rules will receive tickets admitting them to the exposition and to either the replica of Fort Dearborn or the Chinese Temple of Jehol.

The competition will be known as A Century of Progress Safety contest and the judges will be William J. Bogan superintendent of Chicago public schools; Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president, board of health; Rev. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of Catholic parochial schools; George W. Dixon, civic leader; David J. Heffernon, assistant superintendent, Cook county schools; Thomas B. Hogan, president, Yellow Cab company; C. S. Peterson, vice president, Century of Progress; and Charles L. Rice, president, Chicago Safety council.

In order that children may compete on as nearly an equal basis as possible the prizes have been divided into five classifications. They are as follows:

Class A—200 tickets to children eight years old or less.

Class B—200 tickets to children nine and ten years old.

Class C—200 tickets to children eleven and twelve years old.

Class D—200 tickets to children thirteen to fifteen years old.

Class E—200 tickets to children sixteen years old or more.

Two boys and two girls will be selected from each class for the grand awards of a day's entertainment at A Century of Progress.
