PALATINE LOCALS.

A. G. SMITH, LOCAL EDITOR

Masquerade on the 11th.
W. L. Hicks is visiting with his sister in Chicago.
Mrs. Minnie Miller is visiting with Mrs. French.
Matt and Cuph Richmond returned from St. Paul Sunday.
Ed. Lytle is working for G. W. Burkitt at Arlington Heights.
Pure cider vinegar 15 cents per gallon.
L. PECK.

A. G. Smith and Al. Hanns attended the Poultry and Pigeon show in Chicago Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lytle are visiting with Edwin Cook and wife at Libertyville.

There was no session of public school Tuesday afternoon, owing to the blizzard.

Elmer Robertson, Chas. Nichols and Ben Jacobs enjoyed a trip to Fox river Saturday.

Sleigh rides have been numerous this week, and young and old have had glorious times.

Some of the Athletic club boys enjoyed a sleigh ride and other amusements Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Smith has been confined to the house for the past two weeks, but has almost entirely recovered.

Walter H. Cobbin of Minneapolis spent Sunday in town, the guest of E. R. Converse and family.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society will meet next Friday evening with Misses Della and Myrtle Smith.

Several of the amateur photographers in town took some excellent snap shots of the effects of the storm Sunday morning.

Henry Bayer has been entertaining his brother this week, who is a tenor artist and lives at West Chicago.

We are going to give our readers a rare treat in the reading line some time in the near future. Announcement later.

Mrs. G. H. Arps went to Ohio last Thursday to visit her grandmother. Her mother is also visiting at the same place.

The Womans' Foreign Missionary Society will meet next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Ben Wilson.

Ray Smith was tendered a surprise party at the home of his parents last night and the young folks enjoyed their usual good time.

The dance given in Hartlett's hall by the Palatine Pleasure club Friday evening of last week was well attended.

We should have an ordinance compelling people to clean their sidewalks within a certain time after each snow storm.

The severe storm stopped the work on the stand pipe Tuesday, but work was resumed Wednesday. The structure is nearly two-thirds finished.

Fred Mosser, who has been working for the Great Northern Railroad company at St. Paul, has gone to Seattle, Wash., to work for the same company.

A. S. Olms went to Quincy Monday to attend the annual meeting of the Supreme Court of Honor, he being the delegate elected from the local lodge.

"Jack the Hugger" has been scaring the ladies of Arlington Heights lately. We can't say that our town has got that near to a metropolitan city.

A petition has been circulating among our patrons of the railroad. They are petitioning for better train services and one more train each way and better seats are asked for.

Frank Long, who is working for Louis Hamann, west of the village, had his right hand badly crushed in a feed cutter last week and had to have the little finger amputated.

Philip Matthei has finished his course of studies at the Chicago Business College and is assisting his father in the store until he can obtain a position in Chicago.

Frank Julian, who is practicing law in Seattle, Wash., writes his brother in this place that the wet, foggy weather in that state has disgusted him and that he will return to Illinois soon.

C. H. Patten was awarded the contract for laying the pipes and other work in connection with the water works system at Barrington last Wednesday. Mr. Patten's bid was over $400 less than the next lowest bidder.

FOR SALE.—The famous stallion, Mink, formerly owned by the late Dr. A. Owens; record 2:20, trial 2:20; can beat 2:30 now. Absolutely safe and fearless; a lady can drive him. Satisfactory reasons for selling. Professional horsemen need not apply. W. G. Davis, Austin Livery, Austin, Ill.

Mrs. Warren Taylor and Mrs. J. O. Butcher, the committee on the cook book for the Ladies' Aid Society, after paying for the printing of same have cleared $50. and have a number of copies left which are for sale.

The revival meeting in the Methodist church closed Wednesday evening. Rev. Pooley of Rockford preached Monday evening and the storm prevented a meeting Tuesday evening. The storm on Sunday prevented many from attending the morning services, but a good many enjoyed Rev. Brewster's evening discourse.

Our doctors have earned their wages this week. Dr. Moffat was compelled to stop at a farm house the first of the week, owing to the breaking of the pole of his cutter, and Dr. Schirring stayed in Plum Grove Tuesday night, being unable to get back to town.

The organization is being perfected of the Arlington club, which is to purchase the Good Templars hall and make a gymnasium and hall out of it, which will be for rent.—Cook County Herald. [Palatine sets many examples that our neighbors seem to think worth following.]

Ladies Night at the Palatine Athletic Club Rooms.

Thursday night was ladies' night at the Athletic club rooms and the event was one of the best of the season, being greatly enjoyed by all present. An elegant program was the feature of the evening. The program was as follows:

The Storm.

A storm of unusual fury visited this section of the state Saturday evening, but it was left for the storm on Tuesday to play havoc with travel, electric wires, etc. So badly was the telegraph line between here and Chicago crippled that the North-Western Railroad company was compelled to move the office of chief train dispatcher from Chicago to Barrington. Trains were delayed all the way from two hours to a day. About 18 inches of snow fell in this vicinity.

FRANK COLLIER WINS

Wins a Double Victory by Being Declared Sane and Securing a Divorce.

Attorney Frank Collier was granted a divorce from his wife, Fannie G. Collier, by Judge Freeman of Chicago yesterday. This decision virtually deprives the wife from receiving alimony and solicitor's fees, and gives the children in the custody of Mr. Collier. Mr. Collier has been pronounced sane. He will reside in Chicago and practice law.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

Producers of a Guaranteed Remedy Offer to Send Sample Bottles.

"Five Drops" is the name of a simple but effective remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, asthma, and kindred ailments. The trade mark, "5 Drops," is self-explanatory, as five drops is one dose. The manufacturers of "5 Drops" have thousands of letters from reliable people, who have been restored to health by the use of their remedy. Many of these letters have been published, and many more will be gladly sent upon application. Some weeks ago the producers of "5 Drops" offered to send a sample bottle, prepaid, for 25 cents. They know even a sample bottle will convince any one of its merits. They were so encouraged by the numerous responses to their first offer that they have decided to renew it for another 30 days. If you are a sufferer send this small amount, 25 cents, without fail today, to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., 167-169 Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill., and receive prepaid a sample bottle of "5 Drops."

Also, large bottle, 300 doses, for $1.00 and for the next thirty days, three bottles for $2.50.

To Date.

Men have earned full many a medal And had honors at them hurried, But the foot that spins the pedal Is the foot that rules the world.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.

Kemp's Balsam will stop the cough at once. Go to your druggist to-day and get a sample bottle free. Sold in 25 and 50 cent bottles. Go at once; delays are dangerous.

Whenever the corset comes to stay it always goes to waist.

ADVICE TO MINISTERS.

Given by a Minister.

Preachers who practise it will preach better.

No class of people is so liable to throat trouble as the great class who make up the Gospel ministry. The strain put upon the vocal organs by constant exercise; the sudden change from a heated building to the cool air when the vocal organs are in a state of complete relaxation; the fact that a minister feels impelled to use his voice when actors and lecturers would take the needed rest; these are among the reasons why "Clergymen's sore throat" is known as a special disease. The Rev. E. M. Brawley, D. D., District Secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, writes from Petersburg, Va., the account of an experience of his own which is profitable reading to those afflicted with Bronchial or other throat troubles. The substance of the letter is as follows:

J. C. AYER CO.,

PETERSBURG, VA.

DEAR SIR: Three months ago I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms. To ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Prevention is better than cure." A bottle of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral kept in the house, will effectually prevent the rooting of a cold and its consequent development into some dangerous malady. This remedy has no equal in Bronchial troubles. The most stubborn cases have yielded to its use. It is equally effective for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and every disease that attacks the throat or lungs. For years Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been put up only in large size bottles, at a price of $1.00. To meet an increasing demand for a smaller sized package the remedy can now be obtained in half-size bottles, at half price—50 cents. Send for Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral (free) and you will get a clearer idea of the great value of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Nothing came of the one solitary gleam of kindness. The next day Hildred did not see the earl at all; he went over to St. Cloud with some of his friends. The slight gleam of happiness died away, the old feeling of desolation came back to her. The Comtesse de Quesne called and pressed her to go out, but the girl was sick at heart. If such a strange life—married without love, without even friendship or liking—married, yet living with her husband as though she were the merest stranger—his wife, bearing his name, sharing his fate, yet knowing no more of him than did the lowest servant in the household; his thoughts, his mind, his plans, his desires, his interests, his amusements, his pleasures, were all strange to her. It was an unheard-of position, an unheard-of fate.

Three weeks had passed away, and Lord Caraven began to wonder how much longer he was to remain in Paris. If he had been free to follow his own inclinations, they would have led him to the gaming-tables at Baden-Baden. But, as he said impatiently, he had no idea of going there with a whole train of people to look after.

How long would she expect to remain in Paris? The honeymoon—that most absurd of all institutions—was supposed to last a month. It would be better perhaps to remain there until it was over, and then go to Ravensmere. He would be more comfortable there. The house was spacious, and it would be possible for him to move about without being haunted by the girlish, wistful face. So in Paris, until the honeymoon was over, he decided on remaining.

CHAPTER X.

LADY CARAVEN was willing to go to Ravensmere—willing to go anywhere that the earl suggested. She had grown quiescent. A new, strange feeling was stirring in her breast; it was love for her husband—love for the handsome, debonair earl.

It was a chilly evening at the end of October when the Earl and Countess of Caraven reached Ravensmere. No preparations had been made to receive and welcome them. There was no gathering of tenantry. The earl's tenants simply detested the sound of his name. They had been so heavily burdened, so taxed and tormented by the earl's confidential agent, Mr. Blantyre, that they had no welcome left for his master. They considered him an unjust landlord, and they did not scruple to say so. There were no glad shouts of welcome for him; even the curly-headed children had heard so often of the earl's folly and neglect that they had no cheer for him when his carriage drove through the streets of Court Raven. Nor was there any warm welcome from the servants. They were most of them new ones; as the old retainers had died off or gone away, the earl had never retained them. The house had become dilapidated; the servants were few, the stables empty.

It was all different now—John Blantyre had had carte blanche. The interior of the castle had been beautified, decorated, and refurnished; well-trained servants had been brought from London; the stables had been filled. There was a general air of prosperity about the place, so that the earl hardly knew it again.

Did Lord Caraven miss the welcome? Did he see that he was disliked by his tenants—that his servants seemed to have no interest in him? Did it strike him that a life of self-indulgence always brings its own reward? Lady Caraven gazed with wonder at the magnificent home which was to be hers. The first words she said to her husband were:

"I had no idea that Ravensmere was so large."

He looked half incredulously at her. "Did you not really feel interested enough in the place to ask about it?" he inquired.

"I was very much interested in it," she replied, quietly, "but I never thought of asking any questions."

"I should have fancied that you would know all about it," he said—the number of rooms and their contents. I am surprised that you do not."

She did not in the least understand the drift of his words. That he should ever fancy that she was mercenary, that she wanted the full value for all the money she had brought him, never occurred to her.

They dined together almost in silence. Lord Caraven did not tell his wife what a comfort he felt to see the family plate once more in use. Hildred was slightly overwhelmed by the magnificence of everything around. How little she dreamed that her fortune had preserved the grand old place from utter ruin—that but for her the massive plate, the beautiful pictures, even the old walls themselves, would have passed from the Caravens, and the family name would have been written in the dust?

Perhaps some such thought occurred to him as he looked at the sweet face before him; perhaps that thought made him feel a little more kindly toward Hildred.

After dinner was over, instead of lingering over his claret, he joined her in the drawing-room.

"I have been thinking," he began, "that you would like to see the house; some of the rooms are very handsome, some of the pictures very fine."

"I should be pleased," she said, gently.

"I have been thinking, too, that you ought to make your choice of rooms. My mother used a very beautiful suite in the western wing. You shall see them all and judge for yourself."

"I should not like them to be very far away from the rest of the household," she said.

"Do you believe in the Ravensmere ghosts?" he asked, laughingly.

"I have never heard of them. But in a large house like this I should not care to feel that I was quite alone."

"You shall choose for yourself," he said, briefly.

Perhaps the hour that followed was the happiest that Hildred had known since her marriage.

He talked to her, and showed her the various art treasures, the costly pictures, the statues, the ancient armor. She was pleased and bright and interested in all he said. He showed her the library, where the accumulated treasures of so many scholars lay. When she had seen and admired all, he said to her:

"If all these were on the verge of destruction, and one woman came forward to save it, what would you call her?"

"I should call her the good angel of the house," she replied, not having the least idea that he was referring to her. He bowed to her.

"That shall be my name for you," he said. "You shall be the good angel of the house."

She had chosen her rooms in the western wing—rooms that opened on SHOWED HER THE PICTURES. to a broad beautiful terrace—from the windows of which one saw pleasant glimpses of garden and distant landscape. The housekeeper, Mrs. Hampton, showed her over the whole suite. Lady Caraven preferred these.

"You will be lonely, my lady," she said; "most of the Ladies Caraven have preferred the eastern wing."

Hildred thought to herself that there had never been another Lady Caraven like her. She had been married, it seemed from the words her husband had just spoken—for her money, she was not there because she was beloved by the master of the house, but simply as an appendage of her money. It mattered but little what rooms she chose; she did not at present even feel so much at home as did the servants in the house.

"Your ladyship has decided, then, on this suite?" said the housekeeper.

"Yes," said the young countess; "I prefer them to any others. And I will remain here now while my boxes are unpacked. I will not go down again."

Mrs. Hampton thought her decision strange indeed; it was the young wife's first evening in her husband's home, yet she preferred remaining in her rooms while he was down-stairs.

"Shall I take that message to the earl?" she asked.

Lady Caraven looked up in some surprise.

"Oh, no!" she replied. "Lord Caraven will not expect me."

And the housekeeper, who was a shrewd woman in her way, thought it seemed a strange kind of marriage where husband and wife preferred solitude to each other's society.

CHAPTER XI.

W I have some visitors coming to-day," said the Earl of Caraven to his young wife. "The dinner will be an hour later, and rooms must be prepared. Sir Charles and Lady Courtenay live at some little distance—they will not arrive until late."

"Do you mean," she said, "that I am to arrange for your guests—for their wants and comfort?"

"What terribly straightforward questions you ask," he replied, laughing. "You are sole mistress of the house—you must give all orders in it."

"I have not yet learned to think of myself yet as mistress of this house," she rejoined, with proud composure.

"Then I must ask you to begin," he said. "You are indeed sole mistress of this house; every one in it is bound to obey you—whatever you direct is to be done."

"But," returned Hildred, "yesterday, when I went into the housekeeper's room, she did not seem inclined to submit to my authority at all. She said that her keys were mislaid when I wanted to look over the linen-press. I fancy that she thinks I am rather too young to hold much authority."

"I will soon settle that matter," said the earl.

He rang the bell, and in answer to his summons a servant came. He sent for the housekeeper, who looked slightly troubled at the unexpected call.

"Mrs. Hampton," said the earl, sternly, "I have sent for you to say that every order given by Lady Caraven is to be attended to instantly—that she is to be obeyed implicitly as I am obeyed myself—that the least show of disrespect or disobedience will be punished by immediate dismissal. You will see that my commands are carried out."

"I will do so, my lord."

"You will go for the future to Lady Caraven for all your orders—you will take them only from her."

"Thank you, my lord," said the housekeeper, retiring with a sense of relief.

Hildred turned to her husband.

"And I thank you, too," she said, calmly. "I should not have spoken but that I saw there was a disposition in the house to ignore my authority—I knew that you would not like that."

"Certainly not—you have done quite right," he told her—and a sudden sense of her cruel position came over him. Was it likely that the servants would show much respect to one who they could plainly see was an unloved wife?

He quitted the breakfast-room not quite satisfied with himself, and not satisfied with her.

"Marriage is a mistake at the best of times," he said, "but marriage for money is the greatest mistake of all."

Evening came and brought the expected guests—Sir Charles Courtenay, a young baronet who had but one idea, and that was love for his wife, Lady Alice Courtenay, who was pretty, lively and accomplished. Hildred liked her at once. Her face was sunny and fair, and laughing eyes and sweet lips made her a very attractive picture. Hildred looked at her with something like envy. She was charmingly dressed, and had a bright expression of countenance.

That evening when Lady Caraven was dressing for dinner, her faithful maid could hardly be satisfied; she brought out jewels, flowers, ornaments of all kinds.

"Do wear them, my lady," she said; "if you would but let me help you more in your toilets! Lady Courtenay is so beautifully dressed, do not let her have all the admiration."

The girl had grown so sorry for her young mistress that she sometimes ventured to speak familiarly to her. Hildred sat listlessly before the toilet-table; neither jewels, flowers, nor dresses had the least interest for her.

"I think it very probable that all the admiration will fall to her lot whether I take pains with my dress or not," she said, musingly.

"My lady," returned the girl, earnestly, "you do not know how beautiful you are—you do not indeed. If you but take some little interest—you have a lovely figure and beautiful hair—if you would but care a little more!"

Lady Caraven laughed good-naturedly, the girl's admiration was so sincere that she could not be angry.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Condensed Report of the Doings
in Senate and House.

M'KENNA WINS IN THE SENATE

His Nomination as Associate Justice of Supreme Court Confirmed—Urgent
Deficiency Bill Sent to Conference—
Some Amendments Added.

Thursday, Jan. 20.

In the house the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill was passed after a day of exciting debate on the Cuban question.

Mr. Teller's resolution that bonds be paid in silver as well as gold was taken up in the senate by a vote of 41 to 25, and, after debate, was made unfinished business. The resolution inquiring of the postmaster-general what action was necessary to maintain the excellence of the postal free delivery service was agreed to.

Friday, Jan. 21.

The house passed the bill to extend the public land laws of the United States to the Territory of Alaska and to grant a general railroad right of way through the territory. The urgent deficiency bill was sent to conference after the senate amendment striking from the bill the provision requiring the depositors of bullion at government assay offices to pay the cost of transportation to the mints was concurred in.

In the senate an agreement was reached for a vote on the Teller silver resolution next Thursday. The nomination of Joseph McKenna for associate justice of the United States supreme court was concurred in.

Monday, Jan. 24.

In the house a couple of hours were devoted to business relating to the District of Columbia and the remainder of the day was occupied with the Indian appropriation bill.

The proposed annexation of Hawaii was somewhat extensively reviewed by Mr. Morgan of Alabama. One of the features of the session was an elaborate speech by Mr. Turple of Indiana in support of the Teller resolution. The pension appropriation bill was debated for nearly three hours, but was not passed.

SEIZE A TRAIN OF CARS.

Indiana Strikers Sidetrack the East-Bound Express at Lebanon.

Lebanon, Ind., Jan. 26.—The striking employees of the Chicago and South-eastern Railway company seized the west-bound express here Monday night and sidetracked it. Forty through passengers were on the train, but the strikers found comfortable stopping places for them at the hotels and private residences.

Notice was served on the company last Saturday that unless the eight months' back pay was forthcoming Monday at noon no trains would be allowed to pass through Lebanon. The local yards are in complete control of the strikers, and no effort is being made to get out trains. The police force is entirely inadequate to cope with them, and has so notified the company's officials.

Victory for De Pau University.

Mr. Nadal of De Pau University took first honors in the Indiana State College oratorical contest. Mr. Reid of the University of Indiana was second, and Mr. Van Uys of Earlham was third.

Nine Killed in a Fight.

A desperate fight occurred near Mazatlan, Mexico, between about fifty charcoal burners and an equal number of ranchmen. Nine men were killed and many more badly wounded.

Has Evidence Against Lynchers.

It is alleged that the state of Indiana has evidence sufficient to convict at least fifty of the mob which lynched five alleged thieves near Versailles last September.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM.

From the Industrial News, Jackson, Mich.

The subject of this sketch is fifty-six years of age, and actively engaged in farming. When seventeen years old he hurt his shoulder and a few years after, commenced to have rheumatic pains in it. On taking a slight cold or the least strain, sometimes without any apparent cause whatever, the trouble would start and he would suffer the most excruciating pain.

He suffered for over thirty years, and the last decade has suffered so much that he was unable to do any work. To this the frequent occurrences of dizzy spells were added, making him almost a helpless invalid.

In All Sorts of Weather.

He tried the best physicians but without being benefited and he used several specific rheumatic cures, but was not helped. About one year and six months ago he read in this paper of a case somewhat similar to his which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and concluded to try this remedy.

After taking the first box he felt somewhat better, and after using three boxes, the pains entirely disappeared, the dizziness left him, and he has now for over a year been entirely free from all his former trouble and enjoys better health than he has had since his boyhood.

He is loud in his praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and will gladly corroborate the above statements. His post office address is Lorenzo Neeley, Horton, Jackson County, Michigan.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained in a condensed form in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. All druggists sell them.

These Newport People.

Newport is tickled to death to have Dr. Depew return there next season, and well it may be, for whatever New York society is, fashionably speaking, its brains are not too conspicuous. Last year the mental brilliancy of the cottagers was in eclipse, save on occasions when the only Chauncey appeared on the scene. It would seem, if rumor may be credited, that the "smartest" people were often the dullest.—Boston Herald.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

VERY MANY KNOW CURES....

BEWARE OF MORPHINE.

Mrs. Pinkham Asks Women to Seek Permanent
Cures and Not Mere Temporary Relief From Pain.

Special forms of suffering lead many a woman to acquire the morphine habit. One of these forms of suffering is a dull, persistent pain in the side, accompanied by heat and throbbing. There is disinclination to work, because work only increases the pain.

This is only one symptom of a chain of troubles; she has others she cannot bear to confide to her physician, for fear of an examination, the terror of all sensitive, modest women.

The physician, meantime, knows her condition, but cannot combat her shrinking terror. He yields to her supplication for something to relieve the pain. He gives her a few morphine tablets, with very grave caution as to their use. Foolish woman! She thinks morphine will help her right along; she becomes its slave!

A wise and a generous physician had such a case; he told his patient he could do nothing for her, as she was too nervous to undergo an examination. In despair, she went to visit a friend. She said to her, "Don't give yourself up; just go to the nearest druggist's and buy a bottle of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will build you up. You will begin to feel better with the first bottle." She did so, and after the fifth bottle her health was re-established. Here is her own letter about it:

"I was very miserable; was so weak that I could hardly get around the house, could not do any work without feeling tired out. My monthly periods had stopped and I was so tired and nervous all of the time. I was troubled very much with falling of the womb and bearing-down pains. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; I have taken five bottles, and think it is the best medicine I ever used. Now I can work, and feel like myself. I used to be troubled greatly with my head, but I have had no bad headaches or palpitation of the heart, womb trouble or bearing-down pains, since I commenced to take Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman. The use of one bottle will prove what it can do."—Mrs. LUCY PEASLEY, Derby Center, Vt.

The Barrington Review

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

M. T. LAMEY, Ed. and Pub.

Entered at the postoffice at Barrington, Ill., as second-class matter.

SATURDAY, JAN. 29, 1898.

It is claimed that the whistle of a locomotive can be heard several miles, the report of a musket and the bark of a dog 1,800 yards, the croak of a frog 900 yards, a cricket chirp 800 yards, a dinner bell two miles. We wonder if the person who made these discoveries ever ascertained the distance he might hear a call to get up in the morning?

The Chicago Eagle of the 22nd inst. contains the following: "Of the Chicago lawyers talked of for judge, we note the following: E. J. McAdams, B. S. Iles, Frank W. Young, A. J. Ryan, Henry M. Coburn, J. H. Going, B. F. Richolson, John C. King, E. T. Glennon, E. R. Bliss, S. P. Shope, L. Karcher, F. S. Baird, Frederick H. Wickett, M. A. LaBuy, N. M. Plofke, Samuel Darby, Henry D. Beam, D. L. Morrell, Chas. H. Crawford, William Prentiss, Chas. B. Paylick, E. F. Runyan, Wm. H. Tatge, Jas. McCartney, M. C. McIntosh, Kickham Scanlan, E. R. Woodie, B. J. Wertheimer, John S. Miller, John Mayo Palmer, Thomas Taylor, Jr., Wm. Fenimore Cooper, N. H. Fairbanks, John P. McGorty, R. H. White and Wm. Prentiss.

Novel Road Construction.

A novel system of road construction has been successfully resorted to in Warren county, Illinois. The ground was prepared for it by grading and being allowed to so remain for two months. It was treated to an occasional scraping, so that it would pack evenly, being thus rendered hard and even for the laying of a surface of brick, the chief constructive feature. The first thing was the setting of a curbing made of 2x6 planks seven feet apart held by oak stakes eighteen inches long and put down every four feet. Inside of this was put a five inch bed of sand, and a single course of No. 1 paving brick then put down, a fine roadbed being thus obtained. Outside of the curb two feet of crushed rock was laid, graded up to make an easy approach, this plan insuring a way of eleven feet in width, and as the earth on each side was graded and worked there was altogether a width of some forty feet, affording tracks on each side for use in dry weather. Such a brick road costs about 90 cents per running foot.

That Postal Deficit.

The large and growing deficit in the postoffice department tends to bring discredit upon the government operation of that enterprise and is wholly unnecessary. The loss is due principally to the abuses in connection with second-class matter. The policy was early adopted of carrying newspapers and magazines to regular subscribers at the rate of 1 cent a pound, which is so cheap as to cause a loss to the government. The object of this low rate was not to benefit the newspapers, but to aid in the spread of intelligence among the people. There seems to be no complaint against the continuance of this concession to regular publications with bona-fide subscribers. But of late years there have grown up very great abuses. Books, pamphlets and advertising matter by the ton are sent through the mails as second-class mail matter at the rate of 1 cent a pound. As it costs the government 8 cents a pound to carry mail, there is a loss of 7 cents a pound on every pound so carried. The great increase in the amount of this matter transmitted of late years accounts for the growing deficit. In 1888 the weight carried was in round numbers 143,000,000 pounds, in 1889 it was 161,000,000, in 1890 174,000,000, in 1891 197,000,000, in 1892 223,000,000, in 1893 256,000,000 pounds.

Every postmaster-general for the last ten years has recommended changes in the law that would remedy this abuse. At the last session of congress Chairman Loud of the postoffice committee secured the passage through the house of a bill designed to restrict the use of the second-class mail privilege by shutting out paper-covered books published as serials and advertising matter. This bill failed to receive consideration in the senate. Chairman Loud is again pressing his bill for passage. His efforts should be attended with success this time.

AYLESBURY PRISON.

It Is the Only One England Has For Women Convicts.

England has only one prison for female convicts. It is now situated in Aylesbury, which for many years was the general prison for Buckinghamshire, though previous to November, 1896, the female prison had been at Woking for 28 years.

The change to Aylesbury was necessitated by the requirements of the war department, which took over the buildings at Woking and converted them into barracks. Neither the convicts nor the officials were particularly pleased at the removal, for the contrast between the two places was marked.

The discipline for the women is not as severe as in the men's prisons. In the latter absolutely no conversation is permitted, but at Aylesbury well behaved women are allowed an hour for conversation each day. In modern prison discipline, punishment plays a small part; in the women's prison corporal punishment does not exist.

The great hold of the prison officials over prisoners is obtained by the mark system. A prisoner is as keen on marks as a high school girl. By marks she can earn a higher class in prison, as well as the remission of a third part of her sentence. Thus a three years' penal sentence may be worked out in two years. This is called "earning the ticket." For the remaining year the prisoner out on her ticket has only to report herself every month at Scotland Yard.

Prisoners are classed as probationers, class 3, class 2 and class 1. Probationers have nine months of solitary work in their cells; the different classes have associated labor for the main part. The rules vary for exercise—an hour daily, except for class 1, which has 1½ hours. The diet, too, is different according to class, class 1 being the best. In class 2 prisoners have tea in the afternoon, but the doctor permits almost all the women prisoners to have tea and the two ounces of extra bread given with it. The doctor has the right of ordering them to the infirmary, where the diet is often generous, including such delicacies as chicken, stew, rissoles and coffee.

Several minor industries are carried on at Aylesbury. In a large workroom 30 women are employed in making suits for naval scholars at Greenwich, the suit consisting of blue serge blouse with large sailor collar and trousers. Other prisoners make suits of navy serge of excellent quality for the women warders. Others again work at making strong bags of stiff canvas for the postoffice. In the laundry a considerable number of women are employed. The prisoners are anxious to have their work admired.

Other industries, such as knitting stockings, hand sewed "liberty" shirts (to be worn by men set at liberty) and other garments, are carried on by the women in their cells. Naturally they much prefer associated labor, for the proximity of fellow prisoners and the chance of a word to or from the matron about the work are blessings in prison life that are never despised. A small farm of two acres gives work to eight women. In many cases, open air work is more beneficial than any other, since it rebuilds the constitution and appears to work out a good deal of superfluous naughtiness.—New York Press.

RUNNING A FAST EXPRESS.

The Train Dispatcher Has More to Do With It Than the Engineer.

George Ethelbert Walsh contributes an article on "Running the Fast Express" to St. Nicholas. Mr. Walsh says:

The eyes of the engineer are on the clock and time table before him, and he keeps a sharp lookout ahead. For various reasons he may fall a few minutes behind hand at one point, but he manages to make up the loss at another. He has certain stops to make, and he makes all speed possible between them. But he is not master of the road. At any moment a danger signal along the line may confront him. He may be ordered to bring his train to a standstill at a small way station and there receive telegraphic orders to run on a siding. He asks no questions, but obeys orders. Five minutes later a "special" may rush past him, and then the signals are set again, warning the engineer of the express that he must make up for lost time.

To understand this delay and the sudden changes made in the time table it will be necessary to go back to the headquarters and to watch the general superintendent and the train dispatcher. Although many trains running on the line are hundreds of miles away, the exact position of every one every second in the hour is known and recorded. A telegraph operator is working industriously in the office of the train dispatcher, receiving and sending orders. The running orders of all the trains are directed from this office. Each engineer has orders to make a certain run according to the time table unless other orders from headquarters interfere.

If an accident happens on the road, the train dispatcher knows it almost as soon as the passengers. A breakdown of some local train on the main line may upset all the calculations of the day. Immediately the expresses running on that line must be stopped before a collision occurs. A snowstorm may blockade a train on the northern branch of the road, and thereby make necessary a change in the regular schedule.

A train from the west is half an hour behind perhaps and this interferes with the regular running of the other trains. Arrangements must be made to let trains pass without accident. The express trains nearly always have the right of way. A western express may be behind time and start out five minutes ahead of some special express. In this instance it must give the special the right of way, and it is forced upon some siding. The special express passes without losing a minute.

There are 50 trains coming and going, one behind time, another ahead, probably, and each crowding out another. The train dispatcher has to regulate this tangle and keep things running smoothly. Thus it is that the engineer of a flier may suddenly find himself side tracked.

Should the train dispatcher make a mistake, or fail to make arrangements for two fast moving trains, the block signal system would probably prevent an accident. The block towers are connected by telegraph lines and a bell code enables the men to communicate directly with each other. They can stop a train at any moment by means of their signals, independent of orders from headquarters. Thus the engineer depends entirely upon others to keep the track clear, and he merely runs his train as near schedule time as possible and keeps his iron steed in perfect condition.

Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fitch entertained about twenty of their friends at their home. Cribbage was the feature of the evening, which was greatly spiced by some of Mr. Fitch's war reminiscences and an elegant supper, which was served at 12 o'clock, together with other refreshments of an appetizing nature. The evening, on the whole, was spent in a most enjoyable manner and will long be remembered by all present as one of the most pleasant of events.

Snow is alright, but when it comes down too heavy Mr. Duer's says it prefers the old-time dirt roads. He made his trip to Barrington Tuesday but on his return, when he arrived at Lake Zurich, saw it would be foolishness for him to try and go further in such a storm, so stayed there Tuesday night, and when he started for Barrington the next morning it took four teams and seven shovellers 44 hours to make the trip. His return trip was somewhat easier and he arrived here about 3:30 p. m. with the two day's mail.

Henry Maiman, the well-known clothing man of Wauconda, met with a serious accident in a peculiar manner Sunday. While attending services at the Catholic church of that place he took a seat directly under a chandelier, which for some unexplained cause fell and struck Mr. Maiman on the head. The wounded man was at once taken to his home and medical aid summoned who dressed his wounds. At the present writing Mr. Maiman is able to be about again much to the joy of his many friends.

Miss Clara Cady was tendered a pleasant surprise party by a number of her friends Friday evening of last week. Social games and music made the time pass only too swiftly. At twelve o'clock an elegant luncheon was served. Among those present were: Messrs. Ed Smith, E. Rieke, H. Kirschner, W. Rieke, J. Rieke, J. Dworak, C. Peebles, E. Wessel and T. Gibson; Misses Luella Peters, Nora Rieke, Estella Kirschner, Sarah Gibson. Mary Thomas and Laura Boehmer.

HERE AND THERE.

Those who are following the Luetgert trial are content to affirm they never sausage a case.

It is claimed that out of the 4,000 shippers of milk to Chicago, 3,000 of them are enrolled on the membership books of the Milk Shippers' Union.

The Millburn Mutual Insurance Company adjusted the loss of $800 on the barn owned by W. E. Davis of Libertyville, which was burned near Fairfield recently.

Considerable complaints comes from farmers in the vicinity of Algonquin in regard to loss of milk shipped to Chicago. One man claims he now has $1,200 owing him for milk in Chicago.

Supervisor Fletcher has so many calls from people who want help from the county, that he has moved his office down stairs into his old coal office at the rear of the ground floor. People who are owing him on old bills can call in there now and pay up.—Highland Park News.

A request of Senator Cullom, rural free delivery of mail will be established around the towns of New Berlin and Island Cove in Sangamon county. If the experiment proves to be satisfactory in that locality it will probably be extended to embrace other parts of the state.

Manuell Eatinger of Volo and Miss Jane E. Dole were married at the home of the bride's parents, in Nunda township, at high noon on Wednesday of last week by Rev. J. R. Clark of McHenry. Several friends from Barrington witnessed the ceremony.

The new state senatorial apportionment places Kane county in the 14th district; Will and DuPage, 25th; DeKalb, Kendall and Grundy, 29th; Lake, McHenry and Boone, 8th; and the towns of Barrington, Schaumburg, Hanover and Palatine in the 7th.

The city of Belvidere will defend a suit for $10,000, brought by Mrs. Mary Crichton, who fell on a defective sidewalk. Her husband also sues for $2,000, for loss of her services. Mrs. Crichton is almost helpless, the bone of her knee having been thrown out of joint by the fall.

Thomas Edison, Jr., says he has discovered a method of harnessing the power of the ocean tides. If he follows this up with other discoveries after the manner of his distinguished father he will soon be able to answer that historic query: "What are the wild waves saying?"

It is thought that the building of the new electric line from Lake Geneva to Morris is likely to start a county seat war between DeKalb and Sycamore, as the new line would make DeKalb more accessible to the southern part of the county than Sycamore. Sycamore people want the line to pass through Courtland, about one mile east of DeKalb.

The Harvard Independent says: Messrs. Brownell and Shedd, of the Harvard electric light plant, have been negotiating during the past week with parties, preparatory to the sale of the plant. We understand that the bill of sale has already been drawn up, although the transfer has not been announced as yet, owing to certain complications. Many improvements have been made there recently, the basement has been sealed up and an office room has been partitioned off on the first floor.

Does farming pay? About six years ago a young man bought a farm near Sycamore for $60 an acre. He paid part cash and gave a mortgage on the farm for $5,000. Every year for five years thereafter he paid on the mortgage $1,000, in all $5,000, and supported his family—all of which he made out of the farm. Now he owns the farm and is free from debt. The man of whom the present owner purchased the farm, sold it and moved west to conduct a fruit ranch because he could not make a reasonable profit here. Does farming pay? It depends on the farmer.—Sycamore Republican.

"My daughter, when recovering from an attack of fever, was a great sufferer from pain in the back and hips," writes Loudon Grove, of Sardis, Ky. "After using quite a number of remedies without any benefit she tried one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and it has given entire relief." Chamberlain's Pain Balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. Sold by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

A Brittany Butter Farm.

One hears so much nowadays, writes a correspondent of the Globe (England) of the excellence of foreign butter, and of the inferiority of the home product, that it may perhaps be interesting to get an insight into the surroundings of one of our many competitors in the manufacture of this useful article. It is true that Brittany by no means stands first on the roll of foreign manufacture. So much so, in fact, that a great deal of its butter is sent to Denmark to be reshipped thence to England, and so come into the English market under the prestige which rightly attaches to the Danish product. This, however, is by the way. The fact remains that a large quantity of Breton butter goes direct to England, and is sold as such on its own merits. Those who use it are prepared to maintain its superiority over that made at home. Let us take a glance at the Breton farmer and his surroundings, and see if this be so. Take almost any high road in Brittany—very excellent they are, too—and you will soon arrive at a green lane leading out of it. A most picturesque lane it will be. Possibly it will lead between high banks, thickly studded with pollard oaks, beneath which the swine will be greedily munching acorns, and an old woman in a white cap and a blue dress will be herding a solitary cow, or a flock of geese, or a mixed crew consisting of a cow, a sheep, and a couple of geese, and, as a matter of course, she will be knitting busily. Or it may lead down an avenue of chestnuts, whose fruit is common property, and you will see two or three women, and twice as many children, stamping the nuts out of their prickly covering with their wooden sabots. The chestnuts form a valuable addition to the peasants' homely fare of bouillon, black bread, and the inferior potatoes. The best are given to the pigs of the family—the pigs, to wit. This plain fare is washed down with copious draughts of cider, tea and coffee, being luxuries which smack too much of extravagance to the thrift-loving peasant. It is not too much to say that saving is the one absorbing passion of the women, and only rivalled in the men by their love of strong drink. The lane will debouch into an open field, where the men will, supposing it to be October, be seen shaking down the fruit from the apple trees, and the shout which may possibly greet your arrival will be, not a tribute to you, but in honor of their having just finished a tree. On these occasions the cider mug goes round, as, indeed, it will on beginning the next. As there are many trees on every farm, and farms on every hand as well, a Bacchanalian festival appears to be in progress, what with the continual shouting and cheering (one farm answering another) and the state of drunkenness which prevails everywhere.

But let us enter the house itself, and see the actual surroundings in which the Brittany butter has its origin. Here you will find no cool, cleanly dairy; on the contrary, there is a mud floor of the dirtiest description, sometimes with puddles of water standing on it. You go into a room, which, from its table scattered with unwashed cups and platters, from its array of cupboard (sometimes of priceless oak), from its "close" beds which line the wall, is evidently the living and sleeping room of the family. Here, from an oak chest, you will see Madame, in the whitest of caps, in strange contrast to her surroundings, take several terra-cotta-colored earthenware bowls full of milk. These she will skim, and then she will pour the skim milk into a tub for the pigs. If you watch closely you will see a fair quantity of black dirt dribble out of the bowl with the last cupful of milk. She will then churn the cream in a churn shaped something like a bottle with a stick in it, which works up and down. But perhaps the most disgusting feature of the performance is that, instead of wetting her finger with water when she is making up the butter, she moistens them with her tongue. This is an eradicable item in Breton butter-making. People have tried in their own houses to make their "bonnes" use water, but unless the mistress actually stands over her servant the latter will at once return to the old familiar habit.

The butter, when made, is of good flavor and color, and is palpable enough to those who are unacquainted with its manufacture. Near Quimper there is a laiterie, or dairy, where everything is done on improved modern principles, and the proprietor asks and actually obtains three francs a pound for the article he produces. This, in a country where butter fetches from half-a-franc to one franc at the ordinary farms, speaks volumes for the estimation in which common cleanliness is held, and how extremely rare it is. The better class of residents in Brittany will not drink bought milk on account of the dirty habits of the peasants who provide it. When the sanitary arrangements on English farms, the cleanliness which prevails, and the inspection of dairies is taken into consideration, it seems strange that anyone can prefer using foreign butter to that made at home. For the consumer knows absolutely nothing, as a rule, of the conditions under which the foreign article is produced, whereas he can be tolerably sure that every possible precaution is taken in his own country to ensure cleanliness and the absence of contaminating atmosphere, to say nothing of the health of the cows themselves.

Swill-Fed Hogs Killed By Soap.

V. A. Moore, in Bulletin 141, Cornell Experiment Station: It is a common experience of those who are engaged in the investigation of animal diseases to occasionally find outbreaks of a peculiar nature among swill-fed hogs. By these are meant herds of greater or less size, usually kept near or within the outskirts of our villages, or small cities, and which are fed upon the kitchen refuse, often including dish water, collected from hotels, boarding houses and private dwellings. The cause of death in these outbreaks is, in this state, at least, usually attributed to hog cholera. The basis for this popular diagnosis seems to be in the similarity of certain of the symptoms manifested by these animals to those of hog cholera, such, for example, as diarrhoea and partial paralysis, and the fact that a majority of those attacked die. The course of the disease is irregular, deaths occurring in from a few hours to several days after the symptoms appear. During the past year I have had occasion to make investigations into the nature of several of these outbreaks of a supposedly infectious disease. In a few of these epizootics hog cholera or swine plague was easily demonstrated. In certain others, however, these or other infectious diseases could not be found. The animals were usually fed the kitchen slops collected from hotels and boarding houses. The tissue changes in the animals examined were atypical of any known disease, and notwithstanding the bacteriological examinations which were made, together with animal inoculations with pieces of the diseased organs, the cause of death remained undetermined. The post mortem examinations showed in nearly all of these animals enlarged and dark colored lymphatic glands, especially those of the mesentery. The blood vessels of the mesentery were very much distended with blood. The liver and kidneys were usually not affected, but occasionally these organs were involved. Where there had been marked nervous symptoms the brain was much congested. Occasionally the lungs contained areas of collapse. The intestines were, as a rule, pale, and the mucous membrane seemed to be abnormally shiny. The negative outcome of these investigations suggested that possibly our methods had been faulty or that some unknown conditions existed which had obscured the cause of death, and that after all the popular diagnosis of an infectious disease was right. Against this theory was the fact that the disease did not spread from the affected herds to others, although, as a rule, precautions were not taken to prevent its dissemination, and in some instances the neighboring herds were most favorably situated for contracting the disease if it had been contagious. In certain of the outbreaks the exceedingly filthy condition in which the pens and yards were kept suggested, in the absence of a knowledge of definite, specific agents, that the animals had died as a result of their unsanitary surroundings and unwholesome food, a hypothesis which in some instances is still entertained as being highly probable. However, we were still confronted with the problem that in many outbreaks neither a specific infectious disease could be found nor the exciting cause of death pointed out.

Although it was apparent that the cause of the deaths was to be found in the food, the feeders of this kind of swill failed to see why they should discontinue its use. Naturally they felt that if we could not find or demonstrate the presence of the destructive agent in the swill the cause of death must be something else, probably hog cholera, for thousands of hogs are annually raised upon this kind of food. Further, the plea that such garbage was not a suitable or even wholesome food for their animals availed nothing, for the reply was, that usually their pigs thrived upon it. Early in the summer, in conversation on this subject with Mr. W. F. Davey, an enterprising farmer living near Brewerton, N. Y., he related the circumstances concerning an outbreak of this kind in which he had traced the cause of the trouble to the soap used in washing dishes. The swill, including the dish water, was collected from three small hotels and fed to a herd of swine. In a short time the animals began to sicken, and many of them died. Upon inquiry it was found that in the hotels large quantities of powdered soap were used in washing the dishes. This was stopped, and no more animals died. Later in the season Dr. J. A. McCrank, of Plattsburg, told me of an outbreak of an apparently infectious disease among swine which had come under his observation and in which he could not make a positive diagnosis. In the investigation of its cause he found that the hogs were being fed the swill, including the dishwater, from a hotel. Upon inquiry he found that powdered soap was being used in large quantities. The swill from this place was stopped and the disease disappeared. In following up the line of inquiry which these experiences suggested, it was found that there is among the more enterprising farmers a quite general belief that these soaps, when given in considerable quantities, are injurious and even fatal to hogs. The consensus of opinion on this subject, together with the more definite observations of Mr. Davey and Dr. McCrank, appeared to be so conclusive that it seemed important to determine by careful experiment to what extent, if at all, powdered soaps can be considered as the cause of death in this class of outbreaks.

Roup.

I notice in the Stockman and Farmer a query in regard to the cause of roup and the way to cure the disease, etc., writes W. P. Perkins to National Stockman and Farmer. The writer has been actively connected with the poultry business for more than a decade, and he unhesitatingly says the best way to cure roup is to keep clear of the foul disorder. That is, prevention is practically the only satisfactory remedy. It is well enough to talk about making cures, but most of the so-called cures leave the birds all broken up constitutionally, and practically worthless. When I first began to keep fowls roup was a terrible trouble to me, but lately we do not have to worry much about the disorder; and this, I think, is the experience of the majority of poultry keepers. A beginner is almost sure to get a good taste of roup the first fall and winter in which he practices poultry culture. It is so easy to neglect closing doors and windows and setting broken panes of glass, which, if not done, means drafts of air upon the birds while at roost, one of the most prolific sources of roup in existence. Foul air is almost as bad as a draft. Have effective ventilation, but do not allow the air to blow upon the roosts. Feed wisely and be vigilant and thereby avoid roup.

Save the Feathers.

Poultry feathers should be kept for stuffing pillows, sofa cushions, and other home conveniences, even where it is not deemed worth while to sell them, says Colman's Rural World. Geese and duck feathers, being much more valuable than others, should always be preserved with care. Downy feathers of hens and turkeys serve a very good purpose and unless you wish to make dusters of tail and wing feathers, the soft, feathery portions of these may be stripped off the quill and added to the rest. Unless the flock is large, it will take some time to secure enough feathers to stuff even a cushion, and as they are gathered from time to time, they must be put into whole cotton bags, tied securely so that no moth millers can enter, and placed for a short time in a warm oven, to dry thoroughly. If hens are scalded before picking, the feathers can be dried in a tin pan, in a moderately warm stove oven. Remove all bits of skin, as they produce an unpleasant odor hard to get rid of. Feathers well cleaned answer very well for bolsters, chair and soft cushions.

Glorifying the Hen.

Galen Wilson, in "Farm and Fireside," requested an old, crippled soldier engaged in poultry raising, to give his views, and received the following: Eggs are always cash. They are ready for market the minute laid, and the sooner they are got to market the better. They require no cultivation, pruning or harvesting, but are at once in salable condition. With plenty of eggs on the farm there are a host of good things in the kitchen and money in the family purse. Gathering up eggs is like picking up dimes and dollars. Great is the hen that produces them. When everything is dull in winter the egg-basket has wonderfully helped out many a poor farmer. The crops may be poor, the provisions low, the family cow dry, with a long wait for the next growing season, but the hen comes up smiling, and is ready to get a pound of tea or a sack of flour. If treated well, she will respond as readily when the snow is on the ground as when the fields are green. She is a friend to the rich and poor alike.

Feeding for Eggs.—Here are a few more figures and they are from an Eastern man (Long Island), who lives where poultry can be kept for nothing, as it can very nearly be on the average grain farm in Dakota. He says: "From January 1 to January 1, I kept on an average of 175 hens; sold 3,212 dozen eggs and raised 340 chickens. Eggs sold at home for $574.44; the chickens were part sold and part kept on the place. While amount for poultry and eggs, $640.30, with 156 fine pullets for another year." This gentleman says that his "method of feeding is to have corn on hand, winter and summer." When cold he feeds other grain, with warm bran and meal pudding. He also feeds chopped clover and other hay. He adds: "I have tried this plan two winters and when my neighbors, who feed in the old way, were only getting two or three dozen eggs per week from 100 hens, my product was from forty to sixty dozen per week from 175."—Ex.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF LAST SIX DAYS.

Trouble in the Building and Loan Association of Dixon—Death of Mrs. Henry Allen Bell—Fulton County Grand Jury—Minor State Items.

Hyde Will Return.

Dixon.—A new turn was made last week in the affairs of the Dixon Building and Loan Association. Hyde, the missing secretary, is to come back, money having been sent him at Tacoma, Wash., for that purpose. He telegraphed one of his bondsmen that he had left Tacoma. No one so far has been able to straighten out the books of the association. Expert Dunlap of the auditor's office of Springfield has been here a week, working on the books. He stated Monday night that the shortage far exceeded the amount of Hyde's bond of $10,000, and that a shortage of $7,000 existed six months ago, when the books were last examined. There is a question as to what will be done with Hyde when he returns. No criminal action has as yet been taken. It is claimed on the street that he will be given a light sentence, to Joliet, and that Gov. Tanner will be asked to pardon him in a short time. Some of the shareholders are going so far as to say all arrangements have been made with that end in view.

Fulton County Jury.

Lewistown.—The grand jury of the Fulton county circuit court began its week's session here last Sunday. During the past week over 300 witnesses have been before that body to give testimony. Never before in the history has a grand jury conducted such a stirring investigation as this one. Whisky-selling drug stores, bootleggers, and gamblers, great and small, are the principal offenders that are being shaken up. It is alleged that indictments for gambling will be found against many persons in the cities of Canton and Lewistown who are occupying high positions. Rumors of this kind are floating around, and have caused a sensation among the sporting fraternity in the two cities. It will take the grand jury several days to examine the witnesses that have already been subpoenaed.

Claims to Property.

Carthage.—Edward M. Harrison, of Chicago, has brought suit against J. C. Knott and others of West Point, this county, to recover an estate to which he claims to be the legal heir. It is the estate of Richard Smith, who owned tracts of land in thirteen counties in Illinois, and large tracts in Tennessee, Arkansas and North Carolina. The town of West Point is situated on this tract of land in Hancock county, and legal investigation has proved that the present incumbents do not hold clear titles to their property, and, if the suit is successful, will lose all they have. A town meeting was held, and Attorneys A. W. O'Hara and M. P. Berry were employed to fight the case.

Queer Plea.

Decatur.—Roy Dupuy, the young Piatt county man who made a voluntary confession at the Pontiac reformatory, where he was doing time for burglary, that he had murdered W. B. Carlisle in Decatur in 1895, and was indicted there on his confession, now contends that he did not kill the stranger, and that he was not in Decatur at the time of the murder. He says that he made the confession so that he could have a trip on the train, and, for a time, at least, escape the hateful confinement in the reformatory.

Death of Mrs. Henry Allen Bell.

Springfield.—The wife of Henry Allen Bell, the author, died at the family residence Monday afternoon. Mrs. Bell had, as a result of consumption, been an invalid for a year. Her husband was her constant attendant, and for the last six months had not been absent from her bedside for more than three days. The funeral was a very large one. Mr. Bell has received many messages of condolence from friends in Illinois and elsewhere.

Trouble Ended.

Wenona.—The mining trouble was adjusted as expected yesterday by the miners deciding to employ City Attorney Ewalt to officiate as check-weighman. The whistle sounded for work as usual last night, and no further trouble is anticipated.

State Items.

Waukegan.—After four months of negotiations arrangements are practically completed whereby D. M. Ferry and S. J. Murphy, Detroit capitalists, advance $150,000 to clear off incumbrances which embarrass the North Chicago Land association. These are held by seven parties, from whom the company bought the land, and it has taken a long time to get them to settle at a discount. With this cleared up it is expected that the future of the factory town will be much improved and its growth facilitated by further investments.

WHERE HARD TIMES ARE NOT KNOWN.

Described by a St. Paul Paper as the New Star of Liberty.

A correspondent, in a communication to this paper, says during the past few months so much has been said and written of Western Canada, and the new provinces forming it, he has been led to give the subject some inquiry, and he has been shown letters written to the Canadian government from delegates sent out by friends to inspect the country.

One of these delegates who was sent to Western Canada says: "In undertaking to give a description I fear I shall not be able to give it justice, for I hardly know where to begin or when to end. For a plea for my judgment, I will assume, for an illustration, the experience of a man who went from place to place in search of a wife, and finding so many of good qualities and attractions, was unable to determine which to choose, so in looking for a home in Western Canada I like the country well, and two of my boys are going this fall (they have since gone, and each has a homestead), where I am satisfied they will do well. The lands which I have seen are far superior in every respect and beyond my expectations. Lakes and streams to be found in all districts abound with innumerable kinds of water fowl, while fish are very abundant. On all sides we see innumerable stacks of grain, proving beyond doubt the fertility of the soil. On either side of the track can be seen in addition to the grain herds of cattle, horses and flocks of sheep. I have traveled over a great portion of the Western states and I have seen nothing to compare with this country. One hundred and sixty acres of land are given free to actual settlers, and I saw cases where as high as $20 per acre had been cleared in one year. I do not wish to advise anyone, but as for myself I shall leave as soon as I can arrange my affairs." The agents of the Canadian Government are now at work organizing excursion parties, and the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, Canada, will be pleased to supply the information to those who are not within reach of an agent.

She Came to America to Study Farming.

Madame Bokaseff, a Russian lady who is at present in America studying farming and dairy business, and who is an expert in sunflower cultivation, says she keeps a farm for the special rearing of the sunflower in her native country, and that a relative of hers was the first to obtain oil from the seed. She is resolved, should she find in the state a tract with soil and climatic conditions favorable to the growth of the plant, to start the cultivation of the sunflower on an extensive scale, and also to erect mills for the extraction of the oil.—London Echo.

Give the Children a Drink

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee, but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant, but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1/4 as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

West Dundee promises to have a lively time at the village election this spring. Among some of the questions agitating the residents of that village are: "Saloons or no saloons," "Shall the corporation pay its debts or go broke?" "Shall we wander in darkness, or shall we have light?" "Shall we carry lanterns, have electric street lamps or pray for moonshine?" "Do we want a special assessment or do we not?" (There is not much debate on this latter question. The negative wins easy.) What will happen at the spring election?

H. K. BROCKWAY, Postmaster.

Wauconda to Have a Railroad.

The Wisconsin, Inland Lakes and Chicago Railway company, which introduced an ordinance in the Chicago council a week ago Monday evening, asking for permission to lay its tracks over a specified route into the city, and which request was granted, has in its general purpose a plan to connect Chicago and Milwaukee by electric railway. The road is planned between Chicago and Wilmot, with a branch from Des Plaines to Elgin. From Des Plaines the route extends to Wauconda and along the shores of Bangs lake, thence to Worcester lake, Fish lake, Song lake, Petit lake, Bluff lake, Lake Marie and Channel lake to Wilmot, Wis., two miles over the state line. From Wilmot there are two branches, one to Milwaukee and one to Madison and Watertown. Franchises have already been granted the company for its tracks through Park Ridge and Des Plaines. The company is capitalized for $10,000,000.

An Electric Line From Des Plaines To Lemont.

An electric line from Des Plaines to Lemont is to be built during the coming summer. Articles of incorporation for the company were filed with the secretary of state Wednesday under the name of the Chicago and Des Plaines Valley Electric Railway Company. The capital stock of the organization is $1,000,000.

The new line will be constructed along the west bank of the Des Plaines river. It will connect at the south end with the Archer avenue line of the Chicago City Railway Company, at the village of Lyons with the Ogden Street Railway Company, at Grossdale with the Suburban Electric Street Railway Company, at Maywood with the Cicero and Proviso Street Railway Company and at Norwood Park with the Chicago Electric and Transit Company. Other towns through which it will pass are Mount Forest, Summit, Riverside, Melrose Park and Franklin Park. Ordinances are pending in all these villages. The proposed line is to be forty miles long, and the motive power will be by means of the trolley. It will be single and double track. The life of the company has been placed at fifty years.

The incorporators and first board of directors are: Henry G. Foreman, Clayton F. Crafts and Charles D. Evans of Chicago, P. H. Gray and William M. Hulbert of Maywood, Henry G. Foreman and E. A. Cummings are at the head of the company and will probably be chosen for the principal offices. The office of the company is at 402 Equitable building.

Mothers whose children are troubled with bad colds, croup or whooping cough will do well to read what Dr. R. E. Robey, of Olney, Mo., says on this subject. He writes: "For years we have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and always keep it in the house. It is regarded in our family as a specific for all kinds of colds and coughs. The 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

There is roughly estimated to be as much Placer Gold in the Placer Gravels of North and South America as there is Gold now in use in the world—four thousand millions of dollars (4,000,000,000).

As fast as this Gold can be produced there is an instant and world-wide market for it. Unlike wheat, cotton or iron, the market for Gold has never been glutted.

The Sterling Placer Company

is now engaged in the manufacture and installation of Labor-saving Placer-working Machinery that will mark an era in Gold production. Its machines are worked by twelve men. Each machine does the work of 1500 men. They reduce the cost of placer-working to 10 cents per cubic yard. In 60-cent gravel, in which a machine is about to be set running, the Gold output will run $900 per day or $270,000 per year.

This Placer gravel is owned by the company. It owns eighty-seven million (87,000,000) cubic yards of Placer Gravel that averages 50 cents per cubic yard. Deduct 10 cents for working, and its net profits in sight are thirty-four millions eight hundred thousand dollars (34,800,000).

If the one machine is re-inforced by four more, this body of Placer gravel, owned clear and free of debt by this Company, will last over thirty-eight years. The profits can be easily calculated by anyone with a sharp pencil to be as great as calculated in the above tables.

The Sterling Placer Company has arrangements in force to acquire ownership of the plant where its machines are being built. This is near Chicago, and has a value of over $100,000.

This Company is free of bonded or mortgage debt.

It pays as it goes.

To avoid borrowing money it offers a limited amount of its Treasury Stock, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 cents per share. The total capitalization is absurdly small, only two and a half millions, in view of the magnitude of its properties. The Gold is as self-evident in its existence as trees in a pine forest.

The money will be used first to ship and put at work the machine now ready and to build more, after a few thousand dollars of current bills are taken care of.

The Sterling Placer Company is a stockholders' company, and will be run for their profit. It has no bonds nor bondholders.

We expect to make the men rich who join with us at this eleventh hour, as Rockefeller and Edison enriched their associates. The sale of stock will be discontinued when 100,000 shares are sold.

As showing the Gold value of our Placers, we will add that $750,000 was spent in a vain attempt to work a small portion of them by hydraulic methods. But a fresher carried away the dams in twenty-four hours.

As to the financial standing of the Treasurer, he refers to Dun and Bradstreet (see Mitts & Merrill, manufacturers of machinery, Saginaw, Mich.), to any bank in the United States and Canada, and to the Second National Bank, Saginaw, Mich., and the American Commercial and Savings Bank, Saginaw, Mich. Remittances for stock may be sent to the last named bank, or direct to the Treasurer.

All practical mining questions about the subject, full details and cuts of our machinery, the facts as to a crude machine on our models, but far less efficient, that now take out $500 daily, description and maps of our property FURNISHED FREE ON APPLICATION.

Chicago Office, 880 Old Colony Building, Chicago. Parties may here meet Mr. H. B. Quick, Chief Engineer of the Company, see samples of gold which Mr. Quick has personally taken out of our placers, and arrange for the inspection of our machinery at rest or in motion.

Mr. Quick will be remembered by many Chicagoans as the mechanical engineer who superintended the installation of the machinery in the Leiter Block occupied by Siegel, Cooper & Co. and who also installed the machinery in the power house of the Intramural Elevated Road inside the World's Fair Grounds at Chicago in 1893.
