AN OPEN DRAW AT CHICAGO CAUSES AN ACCIDENT.

A Cab Goes Over the Bank and the Driver and a Young Woman are Drowned-Other Casualties.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Two persons were drowned in the river at Washington street last night. A coupe carrying three persons plunged into the open draw and only one was taken cut alive. The cabman, Rufus Terry of 576 West Lake street, and Miss Carrie Green, ?! North Leavitt street, were drowned. John Shelden of 571 Fulton street, the other occupant of the carriage, was rescued.

About 9:15 o'clock the Washington street bridge was swung for the steamer Commodore. The draw was open full width and the bridge at a standstill when the carriage rapidly approached from the west viaduct. from the elevation over the railway tracks there is a considerable decline to the bridge. A slight rain had made the oak floor slippery. A falling mist and the reek from the river made the lights dim and uncertain. The blazing electric lamps at the verge of the draw only made the darkness more de-lusive and tr. acherous. The cabman evidently failed to observe the red light of the open bridge and the dark chasm of the draw until within a few yards of it. He was driving at a moderate gait, but the descent accelerated the pace of the horse and the slippery floor made him unmanageable. The driver surged on the reins and attempted to pull the animal to one side. The horse slid forward on his haunches, but could not be turned aside In a moment the edge of the draw was reached and horse and carriage plunged twenty feet into the black, inky water be ow. A wild, piercing scream from the young woman was the first signal to the bridge-tender that a catastrophe had happened. During the frightful descent the driver and Mr. Sheldon leaped from the carriage. The vehicle sunk to the bottom of the river at once. Miss Green had become entangled in the carriage or was imprisoned in its top.

Scarcely ten feet from the place where the carriage sunk was the tu; Chicago. Sheldon was seized with a grappling-hook and pulled aboard. The driver swam to the abutment, but, finding no foot-hold, sunk. He was speedily rescued, but died in a few moments.

FLAYED A WOMAN.

The Most Dastardly Outrage Yet Inflicted by Indiana White Caps.

Indianapolis, Ind. Sept. 28-A special to the News from Birds Eye, Ind., says: "This country is once more disgraced by mon work, which is doubly disgraceful in that it is perpetrated upon a defenseless we man. Mrs. Harmon lived at Mentor, one mile west of here. Last night she was visited by a body of thirty men. who tied her to a post near her house and applied fifty lashes to her bare body. After performing their work they called upon another woman named Mrs. Freeman, and warned her to leave the place within twenty-four hours or they would treat her to the same dose. She immediately ceparted. Then the White-Caps called upon Jacob Sapenfield, and ordered him to visit Mrs. Harmon, untie her, and publish to the neighbors on penalty of twenty-five lashes. what they had done. When Spakenfield reached the helpless woman, he found her tied to a post almost naked. Her body was torn from every pore, while across her abdomen was a gash twelve inches long and so deep as to leave the bowels exposed. Scattered around were the great hickory switches with which the woman had been flayed. No one knows who composed the mob nor whence they came, though nearly every citizen in town saw them by the light of the moon. The community is enraged that such an awful thing should have happened in their midst. Mrs. Harmon and her daughter were whipped in Birds Eye two years ago just before they moved to Mentor."

FURNISHED CONVICTS ARMS

Liberate California Prisoners.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 29.-S. W. Sullivan of Watsonville, Cal., was yesterday arrested on the charge of having furnished arms and ammunition to prisoners in the State prison at San Questin in order to assist them in making their escape. Sullivan's brother, C. C. Sullivan, who is serving fifty years in the prison for murder, communicated through George C. Weiles, who is in for three years for stealing a letter, was employed as servant in the house of the prison physician, who lives outside the walls. Sullivan of Watsonuille gave the arms to Welles wrapped in rubber. Welles put them in a bucket of milk, which he carried daily into the prison. Once there they were given to the other Sullivan and to the other Sullivan and then to Abraham Turcott, a life convict, who was leader in the plot. After a while Welles became frightened and confessed to the prison officials, who watched the men and three weeks ago, believing a crisis was at hand, arrested seven of them and placed them in solitary confinement. Friday they con-fessed and gave up the weapons, which had been secreted under the floor of the carpenter shop.

BULLETS FOR SERENADERS. A Vermont Charivari Party Given a

Warm Reception. PITFORD, Vt., Sept. 29.-A great stir has been caused here by a shooting affair that took place last night. Carlos Hitchcock, aged seventy, recently came here with a young bride, said to be a Detroit woman, and last night, according to local custom was treated to a noisy serenade by a crowd of men and

Tin pans, drums and other sleep-disturbing instruments were used and Hitchcock refused to either treat or make a speech. At last, while the noise was at its height, three shots were fired by some one, the third striking William Dutello in the room. Hitchcock was immediately arrested. He is a feeble old man with both hands maimed from an explosion years ago, and with defective eye-sight. He testified that he had no firearms and had fired none. Hisstory was corroborated by his hired man. As it could not be proved he had fired the shots he was discharged.

Great disapproval was manifested at the result of the trial. Hitchcock's runner, had joined the chase, and counsel threaten prosecution of the members of the charivari party as soon as they can be identified. Hitchcock is wealthy and lives in Washington, except in the summer.

Suddenly he and the men on the lookout saw a white light directly ahead. He was in a quandry as to what action should be taken, when a green light appeared on the unknown vessel. The bow of the Circassia was set to port. In a few moments the unknown showed a red light and was directly under the steamer's bow. The engines were reversed, but before they had any effect the crash came. A hole four feet square was smashed into the Circassia's starboard bow. The jibboom and bowsprit of the head to foot as if by a knife, one schooner were carried away. The terrible wound, bleeding from Daylight proceeded on her way. The Circassia returned for repairs.

ALMOST A LYNCHING.

Arrest of the Man who Plotted to CHICAGO THE SCENE OF A MURDER AND RIOT.

> An Angry Mob Comes Near Stringing the Murderer Up-A Boy in Jail for Killing His Mother.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The brutal murder of Cornelius Sullivan by a negro, Joe Boles, at the foot of St. Clair street, was the signal for one of the most furious mob raids ever known in Chicago.

Five hundred infuriated men, bent on avenging Sullivan's murder, surged madly through the streets in pursuit of the murderer, Boles and Sandy Smith, another negro, narrowly escaped death at the hands of the mob. Officers were knocked down and trampled under foot. Bullets, brickbats and other missiles flew so promiscuously that it seemed for a time the entire police force of the city would be needed to suppress the not.

A wrangle started at the office of the Western Transit company, corner of St. Clair and Michigan streets, in which Richard Taylor, white, and "Sandy' Smith, colored, took a prominent part Boles, a quarreisome negro, pushed himself into the dispute in Smith's behalf. Boles had a huge jack-knife in his hand and was threatening Taylor, when Sullivan, better known about the docks as "Job Lots Kelly," told Boles to put up his knife if he wanted to fight. Boles made a rush at Sullivan, and, slashing at him, cut a horrible gash in his neck.

Sullivan fell back, and as he did so the negro raised the bloody blade and drove it deep into the victim's heart. The words "Hang the nigger;" broke the spell and in another instant a howling, furious mob of desperate men were in hot pursuit of the fugitive murderer.

Boles ran west in Michigan street to Pine and north in Pine. The mob pressed closly after him, armed with revolvers, knives, clubs, brickbats and all sorts of weapons. A shower of stones, clubs and bullets followed the murderer, and casual witnesses to the mad stampede ran for their lives.

As Boles turned north on Pine street a bullet from the mob tore through his arm, but he knew a pause meant death and ne dashed on like s demon. William McGinnis, a swift overtaking Boles at Indiana street tnrust a revolver to the fugitive shead and brought him to a halt.

"Get a rope!" "Shoot the nigger" "Hang him." were the hoarse cries which came from the maddened meb. Boles begged for mercy. McGinnis, after capturing him. turned his gun on the mob to keep it back. T. C. Cain, a railroad policeman, came to Mc-Ginnis' assistance, and the two men with drawn revolvers held the crowd at bay. At this juncture G. B. Valentine, ex-West Town clerk, came along in a buggy, and the negro's protectors Ginnis jumped in to hold the murderer and Valentine drove rapidly to the Boles' pursuers, thus foiled. returned down Fine street and came upon Smith, the negro whose quarrel Boles had taken up. The mob, thinking Smith was trying to aid Boles, chased him to the corner of 'Illinois and Pine streets. Officer Victor Johnson of the Central detail came to Smith's assistance and was knocked down and trampled under foot by the furious dockmen.

They seized Smith in front of Tewes' ice house, and securing a rope had slipped a noose around the negro's neck and passed the other end over a beam projecting from the ice house. The lynchers had already begun pulling Smith up, but just as he swung up from the ground Officer Leynolds of the Chicago avenue station rushed in and flourishing a revolver in each hand drove the lynchers back.

A Negro Resisting Arrest at Spartenburg, S. C., Kills the Mayor.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Sept. 29.—This little city, situated on the Charlotte & Atlanta railway, was the scene of a tragedy to-day. John Williams, a burly negro, was making a disturb-ance at home with his wife. Cries of all sorts were heard from that direction, and Mayor Henneman went to the house to find out the cause. He arrested Williams and was trying to prevent his escape until the police came to his assistance. Williams succeeded in pushing Henneman out of the door and while he was falling shot him in the back killing him instantly.
Groups of excited men gathered all over the city talking of nothing else. The jail was surrounded py a howling mob, and lacked only a leader to procure the prisonor. There is no doubt south Carolina will add another lynching to her list to night. Mayor Henneman some time ago prevented a mob from lynching Murderer Turner, an influential farmer who killed his brother-in-law. Henneman on this occasion mounted a cannon which the mob placed near the jail and with a pistol in his hand shouted that he would kill the first person who approached the jail. By his coolness Turner was saved.

The Friendless Girl.

I don't mean by this the girl who is alone in the world but I mean the girl who thinks she can not make friends, and who has become morbid and unhappy about it. In the first place, friends are not blocked out like caramels; you may have no end of acquaintances — pleasant ones — but the envelopes had been put up in the friends come with years. The two order in which they came, and to one weeks' acquaintance is not the one with whom it is wise to be confidential, nor should you count upon her eternal fidelity. My dear girl, in this busy world so many people have so much to do that they can not form many close friendships, and they chocse the people they prefer. If you are absolutely friendless, in the sense that I mean, the fault must lie a little with you. Probably you are a wee bit selfish, and selfishness and friendship, like oil and water, do not mingle well. You claim that you love everybody. Now love is too precious a thing to give to every one. tuppose I tell you a little story: There were once two beautiful fox-terriers; when a stranger came to the house where they lived one of them rushing to meet the visitor, lavished caresses upon her, and quickly coiled itself in been when she dressed the liftle one a most comfortable position on her for the first time. lap. The Art of Making a Home.

It seems a pity that the young woman who is about to establish a home and has a sum of money to spend for its garnishing can not be persauded from laying it all out at once. She robs herself of so much future enjoyment. The spick and span sets of furniture which are carelessly ordered from an upholsterer. and carried home and stood around her parlors by his men, will never afford her half the satisfaction she can get in a room for which to-day she Lys a chair, and next week, seeing that there must be a table to accompany the chair, she starts on a fresh shopping excursion, and finds a table V. into Antwerp. Such a room is a growth, a gathering together of household treasures, little by little. Each article, bought only when the need arises, or when something is happily found to just meet the need, will have a family history which makes it an entertaining as well as a valuable possession. Each couch and footstool is an achievement; each rug and curtain

Such a home built up gradually, with careful planning in each part, with thought and loving consideration in all its details, acquires a far deeper value than could be purchased by the longest purse from the most fashionable cabinetmaker.

Gradually my queer little business increased, so by the time my daughters grew up I never had to buy shoes for them or myself, and I often employ girls outside when my customers' sizes do not fit any of us.

"I keep the buttons on the shoes in addition to stretching them when new. I charge 10 cents for putting the buttons on, no matter how many or how few there may be to replace. I also brush and put shoe polish on them. The charge for this is 25 cents, and the shoes are sent to me and called for. For years, I think, I stood alone in the business, but now the visiting maid includes the care of shoes in her duties, so that but for having my own patronesses she would cut the ground from under my always new-shod feet."

Saved Her Letters. There is a room in a house on West End avenue, New York, that is the joy of the girl owner. For a year this maiden saved the cover of every letter she received, and packed them and there were mountains of fine archiaway in bundles of 100. When a large number had been collected she went to work we a pot of mucilage and covered he walls. Of course, order in which they came, and to one who knew they told many a story. In one place there were great numbers in the same hand, a firm, manly one. For a time these predominated, and then ceased. After this the girl had been addressed care of Mrs. -, in a country villarge-that was during the two weeks she spent with her chum for a change of scene and associations. The next set of envelopes were evidently addressed by her chum's brother. A lot of foreign post-marks reminded her of her sister's wedding trip, and the serrivly ones appearing regularly all three ;h came from the brother at boarding school. Down near the end are a few in the delicate Italian hand taught fifty years ago. These were from her mother, and had brought word every day of how the little niece was "just the image of Fan," and how frightened Fan had

SAVIOR'S LIFE.

Thirty-Three Years on Earth and Nineteen Hundred Years in Heaven-Science, Art, etc.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 27. - This is Sacrament Sunday at the Brooklyn Tabernacle. The services as usual on these occasions were very solemn and impressive. The morning service opened with the Long Metre Doxology. The Grand Offertoire by Grison was exquisitely rendered by Prof. Henry Eyre Browne, and the service closed with the majestic Coronation Hymn. Dr. Talmage's discourse was on 'The March of Christ through the Centuries," and his text Revelation 19:12, "On His head were many Crowns."

May your ears be alert and your thoughts concentered, and all the powers of your soul aroused, while I through the centuries." You say, "give us then a good start, in rooms of vermillion and on floor of mosaic and amid corridors of porphyry and under canopies died in all the splendors of the setting sun." You can have no such starting place. At the time our Chieftain was born, there were castles on the beach of Galilee, and places at Jerusalem, and imperial bath-rooms at Jaricho, and obelisks at Cairo and the Pantheon at Rome, with its corinthian portico and its sixteen granite columns: and the Partheon at Athens with its glistening coronet of temples; tecture in many parts of the world. But none of them were to be the starting place of the Chieftain I celebrate. A cow's stall, a winter month, an atmosphere in which are the moan of camels and the baning of sheep and the barking of dogs and the rough banter of nostleries. He takes his fl. st journey before he could walk. Armed desperadces with hands of blood were ready to snatch him down into butchery. Rev. William H. Thompson, the veteran and beloved missionary whom I saw this last month in Denver, in his eighty-sixth year, has described, in his volume entitled "The Land and the Book," Bethlehem as he saw it. Winter before last I walked up and down the gray hills of Jura lime-stone on which the village now rests. The fact that King David had been born there had not during ages elevated the village into any special attention. The other fact that it was the birthplace of our Chieftain did not keep the place in after years from special dishonor, for Hadrian built there the grove of Adonis and for one hundred and eighty years the religion there observed was the most abhorrent debauchery the world has ever seen. Cur Chieftain was considered dangerous from the start. world had put suspicious eyes upon him, because at the time of his birth, the astrologers had seen stellar commotions, a world out of its place and shooting down toward a caravansary. Star divination was a science. As late as the eighteenth century it had its votaries. At the court of Catharine de Medici it was honored. Kepler, one of the wisest philosophers that the world ever saw, declared it was a true science. As late as the reign of Char'es H. Lilly, an astrologer was called before the House of Commons in England to give his opinion as to future events. For ages the bright appearance of Mars meant war; of Jupiter, meant power; of the Pleiades, meant storms at sea. And as history moves in circles, I do not know but that after a while it may be found that, as the moon lifts the tides of the sea and the sun affects the growth or blasting of crops, other worlds besides those two worlds may of individuals and nations in this We follow him into the Quarantania, the mountain of temptation, its side to this day black with robbers dens. Look! Up the side of this mountain, come all the forces of perdition to effect our Chieftain's capture. But although weakened by forty days and forty nights of abstinence, he hur s all Pandemonium of 1891 than at any time since the year down the rocks, suggestive of how he can huri into helplessness all our temptations. And now we climb right after him, up the tough sides of the "Mount of Beatitudes," and on the highest pulpit of rocks, the Valley of Hatin before him, the lake of Galilee to the right of him; the Mediteranean Sea to the left of him, and he preaches a sermon that will yet transform the world with its applied sentiment. Now we follow our Chieftain on Lake Gali-

have something to do with the destiny

We continue to follow our chieftain. and here is a blind man by the wayside. It is not from cataract of the eye or from ophthalmia, the eye extinguisher of the East; but he was born blind. "Be openedl" he cries, and first there is a smarting of the eyelids, and then a twilight, and then a mid noon, and then a shout, "I see! I see." Tell it to all the blind, and they, at least, can appreciate it. And here is the widow's dead son, and here is the expired damsel, and here is Lazarus! "Live" our Chieftain cries, and they live. Tell it through all the bereft households; tell it among the graves. And here around him gather the deaf and the dumb and the sick, and at his word they turn on their couches, and blush from awful pallor of helpless illness to rubicund health and the swollen foot of the dropsical sufferer becomes fleet as a roe on the mountains. The music oa the grove and household wakens the deaf ear, and lunatic and maniac return into bright intelligence, and the leper's breath becomes as sweet as the breath of a child, and the flesh as roseate. Tell it to all the sick, through all the homes, through all the hospitals." Tell it at twelve o'clock at night; tell it at two o'clock in the morning; tell it at half-past three, and in the last watch of the night, that Jesus walks the tempest.

Now we follow our Chieftain until, for the pattry sum of fifteen dollars, Judas sells him to his pursuers. Tell it to all the betrayed! If for ten thousand dollars or for five hundred dollars or for one hundred dollars your interests were sold out, consider for how much cheaper a sum the Lord of earth and heaven was surrended to humiliation and death.

torches and lanterns and we hear the ery of a mob of Nihilists. They are breaking in on the quietude of Gethsemane with clubs-like a mob with sticks chasing a mad dog. It is a herd of Jerusalem "roughs" led on by Judas to arrest Christ and punish him for being the loveliest and best being that ever lived. As in December, 1889, I walked on the way from Bethany; and at the foot of Mount Olivet, a half-mile from the wall of Jerusalem, through the Garden of Gethsemane, and under the eight venerable olive trees now standing, the r pomological ancestors having been witnesses of the occurrences spoken of, the scene of horror and of crime came back to me, until I shuddered with the historical reminis-

Still following our Chieftain, ascend the hill which Gen. Gordon, the great English explorer and arbiter first made a clay model of. It is hard climbing for our Chieftain, for he has not only two heavy timbers to carry on his back, the upright and horizontal pieces of the cross, but he is suffering from exhaustion caused by lack of speak to you of "the march of Christ | food, mountain chills, desert heats, whipping with elm-wood rods, and years of maltreatment. Now we follow our Chieftain as they carry his limp and lacerated formamid the flowers and trees of a gar-den, the gladioluses, the oleanders the lilies, the geraniums, the mandrakes, down five or six steps to an aisle of granite where he sleeps. But only a little while he sleeps there, for there is an earthquake in all that region, leaving the rocks to this day in their aslant and ruptured state declarative of the fact that something extraor. dinary there happened. And we see our Chieftain arouse from his brief slumber and wrestle down the ruffian Death who would keep him imprisoned in that cavern and put both heels on the monster, and coming forth with a cry that will not cease to be echoed until on the great resurrection day the door of the lost sepulchre shall be un-hinged and flung clanging into the debris of demolished cemeteries.

Now we follow our Chieftain to the shoulder of Mount Olivet, and without wings he rises, the disciples clutching for his robes too late to reach them, and across the great gulfs of space with one bound he gains that world which for thirty-three years had been denied his companionship, and all heaven lifted a shout of welcome as he entered. and of coronation as up the mediatorial throne he mounted. But still we follow our Chieftain in his march through the centuries, for invisibly he still walks the earth, and by the eye of faith we still follow him. You can tell where he walks by the churches, and hospitals, and reformatory institutions, and houses of mercy that spring up along the way. I hear his tread in the sick room, and in the abodes of bereavement. He marches on and the nations are gathering around him. The Islan is of the sea are hearing his voice. The continents are feeling his power. America will be his! Europe will be his! Asia will be his! Africa will be his! Australia will be his! New Zealand will be his! All the earth will be his! Do you realize that until now it was impossible for the world to until very recently has the world been found. The Bible talks about "the ends of the earth" and the "uttermost parts of the world" as being saved, but not until now have the "ends of the earth" been discovered and not until now have the "uttermost parts of the world" been revealed. The navi-gator did his work, the explorer did his work, the scientist did his work, and now for the first time since the world has been created has the world been known, measured off, and geographized, the lost, hidden, and un known tract has been mapped out and now the work of evangelization will be begun with earnestness and velocity as yes unimagined. The steamships are ready; the lightning express trains are ready; the printing presses are ready; the telegraph and telephone are ready; millions of Christians are ready and now see Christ marching on through the centuries. Marching on! Marching on! ! One by one governments will fall into line and constitutions and literatures will adore his name. More honored and worshiped is he in this year one, and the day hastens when all nations will join one procession "following the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. Marching on, marching on!! Greater and more thriling will be the spectacle when the world is all conquered for the truth and in front of the palace of heaven the kings and conquerors of all the allied powers of Christian usefulness shall salute each other, and recount the struggles by which they gained the triumph, and then hand over their swords to him who is the Chief of the conquerors, crying: "Thine, oh, Christ is the Kingdom; take the crown of victory; the grown of dominion; the crown of grace: the crown of glory." "On his head were many crowns."

Justice! Oh. Justice! Once while Mamoun was conversing with one of the most famous scholars in his realm, a woman claimed an interview. "Justice, O, prince! Justice, I implore! My brother left six hundred pieces of gold and his heirs have given me but a single one." "That was only proper," replied the caliph; "each of your brother's two daughters is entitled to one-third of his property, or four hundred in all. The widow's share is one-sixth, or one hundred pieces. Your brother's mother should receive one-eighth, or seventy-five pieces. You and your twelve brothers are entitled to the remaining twenty-five; but, as the law allows a double portion to the male, they have each two pieces of gold and you one."-Argonaut.

Dentists have discovered that tartar, a calcareous deposit on the teeth, is more abundant in persons of highly nervous temperament than in any others. The explanation, according to an observant dentist, is that persons of nervous temperament; secrete more saliva than others, and as tartar is carried by saliva in solution, the deposit in the case of such persons is unusually large.

THE tresty of 1817, which prohibits the United States from having a fleet on the lakes, ought to be abrogated. Its existence is too much like a tribute to fear. Although the prohipitory feature ostensibly applies also to England as a matter of fact it applies in practice only to America. England have a fleet of light draught gunboats on the lakes on short notice, by way of the north side city league grounds. The game St. Lawrence and the canals, whereas the United States must build at lake ports any naval vessels required. There fore a war with Great Britain would find all the American cities o the lake shores at the mercy of a British fleet. Although Americans came out victors from the war of 1812-'14, yet we submitted substantially to the same restriction regarding the lakes to which vanquished Russia reluctantly consented respecting the Black Sea after the Crimean war. There is of course no prospect of war with England but that is no good reason why Chicago, Buffalo, Milwaukee and other great centers of American population, commerce, and industry should be kept naked and detenseless against naval attack, Such a situation is apt to make England more stubborn and exacting as to any matter of difference between the two nations. She thinks that in the event of an appeal to arms she could cover the lakes almost immeadiately with vessels of destruction, whereas the United States at the best could not be ready for a lake fight unan be aprogated on six months' no- be fully paid for.

The gnome-like little man looked down, made a sort of inclination of his short body, and laid his hand upon his heart.

·I was never so presumptive, my dear lady. I never had the least inention of taunting you, as you express it, and as for your humor-can you suppose that I could expect to command where it is only mine to obey?"

"Your repentance is too sudden, it savors of the deathbed."

"Small wonder, when my life is in the balance."

"Your life?" She uttered the question incredulously, but not without curiosity. "My life-and for your word," he

But in your friend- give a new impulse to growth or will ship I can never trust-never!

It is not to be believed, that a man of my age should think of one thing bian, very softly. and say another-like a tetchy girl or a spoiled child. The stupidity of the thing! And then to have the idiotic utterances of the tongue registered and judged as a confession of faithor, rather, of faithlessness! A fool to the last, Keyork, as you always were -and who would make a friend of such a fool?"

Unorna leaned upon the back of the chair watching him, and wondering whether, after all, he were not in earnest this time. Suddenly, he stopped, looked at her and came toward her. His manner became very humble.

"You are right, my dear lady," he said. "I have no claim to your forbearance for my outrageous humor. I cannot even ask you to forgive me, for if I tell you I am sorry you will not believe me."

His voice trembled and his bright eyes seemed to grow dull and misty. "Let this be our parting," he continued, as though mastering his emotion. "I have no right to ask anything. When I have left you, when you are safe forever from my humors and my tempers and myself-then, do not think unkindly of Keyork Arabian. He would have seemed the friend he is, but for his unruly tongue."

Unorna hesitated a moment, then she put out her hand, convinced of his sincerity, in spite of herself. Let bygones be bygones, Keyork, she said. "You must not go, for I believe you." You are as kind as you are good,

Unorna, and as good as you are beautiful," he said, with a gesture which would have been courtly in a man of noble stature, but which was almost grotesque in such a dwarf, he raised her fingers to his lips.

"I must be going." she said. "So soon?" exclaimed Keyork, re gretfully. There were many things I had wished to say to you today, but

It is strange, but I connot recall it. He is very tall, wears a dark beard, has a pale, thoughtful face. But I need not describe him, for he told me he had been with you this morning. That is not the point. He is a little mad, poor man, that is all. It struck me that, if you would, you might save him. I know something of his story, though not much. He once loved a young girl, now doubtless dead, but whom he still believes to be alive, and he spends—or wastes—his life in a useless search for her. You might cure him of the delusion."

"How do you know the girl is > How am I to convince him that he is mistaken, and that the girl is dead?"

"That is very simple, You will hypnotize him, he will yield very easily, and you will suggest to him very forcibly to forget the girl's existence.

"That is true," said Unorna, in a low voice. "Are you sure that the effect will be permanent?" she asked with sudden anxiety.

"A case of the kind occurred in Hungary last year."

·It will interest me extremely. I am very grateful to you for telling me about him." Unorna had watched her companion narrowly during the coversation, expecting him to betray his knowledge of a connection between the Wanderer's visit and the strange that the new Antony, who is to lose question she had been asking of the sleeper when Keyork had surprised her. she asked. "Admirably," replied the other, beginning to understand.

"Keyork Arabian," whispered Unorna, coming close to him and bending down to his ear. "Israel Kafka is alone under the palm tree where I always sit. He is asleep and he will not wake."

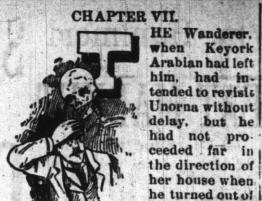

The gnome looked up and nodded gravely. But she was gone almost before she had finished speaking the words.

"As upon an instrument," said the little man, quoting Unorna's angry speech. "Truly I can play upon you but it is a strange music.

Half an hour later Unorna returned to her place among the flowers, but Israel Kafka was gone.

The first week of the grand oper engagement at the Chicago Opera house has clearly demonstrated the superiority of the Minnie Hauk Opera company over any other orgunization which has ever been heard in Chicago in the English rendition of grand opera. FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

AN IMPROVED METHOD OF RO-TATING CROPS.

Winter Waste of Naked Land-Farmers Might Do Some Experimenting-Road-making-Milking Stool and Home Hints.

Improving Crop Rotation. Whenever farming has progressed beyond the first stage of clearing new land a rotation of crops is found necessary. The new settler has enough to do putting up buildings and making necessary fences to protect his crops to occupy spare time. It is an advantage to him if his crops require his labor only a short time each year, to sow or plant and to harvest. But there is no farming country in the world where men can live as men should, merely by working two or three weeks in a year. So the one crop has to give way to a variety. furnishing employment through as large a part of the year as possible.

Equally important to the soil itself is the rotation of crops proposed. Continuous cropping with any kind of grain or hoed crop exausts the soil of the elements of plant food which that crop requires. Land that is left unseeded is wasted in winter by floods that are the more destructive when forests are cleared away, and the bareness of the surface enables the frost to penetrate more deeply. By this time, too, the natural water courses made by decay of tree roots in the soil are closed up. This obliges the water that used to sink in the subsoil to run off on the surface. A few years of cropping, which leaves the land naked in winter, carries into crocks and rivers the larger part of its available plant food. It takes all that is soluble, and what cannot be thus carried off is only slowly put into condition for plants to use.

It is this winter waste of naked land that makes it so important and even necessary to keep the surface seeded as much as possible. Time was when grass either in pasture or hay was the main source of the manure the farmer used. Now thousands of farmers have learned that they can make far more barnyard manure from corn fodder than they can from hay grown on twice the amount of land. Yet so great is the advantage of clover that eat many plants that the cow does not even under this disability it is likely because they come from good, sub- always to be sown. Out of these facts some farmers of learned an improved solution. Taking a clover sod as the starting point ED. I. WILLITS, of Mrs. JAS. W. KIRK, Alma, Neb. This is keep the land partly covered. In the spring rye is plowed and the land sown with either oats or barley and seeded with clover. The next season the clover is allowed to get nearly into bloom, when it is plowed and followed with corn or potatoes again. Land thus treated keeps in good heart with the manure made from feeding the corn crop. It is a plan adopted by farmers who cultivate only a few acres. and combine milk selling with fruit growing and the selling of market regetables. If the cows are fed all the corn fodder they can eat, it greatly lessens the cost of grain and other feed to keep them in full flow of milk. -American Cultivator.

Experiments For Farmers.

There are a number of simple experiments which might be easily performed by farmers, the results of which would throw more light on their different operations and occasionally correct some mistakes into which they frequently fall. Take for instance the common opinion that the growth of herbage on the top of a soil shades it so effectually as to preserve the moisture and to prevent it drying in the sun's rays. The experiment may be tried by selecting a piece of grass sod where there is a rank growth of meadow and pasture, and pulverizing a few square feet to a few inches in depth. During some of the hottest days in summer examine the soil a few inches down on both portions, and it will be found that the soil where the grass plants have been pumping the moisture out of the ground is drier than the bare mellow earth where the evaporation has been much slower. Opportunities sometimes occur in farmers' gardens where a crop of pig weeds closely encumber contain spots of ground adjacent to spots of clean mellow earth. The pig weeds have thrown off the moisture more rapidly than the finely pulverized bare soil. One will be quite dry while the other has a distinct sup-ply of moisture. This experiment may cloth moistened with ammonia is all that be tried with more accuracy by weighing at the same time, a certain weight of fresh grass sod, and an equal weight of finely pulverized earth, each being equally moist. Expose them ten hours to the hot sun and then carefully weigh again. Accurate instruments will of course be required or the trial may be continued for several days.

A shading of dry litter will give a different result, as dead straw does not operate like the living plant. The operation then becomes strictly mulching, keeping the surface moist, which they are put away. living and growing plants cannot do. -Country Gentleman.

A Good Hog Trough.

Take the following bill of materials: One plank 2x12 inches by 14 feet; two scantlings 2x4 inches by 14 feet; two scantlings 2x4 inches by 8 feet; two ite ware. Iron turns this vegetable black, bolts 1-4x12 1-2 inches, ten bolts 1-4x6 1-2 inches each with two wrought washers. Place the scantlings on edge on top of plank so as to make a frame just the size of plank. Then through each end of long scantling bore 3-8. inch holes at center and just inside of short pieces. Put two long bolts scantling clear through plank, one through each short piece, and 4 through each long piece, one near each end and the other two spaced between. Put in bolts with threads up and screw up tight. Use good pine lumber. I have used one for two years and it is as good as new, does not leak when in the sun and cannot be upset. A board put lengthwise of trough and from 4 to 6 inches above will keep hogs from getting their feet into it. - National Stockman.

Road Making.

The bugbear that frightens so many out of any attempt at road improvement is the expence; and it is a myth. These extra taxes for this work will be made easier than any money was ever made before, because of the increased facilities for buying and selling you are furnished with all the year around, and property will rise so much in value, and the population increase where there are easy means of getting around, so that when the roads are built and paid for you will find it hard to tell how much it has cost you, it has been so little. The taxes levied to pay the interest on bonds issued for this purpose are lighter than the expense to keep the roads in repair under the old system. This has been proved Over good roads one horse can draw a load which will tax the strength of four over the roads in the original state. So the tax on the horse is less, and the money tax will be paid by valuation that does not now exist, and by people who are not now residents of the county. - National Farmer.

Value of Sheep.

One reason why the sheep is more valuable as an enricher of the soil upon which it feeds than the cow, is that while the cow consumes about six times as much food as the sheep, the six sheep would only take away in their fleeces a little less than two pounds of nitrogen and less than ten ounces of mineral matter, while the cow, if she gave 4000 pounds of milk, would take away twenty-six pounds of mineral fertilizer, largely phosphate of lime, and twenty-five pounds of nitrogen, or thirteen times as much nitrogen and forty-three times as much mineral as six sheep. The six sheep are supposed to weigh about the same number of pounds and eat about as much food as a cow, but they will eat. - Country Gentleman.

How to Catch Fowls. Take a piece of wire about the size of telegraph wire, and make a long. slender hook, that will play over the shank of the bird but will not allow the foot to slip through it, doubling it over one end for a handle, the total length being about four feet. Practice will perfect you in the art. Have a nail to hang the hook on and keep

SUBSTITUTION ON THE DECLINE.

There is less "substitution" going on now than before the recent editorial convention. Every respectable newspaper in the country has faithfully stood by the sentiment of the convention in condemning store-keepers who thoughtlessiy or otherwise assisted in a conspiracy that was certainly driving standard articles for home use out of the local markets.
