LIVELY TIMES AT RIVERVIEW

A Midnight Raid on the Paper and Card Works.

Last Saturday, in the dead of the night, a gang of twenty-seven men came out on the midnight train provided with ropes, tackles and blocks and proceeding to the works of the Western Coated Paper and Card Co., at Riverview, commenced tearing out the engine and boiler that furnishes power for the machinery. The night watch-man came up to Des Plaines and gave the alarm, and Officers Cain, Barchard and Thoma, accompanied by Mr. J. Kaiser, the superintendent, and a few of his friends, repaired to the spot, and, after a short parley, arrested apportion of the gang, including two me three day. Pinkerton men. Mills on the Tariff.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 - Roger Q. Mills was entertained at dinner last evening at the Reform club by President E. Ellery Anderson and Thomas G. Shearman. Many well-known Cleveland Democrats were present. Mr. Mills declared his intention to oppose "the half-way and standstill measures" that some Democratic leaders advocated. He scouted the idea of going back to the tariff of 1885 and accepting that as a final settlement. He said that the Democrats had been fighting that tariff for thirty years and he was for carrying on the war. At the close of his speech Mr. Mills said: "I will follow where the flag points to fair trade. I will follow wherever the flag goes, no matter who carries it; and I will fight wherever the battle is pitched."

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 9.-The death of Padlewski, the Nihilist, grows daily in mystery, and it is now almost certain that the assassin of Gen. Seliverstoff instead of being a suicide was the victim of the Czar's vengeance. It was supposed he committed suicide, but it is now known that the wound in Padlewski's head was inflicted by a wound of larger caliber than that of his own pistol found on him. Besides this, secret papers which he was known to carry were missing when his body was found, as were subsequently the official papers concerning his death which were stolen from the District Clerk's office. These facts, together with the knowledge that detectives were on the track of Padlewski, lead to the conclusion that Padlewski was murdered by detectives for the reward offered by the Russian Government for his apprehension dead or alive. Attorney James Wilson of Galveston had Hauser's remains exhumed. He is the brother-in-law of the Russian Consul at Galveston.

WESTERN FARM MORTGAGE COMPANY GOES UNDER.

The Company Is Ostensibly Capitalized at $3,000.000 and Is Reputed to Have Done a Business of $10,000,000 a Year -Officers May Be Arrested.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 8.—The Western Farm Mortgage Trust company has been attached, and an application for a receiver will be made to-day. It is stated that arrests of directors and officers are not improbable. The company was organized in Lawrence, Kan. and afterward reincorporated in Den ver. New York creditors have filed attachments against $900,000 of its securities. The company is capitalized ostensibly for $3,000,000 and is reputed to have been doing a business of $10,000, 000 a year, principally with other people's money. It loaned money at a high rate on mortgages. These were sold at a premium to Eastern investors The money paid by purchasers was reinvested until the business reached an enormous aggregate. The farmers were unable to pay off the high interest, and the company, to maintain its standing, advanced it to purchasers. It drew on the Third National bank of New York city until all its funds were exhausted, when it changed tactics. This was Oct. 1, 1891. Then the press of creditors became too great to be withstood. When the directors saw that the crash was coming they formed the American Real Estate Investment company and secretly began to turn over the stock of the trust company to the new corporation. Some of the acts of the directors in this State are criminal offenses. The losses of eastern purchasers will aggregate hundreds of thousands, as the securities they can attach are considered very poor.

DR. TALMAGE'S EARNEST AP-PEAL TO HIS HEARERS.

Lesson of the Life of Nebuchadnezzar-The Greatest Sorrow of Earth. the Loss of Reason-Power of Christianity.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1893. With a nighty acclaim the long-metre Doxology ose at the beginning of the service. The nestimable value of Christianity as an slevating and ennobling influence on the sature of man, formed the subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon this morning. The brilliant and original preacher chose as his text the humiliation of the Babylonish ting who being destitute of religion sank to the level of the brute. Daniel 4:28, compared to the foundering of intellects 'All this came upon the King Nebuchadjezzar."

Colone! Rawlinson, the Oriental traveller, says that the exhumed bricks, not only of Babylon but of a hundred towns in an area of one hundred miles in length and thirty in breadth, are inscribed with the name of Nebuchadnezzar. He was a that the intellect which has served us so great warrior and at the glance of his well will always be faithful. We forget sword nations prostrated themselves. He was a great king and built a city reservoir ninety miles in circumference and one hunired and twenty feet deep, and constructed a hanging garden, four hundred feet square and seventy-five feet high, some say to please Amubia, his wife, who had been born among the hills, and others say to get a pleasure ground free from the mosquitoes, which afflict the levels. I think, from his character, the latter reason may have impelled him as much as the fermer. When he conquered King Zedekiah, so as to have no more trouble with him, he put his eyes out-a most barbarous way of incapacitating an enemy. But Babylon was a great place, the houses surrounded by gardens and the housetops were connected with each other by bridges, and one day Nebuchadnezzar walked out on those suspension bridges and showed, perhaps to a royal visitor, the vastness of his realm as the sun kindles the domes with glisterings almost insufferable, and the great streets thunder up their pomp into the ear of the monarch, and armed towers stand around adorned with spoils of conquered empires. Nebuchadnezzar waves his hand above the stupendous scene and exclaims: "Is not this great Babylon that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power and for the honor of my majesty?" In other words: "What a great man I am. Babylon was not anything until I adorned it. See those waterworks; see those gardens; see those forts. I did all this. I shall never be forgotten. Why, my name is on every brick in all those walls. Just look at me. I am more than a man." But, in an instant, all that splendor is gone from his vision, for a voice falls from the heavens, saying, "O, King Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; the kingdom is departed from thee, and they shall drive thee from men and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field; they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men and giveth it to whomsoever he will." One hour from the time he made the boast, he is on his way to the fields a maniac, and rushing into the forests he becomes as one of the beasts, and is after awhile covered with eagles' feathers for protection from the cold, and his nails grow to look like bird's claws in order that he may dig the earth for roots and climb the trees for nuts. While walking from this Babylonian palace down to the pasture field, and from the pasture field back to the palace, the first thing that impresses me is what an incongruous thing it is for a king to be sating grass. It is good for cattle, but not fit for man. And then for one to preferit to a royal table toward whose bounty the orchards, and paddocks, and streams, and vineyards in all the earth might contribute-what an amazement! And yet the scene is as common as the daylight. When I see a man of regal nature made to rule in realms of thought, capable of all moral elevation, besotting his faculties, attempting out of low sensualities to satisfy his immortal energies, coming down off his throne of power into brutalities, sacrificing his higher nature to his lower nature, stooping and stooping, ceming down and coming down until all his influence for good is gone, I cry out, "There is a king eating grass like an ox!" And there are tens of thousands of such Nebuchadnezzars. So there are queens who dedicate themselves to the same humiliation. What power for good God gave that woman. Magnetism of personal presence. Influence more than imperial. By her influence, by her tenderness, by her charm of smile and manner, capable of soothing so much sorrow, and reforming so much waywardness, and wielding so much elevated power; yet at the call of worldlinesa coming out of the throne of good influence. where God would have her reign, coming down over the ivory stairs of moral power, coming down and coming down until she has no more soul than the dead bird transfixed in her millinery or the chinchilla that was slain to afford her warmth, or the kid that furnished her the glove, and finding bar only delight in flatteries of brainless men, and midnight schottische and debauched novelettes. I say "There is one who might have been a queen unto God forever, yet eating straw like an ox." I look over the pasture-fields of folly and sin, and find many grovelling who ought

The next thought that presses into my mind from the contemplation of this incident is that conviction is not conversion. Who is this monarch that makes the boast about Babylon! The very man who, under the revelation of dreams that Daniel made from heaven, deeply humbled himself, while he confessed that God is a God of Gods and a Lord of Lords, yet, behold that that humbling and arousing which he before felt did not result in a radical change. There is no mistake more frequent than of supposing | Christ's sake as cheerfully walk into the conviction a synonym for conversion. Conviction is merely a sight of sin; conversion is a view of Pardon. Conviction is merely alarm; conversion is confidence. Conviction is dissatisfaction with depravity; conversion is a turning away as happily as ever at Narragansett beach from it. Conviction is a sword wound: conversion is the healing. Conviction is the fever of thirst; conversion is the slaking of that thirst. Conviction is the pain; conversion is the medicine that cures it. Thousands have experienced the former and never experienced the latter. There are multitudes who think that as soon as a man is serious he is fit for profession of religion. What if a man should only think seriously of being a merchant;

to be erect.

if a man should only think seriously of being a lawyer; would that make him a lawyer! What if man should only think seriously of being a Christian; would that make him a Christian? Felix was convicted but not converted. The failer was convicted before he got out of bed, but not converted until at the advice of Paul he believed in Christ. Are you convicted but not converted? Again learn from the misfortune of the king of Babylon what a terrible thing is the loss of reason. There is no calamity that can possibly befall us in this world so great as the derangement of the intellect -to have the body of a man and wet to fall even below the instinct of a brute. In this world of sad sights, the saddest is the idiot's stare. In this world of awful sounds, the most atful is the maniac's laugh. A vessel on the rocks, when hundreds go down never to rise, and other hundreds drag the mangled and shivering bodies up the wintry beach, is nothing full of vast hopes and attainments and capacities. Christ's heart went out to those who were epileptic, falling into the fire, or maniacs cutting themselves among the tombs. We are accustomed to be more grateful for physical health than for the proper working of our mind. We are apt to take it for granted that an engine with such tremendous power, when the wheels have such vastness of circle and such swiftness of motion and the least impediment might put it out of gear, could only be kept in proper balance by a Divine hand. No human power could engineer this train of immortal faculties. How strange it is that our memory, on whose shoulders all the successes and misfortunes and occurrences of a lifetime are placed, should not oftener break down, and that the scales of judgment, which have been weighing so much and so long, should not lose their adjustment, and that fancy, which holds a dangerous wand, should not sometimes maliciously wave it, bringing into the heart forebodings and hallucinations the most appalling. Is it not strange that the expectations of this intellect should not be dashed to pieces on its disappointments? Though so delicately attuned, this instrument of untold harmonies plays on, though fear shocks it, and vexations rack it, and sorrow and joy and loss and gain in quick succession beat out of it their dirge, or draw from it their anthem. At morning and at night, when in your prayer you rehearse the objects of your thanksgiving, next to your salvation by Jesus Christ, praise the Lord for the preservation of vour reason. How many fine intellects are being destroyed by anodynes and anæsthetics, This so encouraged Eli's parents—they which were given by providence for occasional use in alleviation of pain or insomnia, but by being employed continuously after awhile capture and destroy. Chloral, cocaine, bromide of potassium, opium, and whole shelves of seductive etceteras that help turn Nebuchadnezzars into imbecility or madness. Do not trifle with opiates that benumb the brain. If you cannot live without the perpetual and' enslaving use of them, you had better die. Better die a sane man than live a fool. What right have you to kill your brain and put in wild jaugle your nervous system? to put a man, like Nebuchadnezzar, down

But rum is the cause of more insanity than employment at the time he obtained anything else. There is nothing like rum, permission to build the little shanty Take this goodly religion which has done so much for me that I can commend it to all. Without it I should have gone the whole downward career. Stolid and phlegmatic natures going astray do not go so far, but natures like mine, sanguine, intense, emotional, optimissic, social to the last degree, and echoing to all the heights and depths of mirth, if they get off the track, they go with one wild leap to hell. As to the restraining power of this religion upon a mercurial temperament, I testify. This is not abstraction or some-I know. Go out and ask and ask them how it works. Three young cated and, to him, entirely new mamen in a factory came out on the Lord's chinery.

thing gotten from books. I speak of all who have tried this religion side, but two of them overcome by the jeers of their comrades went back, and joined the scoffers. The one held on to his Christian hope, and one day when they pressed him hard, and were telling how much infidelity had done for the world, and that Christianity had done nothing, the persecuted Christian turned upon them, and pointing to Henry and George, who had for a little while followed Christ, and then turned back, he said: "You have tried your principles on them, and know what they have done for them. When they tried to serve Christ, they were civil, good-tempered, kind husbands and fathers. They were cheerful, industrious and ready to oblige. What have you made them? Look and see. They are cast down and cross; their mouths are full of cursing and filthiness; they are drunk every week; their children halfclothed, their wives broken-hearted, their homes wretched. That is what your principles have done. Now, I have tried Christ and his religion, and what has it done for me? You know well what I used to be. There was none of you that could drink so much, swear so desperately, and fight so masterly. I had no money, and nobody would trust me. My wife was ill-used, I was ill-humored, hateful and hating. What has religion done for me? Thank God, I am not afraid to put it to you. Am I not a happier man than I was! Am I not a better workman and a kinder companion? Would I once have put up with what I now bear from you! I could beat any of you as easily now as ever. Why don't It Do you ever hear a foul word from my mouth? Do you catch me at a public-house? Has anybody a score against me? Go and ask my neighbors if I am not altered for the better. Go and ask my wife. Let my house bear witness. God be praised, here is what Christianity has done for me; there is what infidelity has done for Henry and

George." Out of this audience I could gather a thousand men and women who could tell you as thrilling a story as that as to what religion has done for them.

HOW ELI TERRY WHITTLED HIS WAY TO FORTUNE.

Life of Connecticut's Noted Citizen Who Was Clockmaker, Peddler, Drummer, Capitalist and Philanthrop st.

Prior to 1793 the few clocks made in the United States were imitations (and very poor ones, too, in most cases) of the rough metal timepieces imported from Europe.

In that year, however, according to the Brooklyn Citizen, the art of American clockmaking was inaugurated by an individual as original in his way as the crude 'chroniclers of the flying hours' which he turned out.

Eli Terry was the person who may be justly considered the founder of the great industry which now forms so large a part of the wealth of Connecticut, and upon which thousands of persons depend for their daily bread.

The little shop, scarcely larger than a closet, in which Eli Terry began the manufacture of clocks is still standing in an excellent state of preservation.

Eli Terry was born in East Windsor, Conn., in May. 1772. From the time he learned to talk he was engaged in making his mother's life miserable by spiriting away the sharp knife which was kept in the kitchen as a potato and apple parer. The disappearance of this knife was always sure to be followed by the appearance of sundry ill-formed and only partially rounded wheels which the youthful mechanic carefully concealed under the house.

When he was about 8 years old a relative gave him a jackknife as a Christmas present, and this may be truly said to have been the beginning of Terry's remarkable career. His rough little wheels were brought out from their dusty place of concealment, notches were whittled into some, others were "triced up" until on his ninth birthday Terry exhibited to his startled mother a rough "wind-mill," about 2 feet high, which, when put upon a table or other level surface, would whirl its fans rapidly, the motive power being supplied by a stone attached to a piece of strong twine, had previously believed him deficient in intelligence. - that they determined to apprentice him to a carpenter. But the boy appeared to develop so many traits of shiftlessness that this plan was abandoned.

Terry continued to whittle with his jackknife, and having seen some of the imperfect affairs called clocks. which a Windsor man had made, he concluded he could do no worse and he accordingly set to work. Being out of (mentioned above) on the bank of the Pequabuck river, which at first served him both as a workshop and a dwelling. His existence at this time was a precarious one. He started three clocks, and after a good deal of patience and numerous setbacks, he had a good timepiece embodying a new principle, which was that of the "windmill" which he made twelve years before. The magnitude of Terry's original undertaking may be appreciated when it is remembered that he had only some augers, a saw, hammer and jackknife to aid him in the construction of the rather compli-

The young mechanic's clocks kept good time," and he found little difficulty in disposing of them at $25 apiece, but as the number of persons who could afford to indulge in such an expensive luxury was extremely lim. ited in those days, Terry was obliged to make trips over the state line into New York to dispose of his manufactures. He was able to make ten clocks a year, and he kept up this primitive method for about eight years, when, the demand becoming greater than the supply, he purchased better tools, employed two assistants and devoted much of his time to selling the output.

It required a genuine 'man of business' to make a success of this department, for the pay was seldom in cash. almost always being made in butter, wool or other produce. A shrewd man like Eli Terry at once saw the opportunity to 'double up" on his profits, and he was not slow to avail himself of it. He sought and obtained orders for farm produce and then traded his clocks for what he wanted, always requiring from the man of crops a higher price on account of the lack of ready money. In this way he not only made the profit on his goods, but also realized a large sum per annum on his exchange business. In fact, it is alleged that the money which he made in this way enabled him to start the large factory which subsequently made him famous and independently wealthy.

Eli Terry may also be said to have been the first drummer, or commercial traveler, as it is now called, for his business having grown apace, and his new factory having developed a capacity for turning out work far beyond his expectations, he found it necessary to devise some new plan of disposing of his wares. He hit upon the idea of making semi-annual trips to the principal trade centers notifying the dealers in each vicinity sufficiently in advance to enable them to arrange to meet him. In this way he found no trouble in getting orders for more clocks than he could make

Terry died a wealthy man, and might have been a millionaire but for his great philanthropy. Almost all of the important improvements in the foundation principles of clock-making were the inventions of Eli Terry, the king of the jackknife," the original sceptre: sway it. Here is a throne: founder of an important American industry.

NO MAN can open his eyes to the characteristics of people all about him without seeing it plain as day that they are, nearly all of them, so defective in certain quarters of their natures that, unless these deficient spots are re-enforced from other quarters natively stronger in their make-up. they will prove hard beings to get along with.

THE first enemy that ill health brings in its train is perhaps egotism; and a formidable enemy it will often prove. The man who never enjoys good health is forced to keep guard over himself, to ask whether this or that course of treatment seems to be the more hopeful. His thoughts being thus drawn towards himself, he becomes self-absorbed; 'my health,' "my interests," "my concerns" begin to take a larger place in the moving panorama of life than they do with a physically healthy man.

Ir was inevitable that the wide prevalence of common school education should lead to demands for this extension of university advantages. There was some such movement forty or more years ago in the system of lyceum lectures then introduced into interior cities. These lectures were at first chiefly on scientific and literary subjects. Soon after the anti-slavery agitation, and later the civil war, deflected them from their original design. The lecture system of that era ran its course, and now in the university extension policy is seen the revival of what was the original idea for which lectures were established.

To know how to dwell in the present not merely contentedly, but intelligently and teachably, affords the best promise for future usefulness and happiness. Whatever may be the condition in which we find ourselves, it has a positive life of its own which we should be glad to welcome. Of course it is right to look forward to higher and better things-passive contentment with the present would prevent all progress; but to despise and scorn the life we are in, which is as real and full of meaning as any other can ever be, to ignore its lessons, to forget its privileges, to be insensible to its joys is to lose just so much of happiness and value out of life.

It is creditable to the South that so much has been done towards providing the means of education for the colored children. The eagerness with which many of them have profited by it is an evidence that no obstacles have been thrown in the way of obtaining at least the rudiments of such learning as common schools can impart and of occasionally rising to higher grades. That there is an exceedingly large amount of illiteracy existing in the United States did not need confirmation by the census. But that the states have been derelict in providing free schools for their children it would be unjust to assert The bulk of the illiteracy has originated in causes that could not be prevented, and the conditions have been such that no comparison with the compulsory educational system of Germany could fairly be made.

Ir would be almost impossible with us to enact a compulsory school law, and still more difficult to enforce it. All the states have established schools on a liberal basis, and the school tax is one of the heaviest the people have to pay. Among the great mass of immigrants landed yearly on our shores from other countries than Germany there are vast numbers of men, women and children who are almost if not completely illiterate, the elder ones of both sexes being too old to learn and the younger ones requiring the lapse of some years before they become acquainted with the language sufficiently to be admitted into the schools. Unlike that of Germany, our population is of a heterogeneous character, which it takes time to assimilat, and in many cases it is not really assimilated at all until the second generation Besides these foreign illiterates, we have had to contend with the ignorance of the millions of negroes set discovered him. free by our civil war, and for whose children no provision could be made in the matter of education for some close.

THE NAVAJOS PUT ON THEIR WAR PAINT.

Three Redskins and Two Cowboys Reported Killed, While Several on Both Sides Were Wounded-Cause of the Bloody Outbreak.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 11.—There was a bloody fight between redskins and cowboys nine miles south of here late yesterday afternoon in which two cowboys and three Indians are reported killed and several on both sides badly wounded. The Navajos have put on war paint and threaten all whites. There is great excitement throughout the country.

The trouble between the Navejo Indians and the cattlemen arose in actle near Chavez. Chief Mariano was requested ten days ago to remove the Indians. This was granted, but Tuesday three Indians were found coming down the trail toward Chavez and the cowboys ordered them back. They started back and on the bluff built a signal fire. Soon forty renegade Indians came to their assistance in defiance of the cowboys and their promise not to trespass. There were no cowboys at Chavez at the time, but the Indians claimed that their deserted camp had been burned by cowboys and they were going to get even.

Four Bucks and a Squaw Killed.

WHITE OAKS, N. M., Feb. 11.,-The Mescallero Indians on the reservation near here obtained a quantity of whisky yesterday and indulged in it to such an extent that they got to fighting among themselves. Revolvers and knives were brought into action and the result of the battle was the killing of four bucks and one squaw. Two Indians, the only participants in the fight who were not killed, have been arrested and put in ee guard-house on the reservation. This killing was entirely among the Indians themselves and does not involve the white settlers.

As an article of industrial use, the fibrous covering of the cocoanut is much in demand under the term of coir, for making ropes, mats, etc. Coir is now well known to be one of the best materials for cables on account of its elasticity and strength. They are made in large quantities in the Lacadive islands, entirely by hand, and chiefly by women without the aid of machinery of any kind. Cocoanut husks are now also imported by Britain for the manufacture of mats-known as coir and cocoanut fiber mats-which give employment to the inmates of prisons and industrial and ragged schools.

A List of Chicago's Most Popular Theaters.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

"The Ensign" is to be produced at the Grand Opera-house next week. This new candidate for popular favor is a five-act nautical drama founded on the Mason-Slidell episode of 61. The action of the piece is mainly on shipboard and its dramatis personae are mostly men-o'-warsmen. There is a decided novelty about an American naval drama, which will be appreciated all the more generally because of the recent extraordinary interest in our naval affairs. The scenery of "The Ensign" is necessarily novel, elaborate and expensive. It has been painted by the best scenic artists. One scene by John H. Young, represents a sectional view of the man-o'-war San Jacinto, illustrating a double action in the play. The main and gun decks of the ship are exposed to the audience just as these sections of a battle-ship are worked at sea. To secure an accurate representation of the interior of a war vessel, it was necessary for the artist to visit a ship in commission and obtain photographs and studies in color. From these a model was constructed giving the scene complete in miniature and this was finally transferred to canvas. The results are stage effects that will thrill even the man-o-warsman with delight.

"The Ensign" was given its initial presentation in Washington last week. and the success it achieved there is just now the chief topic of conversation in theatrical circles. It was witnessed by all the leading naval officials, and the opinion was freely expressed that it was even to the minutest details a most perfect representation of naval scenes and incidents. The story is described as one of absorbing interest, and a patriotic fervor pervades it from begin-ning to end, which is at this time very gratifying to the average audience. Several historical characters are introduced, among them President Lincoln, Admiral Farragut, Capt. Wilkes, and Lieut. Fairfax. The hero is a typical American officer, capitally played by Harry Mainhall. There is a vain of attractive humor in the piece and two exceedingly strong character parts. The company is one of unusual strength, and the engagement will undoubtedly prove a great success. CHICAGO OPERA-HOUSE.

Beginning Monday evening, Feb. 15, that ever welcome artiste, Margaret Mather, will come to the Chicago operahouse for a brief season, producing for the first time on any stage her new play, "The Egyptian." Miss Mather's many sumptuous legitimate productions have made her justly famous with the Chicago public, particularly her mag-nificent production of "Joan of Arc" last season. Margaret Mather is one of the most conscientious and painstaking, as well as intelligent of the younger women who have devoted their youth, talents and beauty to the illustration of legitimate characters, and her high position on the American stage is well deserved. "The Egyptian" will be given a sumptuous scenie and incidental investiture. Miss Mather will be supported by an excellent company and all the principals are said to have in "The Egyptian" characters worthy of their note. Miss Mather will of their note. course assume the role of L'Esmeralda, Mr. Skinner that of Claude Frollo, and Joseph E. Whiting that of Quasimodo. Matinees will be given Wednesday and

The Bostonians in opera follow Miss Mather at the opera-house.

THE CASINO-"EDEN MUSEE." The new attraction announced at this popular resort, with Haverley's Mastodon minstrels, is Mr. Lincoln Ellwood, the wonderful male soprano, who sings in white face and dresses like a California heiress, having an ease of carriage and a repose of manner that many women might copy to advantage; in fact, he is so like a woman in face, form, voice, make-up, and wardrobe, that it is impossible to realize that he is a man. The large audiences were very enthusiastic over his first appearance to a Chicago audience. His rare soprano voice, together with great expression wonderfully facile and correct, will doubtless make him a great favor-

Mr. Haverly has met with such flat tering success that arrangements have been perfected to continue at the Casino indefinitely, giving two performances daily, in which the popular favorites, Billy Rice, E. M. Wall, Harry Budworth. Percy Dutton, Harry Constantine, Bogert and O'Brien and others are entertaining large and refined audiences. The music is having its usual patrons and gaining new admirers.

HOOLEY'S. -Final engagement this season of E. S. Willard. Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, "The Mid-Frolic.

M'VICKERS THEATER. The Liliputians will remain at McVicker's theater for some time to come. They commenced the second week of their engagement last Sunday during which time matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. Last nal nature and the present engagement has demonstrated that Chicago always appreciates a really good show. Not only thousands and thousands of old friends have come back to see them, but a legion of new admirers have been gained during the past week. Many a night even standing room has been at ment of the Liliputians, is pleasing. The play has the merit of an interesting plot, good music and witty dialogue. The scenery is very handsome; the automaton shop, the Eiffel Tower, illuminated by hundreds of electric lights, the icy landscape, the Palace of Games, the wandering woods, and other scenes show that true artists have made them. The costuming has a brilliant character. The ball dresses of the midget actresses, as well as the ingeniously devised costumes of the handsome ballet, to the eye and the taste displayed show what great labor such a play consummates in every respect. The dancing and grouping are the finest we have seen in this city and although the company has played "The Pupil in Magic" for more than five hundred times, it is given with as much bright ness and thoroughness as if they were playing new roles. There is no mechanical movement. There is no tired state. The Liliputians are favorites, as always, and they deserve fully the amount of applause they are receiving. The Tyrolean peasant family, composed of Messrs. Wolff and Zink and Mahr has a pleasant, strong voice and the grace of Miss Becker and Miss Jaeger are wonderful, but the stars of the company are Miss Selma Goerner, entertainers. What they can do to keep an audience roaring and to produce mirth is indescribable. A shake of his head or a simple gesture with his hand is all Mr. Ebert needs to do to be funny, but when it comes to modestly played drunken scene or the of the conference. famous beer song, it will fairly bring down the house and enthusiasm knows

The Equestrian Burlesque company s still doing a tremendous business at the Madison Street opera-house, and is giving a very funny performance. The May Russell Burlesque company will be the next attraction at the Madison Street opera-house, and it is a first-class burlesque company, com-posed of thirty female beauties, finely formed and famously funny. There are ten Parisian comedians in special and comical bursts of merriment and the two burlesques are full of fire, ginger and the matter that makes them popular.

HAVLIN'S THEATRE. Mattie Vickers during the week beginning with the matinee Sunday, Feb. Miss Vickers' home is in Chicago, and her name is a household word in all parts of the world's fair city. As her engagement opens on St. Valentine's day, it will be safe in saying that the charming soubrette will be the most acceptable kind of a valentine. During the week Miss Vickers will be seen in her latest and best plays, "The Circus Queen" and "Edelweiss." "The Circus Queen," which was recently produced, has proved a great success. It is one of the best of the present collection of pieces that have the circus as a background. The performance contains numerous and pleasing interruptions in the way of catchy comic sons and lively dances. Miss Vickers has a splendid part, and is ably supported by her company of merry comedians. "Edelweiss" is a beautiful play, which affords Miss Vickers full scope in which to display her abilities as an actress.

CLARK STREET THEATER. Amusement seekers will be delighted during the coming week at this pretty and favorite theater by the great heroic actress, Agnes Herndon, who begins her engagement with the matinee next Sunday, Feb. 14, presenting her charming play, "A Woman's Revenge;" or, "La Belle Marie." The play is new to Chicago, but it is said to be of great power. Miss Herndon is a well known figure on the American stage, whose versatility is well known. A warm welcome should be given her and her capable company.

NEW WINDSOR. Commencing Sunday matinee Feb. 4. "Paul Kauvar" has proved an attraction that well merited the encouraging opening accorded it It is a stirring and even a thrilling play in five acts, and its construction is so admirably artistic 'that there is not a dull passage or an anti-climax from the rise to the fail of the curtain. There will be a Sunday matinee Feb. 21.

C. & E. I. MILEAGE TICKETS. Feb. 15, the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad will retire the present form of mileage ticket, and adopt a thousand mile ticket, in which is placed a photograph of the person to whom it is issued. People wanting to purchase such a ticket must present to the agent their photograph, about two inches square, unmounted, to be affixed to the ticket by the agent at the time of sale.

MASCULINITIES.

Love is especially blind when a man is in love with himself.

Even good people go to the bad when they become missionaries. Why is a naughty small boy, when his mother calls, like an echo!-Because he answers, but doesn't come. Most men look down on their neighbors from such a height that if they should fall it would break their necks. A would-be bridegroom applied at Norristown for a marriage license and forgot the name of his bride elect. The man who can't keep up with the procession in this world musn't expect to enjoy the music of the band. It is often easier for a man to complete a round of pleasure than it is for him to make things square afterwards.

Maryland has a boy 17 years old who is 6 feet 4½ inches high and weighs 185 pounds. He lifts 350 pounds with ease. "They tell me that you are a happy father." 'Yes." 'Are you setting up the cigars?" "No; I'm sitting up nights." One hundred and thirty years was the reputed age of Sukey Gillis, a colored woman, who died near Demopolis, Ala.,

you I only wanted half a cup of tea and, as usual, you've filled it to the top. Don't you know what half full is?" Mother-in-law, grimly: "She ought to by this time."

Miss Charter Oakes, of Hartford: "I hope you will come up to see me often, Mr. Dashaway. You know Hartford is only three hours' ride from New York." Mr. Dashaway, sadly: "Very true. But it is three days' walk."

Mamma, explaining to her little girl, aged 5, that everything she does and says is written down in a large book in heaven. The latter asks: "Are all the naughty things, too!" Mamma: "Yes, dear." Little girl, pensively: "Then I think I will take a piece of India rubber with me."

At one of the fashionable New York clubs the English fad has been carried so far that men use British coin at their cards and other games, compute their accounts in English money, and scornfully ignore any reference to dollars and cents as something too coarse to be tolerated.

Wife: "Mother is going to have her picture taken to day." Husband: "Is stie? May I go with her and see her having it done?" Wife: "Certainly. Why do you want to go!" Husband: "The photographer will tell her to look pleasant, you know, and I want to see her that way, for once."

- Envelopes were not used in Japan until recently, and letters were always folded in a piece of paper, which was wrapped with great care, according to prescribed forms, differing according to the relation and rank of the person addressed. The triangular corner last folded over was pasted and stamped with a red or black stamp, or, as was generally the case, merely inscribed with the word fin-seal.

In Grass Valley, Cal., is a quarry of one of the most remarkable and valuable building stones known to the Pacific coast. It is unlimited in quantity, cropping out of the surface like an immense ledge, traceable for a long distance. It is so soft just underneath the surface of the ground that it can be cut with a knife, chipped with a hatchet, or planed with a carpenter's plane.

A woman in France was notified by the authorities of a lunatic asylum of her brother's death. She went to the funeral and ordered a handsome tombstone. Her mother was so grieved at her son's death that the plaintiff had to give up her situation to take care of her. Then she learned that the directors of the asylum had made a mistake, and that her brother was alive. After unsuccessful efforts for compensation she went to the court, claiming heavy damages for grief and in-

Paris has had a diversified experience with World' fairs. That of 1889 gave a profit of $2,000,000, and that of 1878, organized by the state, a deficit of over $6,000,000. The exhibition of 1867 left a profit of $560,000. The total receipts were $10,000,000 in 1889, $5,350,000 in 1878, and $5,250,000 in 1867. The failure of 1878 cost over $11,000,000, while the great popular success of 1889 cost only $8,000,000. It is plain that the fortunes of a universal exhibtion rest with the management. The people will respond if ample novel attractions are provided.

When Gen. St. Clair was governor of the territory, now Ohio, he was paid by a system of fees, which grew into an income that the legislature thought too large for the duties performed. So at one session they voted by one act to abolish the fees and by another to pay him a salary. He approved the salary act, but vetoed the one abolishing the fees, and during the rest of the term pocketed both salary and fees. For this reason the veto power was omitted from the state constitution.

There is a map of Delaware county, N. Y., on file in Albany which Jay Gould made forty years or so ago, when he was surveyor. He performed amount of labor in getting the data for the maps, tramping all over the county. The position of every farm is indicated. as well as of all the houses, many of which were daguerrotyped and appear on the map. The hills, the woods and even the locations of solitary trees here and there through the plains, all are shown.
