LEAGUE OF THE HOLY CHILD.

On Saturday evening, 21st, the sixth annual entertainment of the League of the Holy Child took place at Irving Hall, Irving Park. For the past six months Mrs. Florance had drilled and tutored the children who took part in the performance; not only in tableaux, etc., but also the steps they took in dancing. This league was created in Irving Park by Mrs. Florance six years ego, and each consecutive year it has been the custom to entertain the public and show the progress of the any emolument for her work, other than that of the knowledge of assisting the bow" and "The Darling of the Year" were the features of the entertainment on last Saturday. The performance opened with the celebrated and delightful overture, "La Gazza Ladra," by Rossini, performed by Mrs. C. F. Bixel, pianist, and W. Florance, violinist, after which "The Floral Rainbow" was presented as the curtain rose. Each young Miss was attired in a paper dress covered with flowers to represent the different months of the year. These customs were extremely characteristic and of a very high order of paper work. The large audience retired more than well pleased with the show, and Mrs. Florance has been requested to repeat the performances, but as yet has not concluded to do so. Every dress and flower used on the stage was made under her supervision. It was pronounced a success.

A WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

One of the greatest places of interest to be seen by visitors to Chicago is the Libby Prison War Museum, which is open daily (Sundays included) from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. But few people realiz: what an enormous project it was to remove that historical old structure from Richmond to Chicag ane rebuild it exactly as it stood in Dixie Land. It contains 900,060 bricks, its dimensions outside are 130x110 ieet and it is four stories high, and notwithstanding its great size it does not deviate an inch as it stands in Chicago today, from its original proportions in Richmond. It contains twelve spacious rooms, all filled to sen's hall the second Monday in this month, overflowing with wonderful, interesting and valuable relics of the late war. In fact, it is the most extensive museum of the kind in the world, and nearly a half million dollars have been expended in establishing it. It has the honor of showing to the public the first exhibit to arrive in Chicago for the World's Fair-Sir Antonio Moro's original life size oil portrait of Christopher Columbus, painted at the Court of Spain in 1543 for Margaret, Queen of the Netherlands, and conceded to be the only authentic portrait of the great navigator extant. TRADE REVIEW.

Western Cities Enjoying a Boom Becaus of Bounteous Crops.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 .- R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "A week broken by a holiday has shown the usual characteristics-weak speculation, active retail trade, and moderate wholesale business. But the great factors which go to make national prosperity are unaltered.

"At Chicago some decrease is seen in cured meats, lard, butter, and cheese, but a slight increase in barley, 20 per cent in flour, the week's trade one-half in hides, and receipts of dressed beef and corn are double last year's, and of rice and wheat three times last year's. Merchandise sales largely exceed those of last year and prospects are favorable.

"At Milwaukee trade is satisfactory, but larger in the West where crops and money are plenty.

"The receipts of cotton exceed those of the same week last year by 50,000 bales and the exports by 92,000 bales, but the stocks in this country are 521,-000 bales larger. Wheat receipts at the West continue at the rate of more than 8,000,000 bushels for the full week and exports have been 1,300,000 bushels of wheat alone from Atlantic ports for three days of the present week. Cornis coming forward fairly, and after November a sharp decline in prices is ex-

"Money is comparatively easy and collections generally fair. The exports of products in four weeks at New York have exceeded last year's by $7,461,482 in value, indicating an aggregate for the month probably exceeding $95,000,-000, and at the same time there is a decrease of 10 per cent in value of im-

STOLEN BY THEIR MOTHER.

Mr. Carson of Grand Rapids, Mich., I

Minus His Wife and Two Children. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 30 .- A year ago Amanda Carson began suit for divorce from William H. Carson. The wife prayed the court for the custody of the children, a boy, Charles, aged 5 years, and Ida, aged 9, who have lived with their father since the separation. The court withheld its decree and the mother became almost frantic. Late yesterday afternoon a hack stopped before the Carson home. The children were in the yard and they were hurried into the hack and away toward the city. The father followed soon after, but no trace of the children can be discovered. He has little doubt, however, with when they have gone and officers will assist in the search.

T. Beals, the millionaire banker, whose 2-year-old boy was kidnaped Thanksnight. During the day he made an offer of $5,000 for the infant's return, and on its being brought to him paid over the money. It was a little after 7 o'clock when a strange man, wearing a wig and a false face such as are used in masquerades, called to see Mr. Beals. He said he was a detective, that he had found the Billings of New Orleans, the present abductors of the lost child, and they District Judge of Southern Louisiana. demanded $20,000 for its return. Mr. Beals answered that his offer of $5,000 ctill stood good, but he would decline to pay the larger sum, and finally a bargain was struck. The man agreed to return with the stolen child and Mr. Beals promised not only to pay the reward but to secure the deliverer immanity from arrest. Then the man went away.

Then Mr. Beals saw the police. They were anxious to arrest the unknown man were he to return, but the anxious father would not listen to them. " promised that he should not be touched while performing his part of the contract," he said, "and I shall keep my Judgeship, with headquarters at Chicaword." So he sent the police away and waited for his visitor to return. At 10:30 o'clock the door-bell rang and Mr. Beals answered it himself. On the steps stood the visitor of the earlier part of the evening, disguised as before. In his arms he carried what might have been a child, but wrapped up so as to be unrecognizable. Silently Mr. Beals ushered him into the house and silently the man entered.

"Well?" said Mr. Beals when once they were in the dining-room.

"Here he is," answered the man gruffly, as he took the wrappings off the form in his arms and disclosed the lost child sleeping soundly. "Now line, while on her way from Buffalo to where's the stuff."

CHICAGO OPERA-HOUSE.

Sinbad's welcome was a royal one on its return from its western tour, and during the past week there has not teen a performance of the big specta-cle which has not drawn an audience which filled the Chicago opera-house to the doors. The week just past makes the sixteenth auring which Sinbad has been presented in Chicago, and the indications now are that the three following weeks of its run here will be quite as extraordinary from a financial standpoint as the one just ended. The piece throughout is bright and attractive as ever, and the several new songs and features which have recently been introduced all appear to be popular. Particularly is this so in regard to the quartette between Louise Eissing, Ida Mulle, Henry Norman and Spencer Gracey, entitled "The Seren-ade." Foy's whimsical ditty with pantomimic accompaniments, "There are Moments When One Wants to be Alone" is exceedingly elever and amusing. Henry Norman also has a new song entitled "Joyful, Joyful," which is a companied by his marine band. Dan Hart for the first time has a slight opportunity to exhibit his talents in a song which accompanies his entrance, entitled: "I Haven't Got It Now." Foy's new song, "In a Minute" is also very catchy, but perhaps the most attractice of the new features is the pas de deux done by Fraulein Martha Irmler and Fraulein Henrietta Rosche, in the winter ballot scene. The dance is costumed magnificently and is gracefully executed. After the present run Sinbad will not again be seen in Chicago, as it goes east to fill engagements for the remainder of the winter season.

NEW WINDSOR THEATER.

Commencing Sunday matinee, Dec. 6, M. B. Leavits's new spectacular panto-mime burlesque "Spider and Fly." BOSTON HERALD. Sept. 15, 1891.

The attraction which drew a large andience to the Howard last evening was M. B. Leavitt's new spectacular pantomime burlesque, 'Spider and Fly." It is a combination of burlesque and choice hits culled from the vandeville, introducting plenty of good singing and dancing with a sprinkling of the acorobatic and grotesque, while it also contains and attractive bal et.

The scenic effect; and co tumes are superb. The different marches and dances of the ballet were loudly applanded. A number of uni ue and pleasing specialties were introduced, which met with the decided approval of the audience. Miss Johnstone is ramarkably grace ul and shapely. Her carriage is the poetry of motion and physical beauty, and she can sit on a lounge most elo-quently. Her face would be heavy were it not for effective and heavy eyes. Her performance is so finely studied that it in the main gives the illusion of reality. Her La is a creature bred of self-worship; loving her husband as such a one could. At the best she would make him only her paramour, while using other men as her purse bearers.

"Miss Johnstone was quite coy, or delayed, in answering a prolonged call after the fourth act. But the honors were plainly most emphatic for Gustavus Newel, who played Pierre Willard, the duped husband, with due reserve, and, on occasion, with needed force and fire."

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 29.—Dr. Talmage's ssrmon this morning had a distinctly Thanksgiving character. The appearance of the Tabernacle was in keeping with it. The specimens of fruits and harvest products with which the pulpit and galleries were decorated for the Thanksgiving day services were still in their places. Cotton rice, wheat, sugar-cane, rye, oats, corn, and fruits, and products from the North, South, East, and West put before the audience as by an object lesson the foundance of the national harvest. The Doctor's text was taken from Psaim 148: 10, 12 and 13: "Beast and all cattle; creeping things and flying fowl: both young men and maidens; old men and children: let them praise the name of the Lord."

children: let them praise the name of the Lord."

What a scene it was when last Thursday at the call of the President and Governors, this nation assembled to chant the praised of God. But the day was too short to celebrate the Divine goodness of such a year. The sun did not rise over Brooklyn until one minute before 7 o'clock that merning, and it set 4 o'clock and thirty-five minutes that evening. What a small space of time in which to meditate upon twelve months of benefactions. So I add to that day this Sabbath morning service, and with the fruits and harvests of the earth still glorifying the pulpit and the galleries, ask you to continue the rehearsal of the Divine goodness.

By a sublime egotism man has come to appro-

By a sublime egotism man has come to appropriate this world to himself, when the fact is that our race is in a small minority. The instances of human life, as compared with the instances of animal life, are not one to a million. We shall enlarge our ideas of God's goodness

We shall enlarge our ideas of God's goodness and come to a better understanding of the text if, before we come to look at the cup of our blessing, we look at the goodness of God to the irrational creation.

Although nature is out of joint, yet even in its disruption I am surprised to find the almost universal happiness of the animal creation. On a summer day, when the air and the grass are most populcus with life, you will not hear a sound of distress unless, perchance, a heartless school-boy has robbed a bird's nest, or a hunter has broken a bird's wing, or a pasture has been has broken a birt's wing, or a pasture has been robbed of a lamb, and there goes up a bleating from the flocks. The whole earth is filled with from the flocks. The whole earth is filled with animal delight—joy feathered, and scaled, and horned, and hoofed. The bee hums it; the frog croaks it, the squirrel chatters it; the quail whistles it; the lark carols it; the whale spouts it. The snail, the rhinoceros, the grizzly bear, the toad, the wasp, the spider, the shell-fish, have their homely delights—joy as great to them as our joy is to us. Goat climbing the rocks; anaconda crawling through the jungle; buffalo plunging across the prairie; crocodile basking in tropical sun; seal puffing on the ice; ostrich striding across the desert, are so many bundles of joy; they do not go moping or melancholy; they are not only half supplied; God says they are filled with good are filled with good

The worm squirming through the sod up-

The worm squirming through the sod upturned of plowshare, and the ants racing up and down the hillock, are happy by day and happy by night. Take up a drop of water under the microscope, and you find that within it there are millions of creatures that swim in a hallelujah of gladness. The sounds in nature that are repulsive to our ears are often only utterances of joy—the growl, the croak, the bark, the howl. The good God made these creatures, thinks of them ever, and will not let a plough share turn up a mole's nest, or fisherman's hook transfix a worm, until by eternal decree, its time has come. God's hand feeds all these broods, and shepherds all these feeds all these broods, and shepherds all these flocks, and tends all these herds. He sweetens the clover-top for the oxen's taste; and pours out crystalline waters, in mossed cups of rock, for the hind to drink, out of on his way down the crags, and pours nectar into the cup of the honeysuckle to refresh the humming-bird; and spreads a banquet of a hundred fields of buckwheat, and lets the honey-bee put his mouth to any cup of all quet of a hundred fields of buckwheat, and lets the honey-bee put his mouth to any cup of all the banquet and tells the grasshopper to go anywhere he likes, and gives the flocks of heaven the choice of all the grain-fields. The sea anemone, half-animal, half-flower, clinging to the rock in mid-ocean, with its tentacles spread to catch its food, has the cwner of the universe to provide for it. We are repulsed at the hideousness of the elephant, but God, for the comfort and convenience of the monster puts 40. and convenience of the monster, puts 40,000 distinct muscles in its proboscis.

I go down on the barren sea-shore and say, "No animal can live in this place of desolation," but all through the sands are myriads of little insects that leap with happy life. I go down by the marsh and say, "In the damp place, and in these loathsome pools of stagnant water, there will be the quietness of death," but, lo! I see the turtles on the rotten log sunning themselves, and hear the bogs quake with multitudinous life. When the unfledged robins are hungry, God shows the old robin where she can get food to put into their open mouths. Winter is not allowed to come until the ants have granarled their bayyest and the source have allot their their harvest, and the squirrels have filled their cellar with nots. God shows the hungry ichneuman where it may find the crocodile's eggs, and in artic climes there are animals that God so lavishly clothes that they can afford to walk through snow-storms in the finest sable, and ermine, and chinchilla, and no sooner is one set of furs worn out than God gives them a new one. He helps the spider in its architecture of its gossamer bridge, and takes care of the color of the butterfly's wing, and tinges the cochineal, and helps the moth out of the chrysalis. The animal creation also has its army and navy. The most insignificant has its means of defense; the wasp its sting; the reptile its tooth; the bear its paw; the dog its muzzle; the elephant its tusk; the fish its scales: the bird its swift wing; the raindeer its antlers: the roe its fleet foot. We are repelled antiers; the roe its fleet foot. We are repelled at the thought of sting, and tusk, and hoof, but God's goodness provides them for the defense of the animal's rights.

Yea, God in the bible announces his care for these orders of creation. He says that he has heaved up fortifications for their defense—Psalm civ., 18: "The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats, and the rocks for the conies." He watches the bird's nest—Psalm civ., 17: "As for the stork, the firstness are her house." He for the stork, the fir-trees are her house. He sees that the cattle have enough grass—Psalm sees that the cattle have enough grass—Psalm civ., 14: "He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle." He sees to it that the cows, and sheep, and horses have enough to drink—Psalm civ., 10:11: "He sendeth the springs into the valleys, which run along the hills; they give drink to every beast of the field; the wild asses quench their thirst."

Amid the thunders of Sinai God uttered the rights of cattle, and said that they should have a Sabbath. "Thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy cattle." He declared with infinite emphasis that the ox on the threshing-floor should have the privilege of eating some of the grain as he trod it out, and muzzling was forbidden. If young birds were taken from the nest for food, the despoiler's life depended on the mother going free. God would not let the mother-bird suffer in one day the loss of her young and her own liberty. And he who regarded in olden time the conduct of man toward the brutes, to-day looks down from heaven and is interested in every minnow that swims the stream, and every rook that cleaves the air, and every herd in every minnow that swims the stream, and every rook that cleaves the air, and every herd that bleats, or neighs, or lows in the pasture.

Why did God make all these, and why make them so happy? How account for all this singing, and dancing, and frisking amid the irrational creation? Why this heaven for the animalcule in a dewdrop? Why for the condor a throne on Chimborazo? Why the glitter of the phosphorus in the ship's wake on the sea, which is said to be only the frolic of millions of insects? Why the perpetual chapting of so many voices from the irrational creation in earth, and air, and ocean—beasts, and all cattle, creeping things, and flying fow!, permitted to join in the praise that goes up from seraph and archangel? Only one solution, one explanation, one answer—God is good. "The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord."

one answer—God is good. "The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord."

I take a step higher, and notice the adaptation of the world to happiness of man. The sixth day of creation had arrived. The place of the world was made, but their was no king to live in it. Leviathan ruled the deep; the eagle the air; the lion the field; but where was the sceptre which should rule all? A new style of being was created. Heaven and earth were represented in his nature. His body from the earth beneath; his soul from the heaven above. The one reminding him of his origin, the other speaking of his destiny—himself the connecting link between the unimal creation and angelic intelligence. In him a strange commingling of the temporal and the eternal, the finite and the infinite; dust and glory. The earth for his floor, and heaven for his roof; God for his Father; eternity for his lifetime.

The Christian anatomist, gazing upon the conformation of the humber of the strange continued.

Father: eternity for his lifetime.

The Christian anatomist, gazing upon the conformation of the human body, exclaims: "Fearfully and wonderfully made." No embroidery so elaborate, no gauze so delicate, no color so exquisite, no mechanism so graceful, no landiwork so divine. So quietly and mysteriously does the human body perform its functions, that it was not until five thousand years after the creation of the race that the circulation of the blood was discovered; and although anatomists of all countries and ages have been so long exploring this castle of life, they have only begun to understand it.

hand! In all its bones, and muscles, and joints, I learn that God is good.

Behold the eye, which, in its photographic gallery, in an instant catches the mountain and the sea. This perpetual telegraphing of the nerves; these joints, that are the only hinges that do not wear out: these bones and muscles of the body, with 14,000 different adaptations: these 100,000 glands. these 200,000,000 pores: this mysterious heart, contracting 4,000 times every hour—this chemical process of digestion; this laboratory, beyond the understanding of the most skilful philosophy; this furnace, whose heat is kept up from cradle to grave; this factory of life, whose wheels, and spindles, and hands are God-directed. If we could realize the wonders of our physical organization, we would be hypochondriacs, fearing every moment that some part of the machine would break down. But there are men here who have lived through seventy years, and not a nerve has ceased to thrill, or a muscle to contract, or a lung to breathe, or a hand to manipulate.

I take a step higher, and look at man's mental constitution. Behold the benevolence of God in powers of perception, or the faculty of transporting this outside world into our own mind—gathering into your brain the majesty of the storm, and the splendors of the day-dawn, and lifting into your mind the ocean as easily as you might put a glass of water to your lips.

Watch the law of association, or the mysterious linking together of all you ever thought, or knew, or felt, and then giving you the power to take hold of the clew-line and draw through your mind the long train with indescribable velocity—one thought starting up a hundred, and this again a thousand—as the chirp of one bird sometimes wakes a whole forest of voices, or the thrum of one string will rouse an orchestra.

Watch your memory—that sheaf-binder that

Watch your memory—that sheaf-binder that goes forth to gather the harvest of the past, and bring it into the present. Your power and velocity of thought—thought of the swift wing and the lightning foot; thought that outspeeds the star, and circles through the heavens, and weighs worlds, and, from poising amid wheeling constellations, comes down to count the blossoms in a tuft of mignonette, then starts again to try the fathoming of the bottomless, and the scaling of the insurmountable to be swallowed. to try the fathoming of the bottomless, and the scaling of the insurmountable, to be swallowed up in the incomprehensible, and lost in God!

In reason and understanding, man is alone. The ox surpasses him in strength, the antelope in speed, the hound in keenness of nostril, the eagle in far-reaching sight, the rabbit in quickness of hearing, the honey-bee in delicacy of tongue, the spider in fineness of touch. Man's power, therefore, consisteth not in what he can lift, or how fast he can run, or how strong a wrestler he can throw—for in these respects the ox, the ostrich, and the hyena are his superior—but by his reason he comes forth to rule all; through his ingenious contrivance to out-

-but by his reason he comes forth to rule all; through his ingenious contrivance to outrun, outlift, outwrestle, outsee, outhear, outdo. At his all-conquering decree, the forest that had stood for ages steps aside to let him build his cabin and cultivate his farm. The sea which raved and foamed upon the race has become a crystal pathway for commerce to march on. The thunder-cloud that slept lazily above the mountain is made to come down and carry the mail hags. Man dissatisfied with his

above the mountain is made to come down and carry the mail-bags. Man, dissatisfied with his slowness of advancement, shouted to the Water and Fire, "Come and lift!" "Come and draw!" "Come and help!" And they answered, "Ay, ay, we come;" and they joined hands—the fire and the water—and the shuttles fly and the rail-train rattles on, and the steamship comes coughing, panting, fiaming across the deep. He elevates the telescope to the heavens, and, as easily as through the stethoscope the physician hears the movement of the lung, the astronomer catches the pulsation of distant systems of worlds throbbing with life. He takes the microscope, and discovers that distant systems of worlds throbbing with life. He takes the microscope, and discovers that there are hundreds of thousands of animalcular living, moving, working, dying within a circle that could be covered with the point of a pin—animals, to which animals to which a rain-drop would be an ocean, a rose-leaf a hemisphere, and the flash of a fire-fly lasting enough to give them light to several generations.

I take a step higher, and look at man's moral nature. Made in the image of God. Vast ca-pacity for enjoyment: capable at first of eternal joy, and, though now disordered, still, through the racuperative force of heavenly grace, able to mount up to more than its original felicity: faculties that may blossom and bear fruit inexhaustibly. Immortality written upon every capacity: a soul destined to range in unlimited spheres of activity long after the world has put on ashes, and the solar system shall have snapped its axle, and the stars that, in their courses, fought against Sisera, shall have been slain, and buried amid the tolling thunders of the last day. e recuperative force of slain, and buried amid the tolling thunders of the last day.

You see that God has adapted everything to our comfort and advantage. Pleasant things for the palate; music for the ear; beauty for the eye; aroma for the nostril; kindred for our affections; poetry for our taste; religion for our soul. We are put in a garden, and told that from all the trees we may eat except here and there one. He gives the sun to shine on us, and the waters to refresh us, and food to strengthen us; and the herbs yield medicine when we are sick, and the forests lumber when we would build a house, or cross the water in a ship. The rocks are transported the water in a ship. The rocks are transported for our foundation; and metals upturned for our currency; and wild beasts must give us covering; and the mountains must be tunneled to let us pass; and the fish of the sea come up in our net; and the birds of the air drop at the flash of our guns; and the cattle on a thousand hills come down and give us meat. For us the peach-orchards bend down their For us the peach-orchards bend down their fruits, and the vineyards their purple clusters. To feed and refresh our intellect, ten thousand wonders in nature and providence—wonders of mind and body, wonders of earth, and air, and deep analogies and antitheses: all colors and sounds, lyrics in the air; idyls in the fields; conflagrations in the sunset; robes of mist on the mountains; and the "Grand March" of God in the storm. But for the soul still higher adaptation: a fountain in which it may wash; a ladder by which it may climb; a song of endless triumph that it may sing; a crown of unfading light that it may wear. Christ came to save it—came with a cross on his back; came with spikes in his feet; came when a cross on his back; came with spikes in his feet; came when no one else would come, to do a work which no one else would do. See how suited to man's condition is what God has done for him! Man is a sinner; here is pardon. He has lost God's image; Christ retraces it. He is a helpless; Almighty grace is proffered. He is a lost wanderer; Jesus brings him home, He is blind; and at one touch of him who cured Hartimeus, eternal glories stream into his soul. Jesus, I sing thy grace! Cure of worst disease! Hammer to smite off heaviest chain! Light for thickest darkness! Grace divine! Devils scoff at it, and men reject it, but heaven celebrates it:

I wish you good cheer for the national health Pestilence, that in other years has come to drive out its thousand hearses to Greenwood and Laurel Hill, has not visited our nation. It is a glorious thing to be well. How strange that we should keep our health when one breath from a marsh, or the sting of an insect, or the slipping of a foot, or the falling of a tree-branch might fatally assault our life! Regularly the lungs work, and their motion seems to be a spirit within us panting after its immortality. Our sight fails not, though the air is so full of objects which by one touch could break out the soul's window. What ship, after a year's tossing on the sea, could come in with so little damage as ourselves, though we arrive after a year's voyage to-day?

Voyage to-day?

I wish you good cheef for the national harvest. Reaping machines never swathed thicker rye, and corn-husker's reg never ripped out fuller ear, and mow-poles never bent down under sweeter hay, and wind-mill's hopper never shook out larger wheat. Long trains of white-covered wagons have brought the wealth down to the great thoroughfares. The garners are full, the store-houses are overcrowded, the canals are blocked with freights pressing down to the markets. The cars rumble all through the darkness, and whistle up the flagman at dead of night to let the Western harvests come down to feed the mouths of the great cities. Rice, King Grass, King Corn, King Wheat, King Rice, King Grass, King Coal,

We stand here to-day with our arms free to work, and our torgues free to speak. The bible—it is all unclasped. This pulpit—there is no chain around about it. There is no snapping of musketry in the street. Blessed be God that to-day we are free men, with the prospect and determination of always being free. No established religion: Jew and Gentile—Arminian and Calvinist—Trinitarian and Unitarian—Protestant and Roman Catholic—on the same footing. If persecution should come against the most unpopular of all sects, I believe that all other denominations would band together, and arm themselves, and hearts would be stout, and blood would be free, and the right of men to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences would be contested at the point of the bayone; and with blood flowing up to the bits of the horses' bridles.

A carpenter in Littleton, N. H., has as his most faithful companions three kittens and a young dog. They regularly follow the man to work every day, and while he is at work amuse themselves somewhere in the vicinity until dinner-time or the hour arrives to go home.

"Does his insanity assume a violent form?" inquired the physician. "No, sir," responded the relative in charge of the unfortunate man, "but he's always helping himself to a handful of something or other whenever he passes a peanut stand. He imagines he's a policeman."

"Yes," remarked the energetic man. "I've had a pretty busy time. After I turned out of bed this morning, I went and turned out a delinquent tenant. This afternoon I turned out a lot of letters, and altogether I think the day has turned out very well, so I think I'll turn out the gas and turn in."

An English clergyman was once addressing an audience of children. "Now, children," he said, "I propose to give you on the present occasion an epitome of the life of St. Paul. Perhaps some of you are too young to understand what the word 'epitome,' means. 'Epitome,' children, is, in its signification, synonymous with synopsis." Having made this simple and clear explanation to the children, the speaker went on with his story.

CDDS AND ENDS.

A minister in San Diego one day startled his audience by saying: "I have forgot-ten my notes and shall have to trust to Providence, but this evening I will come better prepared."

The trip to Alaska is made almost entirely on inland waters. The entire coast of British Columbia is lined with islands and between these and the mainland is a navigable channel.

supposed to be rheumatism of the right leg, recently consulted a surgeon about an abscess which formed near where the pain was the greatest. The result was the discovery that the supposed rheumatism had been caused by a bent pin which had in some manner become imbedded in

There is a dog in this city who appears to have a great fondness for smoking. He is frequently seen promenading South Ninth street with a corn-cob pipe in his mouth and, from all appearances he seems to enjoy himself immensely. He is often followed by two or three canine friends, who apparently have an admiration for his accomplishment, for, they gambol about him with many expressions of delight and envy.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"It isn't always easy to judge of a railroad's importance by its name," says a railroad man. "What do you know about the 'Pittsburg, Chicago and Great Western railroad!' The name is imposing, isn't it! Well, the road itself was built years ago by Judge White of Beaver county, Pennsylvania, who sunk quite a fortune in it. It ran from New Galilee, Pa., a place which never saw more than 200 inhabitants, to East Liverpool, O., an aggregate distance of twenty one miles." In some of the old countries men who toil have almost lost their names, and have become only a number. Every workman in Japan wears on his cap and on his back an inscription giving his business and his employer's name.

A Thanksgiving wedding occured at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stark. Miss Gussie, their elder daughter, was united in marriage to Jno. H. Harris by the Rev. M. H. Harris, Pastor Church of the Redeemer. The service was simple and of special form prepared by the Rev. Harris, und was pronounced by all as being very impressive. After the usual congratulations, an elegant repast was furnished and the newly wedded couple started for Milwaukee, their future home. Before departing the bride threw her boquet and then fled from the showers of rice. The presents were numerous and beautiful, showing the best wishes of their many friends. BUILT BY STUDENTS.

Comparatively few people are aware that Chicago has a building almost wholly built by the students of an industrial school Tie new building of the Institute of Technology 147 Throop street, is the first building west of New York city ever put up wholly or in part by students. No better evidence of the practical character of the instruction of a school could be desired.

The teaching of trades is in accordance with the broad plan of this institute which proposes to teach "any person, any study, day and evening. It now announces the organization of evening classes in plumiing and bricklaying, as well as architecture and engineering, beginning Nov. 21st next. CHAPTER XVII-CONTINUED.

The Wanderer was admitted without question. He found Unorna in her accustomed place. She had thrown aside her furs, and was sitting in an attitude of deep thought. Her dress was black, and in the soft light of the shaded lamp she was like a dark, marble statue, set in the midst of thick shrubbery in a garden. Her elbow rested on her knee, her chin upon her beautiful, heavy hand; only in her hair there was bright color.

"I come from Israel Kafka," said the Wanderer, standing still before

"What of him?" she asked, in a voice without expression. "Is he

"And you have brought me this message-this warning-to save me?" she said.

"As I tried to save him from you an hour ago. But there is little time. The man is desperate, whether mad or sane I cannot tell. Make haste. Determine where to go for safety, and I will take you there.

"I fancy it will not be safe to hesitate long," he said. "He is in earn-

"I would rather not receive your confidence," the Wanderer answered haughtily. "I came here to save your life and not to hear your confessions."

"And when you have heard you will no longer wish to save. If you choose to leave me here, I will wait for Israel Kafka alone. He may kill me if he pleases. I do not care. But, if you stay you shall hear what I have to say."

"I loved you from the moment when I first saw you," said Unorna, trying to speak calmly. "But you loved another woman. Do you remember her? Her name was Beatrice. and she was very dark, as I am fair. You had lost her and you had sought her for years. You entered my house, thinking that she had gone in before you. Do you remember that morning. It was a month ago to-day. You told me the story.'

"You have dreamed it," said the Wanderer in cold surprise. "I never loved any woman yet."

"How perfect it all was at first!" she exclaimed. "How smooth it seemed! How easy. You slept before me, out there by the river that very afternoon. And in your sleep I bade you forget. And you forgot wholly, your love, the woman, her very name, even as Israel Kafka forgot today what he had suffered in the now-and then, I shall die by your person of the martyr. You told him hand and my life will have been yours the story, and he believes you, because he knows me, and knows what I can'do. You can believe me or not, as you will. I did it."

"You are dreaming," the Wanderer repeated, wondering whether she was out of her mind.

"I did it. I said to myself that if I could destroy your old love, root it out from your heart and from your memory and make you as one who had never loved at all, then you would loved always! Tread upon me, tramlove me as you had loved her, with ple upon me, crush me-you cannot your whole soul. I said that I was beautiful-it is true, is it not? They had reached the exit now. A the same instant both heard some one enter at the other end and rapid footsteps on the marble pavement.

Unorna led the way through a narrow, winding passage, illuminated here and there by small lamps with shades of soft colors, blown in Bohemian glass.

A carriage was passing at a foot pace. The Wanderer stopped it, and helped Unorna to get in. The place was very near, and neither spoke, though he could feel her hand upon his arm. He made no attempt to shake her off. At the gate they both got out and he rang a bell that echoed through vaulted passages far away in the interior. "To-morrow," said Unorna, touch-

FOR A BRIDE.

Matters Were Very Alted an I the Groom Was Farlous.

'The funniest experience I ever had," said Colonel L. A. Leonard, of Cincinnati, was during a visit I recently made to New York in company with my sister. We went to the Grand Union hotel, and I requested the clerk to give us a couple of adjoining rooms.

"I understood the clerk to say that we were assigned to rooms 99 and 101. We were conducted to the rooms und I was shown to 99. Shortly afterward my sister informed me that she could not succeed in getting anyone to answer the bell, and requested me to ring mine and order a pitcher of icewater for her. I rang, and requested the boy who responded to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. Before going down stairs, a few minutes later, asked my sister if she received the ice-water, and was informed that she had not. I rang again and told the second boy to take a pitcher of icewater to room 101. I went below and soon returned, and was surprised to learn that no ice-water had been delivered in my sister's room.

"By that time I was interested, and told my sister that I would see that she got some ice-wa er if I had to go after it myself. So I rang once more and told the beliboy that a pitcher of ice-water must be taken to room 101 right away, and he said that he would surely attend to it.

"After waiting some time I made inquiry of my sister again, and she said that no ice water had come, and begged me not to bother myself about it, as it seemed to be a hopeless task. But I replied that water was cheap and she should have some sure. I went to the person in charge of our corridor and preferred a request that a pitcher of ice-water be sent to room 101. I received a promise that it should be attended to instanter. But it wasn't.

'My next attempt was to prevail upon the elevator-boy to take a pitcaler of ice-water to room 101. He declared that he would do so on the next

"He failed. In despair I went to the office of the hotel and asked the clerk if it were possible to have a pitcher of ice-water sent to room 101. " 'Certainly,' was the answer; that

So at 4 o'clock the bride and groom were awakened by a thundering knock at the door, which made them furious, and they were firmly persuaded that water fiend's scheme to annoy them.

Rescued by the Eleventh Indiana. Some time in February, 1865, the steamer Martha Washington had on board about 120 sick and wounded soldiers, bringing them to Baltimore, Md. and when some seven or eight miles below the city the steamer was frozen fast in the ice, The weather was not cold enough to freeze the ice thick enough to walk upon. In this condition the steamer remained several days, unable to communicate with the land or get provisions for those on board, and even after their condition was known it was hazardous to attempt to go to them.

Sergt. Henry Palmer, medical director of the Eighth corps, informed the Eleventh Indiana, then stationed at Baltimore, of the situation, and a number of the members of that regiment volunteered to go to the rescue of the steamer and if possible bring away the disabled.

The unsafe condition of the ice compelled us to take small boats and construct runners under them of boards, and by fastening a long rope to each boat and the men taking hold of the rope several rods apart, and one sure footed man at the boat to steer it clear of the holes in the ice, we reached the steamer, and by means of the ship's tackle the sick and wounded were lowered into our boats, covered up by blankets, and pulled to the nearest shore, about two miles away. We brought with us several army ambuto the general hospital in Baltimore. The day was exceedingly cold, especially on the ice, and Mrs. Gen. Lew Wallace and several of the wives of officers of our army, whose names I did not learn, came down to where we landed our precious loads, built fires. made coffee, and gave to the disabled soldiers as they were brought to shore, and strengthened us by hot coffee and such other things as they had. It was after dark before we brought the last of the comrades away, and past midnight before we reached our quardays before we got over the stiffness caused by walking on the ice and the strain upon our nerves. Not an accident occurred although the ice was open in places and very thin in others. Brig.-Gen. Harris, then in command of the Eight corps, at Balti-more, being informed of the circumstances, issued General Order No. 22, complimenting Capt. Ruckle and the members of the Eleventh Indiana, who had volunteered to perform so hazardons a task, and mentioned each man by

Don't Call Her Jane.

In private life Jane has ever been a good, wholesome name, but in court circles it has a rather bad record. For instance, Lady Jane Gray was beheaded for treason; Jane Seymour was one of the victims of King Hal; Jane Beaufort, wife of James I. of Scotland, was savagely murdered; Jeanne de Valois, wife of Louis XII., was repudiated for her want of personal beauty; Jeanne d'Albret, mother of Henry IV., was poisoned by Catherine de Medici; Jane of Castile lost her reason through the neglect of her husband, Philip the Handsome, Archduke of Austria: Jane I. of Naples caused her husband to be murdered, and married his assassin. and Jane II. of Naples was one of the most wanton of women: Jaenne of Arewas burned at the stake.

"I was badly hit at Gettysburg and it was something like this: When we first went into the battle there was a scattering fire-a man falling out here and there. The cracks of the rifles and whiz of the bullets increased in rapidity. "Charge!" came the long-expected order and with a cheer we rushed across the field toward the enemy. Bullets fairly rained upon us. A man fell in the front rank. 'Close in!' yelled the Captain. I took his place.

"Another moment and I felt a dizzy numbness creeping over me, almost like a man hopelessly drunk; I sank' gradually to the ground. The roar still rang in my ears but sounded as though miles off. It became dark slowly, then all was a blank. When I regained consciousness I heard moans and groans all about me. I felt as though I was burning up. How I craved a drink of water.

"At last my comrades came, pulled a dead man from my legs and carried me to the hospital. I lay there a month. When I left there this arm was gone," and the old veteran's eyes moistened as he pointed to his empty sleeve and puffed violently at his briarwood.

She Was a Baptist.

An officer of the old 14th Regiment Indiana Volunteers, says, that while crossing Laurel Hill, in West Virginia, en-route from Phillippi to Rich Mountain, he was riding in the advance and saw an old lady and her half-grown daughter standing in front of a cabin and he rode up and said: "Old Lady Sesesh?" "No. "Union?" "No" "Well, then what are you?" "Eaptist." At this moment the regiment same up and the old lady said: "What is that?" lances, which took the disabled soldiers pointing to the regimental flag. The officer replied, "that is an American flag." The old lady did not seem to comprehend what a flag was and the officer added, "That is Washington's flag." The old lady's face brightened up and she enquired with much interest "Is he with you?" That was too much and the officer put spurs to his horse and rode off. It is true that a large number of persons in West Virginia saw an American flag for the first time when our three months' men entered that State in the spring of 1861.

Beautiful But Terrible.

The study of natural laws not infrequently reveals a close relation between some of the most beautiful phenomena of the earth and sky and the most terrible exhibitions of the destructive powers of nature. A striking instance of this is the crown of light feathery cirrus clouds that, floating high in the clear sunshine, indicates to the practiced eye of the seaman the place where a West India hurricane is raging across the deep.

These clouds radiate from the center of the hurricane where the fierce spiral currents of inblowing air, crowding together, rise to a great elevation and then flow cutward in every direction From the hues and texture of the distant clouds something may be learned of the charcter of the storm that pro-The United States Hydrographic

CATARRH Sold by druggists or sent by mail, Albani Singing in Russia.

When Mme. Albani related to her interviewer as one of her most remarkble experiences was her treatment in Russia at the royal marriage, where the singers, she observed, are all considered as servants. "Well," she says, "it was most strange. We were all put in a sort of balcony which looked down upon the banqueting scene below, and as each of our turns came to sing we went to a little opening and sang through it. What amused me was this, that all the time we were trying to sing our best and produce our notes more effectively the clatter of knives and forks still went on, and to make all complete, the singer might be in a most impressive passage and right in the midst of it, when, quite regardless of the uncomplaining singers, there would be a flourish of trumpets and somebody would get up and propose a toast. I was more fortunate than Mme. Patti, for she was interrupted in the middle of her solo.

The Singer Who Made Boulanger.

Paulus, they say, is going to America. I wonder how he will succeed! He is no longer the rage in Paris. He is principally celebrated for having invented Gen. Boulanger, and, like most inventors, suffered by the total collapse and ruin of his invention. I say that he invented Gen. Boulanger in the character of a hero advisedly, for it is a solemn fact that until Paulus gave to the world "En Revenant da Revue," with its of admiration respecting brave General" no one outside of military and restricted circles knew Gen. Boulanger from any other general in the French armo. If that be so, Paulus gave into incapable hands a great opportunity, for at one time Boulanger was a great and presiding danger to the French republic. Not at all on account of his own merits (the French are quite keen enough to ridicule their own infatuations), but because he represented the embodied discontent of the nation and gave a nominal head to that seething mass, the opposition.-Paris Cor.

SAPPHIRES OF CEYLON

THE BLUE STONES NOT AS RARE AS REPRESENTED.

Agreeable Habits Characteristic of the Cingalese Mr. Fred. C. Whitney Thinks They Make the Best Servants.

To a reporter of the Washington Post Mr. Fred. C. Whitney who has traveled around the world, gave the following interesting account of a visit to Colombo, on the Island of Ceylon:

"Our steamer anchored behind the breakwater in the open roadstead at Colombo one bright May morning, and those of the passengers that chose to go ashore were transferred to the steam lighter in waiting, and were soon at the long wharf opposite the Grand Oriental hotel. This hotel is well named, as it is truly grand and quite Oriental, both in structure and service. The broad verandas and spacious cool apartments are in the custody of brilliantly costumed Cingalese servants, who move noiselessly around, carrying cool drinks and ices to the guests, or moving their baggage to the apartments assigned them. They, the native servants, wear no shoes, and the new arrival is some-times startled by finding a tall, swarthy native with his huge turbaned head respectfully bent to receive an order, right over one's shoulder, just as you think you are quite alone.

"I think the Cingalese make the best servants in the world, and I know their cooks rank with the most celebrated chefs of Europe. As we had only a few hours in which to do the town, our party dispatched a hasty but substantial luncheon and entered gencrikshaws for a spin through the principal streets to the forlifications, where one of our fellow passengers immediately got into trouble by trying to kodak the sea face of the principal fortress. The English troops in charge do not permit sketches to be made or photographs to be taken of any of the fortifications of the island of spices. for fear the pictures might find their way into the hands of an enemy and aid him to deprive the English crown of one of i's most precious gems. We rescued the camera fiend, who daparted, glad to escape with the loss of his picture-box, which the officer of the guard confiscated, and we drove to the cinnamon gardens, then along the sea wall, back to the clock tower, and through the residence portion of the quaint city, which is very rapidly becoming European in charac er, business and architecture.

"We arrived at the hotel hot, tired and hungry, where we were beset by a horde of Arabs jewelers, who offered tor sale the greatest variety of Ceylon was ever my lot to behold. These precious stones were offered at all prices, from one rupee to many thousands. Our guide escorted us to a Moorman's establishment, where we were shown the largest cat's-eye. ever found on this island of gems. This stone was quite as large as a small orange and very brilliant and had just been returned to its original owners. by a London firm that had failed to find a purchaser willing to pay the enormous price asked for it. The stone is too large for any ordinary purpose, and the only hope the owners now have of disposing of it at a fair price is to sell it to some government as a crown jewel or to an East Indian rajah. The rubies and sapphires were both numerous and beautiful, but were held at prices about as high as those asked for the same grade of stone in England.

"The annual report that the sapphire mines of Ceylon are failing, is started for the purpose of keeping up the price of the gems, as there are probably enough of these beautiful blue stones on the Island of Ceylon alone to supply the world for the next twenty years to say nothing of the rich mines of Burmah, and those of the Maharajah of Cashmere, which are said to be the most extensive in the world.

"The Cingalese dealers also have large quantities of diamends, of all grades, mostly cheap yellow cape stones, and the lower grades from the Golconda River mines; these find a ready sale among the natives and tourists, while the more valuable high. er quality brilliants are sold to dealers and expert collectors.

"The coffee industry of Ceylon is nearly a thing of the past, the insects having almost entirely destroyed the last few crops but the planters are doing quite as well, if not better, by growing Indian tea and cinchona, and the island is rapidly becoming as prosperous as of yore. The only cities having any European population to speak of are Cclombo and Kandy, the present seat of the colonial government. The once famous scaport Pontdu-Galle is now little better than an ordinary native village, as the construction of the huge breakwater at Colombo has diverted the steam traffe that once made this part of the island so prosperous. At nightfall we reembarked and began our journey to Australia, 8,000 miles away."

Perter and Guest. Head Porter Lovejoy, of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, discharged one of his men recently for excess of promptness. A guest of the hotel who was obliged to catch an early train requested this particular porter to call him at 7 in the morning. For some reason that functionary had to take his departure before the hour at which the guest had to be called. At exactly 5:30 o'clock he knocked on the door, "All right!" yelled back the guest:
"I'll get up." "No; don't get up." answered the porter. 'It's half past 5. I've got to go away. You've got an Attention is called to Park City Por- hour and a half yet to sleep."-CincinTHE LOVELL SAFETY.

New Bicycle Which the Public Like

While thousands within the last decade have enjoyed the sport of cycling, the fact is nevertheless obvious that many thousands more have been deterred from enjoying it in consequence of the high prices demanded for a really good wheel.

It remained for the John P. Lovell Arms Company of Boston to change this state of affairs. It was last year that the public first became aware that there was a new low-priced safety bicycle on the market, a wheel strictly high grade, and equal in every particular to any manufactured in America or Europe. As previous to this all manufacturers had charged a very large price for a first-class wheel, the John P. Lovell Arms Company is therefore the first house that has ever offered the public such a wheel at a price that does not place it beyond the reach of the average person's purse. The company that manufactures this wheel (the Lovell Diamond Safety) is one of the oldest of all the manufacturing and mercantile houses in New England, having been established in 1840.

Besides being now one of the leading bi-houses in New England, having been estab-lished in 1840.

Besides being now one of the leading bi-cycle firms in the United States, the John P. Lovell Arms Company is and has been for years a well-known manufacturer and dealer in firearms and sporting goods of every description.

On June 18 of last year, the firm celebrated its half-century anniversary. The founder of this enterprising house, Mr. John P. Lovell, although over 70 years of age, is still an important and active member of this world-famed house.

Are not caught in a cistern, yet how many men are spending their time, day after day, fishing in a rain barrel. The man who works, month in and month out, on a few acres of ground, trying to make it produce enough to support himself and family, when common sense and his past experience tell him it won't do, it is one of them. The man who works year after year, in a shop at $30 a month when his family expenses are $32, is another. If your income is not large enough to keep you and your family, or if your want to save money and can't do it on your present salary, write B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., and they will show you how to add $40 or $50 a month to it: or if you can give them all of your time, they will put you in a position to establish a paying business of your own, where you can make from $100 to. $500 per month.

Dick Moore of St. Paul signed articles at Omaha last week for a finish fight with Tim Niland, a brother of the redoubtable Ed Niland of Chicago. The fight is to take place on the night of Dec. 4, at catch weights, Queensberry rules to govern, for a stake of $5,000 a side and the entire gate receipts.

He was one of Chicago's best and bravest officers and during his long term of service has made many friends; all of whom regret his retirement. He has not only an unblemished record but one of bravery and efficiency. His successor Lieut. W. K. Stahl was formerly Patrol Sergeant. He is one of the best known and most popular officials of the Northwest side. His promotion was well deserved and greatly pleases the people of Wicker Park and vicinity with whom he is very popular.

Tuesday evening Capt. Kipley. on behalf of the officers of the West North avenue station presented Ex Lieut. Penzen with a magnificent diamond ring. He also presented Elef Danielson with a handsome gold headed cane beautifully engraved as a token of the high esteem and good will of his fellow officers.

I have had a large experience in sickness of all kinds, including surgical operations and cases of accidents, for a great many years; first from love of the work, latterly through necessity through the death of my busband. I can furnish first class testimonials from these I have nursed; also from physicians, both in Akron, Ohio, and this city. Mrs. G. W. Waters, corner

> Preserve your teeth and you do likewise to your health. Few people appreciate the beauty of their natural pearly teeth, and fewer still realize the importance of these most desirable organs. No artificial denture or appliance can ever take the place of the natural teeth. This fact cannot be too strongly emphasized, since knowing as well as we do that natural teeth are the outposts of digestion, and this in turn the main pillar of health. Difficult operations are in particular solicited. Gold and porcelain crowns. Teeth without plates, and extractions without pain at Dr. Cigrand's Dental office, corner North and Milwaukce
