Bicknase 15.

The case of Fred Hirnberg vs. Wm. Von Harz came up before Judge Woods in Chicago Wednesday of last week. About forty people were in attendance from Palatine and the courtroom was filled with other interested spectators. Mr. Hirnberg sued for $200 and was represented by Attorneys Voche and Droderlin and two other attorneys, while Mr. Von Harz was represented by the law firm of Harz & Eckels. The trial lasted from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. The plaintiff made a demand of $15 to $16 each for the trees and an expert witness by the name of Fred Blume stated that he had known such trees to be sold for $30 each. A map was shown of exact spots where the trees were claimed to have been stolen over two years ago. When the evidence was all in the battle of the attorneys began, and a 250-pounder was dead sure that Mr. Von Harz had stolen the trees, but the defendants showed that the case was simply one of malice, and the court gave the case to the defendant.

PHANTOM SHIP

OR
The Flying Dutchman.

—BY CAPTAIN MARRYAT.

CHAPTER VIII.—(Continued.)

Philip, hardly knowing why, had followed Schriften as he descended the poop-ladder, and was forward on the quarter-deck when the pilot made this remark to the seamen.

"Ay! ay!" replied an old seaman to the pilot; "not only the devil, but the Flying Dutchman to boot."

"Flying Dutchman," thought Philip;
"can that refer to—?" and Philip walked a step or two forward, so as to conceal himself behind the mainmast, hoping to obtain some information, should they continue the conversation.
In this he was not disappointed.

"They say that to meet with him is worse than meeting with the devil," observed another of the crew.

"Who ever saw him?" said another.
"He has been seen, that's sartin, and just as sartin that ill-luck follows the vessel that falls in with him."

"And where is he to be fallen in with?"

"Oh, they say that's not so sartin
—but he cruises off the Cape."

"I should like to know the whole long and short of the story," said a third.

"I can only tell what I've heard. It's a doomed vessel; they were pirates, and cut the captain's throat, I believe."

"No, no!" cried Schriften, "the captain is in her now—and a villain he was. They say that, like somebody else on board of us now, he left a very pretty wife, and that he was very fond of her."

"How do they know that, pilot?"
"Because he always wants to send letters home when he boards vessels that he falls in with. But, woe to the vessel that takes charge of them!"
she is sure to be lost, with every soul on board!"

"I wonder where you heard all this,"
said one of the men. "Did you ever see the vessel?"

"Yes, I did!" screamed Schriften; but, as if recovering himself, his scream subsided into his usual giggle, and he added, "but we need not fear her, boys; we've a bit of the true cross on board." Schriften then walked aft as if to avoid being questioned, when he perceived Philip by the mainmast.

"So, I'm not the only one curious?" he! he! Pray, did you bring that on board, in case we should fall in with
the Flying Dutchman?"

"I'm no 'Flying Dutchman,'" replied Philip, confused.

"Now I think of it, you are of the same name; at least they say his name was Vanderdecken—eh?"

"There are many Vanderdeckens in the world besides me," replied Philip, who had recovered his composure; and having made this reply, he walked away to the poop of the vessel.

"One would almost imagine this malignant one-eyed wretch was aware of the cause of my embarkation," mused Philip; "but not that cannot be. Why do I feel such a chill whenever he approaches me? I wonder if others do; or whether it is a mere fancy on the part of Amine and myself. I dare ask no questions. Strange, too, that the man should feel such malice toward me. I never injured him. What I have just overheard confirms all; but there needed no confirmation. Oh, Amine! Amine! but for thee; and I would rejoice to solve this riddle at the expense of life. God in mercy, check the current of my brain," muttered Philip, "or my reason cannot hold its seat."

In three days the Ter Schilling and her consorts arrived at Table Bay, where they found the remainder of the fleet at anchor waiting for them.
Just at that period the Dutch had formed a settlement at the Cape of Good Hope, where the Indian fleets used to water, and obtain cattle from the Hottentot tribes who lived on the coast, and who for a brass button or a large nail would willingly offer a fat bullock. A few days were occupied in completing the water of the squadron, and then the ships, having received from the admiral their instructions as to rendezvous in case of parting company, and made every preparation for the bad weather which they anticipated, again weighed their anchors and proceeded on their voyage.

For three days they beat against light and baffling winds, making but little progress; on the third, the breeze sprang up strong from the southward, until it increased to a gale, and the fleet were blown down to the northward of the bay. On the seventh day the Ter Schilling found herself alone, but the weather had moderated.

"The sun looks red as he sinks," observed Hillebrant to the captain.

who with Philip was standing on the poop; "we shall have more wind tomorrow, if I mistake not."

"I am of your opinion," replied Mynheer Kloots. "It is strange that we do not fall in with any of the vessels of the fleet. They must all have been driven down here."

"Perhaps they have kept a wider offing."

A confused noise was heard among the seamen, who were collected together, and, looking in the direction of the vessel's quarter, "A ship! No—yes, it is!" was repeated more than once.

"They think they see a ship," said Schriften, coming on the poop. "He!
he!"

"Where?"
"There, in the gloom!" said the pilot, pointing to the darkest quarter of the horizon, for the sun had set.

The captain, Hillebrant and Philip directed their eyes to the quarter pointed out, and thought they could perceive something like a vessel.
Gradually the gloom seemed to clear away, and a lambent, pale haze to light up that part of the horizon. Not a breath of wind was on the water—the sea was like a mirror—more and more distinct did the vessel appear, till her hull, masts and yards were clearly visible. They looked and rubbed their eyes to help their vision, for scarcely could they believe that which they did see. In the center of the pale light, which extended some fifteen degrees above the horizon, there was indeed a large ship about three miles distant; but, although it was a perfect calm, she was to all appearances bur-feting in a violent gale, plunging and lifting over a surface that was smooth as glass, now careening to her bearing, then recovering herself. Her topsails and mainsail were furled, and the yards pointed to the wind; she had no sail set but a close-reefed foresail, a storm staysail and a trysail abaft.
She made little way through the water, but apparently neared them fast, driven down by the force of the gale. Each minute she was plainer to the view.
At last, she was seen to wear, and, in so doing, before she was brought to the wind on the other task, she was so close to them that they could distinguish the men on board; they could see the foaming water as it was hurled from her bows; hear the shrill whistle of the boatswain's pipes, the creaking of the ship's timbers, and the complaining of her masts; and then the gloom gradually rose, and in a few seconds, she had totally disappeared.

"God in heaven!" exclaimed Mynheer Kloots.

Philip felt a hand upon his shoulder, and the cold darted through his whole frame. He turned round and met the one eye of Schriften, who screamed in his ear:
"Philip Vanderdecken—that's the Flying Dutchman!"

CHAPTER IX.

The sudden gloom which had succeeded to the pale light had the effect of rendering every object still more indistinct to the astonished crew of Ter Schilling. For a moment or more not a word was uttered by a soul on board.
Some remained with their eyes still strained toward the point where the apparition had been seen, others turned away full of gloomy and foreboding thoughts. Hillebrant was the first who spoke; turning round to the eastern quarter, and observing a light on the horizon, he started, and seizing Philip by the arm, cried out: "What's that?"

"That is only the moon rising from the bank of clouds," replied Philip, mournfully.

"Well!" observed Mynheer Kloots, wiping his forehead, which was damped with perspiration, "I have been told of this before, but I have mocked at the narration."

Philip made no reply. Aware of the reality of the vision, and how deeply it interested him, he felt as if he were a guilty person.

The moon had now risen above the clouds, and was pouring her mild, pale light over the slumbering ocean. With a simultaneous impulse, every one directed his eyes to the spot where the strange vision had last been seen, and all was a dead, dead calm.

Since the apparition, the pilot, Schriften, had remained on the poop;
he now gradually approached Mynheer Kloots, and looking round, said:

"Mynheer Kloots, as pilot of this vessel, I tell you that you must prepare for very bad weather."

"Bad weather!" said Kloots, rousing himself from a deep reverie.

"Yes, bad weather, Mynheer Kloots."

There never was a vessel which fell in with—what we have just seen, but met with disaster soon afterward. The very name of Vanderdecken is unlucky
—he! he!"

Philip would have replied to this sarcasm, but he could not; his tongue was tied.

"What has the name of Vander-decken to do with it?" observed Kloots.

"Have you not heard, then? The captain of that vessel we have just seen is a Mynheer Vanderdecken—he is the 'Flying Dutchman!'"

"How know you that, pilot?" inquired Hillebrant.

"I know that, and much more, if I chose to tell," replied Schriften; "but never mind, I have warned you of bad weather, as is my duty;" and, with these words, Schriften went down the poop ladder.

"God in heaven! I never was so puzzled and so frightened in my life," observed Kloots. "I don't know what to think or say. What think you, Philip?
Was it not supernatural?"

"Yes," replied Philip, mournfully. "I have no doubt of it."

"I thought the days of miracles had passed," said the captain, "and that we were now left to our own exertions, and had no other warnings, but those the appearance of the heavens gave us."

"And they warn us now," observed Hillebrant. "See how that bank of clouds has risen within these five minutes—the moon has escaped from it, but it will soon catch her again—and see, there is a flash of lightning in the northwest."

"Well, my sons, I can brave the elements as well as any man, and do my best. I have cared little for gales or stress of weather; but I like not such a warning as we have had tonight. My heart is heavy as lead, and that's the truth. Philip, send down for the bottle of schnapps, if it is only to clear my brain a little."

Philip was glad of an opportunity to quit the poop; he wished to have a few minutes to recover himself and collect his own thoughts.

Philip remained below not more than half an hour. On his return to the deck, what a change had taken place!
He had left the vessel floating motionless on the still waters, with her lofty sails hanging down listlessly from the yards. The moon then soared aloft in her beauty, reflecting the masts and sails of the ship in extended lines upon the smooth sea. Now all was dark; the water rippled short and broke in foam; the smaller and lofty sails had been taken in, and the vessel was cleaving through the water; and the wind, in fitful gusts and angry moan-ings, proclaimed too surely that it had been awakened up to wrath, and was gathering in strength for destruction.
The men were still busy reducing the sails, but they worked gloomily and discontentedly. What Schriften, the pilot, had said to them, Philip knew not; but that they avoided him, and appeared to look upon him with feelings of ill-will was evident. And each minute the gale increased.

It was an interminably long and terrible night—they thought the day would never come. At last the darkness gradually changed to a settled, sullen, gray gloom—which was day.
They looked at each other, but found no comfort in meeting each other's eyes. There was no one countenance in which a beam of hope could be found lurking. They were all doomed—they remained crouched where they had sheltered themselves during the night, and said nothing.

The sea had now risen mountains high, and more than one had struck the ship abait. Kloots was at the bi-nnacle, Hillebrant and Philip at the helm, when a wave curled high over the quarter and poured itself in a resistless force upon the deck. The captain and his two mates were swept away and dashed almost senseless against the bulwarks—the binnacle and compass were broken into fragments—no one ran to the helm—the vessel broached to—the seas broke clear over her and the mainmast went by the board.

All was confusion. Capt. Kloots was stunned, and it was with difficulty that Philip could persuade two of the men to assist him down below. Hillebrant had been more unfortunate—his right arm was broken and he was otherwise severely bruised. Philip assisted him to his berth, and then went on deck again to try and restore order.

Philip Vanderdecken was not much of a seaman, but, at all events, he exercised that moral influence over the men which is ever possessed by resolution and courage. Obey willingly they did not, but they did obey, and in half an hour the vessel was clear of the wreck. Eased by the loss of her heavy mast, and steered by two of her best seamen, she again flew before the gale.

Every year about 280,000 conscripts are added to the Russian army. In times of peace it numbers 1,000,000 men, and is the largest standing army

A BRAVE COLONEL.

RECOMMENDS PE-RU-NA AS A FAMILY MEDICINE.

A Scientific Spring Medicine and Remedy for Catarrh and Stomach Trouble.

Colonel Arthur L. Hamilton, of the Seventh Ohio Volunteers, 259 Goodale street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Besides having the merits of Pe-ru-na so fully demonstrated in my family, I Colonel Hamilton, of Columbus, O. have a number of friends who have taken it for catarrh and stomach trouble, and all unite in praising it. As a remedy for catarrh I can fully recommend it." Mrs. Hamilton, wife of the gallant colonel, is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na also. In a letter on the subject, she writes: "I have been taking Pe-ru-na for some time, and I am enjoying better health now than I have for years. I attribute the change in my health to Pe-ru-na, and recommend this excellent catarrh remedy to every woman, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

The spring-time is the most favorable time of the year to treat catarrh. There is so much less liability to take fresh cold that the treatment is unimpeded. All old cases of chronic catarrh should begin immediately a course of Pe-ru-na as directed in Dr. Hartman's books on this disease. There are so many different phases and stages of catarrh that one hardly knows when he has it. A great many people Mrs. Col. Hamilton, think they are suffering from something else and have tried many remedies in vain, when if they could realize that it is catarrh and take Pe-ru-na for it they would improve promptly and soon recover entirely. There are no substitutes. Let no one persuade you there are other catarrh remedies just as good.

"Winter Catarrh" is a book written by Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio. Sent free to any address.

HERE'S A ROMANCE.

Connecticut Girl to Marry a Man She Has Not Seen.

Winsted, Conn., telegram: Miss Annie Burns, an attractive young woman about 22 years old, employed by the Winsted Hosiery Company, left for Los Angeles, Cal., to marry Walter Null, the owner of a large orange plantation. About a year ago she saw his "ad" in a matrimonial paper for a wife, and she answered it. They have been corresponding since then, and Saturday she received $80 which he sent her to use in going to California. Null is supposed to be very wealthy, and as Miss Burns is extremely good-looking, her friends think that both are fortunate. On the same train upon which Miss Burns started was Miss Ida Newbro, who is returning to Los Angeles. Three years ago she left her home in that place to come here and marry Irving W. Dean, foreman in the Morgan Silver Plate Company, and a man of some means. They became engaged through correspondence brought about by a newspaper "ad." She secured $300 from him for her expenses to the east. A short time ago Mrs. Dean accused her husband of infidelity and secured a divorce and the right to assume her former name. She also secured $2,500 alimony. She sued for $10,000. It is not known where Dean is at this time. So while Miss Burns is speeding toward her future husband, orange groves and orange blossoms, Miss Newbro is returning to the scenes of her childhood, a broken-hearted woman, with her little $2,500.

MOTHERHOOD is woman's natural destiny.

Many women are denied the happiness of children through some derangement of the generative organs. Actual barrenness is rare.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the overcoming of cases of supposed barrenness. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency is vouched for by multitudes of women.

MRS. ED. WOLFORD, of Lone Tree, Iowa, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had one child which lived only six hours. The doctor said it did not have the proper nourishment while I was carrying it. I did not feel at all well during pregnancy. In time I conceived again, and thought I would write to you for advice. Words cannot express the gratitude I feel towards you for the help that your medicine was to me during this time. I felt like a new person; did my work up to the last, and was sick only a short time. My baby weighed ten pounds. He is a fine boy, the joy of our home. He is now six weeks old and weighs sixteen pounds. Your medicine is certainly a boon in pregnancy."

MRS. FLORA COOPER, of Doyle, S. Dak., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Ever since my last child I suffered with inflammation of the womb, pains in back, left side, abdomen and groins. My head ached all the time. I could not walk across the floor without suffering intense pain. I kept getting worse, until two years ago I wrote to you for advice, and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had not finished the first bottle before I felt better. I took four bottles, and have been strong and perfectly healthy ever since, and now have two of the nicest little girls."

THE BEST SPRING TONIC.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood needs attention and sensible people always take a tonic at this time of year. Purgatives are not the right medicine—they weaken instead of strengthening.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine in the world and do not act on the bowels. They stimulate the appetite, enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and make people feel bright, active and strong.

No one is better able to speak of this fact than Miss Hazel Snider, a charming young woman of Arlington, Ind. To-day she has rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and a plump form, which prove that she is in good health. A year ago Miss Snider was very thin, her cheeks pale, eyes sunken and dull. She was troubled with nervousness and general debility. She says:

"After several months' treatment from the family physician we saw he could do no good. I was discouraged and did not know what to do. One day I read an item in a paper of the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I tried the medicine, and when nearly through with the second box noticed a change for the better. After I had taken eight boxes I was cured, and have had no occasion to take any kind of medicine since. I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, probably my life, and I advise any one suffering with troubles similar to mine, to take these pills."

Sold by all druggists or sent post-paid by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y., on receipt of price, 50¢ per box; six boxes, $2.50.

The Anglo-Saxon Brute.

When the ignorant Briton is a brute, he is probably the most brilliant example of that article in the world. Every little while stories leak out about wife beating in the west of England that to us seem incredible, but which are accepted by the English people with singular insensibility. Some years ago Richard Grant White gave some accounts of wife flogging in England which raised quite a hue and cry, and when the truth of his statements was challenged there came to him the daughter of a well known public man and showed him the marks of her father's horsewhip across her arms and shoulders. This brutal punishment had been inflicted in a paternal way upon a full grown woman, and the man's right to inflict it went unchallenged. What may be called connubial sensibility appears to have given way in the lower classes of England to something like savage authority. London Truth of recent issue gives an account of a husband who beat his wife about the head with an iron bar, fracturing her jaw and otherwise injuring her. When she appealed to a policeman by gesture—for she could not speak—her husband had the best of it with his tongue, and the wife was arrested, the husband making complaint against her, with the result that she was fined £1 and committed 14 days. The curious part of this is, as Truth intimates, that it creates no sort of public indignation, whereas had it taken place in Arkansas the man would probably have been lynched.

Carl Schurz, whose friends recently honored him with a banquet on his seventieth birthday, gave this little bit of personal history in his reply to the toast of the evening: "The brilliant scene here before me recalls to my mind with great vividness the September day in 1852 when I landed upon these shores as an exile from my native land. I well remember my first wanderings through the streets of New York, some of which were at the time decorated with the trappings of a presidential campaign, then almost unintelligible to me. I remember my lonely musings on a bench in Union square, the whirl and noise near me only deepening the desolation and forlornness of my feeling. Still, I was firmly determined that for better or worse this should be my home and my country for the rest of my life." In that half century of exile Carl Schurz received some of the highest honors that his adopted country could bestow upon him. While, therefore, the narration was a tribute to his own fidelity of purpose, it was also a magnificent tribute to the country that held its arms open to him.

Captain James B. Irwin, the officer commanding the United States troops stationed in the National Yellowstone park, writes to confirm the stories which have been told of the friendliness of the wild animals in the park. He says he has seen as many as 15,000 elk at one time in the domain. They were easily overtaken by a man on snowshoes and exhibited no signs of fear. It is no uncommon sight, he says, to see a bear with two or three cubs trailing at her heels, and she is very apt to sit down on her haunches by the side of the road while the traveler passes.

It was announced some time ago that a club had been formed in Vienna whose members were pledged to marry only poor girls. This club is still in existence, and a good deal of anxiety is felt to know how it works. Every member who for any reason marries a rich girl is fined $2,000. A paragraph in a foreign paper saying that the club is in active operation would seem to indicate that its treasury is replete with fines.

People who eat bakers' bread will be glad to know that under a state law passed three years ago to improve the sanitary conditions of the bakeries in the state of New York there were 3,836 of such shops inspected. The report considerably refrains from telling us in just what condition most of the shops were found, but it announces that $200,000 has been spent in cleaning them up, and this leaves a large margin for the imagination to work upon.

That Open Door.

A greater muddle than ever is the "open door" question in China. Events do not move in accordance with Lord Charles Beresford's programme. Russia objects to the English loan to China. Germany demands a share in the Anglo-German railway from Tien-tsin, and now Italy has put in a claim. Japan, it must not be forgotten, has an old claim on Fukien. What Americans claim or what their policy is nobody can yet make out. It is believed in England that a clear statement of views by our government would end the muddle at once—that is, if the statement coincided with the views of Great Britain. Events in China cannot long be held in abeyance. Russia continues to be energetic, quite irrespective of diplomacy, and the feeling in London is that the indecision of America is Russia's opportunity. This situation is made a little more tense by the news that the ameer of Afghanistan is dying or dead. Definite news is very hard to obtain, for it is not the policy of the tribes to let the truth be known. But one has only to refresh himself with the Samoan imbroglio to see what is likely to take place in Afghanistan on a larger scale. Figure it as we may, the immediate "trace of God" in Europe and Asia appears to finite eyes to be very tangled.

At irregular intervals there comes a vague but ominous intimation that the sultan is working some kind of secret propaganda among the Mohammedans in India and elsewhere. It is pretty well understood that the course of events in Africa is not relished by the faithful. The rumors are always associated with the fact that the Mohammedans are an enormous aggregate in the world and with an uncertain dread that they will make common cause. But in Bombay and Calcutta these fears, curiously enough, are not as acute as they are in the west, for the reason that it is understood that the Mohammedan faith is a disintegrating power, with no other unit than the caliph at Constantinople, who is already regarded by many intelligent followers of Islam either as a usurper or an incompetent, holding his place by the sufferance of Europe. Sir Thomas Pyne, who is probably the best informed man in India at this time on all native affairs, assents to this view and clearly sees that western civilization in India has only one thing to fear, and it is Russia, not Mohammed.

There are 125 wholesale candy firms in New York, and the trade represents an annual income of $10,000,000. At least $500,000 worth of candy is exported annually, most of it in chocolate forms, and it goes to Paris and London. America does not waste her sweetness on the desert air.

Party lines were drawn a little more definitely for the next presidential campaign by the Democrats of the house of representatives in caucus declaring their opposition to the permanent holding of the Philippines. This would appear to indicate the issue of the next political fight.

Lord Salisbury recently said at a banquet in London, when alluding to the admirals and their work at Crete. "I have sometimes thought that if the cabinets were all dismissed and admirals were put in their places Europe would get on better." More than one president of the United States must have had the same thought at times. The directness, the good judgment and the efficacy of the work done by army and naval officers abroad is a subject of constant pride in both England and America, but it is not an argument for the displacing of the civil by the military power. It is merely a reminder that the men who are not educated in the school of the politician are the best men to execute the laws undeterred and unflinchingly. Politics is the bane of civilization.

There is a great deal of anxiety in England to know what became of the Mahdi's head when his tomb at Omdurman was destroyed. The story was circulated that his bones were distributed among the English officers, some of whom brought back with them a rib or a toe nail, and that his head was sent to General Gordon's son as a memorial of poetic justice. It is pleasant to record that General Gordon's son emphatically denies that he ever saw the head. There is now a strong suspicion that it is in possession of the College of Surgeons and Physicians.

Some of the items in the Russian budget for the current year are interesting. Thus the department of state demands 3,000,000 rubles, the salaries of the orthodox priests 21,000,000, the imperial household 12,000,000, the navy 83,000,000, and 109,000,000 goes to the expenses of the great Transsiberian railroad. This will show how important Russia considers this railroad to be.

Congress in refusing to grant the request of the secretary of the navy for 15 new warships did not please the country at large, if one can judge by the press. After cutting down the list to six ships congress adjourned without increasing the price necessary to provide the armor plates.

It looks now as if the troubles at Samoa would be averted by agreement to withdraw the representatives of the three powers. However unjust this may be to Chief Justice Chambers, it is nevertheless a diplomatic way of cutting a gordian knot.

The kaiser has now given a strong evidence of his friendship for America. When any of my admirals imitate me in manner and are insolent, don't I suppress them? What better evidence of friendship can the United States want?

An American lady, so an English tourist reports, being asked what she was, fixed her status by replying that she was a lady patroness, and being further pressed to explain what that was said it was a position of honor which permitted everybody to use one's name on their benefit bills and advertisements.

The vitality of the aged pope surprises nobody so much as his physicians. He astonished them all recently by getting out of the sickbed and repeating the seventh canto of Dante's "Paradise" entire with the most amiable comments, that showed his intellectual power to be in the best possible condition.

There is something pathetic in those poor devils at Manila trying to face rapid fire guns with bows and arrows. What an immeasurable gap it discloses between material civilization and barbarism! As one of our officers said, the first thing we have to do is to give these people object lessons in killing and then develop their moral sense by binding up their wounds.

Interesting stories are told of Miss Jane H. Thomas of Nashville, Tenn., who was born Sept. 3, 1800, and in spite of her great age is still receiving offers of marriage. As a young woman she was greatly admired for her beauty and wit. Many prominent men of the south were her suitors, but all of them were rejected. One of the recent speakers at a Woman's league referred to her as "a shining example of sex integrity of purpose." But some of the Nashville people call her with endearment "the oldest old maid on the continent."

ARE FLEEING TO MALOLOS.

American Troops Drive Filipino Rebels Inward.

AGUINALDO'S LAST STAND.

Gen. Otis Expects Soon to Fight the Last Great Battle in the Philippines—Many of Our Soldiers Killed and Wounded—Col. Egbert Slain.

The American troops, March 26, found the important town of Polo, near Manila, and a number of small villages west of the railroad deserted and burning.

The Washington volunteers, who held Pasig, had an engagement with a band of natives, who drove in their outposts.

The Filipinos are burning their fortifications at Malabon and their forces are fleeing from the city in the direction of Malolos.

The natives will make their last stand probable at Malolos.

MacArthur dashed beyond Polo and to the northeast and captured Newcanayan. That place is two miles beyond Polo. It was not taken without a fight. The Filipinos left detachments in all the trenches to delay the advance. Newcanayan is at the base of the hills and at the edge of the jungle. The road forward is in clear ground. The railroad over the country to the rear, which has been occupied, is being repaired and fresh troops are being loaded on cars to be rushed forward.

Col. H. C. Egbert, Twenty-second infantry, was killed while at the head of his regiment, covering the work of repairing the bridge over the Tullahan river.

Our losses at the latest report were thirty-one killed, 230 wounded, since the morning of March 25. The Filipinos losses are vastly heavier.

Latest News from Manila.

A contingency now feared in army circles is that the long fighting, continuously aggravated by rough country and climate, may exhaust the troops before they reach Malolos.

The war department is giving serious consideration to the advisability of sending another regiment to the Philippines in addition to those en route and under orders.

There is no ground for the report that the war and navy departments are uneasy over the situation and that Admiral Dewey has cabled for more ships and men.

A list prepared in the office of the adjutant general shows the casualties in Manila since Feb. 4 to be 157 killed and 864 wounded.

Prisoners captured by Gen. Otis say Aguinaldo has declared that if the Americans can take the Filipino capital he will surrender.

Aguinaldo's London agent says the Filipinos are willing to negotiate terms of surrender with Admiral Dewey, but never with Gen. Otis.

The town of Bocave, in the Philippines, have been taken by our troops. Gen. MacArthur is now within eight miles of Malolos.

The war department has practically determined to appoint Arthur MacArthur a brigadier general in the regular service.

Gen. Otis has made no report of the wounding of Gen. Hale, which was reported to Denver.

Have Recovered Five Bodies.

The bodies of five employees who were entrapped in the fire at the Armour company's plant at Chicago have been recovered. Three other are still believed to be buried in the debris.

To Ratify Extradition Treaty.

At the meeting of the Mexican congress next month the new extradition treaty, already ratified by the United States senate, will be ratified by the Mexican senate.

Vice-President Hobart Ill.

Vice President Hobart is far from being a well man. He is suffering from the after effects of grip and is troubled with asthma to a distressing extent.

Proposal Has Been Abandoned.

The German proposal for the partition of the Samoan islands has been abandoned, owing to the lack of response, particularly from Great Britain.

Our Dead and Wounded.

The total of known dead and wounded soldiers in the Philippines whose names have been forwarded is now twenty-eight dead and 210 wounded.

Murderer Lynched in Kansas.

A mob took Henry Sanderson from the jail at Holton, Kan., and lynched him. He had attempted to shoot his sweetheart and shot the girl's aunt.

Will Need 50,000 Troops.

War department officials admit that at least 50,000 troops will be needed in the Philippines to repress the insurgents and restore order.

"One Swallow Does Not Make a Spring."

Myriads of birds announce the opening of bright days and bring promise of renewed health and strength. They teach us a lesson—to set our human house in order by thoroughly cleansing our blood, making it new, pure and bright.

The one specific with which to accomplish this is Hood's Sarsaparilla, America's Greatest Spring Medicine. Its work is thorough, and good health is sure to follow.

Rheumatism—"Inflammatory rheumatism caused me suffering so that I could not sleep or walk. Had no appetite and medicine seemed useless. Finally used Hood's Sarsaparilla which took away all pain." Mrs. STELLA NORRIS, Marion, Ohio.

Malaria—"I was a soldier, and after typhoid fever I had fever and ague, rheumatism and nervous prostration so that I could not work. Nothing helped until Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me completely so that I lost no time now." J. H. SILLMAN, Cheltenham, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Fewer Blondes.

Fair-haired people are said to be becoming less numerous than formerly. The ancient Jews were a fair-haired race; now they are, with few exceptions, dark. So it is, in a lesser degree, with the Irish, among whom 150 years ago a dark-haired person was almost unknown.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

A Knotty Problem Solved.

An amusing story in connection with the great Bishop Wilberforce was told by Dr. Newman Hall when speaking at a temperance meeting in London. He once asked the bishop if it were true that on one occasion, after examining a Sunday school, he said, "Now, children, I have been asking you a lot of questions. Just ask me one." A lad promptly took the divine at his word, and put the following poser: "P-p-please, sir, w-w-what use was Jacob's l-l-ladder to the angels if they had w-w-wings?" The bishop was said to have been puzzled, and walked the schoolroom pensively, until a bright idea struck him, and wheeling round to the boys, cried authoritatively, "Now, boys, you have heard that question? Why don't you give it an answer?" To his lordship's further surprise one of the children had an answer ready, to the effect that the angels could not at that time use their wings because they were "moulting."

Remove from the stove, stir for a minute briskly, and add nuts and vanilla. Pour into buttered pan and mark into squares when partly cooled.

Treatment of Frozen Trees.

The Ohio Experiment Station sends out the following: A number of inquiries have come to the Ohio Experiment Station concerning the best method of treatment of fruit trees which have been injured by freezing. It may be said, in the beginning, that a frozen branch is of no use to the tree, and the best thing that can be done is to remove all parts that are seriously affected. The questions which naturally arise are "When should pruning be done and how much of the top shall be removed?"

It is well to wait until it is possible to determine about how much injury has been done, as shown by the discolored wood and shriveled bark. Usually one warm spell is a sufficient length of time to wait, but it is possible to defer the work too long, as the frozen wood seems to have a deleterious effect upon the sound parts, if not removed before growth commences. During March, and in some cases even as late as April, the pruning should be done. The quantity of wood to be removed will be determined, in most cases, by the extent of the injury; but in the case of peach and some varieties of plum trees an important exception may be mentioned. These ought to be pruned more severely than merely to remove injured wood, except where they are killed to the snow line, and in such a case it is doubtful if they can be saved at all.

Peach trees which are from three to five years old and have never been pruned to any extent need special attention. In case the injury to such trees does not extend beyond the twigs and small branches, the best thing that can be done is to cut off all the branches to within one or three feet of the body of the tree. A tree five years old, which has been allowed to grow at will, may have long, slender branches, six to ten feet in length, with most of the fruit-bearing wood near the extremities. Such a tree needs topping, even if a crop has to be sacrificed in order to get it into proper shape. To cut out half the top from such a tree will improve succeeding crops and prolong the life of the tree. This puts the pruning upon a different basis. It is to be done not merely to remove dead wood, but to get the trees into shape for future usefulness. With this object in view the trees are to be so pruned that they can carry the next crop of fruit without breaking down. Of course it will be necessary to cut off limbs of considerable size, in many cases, and it will not be possible to avoid naked stubs.

This can be remedied the next season, however, at which time surplus branches may be removed also. Incidentally, it should be stated that some cutting back is necessary each season, in order to keep the trees in proper form. This method of pruning peach trees has so many advantages, that the loss of this season's crop will really prove to be a blessing to those who take advantage of the present opportunity to get their trees into proper shape. In case of young trees which have been planted only one or two years, it may be found that the injury extends to the trunk, and possibly to near the ground. If there is life above the bud the best thing to do is to cut the entire top away as far as there appears to be injury, and start a new top. If cut off early in the season, however, the stump is apt to become dry, as shown by cracking. To prevent this the end should be covered with wax, or some material that will prevent the escape of moisture.

American and Japanese varieties of plums should be treated in the same manner as peach trees, and possibly sweet cherries also. Apple and pear trees will probably need no pruning of the kind mentioned.

Bottled Milk in New York.

The demand for bottled milk is growing in New York, and to all except the cheap trade milk is supplied in this form, says Country Gentleman. The milk is bottled both in the city after it has been shipped in forty-quart cans, and in the country on the farm. The highest-class dairies have their milk bottled on the farm, but cheap imitators of them bottle it in the city. When bottled on the farm, one-third of the contents of the bottle usually shows cream, and as many customers judge their milk by the amount of apparent cream on the top, this method should prove the most satisfactory. It may cost a trifle more to ship a box of forty quart bottles to the city than a can of forty quarts; but in the end the milk is apt to be better and is less likely to be tampered with. One of the most successful dairy companies in the city seals the top of the milk bottle at the dairy, and advises its customers to refuse to take any with the seal broken. This is certainly an effective way of getting around the small retailer who frequently waters his milk. The standard price of milk has been 8 cents a quart here for many years; but there are plenty of stores which sell milk at 5 and 6 cents a quart. This is all can milk, and is never sold for less than 7 or 8 cents in bottles.

The greatest pilgrimages to the holy land are undertaken by the Russians. It has been calculated that between 30,000 and 40,000 Russians visit Palestine every year.

Fatal Fire at Gray's Lake.

Waukegan, Ill.—A disastrous fire occurred at Gray's Lake, twelve miles west of here, last night, the large lumber yard, lime sheds and coal yards of F. C. Wilbur & Co. being destroyed. Fred Potter, Jr., aged 25, a member of the firm, lost his life in the flames. A large grain elevator, the property of the same company, was saved by a bucket brigade, made up of all the citizens of the town. The fire originated in a room over the company's office, and smoke was first seen pouring from the room at 6 o'clock. Young Potter was early on the scene, and, despite the protests of anxious friends, he rushed into the burning office, never to return. His charred body was discovered in the ruins at 10:30 last night. The entire property was valued at $12,000. The loss is estimated at $7,000, with $5,000 insurance.

Benson Brothers Acquitted.

Bloomington, Ill.—The trial of Benson Bros., grain dealers of Colfax, indicted for embezzlement, has attracted crowds to the courthouse for a fortnight. Last night, while Hon. John A. Sterling of the city was making an argument for the prosecution, he turned to John Benson, a defendant, and suggested that he might have fired the Benson elevator at Colfax. Benson's counsel objected, but no notice was taken of it, and a moment later Sterling repeated the suggestion. Benson jumped to his feet, seized the chair in which he had been sitting and hurled it at Sterling, ten feet away. The chair struck Sterling squarely in the back of the head, knocking him into the lap of a jurymen. A bailiff and several attorneys seized Benson and took him away from another chair, which he was about to throw at the attorney. He was overpowered and sat down, declaring that if the court would not protect him he could protect himself. This evening the jury returned a verdict acquitting the Benson Bros. The judge cited John Benson to appear Saturday for contempt of court.

Nearly Everybody Knows

That a poor harness is dear at any price. My business is strictly confined to the manufacturing of Harnesses and the sale of Horse Goods. My constant attention given in the handling of Leather Goods for a number of years has some significance in the selection of materials. You couldn't expect a man who has spent most of his life in a grocery store to be as good a judge of steel as a blacksmith, who has made a life study of that particular material.

I select personally all Leather used and the manufacturing of it into Harnesses is done by me or under my direction. I make Harnesses at as low a price as anyone.

Experience Social.

An Experience social was given in the parlors of the Baptist church on Wednesday evening. An unusually large assembly gathered to learn how ladies earn money and to participate in a general good time. At 8:15 o'clock Mrs. Luella Austin, president of the society, requested the secretary, Miss Cora Higley, to call the roll and each member was asked to tell their experience in earning their money. This proved an interesting feature of the program. Some earned money by making and selling candies, others by scribbling, washing, caring for horses, shampooing, sewing, etc. Spring poetry was dealt out in unlimited quantities, much to the delight of all. Mrs. S. G. Seebert, who earned $11, was given a handsome china dish by the society as a prize. Rev. S. S. Hageman making the presentation speech. Mrs. Luella Austin and Mrs. C. H. Kendall earned over $6 each. The total experience money was $52.80. The proceeds of the supper amounted to $17.09.

Many old soldiers now feel the effects of the hard service they endured during the war. Mr. Geo. S. Anderson of Rossville, York county, Penn., who saw the hardest kind of service at the front, is now frequently troubled with rheumatism. "I had a severe attack lately," he says, "and procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It did so much good that I would like to know what you would charge me for one dozen bottles." Mr. Anderson wanted it both for his own use and to supply it to his friends and neighbors, as every family should have a bottle of it in their home, not only for rheumatism, but lame backs, sprains, swellings, cuts, bruises and burns, for which it is unequalled. For sale by A. S. Olms, Palatine and A. L. Waller, Barrington.
