costs so little as your telephone?

State News

Governor Louis L. Emmerson has approved the apportionment of $6,500 from the governor's contingent fund, to defray the cost of building a new egg-laying contest plant for the state department of agriculture at Quincy. The present structure must be razed to make room for the veterans' hospital at the Quincy Soldiers' and Sailors' Home. E. G. Horner, chief poultryman in the department of agriculture, has perfected plans for the new structure along lines that embody the desirable features of several types of poultry house construction.

Applicants for the state civil service examination, June 1, totaled 3,418, Harry S. Parker, president of the commission, reported. The classes of employment and the number seeking to qualify for each were listed as follows: assistant physician 20, elevator operator 105, deputy fire marshal inspector 450, grain helper 768, grain sampler 951, housekeeper 411, inspector of weights and measures 400, master mechanic 93 and occupational therapist 30.

Between 90,000 and 100,000 persons will visit Chicago during the national republican and democratic conventions if the expectations of the citizens' committee are fulfilled. Edward N. Hurley has made the estimate on the basis of advice from all sections of the country. The republican meeting starts June 14 and the democratic convention June 27.

A large delegation of Illinois Masons attended the dedication of the George Washington Masonic memorial at Alexandria, Va., on May 12. G.

Hayden Stephens, grand master of Masons of the state of Illinois, took part in the dedicatory services and William G. Thon, chairman of the Illinois Washington Bicentennial commission, was present and represented the State of Illinois.

PERSHING VIGILANCE COMMITTEES

Organization of "Pershing Vigilance Committees" throughout the United States as an emergency measure to fight crime and depression is being proposed in Washington. This is the first concrete result of General Pershing's lashing appeal in the current American magazine for an unofficial mobilization against the underworld, which he credits with a large share of responsibility for the current depression. Direct action against a million criminals and grafters is Pershing's proposed remedy, and supporters of his proposal believe it possible to enlist at least 5,000,000 citizens in an organized national war on crime, racketeering, graft and lawlessness in public office. The movement would be non-partisan and non-political.

"Today the nation faces another crisis," says General Pershing. "The enemies allied against us are more insidious but not less dangerous than in the World war. Pervasive self-seeking and corruption, which the chosen officers of the law seem powerless to suppress; the sinister growth of the underworld, whose tentacles reach out to touch us all; the ever-increasing extravagance of government, and the mysterious paralysis of our economic system—these are the enemies which now confront us."

"An underworld of gangsters and racketeers, unparalleled in any civilized nation, is eating more and more deeply into our national life, infecting politics, extorting tribute from business, threatening our homes. Prohibition has largely financed this post-war underworld."

"Our frontier ancestors, when the criminal element got out of control, formed themselves into vigilance committees, rounded up criminals, and directly brought about their prosecution. Why should we not form neighborhood and community committees, so that the gang will find itself confronted with an organized body of men larger and stronger than itself?"

"Committees of this kind would be vigilance committees, not in the old sense, but in the sense that they would be ever vigilant in the protection of rights and performance of civil duties. I would consider it an honor to serve on such a committee myself."

"ISOLATION" GONE MAD

"During the past twelve months voices have been raised to the effect that foreign trade is a negligible factor in the restoration of our domestic prosperity. Ninety-five per cent of our existing business is domestic, they say. Why not face the fact and center upon the home market? And so they advocate a closer drawing of the curtains about the great expanse of the United States, they contend for yet higher barriers to exclude the goods of other lands. 'This is the philosophy of economic defeatism.' It is 'isolation' gone mad. It has no more justification economically than the advocacy of a return to the area of the kerosene lamp and the four-wheel buggy. . . . Despite the attractiveness of our domestic market, it must be remembered that 92 per cent of the world's population lives outside the United States and is poorly supplied with the things we best produce. Our international position today demands more analysis, more careful consideration and greater dependence upon facts than ever before in the history of our commerce."

"This is the opinion of an author on international trade. And it is an opinion that is gradually finding its echo in the minds of the general public. People are starving when we have wheat to burn; people are cold when wool and cotton are a drug on the American market. Only by an intelligent interchange of goods between nations can commercial stability and prosperity be attained. If we shut out foreign goods for which our people offer a market, we will be shut out of their markets—either by foreign retaliatory tariffs, or because their people have no money with which to buy. The demise of our international trade would mean the loss of livelihood, directly, of several million American families, and work a great hardship on many millions more. Stimulated foreign trade is, to a greater degree than most of us yet realize, a vital factor in the solution of our domestic difficulties."

THE AMERICAN FLAG

June 14, Flag Day, has ever carried the deepest meaning to every true American. This year the day will carry a tenfold significance, as the nation celebrates the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. For to General Washington, tradition credits a leading part in the very designing of the flag, and what he did to give it meaning is and will be known to every American as long as our country lives.

On June 14, 1777, congress resolved: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

In these simple words, authority was given to General Washington to design the flag, and on the same day tradition has it that he went to the house of Betsy Ross on that visit which has become one of the finest pages of American folklore.

So, in this homely fashion which so well suits the American spirit, was born the emblem designed by Washington, coming almost like a direct gift from him, to fly ever since over the nation that he also designed. Today, every American is privileged to ponder on the stupendous human events and influences that have flowed from this simple incident at the house of Betsy Ross a century and a half ago.

Once, in 1794, when Vermont and Kentucky joined the Union, the stars and stripes were increased to 15; but in 1813 congress fixed the final form of the flag as of thirteen stripes, with a star to represent each state.

When that flag was designed and made there was not a true republic in existence. Since then the principles set in motion by George Washington and his fellow patriots have extended themselves to the uttermost parts of the earth. More than an emblem of sovereignty, the flag that Washington planned has been a symbol of human freedom, of equal opportunity, and political liberty wherever mankind has sought and fought for these things.

"YELLOW JACK" NOT DEAD

The term "yellow fever" is an empty phrase to perhaps a majority of people under 30 years old in this country. Its meaning is as vague and remote as that of the word "typhoid." Even physicians under the influence of enthusiasm for preventive medicine and the achievements of sanitation have been led to declare that yellow fever has been eliminated from the world.

Popularly known as "Yellow Jack," probably no other disease ever struck into the hearts of men greater alarm and panic than has yellow fever in the United States. No less a city than Memphis has been depopulated more than once at the news of yellow fever in the lower valley. Villages and cities from Cairo to New Orleans were practically abandoned when news of an approaching epidemic of yellow fever was announced. Sometimes few of the courageous who stuck to their homes lived to regret their choice of action. From the little town of Grenada, Miss., for example, in 1878, the city marshal who undertook the functions of mayor sent a telegram to the mayor of Wilmington, which read as follows:

"Help us to pay nurses and bury the dead. Our town is a graveyard. We need help. The mayor is dying and I am the only officer left."

These conditions, which recur periodically until early in the twentieth century, disappeared rapidly after it was discovered that yellow fever is spread only by infected mosquitoes. Control over mosquitoes on the one hand and the isolation of yellow patients so as to keep out mosquitoes on the other quickly subdued yellow fever in many parts of the world.

Now comes the disquieting news that the United States is by no means immune to yellow fever and that a new introduction of the disease into this country is well within the realm of possibility. Investigators of the U. S. public health service have discovered that airplanes coming into southern ports from Central and South American terminals may bring live mosquitoes which have found their way into protected parts of the ship prior to the take-off. While this possibility does not now result in the frequent transportation of mosquitoes it must be remembered that air traffic is likely to increase along those particular routes and also that only one infected mosquito is necessary to start a lot of trouble.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By National Editorial Association
(Special to The Review)

BETTING FAVORS the complete wind-up of the present congressional session in time for the republican nominating convention next week. The confusion over what constitutes vital legislation has not been cleared. The legislative body in its scramble to leave town is passing bills without a thought to the presidential veto that may nullify their intentions. The split between the president and congress has been widened by events of the last few days. There is a pronounced feeling that each branch of government has vied for credit and quickly shifted all responsibility for policies meeting with hostile public opinion.

TEMPERS have been frayed to such an extent that many republican senators are leaving for the Chicago convention determined to even the score with their party leader, the president. They realize his renomination is assured but the dissenters fear they may harass Mr. Hoover by drafting their views into the party platform, for which he must carry the banner. It is generally conceded that the president's personal appearance before the senate did not gain supporters for his tax plan. On the other hand, it served to intensify what was a sullenness toward definite antagonism. Republicans and democrats are in agreement that it was simply a headline-hunting trip intended to place the senate in a bad light with the reading public.

IT IS HOPED that the settlement of the tax bill controversy will effectively stabilize government currency. The internal revenue measure is calculated to balance the budget. The black spot now on the nation's financial horizon is the character of public financing required to meet the expenses of relief projects. The treasury must raise the funds by borrowing, not directly from taxation, which adds a problem these days of tight money.

STRONG UNDER-COVER conversations among business and financial leaders are creeping into official Washington. The purport of these talks, it appears, is the creation of an economic council, which would set up a form of dictatorship during the present crisis. It would be an adaptation of the council of national defense, which came into existence during a wartime emergency. It is reported that many of the national leaders active in the war council are ready to participate in this peace-time movement. Authority for the council of national defense for six cabinet officers to preside with the secretary of war as chairman. It is reported that President Hoover, who participated as food administrator, is adverse to the current proposals. It is a measure which may be forced unless the legislative acts passed by congress bring the desired changes.

THE FAILURE of the senate and house to accept proposals for a manufacturers' excise tax has been disappointing to business groups. The opinion is growing that the special taxes imposed on industries and various classes of citizens will result in nation-wide dissatisfaction against the tax system. It is the belief of the manufacturers' tax will eventually be substituted for the present hazardous scheme. The principal objection to the general tax plan has arisen among labor unions and farm groups. If the taxation method now authorized by congress is a discriminatory as alleged in debates here, the farmer-labor groups are expected to add force. Treasury officials have insisted that with a fixed percentage of manufactured goods which could not be pyramided, it would be easy to estimate revenues by simply broadening the base, that is lowering or raising the percentage of tax on each article produced.

THE "BONUS ARMY" which is gathering in Washington is riveting the public attention to the effects of unemployment. Yet the visit is not stimulating congressional action on bonus legislation. The sentiment at the capitol is that the nation's finances do not permit the expenditure of hundreds of millions to veterans at this time. It is an agitation that was destined for futility. Many visitors could not actually qualify as war service men but come for the excitement.

First Hatch of Quail

About 600 baby quail, the first hatch of the season at the state fair-ground game farm, were taken from the electric incubator late in May. Ralph F. Bradford, director of the state department of conservation, announced. Plans for this, the second season of the game farm's existence, call for about 1,000 eggs per week from June 1 until October. Some 4,000 eggs are in the incubator today at present. Since establishing a new world's record for quail hatched per 100 eggs last season, the game farm under the supervision of Stephen Blair, has been expanded to several times its original capacity. Director Bradford stated.

Illinois Hard Roads Increasing

Illinois has added 145,000 miles of state and county roads to its existing highway system this season, up from 135,000 miles last year. May 18, the highway division's bureau of construction reported. During the last week for which reports from district engineers have been tabulated, 34,48 miles of state bond issue routes were completed and the county roads were extended 17,84 miles. The number of men directly employed in highway construction totaled 6,055 on May 18.

Wandering From This to That

Rare Louis 15th Art

It is a far cry from the like shown in the paintings of Jean Francis Millet, who showed the world the laborious existence of the French peasant, to the gay and luxurious life of the French court in the time of Louis Fifteenth as given us by Debucourt and Janinet. These artists worked in aquatint and mezzotint and produced a group of color prints most accurately portraying the happy-go-lucky idling of the privileged classes. For them the principal object was the pursuit of pleasure, the business of coquetry, of gallantry, of soft whisperings by courtesans into the pink ears of voluptuous ladies; of polite chaffing. And always with some hint of a fairy-like unreality. A collection of these exquisite color prints has just been hung in the print galleries of the Art Institute of Chicago. Nothing perhaps has ever been done by the hand of a craftsman more plausibly illustrating this superficial, elegant and fantastic life, so far removed from the humiliating toil, suffering and oppression of the common people, who paid with the sweat of their brows for all this gaiety. It was the luxurious, baroque art of Boucher which was the fashion of the day, and some of these color prints are made after his paintings. With the outbreak of the French revolution in 1793, all this ceased and many of these gay and frivolous gentlemen, whose amours are so faithfully shown, paid dearly for this pleasures. Prints of this period are rare. Many of them were destroyed in the revolution, and since they have become difficult to obtain, collectors are seeking them. The present group owned by the Art Institute was partly acquired from a Swiss collector and partly from the collection of the Crown Prince of Germany.

Glands Control Personality

While it has been discovered that many characteristics of human beings are controlled by the so-called ductless glands, "it is probable that scientists are merely on the threshold of more valuable discoveries," the United States public health service stated May 21.

"In any event," the service pointed out, "it must be apparent to the most casual reader that the endocrine glands are powerful factors in maintaining health and happiness."

It is now widely believed that personality, that interesting combination of physical and mental peculiarities by which a person is judged, is largely regulated and controlled by the ductless or endocrine glands. With a knowledge of the function of the principal glands included in the endocrine chain, it is now possible to explain why one person is a misfit and another a giant; why one is fat and another is lean; why one is undeveloped and another overdeveloped; and why one is stupid and another is bright. This science of the ductless glands, also known as endocrinology, aids in understanding why one person is happy and another is gloomy, why one is hasty and another is phlegmatic.

What are these ductless glands, which exercise so important an influence upon the human economy? First, it must be understood that a gland is an organ whose duty it is to manufacture a substance contributing to the proper functioning of the body.

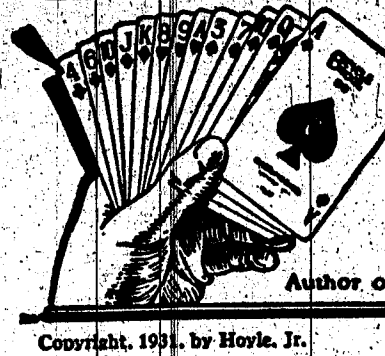

Trailblaze Museum

The forest preserve district has added another feature to its many attractions, Trailblaze museum, Thatch and Chicago avenues. It contains specimens of every living thing to be found in the forest preserves, and was opened officially Sunday and will be open daily including Sundays from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. It is being operated by the forest preserve district in cooperation with the Chicago academy of sciences. Miss Mary Cooper is curator. Establishment and maintenance of the museum cost only a nominal sum. The museum is housed in the old office building of the forest preserve district, vacated when the new headquarters were completed last September. Regularly employed workers of the forest preserve district constructed the cabinets and exhibit cases. A small sum of money was expended for lumber and glass.

The museum fills a long felt want for persons visiting the forest preserves. Visitors now may see at close range animals, birds, flowers, etc., which they formerly saw at a distance during their visits to the preserves.

5 Day Week—More Jobs

Advocating a five-day week with a six-hour day, Representative Woodruff of Bay City, Mich., in the House May 24, said the only economically sound way of restoring employment for the army of unemployed is to divide up the available amount of work. "Considering the reduction in payrolls, in employment, etc.," he told the house, "it is safe to say that roughly one-third of our population, or 40,000,000 people, have lost their jobs. The entire purchasing power and nine-tenths of their consuming power, totaling 5,000,000 workers to be entirely unemployed, at two and one-half persons to the family, would give a total of 20,000,000 without income."

How to play Bridge AUCTION and CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 30

In the following hand, the Professor of Greek at one of our well-known Universities bid one no trump at Auction, all passed and A opened the three of clubs. The Professor's hand and the dummy's hand are as follows:

Hearts—10, 6, 5
Clubs—9, 4, 2
Diamonds—Q, 10, 4, 2
Spades—Q, 10, 9

A: Y
B: Z

Hearts—A, Q, 4
Clubs—A, K, 7
Diamonds—A, Q, K, 3
Spades—J, 8, 7, 2

The Professor should have sized up the hand as follows: "I can have only four clubs, for he has led the three and the deuce is in dummy. Therefore, A B should only make two club tricks and two spade tricks. If the diamonds are evenly divided, I can go game without finessing the queen of hearts. If they don't break, then I will have to finesse the queen of hearts."

Hearts—Q
Clubs—K, J, 7, 4
Diamonds—A, 8, 7, 6, 2
Spades—5, 4, 3

Hearts—J, 9, 6
Clubs—Q, 10, 8, 6, 5
Diamonds—Q, J, 9, 5
Spades—7

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. All passed and A opened the six of clubs. Z won the trick with the nine of clubs and proceeded to look the hand over. What would you figure as to probable distribution and correct play of the hand? Z should note that his own hand and Y's were divided 5-4-3-1. He also noted that A opened the six of clubs and that B played the deuce. If B had held two clubs, he would have started an echo which would have led him to trump the third round of clubs, so his play of the deuce indicated a singleton. Z, therefore, figured that the clubs were divided 5-4-3-1. He held five spades and his dummy three, so that, if A also held a singleton, it must be in spades. Therefore, the spades must be divided 5-4-3-1. His heart and diamond holding and that of the dummy also indicated a possibility that these suits were divided 5-4-3-1. Z, therefore, to play accordingly.

If spades are trumps and Z is in the lead, how can Y Z win all of the tricks against any defense?

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson
Illinois State Association Editor

Three utilities companies—Commonwealth Edison Co., Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co. and the Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois—have been authorized by the Illinois Commerce Commission to issue and sell $70,000,000 in bonds.

The bonds are to be issued to reimburse the treasuries of the three companies for expenditures already made in improving and expanding their properties, for acquiring additional properties and for refunding purposes.

The commission's order permits the Commonwealth Edison Co. to issue $18,000,000 of its first mortgage bonds series "G," to bear interest at the rate of 5 1/2 per cent payable semi-annually and maturing in 30 years. The Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois is authorized to issue and sell $32,000,000 of its first lien and refunding mortgage bonds, series "C," to bear interest at the rate of 6 1/2 per cent payable semi-annually and maturing in 20 years.

The Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co. is authorized to issue and sell $20,000,000 of its first and refunding mortgage bonds, series "G," to bear interest at the rate of 5 1/2 per cent, payable semi-annually and maturing in 20 years.

Illinois apple prospects are fair, but the peach outlook is very poor, according to the recent forecast compiled by Arthur H. Holt, superintendent of the marketing division of the State Department of Agriculture. It is estimated that the peach crop will be only one-tenth of last season's output.

The Illinois Commerce Commission has served notice on counsel for the Lincoln park board, the City of Chicago, and the Chicago surface lines that it will tolerate no further delay in closing the "Pigment of Progress" case, on trial for over 12 years. This case involved petition of the Lincoln park commissioners for an order compelling the surface line to remove its street car tracks from Lake Shore drive between Chicago avenue and Ohio street. The commission's ultimatum was delivered by Chairman the queen of hearts. Unfortunately, he failed to figure out the hand as soon as he got it, and as soon as he got it, he led the heart, which was the queen of hearts. It was now impossible for the Professor to go game. He had to lose two club tricks, two spade tricks and one heart trick. He should have led up his spades and then have played for the drop in diamonds. They were evenly divided so that in this way he could have made game.

If the Professor had been playing original bid of two no trump and partner should have bid three no trump. The writer has occasionally mentioned the Law of Symmetry in these articles. This law is, in effect, a theory that there is a symmetrical relation existing between the distribution of the four suits in any one of the hands and the distribution of the four suits among the four hands. The symmetrical relation is well exemplified by the distribution of the following hand, which came up recently in actual play:

Hearts—Q
Clubs—K, J, 7, 4
Diamonds—A, 8, 7, 6, 2
Spades—5, 4, 3

Hearts—J, 9, 6
Clubs—Q, 10, 8, 6, 5
Diamonds—Q, J, 9, 5
Spades—7

Hearts—A, 8, 4, 2
Clubs—A, 9, 3
Diamonds—A, K, 7
Spades—A, K, Q, 10, 6

At the second trick, the ace of hearts and then a low heart, trumping in dummy. He then led a low club, which B trumped. On this trick Z played his ace of clubs so that he could finesse the king jack later. No matter what B now plays, Z must make a small slam. Figure it out. The hand is remarkable in that, after the first lead, the distribution of all four suits can be so accurately determined. It is also a remarkable illustration of the Law of Symmetry. All of the four suits and all of the four hands have the same distribution, 5-4-3-1. It is the first time that the writer has ever noted such a unique hand.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

Z should bid two spades and Y three spades. A and B always pass. Z should now bid five spades and, if Y is a sportsy bidder, he will bid six spades. It is a toss-up, but, as already pointed out, Z can make six spades against any defense.

The Barrington Bears baseball team received a holiday from duties Sunday when rain prevented their playing the scheduled game with the McHenry nine at the local diamond. The team probably will meet later on in the season.

Next Sunday the North Chicago Giants, a colored team, will come to Barrington to try to square the 8 to 5 defeat the Bears handed them last year.

Rain frustrated plans for the opening of the Barrington Softball league last Thursday night and only two of the teams got started. The Methodist and St. Anne's teams played through four tight innings with the score standing at 3 and 3.

Some confusion has been experienced in the location of the diamonds at the village playground. Next Friday night St. Paul will play St. Anne on the east diamond, the Methodist and Baptist will play on the west diamond, and the Saints and Jewels will play on the middle diamond.

The schedule for next week, during which the teams will meet Monday night instead of Friday because of the high school graduation exercises, follows: Salem vs. St. Anne's, St. Paul vs. Methodist, Jewels vs. Baptist.

"Missouri Compromise" It is quite true that Henry Clay was not the author of a first Missouri compromise, passed in 1820, although he is given credit for a suggestion which was utilized by the senate in a bill to admit Maine as a free state and Missouri as a slave state. As a result of this controversy a joint committee was appointed which agreed to admit Maine and Missouri separately, leaving the Thomas amendment to the Missouri bill, which prohibited slavery in all the remainder of the Louisiana territory north of 36 degrees and 30 minutes north latitude (the southern boundary of Missouri).—Washington Star

Silk Worms "Smuggled" Into Europe by Monks

The discovery of the thread of the cocoon is credited to a wife of a Chinese emperor as far back as 2600 B. C., but it was not until the sixth century since the birth of Christ that the manufacture of silk worked westward into Europe. The first of the worms to be brought west were carried by two Persian monks in hollow canes, who brought them to Constantinople.

After eventually reaching France, the silk industry received a considerable acceleration which later drew England into the field, for many silk weavers were forced from France by the edict of Nantes. Seeking a supply of cocoons, the English sought to foster the production of the silk worm in the colonies. The first were introduced into Virginia, with bounties offered for the production of silk. Virginians found, however, that tobacco was a more profitable crop and the silk worm languished.

Efforts were also made to establish the worm in South Carolina and in Connecticut, while 75 or 80 years ago an attempt was made in California, but they all came to nothing.

End of "Charter Oak"

The Charter Oak, in Hartford, Conn., was blown down in a heavy windstorm at a quarter to one on the morning of August 21, 1850. A rough shell of stump was left standing about 10 feet from the ground. On the following day people crowded to see it and a guard was placed to preserve it from "relic hunters." Colt's Armory band played dirges and patriotic music over the fallen monarch for two hours at noon. At sundown all the bells in the city tolled. A few years later Charter Oak avenue was laid over the site. The remaining roots were dug up and a simple slab was placed in the retaining wall of the avenue.

Economy Plan for Cutting Expenses Is Heard by Board

Suggest Housing, Treasurer's Office and Fire Truck in Village Hall

An economy plan for saving the village almost $3,000 a year in salaries, rentals and other power was presented to the village board for consideration at the regular meeting Monday night at the village hall. The plan, which was drawn up by a committee composed of Trustees Kluckman, Earl Hatje, and Herman Kuebler, provided a 10 per cent cut in salaries of all officials and employees of the village, remodeling of the village hall to accommodate the treasurer's office and fire truck, and the elimination of several street lights in the unpopulated parts of the village.

It was pointed out by Hatje, who explained the plan to the board, that a 10 per cent cut in salaries would effect a saving of $107.50 per month. The plan also provided for remodeling the village hall to accommodate the treasurer's office and fire truck and the elimination of several street lights in the unpopulated parts of the village.

It was pointed out by Hatje, who explained the plan to the board, that a 10 per cent cut in salaries would effect a saving of $107.50 per month. The plan also provided for remodeling the village hall to accommodate the treasurer's office and fire truck and the elimination of several street lights in the unpopulated parts of the village.

"Hear New Milk Ordinance" A proposed new milk ordinance was presented to the board and read by the clerk. After considerable discussion it was agreed by members that the ordinance required some revision and it was held over for later action.

An ordinance on rules of order for the conduct of the president and board of trustees and order of business was submitted by Earl Hatje and was passed unanimously by the board. The trustees voted to have a recommendation prepared and submitted to the Lake county highway department for the location and immediate construction of the continuation of the Barrington stub road which is included in Cook county plans this year. The continuation of the route in Lake county this year would provide many of the unemployed with work, it was pointed out.

Village Attorney D. B. Maloney discussed the progress being made in the Hay case and reported that Mr. Hay offered willingness to give certain information that he claims would be valuable to the village in settling the bond over-issue, on the condition that the board give a recommendation of leniency in sentence to the court. This recommendation the board would not give.
