BLOODY DEED AT PENTWATER, MICH.

B. Minshall Pursues and Assassinates W. B. O. Sands, Then Shoots His Wife, Three Children and Himself-Reason for Crimes-St. Louis Murder.

President William B. O. Sands of the village of Pentwater, Mich., was assassinated last Thursday night. He was pursued by a man with a Winchester rifle, and was shot at five times, three bullets striking him. The assassin escaped.

Friday morning S. W. Fincher reported that he had lent his Winchester rifle to S. B. Minshall, a lawyer and real estate and insurance agent. One of the shells found near the place where Sands was shot was identified as belonging to Fincher's rifle.

Officers went at once to the Minshall residence. The doors were locked and no sign of life was apparent within. A posse broke in the door. On the floor in the parlor lay the body of Mrs. Minshall with a bullet hole in her head. Beside her lay the body of Minshall, his head pillowed on her arm and a bullet in the right temple, fired so close that the powder had burned the flesh. An empty five-chambered revolver was appear from reports of state officers to they all die before being reduced to beggary. He has felt, he says, that the resolution which led pauper fathers to kill their pauper children was Spartanlike and that no one not so situated could understand the impulse. In another letter he says that Sands had promised him all the business of the lumber firm, but had lately demanded a third of it as a commission and had taken away a half of the insurance policies from which Minshall derived his living.

TRADE IS NO BETTER.

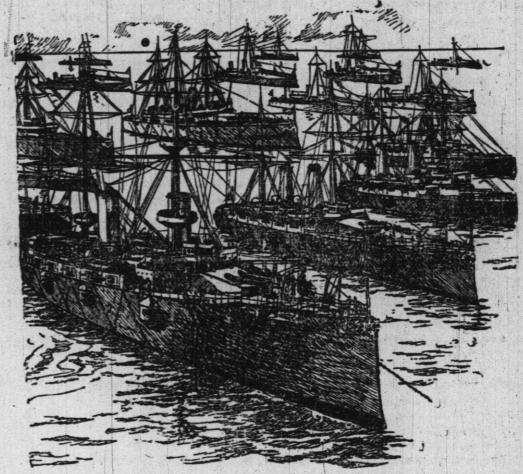

Changes in Business Have Been Sligh During the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Reviewe of Trade says:

"The volume of business has not on the whole increased nor have prices advanced since April 1, when the range for all commodities was the lowest ever known in this country. Breadstuffs and iron products have risen slightly, but some other articles have declined, and the root of the matter is that demand for consumption is still below expectations. The weather has not favored active distribution of spring goods, and uncertainty as to continued employment affects the purchases by hands in a large number of establish-in his hand. At the foot of the stairs was the body of the 16-year-old daughter, Ruby Minshall. Apparently she heard the shot that killed her mother and came down stairs in her night robe. She had been shot through the brain. The flash set fire to the girl's night clothes and burned her head and neck before the blood quenched the flames.

In bed upstairs covered with blood were the bodies of the two sons, George, aged 3 years, and Frank, 2 years old. They had been shot while they slept.

Mr. Sands, who was president of the Sands & Maxwell Lumber company, left his office at 9 o'clock and walked almost to the door of his residence. Suddenly he was confronted by a man with a rifle. Before he could say a word or make any effort to save himself the man fired at him at short range. The rifle ball shattered Mr. Sands' shoulder. He turned and ran toward the nearest house. Again the man fired, the bullet again striking Mr. Sands' shoulder and glanced downward, shattering the hip bone. The lumberman ran through a gate into the yard of a neighbor named Jensen, whose house he tried to enter, but found the door locked. He then ran to a fence, which he was unable to climb. His assailant continued to pursue him, firing rapidly.

Mr. Sands, bleeding profusely from several severed arteries, groped about in the darkness until he found a gate leading to the side door of a dwelling .. Against this door he threw all his weight, and broke the latch. His figure was relieved against the light within, and the assassin fired again. Mr. Sands fell on the threshold. The man with the rifle then disappeared.

The neighbors aroused, carried the wounded man to his own home, physicians were called and the alarm given. It was found necessary to amputate the arm just below the shoulder in the hope that Mr. Sands' life might be saved, but the shock of the operation after so great loss of blood caused a collopse from which the patient could not rally.

Minshall's pockets were full of cartridges and a letter was found addressed to "A. Williams, Rookery building, Chicago." In it Minshall declares his purpose to kill himself because of his pressing financial difficulties, and hints at his intention to kill Mr. Sands, who, he declares, had taken advantage of him. He asks that his family be provided for if they survive him, although he says it may be better for them that assigned.

have been considerable. But the reports are not more gloomy than a year ago, and the quantity of wheat which has come from farms since Aug. 1 has been 163,781,594 bushels, against 129,-076,460 at the same date last year.

"Western receipts for the week are about 60 per cent larger than last year. and for two weeks about 50 per cent, while Atlantic exports, flour included, have been for the week only 909.055 bushels, against 1,759,006 last year, a decrease of nearly half. These conditions tend to check the advance, which reached 3 cents, but was followed by a reaction of 1 cent. Corn rose 2% cents with wheat and on account of small stocks. Cotton has not changed and known commercial and mill stocks exceed probable consumption until new cotton comes.

The billet pool and other combinations have raised prices of pig iron and steel, but as yet finished products have gained scarcely anything, nor has demand for them increased. Prices for lake ore are announced, as expected, $1.10 higher than last year, and the coke combination makes no reduction, but gradually lessens output. Minor metals are dull, but lead weaker, at 2.05 cents on forced sales west.

Wool is weaker, with sales for the week of only 2,232,600 pounds at the three chief markets, the smallest for many years. Prices were lower, except for fine washed fleece, and manufacaurers are rapidly reducing production. There is fair demand in the dress goods branch, especially due to important steps by customs authorities to stop undervaluations of French and German goods, but it is estimated that not 40 per cent of the men's wear machinery is at work. There have also been cotton mills stopping or reducing time this week. Further reductions in shirting prints, to the lowest point ever touched, failed to increase the demand materially. Failures for the past week have heen 209 in the United States, against 207 last year, and thirty-three in Canada, against twenty-seven last year.

Mrs. M. Moore, of Elgin, wife of a prominent Chicago Board of Trade man committed suicide by shooting. But one shot from a twenty-two calibre revolver was fired, and death was instaneous. Failing health and fears of insanity no doubt prompted the act of self-murder. There are no children. and so far as known the domestic relations of the husband and wife were of the pleasantest character.

State Veterinarian Trumbower reported having investigated an outbreak of tuberculosis at the insane hospital at Kankakee, and slaughtered forty cows. An order was given to use milk from other sources until all danger had passed. Milk was taken from forty cows, near Elgin, which were afterwards slaughtered. The milk was injected into the same number of guinea pigs; one of the pigs died shortly afterwards, and others show symptoms of the disease. Southern Illinois now has a base ball league, one having recently been organized at Centralia. Representatives of the Edwardsville, East St. Louis, Belleville, Cairo, Centralia and Brown Reserve clubs of St. Louis, were present. Springfield and Chester failing to make the necessary deposit required by the management were dropped from the league. The schedule of playing dates provides for twenty-four games for each club. The season will open April 26th and close September 27th.

The agitation of the Sunday question has been continued at Galesburg, both Dr. Hood, of the Presbyterian church, and Dr. Blodgett, of the Methodist church, replying to the liberal views of Dr. Stocking expressed last Sunday. Dr. Hood made a severe attack on Sunday newspapers. He contended that they are unnecessary. He showed that newspapers are not published in England, Holland and Canada on Sunday, and cited the London papers as examples of what great papers can be without a Sunday issue.

The Supreme court has filed opinions in a number of cases. That of William Harding and Charles Emory vs. the People of the State of Illinois, is of special interest to persons engaged in the coal mining industry. Plaintiffs in error were indicted and convicted for violation of the act requiring the weighing of coal at mines. The act in question provides, among other things, that the owner or operator of every coal mine in this state, at which the miners are paid by weight, shall provide scales for weighing all coal which shall be hoisted or delivered from such mine. Also, that all coal so delivered shall be carefully weighed and a correct record shall be kept of the weight of each miner's car, etc.

Gov. Fifer has no notion of dabbling in politics to any extent much longer. While in St. Louis recently, he said to a Republic Reporter in answer to a query as to whether he was a candidate for United States senator: "I am out of politics for all time, and under no circumstances would I accept any office the people would honor me with. I am very sorry I was forced to accept this place on the Nation Committee. I was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Campbell, and when I declined to serve nearly every member of the committee telegraphed me that the party demanded that I give that much to the cause. I accepted with the understanding that I would region after the convention in June, and I intend to get out just as soon as that is over."

Hon. George Steel, of Dixon, died last week of anaemia of the brain, aged 54 years. He had always been interested in the various enterprises for the improvement of the city. He had served several terms in the council and two terms as mayor. His death will be mourned by rich and poor alike. His father, George Steel, was one of the early settlers of Chicago, and was the first president of the Board of Trade. George Steel, Jr., was born in Lockport, May 16, 1842.

Friends of Colonel Thomas G. Lawler, of Rockford, ex-commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, are urging him to go into the convention of the ninth congressional district at Freeport, April 10, as candidate for delegate to the nnational republican convention. Colonel Lawler was ignored by the Tanner men and left off the state delegation, and he can have the support of the Winnebago County delegation if he desires it. It is unneccessary to say that he and his district are for Mc-Kinley.

The end of the State University flag law business is not yet and many Champaign county people are sorry it was begun. At a mass meeting of citizens of Urbana, resolutions were adopted respecting the recent indictment of Governor Altgeld and the University of Illinois' trustees. The resolutions are quite lengthy, and, instead of denouncing the grand jury which found the indictment they exempt the jurors from blame and place it at the hands of the legislature, which passed the flag law. They say that the people of Urbana have perfect confidence in the patriotism of the members of the board and believe that they have not violated the spirit of the law. The act of the Legislature is denounced as "useless and expensive."-Peoria Journal.

Judge Barrickman has rendered an important decision in the Livingston County Court, the case in question being known as the People vs. The Leslie E. Keeley company of Dwight. Two months ago States Attorney E. P. Holley, to the surprise of everyone, filed information against the Keeley company for selling liquor without a license. The case was on this term docket, and the point argued by the company attorney was questioning the legality as to arresting a corporation for the offense stated. The attorneys for the company were Judge Arnold of Chicago and Hon. G. W. Patton of Pontiac, while E. P. Holley looked after the people's interest. The judge decided in favor of the company. Mr. Holley gave notice of appeal, and the case will go to the higher courts for a final decision.

Farmers living across the river from Carlyle are some what excited over the finding of a human skeleton in that vicinity. Wednesday afternoon Thos. McClaren and Benjamin Haley were visiting at a farmhouse a mile and a half east of here. A peculiar looking mound is situated on this farm, and these two young men concluded to investigate the interior of this hillock. They procured a spade and pick and proceeded to remove the earth. Several inches of mussel shells were removed and a hole three feet deep was dug. There they found a skeleton of what is supposed to be the remains of one of the extinct race of mound-builders—the early inhabitants of Illinois. McClaren had the jawbone of this skeleton on exhibition here last night. A further examination of the premises is projected.

A two story brick building, occupied by R. O. McGlasson, proprietor of the California Restaurant at Decatur, fell into the excavation of the adjoining lot at 4 o'clock the other morning. Scott McGlasson, 4 years old, son of the proprietor, was crushed to death. Asleep in the building were Mr. and Mrs. Mc-Glasson, their two children, a sister of Mr. McGlasson, Robert Warren and Martin Kinney. All escaped with but slight injuries, except the boy, who was killed. The building was utterly wrecked, and the walls and floor fell in a heap in the cellar. The night clerk, G. H. Johnson, and two customers heard the crashing and saw the bricks falling and ran for their lives. They got out just as the building went down. The excavation on the lot adjoining was for Henry Schlaudeman's five story hotel. Workmen had dug below the McGlasson building, but had underpinned it. R. O. Rosen, superintendent, says that the building fell because the walis were too old to hold together.

CARLISLE IN TROUBLE

BOND ISSUE.

Secretary of the Treasury Must Show Cause Why a Mandamus Should Not Be Issued - A Complicated State of

William Graves of New York city on Monday filed in the district supreme curt of New York state a petition for mandamus to compel Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle to deliver to him bonds to the amount of $4,500,000 of the recent issue of thirtyyear 4 per cents. The petition sets out that he bid for this amount of bonds at $115.3391 Feb. 4 last, and complied with all the regulations; that his bid was once accepted; that the original notice of allotment was not sent to him as to other bidders, and though requested, no allowance was made by the department for the time lost by the negligent act of the department in misdirecting the original allotment

The contention is made that the refusal to deliver these bonds allotted to him in New York, as required, was a mere subterfuge to prevent the petitioner and those who might associate with him for carrying out the terms of the bid and completing the purchase of the bonds, and that the requirement that the petitioner deposit the gold in the sub-treasury at New York and transfer the deposit certificates to the treasury department here was a requirement not exacted of other successful bidders, a great hardship to him, and an invasion of his right to have the bond delivery made at New York.

After claiming that the refusal of the department to accept payment for the bonds allotted to him after the date fixed for the payment of an installment is an exercise of arbitrary power, and which is unwarranted by law, the petition asks that the secretary of the treasury be restrained from delivering to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. or any other persons the $4,500,000 bonds allotted to Graves.

Judge Cole issued an order requiring Secretary Carlisle to appear Saturday, April 25, and show cause why the mandamus asked by Graves should not be issued.

The accident happened a mile and a half from Bedford Junction, on the belt railroad, on which the stone from the Bedford quarries is transferred from one road to another. The train consisted of an engine and two gravel cars. While passing over what is known as the Standard trestle the last span from the direction of Bedford collapsed. The locomotive was at that time beyond the trestle, and had it not been pulled from the track by the weight of the cars behind it the men on the engine would have escaped. As it was, the two cars went down with the trestle into a hollow sixty feet deep, and the engine

They were walking with Miss Alice Trowbridge, a sister of Elizabeth. Suddenly without any warning or indication of what was to happen Miss Linnett drew frim her pocket a revolver and shot Elizabeth Trowbridge, the bullet taking effect in her heart. She fell dead, and the murderess placed the weapon against her own temple and followed murder with suicide. Miss Alice Trowbride ran screaming to Judge Sherwood's house and told the awful story. It appears that the murderess had been a patient at the asylum. Last December she was discharged as cured. She went to her home in Chicago and is believed to have remained there until she came out Monday. The murderess tried to induce her victim to acompany her to Chicago. Failing in this, the two walked down the street to where Alice Trowbridge boarded, and with her were retracing their footsteps when the tragedy occurred. The prominence of the two parties, and the fact that Miss Linnett is reported to have been concerned in a somewhat similar tragedy in Chicago a few years ago, lends additional interest to the affair. The original cause of this change of grade was the construction of the Harlem ship canal.

To Walter Katte, chief engineer of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, is due the chief credit of the design of the new steel viaduct and drawbridge. The draw span, which is the only four-track railway drawbridge in the world, measures 400 feet over all and weighs 2,500 tons. The drawbridge is 58 feet 6 inches wide from center to center of the outside trusses, and is caried by three trusses, of which tween the central and each of the two side trusses is a clear space of twentysix feet, which permits the passage of two sets of double tracks. The floor and the rails are bolted to it with only the intervention of steel tie-plates.

The weight of the draw span is carried on two huge steel drums, one inside the other. The diameter of the outer drum is 54 feet and of the inner 46 feet. These drums are coupled together by sixteen lattice braces. Underneath each of the drums are seventy-two cast steel rollers, with faces 101/2 inches wide. The seventy-two wheels under the outer drum are each 24 inches in diameter, and those under the inner drum are 20 7-16 inches in diameter. whole weight of the bridge rests on these rollers when the draw is open.

AMUSEMENT ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK.

What the Managers of the Various City. Play-Houses Offer Their Patrons-Drama, Yaudeville and Operatic Engagementa

M'VICKER'S THEATRE-The week commencing Monday, April 13, will be the third and last week of Minnie Maddern Fiske's engagement at McVicker's. The play for the week will be Sardou's charming comedy "Divorcons." It will be the first time Mrs. Fiske will be seen in the play and the first time of the play in its present English version, which was specially written for her. Mrs. Fiske has made the most artistic success of any actress that has been in Chicago this season.

On Sunday evening, April 12, Robert G. Ingersoll will deliver a new lecture for the first time at McVicker's Theatre. The subject is "Why I Am an Agnostic." Seats for the lecture are, now selling.

RINGLING BROS.' CIRCUS-Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows, the leading amusement institution of the United States, will begin the anrual three weeks' engagement at the immense Tattersall's amphitheatre, Sixteenth, State and Dearborn streets. Saturday evening next, April 11. Special arrangements have been made for the comfort and pleasure of out-oftown visitors to the big show, and during the Chicago engagement thousands of people in this vicinity will undoubtedly avail themselves of this opportunity to witness the marvelous performance.

The high character of Ringling Bros.' great show has become a proverb all over the country. The performance this year is, however, superior to anything ever offered. Preceding the performance there will be an hour's concert by the Royal Hawaiian band, composed of forty of ex-Queen Liliuokalani's court musicians. The circus proper begins with a grand spectacular entry, in which the magnificent processional resources of the show are exhibited in a dazzling pageant upon the hippodrome track. The arenic performance that follows embraces 300 performers. Among the leading specialists are the Da Comas, the six Jordans, Stirk, Zeno and Anita and other famous aerialists; the Nelson family of nine acrobats, the Ella Zuela and Lu-Lu troupe of marvelous high wire performers, Mons. Joseph Le Fleur, who throws somersaults from a platform elevated 40 feet in the air, striking the solid ground on his hands; Speedy, the original American diver, who plunges 80 feet into a tank of water only three feet in depth; the French family of bicyclists and roller skaters; Mlle. Irwin. the "human aerial top;" Jules Duval, the unsupported ladder equilibrist; a dozen great riders and many other features, including Lockhart's famous famous comedy elephants, the greatest school of educated elephants in the world. The performance terminates with a series of exciting hippodrome races. The fine zoological collection for which Ringling Bros.' menagerie is noted, has been greatly enlarged this year and is now the finest exhibition of wild animals in the world.

HOOLEY'S-Mr. John Hare, the English comedian, commences his second and last week of his Chicago engagement next Monday night, April 13. Mr. Hare and company made their bow to a Chicago audience for the first time last Monday evening in Sydney Grundy's remarkably clever adaptation of M. M. Labiche and Delacour's "Les Petits Oiseaux," happily entitled "A Pair of Spectacles." Mr. Grundy's comedy was first produced at the Garrick Theatre, London, in February, 1890. and has proved one of Mr. Hare's greatest personal successes. His impersonation of Goldfinch is to be one of the must remarkable of his collection of stage portraits, and he is certainly as fortunate in its possession as Mr. Jefferson is in his Rip Van Winkle. Mr. Hare is supported by his company from the Garrick Theatre, which includes Charles Groves, C. Aubrey Smith, Gilbert Hare, Charles Rock, Fred Thorne, Alban Atwood, Eugene Mayeur, Charles Caravoglia, Miss Ellis Jeffries, Miss May Harvey, Miss Helen Luck, Miss Nellie Thorne and Mrs. Charles Groves.

COLUMBIA-"An Artist's Model" presented for the first time in Chicago last Monday evening, and the second week of the run begins next Monday. It is played by George Edwarde's burlesquers from London, under the management of Al Hayman and Charles Frohman. There are 70 people in the company. "An Artist's Model" may be described as a spectacular musical comedy. The plot and the prose dialogue are by Owen Hall, the lyrics by Harry Greenback and the music by Sidney Jones. The piece is in two acts. The first is laid in an artist's studio in Paris. The second is in a country house in Englard

Some Plain Facts.

To the citizens of Barrington:

Being a candidate for the office of President of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington I feel it my duty, on account of questions and conditions which have arisen or may arise, to put before you the facts as they are, according to my best knowledge and belief.

I did not seek the office, but my candidacy was urged upon me by my friends and voters of Barrington. Having accepted the candidacy it is only fair for me to give the voters of Barrington, and the public generally, a short history of my past and a few explanations. I came from Germany twenty-three years ago last summer, landing in Barrington when I was 16 years of age. I became a citizen of the United States when I reached the age of 21 years, for which I have papers to show with H. C. P. Sandman as witness.

Not being fortunate enough to have office to the best of my ability. been born in America I can never aspire to become president of the United States. You can easily see how "bad" an argument this is against me (?). Nevertheless, Henry Boehmer is a defender of the stars and stripes, even against Wilhelm himself, and always will be.

some twenty years ago, and lived here you vote for more than three trustees until ten years ago, when business in- your vote, according to law, cannot be terests necessitated my removal to counted for any of them. Be sure to Wheeling.

As for my leaving a lot of debts be- dates you wish to vote for. This is all hind me when I removed to Wheeling that is required.

I wish to say that the story is a deliberate falsehood, and circulated for campaign purposes. Altogether I did when I left I made satisfactory arrangement with my creditors. All my creditors received their money with interest. If anyone has a bill against me which is just, let him present it to me for payment. No one the present standard of our school is can say that Henry Boehmer has ever to be maintained. refused to pay an honest debt, and I hope no one will ever have an opportunity to truthfully make such a statement.

I returned to Barrington March I am an interloper. This question I respectfully submit to the judgment of my fellow citizens for a decision.

My politics are and always have been independent, both in national and local affairs. I have no "axe to grind" with anyone.

Report also has it that Meyer and I have possession of a piece of land which we want to sell to the village village efficient officers. Vote for for a park. This statement is too absurd to answer. I want to assure you, however, of one fact, and that is that the village will never be asked to buy that land.

About opening Station street and in regard to street grades I invite the voters to ask a dozen or more of the reputable citizens what my attitude is on these questions, and if you care to ask me I will tell you with pleasure. Does the president decide all these questions? Are the trustees mere figureheads? Do the citizens want a Henry Boehmer was president of the one-man government? My construcpresident is to preside over Board all public matters, and in case a tie vote is cast by them then the president is to cast his vote. Read the law on this subject and see if I am not

> Another one of those campaign fibs is that the president has power to build sidewalks where and whenever he pleases. This is too absurd for me to answer. Every citizen in Barrington is intelligent enough, surely, to see the shallowness of this assertion.

Being a firm believer in our American institutions which are "of the people, for the people and by the people," am of the opinion that in matters concerning the welfare of the citizens of our village such important changes as the grading of streets, etc., which require a large expenditure of money should not be left entirely to the ac- cisterns and cellars will always be tion of the few men who constitute a Board of Trustees, but that those who used. It is a well known fact that all kinds of wood will rot sooner or later and it is evident, that great advantages must be derived from a process insuring durability in wood. Fifteen Years of careful experiments have fully demonstrated to the world that the patent oil compound, "Carbolineum Avenarius" meets all requirements so long sought for. It is acknowledged to surpass all preparations in efficiency, cheapness and simplicity of application. It is antiseptic oil for impregnating wood, and protects by its preserving and disinfecting properties, all kinds of wood from decay, fungus and rot for any length of time. It will never wear out nor wash off, and is neither inflamable nor poisonous. It imparts to woodwork a neat and lasting nutbrown color and its large covering capacity makes it the cheapest paint for all farm buildings, barns, graineries, silos, fence posts, wind-mill towers, etc. Sidewalks, noors, fence posts and vineyard posts will never rot nor break down; shingles will never shrink, curl or rot; shingle roofs will never leak, troughs, tanks, clean and sweet where this paint is pay the taxes should have something mice, rats, etc. In cases of diseases of cattle, horses, sheep and swine, it will prevent contagion. Chicken Coops will always be free from lice if painted with this preparation.

Some persons could fall off some housetop and land feet down, while others fall from a chair and land head down. So it is in business. Some business men get up in the morning, open their business houses, sweep out, wipe off the dust from their wares, and sit down and wait. They put prices on their wares of which they seem to be ashamed, for they are afraid to let the people know what they keep. These men call their method of conducting business "Systematically." This is the kind of person that could fall off a chair and get hurt.

HERE is a man that gets up in the morning, reads his mail, gets out his wares, and hustles until night. He has opened the way towards making a good day's sales by judicious advertising, in which he told the people what he had and what prices he could make. Everybody in the county knows him. His wares do not become rusty, for the reason that he don't keep them long enough. He sells cheaper than any other dealer, and can afford to, because he makes quick sales. SANTA CLARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

A. W. MEYER'S TRIP.

On February 25th we left San Jose for Pacific Grove. a distance of ninety miles. After we reached our destination we rented several homelike furnished rooms from a lady by the name of Mrs. Vergin, and rested up.

The following day we visited the seashore to look for shells. The day was beautiful, making the outing a very enjoyable one. While at Pacific Grove we visited the beach near Chinatown and the lighthouse.

When I awoke on the morning of March 2d I was very much surprised to discover that "grandma had picked her geese" during the night. The ground was completely covered, and everyone, both old and young, seemed to have gone crazy to play "snowballing." By 10 o'clock the sport was concluded, for the snow had entirely disappeared. In the afternoon I visited Moss Beach, about five miles distant from Pacific Grove, and when I arrived it hailed in regular Illinois fashion for about 20 minutes. I was told by old settlers that it was the first time to their knowledge that it ever snowed in this section of the country.

In the afternoon of March 3d we took a drive to Monterey and Del Monte.

Monterey is the oldest town in California, and was first settled by Don Sebastian Viscanio in 1673. It is not a very large place, and the buildings look very old. In 1784 the first native | medicines sold. Chamberlain's Cough American son was born, and the gold Remedy, especially, is regarded as in fields of the West began to boom. In the lead of all throat trouble remedies, 1842 the stars and stripes were hoisted and as such, is freely prescribed by for the first time on California soil at physicians. As a croup medicine, it is this place.

Del Monte is where the large hotel by that name is located. It is known all over the world, and possesses 525 elegantly furnished rooms. The hotel enjoys the patronage of 1500 people the year round. It is located in the midst of a beautiful park. Del Monte's principal attraction is its fine forest of live oaks and pines of great size, while the ground is literally a large hothouse of fragrant flowers the year round, while a great many rare imported plants from different sections of the globe enhance the beauty of this natural fairyland.

The bathing pavilion belonging to the hotel lies a few hundred feet distant, and contains 210 dressing rooms. Surf bathing can be indulged in at this place the year round.

March 4th we drove a mile beyond Del Monte and looked at the world's largest oak tree. The tree has three branches, each of which is over 8 feet in circumference, and over 100 feet high, and the tree measures 130 feet across the top. One thousand people can sit in its branches at one time, while twice that number can secure shelter under its branches.

The next day we drove over the 18mile drive belonging to Del Monte and built especially for the visitor's benefit. It took us seven hours to make the trip, ond on the way we had the pleasure of seeing Moss Beach, Seal Rocks, and the only place in the United States where the cypress will grow.

Most of our time at Pacific Grove was spent on the seashore looking for shells. The tide changes every twelve and quite a summer resort.

We returned to San Jose on March 10th, and on the 12th we drove to Santa Cruz. The first town we reached was Los Gatos, ten miles distant from San Jose. It is a very pretty village, on the side of a mountain. At 9:30 a. m. we left this place and commenced our journey up Santa Cruz mountain, the summit of which we reached at 1 o'clock. Here we ate lunch and fed our team, after which we commenced our homeward journey, arriving at 4 o'clock, having covered a distance of 34 miles.

The following day we drove over to Santa Cruz and Ocean Beach, and saw the natural bridge, which extends out into the ocean. Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Wood inspected the lighthouse. We returned home in time for dinner, after which we drove six miles up the mountain and looked at the big trees. 25 cents per bushel. The "Big Giant" is 60 feet in circumference and 300 feet high. "General Fremont" is a large hollow tree 56 feet in circumference and 275 feet in heighth. General Fremont made his headquarters in this tree in 1846, "Ben Butler" is 48 feet in circumference and 270 feet high. Forest Garland was now reached. One large stump was 95 feet in circumference, and from it grew nine large and ten small trees, the largest being 270 feet high. There is 60 acres in the patch, and a great many stumps are from 30 to 40 feet in circumference. We returned to Santa Cruz at 5 p. m.

On March 14th, at 9 o'clock, we returned to San Jose by way of Sequel. At 12:30 we reached the hotel De Redwaod. In the vicinity we found some very large trees, under one of them eating our lunch. At 2 o'clock we arrived on the top of the mountain, where we saw some very fine orchards of prunes, apples, cherries and peaches -all in bloom. Los Gatos was reached at 3:45 o'clock, and our home at 6.

Mr. Bute took me out for a ride the next day, and we visited the Quadulope quicksilver mines, and drove up the sidehill for twelve miles where I watched some cowboys brand stock.

A few miles further we purchased two pairs of mountain quail, which, as soon as the weather will permit, may be seen in my Barrington yard.

March 17th the folks started back to Alameda, and I went by way of San Mater, where I visited Mr. and Mrs. Mayberry, the latter being a daughter of Mrs. Earith. This is a pretty place and has some elegant residences.

While at San Jose we had sunshine every day of our four weeks' stay. I think Santa Clara county is the garden of California. The whole county is one grand orchard. A.W. MEYER.

"Well, I've no alternative but to commit you for theft," said the magistrate, "with the option of a fine-three weeks, or a penalty of five shillings. Remove the prisoner, constable, and call the

The hearts of the populace burned within them at the sentence, but beyond a low murmur, immediately checked by the cry of "Silence," they dared give their indignation no vent. Ruthven's heart burned in unison with theirs. That delicate, frightened-looking child, who had evidently neither understood the offense for which she had been brought there, nor the punishment that had been awarded it, to be sent to prison for three weeks, to herd with the lowest and vilest of her sex, and then to be released-for what end? Ruthven knew what he longed to do, but false shame and the fear of ridicule prevented him for a moment from carrying it out. But a long wail of terror, as the constables were removing the prisoner from the dock, decided him.

"Oh, sir! don't take me to prison," she screamed. "Don't take me to prison. I'll never do it again, indeed I won't. But I was so hungry. Let me off this time, and I'll never do it again -no! not if I die-indeed I won't." She was appealing frantically to the policemen, as if they had the power to mitigate her sentence, as they lifted her, not unkindly, but decidedly, off the scene of action.

"Remove the prisoner!" repeated the magistrate, angrily, as her shrieks reached his ears; and Ruthven's mind was made up. He went round and met the constable at the other entrance.

"I wish to pay this fine," he said, broke your leg, nor heard bad news, nor "and will look after your prisoner for a few days. I suppose it's allowable?"

"Of course it's allowable, sir. So long as the fine is paid, that's all we have to do with the matter. So now you'd better thank the gentleman for your liberty, and see you don't get into no more the old woman, he led her back into the scrapes. D'ye hear?" and with a shake to Miss Peg O'Reilly, and a touch of his helmet to Ruthven in acknowledgment of a douceur over and above the stipulated fine, the constable went about his business, and left the liberated captive alone with her benefactor.

Ruthven felt himself to be in an awkward position. There were spectators to the interview, and he did not know what to do-what was best to be done. But the little girl was gazing up into his face with her wistful blue eyes, and the look of want and starvation upon her pinched features did more for her than any amount of elocution could have effected.

"Come here - Peg - what's your name? Are you very hungry still?" "I'm allays hungry," the child replied, in a frightened whisper. "You can speak out to me. I won't hurt you. Have you no friends nor bome?"

"None, sir. I never did have." "How do you live? Who feeds you?"

"I picks up things."

"And where do you sleep?" "Under the market arches, and sometimes in a doorway."

"And aren't you cold at night?" The girl only shivered for reply, and crossed her naked, dirty feet one over the other. As she did so, Ruthven marked they were covered with sores. "Would you like to be respectable, Peg?"

"What's that, sir?"

"To be kept clean, and have warm of your sight; and here's a five-pound clothes, and a good dinner every day." "Shouldn't I! But no one won't give them to me."

"I will, if you'll be a good girl in return. Will you come with me, Peg?" "Along with you! Of course I will, if you'll take me. Why, it's all because of you I ain't in prison. I'd go with you to the other end of the world, and be glad to."

"All right. I'll see what I can do for you. Here, cab!" He hailed two cabs at the same moment, and, placing the child in one, took up his own position in the other. He felt very benevolently disposedfoolishly so, as he already began to tell himself; but he could not quite go the length of driving in the same cab as Miss O'Reilly. As the two vehicles took their way toward Kensington, Ruthven experienced some decided qualms of fear as to how Mrs. Garrett would fright upon her features. The dirt disgusted the precise old woman beyond measure; but the evident fear of the poor girl was in excited her compassion.

"Lor' bless me! This can't be the gal as Mr. James meant?"

"Where's the gentleman? Him as is so kind to me?" demanded Peg. anxiously.

"The gentleman's gone away and left you to my charge, so you had better get down and come indoors with me." "You won't send me to prison?" demanded Miss Peg O'Reilly. "Bless the child! what are you talking about? Here, come, get into the house quick, do!-before we have all the neighbors' heads out of the windows staring at us."

And having bundled Peg out of the cab, Mrs. Garrett paid the driver's fare, with magnificent disregard of his laughter at her discomfiture, and followed her new companion in:3 the house.

"And now I just wender where Mr. James picked you up, and what call he's got to befriend you," she soliloquized, as she regarded her. Ruthven had suggested the assist-

"He got me out of the perlice court," the gentleman did," replied Peg, staring at the unusual luxury by which she was surrounded.

"Why! you've never a thief, I hope," cried Mrs. Garrett.

"Yes, ma'am, I am," said the girl, unhesitatingly. "I took three onions, 'cause I was so 'lear,' and the perliceman saw me and took me off to the lockup, and they would have sent me to prison, too, only the kind gentleman brought me here instead."

"Just like Mr. James," murmured the housekeeper; but she was a good old countrywoman, and Peg's story shocked her, less on her own account than on that of the giri's.

"Poor child!" she exclaimed, "it would have been just like 'em to have sent you there, a set of blundering old fools! And all for the sake of three onions! Hadn't you nothing better to eat, then?"

"Please, ma'am, I haven't had nothing to eat for three days at least." "And what's your mother about to serve you so?" "I haven't got a mother, nor a father, nor any one." "Where do you live?"

"Anywhere's. I walk about the streets all day, and at night I sleep on the door-steps-only the policeman will make me keep moving about from one to the other all night."

"It gives me the shudders to think on," said Mrs. Garrett. "And Mr. James has actually picked up a gal out of the very streets to be his underhouse maid. Why, we may all be robbed and murdered in our beds. Oh, men-these men! They are so scatter-brained, there's no making head nor tail of them."

Her attention was diverted by Peg pulling at the skirt of her gown.

"I won't rob and murder, please, ma'am, I'd be glad to do something for the gentleman that brought me here. He looks so real kind, he does."

"And so he is, child-the best gentleman that ever stepped on the earth. What's your name?"

"They call me Peg O'Reilly in the market, so I suppose that's it. Some one told me once that my mother's name was Nan O'Reilly, and she sold matches, and she died in the work-house."

"And why didn't you stay in the workhouse, then? Wouldn't they keep you? "I stayed there till I was ten, and then a lady, who kept a grocer's shop, wanted me to be her servant; but she beat and starved me terrible, and so I run away from her and tried to get my own living."

"And a nice business you seem to have made of it. However, if you behave, you're provided for now; so you may think yourself lucky. But come along into the kitchen and I'll get you something to eat. I must give you a warm bath and get you some other clothes before Master Hamilton comes home, or you'll frighten him out of the house again."

"Who's Master Hamilton? Another gentleman?"

"Well, he'll be a gentleman some day, I suppose, if he lives long enough, and conducts himself as such; but he's only a lad at present. He's Mr. Ruthven's nephew; but no more like him in face nor sperrit, than you are."

When Peg O'Reilly nad bread and cheese and cold meat set before her, she fell to work with a ravenous hunger that made the tears rise to good Mrs. Garrett's eyes, and rendered the task that followed the meal less unpalatable than it otherwise would have been.

The girl could understand the uses of food and drink; but those of the bath were less familiar to her, and had it not been for the housekeeper's decision, might not have proved so efficacious as they did.

"Now, I can't have no nonsense!" she exclaimed, as she saw Peg stepping into the warm water as daintily as though it had been the broken flints her bare feet were accustomed to traverse; "into it you go, head over ears, and you don't come out again until I've had my will of you. I've never had a speck of dirt in this house, and you don't begin it, I can tell you."

THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE LIVTH CONGRESS.

A Brief Report of the Doings in Upper and Lower Houses of the National Legislature - The Work of a Week

Ninety-third Session.

After being in retirement for some weeks the tariff-silver bill was brought forward in the senate as a text for a speech by Mr. Mantle of Montana, one of the five republican senators who voted against considering the tariff bill. Mr. Mantle defended the course of the silver republican senators, declaring that the Dingley bill was not framed as a patriotic measure. He urged that unsectional protection should be linked with bimetallism.

He referred to the recent utterances of President Cleveland before a missionary gathering derogatory to the west and declared that within a radius of five miles from Carnegie hall, New York, where Mr. Cleveland spoke, there was more poverty, ignorance, squalor, starvation crime and criminals than in all of the silver states combined. He gave statistics comparing the silver states with five eastern states, showing the former to be abreast and ahead of their eastern sisters in material and moral standing.

Mr. Mantle said the attacks sprung mainly from the fact that five republican senators from the west voted against proceeding with the tariff bill at an inopportune time. The five silver republican senators were denounced as "traitors" to their party for failing to vote for the tariff bill. But he denied that the Dingley bill was a republican measare, and he quoted the statement of Mr. Sherman that the bill was strictly non-partisan and was not a republican measure. If the Dingley bill was a revenue measure, as claimed by its friends, then no manufacture suffered from its failure, as it was protection, not revenue, that was vital to this interest.

In view of these facts Mr. Mantle suggested that the efforts made to read him and his silver associates out of the republican party nad better be reconsidered by the eastern press, and that these senators be permitted to remain in that party.

There was a lively tariff colloquy following the Mantle speech. Mr. Hawley (rep., Conn.) questioned some of the wool figures which had been given, and spoke of the idle woolen factories and stagnant condition of the industry in the east.

The house Thursday, after debating the bill to abolish compulsory pilotage on sailing vessels engaged in the coastwise trade, defeated the measure by a large majority—51-111.

The District of Columbia appropriation bill, which was recommitted early in March after a protracted fight against appropriations for private and sectarian charitable institutions, was brought into the house with the specific appropriations stricken out and containing in lieu thereof an appropriation of a lump sum for charities, to be expended under the direction of the district commissioners, with the proviso that no part of the appropriation should go to institutions in eclesiastical or sectarian control. The feature of the debate was a vigorous attack on the A. P. A. by Mr. Fitzgerald (dem., Mass.).

Mr. Bartlett (dem., N. Y.), in opposition to the amended district bill, reviewed the fight that had been made against appropriations for sectarian charitable institutions. Instead of making such appropriations directly, he said, it was now proposed that congress shift the responsibility to the shoulders of the district commissioners by giving them a lump sum equal to those appropriations to be expended according to their discretion.

The amended bill was passed on a rising vote-134 to 21.

Ninety-fourth Session.

The house spent the day in general debate on the "filled-cheese" bill. Today the bill will be read under the fiveminute rule for amendment. A very far as possible. The value of the body considerable opposition to the measure | movement was recognized by the has developed and some of the members interested in its passage fear it will fail unless radically amended. The principal objection seems to be raised to the tax features of the bill-$400 on the manufacturer and $40 on the retailerwhile there appears general unanimity in favor of a bill to compel the branding of filled cheese.

The bill has been framed on the iines of the oleomargarine bill, which had become a law against the most intense opposition, and, although subjected to the severest tests of litigation, had been held to be constitutional in all essentials. It was, Mr. Grosvenor argued, the duty of legislation to protect the producers of food products from competition with spurious articles, and to protect the consumer from the purchase of such counterfeits. The exportation of filled cheese, he claimed, had practically ruined the foreign market for genuine American full-milk cheese. The bill did not prohibit or discourage the manufacture of filled cheese, it simply forced the manufacture and sale of it under its

Mr. McMillin (dem., Tenn.) a member of the ways and means committee, made the principal argument against the bill. against the question as improper.

He argued that there was no reason why the manufacturers of filled cheese should be taxed while the manufacturers of other forms of cheese were not taxed, and that resort to the power of taxation for the suppression of its production or sale was an abuse of that

In the senate Mr. Call stated that Friday Mr. Call (dem., Fla.) stated that inquiries had been made of him by Eugene V. Debs and other labor leaders as to whether the senate judiciary committee was taking any action on the restriction of the power of federal judges. Mr. Hoar (rep., Mass.), chairman of the judiciary committee, said all the members believed some comprehensive legislation in this line was needed, and several plans were under consideration, but not fully matured. Mr. Hill (dem., N. Y.) had special charge of the subject and Mr. Thurston (rep., Neb.) had presented a measure covering the whole subject. He (Mr. Hoar) expected a definite plan would be presented to the senate later on.

Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.) succeeded in getting up the bill for a trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha in 1898. Amendments were agreed to, making the exposition international in scope and appropriating $50,000 for buildings. Mr. Allen secured a further amendment limiting the total liability of the government to $200,000. As thus amended the bill was passed.

Ninety-fifth Session.

At the instance of Mr. Gorman, the senate decided to open the publication of the patent office gazette to general competition. The rest of the day was given to the Dupont case, Senators Burrows (Mich.) and Brown (Utah) supporting Mr. Dupont's claim.

Mr. Cullom gave notice of an amendment to the sundry civil bill providing that out of the appropriation made for the bureau of engraving and printing the bureau shall provide the full amount of internal revenue stamps required by law and that the printing of postage stamps shall be done by contract to the lowest bidder.

Senator Gordon of Georgia gave notice of a proposed amendment to the naval bill appropriating $50,000 for arms, accouterments, etc., for the naval militia of the various states.

Senator Hoar, from the committee on judiciary, reported back Senator Call's resolution interposing intervention in the case of Mrs. Maybrick. It recited briefly that the proposed intervention was not a subject within the jurisdiction of the senate. A vote was about to be taken on indefinitely postponing the resolution when Senator Allen suggested that it would be well to wait until the author of the resolution was present before disposing of the matter. Thereupon the resolution went to the calendar without action.

The house spent the day transacting business relating to the District of Columbia. Several bills were passed. It was the intention of Mr. Bartlett to call up his bill to authorize racing in the District of Columbia, but he was given no opportunity to do so. It is expected that he will ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill today.

Throwing the Discus. Discus-throwing was a later and more refined form of hurling the stone. In Homeric times, and even at Olympia, a stone or mass of iron was first used for the purpose. This was held by a leathern thong, swung in a circle, and hurled as far as possible. A circular or lenticular disk of bronze was used at least as early as the beginning of the fifth century. A standard weight must, of course, be assumed for the great games. A discus now in the British museum, which seems to have been used, weighs eleven pounds nine ounces, but whether this was the standard weight or not is not definitely known. The thrower took his place upon a slight elevation of limited circumference, where he could have a secure foothold, and was prevented from running; then, with a swing of the arm and a corresponding movement of the whole body, he hurled the discus as sculptor Myorn in his famous statue, "The Discobolus," and is understood by the modern athlete when he swings the hammer, or even when he makes a drive at golf. As for records at discusthrowing, Phayllus, again, is said to have thrown the discus ninety-five feet. - "The Old Olympian Games," by Prof. Allan Marquand.
