G. H. ARPS.

Henry Harmening's and Chas. Seip's horses were among a lot of five which were flagged in the 2:50 class pacing race at Woodstock last Friday. A horse with a record of 2:12 had a "cinch" on the race.

Arlington Heights experienced a big fire Sunday afternoon. A planing mill, lumber yard, two houses and three barns were destroyed. The village has poor facilities for fighting fire, or the loss would have been considerably less.

Some of our citizens chipped together and bought fireworks Monday and by a little advertising brought out a large crowd to witness the display in the evening. The event was such a success that it was the expression of the leaders that Palatine will have a celebration each year hereafter.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet in the Methodist church parlors next Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of sewing "pyjamas" for the soldiers and sailors who are in Cuba. Every lady who wishes to do so will be welcome to come and assist in this patriotic work.

The Palatine Military band covered themselves with glory at Wauconda on the Fourth. Their playing was good and spirited. The boys may play at the Libertyville Fair one day, and have been asked their price to play at the Barrington Social and Athletic Club picnic at Lake Zurich next Saturday.

The Fourth of July Celebration at Barrington.

Barrington has not seen such a patriotic demonstration for years as took place here on the Fourth. Barrington Camp No. 809, M. W. A., under whose auspices the celebration and picnic was given, can well feel highly elated over the success of their undertaking. There were races, tug-of-war, prizes to the most popular young lady, man, child and woman. In the evening a grand display of fireworks was the attraction.

Altogether the day was one long to be remembered by all who had the privilege of celebrating in Barrington.

F. L. Waterman has just completed the school census for the village of Barrington, and finds that the population of the village is 1,216, while the school district numbers 1,333.

TAKE NOTICE—The Lord willing, there will be street preaching in Barrington on Sunday evenings during the warm season at about six o'clock, by the Free Methodist pastor, Rev. Peter Zeller of Cary and Algonquin. Everybody is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

The New Census.

As the time approaches for the census of 1900 it is a matter of public interest that the preliminary steps should be wisely taken to insure a better result than the discreditable work which made the statistical survey of 1890 so deficient. Census taking on a scale of adequate excellence in a country like ours belongs to the exact sciences. That it should ever be boggled and butchered is a political disgrace as well as an economic damage. General Francis Walker, as superintendent of the census of 1880, reared a noble monument to himself, and it was not his fault that the final publication was so belated. Mr. Porter, his successor, to be just, was quite aware of the defects of the 1890 census, but was terribly hampered by the conditions which took from him the full control of the appointment of his own force and limited his expenditure.

To permit the selection of a bureau of experts through ordinary political preferment is the folly of wisdom deliberately donning the fool's cap. It was this which tended to mar our last census. The lesson teaches us that in such work as belongs to the scientific departments of government (and surely the census shows this distinction with the naval observatory and the coast survey) fitness alone, to be determined when necessary by competitive examination, should be the inexorable rule. Think as we may about the application of civil service reform to the ordinary executive work of the bureaus, in labor so exceptionally valuable as that which ought to go to census taking, there should be no room left open for doubt. The scientific publications of our government have in the main extorted the admiration of the world. We cannot afford to have this record made ridiculous again for the sake of national pride. And surely for a more important reason, the economic interests of trade and industry, it is important to avoid another faux pas. Congress becomes a target for scoffers when it fails to take warning by experience.

Grade of Lieutenant General.

The theory of the restoration of the army rank of lieutenant general is fully accordant with the reorganization of the regular army. There is no logical reason for its not being an established grade attaching to the commanding general. In every other service than our own the etiquette of grade belonging to importance of command is followed with considerable strictness. Of course "the rose would smell as sweet by any other name," and the officer in supreme command of the army would perform his duties whether in the bureau or in the field with as much skill and zeal as major general as with the higher rank. But that is not the question at issue. Army efficiency, esprit de corps and professional pride are largely the outcome of exactness in the etiquette of service, and nations which pay the most intelligent attention to military matters study even the minor details of the matter with great care.

It is scarcely logical that the commanding general, who carries much larger responsibilities on his shoulders, should have the same rank and pay as a number of other officers. Exactness in definition of rank as between brigadier and major generals in assignment to subordinate command, even to that of a corps, is a matter of much less importance, but the man who occupies the apex of the military pyramid should be correspondingly recognized. The rank of lieutenant general, as the still higher grade of general, has in previous instances of bestowal been held as a special honor, both having been given to Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. But it is yet to be made a permanent rank in our service. It would certainly agree with the fitness of things in the larger military establishment which will characterize our future. The creation of this grade for the commanding general has so much to commend it that one hopes it will not be cumbered with absurd and nonessential provisions if the change is to be made.

"The difference between you and me," said a philosopher, "is that you say to masked hypocrites 'I know you,' while I leave with them the idea that they have deceived me."

Memory records services with a pencil; injuries with a graver.

How to Serve Chocolate Ice.
New York Evening Post: Iced chocolate is sometimes served at hot weather luncheons instead of iced tea or coffee. A formula for it is to make the cocoa in the proportion of a heaping teaspoonful to each half pint of boiling water. This is mixed and cooked in a double boiler for five minutes, and sweetened as it is taken from the fire. When it is cold, about a half cup of cream is added. The whole is then beaten with a Dover beater until very light. It should be served in tall thin glasses half filled with powdered ice.

Possible Reason.
"Considering all the talk here about Spain being tired of the war," remarked the man with the violent necktie, "it's strange she doesn't come forward with her overtures for peace." "Perhaps," suggested the man with the cinnamon whiskers, "Spain can't pay the orchestra."—Chicago Tribune.

Is Health Worth Ten Cents?
Man suffers many mysterious ailments from unknown causes, and nine-tenths of them have their origin in the digestive canal somewhere. It does any person good to clean out this canal occasionally in a rational way, provided it is not done in a violent manner. The proper cleansing and disinfecting preparation is Cascarets Candy Cathartic, which are very gentle, but at the same time thoroughly effective. A 10c box will purify the whole system and in most cases remove the cause of ill health. When "feeling bad" take Cascarets. They will do you good, and can do you no harm.

Hotter Than Cuba.
As far as calculation can decide, the temperature of comets is believed to be 2,000 times fiercer than that of red-hot iron.

The constant duty of every man to his fellows is to ascertain his own powers and special gifts, and to strengthen them for the help of others.

Don't think all medical students are snobs because they cut people dead.

Increase of Scientists.
Christian Scientists show a wonderful ability to increase in numbers and to obtain funds for the erection of new and sumptuous places of worship. Following close upon the general announcement of the fact that 1,350 new members joined the Scientist church in Boston a week ago is the news that the Second church, New York, is to erect a place of worship at a cost of $125,000. A remarkable fact about Christian Science church membership, however, is that many who join it continue as members of other churches. That is, they do not give up their old church membership for the new. The reason they do not is because they regard the Christian Science church in the light of a healer.

The Three Spanish C's.
The history of the three C's—Clericalism, Conservatism and Corruption, which, fostered by the blind false pride that holds honest labor in contempt as a badge of inferiority, and in current phrase causes Africa to begin at the Pyrenees, have brought about the present weakness and impending downfall of Spain—is ably traced and discussed by Henry C. Lea in his brilliant article on "The Decadence of Spain" in the July Atlantic.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.
Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets Candy Cathartic cleans your blood and keeps it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed. 10c, 25c, 50c.

Engaged.

"Very well, my dear; do just as you like; you know best, of course. I will say that you do not feel very well. Go to your room, by all means. I hope you will soon be better. Now try to cheer up; it will be all right. I will see to this difficulty with your husband for you."

She looked up at him proudly. "You must not interfere, papa. I shall never return to him now!" He looked pityingly at the white face.

"You appear very ill, Hildred. Is there nothing that I can do for you?" "Nothing," she replied, coldly. In her heart she felt bitterly angry with her father. She had trusted him; he had misled her. She did not offer to kiss him or to touch his hand, but went quietly out of the room and upstairs, leaving him with some very unpleasant thoughts.

It had not been an agreeable interruption to his breakfast, but he tried to think little of it. It was only a quarrel, after all, and his daughter had done nothing wrong. He should make it all right in a few seconds when he saw the earl. He wrote to him before he went to the city, telling him that his wife had reached home safely, but was looking very ill.

The rest of that day Hildred remained in her room, and on the morning following she did not come downstairs. It was afternoon when Arley Ransome, with a face as pale as death, asked for admittance to her apartment. She bade him enter, and he did so, with an open letter in his hand. It was her husband's writing, she perceived.

"You have deceived me," said her father, sternly; "you told me that you had hidden nothing from me. Your husband tells me that he has hidden you here because you shot Lady Hamilton on the evening of the thirty-first—shot her with intent to murder, and that you confessed your guilt."

Without a word or a murmur she looked at him, and then fell like one dead at his feet.

CHAPTER XLII.

THE young countess, as she stood behind the alder trees of Ravensmere, had heard the sound of the shot; she was too dazed with her own grief and misery to note the direction from which it had proceeded. She had fancied that something went whirling through the trees. That something was the ball that had been fired at Lady Hamilton, which pierced her shoulder and would have pierced her heart had it gone in the direction in which it had been aimed. For the moment Lord Caraven had been too bewildered to know what had happened; what he was saying in reality to his guest was that he liked his wife's maiden name better than any he had ever heard. Lady Hamilton, who never liked to hear any one praised but herself, asked at once what it was. He had answered, "Hildred Ransome;" and those were the words Lady Caraven had heard. They had been no sooner uttered than Lady Hamilton fell on his shoulder with a faint, low cry—a cry that seemed almost simultaneous with the firing of the shot.

The earl knew she had been shot, but by whom or why he could not guess. He laid her down for one minute while he looked around; then it was that he saw the white face of his wife. He jumped to the conclusion that she had done it; she, and no other, was there on the spot. She had even to himself avowed her jealousy. She had followed them, and in the madness of her folly had shot Lady Hamilton. No other idea occurred to him. He said to himself at once that it was so, and he implicitly believed it. He had rushed to her and told her that she was "a guilty woman." She had owned it. But they were speaking of different kinds of guilt. He meant the guilt of murder; she meant the guilt of being a spy upon him. No doubt of her guilt relieved his mind. Even in that first bewildered moment he had said to himself that she should never enter his house again, but that he would shield her because she bore his name. He had told her to remain where she was while he carried the senseless lady to the house.

There was terrible consternation. He had the presence of mind to throw the agitated inquirers off the scent. He said that the poachers were out—must be out, for a chance shot fired in the woods had wounded Lady Hamilton. Some of the gentlemen staying at the house went with the keepers to scour the woods. Dire were the threats of vengeance as to the rogue who had done the mischief. Meanwhile a groom was dispatched to Court Rayen to summon a doctor—the wounded lady had been taken to her room and laid on the bed. At first the earl was frightened lest the wound should prove mortal; but one of the ladies staying at the castle, who knew something of surgery, declared that the wound was not dangerous, and that the ball could soon be extracted. After hearing that the earl returned to his unhappy young wife. His first great fear that she had been guilty of murder had been removed; there remained the fear lest the wound should prove dangerous in the end. It was better, he thought, than she should go away at once.

He made two announcements to his household, which no one even thought of connecting. The first and most startling was, of course, that Lady Hamilton had been shot accidentally—a chance shot—though why a ball cartridge had been used was a puzzle—supposed to have been fired by poachers in the wood; the second was that Lady Caraven had been suddenly summoned to her father's home in London. No one dreamed of connecting the two announcements, and in the disordered state of the household it never occurred to any of the guests to question the servants as to when the countess had gone. She had been sent for after dinner, and the apologies that the earl made were deemed quite sufficient. Some of the guests indeed said that it was as well Lady Caraven was out of the way, as she would probably have been greatly distressed. To this day the earl is uncertain what in his panic he said or did. The only idea quite clear to him was that he must shield the woman who bore his name.

It was not very long before the doctor arrived, and then all alarm was at an end. He found the ball at once; it had not gone very deep into the shoulder. It was extracted and the wound bound up.

Then lovely Lady Hamilton raised her golden head and asked, languidly: "Shall I be very ill, doctor?" "No, I hope not. You will suffer a little pain—nothing much, I trust." "Shall I be ill for a long time?" she asked. "Ah, me, how little I dreamed that I was coming to Ravensmere to be shot!" "It is very unfortunate," said the doctor; "but I do not think you will be ill very long, Lady Hamilton. You must take heart." "To think that of all the people in the world they should select me! I suppose it was quite an accident, though. They were poachers, I am told. Now, doctor, I want to ask you a very serious question."

The doctor seemed to imply by his manner that he was all attention. "I shall be very happy to answer it, if it lies in my power," he said. "Tell me, shall I lose—that is—will my temporary seclusion interfere at all with what I may call my good looks?" He told himself that the amusement he felt must be carefully concealed. "I think," he replied, confidentially, "that I may reassure your ladyship. I do not see how it can possibly affect you in that fashion, and the needed rest will be most beneficial to you."

Then she was content to remain in her room, not suffering very much pain. The keepers had made strenuous efforts to find the poachers, but they had evidently made their escape, frightened doubtless at what they had done. No trace of them could be found.

It was with a sense of relief that Lord Caraven went to his room that night. He wanted to be alone to think over the events of the day. He found himself dwelling less on the ter-

Then she was content to remain in her room, not suffering very much pain. The keepers had made strenuous efforts to find the poachers, but they had evidently made their escape, frightened doubtless at what they had done. No trace of them could be found.

It was with a sense of relief that Lord Caraven went to his room that night. He wanted to be alone to think over the events of the day. He found himself dwelling less on the terrible fact that his wife had shot Lady Hamilton than on the wonderful fact that she loved him.

"I have gone mad—I love you—let me die!"

The words haunted him like the refrain of a song. He could not sleep. All night the pale, passionate, beautiful face was before him. The words rang in his ears as they had rung when he saw Hildred in the starlight, pleading, praying, accusing him, all in one vehement storm of words. So he would see her until he died. He felt as though she had been a stranger to him until then. The passionate love which had flamed into hot jealousy had been hidden under a cold, calm exterior. How she loved him. He had never seen any woman's face light up so splendidly. For the first time in his life he had owned to himself that by the side of her magnificent beauty blonde loveliness faded into nothing. He wondered that he had lived so long in the house with her, so long under one roof, yet he had not noticed that which every one else remarked.

He was struck most of all by the fact that she loved him. It did not matter about anything else. He had read her truth and love in her face. She loved him as no one else ever would or could; and it flashed across him that the wife he had neglected and despised was, notwithstanding what she had done, one of the noblest women in the world. If it had but been different: if he had but thought more of her before this happened! How she must have loved him to let herself drift into such a crime! Was there any one who had ever loved him half so well?

"I wish it had never happened," he said to himself. "She is a noble woman in spite of all, and I—well, I could have loved her, but now she must never return."

Yet it showed how strongly his feelings were awayed when he thought far less of wounded Lady Hamilton than of the fact that his wife loved him.

He could not sleep or rest. Never had his pillow seemed so hard, his thoughts so troublesome. The excitement had been too much for him. Wherever he went, whatever he did, his thoughts were with Hildred. Had she reached Arley Ransome's house? Had he acted wisely in letting her go alone? Would any clew to her guilt ever be found? These questions followed him, haunted him, pursued him. If he went to talk to any of his visitors, the conversation was sure to turn upon the poachers and Lady Hamilton.

Wearied of it all he sought refuge with Sir Raoul in his room; and the old soldier noted with concern how worn and haggard the handsome earl looked.

CHAPTER XLIII.

LET me stay with you, Raoul," said the earl on entering his room; "my guests tease me to death. One hears of nothing but Lady Hamilton and the poachers. I have had to tell the story over and over again, until I am fairly tired of it. Let me find rest here."

Sir Raoul looked at the earl's haggard face.

"Poor boy," he said; "it is rather hard for you, certainly. I promise you that I will mention neither Lady Hamilton nor the poachers."

"Poachers!" replied the earl, contemptuously. "Surely you—" He paused; he had been on the brink of betraying the secret that he had sworn never to reveal.

Sir Raoul laughed. "It seems to me," he said, "that you are just as bad as any one else. You cannot keep away from the topic."

"We will discuss the weather, the last new book, politics, the papers—anything," proposed the earl; and then he added: "That reminds me—some version of this story is sure, I suppose, to get abroad. The papers will make a sensational affair of it."

"I thought we were to avoid the topic," said Sir Raoul quietly. "Now you have touched upon it again."

"And to make matters worse," remarked the earl, with a gesture of weary despair, "here comes the doctor."

Dr. Randall entered the room unannounced and in great haste.

The earl sprang to his feet at the sound of his agitated voice, his face growing pale and anxious.

"Surely," he said, "Lady Hamilton is not worse?"

"No, she seems better. It is not about Lady Hamilton that I want you, Lord Caraven. I was sent for the moment I left here in behalf of the man who used to act as your steward—John Blantyre."

"John Blantyre," said the earl, vaguely. "Is he ill?" The subject did not interest him very much—indeed, he thought it trivial amidst the excitement of his own affairs.

"No, not ill in the common acceptance of the term," answered the doctor. "He is dying, I fear."

Hair Hints

Is your hair dry, harsh, and brittle? Is it fading or turning gray? Is it falling out? Does dandruff trouble you? For any or all of these conditions there is an infallible remedy in Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

"For years, I was troubled with dandruff, large flakes scaling and falling off, causing great annoyance. Sometimes the itching of the scalp was almost unendurable. Prescriptions from eminent physicians, put up in my own drug store were tried, but failed to afford relief. At length I used Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in one week I found it helped me. At the end of only two weeks, my head was entirely free from dandruff, and as clean as a child's. I heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor to all who are suffering from diseases of the scalp."—EDWIN NORDSTROM, Augusta, Minn.

SPANISH FLEET DESTROYED.

Blown Up Outside the Harbor of Santiago.

NOT ONE VESSEL ESCAPED.

Admiral Cervera and Thirteen Hundred of His Men Taken Prisoners—Only One Life Lost in the American Fleet During the Battle.

Admiral Sampson reports the destruction of the whole of Admiral Cervera's fleet. Not one escaped. It attempted to leave the harbor at 9:30 Sunday morning; at 2 the last ship, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore sixty miles off Santiago and had hauled down her colors. The Infanta Maria Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within twenty miles of Santiago. The Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the fort. Our loss was one killed and two wounded. The enemy's loss is probably several hundred from gun fire, explosion and drowning. About 1,300 prisoners were taken, including Admiral Cervera.

Ladrone Islands Are Ours.
The American troops in the transports City of Sydney, City of Pekin and Australia, conveyed by the Charleston, arrived at Cavite, having taken the Ladrone islands on the way and having left men there.

May Be Forerunner of Peace.
It is the belief at Washington that the destruction of the Spanish fleet will be the forerunner of peace, inasmuch as it will convince Spain and the civilized world that further continuance of the war is the sheerest folly.

London Newspaper Comments.
London newspapers all eulogize the bravery displayed on both sides during the war, and strongly counsel Spain to accept the inevitable, and sue for peace, which would entail no dishonor.

No Agreement Reached.
The Wolf News Bureau of Berlin has issued an official denial of the statement that Germany, France and Russia have reached an understanding relative to the Philippine islands.

Admiral Cervera's Explanation.
After the recent naval battle Admiral Cervera said: "I would rather lose my ship at sea, like a sailor, than in a harbor. It was the only thing left for me to do."

To Reinforce Shafter.
It is not yet known how many men all told will be sent to Shafter's support. It is believed he asked for 15,000 men. Probably twice that number will be sent.

Wait for Santiago's Fall.
The Spanish government has decided to await the fall of Santiago before adopting a definite policy in regard to the war and the internal crisis.

Gen. Pando Wounded.
One of the Spanish leaders, Gen. Pando, has been wounded, but his troops, numbering 6,000, succeeded in getting into the city of Santiago.

Madrid Press Is Bitter.
The Madrid newspapers are showing an increasing animus against the government. The comments are very bitter.

Rough Riders Declined.
Of the 568 rough riders who landed in Cuba, only 359 are fit for service, the rest having been killed or wounded.

Wait for American Troops.
Admiral Dewey will not permit the insurgents to enter Manila until the American troops arrive.

Miles Will Go to Cuba.
In spite of the fall of Santiago Gen. Nelson A. Miles will still go to Cuba as he had originally planned.

Troops in the Philippines.
The United States troops commenced to disembark at Cavite, in the Philippines, on July 1.

Companies Must Pay the Tax.
V. B. Scott, commissioner of internal revenue, interprets the revenue law in direct variance with the construction placed upon it by railroad and express companies, and says they must meet the expense of stamps themselves.

Fatality in a Steel Mill.
Three men were killed and a score injured, some perhaps fatally, by an explosion of molten slag at the rolling mills of the Illinois Steel company at South Chicago.

Will Appeal to Supreme Court.
The building and loan associations of Indiana refuse to open their books to the county assessor, and will appeal the case to the supreme court to make a test case of it.

Bicycle Records Lowered.
All world's records from one to fifteen miles inclusive were lowered by Eddie McDuffee of Boston. He made the fifteen miles in 26:30 3-5.

Go Back to Spain.
Admiral Camara's torpedo-boat destroyers have returned from Port Said to Spain.

Senate Refuses to Adjourn on the National Holiday—Hawaiian Annexation Question Demands the Attention of the Statesmen in the Upper House.

The house was not in session, adjournment having been taken until Tuesday.

Tuesday, July 5.
Representative Berry of Kentucky introduced in the house a joint resolution tendering the thanks of congress to Commodore Schley. The resolution was referred to the naval affairs committee.

Senator Hoar occupied most of the time of the senate with an able argument in favor of Hawaiian annexation. Mr. Lindsay of Kentucky opposed the resolutions, directing his attack principally against their constitutionality. Mr. White (Cal.) also opposed the resolutions.

TORNADO DOES DAMAGE.

Great Loss of Life Reported at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Hampton, N. H., July 6.—A tornado struck a section of Hampton Beach, causing immense damage to beach property and great loss of life. The tornado touched the beach at a place about half a mile north of Whittier's hotel and cut a swath 100 yards wide in a westerly direction, moving in rotary shape until it passed out to sea. Twenty cottages were torn down and several small hotels completely wrecked.

The greatest loss of life and injury came with the demolition of the old skating rink near Levitts, a single story structure of wood, 500 by 100 feet in size. Here from seventy-five to 125 persons were seriously injured, an unknown number slightly wounded, and seven persons are already dead.

More than 1,000 men are at the fort now, all the companies having arrived, with the exception of that from Alma.

A GUARDSMAN'S TROUBLE.

From the Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

The promptness with which the National Guard of the different states responded to President McKinley's call for troops at the beginning of the war with Spain made the whole country proud of its citizen soldiers. In Detroit there are few guardsmen more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. He has been a resident of Detroit for the past six years, and his home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was connected with the well known wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, in the capacity of book-keeper.

"I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mr. Davies, "but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for the aggravating trouble but could not be helped temporarily."

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work."

"I tried hot-water treatment thoroughly, but it did not affect my case. I have tried many advertised remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend of mine recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but I did not think much of them."

"I finally was induced to try the pills and commenced using them. After taking a few doses I found much relief. I do not remember how many boxes of the pills I used, but I used them until the old trouble stopped. I know they will cure dyspepsia of the worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Farewell to His Language.

M. Celicourt, one of the best known lawyers in Mauritius, has just been made a knight of the Legion of Honor. When the British government many years ago decreed that English should be the official language of the law courts in Mauritius M. Celicourt was the last advocate to plead in French. He was in his place at midday and spoke nearly until midnight. Just before the clock struck 12 he bade a touching farewell to his mother tongue, and ceased speaking just as the first stroke sounded. The decree has since been repealed.—Le Nord, Paris.

Important to Mothers.

The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trade mark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents and mothers, in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.

In Doubt as to Her Location.

From the San Francisco Argonaut: Scotch caution is well illustrated in the story told by a minister who taught a Bible class in Edinburgh. Having missed one of his students for several Sundays, he said to one of her relatives: "I haena seen yeer cousin Bell at the class for a long while. Ye ken it's her duty ta attend the schule. Whaur has she gaen?" "I canna very weel tell ye that, meenister," was the careful reply, "but she's deed."

Chicago Post: "What do you think of the dog?" asked the owner. The dog fancier merely glanced at him and then shook his head.

"He might do pretty well in the country somewhere, or pretty far out in the suburbs," he said, "but he isn't homely enough to ever bring much of a price among dog-owners of the fashionable world."

SINGULAR STATEMENT.

From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354 East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone."

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured."

"I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.'"

Mrs. Pinkham invites all suffering women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

The Anglo-American Alliance.

Mr. Edward Bryce is among the most famous Englishmen as a political thinker, and especially as a student of the elements which enter into international dissension and comity. His great work on "The American Commonwealth" has illuminated our institutions even for Americans. His argument in the current Atlantic Monthly for the close union of the Anglo-Saxon peoples is based not merely on his critical acquaintance with the workings of our political and social civilization in practice; it is the fruit also of a profound knowledge of the whole trend of modern history. He recognizes the great revolution of sentiment in England and America, each toward the other since the period of our civil war and before, and properly ascribes it to the immensely increased familiarity of the peoples of the two nations with each other. Each feels at home in the country of the other, and the theoretic sense of the unity of race and usages has become the practical sense of identity of virtues, of sympathies and in a general way, of interests. Mr. Bryce illustrates this in a vivid and familiar way from recent events. As among the five great world powers, which in the future will dominate civilization, between Great Britain and the United States only can there be an alliance which is the logical flower of race, temperament and community of beliefs and ideals as well as of interest and policy. Slavic Russia, Teutonic Germany and Latin-Celtic France may unite temporarily with each other, for an end, but the union will be artificial and easily sundered, since it has no tap-root.

In common with the most sagacious Englishmen and Americans Mr. Bryce does not think that any formal or strictly defined bond should necessarily unite the two Anglo-Saxon peoples. The outcome can be left to the inevitable historic law. The natural disinclination of kin to quarrel seriously in this case is furthered by the close parallelism of aims and ideals and pride in mutual achievement. These in themselves beget community of policy and interest. No rigidly constructed bond is necessary as a bridge. The Atlantic ocean in this sense is but a shallow ford, even less than the ferry to which it has been so often likened. But whatever the union, whatever the informal one of hearts or an offensive and defensive alliance, should that even be possible, we are told by this wise critic of the political drama that it can never result in aught but a more perfect safeguarding of the peace of the world. Vastly more than the triple alliance, so often lauded as a guarantee against war in Europe, Anglo-Saxon unity tends to protect civilization against volcanic outbursts of international jealousy. Perhaps Mr. Bryce puts this issue a little too optimistically, but he gives too many sound reasons for his belief to permit it to be lightly discarded.

Professor Thomas Shaw urges young men who wish to get on in the world to go west and become ranchmen. Owners of the great flocks and herds on the ranges have difficulty in securing the right kind of help owing to the loneliness of the life. But a good shepherd or herder gets $30 to $40 a month and his board. A young man who has the grit to stick to his work will have money enough in five years to buy a ranch of his own, will have a perfect education in the rearing of live stock and will have had time to study law or medicine besides.

M. Paul Blocet, who frisks in literature under the pseudonym of Max O'Rell, has been titillating London audiences with a new lecture under the title of "John Bull, Pat and Sawney," delineations etched on the plate with mordant acids. Among other things he says that "the English character is a mixture in equal proportion of lion, donkey and octopus." Again he announces that the reason of the Scotchman wearing kilts is the bigness of his feet, which makes any other dress inconvenient.

The triumphs and interest in peaceful achievement do not intermit amid the clash of arms. Lieutenant Peary has just received the Royal Geographical society gold medal for his 12 years' arctic work, being the third bestowed on him. War excitement after all is but one small current in the ocean of life.

The Army Correspondent.

The valor of the soldier is naturally the primary fact in the public eye in the exigencies of a campaign. He is the essential factor in fighting, and his heroic courage deserves all the recognition it gets. But not less courageous than the soldier is the work of the efficient war correspondent, who goes to the front in the interests of the great newspaper and keeps the world in quick touch with the details of the fighting. To accomplish this the writer must be in the very van with the fighting men, exposed to the same dangers, enduring the same hardships, inspired by the same undaunted hardihood. Nor has he the moral advantage of the soldier, who in the passionate excitement of firing and charging with his fellows feels an enduring fillip, which makes every gallant drop of blood tingle. Even the timid man glows on such occasions. The correspondent, on the other hand, must draw his inspiration as a non-combatant from his own sense of duty and the native well of courage bubbling in his heart.

The actual exploits of such daring spirits as Forbes, McGahan, Millet, Crawford and others in getting, preparing and transmitting war news, often under circumstances of the most extreme difficulty, have conquered the warmest enmities of military commanders. Yet these very generals have in many instances frowned at the presence of press representatives for professional reasons, and admiration has been extorted from them only by the most convincing facts. It must be borne in mind, too, that when the soldier rests after the toils of the march and the battle the correspondent must needs toil on in spite of aching brain and muscle to complete his reports and has often then ridden for many miles in the dead of night to find a telegraph station. In no phase of army experience are the highest qualities of inflexible will and courage more constantly taxed. In the present campaign, since the fighting actually began by sea and land, the American army correspondents have splendidly sustained the traditions of their craft in the excellence of their work and the intrepidity with which they have plunged into the thickest of the fighting to insure the accuracy of their battle pictures. And when death has come in the discharge of duty they have faced the grim specter like heroes. What finer thing, for example, could be than the quiet fortitude of Edward Marshall before Santiago, who, almost shot to death by two Mauser bullets, went on dictating a dispatch to his newspaper! All honor to these valiant spirits! Such heroism inspires even soldiers themselves.

The Siberian Railroad.

The approaching completion of the great Siberian railroad, which will be opened along its entire line in 1904, according to the directors' report just made, calls renewed attention to a tremendous work. It has not involved any great engineering problems, for the route was surveyed to avoid them. The first railroad built in Russia under the auspices of Emperor Nicholas I was planned on the scale of a ruler, the straightest line between two points, and cost a fabulous sum per mile. That was the arrogance of the autocrat, who would rule nature by a ukase. The Siberian road has been economically yet thoroughly built with a single track, and the main feature of wonder in its construction is its immense length. Such a line had become a military necessity to Russia as well as a commercial one, and it will be worth 500,000 additional soldiers to the czar as a war agent in any eastern imbroglio. As a means of developing the vast and scarcely opened resources of Siberia its value can scarcely be computed. It is stated that in the month of August, when the line will be opened to Irkutsk, 200,000 families of colonists will be transported (not in the punitive sense) to new homes. When the work shall have become final, a 30 days' journey will girdle the earth. As a factor in the evolution of Russian power and wealth nothing has ever been done to compare with this achievement. Siberia, or Russian Asia, is certain in the not distant future to become the most prosperous portion of the empire, as climate, soil and almost boundless resources favor it far more than similar conditions do European Russia. Yet this is the region associated in common thought with arctic dreariness, penal horrors and the most repellent features of absolutism.

An unacquitted debt is not only a brick in the structure of bankruptcy, but it is the grave of many a pleasant friendship.

The wealthiest man is he who is most economical; the poorest is he who is most miserly.

The Mexican Indian's warm weather costume is far more civilized than that of the white man. His Indianship makes himself comfortable in a suit of white cotton pyjamas, sole leather sandals and a broad brimmed hat.

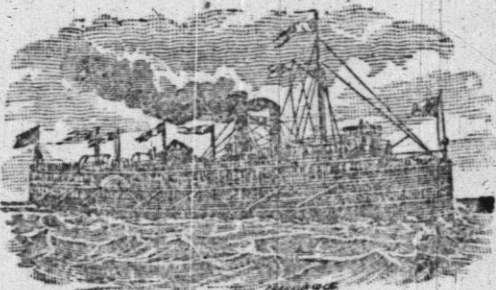

Germany has formulated diplomatic complaint against Japan because the Empire of the Rising Sun steals all the patents and trademarks it can and refuses efficient patent laws. This is an amusing example of pot calling kettle black. In no country of Europe are patent laws so unscrupulously framed to rob foreign inventors as in Germany. This fact is notorious. Bessemer, for instance, was cheated out of every penny of his German royalties.

Professor Smith of Columbia college in a commencement address recently expatiated on the immense advances of applied science in the United States and attributed our great national growth largely to this cause. In no way has the value of applied science been exhibited more than in our recent naval operations, where the mechanical appliances of marine gunnery have contributed so greatly to effective work.

There was some disposition to underestimate the importance of Cuban co-operation with our troops in battle at first. But they have already proved themselves and their valor during the recent advance not only as scouts and skirmishers, but in fighting in line with our own men. They are not very good marksmen, but are veritable gamecocks and know how to use their steel gaffs.

The weather could not have been more pleasant and at an early hour the people began to arrive. The forenoon exercises were held in the grove, where Rev. D. C. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine, Ill.

That fine crusted old Boer, President Kruger, is said to be a wonderful rifle shot, but he fires at a man of straw when he disclaims all suzerainty to Great Britain, while he acknowledges the binding force of the convention of 1884. By that agreement the little South African Republic pledges itself to make no foreign treaties without the consent of the very power whose claim of suzerainty is so offensive. The caressing and affectionate terms in which the Cuban insurgents have been recently addressed by the Spanish officials and press are in amusing contrast with the terms "bandits" and "miscreants," the best words for them not long ago. When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be; When the devil was well, the devil a monk was he. There is a great complaint in Germany because so many Teutonic tar breaks have gone into the American navy, causing a difficulty in manning German ships. It is simply a question of higher wages and better treatment. It has been truly said that there are more men who have missed opportunities than have lacked opportunities. The trouble is that unsuccessful people are blind when fate smiles on them.

The White is King.

We call your especial attention to those features which have ever characterized the White, e. grace, beauty, simplicity and great strength of frame. We believe our crank-henger to be the most servicable and yet the simplest and most compact of any on the market. Our handle bars and seat post are both adjustable and are our own patent. We have a few 797 Models at $35, to $45. 798 Models $65 and $75. White Sewing Machine Company, 295 Wabash Ave., Chicago. Colonel Cortijo, one of our Spanish prisoners, is reported to have tried to starve himself because the table attendant gave him a steel fork with a missing prong and only took kindly to American roast beef when the oversight was remedied. He may not have been born with a "silver spoon in his mouth," but evidently was with the companion implement. Yet even he had "to pass under the Caudine forks." The art of putting men in the right places is the highest in the science of government, but that of finding places for the discontented the most difficult. Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Since giving that remedy he has not been troubled. We want to give you this testimonial as an evidence to our gratitude, not that you need it to advise your meritorious remedy.—G. M. Law, Keokuk, Iowa. For sale by A. L. Waller, Palatine, and A. S. Olms, Barrington, Ill.

Should you wish to improve the quality of your bread use the celebrated Yeast Foam. Nothing like it for producing a light, sweet, nutritious loaf of bread. It will retain its moisture and flavor longer than bread raised with any other yeast now on market. Try it.

A dinner engagement is something sacramental in the demands it makes on the three leading Christian virtues. It must be accepted with faith, hope and charity.

The problem of making one dollar do the work of two presses harder than ever during the summer months, for the question is of getting out of town for the season.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

MINOR HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Crops Throughout the State Are in Splendid Condition—Wheat Threshing Has Begun Near Mascoutah—Cook County Jail Holds Two Bankers.

Ex-Bankers Meet in Jail.

Ex-Bankers Edward Dreyer and Charles Warren Spalding are becoming fast friends in the Cook county jail. They occupy cells in the same tier. Dreyer is located at cell No. 515 and Spalding in cell No. 523. The two former bankers, whose manipulation of trust fund resulted in their prosecution, take their daily exercise in the cellroom court together. Spalding is said to have told Dreyer much about life in the Joliet penitentiary as he has found it during the few months he has worn the garb of a convict. Dreyer hopes to be released from the county jail soon on a supersedeas, which will include bail, while his case is pending in the supreme court, while Spalding has hopes of favorable action by the pardon board after he has served a year in the Joliet prison.

Favor the English Alliance.

The grand lodges of the Sons of St. George for Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, a British organization, met in convention in Chicago last week to consider the war. Strong resolutions favoring the Anglo-Saxon alliance were unanimously passed. The speakers told of the friendly feeling for Englishmen they had always found in America. They were of the opinion that the commercial destiny of the two great commercial nations was slowly but surely bringing them together. The grand lodges also decided to pay the assessments of all members volunteering for the war during their absence in service and to pay their insurance in case of death. It was voted that the lodges should purchase equipment for all members of the order volunteering, as very few, if any, will go.

Wage War on Tramps.

Citizens of Riverdale, working with the police, started Wednesday to rid the neighborhood of tramps. Five men, three of them colored, were arrested and were arraigned in Justice Quinn's court at the Hyde Park police station, where they gave their names as John Hammil, John Halpin, John Parker, Sam Hanis and Stewart Carter. The men offered various excuses, Halpin saying he had just arrived from Tennessee and was on his way to the drainage canal, where he was to secure employment. The youngest two of the five claimed to be residents of Chicago. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed in each case.

Bankers Were Acquitted.

Springfield, Ill.—John R. and William R. Lockridge, owners of the Lockridge Bros. bank, were found not guilty in the Sangamon circuit court on a charge of receiving deposits after knowing the bank was insolvent. Judge Creighton instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. Lockridge Bros. bank failed in 1895 for $65,000. Since then 30 cents on the dollar has been paid.

Illinois Crop Conditions.

Springfield, Ill.—The Illinois department of agriculture has reports as to the condition of the crops on June 20 from all the counties in the state, a summary of which follows: Winter wheat—For the six weeks between May and June 20, there was little change in the condition of this crop, there being an improvement of three points in the northern division of the state, a depreciation of two points in the central division and of three points in southern Illinois. The average condition for the state June 20 was 87 per cent, a more favorable outlook than for three years past at this date.

Chinch Bugs at Work.

Charleston, Ill.—Alarming reports are coming in daily from the farmers of Coles county regarding the ravages of the chinch bugs. In addition to ruining many wheat fields, they have attacked the young broom corn crop. Many hundred acres have been planted a second time, only to be destroyed by these pests.

Barkley Ordered to Florida.

Springfield, Ill.—Gen. James H. Barkley, of Springfield, recently assigned to duty with the Seventh army corps, Gen. Lee commanding, has received orders from the adjutant general of the war department to report without delay to the commanding general at Jacksonville, Fla. Gen. Barkley is in readiness to depart and will probably start tomorrow evening. The Second Illinois regiment is a part of the Seventh army corps, so the indications are that Gen. Barkley will have at least one Illinois regiment in his brigade.

Thrashing in Illinois.

Mascoutah, Ill.—Wheat thrashing has commenced in this, the great wheat-growing section of southern Illinois. The yield is not turning out as well as expected and is a disappointment to farmers generally. The yield is about twenty bushels per acre.

The Russian Jew in America.

If the luminous and picturesque paper by Abraham Cahan in the Atlantic is in any degree accurate, the Russian Jews have been much misunderstood and misrepresented among us. They are generally thought and spoken of as a highly undesirable class of immigrants, but Mr. Cahan demonstrates that quite the reverse is the truth. He shows them to be at their first coming more literate than most immigrants; with great intellectual avidity diligently studying and rapidly learning to speak and read English; furnishing to the state less than half their proportion of criminals and practically no paupers; peaceable, temperate, industrious, home-loving, and if not more cleanly, at least with better sanitary customs than others, showing a much lower death-rate with a far denser population in their tenement districts. Mr. Cahan makes out a strong as well as interesting case.

HISTORY OF THE WAR.

Important Events Reviewed and Condensed Into Reliable Form for Our Readers.

Tuesday, June 24.
American field and siege guns are now on the heights overlooking Santiago, and the attack on the city may soon be made. The Yale, with one battalion of the Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Thirty-third regiment, reached Baiquiri and landed troops. In the invading army confronting Santiago complaints are made that the Cuban auxiliaries are eating everything in sight and leaving little for the American troops. One thousand Cubans, under Sanguily, Lacret and Betancourt, with artillery and 500,000 cartridges, have landed at Banes. Officials in Washington believe Camara's fleet will soon return to Cadiz. Plans are laid to pursue him if he goes forward, the intention being to crush him between Dewey's and Watson's ships. It is considered likely in any event that a big expedition under Sampson will be sent to attack the Spanish coast. Captain General Augusti cables from Manila that the situation there is critical; that the insurgents are increasing in number, and that the provinces are daily falling under their dominion. The sickness among the Spanish troops is distressing. The Valencia, with 700 Dakota troops, left San Francisco for Manila. General Merritt expects to sail to-day on the Newark. In two sham battles between some of the troops at Camp Alger several of the soldiers were seriously if not fatally injured. Lieutenant C. C. Almes of the Seventh Illinois regiment at Camp Alger, who was court-martialed for being absent without leave, will, it is believed, escape with a simple reprimand.

Wednesday, June 25.
Gen. Shafter reported to Gen. Miles that he could take Santiago in forty-eight hours, but the undertaking might involve considerable loss. As Gen. Pando is reported advancing from Manzanillo with a large force of Spaniards it is believed the American commander will not wait for reinforcements before opening battle. Six transports with 3,000 troops sailed from Tampa to re-enforce Gen. Shafter. Gen. Merritt has sailed for the Philippines on the steamer Newport from San Francisco. Havana dispatch reports the capture of five Spanish vessels June 25 by an American ship, believed to be the auxiliary cruiser Yankee, which had already made a return of its exploit. Government paymasters arrive at Chickamauga with money for the volunteers. A great military hospital under tents is to be established at Fort Monroe. Lieut. Carranza is mysteriously missing from Montreal, Que. Gen. Correo, Spain's minister of war, says Camara's squadron has begun the passage of the Suez canal. Commodore Schley's flying squadron has been merged into the fleet under Admiral Sampson.

Thursday, June 26.
Secretary Alger at midn. when shown a press report from Madrid that a battle his ships were disabled as an excuse for not leaving at once. Chauncey M. Depew has arrived in New York from Europe, and in an interview tells of the changed sentiment there regarding our army and navy.

General Wheeler's official report to Major General Shafter of what is known as the battle of Siboney is as follows: To the Adjutant General of the Fifth Army Corps, Sir:—I have the honor to report that, in obedience to the instructions of the major general commanding, given me in person on June 23, I proceeded to Siboney (Jurauasito). The enemy had evacuated the place at daylight that morning, taking a course toward Sevilla. A body of about 100 Cubans had followed and engaged the enemy's rear guard. About nine of them were wounded. I rode out to the front and found that the enemy had halted and established themselves at a point about three miles from Siboney. At night the Cubans returned to the vicinity of the town. At 8 o'clock that evening the 23d General Young, reached Siboney, with eight troops of Colonel Wood's regiment, A, B, D, E, F, G, K and L, 500 strong; troops A, B, C, and K, First cavalry, in all 244 men, and troops A, B, E, and I of the Tenth cavalry, in all 220 men, making the total force 964 men, which included nearly all of my command, which had marched from Baiquiri, eleven miles. With the assistance of emy gave way and retreated rapidly, our side keeping close upon them; but our men, being physically exhausted both by their exertions and the great heat, were incapable of maintaining the pursuit. I cannot speak too highly of the gallant and excellent conduct of the officers and men throughout my command. General Young deserves special commendation for his cool, deliberate and skillful management. I also specially noticed his acting adjutant general, Lieutenant A. L. Mills, who, under General Young's direction, was at various parts of the line, acting with energy and cool courage.

Friday, July 1.
The army under General Shafter moved from its positions toward Fort Morro. The fort was taken after four hours terrific fighting. Two thousand Spaniards were killed. Eight hundred of our men were slain. The following is a partial list of officers killed: Col. Charles A. Wilcott, Twenty-second infantry; Lieut. Col. John M. Hamilton, Ninth cavalry; Lieut. W. H. Smith, Tenth cavalry; Maj. Forse, First cavalry; Capt. O'Neill, First volunteer cavalry; Lieut. Michie, son of Prof. Michie; Lieut. Jules G. Ord, Sixth infantry; Lieut. William E. Shipp, Tenth cavalry. Following is a partial list of officers wounded: Lieut. Col. John H. Patterson, Twenty-second infantry; Lieut. Col. Henry Carroll, commanding First brigade cavalry division; Maj. Henry W. Wessells, Third cavalry; Capt. Augustus P. Blockson, Sixth cavalry; Capt. John B. Kerr, Sixth cavalry; Capt. George K. Hunter, Third cavalry; Capt. George A. Dodd, Third cavalry; Capt. Charles W. Taylor, Ninth cavalry; Lieut. Frank R. McCoy, Tenth cavalry; Lieut. Winthrop S. Wood, adjutant Ninth cavalry; Lieut. Haskell, First volunteer cavalry; Lieut. A. L. Mills, First cavalry; Lieut. Oren B. Meyer, Third cavalry; Lieut. Arthur Thayer, Third cavalry; Lieut. Walter C. Short, Sixth cavalry; Capt. John B. Rodman, Twentieth infantry.

SHAFTER, Major-General.
Saturday, July 2.
Terrific fighting continued throughout the day. It was early seen by Gen. Shafter that our forces were too small. Gen. Pando arrived on scene with ten thousand reinforcements for Gen. Linnares. The Americans moved on Caney and took that place by storm. The following dispatch from Gen. Shafter was received and made public from the white house: "Playa del Este, July 3. 'To Secretary of War, Washington: 'Camp near Sevilla, Cuba, July 3.—We have the town well invested on the north and east, but with a very thin line. 'Upon approaching it we find it of such a character and the defenses so strong it will be impossible to carry it by storm with my present force. 'Our losses up to date will aggregate 1,000, but the list has not yet been made. 'But little sickness, outside of exhaustion from intense heat and exertions of the battle of the day before yesterday and the almost constant fire which is kept upon the trenches. 'Wagon road to the rear is kept up with some difficulty on account of rains, but I will be able to use it for the present. 'Gen. Wheeler is seriously ill and will probably have to go to the rear to-day. 'Gen. Young is also very ill; confined to his bed. 'Gen. Hawkins was slightly wounded in the foot during the scuffle the enemy made last night, which was handsomely repulsed. 'The behavior of the troops was magnificent. 'Gen. Garcia reported he holds the railroad from Santiago to San Luis and has burned a bridge and removed some rails; also that Gen. Pando had arrived at Palma, and that the French consul, with about 400 French citizens, came into his line yesterday from Santiago; have directed him to treat them with every courtesy possible. 'SHAFTER, Major-General.'"

Sunday, July 3.
Admiral Cervera attempted to escape from the harbor of Santiago and run by the American fleet. The attempt was unexpected by Admiral Sampson, but his ships were prepared in an instant for the night. With the flagship, the New York, in the lead, the fleet advanced to meet the enemy. So fierce and well directed was the fire from the American ships that after less than twenty minutes' fighting Cervera signaled to return. Admiral

Sampson followed closely, and Cervera, seeing capture certain, blew up his entire fleet, with the exception of one boat, which escaped to the open sea and is being pursued by two of Admiral Sampson's squadron. The occupation of the harbor by the American fleet renders the situation of the Spanish troops, who hold the city, absolutely untenable, and an immediate surrender is inevitable.

The news of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet was received in Washington with indescribable satisfaction. The apparent reverse suffered by Gen. Shafter, which became public early in the day, had caused a feeling almost of dismay, and the change in the situation was joyfully welcomed by the president and cabinet. The reinforcements asked for by Gen. Shafter may not be hurried to the front as early as had been anticipated.

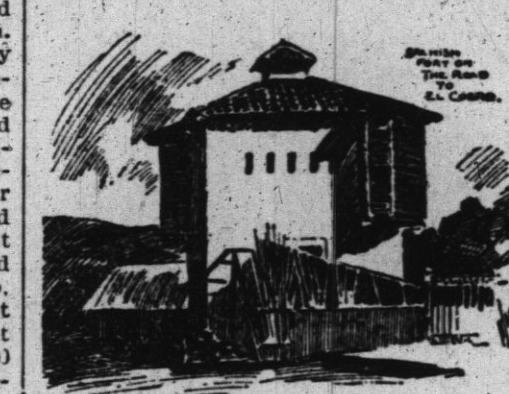

Like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came a dispatch to the secretary of war at noon Sunday from Gen. Shafter on the battlefield saying it would be impossible to carry the city of Santiago by storm with his present force of men. This came at the moment when war department officials were expecting word that Santiago had fallen and that our flag was waving over the city. Gen. Shafter gave many other details, showing splendid bravery on the part of our men, but all this was lost sight of in the fact of the momentous report that the city itself, after three days of desperate battle, could not be taken. The dispatch was carried by Adjutant General Corbin to the white house, where a council of war was held by the president, Secretary Alger, Gen. Miles, Gen. Corbin, Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen. The officials wore an outward calm, but the report had caused the deepest agitation. All attention was directed to sending reinforcements to Shafter immediately, in order that the battle might be renewed and Santiago taken. At the war council it was positively determined there should be no halt in the movement on Santiago, except such time as was necessary to get more men to Shafter. They will be sent from Tampa in large numbers and 15,000 men will then be moved from Chickamauga to Tampa to go forward on transports. Dispatches were sent to the fleet off Santiago to have twelve transports return at once to Tampa to take on more troops for Shafter. Hurry orders were sent to Tampa, and one expedition of six ships with about 6,000 men left there Sunday.

Monday, July 4.
The complete annihilation of the Spanish squadron at Santiago and the capture of the Spanish admiral, Cervera, with 1,300 prisoners; the demand by Gen. Shafter for the surrender of Santiago by 12 o'clock to-morrow noon on pain of bombardment; word from Admiral Dewey that the Ladrone islands had been captured; that a Spanish gunboat had surrendered; that a hundred or more Spanish officers and men were taken, and that our first Philippine expedition had landed—this is in part the thrilling record of such a Fourth of July as has not been known since the bells of Independence hall rang out the tidings of American freedom. It was a day when one momentous event followed another in constant and rapid succession, each hour bringing forth some new feature more startling than what had gone before. The climax came at 1 o'clock, when, amid the wildest cheering, which fairly shook the great war, state and navy building to its foundation, Admiral Sampson's dispatch announcing his glorious victory and the entire destruction of the Spanish fleet was given to the public. The white house was naturally the local point of the enthusiasm and stirring activity which marked official Washington. It was the busiest day the president has had since the war began. Conference followed con-man killed was George E. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn.—SAMPSON." Gen. Miles sent the following dispatch to Gen. Shafter before the news of the destruction of the fleet: "Accept my hearty congratulations on the record made of magnificent fortitude, gallantry and sacrifice displayed in the desperate fighting of the troops before Santiago. I realize the hardships, difficulties and sufferings, and am proud that amid those terrible scenes the troops illustrated such fearless and patriotic devotion to the welfare of our common country and flag. Whatever the results to follow their unsurpassed deeds of valor, the past is already a gratifying chapter of history. Expect to be with you within one week with strong reinforcements.—MILES."

Gen. Shafter's reply is as follows: "Maj.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, Washington: "Headquarters Fifth army corps, near Santiago, July 3."

"I thank you in the name of the gallant men I have the honor to command for splendid tribute of praise which you have accorded them. They bore themselves as American soldiers always have. Your telegram will be published to the regiments in the morning. I feel that I am master of the situation and can hold the enemy for any length of time. I am delighted to know that you are coming, that you may see for yourself the obstacles which this army had to overcome. My only regret is the great number of gallant souls who have given their lives for our country's cause.—SHAFTER."

MUST SMOKE PIPES NOW.

Famine in Havana Tobacco Has at Last Become Reality.

The much-talked-of and long-expected tobacco famine is here. Before the war with Spain began the air was filled with prophecies of such a famine. The Cuban rebellion was on, but still there was genuine Cuban tobacco to be had. As the rebellion dragged along stories were heard about the price of tobacco going up and the quality going down. But Havana tobacco was still to be had for a price. A New York correspondent of the Washington Star says the importers knew all about this some time ago, but it fell upon the smokers unawares. It has even reached the clubs which were supposed to be plentifully supplied with the fragrant weed. It has developed that the stock of Havana cigars is almost exhausted and that the importers are holding on to the remainder with a death grip. The supply is to be apportioned so that it may last as long had been fought at Santiago, said there was no official confirmation of the report, but he considered it quite likely that, as the opposing armies were within two miles of each other at last accounts, there had been lively skirmishing. Officials in Washington do not pretend to know that Gen. Shafter will attack Linnares, but they are satisfied that he will win a victory when he strikes the blow he has in preparation. A comprehensive review of the latest dispatches from special correspondents with our army in Cuba shows that Gen. Shafter has so arranged his forces that he has General Linnares and Santiago at his mercy. Cable advices from Madrid say that the war will not end soon, no matter what the attitude of the government, because the temper of the people will not accept peace. The Egyptian government refused to allow Admiral Camara to coal his ships in the Suez Canal and ordered him to leave, his stay having exceeded the twenty-four hour limit. Camara pleaded that some of General Castillo a rough map of the country was prepared and the position of the enemy was fully explained, and I determined to make an attack at daylight on the 24th. Colonel Wood's regiment was sent by General Young, accompanied by two of his staff officers, Lieutenants Tyrree, R. Rivers, and W. R. Smedburg, Jr., to approach the enemy on the left hand, or more westerly road, while General Young, myself and about fifty troops of the First and Tenth cavalry, with three Hotchkiss mountain guns, approached the enemy on the regular Sevilla road. General Young and myself examined the position of the enemy, the lines were deployed and I directed him to open fire with the Hotchkiss guns. The enemy replied and the firing immediately became general. Colonel Wood had deployed his right, nearly reaching the left of the regulars. For an hour the fight was very warm, the enemy being very lavish in the expenditure of ammunition, most of their firing being by volleys. Finally the enference with the heads of the military and naval departments, high officers of the service came and went in a constant and steady stream and as each hour brought its added luster to the American arms the crowd of officials increased. The president had not a moment's respite. Telegrams came and went without cessation and the historic old mansion presented a scene such as has not been paralleled since the momentous hours of the civil war. The story of the day is best told in the series of official dispatches, each bearing date of July 4, from Sampson, from Shafter, and from Dewey. Striving as they all are, that of Sampson was accorded the honor of chief importance, not only for the immediate results secured, but also from the effects of this crushing defeat in weakening the defenses of Santiago, and in dealing Spain such a staggering blow that she is left practically without a navy.

The admiral's dispatch is as follows: "Playa, via Hayti, 3:15 a. m., Siboney, July 3.—The fleet under my command offers the nation as a Fourth of July present the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. Not one escaped. It attempted to escape at 9:30 a. m., and at 2 p. m. the last, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore sixty miles west of Santiago and had let down her colors. The Infanta Maria Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within twenty miles of Santiago. The Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,300 prisoners, including Admiral Cervera. The as possible, and for that reason the sales of box lots are almost entirely prohibited. One of the largest clubs in the city, a club that a year ago bought over 150,000 Havana cigars from a single importing house in the city, is almost in sight of its last cigar. It had laid in such a heavy stock over the winter that it was willing to sell to members in any quantity for almost any price, and now it will not sell a box at any price. The most that a smoker can get is a handful.

Rubber Industry in Dahomey.

An effort is being made to develop the rubber industry in Dahomey. The wild caoutchouc trees found in the region have been worked to some extent and about 1,905 kilos of rubber were exported in 1896 and 2,812 kilos in 1897. The most serious efforts in this line have been made, however, during the past two years in Porto Novo and Ouidah, where small rubber plantations from three to five acres have been established. The young trees on these experimental farms are reported to be doing well. They are very vigorous and promise excellent returns.

There is no longer in truth.

George Foreman had a bill of $21, the amount of damage caused to his building by the water of Main street forcing in his outer wall. This bill, as well as one of John Broemmekamp for use of his lot while building city hall, Emil Arnold for balance due him on spreading the special assessment, and one or two minor bills, were referred to the finance committee.

On motion of Trustee Willmarth, seconded by Trustee Plagge, the water works system was accepted by a vote of 5 to 0.

The matter of laying the 24-inch tile from Richardson's corner to the right-of-way of the C. & N.-W. R'y Co. was left in the hands of the Board of Local Improvements with power to act. The railroad company furnished the tile and $360 in cash for the consideration that the village do the work and take it off their right-of-way.

This ended the business for the evening and the Board adjourned to next Monday evening, when they will pass an ordinance regulating water rates.

There's a Tenderness

About our meats that is appreciated by the cook. It is not necessary to pound the steaks with a mallet to make them yield up their juiciness. Nor to use great care in broiling or roasting. Our beef, lamb, veal, mutton and pork is so good in itself that the chances of spoiling them in bad cooking are small. Every piece of meat we sell is cut from prime, well fed and carefully handled animals.
