A Missionary Medicine.

Cleanliness begins within. If a ma n isn' clean inside, he is far from Godliness. A constipated sinner is a stench in the nostrils of the Deity. A man whose food sours in his stomach, and whose liver is leaden, can't help looking at the world hatefully with jaundiced eye, and conjuring up evil thoughts in his tortured brain. Cleanliness of person begets cleanliness of thought.
Cascarets, candy cathartic is the missionary medicine which purifies men's bodies and minds. Pure, fragrant, palatable, mild and positive, they clean out the intestinal canal, stimulate the liver and strenghten the bowels. Then a man enjoyagain feeling of charity and brotherly love for his fellows and recommends others to take Cascarets and be as happy as he.

"Looking Indian."

"Why don't you look Indian for it?" a small boy asked recently, on finding his sister vainly searching for a missing trinket which had been dropped in the hall, and before the young ladies could think what this might mean the youngster had sperad himself full length upon the floor, as near to the dead level as possible. The missing article was thus made plainly visible. By putting the head to the ground or floor the smallest object between one's self and the horizon or the wall appears, while it escapes our notice while standing erect.

CHAPTER XXIX .- (Continued.) full of perplexity; she had gathered a crimson carnation, and was holding it between her slender fingers.

"I will tell you, Raoul. I asked my father if love were necessary for happiness, and he said 'No.' I believed him; hence my mistake."

"Your father deceived you." "He did deceive me." she replied.

He looked at the downcast face. "It is a sad story. Tell me, Hildred -why does your patience fail? I love Ulric-I love you; I can judge between you. Why does your patience fail?" "I do not wish to speak evil of my husband," she replied, slowly: "the very fact that he has injured me should make me generous to him—the very fact that I dislike him should compel me to speak well of him. I love a noble foe."

"If you were a foe at all, you would be a noble one," he said; "but you are not. You may speak frankly, because you are speaking to one who loves Ulric Caraven in spite of his faults. Tell me honestly all about your dislike."

She was silent for some minutes, and the crimson leaves of the clovecarnation fell one by one to the ground.

"I do not like speaking of it," she began. "You must see, Raoul, as well as I do-you must understand. How could any one help despising and disliking a man who lives for himself, who cares for nothing but his own pleasure, and leaves every duty neglected? How can I love a man who married me only for my money, despising me the while—who has not since marriage shown me the ordinary civility that a gentleman never fails to show to a lady? He is selfish, indolent—oh, Raoul, I do not like saying this, but if you saw his cruel neglect, his cruel oppression, if you knew how careless he is as to the claims of justice, you would be sorry for me!"

"I see," he replied, quietly. "Now tell me, Hildred-I know you will and Ohio Railroad which capitalists speak quite frankly-do you see one a fair and noble life. Could any woredeeming quality amid all your husband's faults?"

CHAPTER XXX. HE thought long before she answered him, and then she looked into his face.

"I am afraid-I do not remember one. Yes, there is one. I have never heard him speak falsely."

Sir Raoul's face

"Ulric was a truthful boy," he said. Do you know of anything else in his favor?"

She thought again.

"I think," she replied, even more slowly, "that he is tender-hearted. He is not cruel; he does not like to see people suffer; he is cruel only to me."

"True in word and tender of heartthese are two good qualities; we know that he has a handsome face, and easy grace of manner, a musical voice. You see I am trying to discover his good qualities. I will tell you something else. He is a spendthrift-I do not deny it. He may oppress the poor on his estate-that I am sure is done unwittingly; but he has never yet refused to help a comrade in distress. Years ago, when I was a hard-working soldier, with nothing to rely on but my pay, if I would have borrowed, he would have lent me half his fortune. He is open-handed."

"Yes," she replied. Sir Raoul smiled. "Listen again, Hildred. He has done all kinds of foolish, mad, senseless actions; but no one ever told of him that he had done a mean one."

"It was mean to demand rent from the poor widow whose husband was killed in his service."

"I am perfectly certain that John Blantyre has misled him," was the re-

"It was mean to marry me for my money," she said, with flushing face.

"Ah! there I must yield! It was mean -it was, in one sense, the worst action of his life," said Sir Raoul, "Let us make a resume, Hildred. He is true in word, tender of heart; he was never cruel; he is open-handed; he has committed but one mean action; he is handsome and accomplished, well fitted to win the heart of any woman. Tell me-do you think it quite impossible to love such a character?"

"I can hardly tell," she replied, slow-

"I think that Ulric Caraven has in him the elements of a noble character. She glanced at him, her beautiful face | Hildred. Give to a sculptor a block of shapeless marble, and what does he fashion from it?"

> "A beautiful statue," she replied. "True. Given a shapeless mass of qualities, good and bad intermixed, I say that a good woman from them can mold a beautiful character. Listen-I will tell you how."

> He had drawn nearer to her, and the leaves of the crimson carnation fell at his feet; the western wind seemed to pause and listen-it fell with a faint, subdued sigh.

"You may run away and leave your home, Hildred; but that will be a commonplace ending. Do that which is nobler, higher, better-resign yourself, submit to your fate and make the best of it. As a handsome and noble woman use your influence with your husband to rouse him from his Slough of Despond into a higher life."

She was looking at him in sheer won-

"How can I influence Lord Caraven?" she asked.

"You can do it by patience and perseverance. Say to yourself that the task of your life shall be to make him a good man. Instead of running away from it, devote yourself to it. There is much said of woman's mission-let that be yours, and surely there can be no higher or holier mission than to rouse an indolent man to a sense of his duty, a selfish man from his self-indulgence."

"But how could I do it, Racul?" she

"You could do it in some fashion. The well-being-nay, the very souls of men lie in women's hands. Here is a life-long task for you—a glorious mission, a noble work. Give your life to your husband-to the task of awakening him to a sense of his duties to the task of making him a good man and a useful member of society, a conscientious steward of great wealth, a just land-owner; teach him how to be kind and just and merciful, help him to lead man wish for a more glorious task than this?"

Some of the light that shone on his face was reflected on hers.

"It would be a noble task," she said, thoughtfully. "Could I accomplish it, Raoul?"

"With perseverance and self-control that would amount to heroism you might," he replied. "You must be the sculptor who, from a mass of qualities, good and bad intermixed, must try to produce a perfect character."

"But," she said, doubtfully, "he does not love me."

"That does not matter. I prophesy that he will love you in the end-that when you have roused his soul from

"It is possible, Raoul, but-"

"Nay, be brave. You must not even think of the word 'but.' You must be enthusiastic over it-nothing can be done without enthusiasm. You must give yourself up to it, as a missionary does to the conversion of the heathen; as a martyr does to his death. You must work for it, live for it, die for it. Have you the courage and the constancy for this, Hildred?"

The light was deepening on her face, the fire in her eyes. The passion of his words was beginning to tell upon

"I have both the courage and the constancy," she replied.

"Think of the difference in the ending," he said. "Imagine the earl on his deathbed, tortured by the ghosts the ghosts of duties left undone, ready to curse the young wife who, by flying from him and leaving him to his own devices, had hastened his ruin, body and soul-picture that. Then fancy to yourself the earl on his death-bed, blessing the dear wife, the noble woman who saved him from ruin, who woke his soul from its long sleep, who taught him how to live and to die. Could you hesitate for one moment between these two pictures?"

"No, not for one moment, Raoul, I do not hesitate—I will not hesitate. I will do my life's work."

"That is well said. You must resolve to overcome all difficulties-you must say to yourself from the beginning that nothing shall daunt you."

"I wish," she said, "that you would tell me what to do, first. I could go on if I only knew how to begin." He smiled gravely.

"Perhaps you would think my first lesson a very hard one," he said.

"I will do what you tell me, Raoul, let it be what it may."

"Then I shall suggest this. You wish to make a little advance—nothing very marked, but some trifling act of civility that will make amends, and show your desire to be what children call 'friends.' "

He did not know what an effort it cost her to say "Yes," but she did say it, and she meant it.

"Then this is what I suggest. It was about a spray of mignonette that you displeased Ulric last. Gather some beautiful sprays of it, the finest you can obtain, and take them to him. Say quite carelessly, 'You admire mignonette, so I have bronght you this."

"Aud suppose," said Hildred, "that he repays me in kind by throwing it away?"

"Never mind-courage and patience must be your watchwords. Ah, Hildred, after all, our likes and dislikes should have little to do with our duties! You will not be alone in your struggles; I shall watch over you, I shall help you, and sympathy is sweet."

She caught his hand and kissed it. He saw her face clear and a bright earnest light shine in her eyes.

CHAPTER XXXI.

HE walked slowly down the path, Sir Raoul by her side. She looked round on the four high ivied walls.

"I have always loved this little pleasaunce," she said. "I shall love it better than ever now. It will seem almost like a church to me.

"Why like a church?" he asked, with some amusement.

"Because one of the best sermons I have ever heard has been preached to me here," she replied. "I have learned a lesson here. I shall never see these high ivied walls or touch a crimson carnation without thinking of you, Raoul, and all that you have

Then he watched her as she went from one bed of mignonette to another, looking eagerly for the choicest sprays, holding them up to him with wistful, eager face and sweet, pathetic eves.

"Will this do, and this?" she asked as simply as a child. "Oh, Raoul, I hope he will not be angry-I hope he will be pleased! I shall tell you how I get on. I am nervous about

In another minute the beautiful face had disappeared, and Sir Raoul was left in the pleasaunce alone.

"A man might lay down his life for such a woman as that," he said, with what was almost a sigh.

Lord Caraven stood in the billiardroom at Ravensmere; he had been playing with one of his friends, who, having received a telegram, had gone to answer it. He stood alone, leaning carelessly against the open veranda, something more than his usual indifference darkening his face; he never liked interruption during a game.

"A most unpropitious moment." thought the young countess, as she caught sight of him; but, having given her word to Sir Raoul, she would have marched up to the mouth of a loaded cannon rather than have brok-

Looking up, the earl could not but confess that he had seldom seen a lovelier picture than his young wife at that moment presented, with a flush on her face, and her hands filled with sprays of fragrant mignonette.

She would not reveal her hesitation, but went straight to him, smiling so that he little guessed how her heart beat. He raised his eyebrows as she drew nearer to him. What was going to happen? Before he had time to speak his face was buried in a soft, dewy mass of fragrant mignonette.

"There!" said a laughing voice. "You said this morning that this was your favorite flower. I have been looking for the most fragrant sprays of it that I could find."

HAVE MEN TO SPARE.

The officers of the war department are much pleased at the promptness with which the governors of the various states and territories have responded to the call issued by President McKinley for 125,000 volunteers. Women are Urged to Prepare for this Wonderful Revolution in the Economy of Their Life Blood-Mrs. Watson Tells Now She Was He ped.

At no time is woman more liable to physical and mental dangers with hours of suffering than at the "Turn of Life."

The great want in woman's system is ability to properly adjust itself to the new conditions. The outlet, monthly, of blood is now being diminished and carried into the body for the supply food of its later years.

Daughters, you can now to some extent repay your mother's early care. She must be spared every possible exertion. You must help her bear her burdens and anxieties. This critical time safely over, she will return to renewed health and happiness.
That so many women fail to anticipate this change thus happily, is owing not merely to lack of care, but to ignorance. There is, however, no excu for ignorance when experienced advice can be yours free of all cost. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., she has helped great numbers of women successfully through the Change of Life, and she will help you.

& Hero of the Arctic.

In the latter part of 1897 the revenue cutter Bear started on her journey to relieve the icebound whalers at Point Barrow on the northwest coast of Alaska. The Bear went as far north as possible before the ice closed in on her and then returned and took refuge at Dutch harbor. At the farthest northern point reached by the Bear Lieutenant Jarvis left her, and with a relief party and provisions started to make the rest of the journey to Point Barrow. The distance was 1,300 miles over a wilderness of snow and ice cliffs. By this time he ought to be very near his journey's end with food for the whalers. There are five vessels and 300 men.

A more thrilling walk over icefields than even that of Lieutenant Jarvis was meantime being accomplished by anther American hero, who started at the other end of the line. Up at Point Barrow it became manifest last fall hat the whalers would starve if food id not reach them, and in any case ney would lose their ships every one soon as the ice broke in the spring. In this dangerous situation George F. Tilton, third officer of the Belvedere, one of the steam whalers, undertook aid carried out one of the most stupe idous journeys ever undertaken alone by man. Even Nansen had his friend with him! Tilton had nobody but one or two Indian guides a part of the way. He tracked it from Point Barrow to the mouth of the Mackenzie, thence through the winter night up that river and over the divide to the Yukon, thence up the Yu on by the gold trail to civilization, was nth and the telegraph. He arrived at Jeparture bay April 4.

1 e meaning between the lines of the join note to President McKinley from representatives of the six leading powers If Europe in Washington was that the powers thus indirectly made offer of their willingness to mediate between Spain and the United States if they were invited to do so. The presentation of an identical note to Spain at Madrid was the programme at that end of the line. Although the offer was not accepted by either nation in the interests of coming peace and fraternity among nations it was a good sign.

The loss in life and property in floods along the banks of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers since the settlement of those localities has been greater than that caused by the war itself. It is not often that levees as far north as Shawneetown Office of Treasurer of Commissioners break through in the Ohio river, but the recent flood shows the danger even there. When new towns are to be laid out along these rivers, it will be well sioners of highways of the town of to plan; at least the residence portion of them on high ground, if such can be found. If not, then that is no proper spot for a town site.

Prince Oscar, second son of the king of Sweden, is noted for piety and religious enthusiasm. He and his wife are famous evangelists in the Scandinavian countries, working together like a pair of veritable Moodys and converting hundreds from the error of their ways. The Prince of Wales has not much of anything to do at any time. We commend the example of Prince Oscar to him. Wales would make a thoroughly hearty looking evangelist, going about saving souls.

MINOR HAPPENINGS THROUGH-OUT THE STATE.

The War with Spain Has Stirred the Patriotism of the People Decision of Supreme Court in Chicago Tax Levy Cases General State Items.

Decision on Tax Levy. The Illinois supreme court has just handed down a decision reversing the decree of Judge Dunne, which granted an injunction restraining County Clerk Knopf from extending the 2-mill tax made by the south park board for 1897. The court does not pass on the validity of the act of the legislature under which the commissioners proceeded. In its finding the court argues that the constitutionality of the act authorizing the 2-mill tax levy was not before the tribunal, because of Judge Dunne's decision in refusing the south park commissioners' request to enter an appearance as defendants. The commissioners, and not Mr. Knopf, declares the tribunal, were the real parties at interest in the proceedings, as the county clerk's duties are confined to the extension of the taxes certified to him on the collection book and he did not have the authority to say whether the tax was valid or not. The decision, however, is a victory for the complainants. the First National bank and the Chicago Real Estate Board, in so far as they have defeated the 2-mill tax levled by the south park board for 1898,

Minonk, Ill.-The war excitement in Minonk has been at fever heat since word of the action of Spain was received. Every business house is decorated with bunting and flags, and the Minonk military band of forty pieces marched through the streets playing martial airs. Every bell in town began ringing at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, which, with the steam whistles and firing of anvils, brought a large crowd down town. Patriotic feeling runs high and hundreds of volunteers to fight Spain can be enrolled in a short time

Cannons Boom and Bands Play.

Alton: Since the news came that war with Spain is on patriotism has over-ridden every other consideration here. The city is decked in gala attire and guns are fired and bands playing everywhere. When the naval militia is called out it will be given the greatest demonstration on record. The Western Military academy adjourned classes and the cadets, in full uniform and equipment, paraded the streets of the city, firing the war salute on the public square. Several business houses have offered to pay salaries of men who enlist.

New Collseum Project. A successor to the Chicago Coliseum company is being formed, composed largely of West Chicago business men who are convinced that the Coliseum will never be rebuilt on the old site or on the lake front. Francis Hutchison, a retired contractor and builder, has purchased from the holders of the old base ball park at Throop, Loomis, Congress and Harrison streets a tract of land 340 by 600 feet. He has given his ideas to Louis H. Sullivan, the architect of the St. Louis Coliseum, and he is now preparing plans. The cost of the building will be $400,000. Ald. Duddleston, C. F. Patterson and Attorney William E. O'Neill are interested in the project.

Try to Rescue Prisoners.

Bridget and Anna Daly, who are under indictment on a charge of assaulting Policeman Peter B. Johnson, were lodged in jail at Chicago Thursday after an attempt to rescue them from Deputy Sheriffs Morrison, Grummett and Latas. Half a dozen young men, friends of the women, and their brother, Arthur Daly, who is also under indictment, closed in on the officers at Dearborn avenue and Michigan streets and blows were struck. Deputy Sheriff Latas came to the officers' assistance and Arthur Daly was also arrested.

Flags Are Flying.

Jacksonville: The city is full of war spirit and two companies are already about formed, one the Illinois National guards, which have been recruited up to the standard, while Captain Dalton, a former officer, has been requested to enlist a company for the proposed regiment of Colonel Barkley and will doubtless succeed. Flags are flying and all is excitement.

"The United States minister at Madrid was in turn notified by the Spanish minister for foreign affairs that the withdrawal of the Spanish representative from the United States had terminated diplomatic relations between the two countries, and that all official communications between their respective representatives ceased

'I recommend to your especial attention the note addressed to the United States minister at Madrid by the Spanish minister for foreign affairs on the 21st inst., whereby the foregoing notification was conveyed. It will be perceived therefrom that the government of Spain, having cognizance of the joint resolution of the United States congress, and in view of things which the President is thereby required and authorized to do, responds by treating the representative demands of this government as measures of hostility, following with that instant and complete severance of relations by its action, whereby the usage of nations accompanies an existent state of war between sovereign powers.

The position of Spain being thus made known and the demands of the United States being denied with a complete rupture of intercourse by the act of Spain, I have been constrained, in exercise of the power and authority conferred upon me by the joint resolution aforesaid, to proclaim, under date of April 22, 1898, a block-age of certain ports of the north coast of Cuba, lying between Cardenas and Bahia Honda and of the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba; and further in exercise of my constitutional powers and using the authority conferred upon me by the act of congress, approved April 22, 1898, to issue a proclamation, dated April 21, 1898, calling for volunteers in order to carry into effect the said resolution of April 20, 1898.

'Copies of these proclamations are hereto appended. "In view of the measures so taken, and with a view to the adoption of such other measures as may be necessary to enable me to carry out the expressed will of the congress of the United States in the premises, I now recommend to your honorable body the adoption of a joint resolution, declaring that a state of war exists between the United States of America and the Kingdom of Spain, and I urge speedy action thereon, to the end that the definition of the international status of the United States as a belligerent power may be man, and the assertion of all its rights and the maintenance of all its duties in the conduct of a public war WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

War Officially Begins.

War between the United States and Spain officially began Thursday, April 21. When is will end only the God of Nations | defeat from a foreign foe and still unlearned a lesson from it and the cause of prayers of nearly all the American people. Chickamauga.

Spain Takes Initiative.

The first official act of war was committed by Spain. Minister Woodford at Madrid was, without his own request, given his passports and told to get off Spanish soil. This, of course, was tantamount to a declaration of war. Our minister was not even allowed time to deliver the ultimatum of this government informing Spain to evacuate Cuba before noon April 23. The Spaniards had already received a copy of it from Polo y Bernabe, the Spanish minister at Washington. It was after sending this copy that Mr. Polo took leave of Washington, going to Toronto, Ont., where he will enjoy British protection until "the war is over."

The Second Act of War.

The second act of war was done by our own government. The Spaniards had purchased 1,200 mules in this country, for use in Cuba. These were being loaded onto the Catalina, a Spanish ship, at New Orleans. About 2 o'clock Thursday the Collector of Customs at that port officially informed the Master of the Catalina that the mules already aboard his boat should be at once put ashore. The Collector at once sought out the Spanish Consul, who protested, but cooled down when informed that the mules were under seizure of our government as contraband of war. The Catalina sailed for Cuba without the mules.

PRECEDENTS UPON BLOCKADES.

Discussion on Questions Involved in the Move on Havana

The proposition that Commodore Sampson should establish a peaceable blockade of Havana has given rise to much discussion of this curious semi-war demand to-night. Pacific blockages are peculiar institutions-so peculiar that most authorities on international law declare that they do not really exist, and maintain this in the face of numerous precedents to the contrary. The last instance in which one was enforced was only about a year ago, when the European powers pacifically, blockaded the islands of Crete. It was inaugurated March 20 by proclamations made by the six powers, which declared "ships of the six powers or neutral powers may enter into the ports occupied by the powers and land their merchandise, but only if it is not for the Greek troops or the interior of the islands. These ships may be visited by the ships of the international fleets."

The Blockade In Force.

By Saturday Capt. Sampson notified the war department that the blockade was in force from Cinfuegoes to Havana city. Refore Sunday seven Spanish merchantmen had been seized as contraband of war. Chief among these was the splendid steamer Pedro of Balboa valued at $400,000. The president at once issued notice of the blockade and all nations quickly promised to keep their merchant ships out of range of our ships under penalty of seizure as prizes. In the meantime the land forces continued to mobilize at Chickamauga Park, which has for the time being been named Camp Thomas in memory of Gen. George H. Thomas. His forces are being organized into an invading army to cooperate with the Cubans behind Havana.

About Privateering.

Unless sanctioned by a special act of congress no privateering will be issued. Spain will, however, issue letters of marque and reprisal to the pirate and tramp ships of all nations that wish to commit outrages on the high seas. This course, Spain says, will be adopted as a last resort only. Notwithstanding Spain's stand on this question she is receiving support from Britain, Italy, Germany and France. Immense loans are being ob-tained in London while the agents of British capital in America are spouting about British sympathy for us. The truth is that England is secretly doing all she can to aid Spain. She knows that it will be "her turn next."

The Declaration of War.

At 9 a.m. on Monday, April 24, the president called a special meeting of the cabinet to consider special message recommending the formal declaration of war. Congress also quickly passed revenue regulations for the purpose of raising funds to carry on the war. The heaviest tax falls on heer, whisky, teas and coffees. Bank checks, bonds and mortgage papers are taxed.

A Day's Record.

On Sunday night at the war and navy departments the following bulletins were posted as the events of the previous 24 hours: 1. Capture of American liner Paris ordered by Spanish cabinet. 2. Great Brit-ain and France formally announce neutrality. 3. Formal declaration of war to be passed by congress. 4. Spain's reply to ultimatum received by the president. 5. Decree from Madrid government announces rules for the war. 6. Spaniards reserve right to resort to privateers if need arises. 7. United States Asiatic squadron sails from Hong-Kong for Philippines, 8. First great naval battle may be fought in the far east. 9. Blockade of Cuba perfected and warships patrol coast. 10. All cables connecting Cuba with outside world to be cut. 11. The city is on the verge of a panic in anticipation of the bompardment which it expects. General Blanco inspected the fortifications of Morro. La Punta and Cabanas. Several thousand troops are waiting behind the sand batteries at Chorrera, where it is expected the American soldiers will make landing. 12. General Pando is expected in Havana to-morrow. He will be placed in charge of the Spanish army massed for the defense of Havana. 13. More troops are arriving from the interior of the island. 14. The rebels have destroyed a troop train ten miles from the city, and ten men were injured. The engineer and fireman were killed. 15. Sampson's fleet is keeping a sharp lookout for Spanish steamers on their way to Havana carrying coal, lumber, provisions, etc. Five captures have thus far been reported. 16. Mrs. Celia Wallace of Chicago gives her winter residence in Florida as a hospital for Illinois militia.

First Guns from Morro Castle.

On Board the Flagship New York, off Havana, April 23 (2 a. m.).-Morro castle opened fire on the fighting squadron of the United States at 11 o'clock last night. About ten shots were sent in the direc-tion of our ships, but not one of them took effect and no shots were fired in return. The Spaniards apparently had seen the lights of the New York while the latter was signaling to a ship of the squadron. The firing was reported by the offipoints; Asiminally in points of the deck. Ensign J. R. Edie, to Capder orders they will be paid $2 a day, in service $13 per month. The call for volunteers was filled before Sunday and the tain in somewhat excited tones whether wick, with the utmost coolness, "there is no necessity for stopping the signals. Go ahead." A little later Captain Chadwick was on the forward bridge, whence he watched the tongues of flame shoot out from Morro castle. He glanced in the direction of the Spanish fortifications for a few seconds and then turned his back on them in sflent contempt and went back to his bed, perfectly certain that the Span-iards could do no damage at five miles, which was then the approximate distance of the flagship from Morro castle. Another officer said: "The Spaniards probably became nervous and decided they could not sleep without some fire-works. They can't hit anything, anyway." No excitement was evident on board the flagship during the Morro cas-tle's futile attempts at gunnery. The dis-cipline was really splendid. In fact, at this hour many people on board the flagship do not know that Spain's first guns of war have been fired and that the New York was their target.

Developments of the Sixth Day.

On Monday, April 25, a United States warship severed the cables connecting Cuba with the rest of the world. The warships Columbia and Minneapolis left Hampton Roads to defend North Atlantic cities. News was received from Matanzas to the effect that while torpedo boat Foote was making soundings there she was fired upon from the old Spanish fort without effect. Governors of the states and territories ordered out the militia in response to instructions sent by Secretary of War Alger. The national guardsmen will be mobilized with all possible dispatch and mustered into the service of the United States. Orders were received everywhere with great enthusiasm. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt resigns and is appointed lieutenant colonel of a regiment of mounted riflemen by President McKinley. Formal declaration of war becomes a law of the nation. No vessels allowed to enter Hampton Roads or New York harbor between sunset and sunrise. The torpedo boat Porter, under the comand of Lieutenant Fremont, made a landing on the north coast of Cuba with a small force in search of information. He obtained the information and reported to Rear Admiral Sampson on board the flagship New York today. Spain addresse the powers, claiming that the United States is at fault. England gives notice to our ambassador that our torpedo boat in English waters must sail within fortyeight hours, Gen. Brooke placed in com-mand of land forces at Chickamauga Army being formed to invade Cuba. Secretary Sherman retires from the cabinet. Judge Day appointed secretary of state. John B. Moore, New York, assistant. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt retires to take comand of a cavalry regiment. W. J. Bryan offers to enlist. Fitzhugh Lee declines to meet Spaniard on field of honor. Spain officially declares war.

Military Guard for McKinley.

A military guard will be placed at the white house in a few days. This has been definitely settled, but none of the details of the arrangements are known, Colonel Bingham, superintendent of public build-ings and grounds, will have charge of the guard and such others as may be placed at the public buildings. Torpedoes and mines are being planted in the Potomac river below Washington. They are being put there as a safeguard in case of an omergency, and the exact location of the mines are being kept secret. The majority of the work is being done by night.
