Town of Cuba Collector Ready to Receive Taxes.

Tax on Farm Property Little Changed Over Last Year-What It Cost to Conduct the Various Offices of Township. County and State.

Town of Cuba Tax Collector E. F. Schaede has completed his task of preparing the Town of Cuba tax receipts. Those who have been patiently waiting for a chance to square themselves with the collector's books may now avail themselves of that opportunity -at least in the Town of Cuba. In this town but little change will be found in the taxes on property lying outside of the village over that of last year, but within the village's borders taxes on property has increased. For an approximate figure as to what the tax on village property is this year, just add at least one-third additional to the amount of tax paid on same

My constant attention given in the handling of Leather Goods for a number of years has some significance in the selection of materials. You couldn't expect a man who has spent most of his life in a grocery store to be as good a judge of steel as a blacksmith, who has made a life study of that particular material.

THE WAY ROYALTY MOURNS. Ceremonies Followed When a Member of a Ruling Family Dies.

Courts of monarchical lands have their ceremonial precepts and a fixed rule for conducting court mourning, says the New York Herald. The decease of the monarch or his wife means six months of mourning by the entire court, and six more months to follow, when only the members of the royal family mourn. Should a prince or princess die, great mourning consists of but six months, three for the entire court and three more for the imperial family. When a relative prince of an outside principality dies lesser court mourning is observed, consisting of but thirty days; and, again, for a prince not a relative only fourteen days are devoted to the wearing of crape. The great mourning at court requires that no festivities shall take place within the royal house during the first three months. Not even grand dinners or luncheons are allowed. Then the wearing apparel is prescribed to the minutest detail. All the ladies, residents or visitors to the court, must wear for the first six weeks black crepe dresses, made of material without luster, and wear over their faces and hanging down the back a long black veil; small black hats and black woolen gloves. Gentlemen during court mourning, when dressed as civilians, must don a black silk waistcoat, coat and trousers of black wool or serge, black necktie and gloves of the same color. They must also have a crape over the upper left arm and around their hats. After the first six weeks the ladies can abrieviate their long veils to just half their former length and can put on some jewelry. The gentlemen can wear silk gloves provided they are in civilian garb. In six more weeks the ladies drop their veils entirely; the military members of the court retain only the black crape around the left arm. Crape dresses may at the end of twelve weeks be replaced by silk or atlas of the same color, but always closed at the neck. The second quarter of the court mourning is less severe, unimportant festivities being tolerated, but in no case can there be music. Six months of this mourning is succeeded by six months more for the family, and besides this only members of "personal service" must keep up the black, other ladies and gentlemen being allowed to dress according to the height of fashion.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will drive every trace of the poisonous derms from the system, build up and enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves. A trial will prove this. Read the evidence:

When the grip last visited this section Herman H. Eveler, of 811 W. Main St., Jefferson, Mo., a well-known contractor and builder, was one of the victims, and he has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. A year ago his health began to fall, and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives to day is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the healt and a general debility. My back also pained me severely.

I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation decided to give them a trial.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. Ifeel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and any one suffering from the after-effects of the grip will find that these pills are the specific." H. H. Eveler.

"I made cautious inquiries, and found to my surprise that my miserable identity was quite lost, I had given no hint, uttered no name during my stay there, that would lead to discovery. I learned that the clothes I wore when taken up by the police were mere rags of the coarsest, most loathsome kind, and a bit of soiled paper bearing the name 'Elizabeth Thompson' found in the pocket of the dress served as my certificate of baptism, and so Elizabeth Thompson I remained to all who met me during those seven years. When and how my clothes were changed and stolen, as they undoubtedly were, I don't remember. After three years I was discharged as cured, and, as I had shown some capability for nursing during an epidemic that visited the asylum, a kind nun who had charge of the Catholic ward offered to get me a place as attendant in a hospital, where I remained some time."

"And you never thought of menever longed to see me, to know how

She laughed bitterly, as she waved the eager interruption aside, with a gesture of pain.

"Never thought of you! Ah, you will never know how you filled my life, can never understand what I felt-and suffered! I knew you must believe me dead, and I knew the best thing for your happiness, your peace of mind, was to let you remain in that belief. I struggled to keep away from you, to learn nothing about you; but, when nursing a patient whom I casually heard had lately been in domestic service in the neighborhood of Colworth, I could not resist the temptation of questioning her. From her I learned, Paul, that Mr. Dennys of Colworth was married to a Miss Stopford, with whom he had inherited a large fortune, that he was very happy and prosperous and the father of three beautiful children.

"This news allayed all my doubts, drove every lingering spark of hope and happiness from my future. I begged the reverend mother who had procured me the place in the hospital to accept me as a novice; but she hesitated for some time, knowing of the taint in my blood. However, after a couple of years, seeing no sign of a relapse, and getting a very favorable opinion of my case from the asylum doctors, I was received into the convent, and on application allowed to join the mission going to New Zealand.

"We were to have sailed next week, and as the time drew near a terrible restlessness came over me, a longing so intense to breathe the air you breathed once more, that I felt I could never be a useful and contented servant of Heaven unless my longing were gratified. I appealed to the reverend mother, and she with her usual goodness gave her consent. I arrived at dusk that-that blessed night, intending only to say a prayer for you and yours at the cross preserving my memory, and then steal away as I had

"At the station I saw your brother accidentally, believing him to be you his features are wonderfully like what yours once were. I found to my utter bewilderment, and I think relief, that my love was dead completely dead, that Edith's husband was nothing to me.

"I wandered out, pondering the meaning of this discovery, and saw you stretched across my grave. At the first sound of your voice, at the first glance into your worn altered face—ah, beloved, I knew that I was not free, and could never be, no matter what gulf divided us. I tried to save you as I thought-to leave you; but-but-"/

CHAPTER XIX.

She stopped a little hysterically; and ne laid his hand on her lips. Presently she lifted it away, and said with eager wistfulness-

But you loved her, Paul, sister-inlaw or not; you never can explain that away. No no; do not try! You wanted to marry her before you met me. I am sure of it. You loved her-you wanted to marry her once," she repeated monotonously.

"Yes, yes, I wanted to marry her once. Listen, listen to me Helen! I was a mere boy, home from an outskirt station in India, where I never saw a woman's face. I was lonely and sad; she was kind and beautiful, and did everything in her power to faseinate and enslave me. How could I help falling in the trap? I left her in a state of melodramatic despair, which I now know was only skin deep, her-though I believed at the time she had dealt me a life-wound.

"I met you; we were married and spent six months together abroad. Ah. Helen, I did not understand until long afterwards how happy those six months were, how thoroughly they had made you part of my life, the very essence of my content and happiness. For I was happy; but blind, conceited dolt that I was, I attributed my contented state of being to my own selfishness and generosity in marrying you, and accepted as my due your devotion to me. Well, well, I was punished, cruelly punished for it all. I eved to linger over every day, every hour of those six months with a yearning passion, a sickening remorse that left those lines you see on my face. and streaking my hair with gray before I had reached the prime of life.

"When we returned she came across my path again, and necessity compelled her to confide a secret to me. When I learned by it how shamefully she had been treated, I believed I had misjudged her cruelly, and was only eager to offer reparation in my power. felt that no sacrifice or exertion could make would atone for the irreparable wrong done her by one of my name, and-"

"Your brother Arthur, you mean; he had-"

"He had forced her an ignorant thoughtless girl of sixteen-to marry him secretly when she was staying with an invalid aunt in London."

"Of sixteen!" she exclaimed eagerly. "You mean that she she was your brother's wife before I left youall-all that time she was with us, your brother's wife?"

"Yes, yes. At first the excitement and adventure had pleased her, but later on, when she came to know Arthur's true character and mode of his life-how he had squandered his fortune, was shunned by honest men and respectable women-when her uncle, who had heard some rumor of a childish attachment between the pair, informed her that, if she exchanged another word with Arthur, he would not only alter his will and leave her penniless, but would expel her from his home, her complacency changed to a state of misery and almost unbearable suspense, which by degrees taught her to hate the cause of her selfish terror, and made his existence a positive nightmare to her.

"At last, after a stormy interview Arthur consented to emigrate to Australia, pledging his word to remain there until the General should die, and Edith's inheritance be quite safe.

"He sailed, but after a time tiring of Colonial life, broke his solemn promise, and a month after our arrival at Colworth he turned up at Southampton, and Edith in her terror of discovery confided her secret to me, implored me to help her and induce my brother to return to Australia at

"I promised to help her by every means in my power, wrote at once to my brother, begging him to leave; but he refused point blank until he had had at least one interview with his wife, whom, with all his faults, I believe he truly loved, as his conduct within the last seven years has amply proved. Seeing he was not to be shaken, we arranged that the meeting should take place at Colworth, where there would be less chance of detection. It was in vain. I begged Edith to let you share the secret; she was inflexible on that point. Her motive for that reserve at the time I thought trivial and unreasonable; but I have since fathomed the terrible overweening vanity and heartlessness of the woman, and can now understand it perfectly. She was jealous of you, my darling: that I should have so quickly recovered from her wanton attack was a stab her vanity resented bitterly; she saw more clearly than I could see myself-dull fool!-how thoroughly happy I was, how dear you were to me and so she set about, with a thousand nameless, almost intangible wiles and artifices, to wreck the happiness of a man who was sheltering and protecting her, fighting to preserve her fortune and honor. With broken, half-stifled hints and inundoes, she gave me to understand that I would have been her choice had I spoken long ago, before my brothertried by every means in power to wean me from your influence, to force on me the fact that I had made a tremendous sacrifice in marrying you, that my chivalrous and tender bearing towards you awoke in her feelings that made her own wretched fate almost unbear-ble, and at the same time, I presume, from what I've heard, that you, my poor darling, did not escape

"Paul, that time when you left me alone with her, when you went to Lon-

"To meet her husband-yes?" "She told me not at once, you know, but by degrees-it-it took three days, Paul-that you-you had loved her passionately for years, that you had proposed to her a few days before you met me, that, even after her first refusal, you had followed her about London, trying to make her change her mind, and that, failing that, you-you had rushed back to Ireland in wrath and despair, and-and married me-"

"She told you that-the jade?" "Not boldly, as I tell you now, but with little hints and jokes, half laughing sighs that were almost worse."

"My poor brother! Well, my darling, the end came. You followed us that night, and saw the meeting between husband and wife."

"Paul, Paul! You mean it was not you I saw holding her in your arms, imploring her to fly?"

"No it was Arthur. We were more alike then than now, love, and I had lent him my big gray ulster, for he complained of the cold. The-the mistake was natural; but, oh, how awful in its consequences to you and ree!"

"Go on-oh, go on!" she cried breathlessly.

"When convinced of your terrible death, brain fever set in, and for some months I was unconscious of my loss. I recovered, rose from my sick had wretched in heart and body, the love, hope, happiness of my life buried in your grave. I left Enrope-traveled aimlessly in Asia and America for six years. In the meantime the old General had died suddenly a few weeks after your disappearance, leaving his niece sixty thousand pounds in hard cash, but the Hall and surrounding property to a male relative.

"Edith married Arthur publicly almost at once, and they settled Jown at Colworth, renting the place from me. A few months ago my brother, who is now a most exemplary member of society, wrote asking me if I would sell my interest in it, and let them entail it on their eldest son, as it was my avowed intention not to marry again. I could not make up my mind, and came home to settle the business.

"A few days ago at the Langham I met my brother and his wife for the first time since their second marriage. and he persuaded me to try to visit the old place again. I came down with them, and walked across the fields to the cross which bore your name. When I saw the familiar spot, the house among the trees, the cruel mill, heard the mournful rustle of the leaves and the ripple of the water, all the old pain broke out as fiercely as on the day I lost you. I hrew myself upon your grave, cal!ing out your name. Your voice answered me. I looked up, and saw you, Helen, standing in the moonlight before me."

Two months after her installation at Colworth, Mrs. Arthur Dennys, her lord and master, nursery, horses, carriages, lackeys, and maids were storming the sleepy country station again, enroute for a Sydenham villa residence, where she still bemoans the ill luck of her eldest born, who will never now inherit Colworth.

(THE END.)

A GREAT FRENCH ETCHER.

Would Have Been a Fine Painter but for Color Blindness. Charles Meryon-born in 1821-was brought up to the navy, going first is 1837 to the naval school at Brest, says Pall Mall Gazette. As a youth, he sailed round the world. He touched at Athens; touched at the then sawage coasts of New Zealand; made sketches, a few of which, in days when most of his greater work was done, he used as material for some of his etchings. Art even then occupied him, and deeply interested as he soon got to be in it, he seems to have had a notion that it was less dignified than the profession of the navy, and after awhile he chose deliberately the less dignifiedbecause it was the less dignified. He would have us believe so, at any rate; he wished his father to believe so. And in 1845, having served creditably and become a lieutenant, he resigned his commission. A painter he could not be. The gods, who had given him, even in his youth, a poetic vision and a firmness of hand, had denied him the true sight of color; and I remember seeing hanging up in the salon of M. Burty, who knew him, a large, impressive pastel of a ship cleaving her way through wide, deep waters, and the sea was red and the sunset sky was green, for Meryon was color blind. He would have to be an engraver. He entered the workroom of one M. Blery, to whom in after times, as his wont was, he engraved some verses of his writing-appreciative verses, sincere and unfinished-"a toi, Blery, mon maitre." The etchings of Zeeman, the Dutchman, gave him the desire to etch. He copied with freedom and interest several of Zeeman's neat little plates. and addressed him with praises, on another little copper, like the one to Blery-"a Zeeman, pointre des mate-

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

The Introduction of Modern Machinery Has Made It Easy and Profitable.

Some farmers are still living in this country who deprecate anything in the nature of an innovation in their method of cultivating the soil, but fortunately for the future of agriculture, they are rapidly growing less. A few years ago the spade was considered the proper thing with which to turn the soil, but for present day requirements it is altogether too slow a method, and it has been superseded by the plow. The old style plow, however, was not much better than the spade, and farmers demand an article that is light, easy to work and perfect in its requirements. Without doubt the best plow on the market to-day is that manufactured by the Castree & Shaw Co., of Owosso, Mich., and known as the "Owosso No. 1."

This plow is made entirely of steel, and is the lightest, easiest running. most durable and simple plow ever built. The peculiar construction of their Colter, Moldboard and Share produces the lightest draft plow ever made all the working points are steel, it runs true even in the stoniest ground, and buries completely all weeds, stubble and fertilizing crops, no matter how high or heavy, and runs so easily that a boy of ten years of age can handle it. It is beyond doubt the best all around plow on the market to-day. Messrs. Castree & Shaw Co. also manufacture the Star Steel Land Roller, which is as far in advance of the old wooden roller as their plow is to the spade. The drum is made of the best tank steel, and there is no friction whatever. All the parts are interchangeable, and extras can be furnished on short notice. We strongly advise any of our readers who contemplate purchasing a plow or land roller to write the Castree & Shaw Co., 71 Bond St., Owosso, Mich., for catalogue and full particulars before placing their order.

Garlic.

In 1548 garlic was introduced into England from the shores of the Mediterranean, where it is abundant. In Sicily it grows naturally. It was in greater repute with our ancestors, although it is still used as a seasoning herb. On the continent, especially in Italy, it is much used, and the French consider it an essential in many made dishes.

A Remedy for the Grippe.

A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the grippe is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle today and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If negl sted the grippe has a tendency to b ag on pneumonia. The Balsam prevents this by keeping the cough loose. All druggists sell the Balsam.

GOOD CROPS IN CANADA.

Farmers Leave Good Lands in Minneso ta for Western Canada.

Delegates representing a number of neighboring farmers in Clay county, Minnesota, who visited the Edmonton district of Western Canada last summer are evidently very well satisfied with the result of their trip. They think so well of the country that in addition to the privilege of obtaining a free homestead of 169 acres of land they have also purchased land. In a recent interview on the subject Messrs. C. E. and A. Hughes of Barnesville, Clay Co., say:

"We are well pleased with Western Canada. It is far ahead of what we expected. We find the climate to be warmer than we expected. As for the crops we have never seen anything that can compete with them. We have lived in Minnesota and have farmed some of what they count the best lands in the Red River Valley for ten years and have done very well in that part of the country, and have farms there at present free of all encumberance, but believe that this country (Western Canada) is so much better that we have bought from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company one section of land northeast of Edmonton in the Beaver Hill district. We have traveled through that part of the country and have seen the grain in the granaries and the amount of land that it was taken off and find that they have grown as much as fifty bushels and over to the acre, and they say that this has not been a good year, and very little if any grain had been touched by the frost. Hay seems to be plentiful, and if you wish to put up log buildings you can get the logs within a few miles. Coal can be had at the mines for 75 cents per ton, or you can dig it yourself. Nearly all kinds of garden truck can be grown in abundance. We find everything that can be grown in good demand. The farmers tell us that they can get four and a half live weight per hundred for hogs, and for three year old steers from fifty to sixty dollars per head, providing they are good. We will move into that part of the country next summer. All the people in that part of the country seem satisfied, and we do not see any reason why they should not be so."

The Messrs. Hughes also stated that they would be very glad to afford anyone desiring particulars about the country they had visited the fullest information, on receiving enquiries at Barnesville, Clay Co., before the 1st of June next, when it is understood they propose to return to the Edmonton district.

THANKFUL TO MRS. PINKHAM.

Earnest Words From Women Who Have Been Relieved of Backache -Mrs. Pinkham Warns Against Neglect.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: -- I have been thankful a thousand times, since I wrote you, for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully, and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. eucorrhœa.

I took four bottles of Vegetable I took four bottles of Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills, and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am now well. I thank you again for the good you have done for me.—ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio. Great numbers of such letters as the above are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham from women who owe their health and happiness to her advice and medicine. Mrs. Pinkham's address is

Lynn, Mass. Her advice is offered free to all suffering women who are puzzled about themselves. If you have backache don't neglect it or try heroically to "work it down," you must reach the root of the trouble, and nothing will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Backache is accompanied by a lot of other aches and wearying sensations, but they nearly always come from the same source. Remove the cause of these distressing things, and you become well and strong. Mrs. S. J. Swanson, of Gibson City, Ill., tells her experience in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - Before using your medicine I was troubled with headache and my back ached so that I could not rest. Your medicine is the best I have ever used; it has relieved me of my troubles, and I feel like myself again. Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham.

"I would advise any one troubled with female weakness to take your medicine. I shall also recommend it wherever I can as a great reliever of pain."

The Pest of the World.

The mosquito ought to interest Amer-Icans, who have been trying to escape from him for a hundred years. It now appears that he is responsible for more serious ills than mere surface irritation and disturbed sleep. Three Italian biologists have recently been carrying on investigations which leave little doubt that the mosquito disseminates malarial fever. These scientists shut up healthy men in a room, where they also introduced a number of the insects, and they claim that they succeeded in innoculating the men with malarial fever. The theory is that this disease is produced by the introduction of a specific poison into the wound made by the insect. Apropos of this, Dr. P. Symond, writing in the annals of the Pasteur institute, takes the field to prove that the bubonic plague is propagated by fleas. He brings to light a number of illustrative facts, one of which is that the rats which suffer during an infliction of the plague are all infested with fleas, and another is that the plague is not directly infectious, but is communicated through the blood. It was found both in China and India that the plague infected houses were swarming with rata Various devices for the extermination of the mosquito are proposed, such as the draining of marshes and the covering of fresh pools of water with kerosene oil. But the most practical and natural is that suggested by a French entomologist, who points out that the common dragon fly, a harmless and beautiful insect, is the natural enemy of the mosquito and can be propagated inexpensively. The virtual conclusion of his investigations is that no well equipped country house ought to be without its pet dragon flies in every room.

Our embassador at Berlin, Mr. Andrew White, continues to deprecate what he calls the ill timed and baseless suspicions which the United States contime to express concerning Germany's friendship. He insists that the kaiser's policy is to remain on the best of terms with this country and avers that Germany has no earthly motive to interfere with us in our dealings with the Philippines. This assurance is supported by an interview of a correspondent of The Tribune with a German minister. in which the same protestation of friend liness is made and in which the bold statement is set forth that a breach in the friendship of Germany and the United States would be inexcusable and incomprehensible. Notwithstanding these gracious words certain events at Samoa and at Iloilo have given rise to the suspicion at Washington that Germany is in some way secretly meddling with affairs at both places. The bond between this country and Germany is both commercial and consanguinous. But neither of these ties is sufficient to overcome the constantly freshened belief that the kaiser himself does not and cannot look favorably upon the spread of American principles of self government

Russia has been examining her penal system with a view to improvement. A commission has just returned from Siberia after a five months' tour of the exile colonies. The report made to the czar is interesting, inasmuch as it condemns the whole system of banishment, declaring that it produces the complete demoral degradation of the exile. The report also charges cruelty, inefficiency and dishonesty upon 80 officials in Siberia. It is said that the czar is deeply interested in penal reform and that this report has greatly astonished him. The news comes at the same time that Tolstoi is to be banished for taking the part of the dissenters. Wonder has been expressed more than once that this writer has been allowed to express himself so long, but now it seems that the pressure of the Greek church can no longer be withstood.

The Sabbatarians of Connecticut had several prominent citizens arrested at South Norwalk recently for playing golf on Sunday at a well known clubhouse grounds. The action created no little excitement in the town, where public opinion seems to be pretty evenly divided betweeen the sin and the harmlessness of this recreation on Sunday.

The Enemies of Society.

The Leadon bureau of criminal investigation makes the startling report that since the antianarchistic congress was held in Rome London has become the headquarters of all the European nihilists and anarchists, who have flocked there in great numbers, their colony having doubled in three months. They have clubs in Tottenham Court road and Soho, and some of the worst political offenders of the continent are there feted and listened to. Assassins, incendiaries, petroleum throwers and even poisoners, all under a profound belief that they are plotting for the good of society, are known to the London police to be the special heroes and heroines of these gatherings. The bureau of investigation, which keeps its eye on these people and probably has its spies enrolled among the members, reports that the anarchists are well organized, have abundance of money and receive remittances regularly from Russia, Germany and America. Not the least interesting of these developments is the fact that a woman of great wealth is known to the police to be contributing lavishly of her fortune to this junta, and despite all the efforts of the continental secret service her identity remains a mystery. It is the opinion of the bureau that this undesirable colony is anxiously awaiting a revolution in Paris, upon the outbreak of which they will all swarm over there and renew if possible the worst scenes of the days of terror and the commune.

Odd as it may sound, the thieving question among women has outgrown the department store and is the subject of discussion in the women's clubs. One is almost inclined to suspect from the tone of these discussions when they get into print, as they occasionally do, that women are suspicious of their own sex in the matter of small purloining. One woman in the New York Tribune gives it as her experience that she cannot keep "stickpins" in her cushion if she has any female friends about and another declares that it is impossible to lay a pocket piece down with any sense of security when there are women about. Still another, who collected an odd lot of valuable rings abroad and was showing them one evening to a group of her lady visitors, found that when her friends were gone three of the rings had disappeared. This is really a lamentable state of affairs, and it is a question if it ought to be published, because we shall presently have some Nordau or Neitzsche trying to prove that petty larceny is a feminine trait. But. without waiting for either of those men to arrive, here is Mrs. Lydia Weston seriously pointing out that the whole thing grows out of the absurd but common belief of our young women that if they have a male admirer he must give them something. The contemporaneous society girl, she says, estimates the worth of her lover by the presents he makes. This is shocking.

ratti nas been comforted for the death of her fond Nicolini, and, it is now aunounced, will take a third spouse in the person of a Swedish count. She is of the ripe bloom of 65, and with the arts of the toilet, in which she is proficient. as she is peerless in the art of vocalism. she can knock off a third of a century in appearance, unless the sunlight is too strong. The diva is one of those marvelous women who transpose the terms of the French saying and consider themselves as old as they feel.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Week's Proceedings In Both Houses.

AFTER BUTTERINE MAKERS.

Bill Introduced in the Lower House Which Is Destined to Cut Into Their Receipts - Short Sessions of Both Houses Held Saturday.

Friday, Jan. 27.

Representative Purdunn introduced a bill in the house which is destined to cut into the receipts of the butterine people by providing a fine of $100 to $1,000 against officers of state charitable institutions who purchase butterine or oleomargarine for use in the institutions. Representative Ross of Vandalia presented a bill asking for an appropriation of $150,000 for two hospitals, one in northern Illinois and one in southern Illinois, for the care of drunkards. It is to be established by the state and under state supervision, but the cost of maintenance is to come. from saloonkeepers. The following bills were also introduced: To provide for uniform text books in the schools o fthe state; regulating the manner of assessing property; requiring all corporations doing business in this state, other than railroad, banking, building and loan, and insurance companies, to make annual reports to the secretary of state.

Monday, Jan. 30.

The senate met at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and without transacting any business other than approving the journal of Friday adjourned until 10 o'clock next morning. President Pro Tem. Warder, who was in the chair, announced that Senators Aspinwall, Putnam and Mounts would serve as the senate members of the joint committee on rules.

The house convened at 5 o'clock. Immediately after the reading of the journal an adjournment was taken till 10 o'clock next morning.

Tnesday, Jan. 31.

Following is the gist of the routine doings in the legislature:

Senate-House resolution requesting Illinois senators to vote to ratify peace treaty was adopted by viva voce vote without opposition.

House-By unanimous vote, resolution introduced by Mr. Rankin, rep., asking Illinois senators and congressmen to work for bill giving pensions to all union veterans over 62, whether disabled or not, was adopted. Resolution by Mr. Adnold, dem., providing that a committee of three from the house and two from the senate investigate the causes of the Pana strike was referred to committee on contingent expenses. Under suspension of rules resolution by Mr. Rankin protesting against seating of B. H. Roberts as congressman from Utah was adopted, democrats voting in negative. Resolution by Mr. McNabb, dem., favcring election of United States senators by popular vote as only effective means to prevent purchase of seats by bribery, was sent to committee on federal relations.

Diamond Cut Diamond,

The following story comes from Belgium: Two fellow-travelers got into conversation and came upon the subject of free luggage, when one asked leave to measure the other's trunk. The result was that the measurer said: "Your trunk is seven and a half centimetres too long, and has no right to be in the compartment of free luggage. I am a railway inspector and must fine you five francs. Please give me your name and address."

The proposed victim of misplaced confidence was, however, equal to the occasion.

"Kindly lend me your measure that I may satisfy myself on the subject." Then, with a polite smile, "I am a director of the Royal Weights and Measures Office. To my great regret I notice that your measure is not stamped, as is required by law, so that, firstly, your measuring is not legally valid, and, secondly, it is my painful duty to subject you to a fine of fifty francs. Please give me your name and address."

The still youthful czar of All the Russias possesses a very fine and admirably trained tenor voice. It is not of great volume, but of sweet and melodious timbre. Some little time ago the evening drawing room party at from the piano toward his highly-appreciative court audience, and with that naturally amiable impulsiveness and frank speech which lend so great a charm to the imperial domestic circle, his majesty laughingly exclaimed: "Well, my children, my enemies say many harsh and unkind things of me, and accuse me of being destitute of many capacities, but I defy them to say that I can not sing as well as the best of them!"-Tit-Bits, Feeding for Firmness in Butter.

In winter, when the cows are eating fodder, prairie or timothy hay, straw and corn, the butter is so hard that it goes on the bread in lumps unless warmed. The common opinion is that the cold weather makes the butter hard, but the cold is only a part of the cause for this hardness, says H. M. Cottrell in a bulletin issued by the Kansas Agricultural College. Cold does make butter firm, but the extreme hardness is caused by the feed, as all the feeds mentioned have a tendency to harden butter. In the early spring, when the cows first go on grass, the butter is soft and what dealers call "slushy." After the grass becomes less watery, the butter is firmer, although the weather may be much warmer than when the cows were first turned out. The hardness of the butter is determined by the feed. An excess of linseed, gluten or soy bean meals will make butter soft, no matter what the weather may be, while corn, Kaffir corn and cottonseed meal harden the butter. Bran has a tendency to soften butter slightly and oats to harden it. The roughness fed does not have as strong an influence on the firmness of the butter as the grain, but still it has considerable. Alfalfa has a tendency to soften the butter, prairie hay, timothy and corn fodder to make it hard.

The spreading quality of butter is a strong factor in increasing or decreasing its consumption. No one likes it soft and oily, and butter should be firm, having good body, but it must spread easily. We have known cases where dairymen in winter have had orders doubled from private customers by changing the feed from that which produced hard, crumbly butter to feed that made butter which spread well. In summer firm butter brings greater consumption.

The feeds should be blended so as to secure the firmness desired. Last winter, when feeding alfalfa, we balanced its softening tendency with Kaffir corn. If corn, Kaffir corn or cottonseed meals are fed and the butter is too hard, add linseed, gluten or soy bean meals to the ration until the desired body is produced. The dairyman who makes his own butter can readily control this matter. It is important that creamerymen should look after the feed their patrons' cows are receiving.

Apples from Piece Roots.

P. Bechtle, of Iowa, says: We have been propagating from what may be called piece root; that is, a short piece of root is grafted to a long scion, any part of the root being used and all the root. For ten years I have used what I may term a branch-root plan; that is, used one root for one scion, and threw away the other pieces. This is objected to by some, on the ground that they would be likely to winterkill, owing to great length of root to the scion. They also claim that with a long scion planted deep, there is a likelihood of the scions taking root, and the tree eventually being on its own root. I find very, very few of the long scions that take root.

Another conclusion I have arrived at is that the top controls the root, and not the root the tree. This is shown in the Whitney No. 20, when, no matter what root was used, all came to have the typical Whitney root. So in one instance, when Ben Davis was budded into whole root in two years' time became identical in form with four yearold piece root-grafts alongside of them. I have had better luck with branch root grafts and buds than with the piece root, and found the budded stock the best of the three. They stand the cold better, showing no black when the same varieties beside them on piece root, were badly hurt.

New Enemy to Celery in Marylan.

We have this season found an insect injuring celery that is new in our experience. It might be popularly called the celery cob-worm, as it spins a delicate web in and about the plants and upon the ground. The web serves to protect the worm while it is feeding. A bed of celery attacked by this insect looks very much as though it had been blighted many of the leaves turning brown and wilting, but upon close examination we have found a large proportion of the injury is due to the ravages of this insect. We have collected a large amount of material and are now making a series of experiments testing various sprays and mixtures for Its suppression and control. Some of our large growers have been much alarmed on account of the insect's presence. Its attack has been confined principally to the self-blanching varieties, although we have seen it on other plants. I can hardly believe at this time that this insect is going to be an annual visitor; but if it should appear again next season it will be well for celery growers to be on their guard. I think that the attack this season is merely a local one and will not probably occur again in a number of years.-Prof. W. G. Johnson, Maryland state entomologist, in Rura! New Yorker.

HOUSE PASSES ARMY BILL.

Measure to Reorganize the Standing Forces of the Country Had Many Votes to Spare Senate Still Discussing the Peace Treaty Ratification.

Friday, Jan. 27.

Congressman - Hull, in charge of the army bill, announced that the committee would offer amendments to reduce the number of enlisted men to about 60,000, but lodge in the president's discretion the authority to increase the army to its maximum of 100,000. The day was spent in debate on the bill.

In executive session Senator Frye urged the immediate ratification of the peace treaty. Senator Berry opposed it. In open session Senator T. C. Platt of New York took strong ground for the ratification of the treaty. The day's session closed with eulogies of the late Representative Cooke of Illi-

Monday, Jan. 30.

The house put in a hard day's work on the army bill and when it adjourned thirteen of the twenty-two pages had been completed. It was decided to vote on the measure next day.

Senator Carter (Mont.) urged the ratification of the peace treaty. Mr. Mason (Ill.) presented a resolution asking that the secretary of war be directed to furnish for the information of the senate a statement as to the percentage of our soldiers who are sick and have been sick and the number of recent deaths in our army.

Tnesday, Jan. 31.

The bill to reorganize and increase the standing army to about 100,000 men, but giving the president authority to reduce the size of infantry companies and cavalry troops to sixty men each, thus fixing a minimum of about 50,000 enlisted men, passed the house by a vote of 168 to 125.

Senators Gray and Money occupied the entire executive session of the senate in speeches on the peace treaty. Senator Gray favoring ratification and Senator Money opposing it.

British Trade Papers Giving Much At tention to the Subject.

Washington, Feb. 1.-Consul Halstead of Birmingham, England, reports to the state department that there is a great awakening going on among English manufacturers over the disastrous possibilities of American trade competition. A new trade paper here has met with a most cordial reception, he says, and the news columns of both daily and trade papers are filled with facts about American trade, while the matter is given serious editorial discussion, which in English papers means much more serious consideration than the same editorial space devoted to a like subject in the average American newspaper. In this week's issue of the particular trade paper referred to Mr. Halstead says that fully twelve 900-word columns are devoted to American trade matters, about one-half taken from the American consular reports.

Fire Ruins Court Records.

Carlinville, Ill.—The courthouse of Macoupin county, in this city, was visited by fire last night, which destroyed all the original papers in every pending or unfinished case in the county and probate court. Between 500 and 800 papers were burned. The loss of the papers will entail endless litigation, it is feared, for many of the unrecorded documents cannot be duplicated. Many estates in badly tangled condition are involved. The origin of the fire is unknown, but there is a strong belief that it was the work of an incendiary. Macoupin's courthouse, the finest in the west, cost $1,250,000, and was built thirty years ago. There is a bonded debt of $720,000 due on it, to be paid in twelve years.

Shumway Hears from Altgeld.

Springfield, Ill. - Rep. Shumway, whose caustic letter to John P. Altgeld, asking the ex-governor why he was out for mayor on a non-regular ticket, has received a reply that is interesting. Mr. Shumway charged the ex-governor with being a bolter. In reply the governor says that a bolter is a person who will not accept the principle of the majority. Consequently, as he is a firm believer in the Chicago platform, he is not a bolter. He then proceeds to show how Mayor Harrison is a bolter, because he will not accept the Chicago platform as the party faith. He lays bare the alleged Tammany Hall-Chicago combination to control the next national convention, and shows that the republican newspapers of Chicago are running the Harrison administration. The reply has been published in all the papers of this city. and has created a great deal of com-

Hot Attack on Ingersoll.

Decatur, Ill.-Col. R. G. Ingersoll delivered his famous lecture on "Superstitions" this evening in Powers' opera house. Before going to the hall he received a sweeping challenge to debate from the Rev. George F. Hall, pastor of the Christian Tabernacle in this city. The challenge embraces about 2,000 words, and is perhaps the ceived. Dr. Hall reviews the colonel's career as a lecturer for thirty years past, and charges him with ignorance, cowardice, charlatanism and plagiarism. Dr. Hall concludes his challenge with an offer of $500 a night for a debate to last from six to twelve nights. Col. Ingersoll has made no reply. Dr. Hall is now serving his sixth year here as pastor of one of the largest Christian churches in the state.

Farmers Deny the Report.

Avon special: The farmers of this section are indignant as a result of newspaper reports to the effect that they are organizing a new political party known as the farmers' national party. The truth of the matter is that a few "cheap political skates," closely allied with the city administration in Chicago, have joined themselves together for the purpose of "working" the country newspapers for "space" in behalf of the alleged Croker-Harrison combination. The plan is to bolt the regular organization whenever it is found that it cannot be controlled. The local lodges of the Farmers' Alliance have begun to send out circulars warning publishers against indorsing the scheme, and saying that no farmers of repute would join it.

Farmer Earns a Big Reward.

Bushnell, Ill.-George Havens, a young farmer living three miles east of here, has just earned a reward of $2,500 by capturing and turning over to the Indiana authorities a farm hand named Cummings, accused of the murder and robbery of a wealthy citizen at Baton Rouge, Ind., seven years ago. Cummings formerly worked for Havens, and, it is said, he once told his employer that he had killed a man in Indiana. Havens, however, thinking it was a "yarn," paid no attention to it Recently he learned by accident of the Baton Rouge murder, and satisfying himself that Cummings was the man wanted, he followed him up and effected his arrest.

Citizens' Meeting.

A petition has been circulated among the citizens of Barrington during the past two weeks, which has been quite freely signed, favoring the letting of the contract for the pumping of water for the village to the Barrington Electric Light Co., if arrangements satisfactory to the Board can be made with said company. Before any definite action is taken it is the desire of the Board that the citizens of Barrington should have an opportunity to discuss the matter in open meeting, and all intersted are requested to be present at the meeting to be held at the city half next Monday evening and are invited to express their opinions in the mat-HENRY BOEHMER, Pres.

Obituary. Again the death 'angel has visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnett at Jefferson Park, taking away little Maude, their five-year-old daughter. She became a victim of that terrible disease-diphtheria-and although all was done in the way of human efforts, she passed away about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, after a week's illness. On account of sickness only a short service was held at the home, after which the body was taken to Barrington and placed
