A Good Entertainment.

The entertainment given at the res idence of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Robertson, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society, last Friday night was an exceptionally interesting one and was well attended.

Miss Winnie Sawyer rendered piano solo which was well received and she was followed by Mrs. J. Sears, who rendered a selection with piano accompaniment, which was received with flattering approval. Mrs. Heise sang a solo with more than usual accomplishment. Miss Charlot Petesch rendered a mandolin solo and she made the little instrument sing with such feeling that she received a noisy applause. Mrs. Will Muller rendered a difficult piano selection with her usual fine rendition. Miss Winnie Sawyer gave a fine recitation, followed by a solo by Miss Charlot Petesch, who has a trained voice of exceptional treat to all. Mrs. George Fair next ter would find its way to the tables, qualities and her singing was a rare read a selection, which was given in a touching manner and she received strict attention throughout. Mrs.

Our esteemed member of congress, in person, or by proxy, has entered the field of journalism. The Review is in receipt of the first issue of the above named periodical, mailed from Chicago presumably from the recently established headquarters in that city. Its mission is to engage in making and fitting a senatorial toga that will adorn the shoulders of Mr. Hopkins, with what success time will tell. Up to the present time the race is anybody's, and any predictions as to the outcome are but the wildest guesses. Of course, it is generally conceeded that if elected the Hon. A. J. Hopkins would make a dignified, able senator that would be a credit to the state, and the same assertion is true of several other candidates. What the Review deplores more than all else is the expense that candidates must incur in order to succeed. Is the prize worth the candle? Mr. Hopkins still holds on to his velvet chair in the halls of congress, prefering, no doubt, a certainty to an uncertainty.

Representing the Loyal Legion were Rear Admiral Barker, Maj. Seth A. Ranlett, Col. Issac F. Kingsbury, Capt. Howard. Capt. Wilson, Capt, May end Capt. Roberts.

After the close of the service the congregation remained seated as the oody, followed by the honorary bearers, was borne from the edifice. "The Lost Chord" was played by buglers of the Loyal Legion, as they stood at the entrance of the church.

After the cortege had been formed t moved to Mt. Auburn. Relatives and immediate friends, with bearers, eccompanied the body to the crematory. Here services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Jaynes. "Taps" were sounded by the Olympia buglers.

Among the profusion of beautiful floral tributes was an offering from the crew of the U.S.S. Alliance, of which Ensign Victor Kimberly, son of the dead admiral, is an officer. Private citizens as well as men of the navy, sent handsome tokens of their esteem and deep regret.

After the incineration the ashes are to be placed in the family lot in the Newton cemetery.

In the senate an extended speech on the pending Philippine tariff bill was delivered by Mr. Morgan of Alabama. He maintained that the enactment of the bill as it stands now would not be with the adoption of his amendment he said the bill would stand the closest scrutiny of the courts. Mr. Morgan objection to the proposed tariff, and The police of Casselton, N. D., think took it for granted that the tariff was just and necessary. Mr. Morgan pleaded for a government in the Philippines which could be prepared at all times to meet emergencies in accordance with the laws of the United States. The bill fixing the salaries of certain United States judges was taken up. This bill increases the annual salaries of the federal judiciary. Mr. Stewart gave notice of an amendment providing that salaries of senators and representatives be $7,500 per annum.

The senate adjourned until Monday. The house prepared to defend itself against what it considers the threatened invasion by the senate of its prerogative in the matter of revenue legislation by directing the ways and means committee to investigate the subject.

Monday, February 3. Another spirited debate, with the Philippine tariff bill as the text, was precipitated in the Senate as the result of some statements made by Mr. Carmack (Dem., Tenn.), in the course of an extended speech on the general Philippine question. At the conclusion of his address Mr. Beveridge challenged some of his statements. The debate which ensued was lively for a few minutes, taking on a political phase. Mr. Beveridge and Mr. Tillman became involved in a heated coloquy in which the exchanges were as hot as both senators well could make them. Consideration of the bill to increase the salaries of judges of United States courts was resumed. The pending amendment was that offered by Mr. Stewart increasing the salaries of senators and members of the house of representa-

Tuesday, February 4. After a brief discussion the senate passed the bill providing for a 25 per cent increase in the salaries of United States judges. The increase in salaries of cabinet officers from $8,000 to $12,-500 a year, was voted down. By the measure the following salaries are to be paid: Chief justice, supreme court, $13,000; associate justices, $12,500; circuit court judges, $7,500; district judges, $6,250; chief justice, court of claims, $6,125; associate justices, $5,625; chief justice, court of appeals, District of Columbia, $8,000; associate justices, $7,500; chief justice, supreme court. District of Columbia, $6,750; associate justices, $6,250. John F. Dryden was inducted into office as the successor of the late Senator William J. Sewell of New Jersey.

Debate on the oleomargarine bill continued in the house. Mr. Grosvenor stated that the use of a wholesome food product could not be prevented by legislation. Mr. Davidson (Wis.) urged that the bill was designed only to protect the dairy interests from competition with something which was not butter. Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) claimed that its passage would cheapen the price of oleomargarine by taking it out of the market as a competitor of butter.

Few men in Wisconsin were better known than Gen. Hobart, both on account of his connection with the politics of the state and his remarkable war record. No history of the war of the rebellion was ever written that did not contain a chapter devoted to his remarkable escape from Libby prison together with others by tunneling. For this reason his reputation extended far outside the state, and there was a time some years ago when a Grand Army reunion was thought to be incomplete if he were not in attendance to recount the exciting incidents of his capture at Chickamauga and imprisonment at Richmond.

Horticultural Observations

At the last meeting of the Illinois State Horticultural Society President Dunlap made the remark that he had just visited the meeting of the Central Horticultural Society held 200 miles away, and had picked up points that would be worth hundreds of dollars to him the coming year. This shows the value of these meetings to the fruit growers. Mr. Dunlap is a veteran in fruit growing and has been attending horticultural meetings for a good part of his life. Yet he finds each meeting valuable. Now, if he needs to attend such conventions, what can be said of the ordinary fruit grower who never attended such a meeting in his life? It is astonishing that more fruit raisers do not make an effort to be present at these meetings.

With the approach of spring men are thinking about the work to be done in the garden and orchards. Not the least important is the transplanting of trees and plants. In this work one thing should not be forgotten and that is to keep the roots moist while out of the ground. There are some jured greatly by having the roots dry out, but so many are injured that it is safe to keep the roots of all moist. Many times strawberry plants are dug and allowed to lie exposed to the wind and sun. The roots become thoroughly dry. When they are replanted the planter wonders why they do not grow. With evergreen trees dry roots are fatal. The rootlets exude a gummy substance that dries with the drying roots. When replanted this gummy substance prevents all action of water on the roots. In the transplanting of evergreens therefore dry roots should be especially avoided.

We are pleased to see the growth of sentiment in favor of the use of boxes in the packing and marketing of apples. We believe that this will greatly increase the consumption of that fruit. California has set the style on this and some of the states east of the ing the example of that state. The orchardists of Colorado are using boxes in large numbers. The fruit raisers there to some extent get the benefit of the reputation California has built up, for the eastern buyers do not stop to distinguish between Colorado and California apples, so long as they are in boxes. Up to the present time, however, only the fancy fruit is thus packed, the poorer grades going in barrels. It would doubtless, however, be an advantage to the buyers to have all apples in boxes.

Mixed Grains for Dairy Cows. From Farmers' Review: I moved onto the farm where I now reside, adjoining the limits of Owasso, about nine years ago. Prior to that I had resided in the city, so that while here my work has been mostly to find a method that would be paying and permanent, as raising grain and marketing direct did not give me profit, and four years last November, after investigating the various farm industries presented I bought 17 cows and started these as an experiment for profit or loss. The first winter I fed corn and oats mixed and ground with fair, but not satisfactory, results. During the winter of spring I saw the statement in an agricultural paper where a man had raised 105 bu. millet and buckwheat on three acres and gave it much pr ise as a crop and for feed. The following spring I sowed 15 acres of the above grains mixed and have done so every season since, not failing to have a good crop every year.

The millet assists in holding the buckwheat up to ripen and in so doing I cut with binder and harvest with same treatment as wheat and oats, also thrash the same. Then if cut a little on the green side the straw of both makes excellent fodder for stock. In my first feeding I found the grain (oats and corn) too strong for milch cows. Then I mixed corn, oats, millet and buckwheat and at once noted an increase of milk and have so fed since with the exception of very short intervals, feeling assured that milch cows require several kinds of grain mixed and fed together and that buckwheat is a kind that increases the flow of milk. I try to have the above grains about one-quarter each in feeding.

I am wintering 21 milch cows, and sell the milk to factory. Only a part next 90 days) and those milking will bring me a return this month of nearly $100: All the cows have been ied on grain as herein stated—hay and cornstalks for fodder, grain twice each day and salted each time when fed grain. I should state that I sow usually the last week in June, mixing the grains, 6 quarts millet to 18 quarts buckwheat per acre. The grains can be separated after threshing, through a fanning mill as readily as corn and buckwheat can be. These grains ripen in same time.-C. E. Hershey, Shiawassee County, Michigan.

Double Matings.

From Farmers' Review: One of the most usual mistakes in breeding fowls is "double matings." This encourages extremes in color, one color for the male and another for the female. With some breeds, like the Barred Plymouth Rocks, the standard makes no difference in the color of a male and female. Why should we not breed any breed of fowls as near the same color as possible? Of course neople that practice "double matings"

It is perhaps one of the signs of the times to those alert for indications that the art of breathing has become more and more a subject of attention. Physicians have cured aggravated cases of insomnia by long drawn, regular breaths; fever stricken patients have been quieted, stubborn forms of indigestion made to disappear. A tendency to consumption may be overcome, as gained in the last year by 2.67 per cent. some authority has within the past few years clearly demonstrated, by ex- holding their own, and there would ercise in breathing. Seasickness, too, may be surmounted and the victim of of religion to take a pessimistic view hypnotic influence taught to withstand of the times and conditions. the force of an energy directed against him. There is a famous physician of the Protestant Episcopal church has Munich who has written an extensive work upon the subject of breathing. He has, besides, formulated a system by which asthmatic patients are made to walk without losing breath and cured. At Meran, in the Austrian Tyrol, his patients are put through a certain system of breathing and walking. The mountain paths are all marked off with stakes of different colors, indicating the number of minutes in which a patient must walk the given distance, the breathing and walking being in time together. As the cure progresses the ascents are made steeper and steep-

It is curious to note the changes that have crept into the comments of late on the doings of the emperor of Germany and to find correspondents and other writers giving him credit and praise rather than reproof and criticism. Not so long ago it was quite the popular thing to make sport of the kaiser's varied and frequently eccentric activities. We see very little of this nowadays and wonder why. Has William really changed or has the public estimate of him changed? It is not impossible that time has curbed the somewhat bumptious young man and softened his aggressiveness. And, again, it is possible that the public has waked to the consciousness that his majesty is, after all, entitled to be taken seriously and at about his own valuation of himself. At any rate, Emperor William, by hook or by crook, has caused the world to look on him as one of the foremost men in Europe and to give respectful attention to the things he says and does.

Though this is not the season for mosquitoes, the time of their "pernicious activity" is not so very far distant, and it is well enough to take into consideration suggestions for warding off their attacks when they do come. Experiments under the direction of the United States army medical department showed that the dangerous anopheles variety of mosquito might be exterminated by judicious use of petroleum on the ponds and marshy places that are their favorite breeding places, and vigorous warfare on those lines has since been carried on in different parts of the country. Systematic experiments that were carried on in England resulted in the discovery that the anopheles dislike white or light colors and are attracted by dark colors, having an especial fondness for navy blue. The suggestion is therefore made that persons who do not want themselves exposed to the danger of malarial poisoning by mosquito bites wear light colored clothing or pure white and have their rooms as near white as practicable. The adoption of khaki cloth for military uniforms in place of the blue of the United States army and the red of the British army is regarded as a wise precaution in malarial countries for other reasons than for its inconspicuousness. It tends to protect the wearer from the bite of the poisonous mosquito as well as from the lethal bullet of the enemy.

Senator Proctor's plea for reciprocity with Cuba comes from one who has been there and evidently knows the conditions. It will be recalled that it was Senator Proctor's harrowing story of the sufferings of the Cubans, told in congress after a visit to the island, that more than any other one thing caused the proclamation of war leading to the expulsion of the Spaniards from Cuba.

The Growth of Religion.

We hear much these days about reliand the growth of indifference and unbelief, but the facts do not warrant posite is true. So, at least, we must conclude from figures compiled by Rev. Dr. Carroll, a religious statistician of high repute. They show that the membership of the various religious bodies in the United States at the end of the year 1901 over that at the end of 1900 has increased in larger proportion than the population of the country in the same period-that is to say, the population of the country increased between 1890 and 1900 at an annual rate of 2.18 per cent, while church membership has It is apparent that the churches are seem to be no occasion for the friends

According to Dr. Carroll's figures, added 31,341 communicants to its list in a single year, the largest absolute gain of all the churches of the country save that of the Roman Catholic. The progress of the evangelical movement in the south and west is impressively shown by the great gains in such religious organizations as the Disciples of Christ, the Southern Baptist church, the African Methodists and the colored Baptists. It looks very much as if the seed sown by the great evangelical organizations, such as the Society of Christian Endeavor, the Epworth league and the Baptist Young People's union, were beginning to yield its harvest to the churches.

Pan-American Arbitration.

The recent earthquake in the City of Mexico may or may not have had anything to do with the clearing of the atmosphere in regard to the arbitration proposals in the pan-American congress, over which there has been acrid wrangling ever since they were submitted. At all events, the proposed arbitration scheme, which follows closely The Hague convention, was passed by the congress shortly after that seismic disturbance with apparently excellent feeling on all sides.

The opposition to the plan of arbitration proceeded chiefly from Chile, whose representative declared that the project before the congress specifically compelled arbitration on matters "which originated in occurrences antedating the present treaty." This, Chile asserted, was in flat contradiction to the programme laid down in the invitation to the congress.

In the end, however, conciliation was found possible, and an agreement like being well off without a taste for same point perpendicular to all three was reached by which a treaty of arbitration is recommended to the countries represented, while Chile is allowed to insert in the protocol her objections to some of its provisions.

If the action of the congress is approved by the nations represented, we may hope for more friendly relations between all the Americas, though it is quite too much to hope that it will put an end to all international disputes in this hemisphere.

Then the United States voluntarily cut down its share of the indemnity when it found that it was excessive, while the other powers wanted to push the Celestial empire to the verge of bankruptey. And now President Roosevelt has ordered the return of a large quantity of silver seized by the marines at the fall of Tientsin. Altogether our attitude has been in striking contrast to that of the European powers, who proceeded upon the theory that "they should take who have the power and they should keep

SCIENTIFIC EXPLANATION OF THE FOURTH DIMENSION.

To the Lay Mind It Would Appear as Though This Measure of Space Were the Ability to Disappear Through Stone Walls.

plus wealth?" we asked.

"Only his salary of $65 per month," was the reply.

"Has the sweet girl any means?"

"Not a dollar that anyone knows of," was the answer. Well, they are a couple of idiots.

The poorer a man is in this world the more he hankers to get harnessed to a responsibility. Matrimony is (sometimes) a pleasant state if properly financed. We have read somewhere that "love laughs at locksmiths."

That may be true, but love never goes around laughing at grocery and fuel bills, or the landlord when the rent is due. Love is a mighty brave thing under some circumstances, but it gets weak in the knees when reverses and poverty shows up. You can bet on that.

If we could have our way we would sentence, to the home for the feeble minded, a certain class of people—the class who believes that connubial happiness consists of cooing and ear chewing. Yes, we would be kept unusually busy writing out commitments.

A philosopher has said: "The easiest way to make money is to marry it. It is a safe investment."

There is considerable truth in that. Thousands of wealthy women have married men of no account; men so absolutely lazy and good for nothing, so poor that fleas wouldn't live with them, and there is no reason for a number of young men now on the waiting list to be discouraged. There is no telling what a woman will do.

"But," said our friend, "If a man marries a woman and don't love her, he won't have any respect for himself even if she is wealthy."

Young man, your ideas are of the ancient pattern, and are right, but nowo-days men and women look upon matrimony as a matter of convenience. It is money that counts, character is not in the deal. We know of a young man who held just such high ideas of mar- 446 546 558 848 riage—was willing to take love and 10 35 17 35 17 50 12 28 12 40 9 05 poverty in a hen coop in preference to

CHAPTER XVI.

In an obscure room of a low and dilapidated lodging house, in a low and dilapidated neighborhood, there sat a man one evening in the coming twilight; a towering, gaunt skeleton, whose remarkably long arms and legs looked little more than skin and bone. The arms were fully exposed to view. since their owner, though he possessed and wore a waistcoat, dispensed with the use of a shirt. An article, once a coat, lay on the floor, to be donned at will-if it could be got into for the holes. The man sat on the floor in a corner, his head finding a resting place against the wall, and he had dropped into a light sleep, but if ever famine was depicted in a face, it was in his. Unwashed, unshaven, with matted hair and feverish lips; the cheeks were hollow, the nostrils white and pinched, and the skin coat?" touching it gingerly. around the mouth had a blue tinge. Some one tried and shook the door; it aroused him, and he started up, but only to cower in a bending attitude and listen.

"I hear you." cried a voice. "How are you tonight, Joe? Open the door." The voice was not one he knew; not one that might be responded to.

"Do you call this politeness, Joe Nicholls? If you don't open the door, I duties." shall take the liberty of opening it for myself, which will put you to the trouble of mending the fastenings afterwards."

"Who are you?" cried Nichol's, reading determination in the voice. "I'm gone to bed, and can't admit folks tonight."

"Gone to bed at '8 o'clock?" "Yes; I'm ill."

"I will give you one minute, and then I come in. You will open it if you want to save trouble." Nicholls yielded to his fate and opened the door.

The gentleman-he looked like one -cast his keen eyes around the room. There was not a vestige of furniture in it; nothing but the bare, dirty walls, from which the mortar crumbled, and the bare, dirty boards.

"What did you mean by saying you were gone to bed, eh?"

"So I was. I was asleep there," pointing to the corner, "and there's my bed. What do you want?" added Nicholis, peering at the stranger's gin with the back drawing room." fare in the gloom of the evening, but seeing it imperfectly, for his hat was drawn low over it.

'A little talk with you. The last sweepstake you got into-"

The man lifted his face and burst forth with such eagerness that the stranger could only arrest his own words and listen.

"It was a swindle from beginning to end. I had scraped together the ten shillings to put in it, and I drew the right horse and was shuffled out of the gains and I have never had my dues, not a farthing of 'em. Since then I have been ill, and I can't get about to better myself. Are you come, sir, to make it right?"

"Some"-the stranger coughed-"friends of mine were in it, also," said he; "and they lost their money."

"Everybody lost it; the getters-up bolted with all they had drawn into their fingers. Have they been took, do you know?"

"All in good time; they have left their trail. So you have been ill, have you?" "Ill! Just take a sight of me!

There's an arm for a big man." He stretched out his naked arm for inspection; it appeared as if a touch would snap it. The stranger laid his hand upon its fingers, and his other hand appeared to be stealing furtively.

toward his own pocket. "I should say this looks like starvation, Joe."

"Some'at nigh akin to it." A pause of unsuspicion and the handcuffs were clapped on the astonished man. He started up with an oath.

"No need to make a noise, Nicholls." said the detective with a careless air. "I have got two men waiting outside." 'I swear I wasn't in the plate robbery." passionately uttered the man. "I knew of it, but I didn't join 'em, and I never had the worth of a salt spoon after it was melted down. And they call me a coward, and they leave me here to starve and die! I swear I wasn't in it."

"Well, we'll talk about the plate robbery another time," said the officer, as he raised his hat; "you have got those bracelets on, my man, for another sort of bracelet. A diamond one. Don't you remember me?"

The prisoner's mouth fell. "I thought that was over and done with all this time-I don't know what you mean," he added, correcting himself. "No," said the officer, "it's just beginning. The bracelet is found and has been traced to you. You were a clever fellow, and I had my doubts of you at the time; I thought you were too clever to go on long.' "I should be ashamed to play the sneak and catch a fellow in this way. Why couldn't you come openly in your proper clothes? not come playing

"It came along of my long legs," cried Nicholls, ignoring the friendly injunction, and proceeding to enlarge on the feat he had performed. "I have never had a happy hour since; I was second footman there, and a good place I had; and I had wished, thousands of times, that the bracelet had been in a sea of molten fire. Our folks had taken a house in the neighborhood of Ascot for the race week, and they had left me at home to take care of the kitchen maid, and another inferior or two, taking the rest of the servants with them. I had to clean the winders afore they returned, and I had Joe!" interrupted the officer.

"I didn't listen for the sake of listening, but it was awful hot, a standing outside there in the sun, and listening was better than working. I didn't want to hear neither, for I was thinking of my own concerns, and what a fool I was to have idled away my time all day till the sun came on to the back winders. Bit by bit I heerd what they were talking aboutthat it was jewels they had got there, and that one was worth 200 guineas. Thinks I, if that was mine, I'd do no them go out of the room, and I ways on to the little ledge running along the houses, holding on by our balqueny, and then I passed my hands along the wall till I got hold of the balqueny+but one with ordinary legs and arms couldn't have done it. You couldn't, sir!"

"Perhaps not," remarked the officer. "There wasn't fur to fall if I had fell, only on to the kitchen leads under; but I didn't fall, and I raised myself on to their balqueny, and looked in. My! what a show it was! stunning jewels, all laid out there; so close that if I had put my hand inside it must have struck all among 'em; and the fiend prompted me to take one. I didn't stop to look; I didn't stop to think; the one that twinkled the brightest, and had the most stones in it was the nearest to me, and I clutched it and slipped it into my back again."

"And got safe into your own bal-

"Yes: but I didn't clean the winder that night. I was upset like by what I had done, and I think, if I could have put it back again, I should; but there was no opportunity. I wrapped it up in my winder leather, and then in a sheet of paper, and then I put it up the chimbley in one of the spare bedrooms. I was up the next morning afore 5, and I cleaned my winders; I'd no trouble to awake myself, for I had never slept. The same day towards evening you called sir, and asked me some questions-whether we had seen any one on the leads at the back, and such like. I said, as master was just come home from Ascot, would you be pleased to speak to him."

"Ah," again remarked the officer, von were a clever fellow that day. But if my suspicions had not been strongly directed to another quarter, I might have looked you up more sharply.

"I kep' it by me for a month or two, the mother. The little miss replied: and then I gave warning to leave. I "Well, you see, papa is only related thought I'd have my fling, and I be- to we children by marriage, while came acquainted with her—that lady— mamma is our relative by bornation."

and somehow she wormed out of me that I had got it, and let her dispose of it for me, for she said she knew how to do it without danger."

"What did you get for it?" The skeleton shook his head. Thirtyfour pound, and I had counted on a hundred and fifty. She took an oath she had not helped herself to a sixpence."

"Oaths are plentiful with the genus," remarked the detective.

"She stood to it she hadn't, and she stopped and helped me to spend it. After that was done, she went over to somebody else who was in luck: and I have tried to go on, and I can't; honestly or dishonestly; it seems all one; nothing prospers, and I'm naked and famishing-and I wish I was dy-

"Evil courses never do prosper, Nicholls," said the officer, as he called in the policemen, and consigned the prisoner to their care.

So Gerard was innocent! But how was it you skillful detectives could not be on this man's scent?" asked Colonel Hope of the officer, when he heard the tale. "Colorel, I was thrown off. Your positive belief in your nephew's guilt infected me, and appearances were very strong against him. Miss Seaton also helped to throw me off; she said, if you remember, that she did not leave the room; but it now appears she did leave it when your nephew did, though only for a few moments. Those few moments sufficed to do the job." "It's strange she could not tell the exact truth," growled the colonel. "She probably thought she was exact enough since she only remained outside the door and could answer for it that no one had entered by it. She forgot the window. I thought of the window the instant the loss was mentioned to me, but Miss Seaton's assertion that she never had the window out of her view prevented my dwelling on it. I did go to the next door, and saw the very fellow who committed the robbery, but his manner was sufficiently satisfactory. He talked too freely; I did not like that; but I found he had been in the same service 15 months, and, as I must repeat, I laid the guilt

"It is a confoundedly unpleasant affair for me," cried the colonel; "I have published my nephew's disgrace and gillt all over London."

Floating Button Factory.

Taking the factory to the raw material instead of bringing the material to the factory, is an innovation just put in operation on the Mississippi river by a button factory, and it is a plan that has many practical advan-

Automobile Poschers.

A Paris correspondent tells of some wholesale poaching of automobilists, who used their "car" as a trap for the game and made off with enormous "bags" of plunder while the gamekeeper slept. The trick was so clever that, barring the feelings of the birds who failed of being "preserved" for the guns of sporting ownfootman's undress jacket, and stepped ers, the automobile poachers must be congratulated on accomplishing their purpose. They pretended to have broken down while driving along the high road, and told the peasants and the gamekeeper, with many lamentations, they would be forced to remain all night in the field adjacent. The gamekeeper, though he says it was against his will, aided the men in moving the car to a place of safety until certain repairs could be effected. These "repairs" were made in the dead of night by robbing the preserves of nearly every partridge and quail they contained and making off with the booty.

Nearness of Relationship. A little miss of five, living in Washington, conspired with her brother, age four, to save enough pennies to buy papa and mamma presents. A friend of the family noticed that mamma's present was much finer and more expensive than papa's and was impelled by curiosity to inquire why the bulk of the savings had been expended

A DAIRY PARADISE.

When farm land in Illinois, Iowa and Southern Wisconsin sells at from $75 to $125 an acre, is it any wonder that dairymen are looking for new locations, where land can be bought for a mere fraction of these prices? Northern Wisconsin has dairy lands that cannot be surpassed anywhere in the middle west that can still be bought "dirt cheap." Mr. John Mathieson, President of the Minnesota Dairy Association, in a letter to the Dalry Reporter, says: "I made a trip last summer into the hardwood tim-ber belt on the 'Soo' Railway in Northern Wisconsin. I was surprised at the natural advantages offered to dairymen in that locality. There is an abundance of pure water; clover, timothy and blue grass do excellently. The soil is productive, as is shown by the crop grown on the lands in cultivation. This section is destined to be a fine dairy region, all the natural conditions, climate, soil, pure water and nutritious grasses are found here." The location is another advantage, being on the "Soo" Railway. Dairy products are taken in refrigerator cars direct to New York and Boston, where the best prices are obtained.

Lands in this region can be had now at very low prices. The soil is a rich loam with clay subsoil, and is exceedingly pro-

WILL EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO. Grand Trunk Secures Space at the

The Grand Trunk Railway Company has completed arrangements for an extensive exhibition in connection with the second annual Sportsmen's Show to be held in Chicago from February 3 until February 22. The Sportsmen's Show is to be held in the Collseum, a large building admirably suited for the purpose. The exposition will probably be the finest that has ever taken place in America, excelling even that held in Philadelphia during last December. The Grand Trunk exhibit will include the collection of large photographs of scenes throughout the summer resort districts situated on its line, including the Muskoka Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetawan River, 30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay, Kawartha Lakes and Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching, as well as views on the Portland division, combining land and water scapes, scenes in the White Mountains, and surf bathing scenes taken on the Maine sea coast.

TO THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

The Wisconsin Central Ry. will take you there in proper shape. Dany trains at convenient hours leave Chicago from Central Station, 12th street and Park Row (Lake Front) for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, Duluth and the Northwest. Pullman Sleepers are attached, and meals in dining cars are served a la carte. Nearest ticket agent can give you further information.

AN ILLUSTRATED SERMON.

Preacher's Son Takes His Father's A6

monition Literally. "I do not know what to make of that boy of mine," said a well known minister of the gospel. "I have tried to bring him up in the way he should go, but he is always coming back at me in a way that destroys the value of the lessons that I by to teach him. The other day his mother informed me that he had been throwing stones at one of the neighbor's little boys, and I called him into my study to question him about it. 'My son,' I said sadly, 'what is this I hear about your misconduct?' 'Why, papa, said he, 'I haven't been doing anything that I ought not to.' 'Your mother reports that you have been throwing stones at the little Jones boy.' And so I did,' he shouted defiantly. 'Do you think that is the proper thing for a little Christian boy to do?' 'Why, papa,' he answered, 'you said yourself that a little boy could preach sermons more powerful than those delivered from the pulpit-sermons that would sink deep into the heart and remain there forever, and that I should be constantly on the outlook for a chance to teach such lessons to my little friends.' 'I remember saying something like that,' I answered gravely, but throwing stones can cardly be classed as a sermon.' 'Why, papa,' he flashed, 'I've heard you say time and time again that there were sermons in stones, and if there were ever a kid that needed a sermon that Jones boy does!" "-Detroit Free Press.

No Reason to Be "Stuck Up." In one of the suburban settlements along the line of Connecticut avenue extended live two young girls about 15 years old. One of the pair is the most unrestrained tomboy in the District of Columbia. The other is as prim and precise as the proverbial New England school teacher. Their differing opinions on various subjects occasion most vigorous discussions now and then, but the quietus pat on the structures of the over-neat little girl while the two were walking down to the car line one afternoon this week caps the climax. They were just in sight of the little house where all the young matrons of the village were waiting in handsome gowns and fine headgear to go into town. An empty hay wagon rumbled along the drive. In an instant the hoyden, regardless of a new walking suit of Oxford gray, had slipped up behind and thrown herself across the long pole that stuck out behind. "Just for goodness sake, a firmer hold on the running gear, gave her hands a push that sat her astride of the pole and then called back, "Well, I guess you needn't be stuck up and puttin' on airs just because you've got powder on your face." -Washington Star.

Proctor Owns a Town.

Senator Proctor is practically the owner of the entire town of Proctor, Vt. The quarries are among the largest in the world. Nearly 2,000 men are employed, and they live on the system pursued in some mining communities. The senator rents them their houses or sometimes sells them small pieces of land and erects dwellings for them. The only store in the place is an enormous general store, owned and operated by Proctor, where absolutely everything can be purchased. Here the men do practically all their trading. Proctor pays them well for their work. and then they give him back about 90 per cent of their wages for reni, groceries, clothing, heat, light, etc. If Proctor so desired, he could make an enormous amount of money from the men, for he could dictate prices on all the necessities of life. He does not do cheaper than they can get them anywhere else.

Landmarks Crowded Out,

Two of New York city's most famous landmarks are about to be crowded out by skyscrapers. The old Tabernacle church at Thirty-fourth street and Broadway is to give way to a hotel that will eclipse the Waldorf-Astoria, and the National City Bank proposes to erect the handsomest structure of its type in the world on the old custom house site. A 20-story hotel, to cost $3,000,000, will be built on the site of the Broadway Tabernacle. The last religious services in the famous old landmark will be held about May 1 next. Wreckers will then quickly demolish the massive stone edifice and a towering modern structure will arise simultaneously with the other great improvements in that district. The hotel will have on the lower floors a bank, a trust company and safe deposit vault. The hotel itself will be the most advanced type of modern structure yet attempted.

Was Sick Eight Years with Female Trouble and Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAB MRS. PINKHAM:-I have never in my life given a testimonial before, but you have done so much for me that I feel called upon to give you this unsolicited acknowledgement of the wonderful curative value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For eight years I had female trouble, falling of the womb and other complications. During that time I was more or less of an invalid and not much good for anything, until one day I found a book in my hall telling of the cures you could perform. I became interested; I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was helped; I continued its use and in seven months was cured, and since that time I have had perfect health. Thanks, dear Mrs. Pinkham again, for the health I now enjoy."— MRS. JENNIE O'DONNELL, 278 East 31st St., Chicago, Ill. - $5000 forfelt if above testimonial is not genuine.

MURDERERS DIE

Edward and John Biddle Succumb to Injuries Received in Battle with Officers.

MRS. SOFFEL IS STILL LIVING.

Seusational Incidents Connected with the Escape of the Men from Jail in Pittsburg-Both Attempted to Commit Suicide When Cornered.

Edward and John Biddle, murderers, who escaped from the Pittsburg jail after overpowering and wounding the guards, died of the wounds received in a battle with officers, which resulted in their recapture. Mrs. Kate Soffel, the wife of the warden, who aided in the escape and furnished the men saws and revolvers, is in a critical condition. Symptoms of pneumonia have developed and, weakened by her wound and exposure, she may die at any moment.

One of the sensational incidents of the case was the finding of a lost love letter from Ed Biddle to his prison sweetheart, Mrs. Soffel, in the snow near the scene of their capture, which reveals the careful plot for their escape from the Allegheny County Jail.

Mrs. Soffel fell in love with Ed Biddle in November. The burglar soon realized his power over her. It was not long until he started to write love letters to her. Mrs. Soffel fell madly in love with him, and in the early part of December he proposed a plan of escape to her. She consented to lend her aid. Between Dec. 14 and 16 they had completed the arrangements to escape from the jail.

Mrs. Soffel said she shot herself, but stated afterward that "Ed" Biddle shot her. The man denied this.

Another sensational development was the declaration by ex-Warden Soffel in which he says that on the night of the escape he was chloroformed by his wife.

These facts were set forth in the verdict of the coroner's jury: Edward Biddle, to cheat the gallows, shot himself. His brother, John Biddle, attempted to commit suicide, but was killed by a bullet from the rifle of one of the pursuing officers.

A MOORISH CITY.

The Narrow Streets of Fez; and Its "River of Pearls."

The sun never touches the ground in Fez, except in a few isolated spaces. owing to the narrow streets, the height of houses, and the habit of stretching trellises covered with vines across from side to side. The consequence is that its naturally dark-skinned citizens, being rarely exposed to the full light of day, have complexions resembling partially decomposed potato sprouts in a dark cellar. The so-called streets run in straight lines the entire length of the town, an dare all paved with round stones the size of cocoanuts, worn smooth by the tread of generations of slippered feet. As these lanes are never swept, and every householder throws his slops and refuse out of doors, one must pick his way with exceeding care. The Wed el Jubai ("River of Pearls") divides the city into two parts, the new and the old. The "River of Pearls" is fordable in every part, the resort of every four-footed and two-legged beast in the place; it receives all the drainage of the city, and is the general source of the drinking water supply.

A PETRIFIED FOREST.

Almost everyone has heard of the petrified forest in Arizona, but few know that it is comparatively easy of access to visitors. The distance from the railroad is but seven miles and at the station Adamana, on the Santa Fe, a few miles east of Holbrook, Mr. Albert Stevenson maintains a small inn, accommodating about ten people and provides a spring wagon outfit and several saddle ponies for those who desire to visit the forest. The old pioneer, Adam Hanna, who. in the sense that John Hance made the Grand Canyon, made the Petrified Forest, has moved away.

At the forest there are hundreds of sections of tree trunks of various sizes and in variegated colors lying exposed on the plain or half buried in the hillsides. There are several extinct volcanoes in the vicinity of the forest and about two miles from the railway station are the ruins of an old Aztec settlement and curious hieroglyphics carved on rock.

Stop-overs are granted at Adamana on through railroad and Pullman tickets where the holders desire to visit the Petrified Forest.

The closer one lives to the earth the deadlier the atmosphere. The higher up, the purer the air. Keep your head and heart up.

There is dew in one flower, and not in another, because one opens its cup and takes it in, while the other closes because we will not open our hearts to receive them.

Courtesy has been defined as love in little things. And the secret of politeness is love. Love cannot behave itself unseemly! You can take the most untutored persons and put them in society, and if they have love as a reservoir in their hearts they will not behave themselves unseemly.

Thinking, speaking, acting, register themselves on the tablets of the soul and go into character. By these processes and through these methods tof activity-our thinking and speaking and acting-we are securing and preserving, as in stereotyped form, the sure record of ourselves.
