The Ladies' Aid society held their first apron carnival Tuesday evening and it was a success. They cleared $17.25. A number of aprons are left over and the ladies have them for sale to anyone in need.
Our former townsman, C. A. Cutting, was nominated for Probate Judge by the Republican county convention last Saturday. Mr. Cutting will make a good man in this position and his many friends in Palatine wish him success and he is sure to get it.
A mass meeting will be held in the Palatine town hall next Monday evening, May 21, at 8 o'clock sharp for the purpose of devising the best plan to prevent the abolishment of all township organizations in Cook county, as is being agitated in Chicago. All citizens are urged to attend and discuss this issue.
The fire bell brought out a big crowd just before 1 o'clock Monday. James Young's barn had caught on fire from hot ashes thrown upon a pile of straw in the chicken yard. Neighbors hastened to the rescue and by attaching a garden hose to the city water pipe in the house, the fire was soon extinguished with little loss.
Moral: Don't put ashes on straw and be sure and put in city water.

Married—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Haberkamp at Schaumburg, Ill., on Thursday May 10th, 1900, Rudolph F. Schering to Miss Minnie Haberkamp. The wedding was a large one, many from Palatine attending. The groom is a Palatine boy having lived here with his parents until about two years ago, when he went to Schaumburg where he has since been working at the carpenter trade. THE REVIEW offers congratulations.

Married, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babcock in Palatine on Monday evening, May 14, Miss Rose Fallacy of Chicago to Mr. Wm. Coburn of the same place. Miss Fallacy is a sister of Mrs. Babcock and the groom is employed by the Union Traction company as engineer in one of the power houses. Rev. F. B. Hardin, pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony and the wedding was private, only those mentioned being present.

We only need to name the crowd to let you know that they had a good time at the river last Friday. The crowd started from here at five o'clock a. m., ate breakfast at Elmer Robertson's residence at Lake Zurich, and proceeded to the river where they enjoyed themselves as they did when they used to play hockey from school and go fishing. They were red as lobsters when they got back and happy as clams. They had good luck in getting fish, too. The party consisted of Wm. Hicks, James McCabe, sr., James McCabe jr., Robert Mosser, Elmer Robertson, John Swick, Thos. Boyle, Chas Patten, C. D. Taylor and Peter Knowe.

High School Team Wins.

The high school ball team went to Arlington Heights last Saturday afternoon and came home with a victory to their credit. It was the first game of their career and the boys put up a first-class game. A big crowd of pupils went with them to encourage the team and Professor Smyzer was there to coach the players. The Palatine team went to bat and run in four scores the first inning, thereby getting a lead that the Heights team could not overcome. They had the game in their possession throughout; the only time there was any doubt was in the last inning, when their opponents rallied and run in three scores. The final score was 12 to 8. The contest was a good one and the high school team will put up a much stronger game as soon as they can get a little more practice. Rolland Beutler is a puzzle in the box and struck out a number of men last Saturday and at no time allowed the batters to pound him. Filbert, behind the bat, cannot be bettered as he made but one error during the game. Williams, on third, played a clean game and the rest of the team showed good work when opportunity offered.

Carl Yonson.

Owing to the many requests for a repetition of their play "Carl Yonson the Woodman," the local camp will repeat their drama and dance on Friday night in Battermann's hall. A number of tickets have been sold at this early date and the boys are looking for another big crowd Friday night.

Obituary.

Harrison C. Church.

Harrison C. Church, son of Caroline J. Church, whose death occurred at a hospital in Santa Barbara, California, Tuesday, May 8, of peritonitis, after an illness of only twelve days, was born at Barrington, April 22, 1860.

At the age of 18 years he left Barrington and entered a grocery store in Chicago as a clerk. After three years in Chicago he went to Clinton, Wisconsin, where he started in the mercantile business for himself. He was very successful and built up a large trade but on account of ill health sold out his business in 1896. Mr. Church spent nearly a year travelling throughout the United States, Alaska and Cuba, taking in all of the most important points of interest. In 1897 he accepted a position as traveling salesman for Francis T. Simmons & Co., Chicago, and had succeeded in building up a large business for them when he was suddenly called away.

The funeral was held at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Caroline J. Church, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Leek of Green Bay, Wis., conducting the services at the house. Lounsbury Lodge No. 751, A. F. & A. M., took charge of the funeral from the house. Mr. Church was a member of the Masonic, Woodmen and Home Forum lodges. There were a large number from Clinton present at the funeral representing the different lodges to which he belonged. Besides his mother he leaves two brothers, Horace H. and Jared C. and three sisters, Alice S., Ella M. Harrower and Anna Stott, who greatly mourn his loss. Interment took place at Evergreen cemetery.

Arthur G. Hollister.

Arthur G. Hollister, son of Mrs. Frank Hollister, died at Cleveland, Ohio, Wednesday night, May 16, of typhoid fever after an illness of five weeks. He was born near Barrington, February 8, 1877. When only 15 years of age he entered in the employ of the United States Sugar Refinery at Waukegan. After working two years with this corporation he was offered a better position with the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing company which he accepted. Two years ago he was promoted and was transferred to Cleveland, Ohio, where he was employed until the time of his late illness. His remains were brought to Barrington yesterday and the funeral will take place at the Baptist church at 1 o'clock today. Interment in White cemetery.

GERMANY IS STILL ISOLATED.

Trouble with Russia and France Not a Remote Possibility.

Despite rumors afloat in Berlin to the effect that the recent visit of the Austrian emperor resulted in a secret agreement between Austria and Germany by which each undertakes to take no step in the Balkans without advising the other, Vienna diplomats are satisfied that the Berlin meeting was absolutely unproductive of any written agreement or verbal understanding or anything else. The Austrian emperor's visit was intended to be purely one of friendship, although the kaiser, with his accustomed astuteness, seized his opportunity at the Schloss banquet in his speech to regalize his triple alliance, which latterly had been little mentioned. Aside from the triple alliance Germany's present position is one of isolation. The relations of Berlin and St. Petersburg are not cordial, while the situation as regards France is most doubtful and even dangerous. The shrewdest diplomats in this city of shrewd diplomats admit that it is impossible to forecast the happenings of six or even of three months. The peasants in the districts north of Lemberg, Galicia, are in open revolt. They are burning and plundering farms, for

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS.

RECORD OF HAPPENINGS FOR SEVEN DAYS.

Illinois Grain Report—Fiftieth Anniversary of Bloomington—May Music Festival—Nathaniel T. Wright Dead—Restrains "Big Four" Strike.

Big Wheat Area for Harvest.

Springfield.—The crop reports received at the Illinois department of agriculture are as follows:

Wheat—In Northern Illinois the condition is 90 per cent, in Central Illinois 84 per cent, and in the southern division of the state 83 per cent. About 14 per cent of the area seeded last fall was winter killed or otherwise destroyed, leaving 1,700,000 acres for harvest—500,000 acres more than was harvested in 1899. The winter killed in the northern and southern divisions of the state was 12 per cent and in the central division 17 per cent. The territory which suffered most was that comprising the counties of Clark, Coles, Shelby, Clay, Effingham and Fayette, with a few isolated counties in other sections of the state. On the whole the present prospect for wheat in Illinois is excellent. As large an area of spring wheat has been seeded this year as last, and the May 1 condition is above the average.

Rye—In Northern Illinois 14 per cent of the rye seeded last fall was winter killed and in the southern division 13 per cent, while in Central Illinois but 6 per cent was destroyed. The area for harvest will be about 97,000 acres. The May 1 condition of this crop in Northern and Central Illinois is 95 per cent of a reasonable average, but only 86 per cent in the southern division of the state.

Oats—There has been quite an increase in the area sown to oats in Illinois this year, which is the largest reported for a number of years. In Northern Illinois there is a deficiency in area of 1 per cent as compared with 1899, but in Central Illinois the increase is 86 per cent and in the southern division of the state 6 per cent. The May 1 condition of the crop is 93 per cent of a reasonable average, much better than one year ago. The season generally has been favorable to oat sowing and there is encouragement for the largest oat crop produced in the state for many years.

Celebrate at Bloomington.

Bloomington—The people of Bloomington Thursday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the first city council. In 1850 Bloomington had 1,600 inhabitants, and cast 173 votes in the first city election, in which the Rev. David I. Perry was elected mayor and four aldermen were chosen. At the city election this year 5,000 votes were cast and the city's present population is 30,000. The streets Thursday were decorated, business was suspended and the day was given over to parades, public amusements, speech-making and music. Band concerts at the court house opened the program. At 9:30 there was a parade of schoolboys from the public and parochial schools, with more than 2,500 in line. At the Coliseum at 10:30 an entertainment for the school children was given. The Rev. Dr. Richard Edwards and Captain John H. Burnham spoke. Miss Kate Donahue sang "The Star Spangled Banner." There was a general parade, headed by the oldest living ex-mayor, Franklin Price of Chicago. The line of march ended at Miller park, where an address was given by John A. Sterling. Tonight at the Coliseum Lewis Thomas, the mayor, presided. An address was delivered by Franklin Price of Chicago, mayor in 1854 and 1855. Charles C. Hassler read an original poem and speeches were made by James S. Ewing and Judge Thomas F. Tipton.

Nathaniel T. Wright Dead.

Chicago.—Nathaniel Tracy Wright, member of the board of trade firm of Nash, Wright & Co., died Thursday morning at his residence, 2941 Michigan avenue. He had been confined to his bed for over six months. Mr. Wright had been in business in Chicago since 1869 and for almost forty years was absent hardly a single day from the floor of the exchange. He was born sixty-five years ago in Rome, N. Y., being brought west while an infant by his parents, who settled in Lisbon, Ill. Coming to Chicago he engaged in the commission business.

Restrains "Big Four" Strike.

Springfield.—The injunction issued by Judge William J. Allen of the United States district court against the striking section men of the "Big Four" railroad was served here. The injunction was issued on the request of the railroad company to restrain the strikers from interfering with the business of the road or the new employes, whom, it is charged, they have been assaulting and maltreating in various ways. Most of the trouble has occurred in the vicinity of Litchfield.

THE RAISING OF OSTRICHES.

Five Farms Now Carried on in the United States.

There are now five ostrich farms in the United States—two in California, one in Texas, one in Florida, and one in Arizona. The last named, although the youngest, is the largest and most flourishing in the country; it is located near Phoenix, and the Salt river valley seems well adapted to the African ostrich. No protection whatever is required for the birds during the winter. They graze the entire year in the fields, the same as horses and cattle, and are healthy and thrifty. The man in charge of the Arizona farm, who spent 15 years handling ostriches in South Africa, says the birds do just as well in the Salt river valley as in Africa, and that the climatic and other conditions surrounding them here seem as well adapted to their requirements as those existing in their native home. After the birds attain the age of four weeks there is little danger of their dying from natural causes for many years. It is not positively known how long an ostrich will live under normal conditions, but there are birds on South African farms which are believed to have reached or passed the century mark, many of them having been in captivity there over fifty years. Most people have the idea, obtained, probably, from their old geographies when they were children, that the female ostrich, after laying her eggs in a nest scooped out of the desert sands, covers them up, with the sand and leaves them, trusting to the heat of the sun to hatch them. This is not the fact. The birds always pair off during the breeding season, the male bird making the nest by resting his breastbone on the sand and turning slowly round and round, scratching the sand away with his feet until a shallow hole is made, some three feet in diameter and about a foot deep. The female then lays, usually, 15 eggs, and the birds take turns sitting on them, the female sitting during the daytime and the male at night, except that the male allows the female about an hour in the middle of the day to feed, when he takes her place on the nest.—Boston Herald.

ON THE ELEVATED.

An Incident with Complications Just a Little Out of the Usual.

"It always disturbs me," said Mr. Biffington, "to see a man on the elevated road offer his seat to a woman when he is about to get off; he perhaps let her stand in front of him for blocks, and now when he is about to give up his seat anyway he makes a show of giving it to her, a curious exhibition of about three-quarters conceit and the rest cheek. Usually the woman pays no attention to this man; she takes the seat without thanks, without taking any notice of the man whatever. But occasionally there is a variation of this incident. Sitting in an end corner seat, by the door, was a tired man, who, in a crowded car had kept his seat seemingly because he thought it was right that he should—if he had thought it out at all—but who now when he was about to leave, wanted to have the right person get the seat he was leaving. With this idea in his mind, and not with any conceit of gallantry, he, when he had risen, touched the sleeve of a young woman who had been standing by the door on the other side of the car opposite to him, to indicate to her that here was a seat. He was slow about this, with the slowness of one tired, or unaccustomed to asserting himself, and while he was stepping forward a small boy who had been standing by the door slid in back of him with boyish celerity and took the seat. And he kept it."—New York Sun.

The Mother Love.

It is given to few people to understand the workings of the child mind, and it is only by the exercise of patience and the utmost sincerity that one can get to know the ideas and desires that are formed in the ever busy little brains. A pretty story was once told by Sir Edwin Arnold of three children of his acquaintance, whom he asked at their bed time, when about to say their prayers, if they would pray for what they wanted most. After the two eldest had made their requests, the youngest, a little girl, knelt down and, putting her hands together, said: "Dear God, love me when I am naughty, like mamma."

Comforts of Home.

"Why is that dreadful explosive called lyddite?" asked Mrs. Blynx, "because it blows the lid off the shelf?" "No, snarled her infinitely worse half; "more likely because the inventor's wife was named Lydia, and the stuff was more like her than anything else he could think of."—Piek-Me-Up.

Treasury Ruling on Automobiles.

The acting secretary of the treasury has ruled that an automobile is not free of duty as a personal effect, but is free of duty as a household effect if used abroad by the owner one year or more.

MAP SHOWING THE GENERAL BRITISH CONCENTRATION AGAINST PRETORIA.

General Roberts has established his headquarters on the north bank of the Zand river, on the railroad from Bloemfontein to Pretoria. His front extends a little over twenty miles east and west, with Generals Hutton, French and Hamilton in the center, General Pole-Carew on the left flank, and Generals Rundle and Brabant on the right. Other divisions of the British force, although somewhat detached, form practically extensions of the line. To the west are Generals Methuen, Hunter and Barton, who are expected to continue the advance to the north, gradually relieving the pressure on Mafeking. To the east of General Roberts is General Buller's great army in Natal, which will probably advance through Van Reenen's pass against Harrismith as soon as General Roberts is ready for their cooperation in the Transvaal. In the meantime General Carrington is marching west from Delagoa bay through the country north of the Transvaal, which he may invade from that direction. Great issues are now impending in this most wanton war of history.

May 12-13.

Roberts occupies Kroonstad without opposition, the Free Staters removing their capital to Lindley, forty-five miles east; British expect no serious resistance south of the Vaal river, believing that Transvaal army will refuse to fight outside its own territory and that Free State troops will desert their allies.

An unofficial report has reached London that Mafeking has been relieved. British forces are certain to reach the besieged town within a day or two.

British forces marched in triumph into Kroonstad, the Boers trekking northward and many Free Staters surrendering.

Monday, May 14.

Gen. Buller has outfanked the Boers in the Biggarsberg range and pushed on toward Dundee. Further difficulties are anticipated in the northern part of Natal.

Tuesday, May 15.

Boer peace envoys arrived at Hoken, were granted freedom of city, and then went to New York. Fischer said they will ask McKinley to arbitrate, and if he refuses will "arouse the people." England expects news of Mafeking's relief at any moment and is preparing for enthusiastic celebration. Buller occupied Dundee.

Poem Causes Doctor's Arrest.

At St. Louis, Mo., D. I. N. Love, one of the most prominent surgeons and medical magazine publishers in America, who issues the Medical Mirror, was indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of sending obscene matter through the mails. He was admitted to bond. The poem, which is the basis of the case, was written by Dr. Homer Clark Bennett of Lima, Ohio. It is entitled "The Dying Speech of Melamoun," and is an adaptation after Gautier.

the protection of which the military has been summoned. The outbreak has its origin in an effort of the landowners to revive medieval customs which the laboring population declare are oppressive.

Threatens to Overturn China.

President Tim of the Foh Wang Weh society sent from Helena, Mont., to the empress dowager at Pekin, through the British embassy at Shanghai, the following cablegram: "Unless the heir apparent, Putschun, is superseded, unworthy advisers removed and Emperor Kuang Hsu is restored to power, we will combine interior Chinese and raise an army." President Tim received the following reply from the embassy: "Yours yesterday to empress dowager, Pekin, will be stopped here from further transmission. Considered dangerous to security of country." President Tim asserts that thousands of dollars are being raised by the association to equip an army in China, which will be marched against the empress. He declares the revolution will be commenced this summer, and that it is already partly organized.

Man Hunt Ends in Success.

Sheriff O'Connor of Emporia, Kan., and a posse of farmers have captured E. F. Estell and James Murphy, the men who escaped from Marysville jail after killing Deputy Marshal Roberts at Dunlap on Sunday. The men were found asleep in the woods. Murphy surrendered at once, but Estell started to run and was shot in the legs.

Fatal Fall from Steeple.

Thomas McDermott of Pawtucket, R. I., fell from St. Patrick's church steeple at Lowell, Mass., Monday, a distance of 175 feet, and was instantly killed. He and another man had been making repairs on the top of the steeple, which is about 200 feet high. They had used a boatswain's chair to make the ascent, and access to it was obtained from a small opening on one side of the steeple, about 170 feet from the ground. McDermott turned over several times in falling. Some matches in his pocket were set afire by the fall, and smoke issued from the clothing while the body lay upon the ground.

Flirt Ejected from Church.

Miss Sallie Collins was removed forcibly from the Fayette Street Methodist Episcopal church, Baltimore, by the sexton. It is asserted by members of the church that for months Miss Collins has conducted a systematic flirtation with the leader of the choir, Dr. I. H. Davis.

Hibernians Elect Officers.

John T. Keating of Chicago was re-elected national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Faneuil hall, Boston. The other officers are: Vice-president, John E. Dolan, Syracuse; secretary, John P. Bree, New Haven; treasurer, P. L. Moran, Washington.

After the Golden Stool.

So it appears that a nugget of gold is the cause of the fighting between the British troops and the natives near Kumassi, the capital of Ashanti, now known as the British Gold Coast Colony. Kumassi is about 150 miles from the coast. There has been a renewal of the troubles which necessitated the British expedition of last year, and several hundred British troops have been dispatched overland from Accra, the main Ashantian port, to the scene of conflict. Ever since the capture of Kumassi in 1874 the British have been trying to locate the royal golden stool, an enormous nugget of gold which takes the place of a throne in Ashanti. These efforts finally provoked the natives to resentment, and there now appears to be a general uprising in the northern part of the colony. Once upon a time the kings of Ashanti were the most absolute of monarchs, and their ceremonies were marked by frightful cruelty to their 3,000,000 subjects. The success of the British expedition under Sir Francis Scott a quarter of a century ago led to a nominal British protectorate. In 1896 the last king, Prempeh, was forced to abandon Ashanti and to live henceforth in the British colony of Sierra Leone. He managed to conceal the golden stool, and his followers have kept it hidden from the British ever since. Thus the yellow metal will doubtless continue to cause blood letting in the dark continent until the representatives of the higher civilization have appropriated it all unto themselves. Of what use is the golden stool or any other benighted heathen anyway?

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, in an article on "The New Moral Development" in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, touches a truth which cannot be too much emphasized. "We have come to have an enormous interest in human life as such," writes Miss Addams, "shown by the great number and variety of novels, by the revived and humanistic study of history and by the unflagging interest in current events and the widening sense of comradeship evinced by the great amount of newspaper reading." This humanistic development is one of the most noteworthy features of this generation. The things which affect the humblest members of society now excite the sympathetic interest of the community. While wrong, suffering and oppression are all too common, it is true that public movements for their alleviation are more speedy and effective than ever before in the world's history. Every case of injustice, wrong or oppression, no matter how petty, is sure to be known to every newspaper reader almost as soon as it is perpetrated. Suffering is chronic and relieved by kindly spirits who cannot endure the stories without doing something to brighten darkened lives. This condition is mainly due to the newspaper, the great humanistic exchange, or clearing house, of the community, without which it would speedily go into moral and social bankruptcy.

Next summer 1,450 Cuban school-teachers, at the invitation of Harvard university, will spend six weeks in Cambridge, Mass., for instruction in the English language. These teachers, two-thirds of whom are women, have recently been appointed to take charge of the schools in Cuba, and, as their salaries range from $30 to $75 a month, they could not hope to make this visit unaided. The authorities of Harvard guarantee $70,000 for their use, the war department taking them to Boston on government transports and returning them from New York in the same way. No tuition fees will be charged. The plan is for the women to lodge in private houses by invitation and the men in college rooms placed at their service by students. They will also be instructed in geography by illustrated lectures and excursions, in the history of Spanish-American colonies, on American schools, public libraries and a number of American industries. This is a most commendable undertaking, for the initiation of which credit is due to President Eliot.

Outrages of the "Boxers."

The insurrection of the Great Sword society of China, commonly known as the "Boxers," has been more serious in the destruction of the lives and property of foreigners than the world has realized. The scene of the ravages of the "Boxers" is in the north-eastern part of the country, in the Shantung province, along the river Hoang, a section in which the population is very dense, in which coal and iron are found in great abundance and where silk is produced. During the past two years German influence has been paramount in Shantung. German prospectors have been exploring the country in all directions with a view to its development. During the past three years the crops have been so poor as to produce general suffering and so to feed the flames of popular discontent. In the autumn of 1898 a Catholic priest was maltreated, and several missionary stations, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, were invaded and partially destroyed. The Chinese officials, when appealed to, expressed their regret and declared that the offenders should be punished. The situation became more and more menacing, threats against the missionaries were heard on all sides, and many Catholic Christians underwent the pangs of martyrdom, some of them in the most terrible forms. Last March a company of German prospectors was attacked and succeeded in escaping only after a desperate contest with their assailants. Then came the murder of Mr. Brooke, an Anglican missionary of great nobility of character and eminent service, by an armed party of "Boxers."

Following the massacre of Mr. Brooke vigorous protest was made by the European powers, particularly by Great Britain, and promises were made by the Chinese government that the atrocities of the "Boxer" society should be stopped, but China seems to have been either unable or unwilling to make good its promises, as the slaughter of foreigners in the neighborhood of Shantung continues. Late dispatches report the massacre of a large number of Catholic Christians, mainly converted natives, in the province of Pe-Chili, near Tien-tsin, and the destruction of much property. The situation in this section of the Celestial empire is such as to demand action on the part of the powers, as it seems evident that the dowager empress and the government she controls have no sincere desire to stop the disorders or are powerless to do so.

One of the principal street railway companies of London, in announcing the intention to abandon steam for electricity for the propulsion of its cars, has wounded British pride by declaring the needed plant cannot be obtained in England and therefore will be imported from the United States. These admissions of our superiority in the manufacture of electrical machinery have been rather numerous of late, and naturally they are regarded as humiliating in the nation that so long successfully competed with the rest of the world in the manipulation of the metals. One Englishman, writing on this latest revelation, says: "Our electrical engineers, we believe, can hold their own tolerably well in electric lighting, but heavy traction seems out of their line. It must not be forgotten that by sending these orders to the United States Americans are gaining from us something even more important than trade. They are gaining experience, and at our expense. Every order of this kind taken away from British engineers renders it more difficult for them to execute another of the same kind. Could not one of our large firms make a desperate attempt to undertake such work?" This is indeed a pathetic appeal, and the fact that British engineers are urged to make a "desperate effort" to regain their lost supremacy in this department of industry is highly significant of recent industrial developments.

The Hull House Woman's club, says a Chicago paper, has withdrawn from the General Federation of Women's Clubs because, as one of the members of the former explains, the latter is "simply a succession of conventions." This is a rather odd reason to give for withdrawing from a woman's club or a federation of women's clubs. At such conventions isn't there more or less of an opportunity for women to talk?

The hospitable people of Paducah, Ky., have sent to Admiral Dewey an oaken box, with "the freedom of the city" and a dozen bottles of 20-year-old Kentucky whiskey. With such evidence of cordiality the admiral certainly ought to feel free.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
 "(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
 "(3) Typographical appearance.
 "(4) Classification of news by departments.
 "(5) Editorials.
 "The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

H. Malman visited with relatives at Waukegan the first of the week.

Elmer Ford left for Chicago Sunday, where he expects to secure a situation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Orvis and Miss Martha Frederick of Waukegan, were pleasant callers in our village Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raynard Stenzel of Little Rock, Iowa, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Carr a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will West and daughter and Miss Mary West of Lodi, Ill., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Harris the first of the week.

Otto Waelti has taken down his bath house, which has not proved a paying investment. He will use the lumber for more useful purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wells and children who are en route for Denver, Colorado, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Green last Thursday and Friday.

Our iceman, Mr. Gainer, has again got into action, but as the demand has not been very large as yet, he hitches himself to a wheelbarrow for the emergency cases.

I reckon not the seasons,
Nor the years that come and go,
Life's an all-around pleasure to me,

A May party will be given at Stadtfeld's hall, Volo, Ill., next Friday evening, May 21st. Music will be furnished by the Lakeside orchestra and a pleasant evening is promised to all. Tickets 50 cents; supper extra.

Mr. Roberts has now opened his soda fountain and invites the thirsty to drink. The warm weather we have had for the past week calls for something cool and refreshing and nothing answers the purpose as well as a nice cool drink of soda.

Memorial Day exercises will be held at Wauconda on Wednesday, May 30. The memorial address will be delivered by Dr. Hardin of Chicago, who will be followed by other distinguished speakers. Music will be furnished by the Wauconda Martial band.

Mr. Andrews of Union, Ill., has been engaged to conduct the advanced room of our school for the coming year. He comes with good recommendations as a teacher and disciplinarian and the directors believe they have secured an able and competent man for the position.

G. A. Roberts of Lintner, Ill., suffered four years with a wad in his stomach and could not eat. He lost 65 pounds. Two bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin restored his appetite, cured his stomach trouble and today he is well and hearty and says he owes his health to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Chas. E. Churchill.

G. H. Gurler of DeKalb, who has purchased R. G. Smith's two butter factories, at Wauconda and Griswold Lake, was in our village Wednesday shaking hands with new acquaintances introduced by Mr. Smith. Mr. Gurler is an experienced man in the factory business, owning several large plants through the northern part of Illinois and will, no doubt, conduct the local plants to the satisfaction of his patrons, as has Mr. Smith in the past.

A number of our citizens attended the monthly horse sale at Palatine, as usual, last week.

The first dance in Oak Park Pavilion will be given tonight, and a good crowd is expected.

Mr. Smith of Arlington Heights, made his regular trip through this village this week.

At the village board meeting May 7th, all members were present and the usual business was transacted.

Buy your paints at J. D. Lamey & Co's. They handle Heath & Hilligan's paints—the monarch of all brands.

Everybody should attend the first dance of the season in Oak Park pavilion tonight. Hapke's orchestra will furnish music.

Lake Zurich camp of Modern Woodmen of America, will give a picnic in Oak Park June 4th, (Pentecost.) Dancing afternoon and evening.

The dance which was held in Ficke's hall was attended by seventy-eight couples and a grand good time was enjoyed by all. Hapke's orchestra furnished the music and gave entire satisfaction.

William Buesching, jr., who has been employed for the past three years in the Quentin's Corners creamery, commenced work in the Lake Zurich creamery May 15th, and will assist Mr. Davidson hereafter. Lew Ficke, who has been in the factory for the past two years, resigned on account of poor health.

Viola Allen's Farewell as "Glory Quayle."

Not in years was there such a great success scored at Powers' theatre, Chicago, as was made by Viola Allen at the commencement of this season as "Glory Quayle" in "The Christian." For five weeks Miss Allen played to such enormous houses that efforts were made to continue her engagement, but previous bookings prevented. It has now been arranged that Miss Allen plays a limited number of performances in this play and theatregoers are again given the opportunities to see her in her remarkable dramatic creation. Her engagement commenced Monday, May 14, and will be continued for a very brief engagement. Those who are desirous of seeing Miss Allen as "Glory Quayle" are advised not to miss these last opportunities, as next season she will appear in a new play.

All theatregoers have heard of "The Christian" and those opportunities to see the original company will be a welcome event to those residing outside of Chicago. Special rates have been made by the railroads with adjoining towns within theatre going distance to give an opportunity to see Miss Allen during these farewell performances.

A feature of unique interest will take place Monday night, May 21. It will be called a "poster performance." Every lady attending will receive a magnificent poster of Miss Allen of unusual artistic beauty and value. These "posters" of Miss Allen have created great admiration and have been greatly sought after.

Miss Allen is supported by a strong dramatic organization and the entire production is the same as that seen during the long run of the play for six months last year in New York and five months in Boston. An evidence of the fact of Miss Allen's great success as a star and the enormous desire to see her in "The Christian" has been shown in the enormous receipts she has played to. During the two years she has been a star she has played to nearly a million dollars, a record that has never been equalled.

Should a Man be Vain?

Certainly he should. He should have ambition to look well and feel good, which he cannot do unless he digests his food. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin aids digestion, clears the head, keeps the bowels regular and makes a man feel at peace with the whole world. Try it. Chas. E. Churchill.

A Testimonial from Old England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale by all druggists, Barrington; A. S. Olms, Palatine.

To Improve Fox Lake.

The Fox Lake Improvement association proposes to thoroughly transform that popular resort this season. A system of drives will be laid out about the lake and through the woodland. An improved weed cutter has been bought and the lake will be thoroughly cleared of the weeds which have, in the past, been the great objection to the place. Not a weed will be left standing in the body of the water.

Trees and flowers will be planted about the lake and residents and the school children and teachers of the neighborhood will be asked to take a part in this work. A phaton and tally-ho line may also be established, and the drives will be made as picturesque as possible.

Biliousness is a condition characterized by a disturbance of the digestive organs. The stomach is debilitated, the liver torpid, the bowels constipated. There is a loathing of food, pains in the bowels, dizziness, coated tongue and vomiting, first of the undigested or partly digested food and then of bile. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets allay the disturbances of the stomach and create a healthy appetite. They also tone up the liver to a healthy action and regulate the bowels. Try them and you are certain to be much pleased with the result. For sale by all druggists, Barrington; A. S. Olms, Palatine.

Jephthah's Daughter:

A Story of Patriarchal Times.

By JULIA MAGRUDER...

Copyrighted 1890, 1894 and 1896 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

Then the face of each turned to each, and long time they gazed into each other's eyes, as though their very souls were bared unto each other. Then silently their arms entwined, and softly their lips met and pressed and clung; and so rested they, still upon their knees, for the moment was sacred at once to love and to death. The thought of what was to come was in the heart of each, and cast around them a great awe that seemed to wrap them in; but even over this their pure love triumphed, and the man and the maiden were shown therein the truth of Namarah's words, that love is stronger than death.

Then Adina lifted up his voice and prayed.

And Namarah, in her gentle voice, which the words of Adina's prayer made now to tremble, answered even also, "Amen."

After they got them to their feet and went in search of the maiden's father Jephthah, that they might speak unto him cheering words and comfort him with the comfort wherewith their souls within them had been comforted.

And Namarah spoke unto her father Jephthah, and said:

"Let this thing be done for me: let me alone two months, that I may go up and down upon the mountains, and bewail my unhappy lot."

And he said:

"Go."

And after this, behold, the face of the maiden was no longer sorrowful, but ever there beamed forth from it a most calm and shining light that even comforted the hearts of all who gazed on her.

CHAPTER VIII.

On the evening of the return from battle of the hosts of Jephthah, the Gileadite, Namarah went, as was her wont, to feed her doves, and as she stood among them, more white than was the gown she wore, there came to her, down the garden-walk, through the parted branches of the trees, the young man Adina.

Now, Namarah knew that he would come, even at this time and place, but her heart within her trembled, and the color was not so far gone from out her cheek but that his coming called it back, like to a rose in bloom.

Adina, who had rested from his traveling and refreshed himself, was clad this evening, like Namarah, all in white, in a stately robe that swathed his stalwart body from the shoulder to the sandals on his feet. His beautiful strong young arms were hid beneath its folds, until, as he came up to where the maiden stood, he reached them out and folded her tenderly and strongly against his breast.

"Hurt not the bird, Adina," she said, slowly, as he held her there and knew not to distinguish between the fluttering of the dove and the beating of the maiden's heart. "It is even thy little messenger, which did company thee upon thy dangerous wanderings and bring me the message of thy heart to mine."

"How knowest thou it is the same, Namarah," he made answer, "seeing that these snow-white birds of thine are like as be garden-lilies?" And as he spoke, he held her still with one strong arm, while the other hand he laid above her little one that gently smoothed the ruffled plumage of the frightened bird.

"I knew it even by its travel-stains and by its broken feathers. See, the birding hath e'en suffered in our service," and, as she spoke, she lifted it and kissed it tenderly, at which Adina swiftly bent his tall head and kissed the very spot whereon her lips had lain upon the bird, saying as he did so:

"Thy kisses are all mine, Namarah, and I must even take back the one that thou hast given to the bird. It was ill done of thee to besow it on another than him to whom it doth by right belong. Release the bird that hath too long engaged the touches of thy hands, for these be mine also, and to-night I long for all thy love, seeing that my heart within me is like to burst with sorrow."

Then Namarah swiftly loosed the bird, which flew away and vanished from their sight, even as the maiden threw her arms about her lover's neck and yielded herself to his most sweet embrace.

"I pray thee sorrow not, Adina, my beloved," she spake low. "Thine am I for eternity, and Heaven's joys can never end. Wilt thou not strive to give me strength to do the thing that lies before me? Pray for courage for both thee and me, for love is sweet, and death seems cruel."

"Ay, death is cruel, cruel!" made answer Adina, with that his brow grew stern, and the very hands that were about her soft young body clinched as if in anger.

"Now, may God forgive me," said Namarah, "for the evil word I spake. It even passed the door of my lips without mine own consent. Our God is good, Adina, and if we dishonor Him not, by doubt of His goodness and rebellion to His will, He will most likely deliver us both; and if it pleaseth Him to take my spirit back to Him who gave it, and so leave thee here upon the earth, will it seem too hard a thing to wait with patience until the hour of thy release from earth and flesh shall come, when thy spirit shall again meet mine?"

"Too hard a thing, Namarah! I could wait till eternity were ended sooner than I could love any other maiden than thee!"

"Ah, sweet, sweet is thy love and loyalty beloved!" saith Namarah; "and my heart is even warmed and comforted to hear thee speak those words. Nevertheless, there is a thing I would have thee remember. If I should be, when I am dead, that thou shouldst ever love another maiden—for thou art young, and there be others worthy of thy love, and life alone is long and sad—I would not have thee live unwed because of me. If thou chooseth to marry thou hast my full consent, and even my blessing from Heaven."

But at her words the young man thrust her from him almost roughly, and turned on her the first ungentle look his face had ever worn to her.

"Thou art unkind and cruel unto me, Namarah," he said, "and thy love is not like to mine for thee, or thou couldst not think possible the thing whereof thou speakest. The soul of Adina slept within him until, at touch of thy soul, it waked; and it lives but for thee alone. If thou must die, the desire of my heart will be still to thee alone, and my soul shall even wait for thy soul."

CHAPTER IX.

Then Namarah came again into his arms, and while they clasped her close with love's true tenderness, behold the maiden began softly to weep, and said:

"I am even satisfied to die to-night, knowing a love like thine. If I die and thou livest, I beseech thee that thou wilt be even as a son unto my father Jephthah, for his heart is broken within him, and by reason of his vow he giveth up his only child."

"That will I maiden," saith Adina; "and if so be that I shall live and thou diest, that will even be my work in life. Ah, Namarah, my most holy and most beautiful love, hast thou thought upon the weariness and darkness of the life that I will lead without thee, even-through youth and manhood and old age?"

"Yea, beloved, I have thought of it," she answered—"be sure that I have thought of it—with a heart made wild with anguish, and it seemeth unto me that thy fate is even a harder one than mine. But now that we have spoken of these things, and thou knowest my thoughts and wishes concerning thy life, if thou art left to live it out without me, let us speak of it no more, and let us even, so far as in us lies, banish it from our thoughts: I would have thee give me a solemn pledge that when I depart on the morrow, I and the maidens that be my companions, thou wilt pray continually, as I shall do, for deliverance. Kneel with me now, Adina, and let us pray this prayer, even in the silence of our hearts."

And side by side, upon the grass beneath the white light of the moon, they knelt together, hand in hand, and lifted up their hearts. So still and silent was the night that the little brook which ran through the garden, down at the foot of the hill, could be heard gurgling over its stones, and the notes of the doves in their house near by sounded mournfully and pleadingly in their ears. The soft wind of the summer night played lightly over their bowed heads, ruffling Adina's golden curls and blowing against his throat a long tress of Namarah's silky hair. Long time they knelt there, their bodies touching only in that close hand-clasp, but their souls fused into one.

When they rose from their knees and stood erect in the pale moonlight, both so tall and young and beautiful in their fair white raiment, they turned and wound their arms around each other in an embrace of unspeakable love. Again the night lay wrapped in silence. Suddenly there was a fluttering above them, and a white bird flew down and alighted. There it nestled, with a little plaintive moan. As the young man and the maiden strove each to touch and soothe its ruffled feathers, their two hands met and clasped.

"It is the little messenger," said Namarah, as the bird crept closer to the warmth of their necks, between the arch made by their close-pressed cheeks. "It seemeth to be restless and unhappy. There was one of my doves killed by a hawk one day, while this messenger was gone with thee. Thinkest thou it could have been its mate? I saw the great hawk swoop down upon it one day, as it sat alone apart from all the rest, and before I could run to its rescue, the poor little thing had been carried off in those cruel claws. Thou knowest—dost thou not?—that the dove is the image of constancy, and that when it once loses its mate it takes none other evermore."

"Even as it shall be with me," breathed forth Adina. "If I lose the mate whereunto my soul is already wed, so will I live lonely, like the mateless bird, until mine end shall come."

Then, while the bird still rested between them, they clasped each other closer yet, for with the rising of the sun to-morrow Namarah and her maidens were to set forth unto the mountains, and this was their hour of parting.

Long time they rested there alone, after the bird had fluttered off to its house, and ever the sound of its sad complaining came unto their ears.

"It shall be my companion while thou art gone," said Adina, "and at night I will take it with me, so that its mourning shall be made against the warmth of my heart, that hath no voice wherewith to utter the greatness of its woe."

Nevertheless, I shall hear its complainings even with the ears of my soul," said Namarah, "and my heart shall answer them, in sounds inaudible that thy listening soul may hear. And now must I leave thee, beloved, for my father waiteth for our parting to be over, that he may even speak with me himself."

CHAPTER X.

At break of day next morning, Namarah, accompanied by her maidens, dressed all in sad garments of mourning, passed through the streets of Mizpeh and wended their way toward the mountains; and, as they passed along, behold the people came forth of their houses to look upon them, and ever as they saw the maidens, in their sackcloth and ashes, men and women, and even little children, lifted up their voices and wept, for the vow that Jephthah had vowed was known unto all the people; also that the maiden Namarah was gone, according unto custom, to bewail upon the mountains with the maidens, her companions.

And as the maidens walked with sad and measured steps, the maiden Namarah walked ever at their head, her stately height and noble form swathed in sackcloth. And, although the hood of her mantle hid her face from view, the people said she sobbed in passing, because that they saw the fluttering rise and fall of her breast beneath the folds of her gown.

But Namarah was not weeping. Her brow was calm and solemn, and her great eyes serene as be stars. Her vigil had made her pale as the ashes wherewith she had sprinkled her garments, but the look of her face was strong and confident, and ever she whispered in the silence of her heart "He will deliver."

As the town was left behind, and the rugged mountain path up which they were to wend their toilsome way was come in view, Namarah paused, and the maidens who followed, pausing also, say her part the folds of her garment and take therefrom the messenger-dove which had already served so faithfully. She spake no word, neither looked she to the right nor the left, while all the maidens wondered, but lifting it to her lips she gently kissed it, then raising her arm above her head she held it on her open palm, giving it a little impulse upward, at which it spread its wings and flew, with a sure and steady flight backward along the path that they had come. Namarah stood and looked at it until the whiteness of its feathers was even one with the whiteness of the clouds, and then she turned about and began to climb the mountain-path, her maidens following. Then were there tears in her eyes, in that moment, which overflowed and fell upon her cheek, but no eye there was that saw them.

Love's Deception.

"After all," said the thoughtful man, "the perpetuation of the human race is founded on falsehood." "How so?" demanded the prosaic man. "What would courtship be without it?" asked the thoughtful man, and instantly to the mind of the prosaic man came recollection of assertions that "she was the only girl he ever loved as he loved her," that "he couldn't live without her," and that "he fairly worshiped her footprints in the snow."

QUEER SPOT IN NEW YORK.

Branch of Wooded Shanties Called "Sunken Village."

There are some queer spots in this city, unusual places that one would not dream existed in the metropolis of the western hemisphere. One of them is "Sunken Village," which is bounded by Sixty-second and Sixty-first streets and Central Park West. It consists of eight shanties situated on a track of land about 15 feet below the level of the surrounding streets. A high board fence incloses the "village" on all sides, and behind it the villagers eat and sleep, work and play, live and die, undisturbed by the gaze of the curious. The shanties were constructed of boards, but they have been patched and thatched till but little of the original material of which they were built remains. Just how long the shanties have been there no one seems to know. In the days of the old Bloomingdale road the "village" was proportionately as far from the city as Mount Vernon is now. In those days the settlement contained inns and resorts of various kinds, and trying parties gathered there to pass a merry evening undisturbed. The city grew apace, and in taking a mighty leap passed over "Sunken Village" and forgot that it had been left behind. The surrounding country was filled and graded, but "Sunken Village" remained at its original level. Many years ago Messrs. I. and S. Wormer purchased the tract of land on which the "village" stands and have been holding it till they could sell at the price at which they value it. The price has never yet been offered, and so "Sunken Village" still stands, an alien to the times, an alien to its surroundings. —New York Times.

COUNTERFEITING PICTURES.

The Paris Exposition Is Expected to Bring Plenty of Victims.

There is no doubt that the counterfeiters of paintings by well known artists are hard at work in anticipation of the rush of half-informed picture buyers to the Paris exposition, says the Art Amateur. One well-known picture dealer informs us that Brussels and Amsterdam are full of spurious old masters, and he instances the case of a picture sold by him about a year ago which has turned up in the former city bearing a name more famous than that of its author and priced at ten times the amount for which he had sold it. From another source we learn that two of the most famous falsifiers of pictures in Europe, Gatti and Vogli, are rushed with orders for their specialties, among which they now include pictures which are expected to pass for the work of the late Alfred Sisley. The London picture factories are turning out old English paintings by the dozen, and the unscrupulous buyer may obtain Sir Joshua's Gainsboroughs and Romeys for £10 to £20 apiece. An expert appraiser for the New York custom house tells us that he saw there lately three dozen false Monticellis and other pictures on the same day. Everything that will bring a good price is being counterfeited. A certain American artist, of somewhat inflated reputation, is proudly going about announcing that he is among the victims. This is, of course, a method of self-advertising, like the periodical robberies of actresses' jewels, but we have every reason to believe that the painter's claim is true.—Chicago News.

CARNEGIE'S FIRST INVESTMENT

Bought $500 Worth of Stock With Much Trepidation.

It was due to Thomas A. Scott that Andrew Carnegie made his first investment—ten shares of stock in the Adams Express company, valued at $500, says the Review of Reviews. This he did with considerable trepidation. He had labored hard for the money he had saved up while he had worked as a telegrapher. It is part of railroad history how the latter fell in with the inventor of the sleeping car, saw the enormous advantages which that manner of travel held out to passengers, and promoters, and how he interested others in the invention of Mr. Woodruff. This occurred shortly after his return from Washington, when the problems of transportation were still uppermost in his mind. He was now on the road to success and wealth, as he then pictured earthly possessions. The Pennsylvania oil fields yielded large returns when Carnegie, with others, turned their energies in the direction of the newly discovered territory. In one year land purchased for $40,000 increased in value so that it paid a dividend of $1,000,000.—Chicago News.

Fumigation in Honolulu.

The authorities of Honolulu have adopted the most heroic methods to suppress the epidemic, it now being the rule that whenever a case occurs in a frame building (which it is impossible to thoroughly disinfect) it is condemned with all its contents and burned to the ground. The consequence of this is that fires occur two or three times a week.

Luxury and Poverty Meet.

Russia is curiously constituted, for extremes meet in that country, and boundless luxury is seen side by side with a depth of poverty which would not be tolerated in any other civilized land on earth. When a great Russian noble entertains his emperor and empress, to even an informal affair, he thinks nothing of sending clear to the Riviera for $5,000 to $10,000 worth of fresh flowers to decorate the apartments through which the sovereigns must pass, and before the splendors of a Russian court ball the official functions of any other capital pale into insignificance.

Story of a Yeomanry Officer.

They are telling a delicious story in Edinburgh just now at the expense of a certain yeomanry officer, an immensely popular man, whose one weakness is his belief that the making of a great general was lost when he went into the business of keeping a shop. The militia regiment garrisoning Edinburgh Castle, in the absence of the Gordon Highlanders, contains some choice spirits, and the other day, after a laying together of heads among the officers, a stripling rushed into the establishment of the officer in question. "Oh, Colonel So-and-So!" he called, "have you heard the news? You are ordered off for active service immediately!" The Colonel started to his feet. "Great heavens!" he cried, "has Roberts been killed already?"—M. A. P.

Chermside's Record.

Maj.-Gen. Sir Herbert Chermside, who succeeded General Gatacre in the command of the Third division in South Africa, had been in command of the Fourteenth Brigade. He entered the British army in 1868, and was in the Royal Engineers before going to South Africa. He was a military attache in the Turko-Russian war in 1877-78, and again a military attache at the Turkish capital in 1896, when he was appointed British commissioner in Crete. For his services in Crete he was promoted a major-general. He has been much in the field, having served with the Egyptian expedition against Arabi in 1882 and in the Sudan in 1884. He also served in the Egyptian army, being promoted for services at Saunkin in 1885 and at Sarras in 1887.

Pious Ideas.

From "Lighter Movements from the Notebook of Bishop Walsham How": The duchess of B— had an old Presbyterian nurse, who was once persuaded to attend the beautiful church they had built. The duchess afterward asked her if it was not very beautiful and she said: "Oh, yes; very." "And the singing?" said the duchess, "was not that lovely?" "Yes, your grace; it was lovely; but it's an awful way of spending the Sabbath." A Scotch lady and her gardener used to worship together, not agreeing with any form of church doctrine. A friend remonstrated with her and asked: "Do you really think you and your gardener are the only two real members of the true church on earth?" to which she replied: "Well, I'm nae sae sure o' John." A Scotch minister from a large town once visited and preached in a rural parish and was asked to pray for rain. He did so and the rain came in floods and destroyed some of the crops, whereupon one elder remarked to another: "This comes o' intrusting sic a request to a meenister who isna acquainted wi' agriculture."

Couldn't Afford It.

An old gentleman who is well known for his benevolence had an amusing experience with a beggar not long ago, says the Philadelphia Times. He has a regular staff of "visitors," to whom he gives alms according to their needs and his ability. There is one old fellow whose calls are as punctual as the sun. On a recent occasion this man accosted Mr. G— as usual, and received from him a shilling. The beggar took it, thanked the donor, and turned toward the door. Before reaching it, however, he seemed to be considering a matter very seriously. He hesitated, stopped, and then turned to Mr. G— again, saying: "Excuse me, sir, but I would like to ask you a question." "Well, what is it?" asked Mr. G—. "It is this: Every month, for years past, you have given me half a crown, but today I come and you give me only a shilling. How is that?" "Well, I'll tell you," said Mr. G—, smiling good-naturedly. "I have had some unusually heavy expenses this month. My oldest daughter got married, and the outfit for her trousseau has compelled me to retrench in every direction." "Ah, yes, I see," said the beggar. "But I really can't afford to contribute toward your daughter's wedding expenses."

The salary of Barrington's trustees is $24 per year. An effort was made this spring to pay so much per meeting, but Elgin's example of every-other-night session was a good enough warning and the old style prevailed. The Barringtonians don't want any pig in a poke in their enclosure.—Hebron Tribune.

The circuit court of Lake county adjourned Monday afternoon until 12:30 o'clock today. It was hoped that the arguments for a re-hearing of the George Krueger case would be made Monday, but owing to the state's counsel, Attorney Ben Smith of Chicago, being unable to attend before today the case was laid over. It will be the first matter brought up.

Dr. Dowie says in this week's Leaves of Healing that sufficient clay of excellent quality has been found on his Benton property to last Zion for fifty years. It is thought that the clay is of a quality from which pressed brick can be made. Brick factories will be located there in the near future and will make up a large supply of brick for building purposes.

There is some talk of building a new hall in Barrington in the near future. The plan is to erect a two-story building, 60x80 feet, the entire lower floor to be used as a hall and the top floor for lodge and club rooms. If the several societies here will take hold of the matter it is almost certain to be built. Several of our prominent business men have declared themselves as willing to take a liberal amount of stock in the new enterprise.

The Thursday club was very pleasantly entertained by Mrs. E. W. Shipman Thursday afternoon. The following program was given: Quotations from Hamlet by the club members, singing, reading, chapter on music from "Pleasures of Life," and a vocal solo by Mrs. Luella Austin. At the conclusion of the program a dainty luncheon was served. Those present were: Mesdames Austin, Alverson, Higley, Powers, Domire Broekway, Collen, McIntosh, P. Hawley, Chas. Hawley, F. Hawley, C. Meyer, Peck, Howarth, Dolan, Ryan, Misses Peck, Rogers, Higley and Wollaver.

The Mock Trial.

The mock trial given by Lounsbury lodge, No. 751, A. F. & A. M., at their hall Saturday evening, was attended by about 150 people. Before the trial was started Mr. A. Heller of Chicago, entertained the audience with several songs and recitations which were well received. An orchestra from Chicago furnished excellent music. Some difficulty was experienced in securing a jury that suited the attorneys. The jury finally chosen, was evenly divided between ladies and gentlemen and the trial proved an interesting one for those present. The Lake Zurich Golf club was given much prominence as that was the place the plaintiff and defendant first met. The verdict of the jury met with the hearty approval of the audience and was as follows: "We, the jury, find the plaintiff as guilty as the defendant, and fine each of the attorneys in the case $10 and refreshments for all present." It is needless to say that the refreshments were served. The cast was as follows:

The Simplest and Best

ANYONE who will stop to think for an instant cannot help but admit that the less parts used in any machine the less trouble and expense will be noticeable to the operator and owner. It must be admitted that in Simplicity is the Essence of Perfection.

The Jones Lever Binder

has but 16 pieces in the knottor alone while on other machines the parts used for a like purpose are from 28 to as high as 50 pieces. It is the simplest, lightest draft and longest lived mower made. It is made of steel and malleable iron for long wear and requires less expense for repairs than other machines.

THE JONES CHAIN MOWER

Is the leading grass cutting machine of the world. A glance will convince anyone that such is a fact. We invite you to call and examine the Jones Lever Binder and Jones Chain Mower.
