NEW CLUB ORGANIZED.

Elect Officers and Plans Laid for the Foundation of a Successful Dancing School.

On Thursday evening about sixteen young gentlemen met at the depot and organized a social club for the purpose of conducting a dancing school. G. H. Comstock was elected president, while E. J. Heimerdinger is secretary-treasurer. Frank Robertson and George Lytle were appointed a committee to secure a piano, while G. H. Comstock and M. T. Lamey were empowered to rent Scott's hall for a period of twelve nights. It was also agreed to employ Prof. Tilden, of Elgin, to instruct the class in the art of dancing. The next meeting will be held next Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, at the Barrington depot, and everybody interested is invited to be present and add their name to the membership roll.

The object of the society is to give weekly parties from 8 to 12. Prof. Tilden will give instruction for two hours, and the other two hours will be devoted to social amusement. Prof. Tilden has the proud record of being one of the best in his profession.

About thirty young gentlemen have already signified their intention of joining, and the expense is expected to be about 50 or 60 cents per couple for each party. Come out next Monday evening and add your name, especially are the citizens of the neighboring towns and surrounding country invited to join this society.

THANKS.

THE REVIEW acknowledges the receipt of an elegant box of chocolates from Mr. H. Miller, who represents that well-known firm, Bunte & Spoehr, of Chicago. It is very plain to the REVIEW why this firm enjoys such a large trade, for their candies are simply delicious. To once taste them is to become a regular customer.

The Colorado Springs GAZETTE got out a magnificent 32-page New Year's number. It is finely illustrated with cuts of the principal residences and business houses of Colorado Springs and of the mines of Cripple Creek. The buildings illustrated about Colorado Springs, according to a REVIEW reporter who formerly lived there, are perfect likenesses. For this number of the Gazette we extend thanks to Mr. E. R. Clark.

MISS CARRIE MEYER THE VICTIM

Is Agreeably "Surprised" Tuesday Evening by a Host of Her Young Admirers.

The elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Hawley, in Hough street, was the scene of a very pleasant surprise party Tuesday evening, given in honor of Miss Carrie Meyer, sister of Mrs. Hawley. About fifteen young friends of Miss Meyer marched to the residence at 7 o'clock, and after greetings were exchanged, games were introduced and afforded no end of amusement to the happy assemblage, after which Miss Meyer invited her friends to partake of tempting delicacies.

Miss Grace Garvin, of Minneapolis, rendered a recitation in a most able manner. James Hawley did exceptionally well in a recitation, while Miss Anna Krahn sang two songs in a most excellent manner.

Those present were:

Misses Grace Generaux, Grace Otis, Grace Garvin of Minneapolis, Anna Krahn, Sadie Krahn, Myrtle Runyan, Della Gleason and Mina Robertson.

Messrs. George Otis, Frank Domire, Max Lines, Wilbur Harnden, Charlie Mansfield, Frank Backus and Henry Meyer.

A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Miss Millie Page, of Deer Grove, Is Remembered by Her Friends.

On last Wednesday evening Miss Millie Page, who lives with her parents at Deer Grove, was most agreeably surprised by the sudden visits of several wagon loads of her Barrington friends at the same time. The occasion was the 17th birthday of Miss Page, who was the happy recipient of several appropriate presents.

After the hearty greetings were over with, and Miss Page had recovered from her surprise, the young people enjoyed themselves by playing games, songs, etc., until 11 o'clock, when Mrs. Page surprised her daughter's guests by extending an invitation to them to partake of ice cream, cake, etc., which was highly appreciated.

Miss Grace Garvin entertained the company with a pleasing recitation entitled "The Spectre Pig," and later favored the guests with several songs.

Among those present were:

Misses Sadie Krahn, Carrie Meyer, Gertrude Kitson, Esther Elvidge, Grace Otis, Leila Lines, Edna Hutchinson, Grace Garvin.

Messrs. Henry Meyer, George Otis, George Elvidge, Max Lines, Charles Hutchinson, Henry Meyer, Charles Mansfield.

RAILROAD SPECIALS.

Car Inspector Graybill injured one of his fingers quite badly while repairing a car Tuesday of this week.

Night Car Inspector Egan went to Chicago Wednesday, to attend the wedding of his sister.

Train No. 506 due here at 8:44 p. m., was over four hours late Sunday on account of an engine being derailed at Janesville.

Conductor Avery, of the "J.," buried his 17 months old daughter from his home in Joliet, Sunday.

Engine No. 29 on the "J.," used as the pusher, was called to Spaulding, Monday evening, to bring a train north, whose engine was leaking so bad as to be obliged to return to Joliet.

Fred Vermilya, brakeman on one of the Barrington runs, is taking a vacation this week.

Section Foreman Cunningham, of Lake Zurich, was a Barrington visitor Sunday evening.

Large quantities of ice is being cut at Lake Zurich the present week. The "J" is hauling from 5 to 10 cars a day to Waukegan for private parties.

A new platform and runway is being built at the boilerhouse to be used for the delivery of coal to that place.

The 6:10 Barrington train was about 25 minutes late leaving town Thursday, on account of a slight damage done to one of its coaches. A south bound freight train had been laying in north end of siding for several hours on account of a broken journal, the engine of which had come up through the siding to the depot. Shortly before 6 a. m. they started back with the intention of coupling on to their train, and not seeing an open switch leading onto the coaches, they backed into them with considerable force damaging the front platform considerably, tearing the platform off. The entire string of coaches were moved two car lengths by the force received from the engine when she struck. The mystery is—who threw the switch.

Many people are kept guessing what the next fool thing done by society folk with apparent intellect will be. By what process of reasoning either of these persons could have persuaded themselves to do such inexcusable and irretrievably idiotic things no human intelligence can ascertain.

CAUSED BY VACCINATION.

From the Journal, Detroit, Mich.

Every one in the vicinity of Meldrum avenue and Champlain street, Detroit, knows Mrs. McDonald, and many a neighbor has reason to feel grateful to her for the kind and friendly interest she has manifested in cases of illness.

She is a kind-hearted friend, a natural nurse, and an intelligent and refined lady.

To a reporter she recently talked at some length about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, giving some very interesting instances in her own immediate knowledge of marvelous cures, and the universal beneficence of the remedy to those who had used it.

"I have reason to know," said Mrs. McDonald, "something of the worth of this medicine, for it has been demonstrated in my own immediate family. My daughter Kittie is attending high school, and has never been very strong since she began. I suppose she studies hard, and she has quite a distance to go every day. When the small-pox broke out all of the school children had to be vaccinated. I took her over to Dr. Jamieson and he vaccinated her. I never saw such an arm in my life and the doctor said he never did. She was broken out on her shoulders and back and was just as sick as she could be. To add to it all neuralgia set in, and the poor child was in misery. She is naturally of a nervous temperament and she suffered most awfully. Even after she recovered the neuralgia did not leave her. Stormy days or days that were damp or preceded a storm, she could not go out at all. She was pale and thin, and had no appetite.

"I have forgotten just who told me about the Pink Pills, but I got some for her and they cured her right up. She has a nice color in her face, eats and sleeps well, goes to school every day, and is well and strong in every particular. I have never heard of anything to build up the blood to compare with Pink Pills. I shall always keep them in the house and recommend them to my neighbors."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific in such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

What Did He Start With?

A certain tippler recently went to the landlord of a hotel where he was known and said: "If you lend me as much money as I have on me I shall spend sixpence with you." The landlord lent him as requested and the tippler had his sixpence worth of liquor, then went to a second hotelkeeper with the same request and obtained a loan, and consequently his sixpence worth. The operation was repeated at a third hotel and after getting his sixpence worth there he had nothing left. Can any reader tell how much money the tippler had before he got a loan from the first hotelkeeper?—London Telegraph.

Care for Sleeplessness.

Sleeplessness is often cured by the administration of from one-half pint to a pint of warm liquid food—say, soup or milk—just before retiring. This draws the blood from the brain to the stomach.

Bomb or No Bomb.

A letter addressed to "Her Majesty Queen Victoria, Windsor Castle," would not reach its destination without being opened and submitted to the inspection of an officer belonging to the household.

A Novel Idea.

The Omaha Weekly World-Herald has struck another novel idea for increasing its circulation by offering large prizes to those new subscribers who construct the shortest sentence containing all the letters of the alphabet.

This is sort of reverse of last year's prize contest, when the object was to construct the largest number of words out of certain letters.

It will be interesting to note how short a sentence can be made and still contain all the twenty-six letters in the alphabet. The trouble, of course, will be to get in such letters as x, y, z and q.

Ex-Congressman Bryan, who edits the paper and preaches free silver coinage, must have a good inventive genius to devise these novel schemes.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

A WEEK'S DOINGS IN THE PRAIRIE STATE.

Political, Religious, Social, Personal, Commercial and Miscellaneous Occurrences Gathered from Many Sections—Happenings Torsely Told.

Mrs. Thomas Daws, aged 78 years, was found dead in her bed at Lena. Wife Murderer Sherfberger is located in the hills near Marion. He will be caught.

Edward Rogers, 16 years old, son of T. M. Rogers, was drowned while skating at Quincy.

The 3-year-old son of Mrs. M. Cleveland accidentally killed himself with a revolver at Lincoln.

Dr. Nash, the new president of Lombard University, at Galesburg, has taken charge of that institution.

Larson Berg, a brakeman on the Illinois Central, fell between the cars and was instantly killed at Fort Dodge, Ia.

In a speech before the State Grange last Tuesday Governor Altgeld advised the farmers to organize as workers as all other lines of effort are doing.

The remains of Iver Lagerson, who strayed away from Big Grove, Kendall county, June 30 last, were found in the woods. It is supposed he committed suicide.

Dan H. Paddock, of Kankakee, is understood to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general under the auspices of the Tanner-Lorimer Cook county combination.

Governor Altgeld has accepted the resignation of George P. Bunker, of Chicago, as chief grain inspector of Illinois, and appointed Dwight W. Andrews, of Centralia, to the position.

Relatives of John Ford, who was said to have hanged himself in the police station at Springfield, believe he was murdered by the policemen of that place. Another prisoner in the station said that when Ford was found dead he was lying on the floor and not hanging, as reported. Bruises on his head support the claim of murder, and the case will be investigated.

The general assembly at its last session passed a law for the inspection of coal mines, which requires the operators of each mine inspected to pay into the treasury the expenses of each inspection, and Secretary Schilling, of the bureau of labor statistics, has made up the following schedule for these inspections: For each mine employing one to fifty men, a fee of $6; from fifty to 150 men, $8, and 150 men or over, a fee of $10. This amount goes into the state treasury, credited to the bureau of labor. The inspectors are paid a salary of $1,800 and no expenses.

There have been rumors of mismanagement at the Elgin Hospital for the Insane and the Governor is investigating. A Miss Kums, of Rockford, whose brother was taken to the asylum two weeks ago, has just visited the institution, and makes serious charges against the management of the brutal treatment of her brother, claiming that he was kept strapped in a chair at night with little covering over him. The matter has been reported to the State Board of Charities and will be investigated by that body. As usual, however, the Governor is anticipating the action of the board, and will probably have the matter sifted to the bottom and proper action taken before the board has a meeting.

Chicago university is again the recipient of a million dollar gift, the benefactor being Miss Helen Culver, a Chicago lady, rather well advanced in life. By the terms of the last Rockefeller donations, made only a short time ago, the university will really get $2,000,000 through Miss Culver's generosity, as Mr. Rockefeller stipulated that he would at any time duplicate any donation that the university might receive. Miss Culver is a niece of Charles J. Hull, a famous philanthropist, who established Hull House, the well known charitable institution on the west side, Chicago. Miss Culver says that her gift is made in memory of Mr. Hull, and requests that any buildings erected in consequence of her bequest shall bear his name.

Wednesday's Quincy Herald announced that "Little Ruth Cleveland, the daughter of the President, is supposed to be at Kirksville, under the care of Dr. Still, the head of the institution of osteopathy. It was stated in the Herald some time ago that she was expected. The President wanted Dr. Still to go to Washington or Gray Gables, but he could not, and so Mohamet came to the mountain. Friday a special came into Kirksville on the Wabash. There was a handsome official's car and the principal occupant was a little girl about 5 years of age, who wore a heavy veil in spite of her youth and had no less than six nurses or female attendants aboard the car. "The party is now elegantly lodged at Kirksville. Their identity is kept a secret, but there is no doubt that the girl is Ruth Cleveland, who is being treated by the famous bone doctor for imperfect circulation in the head and neck, and threatening softening of the brain."

Eastern capitalists are suing Mt. Vernon for $15,000 worth of bonds.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilcox of Princeton was celebrated.

The contract for sinking the coal mine has been let to George Anderson by the reorganized Ramsey Coal company.

Brown Bros., jewelers of Centralia, have made an assignment in favor of Henry R. Brown, of Bellajre, O., for $1,017. The assets will cover the liabilities.

Considerable interest has been awakened in Aurora by the cures of an evangelist named Whitehead, hailing from Chicago. Among others by prayer he has cured a woman whose right arm has been crippled for thirteen years.

A court decision of great importance to railroads and their patrons who ship in car lots has been filed at Marion in the Circuit Court by Judge O. A. Harter, of the Appellate Court. The judgment was for $234 against the Chicago, Paducah & Memphis Railroad in favor of the Egyptian Coal Company. The amount claimed was for overcharges on coal shipped in car lots and excessive charges for switching coal in car lots, the railroad company having charged five dollars per car on a switching distance of less than three miles, while the rate fixed by law is but two dollars per car. The decision involves a number of cases and lays down an important principle as to litigation involving freight charges.

It appears probable that the Chicago College of Pharmacy will become annexed to the University of Illinois. The representatives of the college of pharmacy have had a conference with the board of trustees of the university, and are well pleased with its results. The understanding is that the offer is to turn over their entire institution and equipment, valued at $25,000. If the university will assume entire control. The university trustees have appointed a committee to investigate, consisting of President Draper and Trustees Julia Holmes Smith and J. E. Armstrong, of Chicago. This purchase was contemplated by the members of the General Assembly and a bill appropriating the necessary funds was passed.

Jacob Christmann, commander of the Ottawa Post of the Grand Army, and a prominent and highly respected citizen, is under bonds to appear before the Federal Grand Jury at Chicago to answer to the charge of washing and using canceled postage stamps. It is said that he has thus been defrauding the Government for several months and that he had been warned three times by Government representatives before the act fell. He has for many years been connected with the tailoring and clothing business and is a leader among the Germans of the city and county, being high in the councils of the Turnverein. His friends are loath to believe him guilty and hope that his statement that the washed stamps were on envelopes sent to him enclosed for replies may prove true.

The matter of terminal stock yards charges is becoming a very serious one among the railroads running into Chicago. The Chicago Live Stock Exchange has now filed with the railroad and warehouse commissioners complaints against the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Chicago & Northwestern; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads, in which the railroads are charged with extortionate terminal charges in handling cars carried by them for the Union Stock Yards at Chicago. The complaints are the outcome of the complaint brought against the Chicago & Alton last month in which the commission found the charges of extortion in terminal charges were correct, and rendered a decision that these charges were illegal. The road took an appeal to the supreme circuit court.

The Montgomery County Circuit Court has just decided a case of great importance to the smaller cities and towns of the State. The case was brought by the people of Hillsboro to compel the "Big Four" Railroad Company to stop its fast through train, known as the "Knickerbocker Special" at the depot in Hillsboro long enough to receive and let off passengers with safety. The defense of the company was that the travel to and from Hillsboro was sufficiently accommodated by other trains, and that as the regulation and control of interstate commerce is vested exclusively in Congress by the constitution of the United States, and the "Knickerbocker Special" was a train devoted exclusively to interstate passenger traffic, no tickets being sold for or passenger received on it from points in Illinois to other points in Illinois, the State of Illinois had no power to pass and enforce a law requiring it to stop at county seats. The defense, the court holds, to be insufficient, and a peremptory mandamus was ordered to be issued. The company will appeal the case to the Appellate Court. The progress of the case has been watched with interest by the residents of a number of county seats and other towns throughout the State, and in case Hillsboro wins, similar actions against other roads will be commenced.

FROM WASHINGTON.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE LIVTH CONGRESS.

A Brief Report of the Doings in Upper and Lower Houses of the National Legislature—The Work of a Week Condensed.

Twenty-fourth Session.

The senate finance committee will report as a substitute for house bond bill the measure agreed upon by the silver majority. The substitute provides for the free coinage of silver, for the coinage of the seigniorage in the treasury, and makes it optional with the secretary of the treasury to redeem greenbacks and treasury notes in either gold or silver. The bill will be reported to the senate to-morrow. The silver substitute also provides for the retirement of all notes of less denomination than $10.

There is, also, some apprehension lest the silver Republicans and the Populists, who, it is believed, would ordinarily support a tariff bill, may insist in adding a free silver coinage amendment to the tariff bill, and it is hoped that the caucus will have the effect of indicating what may be expected from the Republican silver senators.

The session of the house was brief. Among bills and resolutions introduced were the following: By Mr. Tracy of Missouri—A joint resolution giving congress power to levy a graduated inheritance tax on all inheritances and

CARLISLE'S CIRCULAR

$100,000,000 of United States Securities to Be Sold.

Speculation concerning the amount and character of the new bond issues was set at rest Sunday When Secretary Carlisle made public a circular on the subject.

The loan will be a "popular" one and the circular, which is dated Jan. 6, gives notice that the government will sell $100,000,000 thirty-year 4 per cent coupon or registered bonds, dated Feb. 1, 1895, for which purchasers will be required to pay in gold coin or gold certificates.

This is the first issue of the present administration of such a large amount of bonds at one time, all the previous issues having been for $50,000,000 each. The circular also contains an intimation of a possible further issue of bonds should the issue or sale of an additional or different form of bond for maintenance of the gold reserve be authorized by the law before Feb. 5.

The fact that the bonds will be issued in sums of $50 and multiples thereof and be payable in installments is a feature which it is believed will make them regarded with popular favor. The main reason for dating the bonds a year back is said to be in order to give the public a better opportunity to judge their market value by comparing them with the gold 4s issued at that time, so that their bids can be made to conform with the market value of those bonds on the 1st of February.

Proposals for the purchase of bonds will be received at the office of the secretary of the treasury until 12 o'clock m., Wednesday, February 5.

THE VENEZUELAN COMMISSION.

estates whose value exceeds $100,000. By Mr. Towne of Minnesota—A bill to provide for the establishment of branch hydrographic stations at Duluth, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Buffalo, N. Y. At 12 o'clock the house adjourned until today.

HAS A NOVEL SCHEME.

How a New York Man Would Protect the Gold Reserve.

New York, Jan. 7.—Stephen H. Emmons, who is president of a gold-mining company at 1 Broadway, has sent an open letter to President Cleveland offering a unique plan for maintaining the gold reserve. He said in part:

"If the secretary of the treasury will put himself in communication with the owners of gold mines throughout the country he can cause the entire gold production of the United States to be placed at the disposal of the government in exchange for silver coin. So far, at any rate, as the mines which I personally possess or direct are concerned, I am willing to undertake that their output of gold—a very considerable amount—shall thus be dealt with; and there cannot be any doubt of every other American gold-mining corporation being ready to do the same.

"The assistance thus obtainable by the government will not involve any bond issue, and will not saddle the nation with any interest charge or syndicate remuneration. It will add to the volume of home currency at the same time that it will equally increase the amount of international currency in the treasury."

Banker Coffin's Case Advanced.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The supreme court has advanced the case of Coffin, indicted for conspiracy in wrecking the Indianapolis National bank, and set the hearing for the first Monday in March.

Dropped a Lamp Into Gunpowder.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—Chester W. McCorkle, son of the manager of a mine at Dorseyville, is dead, and Reuben Fisher, son of the Rev. Mr. Fisher of the same place, is dying, the result of an explosion of giant powder. McCorkle dropped a lamp into an open can of powder.

CRUSHED IN A SHAFT.

Awful Death of Four Miners at Shamokin, Pa.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 7.—While four workmen were being lowered into the new shaft of the Luke Fidler mine yesterday the "billy" which balances the elevator and which weighs 1,000 pounds, fell upon them without warning. They were instantly killed, their bodies being crushed so horribly as to make them almost unrecognizable. The victims were:

JAMES MERRITT, aged 25 years; leaves widow and one child.

STEPHEN MERRITT, aged 28 years; leaves widow and one child.

PATRICK LYNCH, aged 33 years; single.

PETER ROBERT, 23 years; leaves widow and one child.

The shaft bucket in which the four men met their sudden death was guided by big cross pieces and arms, known as the "billy." The wire rope passed through this "billy," and it is supposed that ice had formed on the rope. The bucket passed the ice in safety, but the "billy" was caught by it, and the bucket had descended several hundred feet before the heavy weight caused the ice to give way and allowed the "billy" to fall upon the men.

This colliery had been idle since Oct. 8, 1894, when the mine was set on fire by a careless workman and six lives were lost, four of the bodies not being recovered for nearly a year. Robert who was killed yesterday was a brother of one of the victims of the former disaster.

Jealous Husband Kills His Wife.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Jan. 7.—A terrible tragedy was enacted in Washington county yesterday when Walter Coombs, a prominent citizen of Little York, shot his wife through the bowels, from which she died in fifteen minutes. He then shot himself under the heart. The only reason assigned for the deed was jealousy on the part of the husband, which is said to have been without cause. It is said he had previously attempted suicide. Two children were at school when the tragedy occurred. Coombs' death is but a matter of a few hours.

Killing Cholera Germs.

Mr. J. C. Hanna, the well-known breeder of Poland-China hogs, takes the position very positively that burying the hogs that have died of cholera is "merely storing up the germs of the disease for future use," and insists that they should in all cases be burned. The very destructive prevalence of cholera this fall makes it important that methods of future protection shall be efficient, and if it be not sufficient to bury the carcasses, the swine-growing public want to know it. The Bureau of Animal Industry in Farmers' Bulletin No. 24, issued for the express purpose of giving the farmers of the country practical information as to just what they should do to prevent outbreaks of the disease and its continued propagation when it has once broken out, says that if any hogs die their carcasses should be immediately burned or deeply buried and the places where they have lain or the ground over which they have been dragged should be disinfected with carbolic acid or lime. The laws of the various states also require that carcasses of dead hogs shall be burned or buried. The Iowa statute requires a burial of two feet. The Kansas statute requires burial, and Secretary Coburn, of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, in recently calling attention to the necessity for compliance with the statute, says that "burial at once not less than three feet is the safest and most practical way to dispose of" the carcasses. The laws of other states doubtless contain the same provision, and all seem to be based upon the belief that if the carcasses be buried, the germs will die before they have time to work to the surface. Now, if this be untrue, and if the burial of the carcasses is only "storing the germs up for future use," the swine-growing public ought to know it. Burning is certainly an efficient remedy. There can be no question when this course is pursued about the destruction of the germs; but there are objections to burning, part of them founded upon scarcity of fuel and part of them upon the objections of the community to the stench and foul smoke which arise from the imperfect methods of cremation practicable on the farm. Still, if burning is essential to the destruction of the germs, burning it ought to be. And here is one of the points to which we have been urging the organized attention of breeding associations. Are the laws which provide for the burial of carcasses adequate to the prevention of the spread of disease? If not, then that clause should be amended out of the law. The statutes all need to be improved in their executive features, too. They are left to execute themselves, and no human law will do that. The systematic disinfection of cars and the efficient prohibition of all traffic in diseased animals are absolutely essential to the preservation of the swine industry, and those engaged in it should move and move in force.—Homestead.

Mallein for Glanders.

We have on the highest veterinary authority that the diagnostic agent known as "mallein" is a sure test for the existence of glanders in the horse and mule. There is an article in the American Veterinary Review by Professor Nocard of Alfort, in which he begins a resume of the results of testing over 9,000 horses with mallein and closes by saying: "From all that precedes it results that the systematic use of mallein constitutes the surest, the quickest and the least expensive means to relieve the most seriously affected center of glanders." By the use of this agent glanders can be detected in its earliest and mildest form, and it can be clearly told whether a suspected case is of glanders or of some less serious disease of the air passages. California veterinarians are now receiving mallein from the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington and are using it under the authority of the boards of supervisors in some counties. Every facility should be given the horse owners for the application of the test, to the end that glanders may be stamped out. We notice that the colony of Queensland gives notice that it will apply mallein and make its quarantine against imported horses less severe.—Southwestern Stockman.

Keep Up the Quality.—It is of the utmost importance that we maintain the quality of our live stock, and the only way to do this is to strive hard to improve it. Good beef never lacks demand either at home or abroad. In fact, it is a potent influence in creating that "fellow feeling which makes a mortal wondrous kind." The Britisher has a warm spot in his heart for a good bit of American roast, though he may not tell about it, and the American epicure keenly relishes a bit of English mutton, well prepared, though he may not tell about it, either. Our export trade in live stock and meats has reached enormous proportions. Our products, however, have to stand sharp competition in the world's markets, and in order to hold our own we have got to give close attention to the healthiness of our live stock and to its quality.

Buyers on the Utica board of trade have decided to refuse to buy or even handle on commission any cheese made after the first of November.

SHE AND HER PARENTS.

There's a house a few miles from the city
I frequently linger outside;
'Tis the home of a maid who is pretty,
A maid I would like for my bride.
I fear that I never shall win her,
My passion is hopeless and mute.
I'm sure that her parents would skin her
If they thought that she smiled on my suit.

Her eyes are the purest and brightest
That ever encouraged a hope;
Her skin is the softest and whitest
That ever shed luster on soap;
Her hair is the richest and golden
That ever a hairdresser dressed,
And her parents are surely the coldest
A heroine ever possessed.

Her voice—it's a mezzo soprano—
Would make even Patti afraid,
And the way that she plays the piano
Puts Robinson quite in the shade.
More perfect she is than perfection;
Resign her I can't, and I won't!
And she looks upon me with affection,
But her parents—oh, bother them—don't.

They intend her to marry a title;
They want to address her, "Your Grace."
They've made up their minds this is vital;
Which scratches me out of the race.
Nor do I, in theory, blame them.
She's worthy a duke, I aver.
It's true I'd be puzzled to name them
A duke who is worthy of her.

Oh, I know she's beyond and above me;
I deserve to be hating, I'm aware,
For presuming to think she could love me,
But I don't altogether despair.
For my heart undergoes an expansion
When I think what I'll tell you about,
Of that night when I called at her mansion,
And her parents, God bless them, were out.

When I think of the way she received me,
Of the way, and the words, that I spoke,
Of the way that she blushed, and believe me,
Of the silence we solemnly broke,
Of the mutual hopes we confided,
As we blended our voices in song,
And that rapturous kiss we divided—
Well, her parents can go to Hongkong!

BOBBY BURNS.

The Darkest and Most Critical Days in the Life of the Poet.

As it is always darkest before the dawn, the year which was the most critical in Burns' life and which was destined to give birth to his better fortune opened with peculiar and unmitigated dreariness. The Killmarlock edition of 1786 appeared while the poet was "skulking from covert to covert" to avoid the jail with which Jean Armour's father threatened him; its raison d'être was the earning of sufficient money to pay his passage to Jamaica. Having "pocketed, all expenses deducted, nearly £20," Burns took a final farewell of his friends. He says:

"My chest was on my way to Greenock when a letter from Dr. Blacklock (of Edinburgh) to a friend of mine overthrew all my schemes by opening up new prospects to my poetic ambition."

His fame was, in fact, spreading rapidly. "Farm laborers and servant girls, expended their hardly earned wages on the purchase of his poems, and the name of the 'Ayrshire Plowman" began to be noised among members of wealthier and more cultivated circles. The first person to extend to him the right hand of fellowship was Dugald Stewart; the second was Mrs. Dunlop. Their friendship came with all the charm of a novelty which is yet not strange, but supplies a long felt though indefinable need, while, in the latter case, Burns' proud and independent spirit was gratified by the knowledge that the obligation was not all on his side, but that Mrs. Dunlop and her friends had reason to be indebted to his poet's spells.

After two winters spent in Edinburgh, which seem to have given the poet more disappointment and disgust than gratification, Burns married "his Jean" and settled at Ellisland, an upland farm on the Dalswinton estate, six miles from Dumfries. To this Ellisland period—that is, from 1788 to 1791—most of the unpublished letters to Mrs. Dunlop belong. They are chiefly interesting as indicating Burns' real views on his exilic post and his distaste to farming. There were bad times in the eighteenth as in the nineteenth century, and in a letter of March 25, 1789, we hear Burns raising the farmers' customary complaint:

"Madam, I had two plans of life before me—the exilic and farming. I thought by the glimmering of my own prudence the exilic was my most eligible scheme, but all my great friends, and particularly you, were decidedly, and therefore decided me, for farming. My master, Mr. Miller, out of a real though mistaken benevolence, sought me industriously out to set me in this farm, as he said, to give me a lease which would make me comfortable and easy. I was a stranger to the country, the farm, the soil, and so ventured on a bargain that, instead of being comfortable, is and will be a very hard bargain, if at all practicable. I am sorry to tell you this, madam, but it is a damning truth."
—Fortnightly Review.

Laughter Prolongs the Performance.
"Why is the performance so long tonight?" asked a loungee in the lobby, as he glanced at his watch and saw that the time was 11 o'clock. "Have you put in anything new?"
"No, but it's a warm house tonight."
"What difference does that make? I haven't noticed many extra encores to night."
"But there's more laughing to-night. The house laughs oftener than usual and keeps it up longer?"
"Would that make much difference in the length of the performance?"
"Anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes. An ordinary laugh at some joke on the stage lasts 2 or 3 seconds. When the house laughs for 6 seconds, it is a good, long laugh, and 10 seconds is almost the limit. I don't mean the applause to call some one back, but the laugh sprinkled thorough the dialogue. A good natured and cordial audience will laugh 6 seconds at every 'gag.' Ten 'gags' will prolong the show a minute, and when you figure that three acts are well filled with funny lines, you will understand why the show sometimes lasts until 11 o'clock and on chilly evenings is over at 10:40 or 10:45."

A terrible and blood curdling secret order is announced as founded and flourishing in the United States. Its dread mysteries, its occult laws, grips and passwords are familiar only to those who have passed its hidden portals and ridden the goat around its secret hiding places to the music of hollow groans which the very walls echo back in affright. This secret order, so 'tis said, is named the "Patriots of America," and its awful purpose is the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. Are there any "Patriots of America" down your way?

It is a little odd that stock speculators on both sides of the water blame President Cleveland for disturbing the even tenor of their respective gambling schemes. Why do not some of them blame Salisbury, first for refusing to give any reply at all for six months to the American note on the Venezuelan boundary question, then for refusing to arbitrate? Mere patriotism, if they had any, would dictate that the American stock gamblers at least should blame Salisbury for the scare.

From LaGrippe.

How Dr. Miles' Nervine Restored One of Kentucky's Business Men to Health.

No DISEASE has ever presented so many peculiarities as LaGrippe. No disease leaves its victims so debilitated, useless, sleepless, nervous, as LaGrippe.
Mr. D. W. Hilton, state agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Kentucky, says: "In 1889 and '90 I had two severe attacks of LaGrippe, the last one attacking my nervous system with such severity that my life was despaired of. I had not slept for more than two months except by the use of narcotics that stupefied me, but gave me no rest. I was only conscious of intense mental weakness, agonizing bodily pain and the fact that I was hourly growing weaker.
When in this condition, I commenced using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In two days I began to improve and in one month's time I was cured, much to the surprise of all who knew of my condition. I have been in excellent health since and have recommended your remedies to many of my friends."

FORTY MUTE CHILDREN MEET FOR THE FESTIVITIES OF A CHRISTMAS TREE.

A number of articles were crowded out of last week's issue—some unintentionally. Among them was a graphic description of how the mute children in the Masonic Temple observed Christmas, but we give it this week, asking our readers to kindly pardon our negligence, and to remember that a country editor is only human, and cannot remember a thousand things at a time. We take pleasure in giving space to the following:

At the Lounsbury Institute in the Masonic Temple, Christmas afternoon, were gathered together one of the most happy groups of children that the festivities of the Holidays have afforded. It was indeed unique, owing to the fact that but few of them were able to converse other than signs and gestures, but this did not prevent them from having a good time. They varied in ages from 8 to 18 years.

Then came the presents from the heavily laden Christmas tree, and the eager hands that reached out for their presents as they were handed down to them, and the happy expressions that lit up the faces as they watched the presents passing over their heads to those in the distance, then back again to them, was a picture long to be remembered, and one almost forgot that they were afflicted. The Lounsbury Institute reaches out a helping hand to all who may be afflicted with the inability to talk.

The spacious room it occupies in the Masonic Temple, overlooking as it does, Lake Michigan stretching miles away, is an attractive sight to both pupil and visitor.

They were a happy group and it was a pleasure to the many visitors present to witness their enjoyment.

A TRUE SAYING.

It has been said that habitual constipation is the cause of fully one-half the diseases that flesh is heir to. Keep your bowes regulated by Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and your system will be in proper condition to keep off diseases of all kinds. Get a sample bottle (10 doses 10 cents) of A. L. Waller, druggist, and you will bless the day you did.

The bond syndicate is perfectly willing that the people should get the new government securities—at about 119—purchasing from the syndicate, which secured them at 105.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Camoron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we ever sold, and always give satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by A. L. Waller, druggist.

If the L roads in Chicago, indulge in many more accidents they will become as unpopular as their stock.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is especially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

Good roads by bad men (convicts) are preferable to bad roads for all men.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

United they stand, divided they fall—business and advertising.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below, will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had lagrippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by A. L. Waller, druggist.

Cuba seems to be able to get along very nicely without any help.

THE HABITS OF CHILDREN

Should be closely watched and regulated by mothers. Carelessness in childhood often leads to serious troubles in after life. The digestive organs and bowels should be kept in the best possible condition to insure good health, not only for the present, but for years to come. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a harmless but potent remedy, corrects all such evils in children. Twenty doses (for children) 10c. at A. L. Waller, druggist.

Don't forget that THE REVIEW can print you wedding invitations at the lowest figures. Work done with new type, and the stock is the finest obtainable.

There is more or less complaint against natural gas as a heating agent but as an explosive agent it is an entire success.

A TRUE SAYING.

William Gilbride, of Assumption, Ill., writes: "Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best remedy I have ever used for stomach troubles. I never felt better in my life, and I think every family should keep it on hand. It does more than is claimed for it." Sold by A. L. Waller, druggist.

CHAPTER IX.

A FAMILY PLOT.

LITTLE did poor Doctor Walker imagine as he sat at his breakfast-table next morning that the two sweet girls who sat on either side of him were deep in a conspiracy, and that he, munching innocently at his muffins, was the victim against whom their wiles were planned. Patiently they waited until at last their opening came.

"It is a beautiful day," he remarked. "It will do for Mrs. Westmacott. She was thinking of having a spin upon the tricycle."

"Then we must call early. We both intended to see her after breakfast."

"Oh, indeed!" The doctor looked pleased.

"You know, pa," said Ida, "it seems to us that we really have a very great advantage in having Mrs. Westmacott living so near."

"Why so, my dear?"

"Well, because she is so advanced, you know. If we only study her ways we may advance ourselves also."

"I think I have heard you say, papa," Clara remarked, "that she is the type of the woman of the future."

"I am very pleased to hear you speak so sensibly, my dears. I certainly think that she is a woman whom you may very well take as your model. The more intimate you are with her the better pleased I shall be."

"Then that is settled," said Clara demurely, and the talk drifted to other matters.

All the morning the two girls sat extracting from Mrs. Westmacott her most extreme view as to the duty of the one sex and tyranny of the other. Absolute equality, even in details, was her ideal. Enough of the parrot cry of unwomanly and unmanly. It had been invented by man to scare woman away when she poached too nearly upon his precious preserves. Every woman should be independent. Every woman should learn a trade. It was their duty to push in where they were least welcome. Then they were martyrs to the cause, and pioneers to their weaker sisters. Why should the wash-tub, the needle, and the housekeeper's book be eternally theirs? Might they not reach higher, to the consulting-room, to the bench, and even to the pulpit? Mrs. Westmacott sacrificed her tricycle ride in her eagerness over her pet subject, and her two fair disciples drank in every word, and noted every suggestion for future use. That afternoon they went shopping in London, and before evening strange packages began to be handed in at the Doctor's door. The plot was ripe for execution, and one of the conspirators was merry and jubilant, while the other was very nervous and troubled.

When the Doctor came to the dining-room next morning, he was surprised to find that his daughters had already been up some time. Ida was installed at one end of the table with a spirit-lamp, a curved glass flask, and several bottles in front of her. The contents of the flask were boiling furiously, while a villainous smell filled the room. Clara lounged in an arm-chair with her feet upon a second one, a blue-covered book in her hand, and a huge map of the British Islands spread across her lap. "Hullo!" cried the doctor, blinking and sniffing, "where's the breakfast?"

"Oh, didn't you order it?" asked Ida. "I, No; why should I?" He rang the bell. "Why have you not laid the breakfast, Jane?"

"If you please, sir, Miss Ida was a workin' at the table."

"Oh, of course, Jane," said the young lady calmly. "I am so sorry. I shall be ready to move in a few minutes."

"But what on earth are you doing, Ida?" asked the Doctor. "The smell is most offensive. And, good gracious, look at the mess which you have made upon the cloth! Why, you have burned a hole right through."

"Oh, that is the acid," Ida answered contentedly. "Mrs. Westmacott said that it would burn holes."

"You might have taken her word for it without trying," said her father dryly.

"But look here, pa! See what the book says: 'The scientific mind takes nothing upon trust. Prove all things! I have proved that.'"

"You certainly have. Well, until breakfast is ready I'll glance over the Times. Have you seen it?"

"The Times? Oh, dear me, this is it which I have under my spirit-lamp. I am afraid there is some acid upon that too, and it is rather damp and torn. Here it is."

The Doctor took the bedraggled paper with a rueful face. "Everything seems to be wrong to-day," he remarked. "What is this sudden enthusiasm about chemistry, Ida?"

"Oh, I am trying to live up to Mrs. Westmacott's teaching."

"Quite right! quite right!" said he, though perhaps with less heartiness than he had shown the day before. "Ah, here is breakfast-at last!"

But nothing was comfortable that morning. There were eggs without egg-spoons, toast which was leathery from being kept, dried-up rashers, and grounds in the coffee. Above all, there was that dreadful smell which pervaded everything and gave a horrible twang to every mouthful.

"I don't wish to put a damper upon your studies, Ida," said the Doctor, as he pushed back his chair. "But I do think it would be better if you did your chemical experiments a little later in the day."

"But Mrs. Westmacott says that women should rise early, and do their work before breakfast."

"Then they should choose some other room besides the breakfast-room," the Doctor was becoming just a little ruffled. A turn in the open air would soothe him, he thought. "Where are my boots?" he asked.

"But they were not in their accustomed corner by his chair. Up and down he searched, while the three servants took up the quest, stooping and peeping under book-cases and drawers. Ida had returned to her studies, and Clara to her blue-covered volume, sitting absorbed and disinterested amid the bustle and the racket. At last a general buzz of congratulation announced that the cook had discovered the boots hung up among the hats in the hall. The Doctor, very red and flustered, drew them on, and stamped off to join the Admiral in his morning walk.

As the door slammed, Ida burst into a shout of laughter. "You see, Clara," she cried, "the charm works already. He has gone to number one instead of to number three. Oh, we shall win a great victory. You've been very good, dear; I could see that you were on thorns to help him when he was looking for his boots."

"Poor papa! It is so cruel. And yet what are we to do?"

"Oh, he will enjoy being comfortable all the more if we give him a little discomfort now. What horrible work this chemistry is! Look at my frock! It is ruined. And this dreadful smell!" She threw open the window, and thrust her little golden-curved head out of it. Charles Westmacott was hoeing at the other side of the garden fence.

"Good morning, sir," said Ida.

"Good morning!" The big man leaned upon his hoe and looked up at her.

"Have you any cigarettes, Charles?"

"Yes, certainly."

"Throw me up two."

"Here is my case. Can you catch?"

A seal-skin case came with a soft thud on to the floor. Ida opened it. It was full.

"What are these?" she asked.

"Egyptians."

"What are some other brands?"

"Oh, Richmond Gems, and Turkish, and Cambridge. But why?"

"Never mind!" She nodded to him and closed the window. "We must remember all those, Clara," said she. "We must learn to talk about the brands of cigarettes. Has your rum come?"

"Yes, dear. It is here."

"And I have my stout. Come along up to my room now. This smell is too abominable. But we must be ready for him when he comes back. If we sit at the window we shall see him coming down the road."

The fresh morning air, and the genial company of the Admiral had caused the Doctor to forget his troubles, and he came back about midday in an excellent humor. As he opened the hall door the vile smell of chemicals which had spoiled his breakfast met him with a redoubled virulence. He threw open the hall window, entered the dining-room, and stood aghast at the sight which met his eyes.

Ida was still sitting among her bottles, with a lit cigarette in her left hand and a glass of stout on the table beside her. Clara, with another cigarette, was lounging in the easy chair with several maps spread out upon the floor around her feet were stuck up on the coal scuttle, and she had a tumblerful of some reddish-brown composition on the smoking table close at her elbow. The Doctor gazed from one to the other of them through the thin gray haze of smoke, but his eyes rested finally in a settled stare of astonishment upon his elder and more serious daughter.

"Clara!" he gasped, "I could not have believed it!"

"What is it, papa?"

"You are smoking!"

"Trying to, papa. I find it a little difficult, for I have not been used to it."

"But why, in the name of goodness?"

"Mrs. Westmacott recommends it."

"Oh, a lady of mature years may do many things which a young girl must avoid."

"Oh, no," cried Ida, "Mrs. Westmacott says that there should be one law for all. Have a cigarette, pa?"

"No, thank you. I never smoke in the morning."

"No? Perhaps you don't care for the brand. What are these, Clara?"

"Egyptians."

"Ah, we must have some Richmond Gems or Turkish. I wish, pa, when you go into town, you would get me some Turkish."

"I will do nothing of the kind. I do not at all think that it is a fitting habit for young ladies. I do not agree with Mrs. Westmacott upon the point."

"Really, pa! It was you who advised us to imitate her."

"But with discrimination. What is it that you are drinking, Clara?"

"Rum, papa."

"Rum? In the morning?" He sat down and rubbed his eyes as one who tries to shake off some evil dream. "Did you say rum?"

"Yes, pa. They all drink it in the profession which I am going to take up."

"Profession, Clara?"

"Mrs. Westmacott says that every woman should follow a calling, and that we ought to choose those which women have always avoided."

"Quite so."

"Well, I am going to act upon her advice. I am going to be a pilot."

"My dear Clara! A pilot! This is too much."

"This is a beautiful book, papa. 'The Lights, Beacons, Buoys, Channels, and Landmarks of Great Britain.' Here is another, 'The Master Mariner's Hand-book.' You can't imagine how interesting it is."

"You are joking, Clara. You must be joking!"

"Not at all, pa. You can't think what a lot I have learned already. I'm to carry a green light to starboard, and a red to port, with a white light at the mast-head, and a flare-up every fifteen minutes."

"Oh, won't it look pretty at night?" cried her sister.

"And I know the fog-signals. One blast means that a ship steers to starboard, two to port, three astern, four that it is unmanageable. But this man asks such dreadful questions at the end of each chapter. Listen to this: 'You see a red light. The ship is on the port tack and the wind at north; what course is that ship steering to a point?'"

The Doctor rose with a gesture of despair. "I can't imagine what has come over you both," said he.

"My dear papa, we are trying hard to live up to Mrs. Westmacott's standard."

"Well, I must say that I do not admire the result. Your chemistry, Ida, may perhaps do no harm; but your scheme, Clara, is out of the question. How a girl of your sense could ever entertain such a notion is more than I can imagine. But I must absolutely forbid you to go further with it."

"But, pa," asked Ida, with an air of innocent inquiry in her big blue eyes, "what are we to do when your commands and Mrs. Westmacott's advice are opposed?"

She says that when women try to throw off their shackles, their fathers, brothers and husbands are the very first to try to rivet them on again, and that in such a matter no man has any authority."

"Does Mrs. Westmacott teach you that I am not the head of my own house?" The Doctor flushed, and his grizzled hair bristled in his anger.

"Certainly. She says that all heads of houses are relics of the dark ages."

The Doctor muttered something and stamped his foot upon the carpet. Then without a word he passed out into the garden, and his daughters could see him striding furiously up and down, cutting off the heads of the flowers with a switch.

"Oh, you darling! You played your part so splendidly!" cried Ida.

"But how cruel it is! When I saw the sorrow and surprise in his eyes I very nearly put up my arms about him and told him all. Don't you think we have done enough?"

"No, no, no. Not nearly enough. You must not turn weak now, Clara. It is so funny that I should be leading you. It is quite a new experience. But I know I am right. If we go on as we are doing, we shall be able to say all our lives that we have saved him. And if we don't, oh, Clara, we should never forgive ourselves."

ENJOYMENT IN THE ARMY.

Outdoor Games and Sports Indulged in at Frontier Posts.

An enlisted man serving on the frontier has opportunities for sport that would be envied by hundreds of wealthy men, especially in the way of hunting and fishing. He plays all kinds of outdoor games, is regular in his habits, has stated times for meals and for sleep, which all tend to the development of his physical powers, and the training he receives straightens his frame and gives him an easy, upright carriage that never after leaves him until old age lays the weight of its hand upon him. The post exchange is fitted up with billiard and pool rooms, lunch counter and card-room. Only the best grades of beer are sold there, and drunkenness cannot exist under present restricted rules. A pleasant room is always set aside as a reading-room, where current newspapers are on file, and in addition to this, each company usually maintains a library. A post school is maintained for six months of the year, where he who wishes may improve his mental condition. He is provided with excellent clothing, which when altered to fit neatly, is the nattiest uniform known. A drunkard or other questionable character may possibly creep in among the men enlisted, but he is soon "spotted" and, under the law that five previous convictions by courts martial are sufficient to award dishonorable discharge, he is soon gotten rid of. It is creditable to the army that all men now serving in the ranks, except possibly a few left over from the old army, are capable of reading and writing the English language—that is, in a limited sense.

He never once stopped smoking.

Except to take a chew. And when he wasn't chewing The air with smoke was blue.

He bought a big plantation. So well he loved the weed. And planted every acre With fine Havana seed.

One day, when very weary, He laid him down to sleep Amid the green tobacco, where The caterpillars creep.

They swarmed about and over him, With ceremony scant, And ate him—body, bones and all— For a tobacco plant.

Not Always a Blessing.

Irate Uncle—Gallagher, I told yez all along that education 'd prove yer cur-r-se, an' I am not a bit shurprised at yer bein' here. If yer hadn't never learnt to wroite, yer had niver bin arrested for forgery. Look at me wid no education at all, can't even scarcely wroite me name, and has bin an Alderman an' a Police Justice. Yer could have done the same, but, no! Yez must have an ejuication. Gallagher, I'm ashamed of you!

What Made Him Think of It?

Barber—Hair cut, sir?
Customer—No; just a shave. Be as quick as you can, too.

"Yes, sir. (Pause.) Got to make a train, sir?"

"No. Got to go to a lecture."

(Another pause.) "Scientific lecture?"

"No. Bob Ingersoll."

(Still another pause.) "Like to have your hair singed, sir?"

Not Professionally Interested.

Alarmed Wife (waking him)—Henry, get up! The ground's all in a tremble! Houses are rocking, chimneys are falling, and everybody is out in the street. It's either an earthquake or the world's coming to an end!

Henry (of the Daily Bread reporting staff)—Let it come, blame it! I haven't any assignment to write it up. (Snore.)

A Beautiful Hand.

Beneath the stars they walked alone, Returning from an evening ramble, "Now Jack," she said in sweetest tone, "Please tell me, do you ever gamble?"

"Dearest, I don't," was his reply, His face aglow with rapturous bliss; "But who would say I should not try Could I always hold a hand like this?"

Not a Fighter.

"How did your great unknown pan out?" asked the sport.

"We had to drop him," replied the trainer.

"What's the trouble?"

"At almost the last minute he became incapacitated for work."

"How?"

"He lost his voice."

Deceived.

The cannibal potentate writhed in agony, while the court physician prepared a large bottle of ginger tea.

"And I thought him such an honest, fair fighter," groaned the king. "If I had any idea he would strike below the belt in this fashion I never would have eaten him."

His Intentions Were Honorable.

(From Judy.)

"Miss Brown, may I press you to a jelly?"

Old Slander Refuted.

"We 'uns use jes' as much water," said the indignant Kentuckiah, "as they do anywher's else—fur baptizin'."

A Patron of Music.

The Emperor William's interest in music was (a Berlin correspondent says) lately shown in a very practical way. The other day, when he was shooting in the forests of Letzingen, the band of the Uhlands played selections during the dinner. The emperor, with his suite, went up to the musicians and made some observations about the way in which an Italian popular song, "Funiculi Funicula," had been played, saying that it should have been taken quicker. Thereupon the emperor took the baton, and under his conductorship the song had to be repeated. He further conducted some military marches. Five songs by Count Philip Von Eulenburg, the German ambassador in Vienna, pleased the emperor so much that all had to be repeated.

Got the Letter.

There is a beneficent institution in Newark, N. J., known as the Female Charitable society. The name of the superintendent is Miss Merry. A short time ago a woman who wished to take some of the children sent out by the society for two weeks in the country, addressed a letter in good faith to the superintendent as follows: "Miss Mary Female Charitable Society, Newark, N. J."

Where Our Gold Often Goes.

Joel Connors, an old resident of Darke county, Indiana, who died recently, instead of being very poor, as he said he was, had nearly $10,000 in gold. His wife did not know he had accumulated the money until just before he died, when he told her of it. He did not definitely describe its hiding place, and what has been found was widely scattered.

CAPTURE OF HAVANA

CUBAN CAPITAL IN THE HANDS OF THE REBELS.

Startling Statement Conveyed by a Broken Cablegram—News Not Yet Confirmed—American Interests to Be Protected by Warships.

Batabano, Cuba, Jan. 7.—At 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning the cable operator here received the following dispatch:

"Cubans have captured the city (Havana). Morro Castle alone holds out. General Campos."

Here the dispatch ended abruptly, as cable communication between Havana and this point was cut off.

New York, Jan. 7.—There has been no confirmation of the statement contained in the foregoing dispatch that Havana has been captured.

Key West, Fla., Jan. 7.—Jesus Petuna, a well-known Cuban patriot, received a cipher dispatch from General Gomez yesterday declaring that the Spaniards were hemmed in on all sides and that before nightfall Havana would be in the possession of the patriot troops.

Barcelona, Spain, Jan. 7.—News most unfavorable to the Spanish government has been received here from Cuba. It is understood that the insurgent forces are pressing around Havana.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—Don M. Dickinson stated last night that he had received a dispatch from a Cuban in Washington confirmatory of the bulletins to the effect that the insurgents were actually entering the city of Havana. Mr. Dickinson, however, declined to state the sender's name, or the precise contents of his message.

London, Jan. 7.—A dispatch to the Times from Madrid says that the report that Captain General Campos has resigned is denied in official circles.

LITTLE NEWS IN HAVANA.

Insurgents Are Destroying Sugar Cane and Tobacco.

Havana, Jan. 7.—Little news is received in this city regarding the movements of either the Spanish or the Cuban forces, the lines of communication being cut in every direction out of Havana. Enough is reported from points in the province of Pina del Rio, however, to show that the insurgents' columns have covered a wide territory in that province and are unceasingly destroying the sugar cane and damaging the tobacco crop.

Incoming trains from the south are bringing in vast throngs of refugees, men, women and children, some of whom have been burned out of house and home, but most of whom are simply fleeing from the fear of violence, having hastily gathered together a few household goods. This large infusion of panic-stricken people into the city's population spreads a contagion of alarm.

Loud disclaimers are being uttered by the authorities that they have any fear for the welfare of the city. It is protected by the strong fortress Moro, and being garrisoned by the Cabanas Principe, Alares, Santa Clara, and Reina troops, with heavy artillery, and by 20,000 volunteers, with 40,000 more loyal citizens in the city willing to take arms. With these forces at command, the authorities express the opinion with great confidence that it would be impossible for the insurgents to capture the city, unless they were provided with siege artillery. It is claimed that only small bands of insurgents are engaged in the operations under Gomez, and that they are successful only in small towns.

A statement, credited to Dr. Artigas, that the Spanish military doctors are poisoning the sick and wounded troops, is pronounced untrue, and is attributed to professional jealousy. Dr. Artigas' course is pronounced most ungrateful.

Will Protect American Interests.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The campaign in Cuba is being closely observed by the administration, in view of the reiterated reports of insurgent successes in their operations near Havana. In the event that they actually attack the capital of the island in force, it is possible that the North Atlantic squadron may be ordered to be in position to guard American interests during the disturbed conditions that may be expected to accompany the siege. It is not probable that exception could be taken to the presence of our vessels in such case by Spain, as it is customary for powers having large interests and many citizens in a city so beset to have some naval force present for their protection in an emergency, as was the case in Rio, for instance.

Important Pension Decision.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The invalid pension committee has agreed to report a bill providing that in considering claims filed under the act of June 27, 1890, the death of an enlisted man or officer shall be considered as sufficiently proved if satisfactory evidence is produced establishing the fact of the continued absence of such person from home and family for seven years, during which period no intelligence of his existence has been received.

REJOICING IN UTAH.

Immense Gathering at Salt Lake City to Celebrate Admittance to Union.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 7.—Another state has been added to the union and the rights of self government have been extended to 250,000 industrious, law-abiding and intelligent people.

The oath of office was administered to the state officials of Utah at noon yesterday. The city was crowded with people from all parts of the state. Acting Gov. Richards by proclamation declared the day a holiday. All business was suspended and the buildings along the principal streets were decorated with the national colors.

At 11 o'clock the street parade, under the direction of Grand Marshal Burton, moved from the corner of Main and South Third streets. The parade included Gen. Penrose and staff, Federal troops and the national guard of Utah, members of the legislature, civic societies and citizens.

While the parade was taking place the artillery on Arsenal hill was firing a salute of forty-five guns. Acting Governor Richards, as master of ceremonies, called the house to order, and prayer was offered by Wilfred Woodruff, president of the Mormon church. He prayed for the welfare of the nation, to which Utah will ever be loyal, and for the prevalence of justice, mercy, truth and peace, so that every soul might be free to worship as he sees fit. "The Star Spangled Banner" was rendered by a chorus of 1,000 voices. After this the proclamation of the president of the United States, granting statehood to Utah, was read by ex-Delegate Joseph L. Rawlins. The oath of office was administered to the governor and state officers by Chief Justice Zane, of the supreme court of the state. Gov. Wells then delivered his inaugural address.

INDIANS IN REVOLT.

White Settlers in Danger Near Flagstaff—Assistance Sent.

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 7.—Meager news reached here late yesterday of a revolt against the whites by Navajo Indians. Early in the morning a cowboy rode rapidly into Flagstaff, his horse white with foam, and stated that a band of twenty-five renegade Navajo Indians had a number of white settlers corralled about forty-five miles from Flagstaff, and that if assistance was not forthcoming the whites would be massacred. Sheriff Cameron at once summoned a posse of determined men, and they have gone to the scene of the trouble. How serious the affair is and what caused the uprising will not be known until late tonight or tomorrow on the return of Sheriff Cameron and his posse to Flagstaff.

TO GO TO GIBRALTAR.

Cruiser New York and Two Other Vessels Are Ready.

Washington, Jan. 7.—It is no longer denied that the big armored cruiser New York, and probably two other vessels in Admiral Buncie's squadron, if not the entire fleet now lying in readiness in Hampton Roads, has been ordered to be in readiness for a voyage to Gibraltar in case the Turkish government does not promptly acquiesce in Minister Terrell's peremptory demands for immediate and full reparation for the destruction to American property and the injury to American citizens by Turkish subjects. In any event it is understood that the cruiser New York may leave for the Mediterranean at any moment, the departure of the other vessels depending on the contingency of the Turkish attitude undergoing a material change.

Production of Gold and Silver.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The director of the mint has received approximate estimates of the gold and silver product in the United States in 1895 from the mint officers and other agents employed to collect these statistics. He is of opinion after looking through the estimates submitted that when the final figures are compiled the production of gold by the mines of the United States in 1895 will be found to have been from $46,000,000 to $47,000,000, and the silver product about 46,000,000 fine ounces. The product last year was $39,500,000 in gold and of silver 49,500,000 fine ounces.

Cecil Rhodes Resigns the Premiership.

Cape Town, Jan. 7.—Hon. Cecil Rhodes, premier of Cape Colony, has resigned and his resignation has been accepted by the governor, Sir Hercules Robinson, who has appointed Hon. Sir J. Gordon Sprigg, treasurer of the colony, to succeed him. The new premier was colonial secretary and premier of Cape Colony from 1878 to 1881, treasurer from 1884 to 1886, premier and treasurer from 1886 to 1890 and treasurer from 1890 on. He was born in 1830.

Hohenlohe Has Not Resigned.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—It is stated that there is no truth in the report of Chancellor von Hohenlohe's having resigned. The story originated in the fact that no Ministers were present at the Emperor's audience with Dr. Leyds. The Berlin Tageblatt says that Dr. Leyds was highly pleased with the result of the imperial audience and forthwith dispatched a long telegram to his government at Pretoria.

comes to stay

There is more than one food which will cause the body to increase in weight. A free supply of sugar will do this; so will the starchy foods; cream, and some other fats. But to become fleshy, and yet remain in poor health, is not what you want. Cod-liver oil increases the weight because it is a fat-producing food. But it does far more than this. It alters, or changes, the processes of nutrition, restoring the normal functions of the various organs and tissues.

Scott's Emulsion.

of Cod-liver Oil, with hypophosphites, is pure cod-liver in a digested condition. So that, when a person gains in weight from taking Scott's Emulsion, it is because of two things: First, the oil has acted as a fat-producing food; and, second, it has restored to the body a healthy condition. Such an improvement is permanent: it comes to stay.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been endorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable, always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Prof. Smith remembered by his pupils.

It is not at all unlikely that as soon as the Nicaragua canal is built Americans will turn their attention to getting a quick way to cross Bering strait. The waters there are shallow, and the strait is only 48 miles wide. On a clear day the Siberian coast can be seen. Ice would carry away any bridge that could be constructed, but Mr. Bruce, in his work on Alaska, says that the whole distance across could be filled in with solid rock. Gaps could be left here and there for vessels to pass and for the water to flow freely through. Rock enough to fill up the strait could be quarried from the adjacent mountains, whence it could be conveyed by train and by ship and simply dumped into the water. The operation would take a long time and cost much money, but there is apparently not much difficulty about it. It will look more feasible if the Alaska gold mines pan out large.
