THUUSDAY, JULY 29, 1909

The Wankegan Evening News, the so called prohibition sheet of that city. showed the charitableness and love for touth and rightenusness of that paper when it published last week an account of the death of John Allen. He was called, by the News reporter, a chicken thief and general nuisance. Mr. Albir was a sportsman-a hunter and a fish arman in his later days and it is possi ble that he may have, at times, but that can be said of people in every walk of life. As a young man Mr. Allen was active in business, was an Odd Fellow and Mason and attended the Methodist church when a boy. For years he was a trusted U. S. official in Kentusky. Those who knew him will testify that the News' statement solutely unfounded in fact the an who wrote it is a liar, saying things about a man no longer of this world which he would not dare say about a living man. Is this the proper attitude for a paper of the high standards which the News professes to
