TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

St. Paul's Evangelical Church of Palatine Fittingly Observes Its 25th Anniversary.

From the Palatine Review:

St. Paul's Evangelical church celebrated the 25th anniversary of its organization last Sunday with appropriate exercises. A number of the former pastors were present and took part in the exercises. The morning service was opened by the pastor, Rev. J. A. F. Harder. Rev. Stark of Long Grove read the scripture text and the first pastor and organizer of the church, Rev. Schaub of Mokena, Ill., preached an excellent sermon, and was followed by Rev. Krueger, another former pastor.

Rev. J. A. F. Harder then gave a short history of the organization and growth of the church.

Rev. Bloesch of the Plum Grove church opened the afternoon exercises with prayer, and Rev. Krueger of Frankfort, Ill., a former pastor, preached. He was followed by Rev. Bloesch and Rev. Stark, who delivered short addresses.

Rev. J. A. F. Harder pronounced the benediction.

Both the morning and afternoon exercises were largely attended, the church being inadequate to accommodate all those who came to attend the celebration. Many members from the Barrington, Plum Grove, Long Grove and other surrounding churches were in attendance and dinner and supper were served to all by the ladies of the church.

Rev. Schaub organized the society at this place while being in charge of the Plum Grove church. The society first met in the town hall, and the organization started out with eight members: G. A. Horstmann, H. P. Bicknasse, John Loges, Henry Blum, residing in Palatine at the present time; Fred Longhorst of Aurora, Ill., who was present last Sunday; Aug. Drozkowsky, who moved to other parts, and George Sweltzer and John Vele, deceased.

The society has had a steady growth ever since its birth, and has now over 95 regular attendants, and possesses a comfortable church edifice, an elegant new parsonage, and a school house.

HIS ILLNESS ENDED.

Thos. FitzSimmons Dies in Chicago Sunday Afternoon.

Great sorrow was manifested by our citizens last Sunday when they were apprised of the death of Thomas FitzSimmons, who passed away at the Douglas Park Water Cure Sanitarium, Chicago, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, October 10th.

Mr. FitzSimmons was born in Rutland, Vermont, forty-nine years ago. He had been suffering with bowel and liver troubles for about fifteen months, and two weeks ago he was taken to the sanitarium for treatment, in the hope that it would benefit him, but the Almighty, in his wisdom, willed it otherwise.

His wife, two brothers and his sister were at his bedside when he breathed his last.

At the request of his mother the remains were taken to Good's Thunder, Minn., where they were laid to rest in Calvary cemetery beside those of his father.

Mr. FitzSimmons was a resident of Barrington for about four years, being in charge of the engine of the first Barrington train until illness compelled him to take a rest which was destined never to be broken. He was one of the most efficient and popular engineers in the employ of the North-Western railway. Being naturally of a quiet, pleasing disposition he made friends of all with whom he came in contact. His host of friends deeply mourn the loss of a good citizen and kind friend, and extend their sympathy to the bereaved widow and relatives, in which THE REVIEW joins.

Foot Ball Notes.

Our football team won another easy victory last Saturday, by a score of 28 to 0.

The Palatines had the ball nearly all the time, the opponents holding it only once for four downs. Our boys played tricks, bucked the line and skirted the ends for long gains. Van Vliet did good work for Palatine at left and Bissell, Williams and Rea made big gains with the ball. Palatine showed marked improvement over last week's playing and have as strong, if not a stronger team than that of last year. Princeton's only tried line bucking which proved unsuccessful against Palatine. Palatine lined up as follows:

Right Guard—Gibbs.
Right Half—A. G. Smith.
Full Back—B. L. Smith.
Quarter Back—W. Lytle.

The Eggleston Athletic club play here this afternoon and Palatine will have to work hard to win as their opponents are crack players. In last Saturday's game they defeated Staggs colts, the Morgan Park academy team, by a score of 8 to 0.

Oct. 30—Blue Island at Blue Island.
Nov. 6—Pitzen Cycling club.
Nov. 13—Naval Reserves.

Wm. Brockway is now adorned with the "ticket agent's" uniform.

Miss Maggie Gladly of Gault, Ontario, is visiting at the Wilson House.

Jos. Williams visited his folks at Ravine over last Sunday and combined business with pleasure.

The Ladies' Aid society is making extensive arrangements toward the success of their fair to be held in about a month.

A large number of Barrington and Arlington Heights people attended the football game at this place Saturday.

The Ladies' Aid society cleared nearly $28 at their supper last Friday night. The tables were loaded with all that the appetite could relish.

Mrs. J. A. F. Harder received notice of the death of her sister at St. Louis Wednesday. Mr. Harder started for St. Louis Wednesday and Mrs. Harder went Thursday.

FOR SALE—A lot, with good 8-room house and good barn on Plum Grove avenue, opposite the M. E. church. For particulars call on A. G. Smith.

A lady representative of the Children's Home Finding Society of Chicago occupied Rev. J. C. Butcher's pulpit Sunday morning and evening and delivered two interesting addresses.

A first-class entertainment, consisting of 100 magnificent views from the latest calcium light, the Hydro-Oxco-Sters, will be given in the M. E. church Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Dr. Muffat attended a reunion of the Alumni of the University of Illinois, of which he is a member, last Friday night in Chicago and reports a very pleasant time.

Rev. J. C. Butcher and family returned from Chicago Thursday where they have been attending the Methodist conference. Mr. Butcher will preach in Palatine another year. Rev. T. E. Ream returns to Barrington, and Rev. W. H. Smith to Genoa.

Mrs. Chas. H. Patten and children Mary and Paul, will start for California the first of the week where they will spend the winter. Mr. Patten will join them about Christmas.

R. P. Hunt and Mr. Deerfield of Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Pierson and family and George Mackler of Evanston, A. H. Arps of Cary, and Elam Felt, uncle of Mrs. Arps, were guests of the latter Sunday, most of them coming unexpected. Mrs. Arps was equal to the occasion and entertained the large number of guests in fine style.

Rev. Ream Returned.

Rev. T. E. Ream, the able and popular divine of the Barrington M. E. church, through the efforts of his church and the trustees, is returned to the Barrington church for his fourth year. A special committee was sent to conference to request his return.

No better recommendation as to his ability and popularity could be given a pastor.

Rev. Ream, after a seven year's course of study in the North-Western University, was sent to Barrington to fill the pulpit of the M. E. church three years ago. When he came here, the church was weak in members, as well as in financial matters. During his stay here the membership of the church has increased to a remarkable degree. An elegant new parsonage was built and is clear of debt. The exterior and interior of the church has been improved, until it scarcely could be recognized as the same structure.

It is the first case on record in the history of the church that a pastor has been returned for the fourth year.

The action of the Rock River conference is approved by entire Barrington, and we have no doubt will redound to the benefit of the church.

We congratulate Rev. Ream on his work in the past, and wish him unlimited success for the future.

Mrs. Haack Passes Away.

Mrs. August Haack died at her home in Barrington at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Oct. 13, 1897, of consumption, having been an invalid for two years.

Mrs. Haack was born near Waverly, Iowa, on July 18, 1868, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Koelling. She had been a resident of Barrington for about twenty years.

On April 8, 1886, she was married to Mr. August Haack, six children blessing the union, five of whom survive: Laura, 10 years old; Alma, 9 years; Leo, 7; Herman, 5, and Ella 3. The first born preceded the mother to the great beyond.

Mrs. Haack was a devout member of the St. Paul's church.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon, Rev. Rahn officiating. The remains were interred in the Lutheran cemetery.

The deceased leaves a husband, five children, mother, (Mrs. Charlotte Koelling), three brothers—Fred, Henry and Herman; and one sister, Mrs. Henry Winkler. She was a lady highly respected, and had a host of friends.

A Tale of Three Lions

BY
H. RIDER HAGGARD

"Lions, my boy," I said; "they are hunting down by the river there; but I don't think you need make yourself uneasy. We have been here three nights now, and if they were going to pay us a visit I should think that they would have done so before this. However, we will make up the fire."

"Here, Pharaoh, do you and Jim-Jim get some more wood before we go to sleep, else the cats will be purring round you before morning."

"Pharaoh, a great brawny Swazi, who had been working for me at Pilgrims' Rest, laughed, rose, and stretched himself, and then calling to Jim-Jim to bring the ax and a ream, started off in the moonlight toward a clump of sugar-bush where we cut our fuel from some dead trees. He was a fine fellow in this way, was Pharaoh because he had an Egyptian cast of countenance and a royal sort of swagger about him. But his way was a somewhat peculiar way, on account of the uncertainty of his temper, and very few people could get on with him; also if he could get it he would drink like a fish, and when he drank he became shockingly blood-thirsty. These were his bad points; his good ones were that, like most people of the Zulu blood, he became exceedingly attached to you if he took to you at all; he was a hard-working and intelligent man, and about as dare-devil and plucky a fellow at a pinch as I ever had to do with. He was about five-and-thirty years of age or so, but not a 'keshla' or ringed-man. I believe he got into trouble in some way in Swaziland, and the authorities of his tribe would not allow him to assume the ring, and that is why he came to work at the gold fields. The other man, or rather lad, Jim-Jim, was a Mapoch Kafir, or Knobnose, and even in the light of subsequent events I fear that I cannot speak very well of him. He was an idle and careless young rascal, and only that very morning I had to tell Pharaoh to whip him for letting the oxen stray, which he did with the greatest gusto, although he was, in his own way, very fond of Jim-Jim, and I saw him consoling him afterward with a pinch of snuff from his own ear-box, whilst he explained to him that the next time it came in the way of duty to flog him, he meant to thrash with the other hand, so as to cross the old cuts and make a 'pretty pattern' on his back.

"Well, off they went, though Jim-Jim did not at all like leaving the camp at that hour, even though the moonlight was so bright, and in due course returned safely enough with a great bundle of wood. I laughed at Jim-Jim, and asked him if he had seen anything, and he said yes, he had; he had seen two large yellow eyes staring at him from behind a bush, and heard something snore.

"As, however, on further investigation the yellow eyes and the snore appeared to have existed only in Jim-Jim's lively imagination, I was not greatly disturbed by this alarming report; but having seen to making up of the fire, got into the skerm and went quietly to sleep with Harry by my side.

"Some hours afterward I woke up with a start. I don't know what woke me. The moon had gone down, or at least was almost hidden behind the soft horizon of bush, only her red rim being visible. Also a wind had sprung up and was driving long hurrying lines of cloud across the starry sky, and altogether a great change had come over the mood of the night. By the look of the sky I judged that we must be about two hours from day-break.

"The oxen, which were as usual tied to the disselboom of the Scotch cart, were very restless—they kept snuffing and blowing, and rising up and lying down again, and I at once suspected that they must wind something. Presently I knew what it was that they winded, for within fifty yards of us a lion roared not very loud.

"Pharaoh was sleeping on the other side of the cart, and beneath it I saw him raise his head and listen.

"Lion, Inkooos," he whispered, "lion."

"Jim-Jim also jumped up, and by the faint light I could see that he was in a very great fright indeed.

"Thinking that it was as well to be prepared for emergencies, I told Pharaoh to throw wood upon the fire, and woke up Harry, who I verily believe was capable of sleeping through the crack of doom. He was a little scared at first, but presently the excitement of the position came home to him, and he became quite anxious to see his majesty face to face. I got my rifle handy and gave Harry his—Westley Richard falling block, which is a very useful gun for a youth, being light and yet a good killing rifle, and then we waited.

"For a long time nothing happened, and I began to think that the best thing that we could do would be to go to sleep again, when suddenly I heard a sound more like a cough than a roar within about twenty yards of the skerm. We all looked out, but could see nothing; and then followed another period of suspense. It was very trying to the nerves, this waiting for an attack that might be developed from any quarter or might not be developed at all; and though I was a very old hand at this sort of business I was anxious about Harry, for it is wonderful how the presence of anybody to whom one is attached unnerves a man in moments of danger, and that made me nervous. I know, although it was now chilly enough, I could feel the perspiration running down my nose, and in order to relieve the strain on my attention employed myself watching a beetle which appeared to be attracted by the fire-light, and was sitting before it thoroughly rubbing his antennae against each other.

"Suddenly the beetle gave such a jump that he nearly jumped headlong into the fire, and so did we all—give jumps, I mean, and no wonder, for from right under the skerm fence there came the most frightful roar—a roar that literally made the Scotch cart shake and took the breath out of you.

"Harry ejaculated and turned rather green, Jim-Jim howled outright, while the poor oxen stood and shivered and lowed piteously.

"The night was almost entirely dark now, for the moon had quite set and the clouds had covered up the stars, so that the only light we had was from the fire, which was burning up brightly again now; but, as you know, fire-light is absolutely useless to shoot by, it is so uncertain, and besides it penetrates but a very little way into the darkness, although if one is in the dark outside one can see it from so far away.

"Presently the oxen, after standing still for a moment, suddenly winded the lion and did what I feared they would do—began to 'shrek,' that is to try and break loose from the trektow to which they were tied, and rush off madly into the wilderness. Lions know of this habit on the part of oxen, which are, I do believe, the most foolish animals under the sun, a sheep being a very Solomon compared to them; and it is by no means uncommon for a lion to get in such a position that a herd or span of oxen may wind him, shrek, break their reins, and rush off into the bush. Of course, once they are there, they are helpless in the dark; and then the lion chooses the one that he loves best and eats him at his leisure.

"Well, round and round went our six poor oxen, nearly trampling us to death in their mad rush; indeed, had we not hastily tumbled out of the way, we should have been trampled to death, or at least seriously injured. As it was, Harry was run over, and poor Jim-Jim being caught by the trektow somewhere beneath his arm, was hurled right across the skerm, landing by my side only some paces off.

"Snap went the disselboom of the cart beneath the transverse strain put upon it. Had it not broken the cart would have overset; as it was, in another minute, oxen, cart, trektow, reins, broken disselboom, and everything were soon tied in one vast heaving, plunging, bellowing, and seemingly inextricable knot.

"For a moment or two this state of affairs took my attention off from the lion that had caused it, but whilst I was wondering what on earth was to be done next, and what we should do if the cattle broke loose into the bush and were lost, for cattle frightened in this manner will go right away like mad things, it was very suddenly recalled in a very painful fashion.

"For at that moment I perceived by the light of the fire, a kind of gleam of yellow traveling through the air toward us.

"The lion! the lion!" hallooed Pharaoh, and as he did so, he, or rather she, for it was a great gaunt lioness, half wild no doubt with hunger, lit right in the middle of the skerm, and stood there in the smoky gloom, and lashed her tail and roared. I seized my rifle and fired at her, but what between the confusion, and my agitation, and the uncertain light, I missed her and nearly shot Pharaoh. The flash of the rifle, however, threw the whole scene into strong relief, and a wild one it was I can tell you—with the seething mass of oxen twisted all around the cart, in such a fashion that their heads looked as though they were growing out of their rumps and their horns seemed to protrude from their backs; the smoking air with just a blaze in the heart of the smoke; Jim-Jim in the foreground, where the oxen had thrown him in their wild rush, stretched out there in terror; and then as a center to the picture the great gaunt lioness glaring round with hungry yellow eyes, and roaring and whining as she made up her mind what to do.

"It did not take her long, just the time that it takes a flash to die into darkness, and then, before I could fire again or do anything, with a most fiendish snort she sprang upon poor Jim-Jim.

"I heard the unfortunate lad shriek, and then almost instantly I saw his legs thrown into the air. The lioness had seized him by the neck, and with a sudden jerk thrown his body over her back so that his legs hung down upon the further side. Then, without the slightest hesitation, and apparently without any difficulty she cleared the skerm fence at a single bound, and bearing poor Jim-Jim with her, vanished into the darkness beyond, in the direction of the bathing-place that I have already described. We jumped up perfectly mad with horror and fear, and rushed wildly after her, firing shots at hap-hazard on the chance that she would be frightened by them into dropping her prey, but nothing could we see, and nothing could we hear. The lioness had vanished into the darkness taking Jim-Jim with her, and to attempt to follow her until daylight was madness. We should only expose ourselves to the risk of a like fate.

"So with scared and heavy hearts we crept back to the skerm, and sat down to wait for daylight, which now could not be much more than an hour off. It was absolutely useless to try even to disentangle the oxen till then, so all that there was left for us to do was to sit and wonder how it came to pass that the one should be taken and the other left, and to hope against hope that our poor servant might have been mercifully delivered from the lion's jaws. At length the faint light came stealing like a ghost up the long slope of bush, and glinted on the tangled oxen's horns, and with white and frightened faces we got up and set to the task of disentangling the oxen till such time as they should be light enough to enable us to follow the trail of the lioness which had gone off with Jim-Jim. And here a fresh trouble awaited us, for when at last with infinite difficulty we had got the helpless brutes loose, it was only to find that one of the best of them was very sick. There was no mistake about the way he stood with his legs slightly apart and his head hanging down. He had got the red water, I was sure of it. Of all the difficulties connected with life and traveling in South Africa, those connected with oxen are perhaps the worst. The ox is the most exasperating animal in the world. He has absolutely no constitution, and never neglects an opportunity of falling sick of some mysterious disease. He will get thin upon the slightest provocation, and from mere maliciousness die of 'poverty'; whereas it is his chief delight to turn round and refuse to pull whenever he finds himself well in the center of a river, or the wagon-wheel nicely fast in a mudhole. There is always something wrong with him.

"Well, it was no use crying as I should almost have liked to do, because if this ox had red-water it was probable that the rest of them had it, too, although they had been sold to me as 'salted,' that is, proof against such diseases as red-water and lung-sick. One gets hardened to this sort of thing in South Africa in course of time, for I suppose in no other country in the world is the waste of animal life so great.

"So, taking my rifle and telling Harry to follow me (for we had to leave Pharaoh to look after the oxen, Pharaoh's lean kine, I called them), I started to see if anything could be found of or appertaining to the unfortunate Jim-Jim. The ground round our little camp was hard and rocky, and we could not hit off any spoor of the lioness, though just outside the skerm we saw a drop or two of blood. Several hundred yards from the camp, and a little to the right, was a patch of sugar bush mixed up with the usual mimosa, and for this I made, thinking that the lioness would have been sure to take her prey there to devour it. On we pushed through the long grass that was bent down beneath the weight of the soaking dew. In two minutes we were wet through up to the thighs, as wet as though we had waded through water. In due course, however, we reached the patch of bush, and in the gray light of the morning cautiously and slowly pushed our way into it. It was very dark under the trees, for the sun was not yet up, so we progressed with the most extreme care, half expecting every minute to come across the lioness licking the bones of poor Jim-Jim. But no lioness could we see, and as for Jim-Jim, there was not the least trace of him to be found. Evidently they had not come there.

"So, pushing through the bush we proceeded to hunt every other likely spot about, with the same result.

"I suppose she must have taken him right away," I said at last, sadly enough. "At any rate he will be dead by now, so God have mercy on him, we can't help him. What's to be done now?"

"I suppose that we had better wash ourselves in the pool and then go back and get something to eat."

Mr. Hubbard was a member of George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R., and was prominent in Grand Army affairs. During the year 1896 he was assistant commander for the state of Illinois. He leaves a widow and one son, Lyman J. Hubbard, who is also connected with the bank.

A MISSIONARY MEDICINE.

Cleanliness begins within. If a man isn't clean inside, he is far from Godliness. A constipated sinner is a stench in the nostrils of the Deity. A man whose food sours in his stomach, and whose liver is leaden, can't help looking at the world hatefully with jaundiced eye, and conjuring up evil thoughts in his tortured brain. Cleanliness of person begets cleanliness of thought. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic are the missionary medicine which purifies men's bodies and minds. Pure, fragrant, palatable, mild and positive, they clean out the intestinal canal, stimulate the liver and strengthen the bowels. Then a man enjoys again feeling of charity and brotherly love for his fellows and recommends others to take Cascarets and be as happy as he.

It Looked Suspicious.

They were sitting on the broad veranda of a summer resort hotel and the one in light gray ventured to suggest to the one in white that her husband was evidently very devoted. "What do you mean?" asked the one in white, knitting her brow and looking troubled. "Why, he writes to you every day, doesn't he?" returned the one in light gray. "Yes. That's just what troubles me," said the one in white, actually scowling at the thought. "Troubles you?" "Certainly. I can't help thinking he's afraid I'll pack up and come home unexpectedly if he doesn't."—Chicago Post.

Spain and the United States.

The record of President McKinley's administration will be made on its settlement of the Spanish-Cuban question. That settlement cannot in the nature of things be much longer delayed. The outcome of it will apparently be the independence of Cuba. The United States owes it to the interests of her own citizens to stop the war which Spain is dragging on in an exhausted, crippled condition.

The Spaniards are a high minded people, as proud as they are at present poverty stricken. In negotiations with them undoubtedly President McKinley and Mr. Sherman will use all possible delicacy and courtesy and let them down as easily as possible.

Spain need not feel unduly humiliated at giving up Cuba. Spain has given up one after another the countries of northern and western South America, also Central America and Mexico. She sold outright for dollars Florida to the United States and ceded Louisiana to France, and her pride survived both the trade and her previous losses by war. It, as well as her national honor, will still survive when she is forced to give up Cuba. France lost Alsace-Lorraine to Germany by the fortunes of war, yet today the nations respect France no less than Germany. Nobody will respect Spain a whit the less for giving up Cuba when she can no longer hold on to it. Meantime the situation is a grave one. Any bluster or jingoism on the part of American editors is in extremely bad taste and calculated to inflame passions that should be quiet. Relations between Washington and the court of Spain have been critical for some time, hence the extreme courtesy very properly observed to Minister De Lome at Washington and the very gracious reception accorded by the queen of Spain to Minister Woodford. Americans universally realize that the task of Minister De Lome at Washington has been a difficult one and that he has performed it with a tact that entitles him to all praise. When the inevitable end comes, let us have no cowardly bluster or crowing over Spain.

Rev. Sheldon Jackson, the reindeer man and superintendent of education in Alaska, says that with relay stations and reindeer sleighs it will be possible to carry the mails through from Circle City to Juneau in five days, winter and summer. He has now 73 reindeer broken to harness and saddle. He ought to put them at work at once, if there is anybody who knows how to drive them, so that their real value can become known. There are already, according to the latest summing up, 15,000 of the deer in Alaska. What is the good of them if they are not made useful and broken to service? They will not increase any the less rapidly for being trained to help in the great task now to be accomplished in Alaska and the Northwest Territories—that of quickly transporting freight and passengers. There is all the more need of them since the mining camps are often 300 miles from the supply stations.

William Gillette of "Secret Service" observed when he returned from England that British cigars were the best in the world if one wanted to be cured of the smoking habit. Certainly smoking British cigars cannot fasten upon one the tobacco habit, since it is stated for a fact that a third of them have not a trace of tobacco in them.

There is one thing the great coal operators who are now so bitter against the "foreigners" on strike against them should remember. It is that the operators themselves first brought these foreign miners to America to work in the coal districts so there might always be an abundance of men and therefore lower wage rates.

Why are the movements of that fat old colored woman, Mrs. Dominis, late of Hawaii, of sufficient interest to be telegraphed at considerable cost from one side of this continent to the other, or indeed even to be telephoned across the street?

General Ignacio Andrade, who succeeds Crespo as president of Venezuela, is a Liberal in politics and will continue the same policy which under General Crespo strengthened Venezuela as a republic and a nation.

Joy for Milk Shippers.

A marked increase in the price of milk after November 1 will be a result of the deliberations of the Chicago Milk Shippers' Union which met for its quarterly session in Chicago Tuesday.

The price which the local dealers of Chicago will have to pay for each can has been fixed at a considerably higher rate than it was during the summer, and as a result the dollar of the consumer will buy only sixteen tickets for milk in bulk or fourteen tickets for milk in bottles, instead of the seventeen and fifteen tickets which it has been buying.

The change will be made Nov. 1st, because that is the beginning of a new quarter in the conduct of the affairs of the shippers' union. The board of directors of the union meets every three months to discuss credits and fix the minimum price at which the members' product shall be disposed of in the three months to follow. The regular contract price has been during the summer 85 cents a can of eight gallons delivered in Chicago. During November, December and January it will be $1 a can. For the following three months it will be 90 cents a can, unless at the January meeting the directors shall decide to reverse the action taken yesterday.

The price was fixed so far in advance because at this season of the year the dealers desire to make six months' contracts and have their winter supplies settled so they can rely on them.

In connection with the meeting of the directors of the union Tuesday there was a mass meeting of the members from almost all parts of the district in which Chicago's milk supply is produced. Several hundred dairymen who assembled in the clubroom at the Briggs House found the room much too small to hold them, so they adjourned to the hall at 199 Randolph street. In the morning they listened to practical talks by Hiram Holcombe of Sycamore, president of the association, and S. Hill, secretary and general manager. They both spoke about the necessity of the members holding to their agreements about prices, and urged that greater efforts be used to keep the product of the highest quality and purity.

In the afternoon George Muller of the city health department told of the workings of the laws controlling the sale of milk, and Professor E. B. Stewart, city milk inspector, gave an illustrated lecture on the methods of testing milk employed in the city laboratory.

The Chicago Milk Shippers' Union was organized last March and has a membership of 2,000 dairymen, located along every one of the twenty railroads which bring milk into the city. They organized their union partly on account of the low prices at which they were often forced to sell and partly to protect themselves against irresponsible buyers, who shifted around from one point to another and regularly failed to pay for the milk that had been sent them. In this last matter a great deal of good has been accomplished and over $50,000 of bad debts have already been collected, some of them dating back as far as 1890.

President Holcombe said Tuesday that he thought the rates now fixed would be pretty generally adhered to in the contracts that would be made for the winter product, though he thought it possible that in a few cases a higher rate would be obtained, while it was altogether probable that extra sales of small quantities would bring considerable above the scheduled rate, as has been the common case with extra sales during the recent drought.

"We are not trying," Mr. Holcombe added, "to get any arbitrary price for our milk, but only to make a living profit and to prevent ourselves from losing through the action of shippers who have not made contracts at the proper time and who consequently underbid us and are willing to sell for anything they can get. I think $1 will be a fair price during the winter."

"Milk is going to be very scarce this winter, partly on account of the drought and partly on account of the scarcity of cows. Chicago will not, however, be in any danger of a failure of its supply."

Ira J. Mix, a large dealer in milk, said: "With milk at $1 a can we shall have to raise the price to consumers, but the increase will not be very heavy. Probably all the reputable dealers will charge the same price, which will be about 7 cents a quart for bottled milk and 6 cents for milk in bulk."

Antarctica.

That is the name which has been given to the supposed continent around the south pole. It is by no means certain that there is such a continent around the south pole, but explorers believe there is. At different times whalers in the south seas and others have touched upon the borders of what seemed to be a great continent. Its coast on the eastern hemisphere projects as far north as about 63 degrees south latitude, abruptly receding till its edge is as near the south pole as 79 degrees south latitude. It is in this latitude, longitude 170 degrees east, that Mount Erebus and Mount Terror are situated. Erebus is an active volcano, and, if they come into its neighborhood, will furnish heat enough to warm the explorers who this summer steamed away to the south pole on the vessel Belgica, sent out by the Belgian government.

The Belgica will explore Graham Land, the part of the antarctic continent lying directly south of South America. A commercial expedition from the United States will in the next year attempt to explore the great continent, too, and see what can be made of it. This will proceed in a line south of Cape Horn. Meantime from the other side of the world, south of Africa, a German scientific party will approach the antarctic land next year. Thus there will be three parties endeavoring to penetrate the mystery of the frozen south. If there is land all the way to the south pole, the entire journey might perhaps be made with sledges and dogs. It may be that while there is nothing but water around the north pole, the south pole is surrounded by land.

THE QUALITY

Is the first thing to consider in clothing. The price comes next. Quality means good material well made up. It means a good fit; it means good wear; it means a genteel appearance.

Our Summer Clothing is distinctively quality clothing. The price is only a little more than you would pay for the shoddy goods. But you will find a vast difference in the wear and looks.

Let Us Show You Those $10.50, $14.50, $18 and $20 Suits

You will hardly look further.

TRAGEDIES OF THE SEA.

That the perils of the ocean are diverse and manifold and that modern science has not overcome them can be easily deduced from the stories of marine disasters made known during the past few months—disasters that have strewn the ocean's floor with dead.

When you add to these the pitiable number of vessels that in the recent past have sailed away and never been heard of after, and whose fate is clad in the fog of mystery, the sea's sad story gathers more horrors still. Here is a grim list:

The Arctic, in 1854; the Pacific, in 1856; the Austria, in 1858, with 538 on board, only 67 saved; the City of Boston, in 1870, never heard from, 200 souls aboard; the Atlantic, stranded off Halifax, 576 lives lost; the Schiller, on Scilly Rocks, 200 lives lost; Villa du Havre, 200 lives lost; Pomerania, 50 lives lost.

A few days ago it was told how the schooner General Siglin was sighted, abandoned in the North Pacific ocean. Not quite abandoned, perhaps, for fished to the helm was the corpse of a sailor.

The first big disaster of the present year was the stranding of the schooner Nahum Chapin off Quogue, L. I. She was lost, with all hands, on Jan. 21, Captain Aney and his crew of eight men perishing in the wreck.

The tragedy of the Ville de St. Nazaire has been so recent that the distressing circumstances cannot have been forgotten. Out of seventy-six persons on board nearly all are dead.

The recent experience of the crew and passengers on the steamer Leona adds another chapter to the horrors of the sea. They were afloat on a blazing boat, with little chance of escape. The flames were finally subdued, but before the flames were over a dozen people lost their lives. They were smothered as they lay in their bunks or groped their way through blinding smoke towards the companionways, which were shut off by a wall of flame.

While talking about steamers on fire, why forget the San Francisco ship Frances, stranded last week on the Jersey beach? Luckily no lives were lost, but the craft was valuable.

The ball game on Friday of last week between the Wauconda Independents and the Algonquin Indians proved a victory for the latter nine by a score of 11 to 13. It was a good game, both sides playing hard to win. A large number of people attended the dance given by the boys in the evening, ninety tickets being sold. The music was furnished by Barbino's orchestra, with C. A. Hapke as harpist, and from all appearances all present had a jolly, good time. Landlord Mullen served a bountiful and delicious oyster supper.
OBITUARY.
Daniel Oaks, one of the pioneer settlers of Lake county, died at his home in Wauconda Monday morning, at the advanced age of 81 years 5 months and 21 days.
Mr. Oaks was born on the 20th day of April, 1816, in Stamford, Vt., the son of a farmer. He grew to manhood on a farm, and about two months in the year attended an old log school, where he made the most of his time, and by putting in his little spare time reading and observing, became one of the best-informed men of his neighborhood. When he had passed his 20th birthday he left the old homestead and started out for himself. As a helpmate for the journey through life he chose Miss Lavina Hayward, who was born in Conway, Mass., Sept. 21, 1815. Their marriage was celebrated April 22, 1841, four children blessing the union: Theron H., Lancelot E., Erskine and Permelia, the latter, the only daughter and eldest child, died when but 6 years of age.
Mr. Oaks was for a number of years school director, and much of the credit for our present excellent schools is due him. He served as township trustee, was commissioner of highways for three terms, postmaster for ten years, and was one of the first village trustees of Wauconda, a position which he filled for three consecutive terms.
Mr. Oaks, in spite of his advanced age, was still a very active man, and only a few days before his death was around with his friends and neighbors. He leaves many friends and relatives to mourn the loss of a noble man.

An Extraordinary Bargain.

I offer for sale my whole photographic outfit, which is complete in every respect, with everything in the Zurich studio, at a very low figure. This is a first class chance for some one to engage in a paying business, at a very small cost. I wish to state to my patrons, that I will continue to take pictures until sold. Apply to AL. R. FICKE, Lake Zurich, Ill.

Some months ago a man shipping marl, taken from the banks of the Fox river, at Algonquin, unearthed a large tree, with limbs and knots upon it, turned to stone. The marl was found to contain the impressions of leaves of various kinds, maple, oak, willow and masses of moss. These impressions were so perfect that the parts of the leaf, veins and margin could be as readily seen as if the impressions were taken but yesterday.

We recommend them for beginners. Our wholesale and retail departments have both contributed largely to this notable sale.

Every visitor is invited to inspect our complete line of Bradburys in uprights and cabinet and parlor grands, the foremost of all pianos. But we especially urge these cheap but serviceable "Clearance Sale" pianos just now. We need the room badly for new stock.

But times are good, money easy, our own capital perhaps the largest in our line, (see Dun or Bradstreet) salaried positions secure, hence time buyers will be equally favored and may practically make their own terms. Drawn Out by a Magnet.
Not long since, while washing clothes a young laundress thrust a broken needle into her hand. A surgeon who was consulted a few days afterward refused to operate, as the needle had disappeared and feared the necessity of making a number of incisions. After two months the girl lost the use of her right hand, a slight movement of the fingers causing exquisite pain. A feeble electro magnet was then employed to draw the needle to a fleshy portion of the hand. Before the third trial the girl complained of a prickling in the palm near where the magnet had been applied. At the ninth sitting, the needle came out broken end first and fixed itself to the magnet. There was no pain or loss of blood.

JAPAN'S GREAT ENTERPRISE IN AMERICA.

LARGE APPROPRIATION BY IMPERIAL DIET.

TO INFORM AMERICANS HOW TO MAKE TEA.

Several months ago, the Japanese Tea Guild sent to this country a special commission, composed of Mr. S. Mitahashi, president of Shizuoka Prefectural Assembly, and Mr. J. Ohara, member of Japanese parliament, to investigate the condition of the Japanese tea trade in the United States and Canada, and to co-operate with Mr. T. Furuya and Mr. T. Mizutany, the American representatives of the Japanese Tea Guild, in giving publicity to the merits of Japanese teas and the method of preparing them for drinking which would insure the best results.

Mr. Furuya and Mr. Mizutany are planning to open tea bazars in many of the principal cities in the United States and Canada, where ladies can enjoy a cup of fine Japanese tea made by experts, and at the same time receive instructions which will enable them to make it equally well at home. More than half the tea consumed in the United States and Canada is of Japanese growth, yet, the majority of Americans apparently do not understand how to prepare it so as to develop the delicious qualities which it contains. It is believed by these gentlemen that when Americans are in possession of the secret of making good tea, the consumption in this country will fully equal that of Europe in proportion. The Japanese government has appropriated a large fund to aid the Japanese tea growers and tea merchants in prosecuting this educational work, and it is hoped that American ladies will be apt students. The main bureau of the Japanese Tea Guild has issued an official recipe for making Japanese tea, the translation of which is as follows:

First—Use a small, dry and thoroughly clean porcelain teapot.

Second—Put in one teaspoonful of tea leaves for each cup of tea desired.

Third—When using Japanese teas, pour on the required quantity of fresh boiled water, and let stand with closed lid from 2 to 3 minutes. Never boil the leaves. In order to retain the natural flavor, Japanese tea leaves should be kept in tight can or jar, free from moisture.

Note.—To thoroughly enjoy the natural, delicate, and sweet flavor of Japanese teas, neither sugar nor cream should be used.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Advance in Dairying.

It is true that the dairy schools are doing much for dairying. It is true that the agricultural papers, and institutes, and speakers, and writers, are doing much for dairying. It is also true that many dairymen have become progressive and are doing much by their example for dairying. Nevertheless, advance in dairying is slow, very slow. And why should it not be? The advance is counted not by what a few do, but by the average of what all are doing. Dairying is a thing that must be dealt with in its parts and not in its whole. Every man and every woman that milks a cow or makes butter is a part of that whole and each part must be dealt with separately. The advance is more talked about than real, when speaking of the whole. The dirty dairymen has not by any means yet been eliminated. The ignorant feeder and butter-maker are still in evidence. The dairymen who cares little about the condition of the goods at delivery is still a great factor. All of these must be reformed, and the work is slow. It is astonishing to find how numerous are the farmers that neither take papers nor attend institutes. These are the ones that it is most difficult to reach. They imagine that they comprise in themselves all knowledge in the lines in which they are working.

For these reasons dairy advance must continue to be the result of constant preaching of what some call the dairy gospel of good cows, good butter-makers and cleanly habits. Probably there is no better way to reach the common cow owner than the neighborhood meeting. Farmers, especially if neighbors, can say things that will be listened to, when if a stranger (often called book farmers) were to give the same advice it would be rejected. We feel that every reader of this column has a personal work to do in this line. If it be possible to call small meetings of farmers for such discussions, let it be done by all means. Start the ball rolling. Like the little ball in the snow, it will become greater as it rolls. A multitude of these meetings should be held all over the country, and the work of reformation started at the bottom. Strike first at the dirt. That is the greatest and most uncompromising enemy of the dairymen. Then strike at the poor cow. She is a stumbling block that makes many to offend. If these two points can be impressed—cleanliness and good cows—the reform will have been well begun.

But some will say, "Why, the farmers already know these things!" Perhaps so, but they do not realize them. Sometimes people know things and allow conditions to go on for years, but suddenly something starts them to thinking of them hard, and they wake up. The wake-up is usually followed by action. This is the case with dairying. Men don't stop to think, at least, do not think in a way that results in action. The days are coming when the same number of cows that are kept now will give double the amount of milk and butter that they do now. The time is coming when the science of making butter will be so generally diffused that all the product will be twice as valuable as now (not necessarily twice as expensive to the consumer), but the dairymen will be the gainers in the cost of keeping the number of cows indicated. Dairy advance is at present largely confined to neighborhoods, which is a hopeful sign. It shows what influence will do, especially the influence of neighbors. Let every man put his shoulder to the wheel.

Care of Poultry.

It seems to me there is not much new to be said about poultry raising, especially if one has read the poultry papers, one of which every farmer ought to take. It is the oft-repeated story, but if I tell it again perhaps some one will be benefited by it. Poultry raising in this country has become an extensive business, and is growing more in importance every year. He who raises the best fowls of any good breed, for market, for breeding, or for exhibition purposes, will not only make his mark as a breeder, but will be looked upon by fanciers as one who displays good judgment in fowl culture. We Americans generally look at everything from a financial standpoint. Our first question is, "Will it pay?" That depends altogether on the management. The secret of success is simply doing what you can do well. Certainly, what is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Now, if we begin with that idea, and a natural love for poultry, we are sure of success. The poultry yard can be managed so that it may become one of the most remunerative portions of the farm. With a little thought, and a trifle more expense, it is as easy to raise finely bred fowls as those of a common order, and the effect is far more pleasing. He who wishes to improve his stock from year to year, must be continually weeding out the imperfect birds, and breeding only from those which show the desirable qualities. If farmers would take as much pride in improving their poultry as they do other stock, their yards would not present such a motley coloring of fowls. Symmetry is altogether disregarded, and breeds are crossed and recrossed with just that effect that arises from no management at all.

The practical part of poultry business is where the attention must be bestowed. Get the women interested; give them good quarters for their fowls; help them, if necessary, to keep them in good order, giving them the proceeds for their pin money, and, with their constant care, that part of the question will be solved. If your poultry house is not warm, make it so, to protect your hens and chicks from cold, damp winds. Have it on a dry hillside, facing the south or east, if you can, giving the fowls the advantage of the warmth of the sun in winter. Arrange it so that it can be thoroughly ventilated at all times. Have a hard floor, covered two inches deep with fine gravel, so the droppings can be easily taken up. The perches should be smooth and not too high, with just as little "rigger" about them and the nest boxes as possible. Everything should be movable, so the whitewash brush can be easily applied on all sides. Change the nests often. A few drops of crude carbolic acid in the whitewash, for the perches and nest boxes, will be found a good preventive for vermin. Vigilance is the watchword. The comb is always an index to the condition of the fowl. Look at your hens every day; see that they are healthy, and keep them so. A good warm mess of potato parings and scraps from the kitchen, all boiled up together, seasoned so it is palatable, and thickened with bran and a little corn meal, is much relished, and excellent for them in the morning; occasionally may be given a tonic of cayenne pepper, but not too much. The remainder of the day feed whole grain as they need it. A box well filled with old plastering, oyster shells and charcoal, with a little pounded up fresh every morning for them to pick at, is of great advantage. I find nothing better to keep them healthy than plenty of broken charcoal. The short cut grass from the lawn during the summer, clean and nicely dried in the shade, is greatly relished by them in winter, when deprived of their natural supply of green feed. Whether in or out of confinement, they must have meat food in some form—the hens demand it to produce eggs in abundance, which they will not fail to do, if fed a little every day, when they can not have access to their natural supply of bugs and worms. It is better to give it to them raw, as nature supplies them. A hen is a machine. Give her plenty of the rough material, and she'll return you a nicely formed egg, which no mechanic can duplicate.

Feed regularly, and especially the young chicks. There is no kind of stock which appreciates regularity in feeding more than poultry, and those who practice it are sure to find that it pays. Habit has been truly said to be second nature, and all kinds of animal life appreciate the fact. Certain hours should be set apart for feeding the fowls, say seven in the morning and six in the evening, and it will not be long before they will come together on the approach of the feeding hour, and eagerly look for their regular rations. Regular feeding is beneficial alike for those in confinement and those which have their liberty, for it induces the latter to return home at a certain hour, and thus prevents losses which would otherwise occur. On the farm, where poultry is seldom, if ever, confined, regular daily feed, especially in the evening, should be adhered to, and this is with turkeys an absolute necessity, as their predatory habits would lead them so far away that they would form habits of staying.

The Hog Wanted.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says: We want more size, bone and stamina, better feeding qualities, more fecundity, and the bacon type of hog, and we want these things associated with good breeding qualities, good development at a somewhat early age, easy keeping qualities and, above all, docility. How shall we get what is wanted? Theodore Lewis of Wisconsin answers the question thus: "Do just as I have done—get the best sows you can within the limit of your means, but do not buy some half-starved, ill-bred animal that is closely related to the razorback. Get something that shows better breeding, and have them served by the best boar in the neighborhood. Take the best care of them, and let ingenuity be your guide in the construction of shelter of whatever kind. Feed freely, and at regular hours. Never carry more than you can feed liberally."

Another revival of an old-time material is the rage for corded and repped silks. These come in ordinary, medium and extra heavy ottoman cords, in black and every known shade.

EARNERS OF CHARITY MONEY.

Schemes of Church Women to Get Dollars for Philanthropic Purposes.

It is no uncommon thing for women interested in church work to endeavor to raise money for philanthropic purposes by individual or organized labor within their special fields, says the New York Times. Instances have been related of how women, animated by worthy objects, have fulfilled voluntary pledges of earning specified sums within certain specified periods. The custom of forming women's industrial circles, each member of which is pledged to earn a dollar or more by some personal act, has become popular in small communities, and many ingenious schemes have been devised by clever women for extracting the desired dollar from the pockets of men. At Loon Lake, in the Adirondacks, within the past month, one zealous young church woman earned her dollar by acting as caddie in a game of golf. The novelty of the situation attracted the amused attention of the hotel guests and cottagers, and for the time being "the earning of a dollar" became a fad among the younger women. The dollars thus earned were contributed toward the relief of a poor family in the neighborhood. A New York girl brewed a punch for a party of her brother's male companions and received a dollar, with a request for more punches at the same price. Another girl made a Welsh rarebit, for which she obtained a willing dollar, and a third young woman got ten cents apiece for rolling ten cigarettes. This disposition on the part of well-to-do women to earn money for "sweet charity's sake" sometimes assumes a phase more practical than mere social diversion. Between twenty and thirty of the young women connected with a Methodist Episcopal church in the upper part of New York city have devised a scheme which is likely to net a substantial sum to the church poor and sick relief fund this fall. Each member of the "circle" has agreed to exert her money making talents in one particular line through the month of September, with a view of determining which one can turn the largest amount into the fund. One woman, for instance, proposes to bake cake for whoever wishes to pay for the same. Word has been passed around in the church that persons who desire to purchase cake for home consumption can send their orders to Mrs. — and the goods will be delivered at a slight advance over the actual cost. Another woman who justly prides herself on her skill with the needle, will hold herself in readiness to do any kind of fancy sewing, embroidery or mending—for members of her church congregation—during the ensuing month. A third member of the volunteer money-earning corps will take the old neckties of gentlemen of her acquaintance and remake them "as good as new" for a moderate charge. Still another offers to give "instruction at home" in millinery, and a fifth will undertake to supply small families with their winter's supply of jellies and home-made preserves at moderate cost. Several of these church women have given notice that they will execute shopping commissions at lower rates than the same kind of service can be procured elsewhere, and there is one woman who is willing to clean and do up laces for the benefit of the charity fund.

The Church on "Brimstone Corner."

There are fears in Boston lest the Park street church, endeared as it is by historical associations, may not stand much longer on a site so valuable to investors for business purposes. It was founded in the outbreak of the schism, in the early part of the century, which divided Massachusetts Congregationalists into Trinitarians and Unitarians, and was from the outset a rallying point for the orthodox party. Sulphur matches, it is said, were strewn on the stone steps in derision after Dr. Griffin's strong presentations of "the terror of the Lord," and the nickname then given to it of "Brimstone Corner" is not yet obsolete in Boston. The theological acrimony of that day is a thing of the past, and Unitarians now join with Trinitarians in wishing that this stately old-fashioned meeting house may be preserved. But it proved a difficult task to preserve the Old South meeting house from demolition, consecrated though it was by memories of the revolution, and it is doubtful if a similar endeavor can save its less ancient neighbor.

A Theatre Hat That Folds Up.

A remedy has been devised for the matinee hat. Of late a collapsible hat has been brought out, not quite on the principle of the opera hat, but practical in a way, as the brim divides in the center of the back and front and folds over the crown, which enables it to be packed much more easily. The openings fasten beneath trimmings.
