Woodman Entertainment.—Event of the Season.

On Friday evening, January 14th, Barrington Camp, No. 809, M. W. A., gave their ninth annual entertainment in Stott's hall. The hall was neatly decorated with flags and evergreens. The evening was an exceptionally fine one and the roads were good, which added much to the good spirits of the members living at a distance. At 7:30 o'clock the hall was crowded to its full capacity with Woodmen and their invited friends. It was a large and select audience of the elite of the vicinity.

The refreshment committee have the good will of all who had the pleasure of attending this entertainment.

McHenry Water Works.

The water works system of McHenry village is about completed and a test was made recently. Near the pumping station water was thrown a distance of 150 feet and at various other points from 105 to 100 feet. The pressure was direct from the engine, the water tower being cut off. The pressure was from 40 to 45 pounds. The stand-pipe is 91 feet high and holds 135,000 gallons, and the pressure derived from it will equal that of the engine. The flowing well will furnish 54,000 gallons of water per day and the spring in the reservoir well about the same.

The Eleventh Annual Convention of Supervisors and County Clerks a Good One.

The opening of the eleventh annual convention of supervisors and county clerks occurred Tuesday in Rock Island and officers were elected. Recorder Ragan, Clerk Hendee and Supervisors Tiffany, Thomas and Lamey, of Lake county, were in attendance. A feature of the meeting Tuesday was an address by H. G. Reeves of Bloomington on "Shall a new state constitution be adopted?" He was emphatically in favor of a new law, requiring a change in the power to limit the scope of Cook county's opportunities in the legislature, he thinking it would not be long before Cook county controlled the legislature. The association concluded its convention Thursday, selecting Belleville as the place of next year's convention. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Julia M. Dunn of Moline and A. C. Baldwin of Deer Park. Thursday afternoon before adjournment reports of the committees on legislation and the care of the insane were adopted. The legislative committee recommends the passing of a law by the state legislature requiring circuit clerks to report annually to the board of supervisors the amount of unclaimed witness fees and to turn the same over to the county treasurer. It emphatically approves of the annexation of Hawaii to the United States; asks the United States to restore peace and tranquility in Cuba, and to put a stop to the cruel and inhuman practices of Spain, even if it is necessary to resort to the use of arms to do so. It petitions the legislature to amend the laws so as to give the appointment of overseers of poor in towns of 4,000 population or over to the county board, and request senators and representatives to use their influence to secure a liberal appropriation to be used in furnishing free to all visitors at the coming world's exposition at Paris samples of food cooked from the products of our Indian corn, the object being to enlarge the market for this commodity.

The report of the committee on insane recommends the state care of all insane persons; the non-partisan control of all asylums and asks the co-operation of legislatures with Gov. Tanner's proposition to remove the hospital for the incurable insane at Peoria to a more suitable location.

The report of the committee on taxation which was adopted favors the taxation of all corporations in accordance with their advertised capital stock; the taxation of all church property in excess of $25,000, and an immediate revision of the revenue laws of the state.

The hair is like a plant. What makes the plant fade and wither? Usually lack of necessary nourishment. The reason why Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its normal color, stops hair from falling, and makes it grow, is because it supplies the nourishment the hair needs.

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair immediately began to grow, and I now have as heavy and fine a head of hair as one could wish for, being changed, however, from blonde to dark brown."—Mrs. J. CURES RHEUMATISM AND MANY OTHER DISEASES.

If You or Friends Are Suffering All Can be Cured. The following letter is a sample of many received:

[Trade Mark.]
SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., Chicago, Gentlemen:—I have been intending to write you in regard to my cure by your wonderful medicine "5 DROPS." In July 1881 I was taken sick with what is called complication of diseases, being acute inflammation of all the organs of the body. I was very sick for about three months, having but one chance in a hundred of recovery, but the good Lord allowed me to live, the disease settling in my kidneys and bladder. I had also indigestion, constipation, nervous dyspepsia, heart failure, abscesses twice a week on the prostate gland, hemorrhage of the bowels once a week, enlarged spleen, muscular rheumatism in the palms of my hands extending to my shoulders, catarrh and chills and shivers, which no specialist in the state could tell me what they were or the cause. I would freeze to ice for fully five minutes, then the shivers would begin and I would shake from one half hour to an hour and a half, and when they stopped I had no strength left, the after effects were more like a fit. I would sleep very heavily for three hours or more, all under the most intense pain. All the specialists in the state declared me incurable. The X-ray was put on by one of the city's most eminent physicians, but he told me I was incurable, that I must use plenty of morphine or suffer. Soon after I saw the ad in a western paper of "5 DROPS," the recipe from the celebrated physician, Dr. Lloyd, whom I knew by reputation. I wrote and explained my case to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., and received an answer that I could be cured, and sent me a small trial bottle to begin on. Just before I received it I had one of those terrible shakes which almost killed me. For nine years I had a kidney backache, a hot stinging pain that never left me for a moment. I tried everything I could hear of, but could get no relief until I began the "5 DROPS." The first dose I took the 5th of May, 1887, at noon, and in less than an hour the backache left me and has not returned. I used it steadily for three weeks and kept getting better; at the end of three weeks the pain in my side stopped; at the end of four weeks the rheumatism was no more, and in six weeks all my pain left me. My chills and shivers are gone; my heart failure and dyspepsia went the first week and I feel strong and well, and I thank my God daily for having put me in the way of this great medicine. It has cured many in this vicinity and is still curing afflicted ones who take it steadily and want to be cured. BURNS E. WHITE.

FOR THIRTY DAYS LONGER. To enable sufferers to give "5 DROPS" at least a trial, we will send a sample bottle, prepaid by mail, for 25 cents. A sample bottle will cost you $1.00. MANUFACTURERS OF
ELECTRICAL APPARATUS

242 3/4 258 S. Jefferson St., Chicago.

The Western Electric Company of Chicago, with branches in New York, London, Paris, Antwerp, and Berlin, is one of the largest electrical manufacturing institutions in the world. The company was started in the United States over twenty-five years ago, and has had a gradual and substantial increase until now it occupies a position at the head of the list.

One year ago a large eight-story factory and office building was completed on Jefferson street, and as soon as finished another building of equal size was started, and this spring they expect to erect another building especially for offices.

There is hardly any article demanded by commercial practice in electric light, telephone, telegraph, or power work that cannot be supplied by this large concern.

Over 1,000 people are employed in the Chicago factory, 242 3/4 South Jefferson street. Some of the employees have been with the company for over twenty-five years, and as many as long as twenty years. The company recently furnished the girls employed in its factory two large rooms on the fourth floor of one of its buildings, which are used as a clubroom and restaurant. The girls gave a Christmas entertainment Dec. 27th, decorating the room with holly and evergreen. Over 600 people attended.

CHAPTER VIII.

LIGHT on the sea! Innumerable stars shone in the sky, lambent, bright and were reflected in the waves. A western wind, sweet as the breath of spring, had swept over the land and sea, stirring the blue waves and cresting them with foam. But now the stillness of the sea was something marvelous and beautiful; it was as though the great dark shadow of night brooded over the waters—a stillness broken only by the rushing of the water through the paddle-wheels of the steamer. Slowly the line of lights round the coast disappeared, and at last land was out of sight; there was nothing visible but the heaving, silvery waters and the sky above.

Lady Caraven sat on the deck; the stewardess had advised her to go to the ladies' cabin, but she declined. Why seek the close warm cabin while the stars were shining on the sea? The captain had brought a comfortable seat for her; she had a warm shawl. A faint hope stirred the young wife's heart; perhaps, when Lord Caraven saw her there alone, he might come and talk to her.

She saw him once or twice. Once he asked her if she enjoyed the beauty of the night, and her answer was "Yes," then, as though he had fulfilled a duty, with an air of relief he walked away. She was left to her thoughts—and they were strange ones.

After a while she rose from her seat and bent her face over the starlit water—a face sad with thoughts that should have had no place on her wedding-day. The earl had seen her rise, and came to her.

"Are you tired?" he asked. "We shall not be very long now; I can see the lights on the French coast. The night is very fine. Are you tired?"

"No, I never tire of the sea," she replied. "Indeed, I should like to live near it."

"Ravensmere is near the sea," he told her. "You can see it from the Castle towers."

"I had forgotten that I was to live at Ravensmere, or I should not have said that," she remarked, quickly. "I did not know that it was near the sea."

"Your father has two maps of the estate. Have you not seen them?" he asked.

She looked at him wonderingly. "Why should I see them?" she asked. "Certainly not."

"You do not inherit your father's business talents, then," he said.

But he repented of the words almost before they were uttered. She did not young face turned to him. He bowed politely and went away.

She clutched her little hand; she tried to still the beating of her heart. Her husband—married that day—yet had he no more to say than this? The lights on the French coast were close at hand; she could even in the silence hear the waves breaking on the shore. Amice stood near, with a large carriage-wrap in her hands. Lady Caraven wondered if her husband would come to her, or if he would allow her to land with the help of the servants. He approached hurriedly. "We have time for refreshments," he said; "the train will not start for twenty minutes."

They went into the refreshment-room, where he ordered soup and wine. He was solicitous for her comfort, he was attentive to her wants, but she noticed that he spoke to her only when civility dictated that he should speak, and that when he did address her he never looked at her.

He took his seat by her side in the railway carriage. They traveled through the fresh dewy night, the pleasant air coming in at the open windows. He had carefully provided her with books and newspapers—the railway literature.

"It is quite evident," she thought, "that he intends me to read—he has no desire to talk to me."

She was obliged continually to remind herself that he had asked her to be his wife. He must have cared for her or he would not have married her. He was not a demonstrative man, perhaps. Then she turned slowly from the sky to the handsome, high-bred face near her. He was reading intently, never looking up from his book. It was not the face of a cold-hearted cynic—far from it. Then her eyes wandered slowly away again.

The lovely dawn was flushing in the skies, the birds were singing, the air seemed to stir with new life—it was the dawn of another day. How often would the sun rise and set before she would understand this strange silence of the husband by her side—how many weary dawns would there be?

Paris at last—Paris in the gay morning sunlight. They drove straight to the hotel; and then, for the first time, it seemed to her, he spoke kindly. He said:

"You look very tired—I should advise you to get some rest. I always find a cigar and the morning air most refreshing after a journey."

Half an hour afterward she stood alone in her room. She looked at herself in the tall mirror. It was a pale face with wistful, shadowed eyes that she saw therein. She was fatigued in body and in mind, yet she could not sleep. If she only understood, if she only knew the meaning of this silent love of her husband's that had never yet been expressed in words!

CHAPTER IX.

A WEEK had passed since Lady Caraven reached Paris—a strange week. She had seen but little of her husband. He never took breakfast with her, they met at dinner, and twice he had taken her to the opera. He never interfered in the least with any of her affairs. He sent up her letters unopened, and never even inquired from whom they came. He sent every morning to ask if she had any particular wish for the day—if there was any place she desired to see. At first she said "Yes," and went to the different places of note. He accompanied her, but she could not avoid thinking that he was slightly bored by these excursions. The next time he sent she declined, and he did not remonstrate; he made no remark, and she felt almost sure that he was relieved by her refusal. When they went to the opera, they were never alone—he always secured some companion. It seemed to Hildred that he was quite as much a stranger as on the first day he entered the Hollies.

"Shall I ever be part of his life?" she thought. "Shall I grow to be heart of his heart, soul of his soul? Shall I ever know what he thinks, what he likes, what he loves?" She had indeed no part of his existence—he lived as though she were not. He had fulfilled his part of the contract by giving her his name, his rank, his position. That a living, beating human heart might long for more than that did not occur to him.

He never thought of her as his wife; the chances were that, if any one had asked him suddenly if he was married, he would have said "No." He had paid the forfeit of his folly by being in some measure compelled to burden himself with this young girl.

One evening he was rather startled by Hildred. There was a favorite singer at the opera, and they went to hear her. She was very fair, and the gentlemen were busily engaged in discussing her. With Lord and Lady Caraven was a Frenchman, the Comte de Quesne, a great admirer of fair women. The conversation, kept up chiefly between the two gentlemen, was about the charming actress.

"She is of the real English type," said the comte, "and the English ladies are so fair—they are adorable!"

"I think myself," remarked the earl, "that a fair-haired English girl is certainly the loveliest object in creation."

The comte laughed. "You prefer the blondes to the brunettes, then?" he said.

"Certainly," replied Lord Caraven. "I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair."

He had entirely forgotten his young girl-wife with the dark eyes and the Spanish face. He would not have wantonly pained her, but he had forgotten her presence. She heard the words. At the time she made no remark, although they burned into her heart like fire.

The comte went home with them, and they were joined by another friend; but she found an opportunity of speaking to her husband when the other gentlemen were busy with ecarte, and Lord Caraven had withdrawn to look over some letters that had just arrived. She summoned up courage and went up to him.

"Lord Caraven," she said, "would you mind telling me one thing?"

He looked up in wonder—it was so seldom that she voluntarily addressed him. As he looked he was slightly impressed with her appearance; the tall, slender figure was draped in soft, shining silk, the girlish face was flushed with the effort of speaking to him, the dark eyes were bright and starlike, filled with unutterable thoughts. He could not help owing to himself that there was some beauty in the thick coils of dark hair, in the tall, slim, graceful figure, in the perfect grace and harmony. She was simply yet beautifully dressed; a pomegranate blossom lay in the coils of her hair.

"I want you to tell me one thing," she repeated. "If you admire fair girls with golden hair, why did you marry me, with hair and eyes so dark?"

She asked the question in such perfect good faith, in such earnest tones, with such sad, sweet eyes, that he was touched, not deeply, but as he would have been had some child come to him with trembling lips to tell a pitiful tale.

"Why," she pursued, "if that was the case, did you marry me?"

"You know why I married you," he replied, gravely—"why ask me the question?"

He saw a vivid color spread over her face, a bright light shine in her eyes. The simple girl thought and believed he meant that she knew he had married her because he loved her. Her heart gave a great, glad bound. He loved her! She would understand better in time; she would know why he seemed reserved, reticent, cold and indifferent.

"You know why I married you," the handsome earl had said; and the words filled her heart with a strange, sweet pain.

"I will try to remember," she said, gently.

Dull as was his ear, he heard new music in her voice.

"You will remember what?" he asked.

"I will remember why you have married me," she replied; and as she went away he wondered greatly.

"I should not think that she is likely to forget it," he said to himself. "Certainly women are puzzlers. She will try to remember why I married her—and the words seemed like melting music on her lips, a light that was like sunshine on flowers spread over her face! Why, I married her because her father sold her for a title, and she was willing to be sold!"

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF LAST SIX DAYS.

Chicago Gamblers Having a Hard Time of It—Galena River's Looks Are Ready for Use Again—A Chicago Woman's Rich Legacy.

Gamblers Plead Guilty.
Seventy saloonkeepers lined up before the bar of Judge Waterman's court at Chicago Thursday and answered the clerk's roll call of the indictments for keeping slot machines. Mandell, who has just died in New Bedford, Mass., leaving $1,000,000 to be divided equally among the four. Mrs. Bertha M. De Windt of Chicago is another daughter and legatee. Mr. Mandell's father, Thomas Mandell, was the executor of the will of Sylvia Ann Howland, an aunt of Hetty Green. Mrs. Howland died thirty years ago, leaving an estate worth $5,000,000, with Hetty as her sole heir at law. Secretary of State Rose has licensed the incorporation of the Geneva Lake, Sycamore & Southern Railway company, capital stock $150,000, with head offices at Sycamore, DeKalb county. The road is to run from the southern shore of Geneva lake, Walworth county, Wis., to Morris, Grundy county, Ill., through McHenry, DeKalb, Kendall, LaSalle and Grundy counties, and through the towns of Hebron, Woodstock, Union and Marengo.
Fred Reinbold, 14 years old, disappeared from his home in Rossville, Ill., Dec. 29, and is believed to be in Chicago. His father, Charles Reinbold, is instituting a search for him. The boy weighs about 140 pounds, is five feet five inches tall, and when last seen wore an old black velvet cap, black coat, brown vest and blue and white checked shirt.

GAINED FORTY-EIGHT POUNDS

"I had a strong appetite for liquor which was the beginning of the breaking down of my health. I was also a slave to tea and coffee drinking. I took the gold cure but it did not help me."
This is a portion of an interview clipped from the Daily Herald, of Clinton, Iowa. It might well be taken for the subject of a temperance lecture but that is not our object in publishing it. It is to show how a system, run down by drink and disease, may be restored. We cannot do better than quote further from the same:

"For years I was unable to do my work. I could not sleep nights or rest days on account of continuous pains in my stomach and back. I was unable to digest my food. Headaches and painful urination were frequent, and my heart's action became increased. I left my farm and retired to city life, for I was a confirmed invalid, and the doctor said I would never be well again. "Soon after I happened to use four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I retired to city life, since then have been free from all pain, headache and dyspepsia. I eat heartily and have no appetite for strong drink or tea or coffee, and feel twenty years younger."

"My weight has increased 48 pounds. I cannot say too much for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and claim that they have cured me."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this sixteenth day of February, 1897.
A. P. BARKER, Notary Public.
To people run down in health from whatever cause—drink or disease—the above interview will be of interest. The truth of it is undoubted as the statement is sworn to, and we reproduce the oath here. For any further facts concerning this medicine write to Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
The name and address of the subject of above interview is John B. Cook, of 208 South 5th Street, Lyon, Iowa.

Trouble at the Start.
"Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, "there is one thing that I wish to say to you frankly. So far as the affairs of the family are concerned, you are to have your own way in every particular. Then he stood back and waited for a smile of joy to brighten her face. But there was a frown. "Of course," she answered. "That's just like a man. If anything goes wrong you want to be sure of having somebody to blame for it."—Washington Star.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MOTHERS.
We are asserting in the courts our right to the exclusive use of the word "CASTORIA," and "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," as our Trade Mark. I, Dr. Samuel Pitcher, of Hyannis, Massachusetts, was the originator of "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," the name that has borne and does now bear the fac-simile signature of CHAS. H. FLETCHER on every wrapper. This is the original "PITCHER'S CASTORIA" which has been used in the homes of the mothers of America for over thirty years. Look carefully at the wrapper and see that it is "the kind you have always bought," and has the signature of CHAS. H. FLETCHER on the wrapper. No one has authority from me to use my name except The Centaur Company of which Chas. H. Fletcher is President.

The Burglar's Talent Came Handy.
The Victoria, Australia, penal department the other day found itself powerless to open this big safe which holds its books, accounts and coin. For once red tape did not carry the day. A quiet message was sent out to Penitentiary prison asking the governor of that hostilely to send down the best pick-lock he had in his charge, and the necessary article arrived and did his work with neatness and dispatch.

A Valuable Household Article.
A box of powdered borax should be kept in every household, its uses being numerous for almost every purpose. In the laundry it is the best agent for softening water. For the kitchen it is invaluable, and has many uses in the dining-room. For toilet purposes it is excellent, and its medicinal qualities are unsurpassed. Its convenience for use and its low price places borax within the reach of all housekeepers.

On the March to the Sea.
While Sherman was "out in the air" between Atlanta and the sea rations sometimes got a little short, but the men were good natured about it. One day an officer found a soldier eating a persimmon that he had picked up, and cried out to him: "Don't eat that; it's not good for you!" "I'm not eatin' it because it's good," was the reply. "I'm tryin' to pucker up my stomach so as to fit the size of the rations Uncle Billy Sherman's a-givin' us."

MEN CALL WOMAN A MYSTERY.

So She is to Them—Not so to a Woman.

A Woman's Knowledge Saves Mrs. Ebbert From an Operation.

A woman understands women as a man never can hope to. For this reason Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., now known all over the English-speaking world, set to work to help her sex.

After long and patient investigation, Mrs. Pinkham confirmed her own conclusions, namely: that seven-eighths of the sufferings of women are due to disorders of the uterine system. Reasoning on this line, she saw that the only preventive of early breaking down, was a specific medicine which would act alone on the female organism.

This was why she prepared her excellent Vegetable Compound, which has been such a boon to thousands and thousands of women. If you have headaches chiefly at the top of the head, and are troubled by painful menstruation, dizziness, sleeplessness, backache, and that bearing-down feeling, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will tone up your whole system. Mrs. CHAS. D. EBBERT, 330 Wood St., Reading, Pa., testifies to the great power of the Compound.

"Mrs. Pinkham—I can say that your medicine has cured me of the pains and troubles which I had. My case was a very bad one, and puzzled the doctor. My womb had fallen and I had terrible pains in my back and hips. I could hardly walk. My husband went to our family doctor, and he prescribed medicine for me, but I found no relief, and grew worse instead of better. The doctor examined me and wanted to perform an operation, but my husband would not consent. Seeing the advertisement in the paper, I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken half of the second bottle, I felt like a new woman. In all I have taken four bottles of your medicine, and can say that I am entirely cured. I hope that every woman suffering as I did, will follow my advice and take your medicine at once."

The Reformers.

What is the matter with our friends the reformers? What is the reason they are such scolds and in general so sour faced, ill favored and unlovable? Reform ought to make them in their own persons the perfect specimens of humanity that they declare the human race will be when it adopts their respective systems. Here a lady is going to redeem the world through her system of physical culture. Rightly followed out it will make the human race plump, fair and ever young, with never a pain, a cold or a fever, she proclaims. Yet she herself is thin, sallow, nervous, sickly and, saving her presence, the reverse of handsome. Here is a doctor who says if such a physical regimen is pursued a man will live a century and be the model of health. Yet this doctor himself is a bald headed, dingy looking old fellow who dies before he is 60 and looks to be 80.

The moral reformers are no better than the physical ones. The man who hales the seller of an alleged improper book or the exhibitor of an undraped statue before the law and has him heavily fined will himself evade in every possible way the payment of a grocery bill, and it is like pulling teeth for the tailor and the gas man to get money out of him. The man whose economic theory is to lift the masses out of poverty has a subscription taken to buy him food and coal.

Let each reformer go away by himself in the wilderness and try his system thoroughly on himself. When he or she, as the case may be, comes out perfectly healthy, wise, beautiful, rich and good as a result of the workings of his or her plan, then let it be loosed full tilt upon other people.

Electricity From Sun Rays.

According to the latest story, Nikola Tesla, who is always on the brink of doing some wonderful thing, has considered Edison's idea of getting electricity direct from coal and gone one better. Tesla, so the story goes, has found a way to utilize directly the light and heat of the sun for producing steam and thence electricity and power.

He proposes to erect on Long Island a plant for this purpose. In the center of a glass roofed room a huge cylinder will be fixed. A system of mirrors surrounding the cylinder will refract upon it the sun rays in sufficient intensity to heat a quantity of water within the cylinder, which is hollow. The water is chemically treated, so that it will boil and make steam very quickly. The steam will run a dynamo, which will send a current of electricity anywhere and everywhere it is wanted at a cost so trifling that fuel and light bills will henceforth be a mere bagatelle. At least that is what one infers from a Tesla interview in the New York World.

Tesla is reported as saying that it would not be surprising if in a very few years all the large cities were to be heated and lighted by electricity obtained from the sun, while machinery everywhere would be driven in the same way. Sufficient electricity is to be stored in power houses to last during hours when the sun does not shine. If there is anything in this invention, it will be able to change Alaska and the whole Klondike region into a tropical garden and melt down in less than no time the frozen earth that now holds the gold there fast in its clutches.

The last of the United States government 6 per cents mature in January, 1899, and some fall due in 1898. After that there will be no more government bonds bearing a rate of interest so high as 6 per cent. These issued during the past four years only bring at the rate of 3 per cent, taking into consideration the cost price. The bonds of New York, Massachusetts and of several other eastern states rate so high in the market that they only pay an average of 8 per cent. This country, in its older portions, is rapidly approximating the condition of European countries, where the field of investments is already so thoroughly covered that money brings only a low rate of interest or remains idle.

The person who whines and complains is always lazy and generally weakminded. Long life and prosperity to the individual with royal pluck and vim.

Tobolsk, Russia, claims to be the oldest inhabited place in the world.

EVER CHEW SUGAR CANE?

If Not, You Have Missed One of the Rare Delights of This Life.

On the sugar plantations the tall, thick stalks full of goodness are being pulled up by the roots and bundled homeward on stalwart heads and shoulders. Wagon loads are being carried to mill, flanked by the jugs and demijohns in which the sirup will be put after it has been cooked and a due measure of toll deducted. Many and many a dignified carryall or rockaway making its way along the roads has a tattering of stalks stoutly lashed together leaning upon the back seat and destined for some boy or girl whose home crop of cane has not turned out well. Even the sportsman who drives in his buggy to the appointed meeting place takes along a stalk or two of cane to top off his midday meal. The school children all have the purplish sticks. On every jaggling board in hall or piazza, every settle or rustic seat where the young people gather in the afternoon or evening, the cane tippie goes on. Those accustomed to chewing cane are fastidious as to the kind offered them.

"I say, Charley, when did you pull up that stalk? Last week? It isn't nice a bit," says a girl connoisseur, throwing the strip she has been working on as far out among the flower beds as she can.

"Now, Miss Fussy," protests Charley, who is stripping off another joint, "I pulled that stalk as I rode up from Durland's yesterday afternoon. It couldn't have gone off in flavor in that little time."

"Did it have the roots on all right, or did somebody cut them off when you brought it in the house?"

"It had the roots on until ten minutes ago. There was no chance for the goodness to escape."

"Well, then, I don't like the flavor of that patch on the road to Durland's. The cane down there in the hollow back of the stables is twice as good, and, besides, any cane to be first class ought to be eaten just the minute it's picked."

The sugar cane season is a leveler, inasmuch as it reminds women of their dependence upon men. The plantation girl can't cut and peel her canestalk any more than she can sharpen her pencil. If she gets hold of a fine looking stalk, she waits until Jack or John or Charley is on hand to peel it for her.

"Here, Miss Nancy, you chew partners with me," says some boyish sprite of mischief to the newcomer who does not know the ropes. Miss Nancy agreeing, the longest joint to be found is cut, peeled and split to convenient size. A pretended measurement of the girl's mouth having been taken in order that the slice may not be too wide, Miss Nancy begins chewing at one end and her partner at the other. When middle ground is reached, the two faces are, of course, close together, and Miss Nancy retires, scarlet, amid peals of laughter, declaring that she will "never, never, never speak to that odious boy again."

If anything can approach the watermelon in the darky's favor, sugar cane does. Very few of the negro small farmers can afford to raise the genuine cane, as the culture requires rich ground and the product is not regarded as a necessity. They all have little patches of millet, however, or of sorghum, and those who are employed, about the places where cane is grown are in clover. The pickaninnies do not wait for knives when they want to get at the sugary fluid of either sorghum or cane. They bite pieces out of the hard rind with their teeth and then pull the remainder off somehow and break the stalk off above a joint by hitting it on a hard surface. The pickaninnies demonstrate every day the uselessness of many articles that enlightened people think indispensable. A figure of bliss is a black youngster of 6 or 7 clinging to a stalk of cane for dear life and dancing up and down with satisfaction as the juice trickles down his throat. His elders, though less demonstrative, are by no means above showing their love of the sugary delicacy.

"I ain't plant no cane myself, see-in as it take up right smart of ground as would do to make cotton," says Uncle York, "but I does lub to see it growin off pretty in de summer time like dat dere capt'n raise. I likes to taste it too. Seem like when you git de newness of it in you it does do you a mighty sight of good."

American Academy of Letters.

Comparative anatomy is understood to be a study of the anatomy of animals as distinct from man. The Comparative Literary society of the United States, however, does not appear to be organized for the study of the literature of monkeys, horses and dogs and hyenas. It comprises some of the heavyweights among American writers, such as W. D. Howells, Colonel Higginson, Charles Dudley Warner and others.

So far as we can make out, this society is moving to establish in the United States an organization similar to the French Academy of Science and Literature, whose members are familiarly known as the "forty immortals." The name will probably be the National Academy of Letters. At first, of course, its founders will all elect themselves members, which is quite right. Then, by vote of those already in, men and women all over the country who have won high distinction in art, science, literature and learning or in the great field of thought in general or who have performed great service for humanity will be allowed to become members of this national academy.

We welcome it. Such a society is needed. It will be the meeting ground of heroes and conquerors in the world of thought throughout this great country. It will cause them to be honored of their fellowmen at home and abroad. We bespeak in advance a membership for Mark Twain, Thomas Edison and Marie Wilkins.

An Attack of the Entire Line.

A man who had read advertisements of a gas attachment guaranteed to save 50 per cent and make no dirt, went to the office of the gas company and bought the thing. The man who took the money said the article would go up the next day. The purchaser waited four days. Then he wrote something on a postal card and mailed it. Then he waited two days. After this he wrote a letter. No answer. Then he wrote another, and this is the way the envelope was addressed:

For the President,
Vice President,
Secretary,
Treasurer,
Bookkeeper,
Cashier or Clerk of the Gas Company.

The next day the article was delivered. An hour after an inspector called to see if the article had been properly placed. The same day another employee called to ask if the inspector had been there. The next day the company sent a letter asking if the work was satisfactory.—New York Sun.

Mr. Mead went to the city last week to purchase stock for his market. Mr. Mead is a most enterprising business man and is conducting the best market ever run in our village or vicinity. He not only carries a full line of choice meats but everything you can find in any first class city market.

The dancing school was very largely attended last Wednesday evening, by far the best attendance since its organization. The last half of the term begins next Wednesday, Jan. 26th. Tuition for the last six lessons $3.00 per couple.

A series of teachers' meetings will be held at the Wauconda school building, Saturday, Jan. 22nd. All teachers in this vicinity are requested to be present. A short program has been prepared for that day. This will be of interest to all teachers, as an entire new line of work will be taken up.

The illustrated lecture course which was held here this week has been exceptionally good. Tonight the subject is "Klondike" and we think it will pay all to attend, especially if they contemplate starting for that region in the spring. Don't let a good opportunity pass by unheeded. Admission, adults, 15 cents; children, 10 cents.

Quite a number from our village and vicinity attended the party held at the home of Patrick Courtney Friday evening of last week. Dancing was the main feature, and was heartily participated in by all present. At 12 o'clock a grand repast was served. A most pleasant time was spent by all present, and it was at an early hour the next day when the merry assemblage started for their several homes.

Don't forget the joint debate next Friday evening, January 28th—Wauconda vs. Rockefeller. The subject for discussion will be "Resolved, That Cuba should be annexed to the United States." Wauconda has the affirmative and Rockefeller the negative. Both sides have had considerable time for preparation, and we predict it will be the most exciting debate ever held in our village. If you want to hear a good discussion don't fail to attend.

Senator Lodge's bill for the purchase by the United States of the three Danish islands, St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, in the West Indies, should receive immediate favorable consideration. Denmark likes us and would rather sell them to us than to any other nation. She wants to sell them, for they are of no use to her, and she needs money. They would be of great use to us. St. Croix, the largest island, is very fertile and produces fine crops of sugar, while St. Thomas has a harbor unequalled anywhere. We need several such harbors in the West Indies and have none at all. Our commercial interests demand we should become the owner of the islands before any European power gets them. Denmark informs us plainly that two European nations are at this moment negotiating for them. These are believed to be England and Germany. It is plainly against the interests of the United States to let European powers get even an island more on this side of the world. Besides that, the inhabitants of the islands in question want to be annexed to us.

Future economic development in this country is drifting toward the Pacific coast. There will be undertaken henceforth the most important commercial enterprises. There will be obtained the great fortunes of the next few years. There will evolve the social ideas which are to modify our present civilization. The commerce of the Pacific coast will henceforth be greater than that of the eastern shores of our country. There the oldest and newest civilizations will mutually act and react on each other and the best in both will be preserved, while the defective will decay and drop away.

In one of the large eastern cities a number of benevolent ladies have become so philanthropic that they are giving "free musicales for working women," with tea and cakes thrown in. This is very fine, especially in connection with the announcement that these free musicales for working women are held at 2:20 o'clock in the afternoon, when no working woman could possibly leave her employment to attend them.

Next winter one of the pleasant diversions of the season will perhaps be the tour to the Klondike by reindeer sleigh. At least it will be a fresh sensation for those who have so much money they are obliged to sit up nights inventing new ways to spend it.

Why He Couldn't Have It.

A woman in the waiting room at Victoria railroad station the other day had a great deal of trouble with one of her children, a boy of 7 or 8, and a man who sat near her stood it as long as possible and then observed:

"Madam, that boy of yours needs the strong hand of a father."

"Yes, I know it," she replied, "but he can't have it. His father died when he was 6 years of age, and I've done my best to get another husband and failed. He can't have what I can't get."

Many people gather thorns by failing to heed the warning sent out by diseased kidneys—coated tongue—parched skin—feverishness—dull dragging pain—general feeling of weariness—is sure evidence of kidney and bladder trouble. Take Utah Kidney Beans at once—they will cure you—they have cured thousands of others. THE TURNERS OF PHILADELPHIA make Utah Kidney Beans.

E. B. Samuels, county clerk of Hickman County, Kentucky, testifies that he suffered for years with horrible pains in the back, kidneys and bladder—was treated by many physicians—they gave him no relief—he got so he could hardly stand alone. Utah Kidney Beans, he says, completely cured him. He gladly recommends them to all sufferers.

Introducing Himself.

An English traveler coming to Tabriz, a town near the boundary between Persia and Georgia, had great difficulty in finding lodging for the night. A German merchant of the place came to his help with happy result. After a good deal of doubt and delay on the subject, it was finally settled, toward evening, that we should take up our abode with a Nestorian Christian who had been employed as dragoman by several embassies going to Teheran, and who was said to speak English.

We were greatly amused by our future host's manner of introducing himself:

"You come with me, all right. You know me? I Lazarus. Find me John xi, in middle chapter; all missionary gentlemen know me, all right."—Youth's Companion.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

AGRICULTURAL BILL PASSED.

Little Debate Over the Measure—Senator Hoar Offered an Important Amendment to the Constitution—To Change Inauguration Day.

Thursday, Jan. 13.

In the house consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill was completed in committee of the whole, and then the house adjourned. During the debate some very caustic criticism of the proceedings in the senatorial election in Ohio from Mr. De Armond (Democrat, Mo.) called forth a warm defense of Senator Hanna from Mr. Mahany (Republican, N. Y.), who eulogized the Ohio senator as the man who had overthrown the bosses of the Republican party in 1896.

Among the measures reported in the senate was the pension appropriation bill. It was placed on the calendar. The immigration bill, the unfinished business, was then taken up, and Mr. Caffery made a strong speech in opposition to the measure.

Friday, Jan. 14.

The agricultural bill was passed in the house. Most of the day was consumed in a filibuster against a bill to pay the publishing house of the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Nashville, Tenn., $288,000 for the seizure and use of the property of that corporation during the war.

In the senate Mr. Hoar offered a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution extending the term of office of the President and senators to April 30, 1901, at noon, and making that day instead of March 4 the commencement and termination of official terms in future. It was referred to the committee on privileges and elections. Nineteen private pension bills were passed.

Monday, Jan. 17.

In the house the session was chiefly devoted to consideration of the army appropriation bill. Mr. McClellan of New York, a son of Gen. George B. McClellan, asserted that we were woefully unprepared for war should a crisis come. Mr. Lewis of Washington made a speech in denunciation of trusts, which, he declared, were threatening the liberties of the country.

In the senate Senator Wolcott delivered a speech explaining the work of the bimetallic commission. By a vote of 45 to 23 the immigration bill was passed. The rest of the day was devoted to consideration of bills on the calendar.

IOWA LEGISLATURE.

Measures of Importance Introduced at Des Moines.

Senator Wilson introduced a joint resolution Jan. 14 to have public school books printed and bound at the state penitentiaries. Representative Cook introduced the old Temple amendment. Representative Whelan presented a bill to submit a constitutional amendment to a vote of the people for the redistricting of the state so as to give every county a member of the House of Representatives, the total number not to exceed 115.

Bills were introduced Jan. 17 providing that the Iowa courts shall have jurisdiction to the middle of the Missouri river; to give all agricultural societies which held fairs during 1897 the $200 state bonus authorized by the code of 1873, but amended in the new code, and providing for honest primaries. It is proposed to punish frauds in the primaries by fines not to exceed $500 and by imprisonment from not less than two or more than six months in the county jail.

FOR A JOINT MANIFESTO.

Silver Men Arrange to Combine for United Action.

Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee, Chairman Butler of the Populist national committee and Chairman Towne of the silver Republican national committee will issue a joint manifesto the early part of next week with a view to securing common action by the three organizations in the political contest of 1898.

Governor of Iowa Inaugurated.

L. M. Shaw took the oath of office as governor of Iowa Jan. 13. His inaugural speech was devoted mainly to the necessity for currency reform. He said the country was committed to the gold standard by the result of the last presidential election, but many reforms were necessary. The governor urged all citizens of Iowa to assist him in promoting the welfare of the state.

Will Take a Referendum Vote.

The Populists will take a referendum vote of the rank and file of their party as to the date of holding a national convention for the nomination of presidential candidates—Monday, July 4, 1898; Friday, May 26, 1899, or Thursday, Feb. 22, 1900.

Free Coinage Bill Introduced.

Representative Bland of Missouri introduced a free coinage bill in the house. It makes gold and silver the standard and declares all rules discriminating against the legal tender of such coinage unlawful.

EMILE ZOLA, THE MAN OF THE HOUR IN EUROPE.

Emile Zola, the great novelist, who is now the foremost man in the eye of Europe, is not so because of his books or because at last he is about to become "an immortal," but because he may go to prison for his accusations against high officials of France in the matter of the Dreyfus-Esterhazy case. Zola some time ago took up the cudgels in support of the exiled army captain. He said he would make the Dreyfus case "his affair," and he has kept his word in a manner which promises all sorts of discussions in the gazettes and no end of gesticulations in the cafes. He has charged the minister of war and other government officials with perjury at the trial of Col.

Ferdinand Esterhazy, and the government has decided to hold him responsible for his charges, to prove them or to take the alternative of going to jail. M. Zola has expressed himself as being glad of an opportunity to bring forward his evidence against the army, and all Europe is expectant. The great master of modern "realism" in fiction is largely supported by public opinion. He finds his present quest as interesting a pursuit as he has found his quest for a seat in the academy, and it is believed that his trial—if it come—will prove as thrilling as many of his novels that deal with the pathogenic aspects of crime.—From Chicago Daily Tribune.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dairy Industry in Ireland.

According to the registrar general's report, says British Dairy World, the number of milch cows in Ireland in 1896 was 1,429,795, or 13,422 below the average of the preceding five years. From this it would seem as if foreign competition in butter was telling its tale. While it is a good thing to study dairy breeds, it is even better to study dairy cows. Success with the cow is the fundamental problem in dairying. The dairy industry in some districts has made about as much improvement as it can under present conditions, until the cow and her management is improved. It is universally recognized that many of our butter makers rank among the foremost of the world, but too many of our dairy herds, as a class, fall far behind. One of the first essentials is to be able to distinguish a good dairy cow from one that is not a dairy cow at all. It will be observed that there is a wider range of variation between the individual cows in any one breed than between the breed themselves; so the selection of a breed is only the initial step in dairying. Generally there is a wider relative variation between the cows of a single dairy herd than between the several dairy breeds.

A great many farmers say they have no time to read. This is just the reason, as a rule, why they do not succeed better. The man who does not read may be a hard worker, but he is apt to have a poor judgment. A look over the country will convince any man that the most successful farmers are invariably the most intelligent. At a meeting of the Edinburgh Association of Science and Arts, Mr. John Laing, F. I. C., read a paper on "Dairy Products, from the Producer to the Consumer, as We Get Them, and as We Ought to Get Them." In order to get the best results from the dairy, cows should be fed and kept under the best possible conditions. He was of opinion that grass grown on sewage lands was not a proper or clean feeding for milch cows. Milk obtained from cows fed exclusively on sewage grass was very much inferior, from every point of view, to the milk obtained from cows fed on natural sweet meadow grass. Milk from sewage grass gave way very readily, not so much to acidity, but to putridity, and the butter and cheese from such milk were very inferior in quality.

Using Paper Linings.

Information has reached us that some of the Western solicitors for New York houses have been telling the creamerymen that there was no necessity for using parchment paper lining in their tubs, and that goods packed in that way would not sell any more readily nor bring a higher price, says the New York Produce Review. We are surprised at the length of time it takes to get a good idea through some men's heads. Why anyone conversant with the New York trade, and who attempts to keep in touch with the changing needs of this market should try to convince a butter maker or a creamery secretary that paper lining is unnecessary and has no practical use is beyond our comprehension. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," runs an old saying, and the value of the paper lining has been determined by the severest kind of use for more than a year. It has grown in favor steadily and a very large number of creameries are using it all the time. Page after page has been written about its value as a protection to butter, the aid given in stripping, etc., and buyers at home and abroad have come to look upon the paper lining as essential to perfect packing. As soon as foreign buyers became interested in our butters they asked for tubs with the parchment lining, having learned to know the value of that class of goods in the English markets. Now comes an interesting demand from home buyers for that style of packing, and there are strong evidences to prove that within another year three-fourths of the trade will call for paper lined butter. There have been instances already this season where the butter brought a little more money because the tubs were lined with parchment, and most receivers can cite cases where the preference was given to that kind of packing over other consignments. It will only be a matter of time when creamerymen will be forced to use the paper lining to maintain the standing of their product, and the sooner this is recognized and the newer method adopted the better it will be for the trade.

The Water Problem.

Now, let us consider the question of water. It is a very important question and one which has not received much special attention, writes E. O. Roessle in Country Gentleman. It has something to do with egg production, more, in fact, than most of us imagine. There is no more serious mistake made in caring for a flock of layers than to give them ice cold water, at 7 o'clock in the morning, with their food. And yet how many thousand breeders are doing this every winter. If we give them a warm mash and sometimes put red pepper in it, we do it to warm them up—and then we give them ice cold water. Of course this is not consistent, and it is in my opinion injurious. If you have a flock of fifty dunghills running at large in your barnyard and roosting in your wagon shed, do they run at daylight to the horse trough for a drink of ice water? This is an instance because it is nature. No farmer would bother himself to water these hens in winter. When they want water, they know when and where to get it. If you watch such a flock carefully, you will find them drinking after the sun has been up several hours and after they have picked up a breakfast from the manure heaps and have actually done half a day's work. Is it necessary, therefore, for us, with our more valuable thoroughbreds, to put water before them, tempting them to injure the very quality we are striving to cultivate, namely, egg production? Some breeders give their flock hot water. This is a good idea, but difficult to follow if the flock is a very large one. With a few hundred head it would work perfectly, but with a thousand or more it would require too much labor. Winter layers, I consider, should not be watered until they are well toned up by exercise and food, or until the sun has warmed the coops. Ten o'clock is a good hour, and it could be combined with the grain feed at this time.

Hints on Mating.

The Scottish Fancier says: "The aim to be kept steadily in view is the points an exhibition bird requires to win. If you have a cock with too much white, match him to a hen darker than the color required, or vice versa. In breeding for color, always select birds a shade darker than the color you want to breed, as fowls are inclined to breed lighter, and you can never get depth of color unless you breed from birds very deep in color themselves." This wouldn't be very good advice for a Plymouth Rock breeder. A very good standard rule is—what the male bird is deficient in, see that the hen has extra developed. Cocks with coarse big combs should be mated to hens with small fine combs, or vice versa, and so on all through the points." This is very good advice, but it would be better not to use such cocks at all. If they must be used, then the advice should be followed. "In breeding Cochins look more to sound color and heavy feather than to size. Here again, breed from birds rather darker than the exhibition shade, and avoid all 'mealy' specimens and those wanting cushion." Not bad advice especially for breeders of Buffs, so far as color is concerned. Still size ought to be omitted. "In breeding Dark Brahmas, and you wish good pencilled pullets, select a hen with a well-pencilled breast and throat, and the color of the breast feathers the same as those on the back and wing. Avoid light-breasted hens as the pullets from such are generally far too light in color; but the cockerels from such a pen are often very good in color. Hens bare of leg feathers should be mated with a very heavy feathered hocked cock. Cocks light in leg feather generally throw a large percentage of birds with too little leg feather."—Exchange.

Poultry for Economy.

It seems hardly likely that any farmer readers of The Farmers' Review lack a good flock of poultry. There may be, however, readers living in the towns or suburbs of towns that have forgotten what a help the flock of poultry is to the housewife. A small number of hens may be kept at no expense. When one has not a flock of hens the waste from the kitchen is painfully apparent. Especially is this so if the family be large and more especially so if there be many children in it. Much food must be thrown away because it becomes old before it can be disposed of. When one has a flock of hens all of this surplus food may be turned into eggs. Fresh eggs should be used in large quantities. Next to milk they are the most convenient form of food and have nearly as many uses. It is a pity that Americans cannot be convinced of the necessity of husbanding their resources. It is said that the French nation could live on what the American nation throws away. We need to learn how to utilize the side products and instead of throwing them away turn them into things of comfort for the family.

If fowls have been rightly fed they are producing some eggs now, and will be hard at work by the last of January. If they have been made too fat, they will wait till the cold has taken some of the surplus fat before beginning operations.

There is no hen that can displace the Plymouth Rock on the market, at least for a time. There are others equally as good, no doubt, but they have not been placed before the people in enough numbers to get the people acquainted with them.

Grit must be sharp.

HARD FIGHT IS LOOKED FOR.

Coal Miners and Owners Line Up for Battle.

FIRST DAY OF CONFERENCE.

Problem of a Scale Is Greeted with a Wide Difference of Opinion—Miners Are Determined to Insist on an Increase in Wages.

Anti-conference declarations on the part of representatives of the mine operatives and some of the miners at the first day's conference at Chicago, Jan. 17, indicate that there is a wide difference of opinion, and that there will be a stubborn fight before a new interstate agreement is made. There is no question about the feeling among the men. They are solid for an increase in wages, and an increase based on a 75-cent rate in the Pittsburgh district.

PROPOSED NATIONAL PAPER CURRENCY.

Proposed currency, transformed by the owner into exchange payable in Boston.

Proposed currency, to remain blank while in general circulation.

Battle Creek, Mich., special: C. W. Post of this city has submitted to Secretary of the Treasury Gage a plan for fractional currency which he says will greatly aid business men in making remittances for small amounts.

He proposes that the government issue paper currency in the denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, $1, 2 and $5. The face of these notes are to have blank spaces for name and address, and also a space for a two-cent stamp. When it is desired to make a small remittance, the sender writes in the name and address, attaches a two-cent stamp to the note, and sends it on.

This act takes the note out of general circulation and makes it a piece of exchange, payable only to the payee named, and thus renders the remittance safe.

The government is to derive its revenue from the sale of the two-cent stamp, which must be attached to the note when it is made payable to a specific person or firm. The payee must receipt the note when presented for redemption, which would be possible at any postoffice. The matter will be presented to congress at the present session.

BIG STRIKE COMMENCED.

New England Cotton Operatives Resist Wage Reduction.

The crisis in the textile situation in New England has been reached. Monday there was inaugurated at New Bedford, Biddeford and Waterville what promises to be the greatest strike in the history of the cotton-cloth industry.

In New Bedford alone there is a strike of 8,593 operatives in twenty-one mills, owned by nine corporations and operating 773,800 spindles and 21,910 looms. In Biddeford the 2,710 operatives of two mills—the Pepperell and Lacopia—did not report for work, and in Waterville the 1,380 employees of the Lockwood mills refuse to continue under the general wage reduction promulgated by the Manufacturers' association.

A total of 1,000,000 spindles and 25,000 looms are stopped in resistance to the horizontal reduction of 11 1-9 per cent.

THE CANADIAN GOLD FIELDS.

They Do Not All Lie in the Yukon.

The excitement of the past few months has drawn a great many people to the Canadian Yukon in the search for gold, and has diverted the attention of many others. But in order to get there it is necessary that a man should be possessed of the best of health, strong powers of endurance and considerable means. He leaves his wife and his family for a considerable period, and the hardships he has to endure are all unknown to him.

Canada has other gold fields, though. They are the fields that produce her golden grain. This year the crop of Manitoba, lying directly north of North Dakota, yielded 21,000,000 bushels of wheat alone. The current price averages 76 cents, which, as a local paper puts it, "makes the product in gold this year, for wheat alone, equal to a value of $15,960,000." Twenty thousand farmers did this, or an average to each producer of about $798.

"But these same farmers are not living by wheat alone. This is only one source of revenue to them out of many. They have also beef, butter, potatoes, oats, barley and poultry to sell, and sometimes other things, so that it may be fairly estimated that their incomes will average at least $1,000 per farmer. Thus Manitoba's fields have yielded this year fully $20,000,000 in gold, divided among 20,000 actual producers, and a general population of about 200,000."

After counting the cost of stamp mills, expenses of men, etc., rich as is the Klondike, such vast wealth as is being taken out of the soil in raising wheat in this one province, cannot possibly be secured in any mining district. Of course mining development assists agricultural development, and that is why the Government of Canada feels so much assurance in predicting prosperity to all who take up farms in Canada. Western Canada today promises more than any other known field that is open to immigration. Farms of 160 acres, capable of producing the best No. 1 hard wheat, yielding thirty to forty bushels to the acre, are given away free. Railways, markets, schools, churches—all are convenient. The Canadian form of government is one of the most liberal known, and a hearty welcome is given to settlers of all nationalities. Already there are many settlers gone in from the states, and the reports from them are highly favorable. Those desiring information as to free homestead laws, low transportation rates, etc., will have pamphlets, etc., sent free on application to the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any agent of the Government.

Offended Chivalry.

A tramp accosted a woman, who was shoveling snow off her sidewalk the other day, for something to eat. "Shovel the snow off," she said, "and I'll give you a dinner. He drew himself up to his full height and replied: "Madam, do you think for a moment that I am so dead to the instincts of a gentleman as to enter into competition with a woman? Perish the thought!"

"When the times are hard and the people are not buying," replied Mr. Wanamaker, "is the very time that advertising should be the heaviest. You want to get the people in to see what you have to sell, and you must advertise to do that. When the times are good they come of their own accord. But I believe in advertising all the time. I have tried all kinds of advertising and have spent a great deal of money in posters and bills, but I gave that up long ago and think newspaper advertising by far the best."

MONKEYS HAVE PHTHISIS.

Not Due to Confinement, as Generally Supposed—Infected by Man.

Owing to the large mortality among monkeys due to phthisis, it is well known that, so far as lung troubles are concerned, these animals are much like human beings. It is the general belief, however, that the disease is contracted by confinement and unnatural conditions.

Dr. Hubbard Windsor Mitchell recently prepared a paper on phthisis as it affected the wild baboons of west Africa and some of our domestic animals. Of his African experience Dr. Mitchell says:

"Some years ago, while I was visiting west Africa, I spent considerable time on the Kongo river, and in the wild and unknown regions bordering the south bank of that great stream I saw large numbers of baboons.

"On several occasions, while we were hunting for deer and other game, a group of baboons would be seen hovering over one of their number who appeared to be unable to move. It was easy to approach him, as he was too feeble to escape. His companions scampered away and watched me at a short distance, with amusing curiosity. Inquiring of the natives what the trouble was, I found that the baboons were frequently taken ill with some chest trouble which was similar to that from which the natives themselves suffered. This I learned afterward was phthisis, which is not uncommon among the blacks in the lower Kongo district.

"In the wild and almost uninhabited country about 150 miles north of Cape Town, in South Africa, the common baboon is very numerous. An English officer who lived in that region told me the natives frequently contracted phthisis on their visits to Cape Town, and it seemed probable that the sputum of this people, being carelessly voided in their gardens and about their houses, was communicated to the baboons in some of their marauding expeditions. It was not an uncommon sight to see a sick baboon presenting the same symptoms as the natives when suffering from phthisis.

"I soon had an opportunity to verify this fact. One day, while hunting in the adjacent hills, I came across a baboon lying on the ground who was extremely emaciated and had a severe and violent cough. At that time the existence of the tubercle bacillus was not known, but I felt sure that the animal was suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis.

Dr. Mitchell adds some of the results of his investigations among our domestic animals and those used for food. He says:

"The common ox is frequently afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis; so much so, in fact, as to make necessary a rigid surveillance of our great abattoirs by competent and authorized inspectors. Undoubtedly these animals contract the disease from their long and close proximity to man.

"The dog and the cat are both extremely liable to pulmonary tuberculosis, and this would seem almost a foregone fact from their intimate association with man.

"The duck, the goose and the domestic fowl rarely, but occasionally, contract this disease. It is not improbable that other animals fall victims to tuberculosis, but they do not specially interest us. It is those animals with which we deal daily, and whose flesh and milk we consume as articles of food, that interest us most closely."

Old Mr. Bentley (reading the paper)—I see that in the recent storm at sea a ship loaded with passengers went ashore.

Old Mrs. Bentley (placidly)—How fortunate. I can imagine how glad the passengers were to get on dry land.—London Tit-Bits.

An Eye to the Future.

Peter Heise Deceased.

The deceased, Peter Heise, was born in York county, Ontario, Canada, Dec. 13, 1830, and died at his home in Barrington, Ill., Jan. 15, 1898, being 67 years and 28 days of age. He was married to Miss Christina Sneider in 1855—Jan. 23rd—and in their married life eight children were born, five sons and three daughters, of which two sons and one daughter have ceased their earthly labors and crossed over the river of death before their father.

Mr. Heise leaves in this world, who mourn sincerely and deeply for him, his widow Mrs. Christina Heise and three sons, all who live in this state. May Heise who resides in our village, Mrs. Iyerachi, whose home is in Manitoba, Canada, also many other relatives and a great host of friends, who have esteemed and loved him because of his blessed life.

But we cannot pass by his christian life, for during the greater part of his allotted time in this world, he was an active, earnest christian, and for more than 40 years has been a member of some christian church. At first he joined the Evangelical church. In 1875 he joined the Methodist church of Canada and about three years ago, when coming to our village, Mr. Heise joined the M. E. church and remained a faithful, active, earnest member of the same until his death, when God called to the membership of that church on high—"The Church Triumphant"—which is without spot and faultless before the throne of God.

Mr. Heise was not only a church member and a lover of its privileges, but he was also a member of the Sunday school and a member of the Epworth League. He always had a pleasant, helpful word for all, and especially encouragement for the young christian.

If we have lost a valuable member of society, then certainly heaven has gained one; if we mourn his absence here, many rejoice because of his presence yonder.

Ever since Mr. Heise came into our midst all of us have come to love him and his beloved family more and more. But we have hope; we have God's promise: we have God's love. Our Savior said: "Whosoever lieth and believeth in me shall never die," and "though he were dead, yet shall he live?"

Our brother has gone to his "long home."

Weep not for a brother deceased.
Our loss is his infinite gain;
A soul out of prison released,
And freed from his bodily chain;
With songs let us follow his flight,
And mount with his spirit above,
Escaped to the mansions of light,
And lodged in the Eden of love.

Our brother the haven hath gained,
Outflying the tempest and wind;
His rest he hath sooner obtained,
And left his companions behind,
Still tossed on a sea of distress,
Hard tolling to make the blest shore,
Where all is assurance and peace,
And sorrow and sin are no more.

There all the ship's company meet,
Who sailed with the Saviour beneath;
With shouting each other they greet,
And triumph o'er sorrow and death;
The voyage of life's at an end;
The mortal affliction is past;
The age that in heaven they spend,
Forever and ever shall last.

Rev. T. E. Ream, officiated at the funeral services, which were held at the M. E. church Monday afternoon.

Special Session of the Village Board.

The Board of Trustees of Barrington met in special session on Wednesday evening.

It was moved by Collen, seconded by Grunau, that a clause be inserted in the plans and specifications for laying the watermains and pipe that Barrington workmen be given preference, and that labor be paid 15 cents an hour. Carried.

A letter from Village Attorney Redmond was read, which informed the board that the judges of both counties had acted favorably on the appointment of Mr. Arnold as special assessment commissioner.

On motion the board adjourned.

Cynical Advice.

"Cultivate your mind, my boy," said the elderly gentleman who gives advice.

"But education doesn't always make people happy."

"No. But it enables a lot of them who would otherwise be known as 'cynics.'"—Washington Star.
