Republican Rally.

The Republican Rally at Stott's Hall, Tuesday eve., was rousing success and well attended considering the rainy weather. The program was opened by a selection by the Barrington band after which Mr. Foss opened the speaking with a rousing speech in which he very satisfactorily explained the situation of the country as well as many other points which have been in dark and unthought of by many. Mr. Foss is a very smart young man and an elegant orator and will no doubt, if elected, be a credit to the Republican party.

Next followed Mr. A. T. Bright who delivered a short but a much appreciated speech in regard to the educational interest of the County. Mr. Bright brought out some very good points and explained them in an easy and simple manner, making them comprehensive to all. He also told what our present Governor, of the State of Illinois, has done for the educational interests of our respective State. This we all know far too well.

Last but not least came Mr. Geo. Struckman the self made man, who, after cracking a few jokes, got down to business and explained his ideas as to the work of the County as far as the Commissioners are concerned. His plans for the construction of the proposed court house and jail are simple, substantial and based on business principals such as should be adopted, and possibly save the County and tax paying people thousands of dollars. This closed the program and the citizens of Barrington went home wiser, by far, on many point in the political upheaval of this the great and mighty Nation.

Remember these men when you go to cast your vote

Chicago's 300,000.

The total male registration of Chicago at an election is, in round numbers, 300,000. The women registered to the extent of between 23,000 and 24,000. Both are much larger showings than were anticipated. The male registration is just about twice the total vote in the city only one year ago. At that time Judge Gary got 79,098 votes in the city, and the head of the Democratic ticket, Mr. Showalter, 71,735.

These enormous increases cannot be explained upon the mere theory of increase of population. No doubt there are a good many more people in Chicago now than a year ago, especially of those entitled to vote. But at that time the World's Fair closed only a few days before the election and thousands of people were still in the city, either closing up what they had been doing or looking for something else. To superficial observation the city contained a good many more people than now. As a matter of fact, as is well known, there has been a healthy growth in population during the last year, and with no more interest in the election now than then there would be a very considerable increase in registration, but nothing like what there has been secured.

The chief reason for this increase is the extraordinary interest being taken by the non-political voters of Chicago and the whole country. The politicians, great and small, are on hand at every election. Then, too, a large proportion of the voters are earnest partisans and turn out quite as a matter of course to the support of their respective ticket. They did last year, and they do every year. But there is still another class upon whom party considerations rest lightly, who are very easily switched off the suffrage track, and for one reason and another stay away from the polls unless there is some special incentive to vote. They come out generally at Presidential elections, but in off years they stay away in proportion to the "odds" of the year. In the fall of 1893 very little effort was made by either party to get the voters out, and the issue was strictly county, except as the Gary candidacy infused into the campaign some extra vitality.

It is evident that, making due allowance for those who register but fail to vote, and for those who will be scaled off under suspect proceedings, Chicago will cast as many votes in November, 1894, as New York did in the Presidential year of 1892. This clearly shows that the people are specially anxious to vote. Why? No man with any intelligence has any doubt as to the reason. Whatever Democratic partisanship may pretend, everybody knows perfectly well that the anxiety is to record a protest against the policy which has paralyzed business, stopped enterprise, enforced idleness, and filled our land with misery, and what is more, threatens to make bad matters a great deal worse by tearing down still other defenses of American labor. This is the explanation of the increased desire to vote, and the only explanation.

Shadow.
Gray clouds hang o'er the fallen sun.
And the meadow lark's flutes are faintly blown,
From far meads, o'er the cornfields dun
Lying low and lone.

Fine and thin are the mist shrouds spun
By the night's cold hand, now the day has flown,
Shrouds all white for the cornfields dun
Lying low and lone.

Stillness; save where the little streams run
Whispering, and the wind makes moan;
And darkness bows o'er the cornfields dun
Lying low and lone.

When Nature
Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

UNCLE JOHN (in the country)—"Just look at that meadow, with its carpet of green grass! Isn't it beautiful?" Flossie (from the city)—"Yes, Uncle John; but it isn't natural. There isn't a single 'keep off the grass' sign on it."

LITTLE QUEEN.

When the wild sea moans to the barren shore,
When the tempest beats with a dull refrain
And the loud winds shriek like a soul in pain
A ghost of the past returns once more.
Then low through the wreck of the storm and rain

A voice is sighing their rage between:
Lovingly, tenderly, calling me.
The voice of my lost love, Little Queen.

Thick o'er her breast have the roses blown
Years after years, with their white and red,
And violets blue as her eyes are spread
Over that small grave, ivy-grown.
Yet still she comes in the twilight gray,
And clear as a star in the moonlight sheen
Her sweet face smiles in the old, dear way,
At my loving whisper of "Little Queen."

What are the loves of the world to me?
This fair woman is ever mine.
Shadow or wrath of the pale moonshine
Mine she is, the dead must be Nearer and dearer than life can give;
Close to my heart she clings unseen.
And I know none other the time I live
Can claim the place of my Little Queen.

LORD OF THE DYNAMOS.

Story of a Heathen Worship in Civilized London.

The chief attendant of the three dynamos that buzzed and rattled at Camberwell, and kept the electric railway going, came out of Yorkshire, and his name was James Holroyd. He was a practical electrician, but fond of whisky, a heavy red-haired brute with irregular teeth. He doubted Carnot's cycle but accepted Dalton's atomic theory, and he had read Shakespeare and found him weak in chemistry. His helper came out of the mysterious east, and his name was Azuma-zi. But Holroyd called him Pooh-bah. Holroyd liked a negro help because he would stand kicking—a habit with Holroyd—and did not pry into the machinery and try to learn the ways of it. Certain odd possibilities of the negro mind brought into abrupt contact with the crown of our civilization Holroyd never fully realized.

To define Azuma-zi was beyond ethnology. He was, perhaps, more negroid than anything else, though his hair was curly rather than frizzy, and his nose had a bridge. Moreover, his skin was brown rather than black, and the whites of his eyes were yellow. His broad cheek bones and narrow chin gave his face something of the viperine V. His head, too, was broad behind and low and narrow at the forehead, as if his brain had been twisted round in the reverse mode to a European's. He was short of stature and still shorter of English. In conversation he made numerous odd noises of no known marketable value, and his infrequent words were carved and wrought into heraldic grotesqueness. Holroyd tried to elucidate his religious beliefs, and—especially after whisky—lectured to him against superstition. Azuma-zi, however, shirked the discussion of his gods, even though he was kicked for it.

Azuma-zi had come, clad in white but insufficient raiment, out of the stoke hole of the Lord Clive, from the Straits settlements, and beyond into London. He had heard even in his youth of the greatness and riches of London, where all the women are white and fair, and even the beggars in the streets are white, and he had arrived, with newly-earned gold coins in his pocket, to worship at the shrines of civilization. The day of his landing was a dismal one; the sky was dun, and a wind-worried drizzle filtered down to the greasy streets, but he plunged boldly into the delights of Shadwell, and was presently cast up, shattered in health, civilized in costume, penniless, helpless, and, except in matters of the direst necessity, practically a dumb animal, to toil for James Holroyd and to be bullied by him in a dynamo shed at Camberwell. And to James Holroyd bullying was a labor of love.

There were three dynamos with their engines at Camberwell. The two that have been there since the beginning are small machines; the larger one was new. The smaller machines made a reasonable noise; their straps hummed over the drums, every now and then the brushes buzzed and fizzled, and the air churned steadily, whool whool whool between their poles. One was loose in its foundations and kept the shed vibrating. But the big dynamo drowned these little noises altogether with the drone of its iron core, which somehow set part of the ironwork humming. The place made the visitor's head reel with the throb, throb, throb of the engines, the rotation of the big wheels, the spinning ball valves, the occasional spittings of the steam, and over all the deep, unceasing, surging note of the big dynamo. This last noise was from an engineering point of view a defect, but Azuma-zi accounted it unto the monster for mightiness and pride.

If it were possible we would have the noises of that shed always about the reader as he reads, we would tell all our story to such an accompaniment. It was a steady stream of din, from which the ear picked out first one thread and then another; there was the intermittent snorting, panting and seething of the steam engines, the suck and thud of their pistons, the dull beat on the air as the spokes of the great driving-wheels came round, a note the leather straps made as they ran tighter and looser, and a fretful tumult from the dynamos; and overall, sometimes inaudible, as the ear tired of it, and then creeping back upon the senses again, was this trombone note of the big machine. The floor never felt steady and quiet beneath one's feet, but quivered and jarred. It was a confusing, unsteady place, and enough to send anyone's thoughts jerking into odd zigzags. And for three months, while the big strike of the engineers was in progress, Holroyd, who was a blackleg, and Azuma-zi, who was a mere black, were never out of the stir and eddy of it, but slept and fed in the little wooden shanty between the shed and the gates.

Holroyd delivered a theological lecture on the text of his big machine soon after Azuma-zi came. He had to shout to be heard in the din. "Look at that," said Holroyd; "where's your 'eathen idol to match it?' And Azuma-zi looked. For a moment Holroyd was inaudible, and then Azuma-zi heard: "Kill a hundred men. It helps pay twelve per cent on the ordinary shares," said Holroyd, "and that's something like an idol!"

Holroyd was proud of his big dynamo, and expatiated upon its size and power to Azuma-zi until heaven knows what odd currents of thought that and the incessant whirling and shindy set up within the curly black cranium. He would explain in the most graphic manner the dozen or so ways in which a man might be killed by it, and once he gave Azuma-zi a shock as a sample of its quality. After that, in the breathing-time of his labor—it was heavy labor, being not only his own but most of Holroyd's—Azuma-zi would sit and watch the big machine. Now and then the brushes would sparkle and spit blue flashes, at which Holroyd would swear, but all the rest was as smooth and rhythmic as breathing. The band ran shouting over the shaft, and ever behind one as one watched was the complacent thud of the piston. So it lived all day in this big airy shed, with him and Holroyd to wait upon it; not prisoned up and slaving to drive a ship as the other engines he knew had been, but a machine enthroned. Those two smaller dynamos Azuma-zi by force of contrast despised; the larger one he privately christened the Lord of the Dynamos. They were fretful and irregular, but the big dynamo was steady. How great it was! How serene and easy in its working! Greater and calmer even than the Buddha he had seen at Rangoon, and yet not motionless, but living! The great black coils spun, spun, spun, the rings ran round under the brushes, and the deep note of its coil steadied the whole. It affected Azuma-zi queerly.

Azuma-zi was not fond of labor. He would sit about and watch the Lord of the Dynamos while Holroyd went away to persuade the yard porter to get whisky, although his proper place was not in the dynamo shed but behind the engines, and, moreover, if Holroyd caught him skulking he got hit for it with a rod of stout copper wire. He would go and stand close to the colossal and look up at the great leather band running overhead. There was a black patch on the band that came round, and it pleased him somehow among all the clatter to watch this return again and again. Odd thoughts spun with the whirl of it. Scientific people tell us that savages give souls to rocks and trees—and a machine is a thousand times more alive than a rock or a tree. And Azuma-zi was practically a savage still; the veneer of civilization lay no deeper than his slop suit, his bruises and the coal grime on his face and hands. His father before him had worshiped a meteoric stone; it may be, kindred blood had splashed the broad wheels of Juggernaut.

He took every opportunity Holroyd gave him of touching and handling the great dynamo that was fascinating him. He polished and cleaned it until the metal parts were blinding in the sun. He felt a mysterious sense of service in doing this. He would go up and touch its spinning coils gently. The gods he had worshiped were all far away. The people in London hid their gods.

At last his dim feelings grew more distinct, and took shape in thoughts and acts. When he came into the shed one morning he salaamed to the Lord of the Dynamos, and then, when Holroyd was away, he went and whispered to the machine that he was its servant, and prayed it to have pity on him and save him from Holroyd. As he did so a rare gleam of light came in through the open archway of the throbbing machine shed, and the Lord of the Dynamos, as he whirled and roared, was radiant with pale gold. Then Azuma-zi knew that his service was acceptable to his Lord. After that he did not feel so lonely as he had done, and he had indeed been very much alone in London. And even when his work time was over, which was rare, he loitered about the shed.

Then, the next time Holroyd maltreated him, Azuma-zi went presently to the Lord of the Dynamos and whispered: "Thou seest, O my Lord!" and the angry whirr of the machinery seemed to answer him. Thereafter it appeared to him that whenever Holroyd came into the shed a different note came into the sounds of the great dynamo. "My Lord bides his time," said Azuma-zi to himself. "The iniquity of the fool is not yet ripe." And he waited and watched for the day of reckoning. One day there was evidence of short circuiting, and Holroyd, making an unwary examination—it was in the afternoon—got a rather severe electric shock. Azuma-zi from behind the engine saw him jump off and curse at the peccant coil.

"He is warned," said Azuma-zi to himself. "Surely my Lord is very patient."

Holroyd had at first initiated his "nigger" into such elementary conceptions of the dynamo's working as would enable him to take temporary charge of the shed in his absence. But when he noticed the manner in which Azuma-zi hung about the monster, he became suspicious. He dimly perceived his assistant was "up to something," and connecting him with the anointing of the coils with oil that had rotted the varnish in one place, he issued an edict, shouted above the confusion of the machinery: "Don't 'ee go nigh that big dynamo any more, Pooh-bah, or 'a'll take thy skin off!" Besides, if it pleased Azuma-zi to be near the big machine, it was plain sense and decency to keep him away from it.

Azuma-zi obeyed at the time, but later he was caught bowing before the Lord of the Dynamos. At which Holroyd twisted his arm and kicked him as he turned to go away. As Azuma-zi presently stood behind the engine and glared at the hated Holroyd, the noises of the machinery took a new rhythm and sounded like four words in his native tongue.

It is hard to say exactly what madness is. I fancy Azuma-zi was mad. The incessant din and whirl of the dynamo shed may have churned up his little store of knowledge and big store of superstitious fancy, at last, into something akin to frenzy. At any rate, when the idea of making Holroyd a sacrifice to the dynamo fetiche was thus suggested to him, it filled him with a strange tumult of exultant emotion.

That night the two men and their black shadows were alone in the shed together. The shed was lit with one big arc light that winked and flickered purple. The shadows lay black behind the dynamos, the ball valves whirled from light to darkness, and the engines beat loud and steady. The world outside seen through the open end of the shed seemed incredibly dim and remote. It seemed absolutely silent, too, since the riot of the machinery drowned every external sound. Far away was the black fence of the yard, with gray shadowy houses behind, and above was the deep blue sky and the pale little stars. Azuma-zi suddenly walked across the center of the shed above which the leather bands were running, and went into the shadow by the big dynamo. Holroyd heard a click, and the spin of the armature changed.

"What are you dewin' with that switch?" he bawled in surprise. "Haven't I told you—"

Then he saw the set expression of Azuma-zi's eyes as the Asiatic came out of the shadow towards him.

In another moment the two men were grappling fiercely in front of the great dynamo.

"You coffee-headed fool!" gasped Holroyd, with a brown hand at his throat. "Keep off those contact rings." In another moment he was tripped and reeling back upon the Lord of the Dynamos. He instinctively loosened his grip upon his antagonist to save himself from the machine.

The messenger sent in furious haste from the station to find out what had happened in the dynamo shed, met Azuma-zi at the porter's lodge by the gate. Azuma-zi tried to explain something, but the messenger could make nothing of the black's incoherent English, and hurried on to the shed. The machines were all noisily at work, and nothing seemed to be disarranged. There was, however, a queer smell of singed hair. Then he saw an odd-looking crumpled up mass clinging to the front of the big dynamo, and, approaching, recognized the distorted remains of Holroyd.

The man stared and hesitated a moment. Then he saw the face and shnt his eyes, convulsively squeezing the lids together. He turned on his heel before he opened them again, so that he should not see Holroyd again, and went out of the shed to get advice and help.

When Azuma-zi saw Holroyd die in the grip of the great dynamo he had been a little scared about the consequences of his act. Yet he felt strangely elated, and knew that the favor of the Lord Dynamo was upon him. His plan was already settled when he met the man coming from the station, and the scientific manager who speedily arrived on the scene jumped at the obvious conclusion of suicide. This expert scarcely noticed Azuma-zi except to ask a few questions. Did he see Holroyd kill himself? Azuma-zi explained that he had been out of sight at the engine furnace until he heard a difference in the noise from the dynamo. It was not a difficult examination, being untinged by suspicion.

The distorted remains of Holroyd, which the electrical removed from the machine, were hastily covered by the porter with a coffee-stained tablecloth. Somebody, by a happy inspiration, fetched a medical man. The expert was chiefly anxious to get the machine at work again, for seven or eight trains had stopped midway in the stuffy tunnels of the electric railway. Azuma-zi, answering or misunderstanding the questions of the people who had by authority or impudence come into the shed, was presently sent back to the stoke-hole by the scientific manager. Of course a crowd collected outside the gates of the yard—a crowd, for no known reason, always hovers for a day or two near the scene of a sudden death in London—two or three reporters percolated somehow into the engine-shed, and one even got to Azuma-zi, but the scientific expert cleared them out again, being himself an amateur journalist. Presently the body was carried away, and public interest departed with it. Azuma-zi remained very quietly at his furnace, seeing over and over again in the coals a figure that riggled violently and became still.

An hour after the murder, to anyone coming into the shed it would have looked exactly as if nothing had happened. Peeping presently from his engine-room the black saw the Lord Dynamo spin and whirl beside his little brothers, and the driving wheels were beating round, and the steam in the pistons went thud, thud, exactly as it had been earlier in the evening. After all, from the mechanical point of view, it had been a most insignificant incident—the mere temporary deflection of a current, only now the slender form and slender shadow of the scientific manager replaced the sturdy outline of Holroyd traveling up and down the lane of light upon the vibrating floor under the straps between the engines and the dynamos.

"Have I not served my Lord?" said Azuma-zi, inaudibly, from his shadow, and the note of the great dynamo rang out full and clear. As he looked at the big whirling mechanism the strange fascination of it that had been a little in abeyance since Holroyd's death resumed its sway.

Never had Azuma-zi seen a man killed so swiftly and pitilessly. The big humming machine had slain its victim without wavering for a second from its steady beating. It was indeed a mighty god. The unconscious scientific manager stood with his back to him, scribbling on a piece of paper. His shadow lay at the foot of the monster.

"Was the Lord Dynamo still hungry? His servant was ready."

Azuma-zi made a stealthy step forward, then hesitated. The scientific manager suddenly stopped writing and walked down the shed to the end-most of the dynamos and began to examine the brushes.

Azuma-zi hesitated and then slipped across noiselessly into the shadow by the switch. There he waited. Presently the manager's footsteps could be heard returning. He stopped in his old position, unconscious of the figure crouching ten feet away from him. Then the big dynamo fizzled and in another moment a thick-set figure had sprung out of the darkness upon him.

The scientific manager will remember all the details of that struggle with the mad stoker so long as there is life in him. First he was gripped round the body and swung towards the big dynamo, then, kicking with his knee and forcing his antagonist's head down with his hands, he loosened the grip on his waist and swung round away from the machine; then the black grasped him with his arms again, putting a curly head against his chest, and they swayed and panted as it seemed for an age or so. Then the scientific manager was impelled to catch a black ear in his teeth and bite furiously. The black yelled hideously. Suddenly they rolled over on the floor, and the black, who had apparently slipped from the vice of the teeth or parted with some ear—the scientific manager wondered which at the time—tried to throttle him. The scientific manager was making some ineffectual efforts to claw something with his hands and to kick, when the welcome sound of quick footsteps sounded on the floor. The next moment Azuma-zi had left him and darted towards the big dynamo. There was a sputter amid the roar.

The officer of the company, who had entered, stood staring as Azuma-zi caught the naked terminals in his hand, gave one horrible convulsion and then hung motionless from the machine, his face violently distorted. "I'm jolly glad you came in when you did," said the scientific manager, still sitting on the floor.

He looked at the still quivering figure. "It is not a nice death to die, apparently—but it is quick."

The ticket collector was still staring at the body. He was a man of slow apprehension.

There was a pause. The scientific manager got up on his feet rather awkwardly. He ran his fingers along his collar thoughtfully, and moved his head to and fro several times.

"Poor Holroyd! I see now." Then almost mechanically he went towards the switch in the shadow and turned the current into the railway circuit again. As he did so the singed body loosened its grip upon the machine and fell forward on its face.

So ended permanently the worship of dynamo deity, probably the most short-lived of all religions. Yet without it could boast a martyrdom and a human sacrifice.—H. G. Wells, in Pall Mall Budget.

"Sugar-cured hams" are good, but a sugar-cured party dont seem to be in demand. although it has been largely advertised.

One of the arguments which the Buffalo Express uses in favor of the bicycle for the United States army is that "it is sure death to get in front of one."

Taking into consideration the number of doctors he has had, the Czar can be regarded as a tough subject when he is able—after being reported dead—to "walk half an hour unassisted in the park.

About the boldest thing yet attempted is the effort to show that "the veterans of the old Union are for Governor Hill and the Tammany ticket." Possibly one in fifty may give him a vote.

"Love may be blind; but it generally picks out the man with the most money," says a gossiping writer. The fact remains that there are six fortune hunters among men to every one among women.

Cleveland might easily get over all the trouble by sending in $5,000. Hill saved him a hadsome sum by relieving him from the payment of an income tax. He might at least donate that much.

The thing called tariff reform is not, up to date, a "tariff for revenue only." It seems to be more of a party smasher than a tariff for revenue. More bonds will be needed to float the thing over the shallow water.

The irrigating ditches now being pushed to completion in Arizona will bring a million acres of now "waist land" into cultivation. The rich land developed and the grand crops produced at Sunnyside, in Washington, and in the Yakima Valley are attracting large attention at the recent exposition at St. Paul. The Sunnyside fruits and grain divided the premiums with Flathead Valley in Montana, another producing district.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quited. The severe pain of a burn or a scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A pain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in which insures a cure in one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the chest or side relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. A Mob Repulsed and the Law Vindicated in Bloodshed.

Would-Be Lynchers Attempt to Secure Possession of a Colored Brute—Three Are Killed and Twelve Wounded.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, O., Oct. 19.—Three men were killed and almost a dozen injured, some fatally, by the militia here Wednesday evening in the endeavor to keep mobs from lynching William Dolby, colored.

Dolby was brought here on Tuesday, and Tuesday night the first mob rumors took shape. The local militia was ordered out, and later two companies from Columbus reached here. Much indignation was manifested at the action of the officials in thus putting a bar between the mob and their prey, and on all sides denunciations were frequent. All classes were represented among those who took this view of the situation, though many deplored the lawless spirit manifested.

Later in the day a special grand jury was impaneled and the negro was indicted. The militia companies formed at the west side of the courthouse while the sheriff and Deputy James Busick went to the jail for the prisoner.

Struck Down by a Soldier.

The sheriff and his deputies had hardly emerged from the jail door me to bring the man to Columbus," said Col. Coit, with characteristic emphasis, "I will do it, but it will cost blood." Col. Coit then made a speech to the crowd.

"It looks very much," said he, "as if you intend to make an attack on the legal authorities. There will be trouble if you do. I call on law-abiding citizens to disperse and go to their homes."

Attacked the Courthouse.

This was received as other warnings had been. The prisoner had been taken to a back room in the sheriff's office on the third floor. At 6:10 the crowd, largely augmented, surrounded the building and with huge improvised battering rams battered the doors in rapid succession. The troops were hastened together in the courthouse at all entrances. The doors were barricaded from within and furniture piled against them. The soldiers stood with pieces cocked and bayonets fixed and waited till the doors would yield. Huge stones were thrown against the doors and the noise was deafening. All the time loud and angry yells came from the crowd. Col. Coit went into the crowd and said: "If any man of you hit one of my men I will direct him to aim directly at that man's heart."

Fired on the Mob.

At 7:55 the south doors were broken and immediately there was a deafening and continuous volley from two scores of muskets. A pandemonium of yells and curses and a dense smoke filled the corridors. The law had been

GOT BUT LITTLE.

Cook's Gang of Train Robbers Make Another Haul.

They Rob an Express in Indian Territory—Two Men Shot—Passengers Forced to Contribute—About $1,000 Stolen—They Escape.

PARSONS, Kan., Oct. 22.—The Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 223, on the Kansas and Arkansas Valley branch, was held up by four or five masked men at Coretta siding, 7 miles east of Wagoner, I. T., at 10 o'clock Saturday night. An empty car was placed on the main track and the train struck it. The robbers commenced a terrible onslaught and two men are reported shot. But little money is said to have been secured. All the cars excepting the sleeper were shot full of holes and not a whole window remained.

The moment the train stopped the bandits began firing into the forward cars. There were eight or ten men in the gang who distributed themselves along the side of the train. Two of them mounted the engine and forced the engineer and the fireman to alight. They were marched to the express car and threatened with instant death unless they compelled the express messenger to open the door of his car. The messenger refused to open at first, but as the robbers kept firing a fusillade of bullets through the side of the car he finally complied to the commands of the robbers and the entreaties of the engineer and fireman and threw open the car doors. Two robbers immediately entered and secured all the money in the local safe. They commanded Messenger Ford to open the through safe, but when he explained that the combination was only known at the main office at the end of the line they left the car.

Meanwhile the other robbers had been going through the train demanding the money and valuables of the passengers. Before they had completed their work a freight train which had followed the passenger closely out of Wagoner drew in sight and Cook ordered his followers out of the train. The gang instantly remounted their horses and firing a parting volley at the train rode off in a northerly direction.

While the robbers were at work inside the car their confederates on the outside kept up a continual firing which had the desired effect in scaring the passengers and trainmen and preventing resistance. Two men were wounded, one of whom, John Mahara, advance agent of a minstrel company, may die. He was wounded in the forehead.

The entire train was completely riddled with bullets, every window being broken. The engine cab was shot all to pieces, even the steam gauge and gauge lamp being shot away and the ground around the wreck covered with empty shells. It was a miracle that many lives were not lost, as fully 200 shots were fired.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 22.—Express officials here say that their loss by the Wagoner train robbery will not exceed $1,000. The train carried a small amount in the local safe and the robbers were unable to break into the through safe.

The robbery was the work of Cook and his desperate gang of outlaws, who have recently been terrorizing the citizens in the territory. For two months past all railroads passing through the territory have been heavily guarded in fear of an attack and many shipments into the territory have been refused by the express company. Many depredations of the gang, especially within the past week or two, have shown this precaution to have been timely. For days the gang has been represented as being at different points planning a robbery, and thorough preparations were made to meet the expected attack. The outlaws evidently anticipated a desperate resistance and began their work with fierce fighting.

FIRE AND FLOOD IN CHINA.

The Town of Chung Kiang and an Agricultural District Suffer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—The mail from the Orient by the steamers City of Peking and Australia brings news of a disastrous fire during September at Chung Kiang, near Hong Kong. Over thirty people were burned to death, 2,000 houses destroyed, including two temples, and a total loss of 10,000,000 taels entailed.

Serious floods were reported in northeast China. A rich agricultural district, 150 miles long and 12 miles wide was submerged. Many women and children were drowned, and an enormous property loss suffered.

MANGLED BY POWDER.

Several Men Badly Injured on the Drainage Canal.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—By the careless handling of gunpowder, following a blast by a dynamite charge, four men were seriously burned on Saturday afternoon at Summit on section F of the drainage canal, operated by Ricker, Lee & Co. Two men were seriously injured the same way Sunday morning; and, as if this were not enough to overwhelm one firm of contractors in twenty-four hours in the way of disasters, another laborer on the same section lost a leg Saturday afternoon by being run over by a dump car.

JURISTS CLASH.

Nebraska Judges at War Over the Rosewater Case.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 18.—Probably the most remarkable instance of the clash of judicial authorities in the history of American jurisprudence occurred in Omaha Tuesday when the criminal branch of the district court, presided over by C. R. Scott, was ordered by the other five judges of the district, sitting as a court, to transfer to their docket the case in which Editor Rosewater of the Bee is accused of libel by the wife of ex-Sheriff Bennett. This was the result of a motion by Mr. Rosewater before the five judges to have some other judge preside at the trial since he regarded the prejudice of Judge Scott as a bar to a fair trial before him.

When the court clerk handed Judge Scott the order of the five judges to transfer the case there was a scene. Court business was suspended and hundreds of people flocked into the room to hear the fracas. In a manner indicative of half-suppressed passion Judge Scott said:

"We have now met at the cross-roads and I do not propose to take either side, but instead, I am going to tread right in the middle of the road. Here I am, an American citizen 62 years of age, and stand upon a broad gauge platform that will permit me to give every man a fair and impartial trial. If I did not want to give Rosewater a fair trial the motion might be excused. There is no law to take this case off my docket, and it will stay there. If there is any monkeying about it some one is going to be cited to appear for contempt, and I think I am pretty good authority on contempt."

Tuesday afternoon Judges Hopewell, Ambrose, Blair, Keyser and Ferguson ascended to the bench for the purpose of sitting in banc to determine if the Bennett case should be removed from Judge Scott's docket.

The judges ordered the clerk to produce the papers in the case at 9 a. m. to-day and cited Mr. Rosewater to be present for trial. When Scott heard this he at once entered in his journal a decree nullifying the order of the five judges and cited Rosewater to appear in his court at 9 a. m. to-day for trial. He further instructed the clerk that if he attempted to carry the papers in the case from his courtroom he would have him jailed for contempt.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 19.—The most remarkable situation in the history of the district court appeared Wednesday morning when two different judges in two different rooms were engaged in hearing the same criminal case. Judge Scott, known to be a personal enemy of Mr. Rosewater, editor of the Bee, announced Tuesday that he would certainly insist on trying the criminal libel suit of Sophia Bennett against Rosewater despite the request of the editor for a change of venue and the decision of the five other judges that the case should be taken from Scott and tried by Judge Ambrose.

When court convened Judge Scott took up the case, being upheld and supported by the county attorney, and entered upon the hearing of a motion to dismiss, Mrs. Bennett declaring her intention to refuse to prosecute before any judge other than Scott. At the same hour Judge Ambrose called up the case and continued it until 2 o'clock.

Judge Scott heard and granted the motion to dismiss, presented by Mrs. Bennett, and delivered a long declaration of principles, declaring that the other judges were swayed by fear of Rosewater, and insisted that the other judges had no right to transfer the case from his docket, but that he had exclusive jurisdiction, and in exercising this jurisdiction he dismissed the suit.

JOINT DEBATE.

Messrs. Thurston and Bryan Discuss Politics in Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 19.—Remarkable interest was manifested in the joint political debate Wednesday afternoon between Congressman W. J. Bryan and John M. Thurston, candidates respectively of the democratic and republican parties for the United States senate. The seating capacity of the Merchants' pavilion at the state fair grounds, estimated at 7,000, was taxed, and the partisans of the two speakers, supposed to be equal in numbers, were warm in their plaudits of the good points made. They discussed the income tax, government foreclosure of liens on Pacific railroads and the free coinage of silver as being subjects of equal importance and probably of paramount interest to the people of Nebraska. The tariff question was left for discussion at a later date.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 20.—The joint debate between Congressman Bryan and Hon. John M. Thurston in this city Thursday night was heard by 15,000 people from nearly all parts of the state. Thurston devoted his time mainly to the tariff argument wholly in line with McKinley, and cited the prediction of Blaine as to the present situation. He attacked Bryan on his support of the tariff-reduction bill and the bill to repeal the federal elections law.

Bryan defended his course in congress, saying the federal elections law was centralization of power and taking the government away from the people. He contended that industries were reviving.

Two hundred molders have struck for an increase in wages at the Wisconsin malleable iron works in Milwaukee.

THE REGULAR ARMY.

Annual Reports of Maj. Gen. Miles and Howard.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the department of the Missouri, has submitted his annual report. It says there have been no changes of troops during the year, and continues:

"As in previous years, the troops in the Indian and Oklahoma territories have been occupied during much of this time in removing trespassers from the public lands, in preserving order in the newly-settled region and in keeping the peace between the hostile factions of the semi-civilized Indian tribes. In addition to removing and expelling intruders in the Choctaw nation and from the Osage and Kaw reservation the troops stationed at Forts Reno, Sill and Supply were called on for the purpose of protecting United States mails, guarding railroad bridges and supporting the United States marshal in making arrests."

"All of these difficult duties have been performed in a manner which shows good judgment and discretion on the part of the officers and a good state of discipline and faithful service on the part of the troops, and it is believed that but for their prompt intervention much bloodshed would have resulted. The troops, having quickly and efficiently accomplished the arduous duties assigned to them, have been withdrawn from the field and returned to their respective stations."

"The conduct of the troops in restoring order and confidence when mob violence and a reign of terror existed in Chicago, was marked by great forbearance, fortitude and excellent discipline, and their presence and action there very greatly contributed to the maintenance of civil law, and, in my opinion, saved this country from serious rebellion when one had been publicly declared to exist by one most responsible for its existence."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Maj. Gen. Howard goes on the retired list November 8. He entered the military service as a cadet in 1850. This fact lends interest to his annual report, from which the following is extracted:

Gen. Howard's report shows that his forces, consisting of 413 officers and 4,535 men, were distributed among 28 garrisons and 33 not garrisoned posts. Affairs in the department have been very peaceful except for the interruption of the Chicago strike. His apprehensions of the troubles extending to the larger eastern cities at that time were not realized, but says Gen. Howard, should such difficulties arise again and simultaneously in cities far apart, the necessity for regular troops and more of them than this department now affords is apparent. Just now the national guard in several states in the department is well organized and responds promptly to every call of duty; still, if more than one state is involved in any event growing out of anarchy, the executive will always require his own troops. They will be essential to his execution of the laws and the maintenance of order. Of course, governors of states could cooperate, but they might disagree, or be reluctant in meeting sudden emergency. He strongly recommends an increase of the army to at least double the size of our present force.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Employees in the Carter County Mining District Attacked by Strikers.

ASHLAND, Ky., Oct. 20.—The outbreak that has been expected for some days in the Carter county mining district, came Thursday morning in the ambushing of the miners of the Straight Creek Coal company by the strikers. The miners were fired upon from the bushes along the hills as they were enroute to the mine and a number were wounded. Jack Marcum and John Morris were fatally shot, while Bob Evans, John Adams and several whose names were not secured, were also reported as badly injured. The bullets in each case came from Winchester rifles. During the balance of the day the appearance of a miner at the pit mouth or the tippie was a signal for renewed firing. Word was sent to Grayson, the county seat, and the sheriff and a posse of deputies were quickly summoned. They spent the day scouring the hills and succeeded in capturing George Tyree, James Coburn, Bob and John Taylor, Will Sneed and two others, but these men were unarmed when found and protested innocence. They were removed, however, to Grayson for safe keeping and will be held for further developments. The excitement is intense and extra guards are out, as further trouble is expected.

A BOY PAYS THE PENALTY.

First Legal Hanging in Iowa for the Last Eight Years.

FORT MADISON, Ia., Oct. 20.—The first legal hanging that has been had in Iowa for eight years took place in the penitentiary at this place at 12:15 Friday, when James O. Dooley suffered the death penalty for murder. Sheriff Eldridge, of Adams county, was the executioner. Dooley's neck was not broken by the drop and it was twenty minutes before life was pronounced extinct. He made the following speech before the black cap was placed on his head:

"You are criminals. This execution is illegal. The law says there shall be seventeen present, but there are nearly twenty-five and more coming down the hall. Rich men may violate the law with impunity, but poor men must suffer for their crimes, and I must suffer. I hope God will forgive you for your sins. He has forgiven mine."

The crime for which Dooley suffered death, the murder of his aunt and cousin, was committed in Adams county, Ia., May 11, 1892. Dooley, who was but 16 years old, was employed as a farm hand by W. H. Coons, his uncle by marriage, on a farm a mile or so out from Cornin.

The Business Situation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Bradstreet's says:

"With few exceptions the leading features of the business situation this week have been those of continued moderate improvement, although the total volume of business, so far as indicated by bank clearings throughout the country, will require considerable expansion to compare favorably with corresponding totals two years ago. Nearly all the more important business centers west and northwest report moderate activity, but few of them announce new features."

DAGMAR MARIE FEODOROVNA, EMPRESS OF RUSSIA.

Recent reports are to the effect that the Czarina will be the virtual ruler of the Russian empire until her husband's recovery from his present serious illness, or his death. The empress is forty-seven years of age, a daughter of the King of Denmark and sister of the Princess of Wales. She is said to be a woman of remarkable executive ability and almost marvelous tact, and has always shown a keen interest in the welfare of the Russian people.

when the acknowledged leader of the crowd, Henry Kirk, who married Mrs. Boyd's sister, rushed toward the trembling wretch, protected by the sworn officers of the law, and breaking the thin ranks of the stalwart guard seized the culprit with a hand of iron. Quick as a flash the musket of a soldier was swung with great force and Mr. Kirk was dealt a blow in the face. The angry crowd rushed madly forward, and in the rush swept one gallant boy around the corner and away from his company but he quickly returned to his post.

The curses and imprecations of the thoroughly maddened crowd grew in volume and the wretched prisoner trembled like an aspen. His saddle color became purple and he had to be supported. Col. Coit rallied his men for a supreme effort and the prisoner was almost carried up the steps and into the courthouse. There was then a scene of intense excitement, men armed with staves and any form of weapon rushed blindly almost onto the bayonets of the soldiery and some so far forgot themselves as to rush almost on the troops.

Warned the Mob.

Col. Coit, commanding the troops, stopped on the steps of the courthouse to warn the excited people to disperse, and after his earnest warning had fallen on deaf ears, he shouted: "Load," and there was a uniform clicking of hammers and every soldier prepared his piece for trouble, if trouble must come.

Pleaded Guilty.

Once up to the third floor of the courthouse and into the room where the trial is held, Dolby was soon legally declared a criminal. At exactly 3:53 he was led into the courtroom, pleaded guilty, and in three minutes he was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment, ten days in each year in solitary confinement.

Meanwhile the mob was clamoring for admission. The crowd grew in numbers and the accessions proved an inspiration to the tired leaders, who had exhausted themselves.

Called for Reinforcements.

Col. Coit at this juncture telephoned the adjutant general at Columbus for 200 additional troops. "If you want vindicated at frightful cost, for this was the list of dead and of wounded:

The Victims.

KILLED—James Judy, aged 25; Smith Welch, aged 16, and Mack Johnson, of Williamsburg, Clermont county.

WOUNDED—Hugh Ammerman, shot through the hips, dangerous; F. L. Nitterhouse, shot through both ankles, one foot almost severed, since amputated; Rial Parrott, shot in foot; John McCune, shot in leg; John Korn, shot in foot; Emert Ellis, thumb shot off; George Keating, 14 years old, shot in both legs and groin; William Sams, fatally shot through the bowels; Frank Smith, flesh wound in face; De Witt Dale, shot in arm; William Laum, shot in abdomen; Ellis Webster, shot in body.

It was reported at midnight that three attempts had been made to place dynamite under the courthouse. It was said that a large quantity of the explosive was wheeled to the building in a hand cart, and that the dynamiters were frustrated by the militia in each attempt.

The leaders stated at midnight that the plan to lynch Dolby would probably be abandoned but that he would be riddled with bullets when led from the courthouse to the railroad train. Fully two-thirds of the active members of the crowd were armed with revolvers.

Dolby Taken to the Penitentiary.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 20.—Dolby, the assaulter of Mrs. Mary C. Boyd, was successfully taken from the county jail at Washington Court House early Thursday morning and brought to the penitentiary under escort of four companies of the Fourteenth regiment.

Another Victim.

William Sams, one of the wounded in Wednesday night's riot, died Thursday morning. This increases the death list to four.

Another Hold-Up.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 20.—The westbound Texas & Pacific through train for California leaving here at 9:05 a. m., was robbed about noon Friday, 70 miles west of here, near Gordon. The robbers secured about $20,000 from the Pacific Express company, and but for their inability to open the safe of the Texas & Pacific Coal company containing $20,000 in gold, would have made a better haul. Four men did the deed.

FARM AND GARDEN.

SHEEP FARMING PAYS.

If Properly Managed It Is Sure to Return a Fair Profit.

Sheep farming requires the least labor of any kind of farming, and is one of the most profitable if properly managed. It is the least laborious because sheep are more easily kept than other animals. They will eat food that no other kind of stock will touch, and they require less personal attention, besides being more hardy and less liable to disease.

They are the most profitable because, in addition to the foregoing, they are the sources of two valuable products, while with other stock but one is looked for. Even though wool is low, the fleece will bring enough to pay for the keep of the animal, and the mutton will be the profit.

Formerly sheep owners bred simply for wool, and as the highest development in the wool-bearing capacity is incompatible with the perfection of mutton-producing ability, the latter suffered to such an extent that the flesh of the animal was practically unsalable. Mutton-eating was steadily discouraged, and the genuine lovers of this meat had recourse to Canada, where mutton sheep were reared. That this belief in the inferiority of the American product still exists is shown by the fact that "Canada mutton" signs are still exhibited in the butchers' shops and wagons in New York.

But with the discovery that the production of both flesh and fleece in a high degree is compatible in the same animal, the demand for mutton has grown. At sight of this delicious, juicy meat prejudice has faded, and is fading away. It has become a formidable rival to beef, and its consumption may readily be increased a hundred per cent.

And yet many men are talking as if the business were ruined and are getting out of it as fast as they can, ignorant of the fact that it is the best farm property they have to-day. These are the men who forget that conditions have been reversed since they went into the business. Mutton is now the staple and wool the by-product. If the wool pays expenses, that is all that should now be asked of it.—D. Florens, in N. Y. World.

ABOUT ESSEX SWINE.

This is one of the oldest English breeds of swine. Its merits have obtained for it a well-deserved popularity in this country, as well as in its native land. The modern Essex breed is the result of a cross of the original stock on the Neapolitan. It belongs to one of the so-called small breeds.

Essex swine are black, or, rather, ash-black in color; they have a short-dished face, broad between the eyes; erect, thin ears, full jowls, short, thick neck, body of medium length, broad, deep and straight, with heavy hams, bones fine, but sufficiently strong to support the body; hair fine and soft, but thin; no bristles; legs short and fine, but straight and set wide apart; hoofs erect.

When matured, the improved Essex will weigh from three to four hundred pounds. They mature early, are prolific and possess great vigor of constitution. They fatten easily, range well and, not being troubled with mange or sun-scald, are a peculiarly valuable breed for the south. The Essex are excellent as a cross, being sure to give quality and early maturity to any breed. When crossed upon common or coarser swine they will improve them almost beyond recognition. The objection urged against them is their tendency to fatten rapidly, which causes the carcasses to lack the desired proportion of lean meat. This objection can be largely overcome by limiting the amount of food and compelling exercise. Being good grazers, they should be allowed unrestricted run of pasturage and no corn or other fattening food until it is desired to finish them off. On the other hand, their tendency to fatten is a great recommendation where roasting pigs are desired. The meat can be made fit for pork at any age, from a month upward. In England these hogs are marketed in great numbers when from five to eight months old, for light family pork, and for that purpose there are none better.—N. Y. World.

Potato Exports and Imports.

In the year ending June 1, 1893, we imported potatoes to the value of $2,066,588. The heaviest importations were at New York, $1,497,323; Boston, $304,687, and Philadelphia, $116,879. In the same period we exported $700,032 worth of potatoes. The bulk of this trade was with the countries south of us. Cuba, $554,153; Mexico, $27,504; Venezuela, $21,697.

CHEAP POULTRY HOUSE.

Comfortable and Roomy Enough for Twenty-Five or Thirty Hens.

The following plan is taken from an excellent little work entitled: "Low-Cost Poultry Houses," published by the Fancier's Review, Chatham, N. Y. It was built by D. L. Somerville, of Ontario, at a cost of $32. It shows plans for two pens, but it can be duplicated or enlarged to any extent desired. Fig. 1 is the elevation. It is 10x16 feet, and 9 feet high in front and 5 feet in the rear. Tar paper is used as sheathing. The floor is double, with tar paper between. Roof, No. 1 shingles. If any-

WINTER BEE-HOUSE.

How to Build One That Is Cheap, Warm and Very Comfortable.

Prominent bee men recommend the construction of winter quarters for bees of straw of any requisite size, building two walls, that is, an outer and an inner wall of straw; the straw is confined by stakes, and the space between the two walls to be filled with sawdust, or something of that nature; a cheap roof and one door. Such a place might be made cheap and very warm and comfortable. It need not be very large. It can be modeled to suit yourself. As a more expensive affair, after considerable progress has been made, Mr. Kimby recommends a room built as follows: The room for this purpose is 8x16 feet, and seven feet high, without any windows; a good coat of plaster is put on the inside; a space of four inches between the siding and lath is to be filled with sawdust. Under the bottom construct a passage for the admission of air, another overhead for its exit, to be closed and opened at pleasure in moderate weather, to give them fresh air, but closed when cold, and so arranged as to exclude all light. A partition also extends across, so that when putting in or taking out, one need not disturb only one-half at once. He says he has wintered bees in this manner for years. Such a room will accommodate about 100 stocks of bees. The room with same proportions as to length and breadth can be made of any size.—Farmers' Voice.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

The runs should be spaded once a year anyhow.

FEED ducks and turkeys always where you wish them to roost.

When the floor of a poultry house is earth, the top should be removed once a year and fresh earth put on.

SELL off the roosters. They are not needed in the winter, and it is best to have new blood in the spring.

Roosters may be immersed in kerosene oil and the oil set on fire, as a remedy for lice, if the roosters are movable.

ATTEND to leaky roofs in the poultry house. No water should ever be permitted to find its way through the roof.

WHOEVER permits broken windows or cracks in the poultry house in winter would seem to have little appreciation of eggs.

TARRED paper on the outside of a poultry house that is full of cracks, well battered down, will be an excellent application.

THE fall of the year is a good time to buy pure bred poultry. Breeders are apt to sell at very reasonable prices to get rid of their surplus stock.

IS BUCKWHEAT suitable for hens? asks a subscriber. Yes, but it should be fed with other grains. It is too much of a fat producer to be fed alone.

WHITEWASH the nests by immersing them in a tub of whitewash, which should be strong enough of carbolic acid to give out a smell of the acid.—Farmers' Voice.

Improvement in Sugar Beets.

Improvement in the quality of beets and in the processes of manufacture is so great that in Germany the root will produce ten per cent. of its weight in sugar. This is encouraging to those who are experimenting in this line in this country.

Improvements on the Nickel Plate Road.

A New Through Car line has been established over the Nickel Plate Road and D. L. & W. R. R. between Chicago and New York City. With the former through car line to New York via the West Shore R. R. and a Boston Car run over the West Shore-Fitchburg Route unchanged, this line will beyond a doubt become an important factor in the east and west bound passenger business.

A Matchless Dining Car Service has been rearranged so as to best accommodate its patrons, and with their old motto "A Perfect Passenger Service at the Lowest Available Rates" they will no doubt secure the patronage of the traveling public. When contemplating a trip East, Mr. J. V. Calahan, at 130 Clark St., Chicago, Ill., or any Agent of the Nickel Plate Road, for rates, maps and full particulars.

"I TELL you I'm in big luck." "I'm glad to hear it." "Yes. The insurance examiner passed me O. K. two months ago, and now the doctor tells me I've got an incurable disease."—Kate Field's Washington.

Held by the Enemy.

If you are held captive by the enemy, rheumatism, bound hand and foot in the shackles of rheumatic gout, you have yourself to blame, because you did not check their approach in the outset, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Tackle them at once with this pain soothing, nerve quieting, blood purifying specific, and you will experience speedy relief. Biliousness, malarial, dyspeptic, liver and neuralgic complaints yield to it.

TO PUT ON needed flesh, no matter how you've lost it, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works wonders. By restoring the normal action of the deranged organs and functions, it builds the flesh up to a safe and healthy standard—promptly, pleasantly and naturally. The weak, emaciated, thin, pale and puny are made strong, plump, round and rosy. Nothing so effective as a strength restorer and flesh maker is known to medical science; this puts on healthy flesh not the fat of cod-liver oil and its filthy compounds. It rouses every organ of the body to activity, purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood so that the body feels refreshed and strengthened. If you are too thin, too weak, too nervous, it may be that the food assimilation is at fault. A certain amount of bile is necessary for the reception of the fat foods in the blood. Too often the liver holds back this element which would help digestion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stimulates, tones up and invigorates the liver, nourishes the blood, and the muscles, stomach and nerves get the rich blood they require.

Spent Hundreds of Dollars with no Benefit. M. J. COLEMAN of 37 Sargent St., Roxbury, Mass., writes: "After suffering from dyspepsia and constipation with untold agony for at least 18 months, I am more than pleased to say that after using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets for one month, I was entirely cured, and from that day to this I do not know, thank God, what even a slight headache is. I paid a doctor on Tremont St., Boston, in one day (for his advice only) the sum of $10.00 with $3.50 for medicine, and derived no M. J. COLEMAN, Esq. benefit. I got more relief in one hour from your medicines, as far as my stomach was concerned, than from all the other medicine I used."

If any person who reads this is suffering from dyspepsia or constipation and will use your medicine as I have done, he will never regret it.

That really happened to a certain grocer's clerk, because he couldn't induce customers to take an inferior brand of washing powder in place of Pearline. The grocer said, "If you can't sell what I want you to sell, I don't want you."

Now it doesn't take a very wise woman to decide whether this was an honest grocer. And a woman wise enough for that, would be likely to insist upon having nothing but Pearline. There is nothing "as good as" or "the same as" Pearline, the original—in fact, the only—washing-compound. If they send you something else, send it back. JAMES PYLE, New York.
