TELEPHONE, BARRINGTON NO. 1

EQUIVALENT TO BOYCOTT

Following the thought expressed in these columns on August 2 that the N. R. A. blanket code-to-date has proven temporarily unfair to small business, we want to quote from a comprehensive editorial on the subject written by David Lawrence and published in the United States Daily August 12. Mr. Lawrence said in part:

"Now let us see what the blue eagle policy is intended to do and what it involves for everybody, small business man or big business man, consumer and employe or anybody who wears the badge of co-operation.

"In every blanket agreement to be signed by employes in this paragraph. The undersigned hereby agrees with the president as follows: To support and patronize establishments which have signed the agreement and are listed as members of the N. R. A. The card being distributed to millions of consumers with the blue eagle insignia reads:

"Consumer's statement of co-operation: I will co-operate in re-employment of supporting and patronizing employes and workers who are members of the N. R. A."

"General Johnson and his associates contend that advice to patronize those who are displaying the blue eagle is not a boycott because it is not accompanied by specific instructions to refrain from patronizing those who are not displaying the eagle. But surely nobody will argue that advice to patronize only blue eagle stores in a community is not going to affect adversely those who do not possess the insignia. The government officials say, however, that every employe can apply for the blue eagle. Hence there can be no discrimination. But on the other hand, the facts are that when he applies he faces conditions and requirements often impossible for him to meet. To obviate this in some instances a blue eagle with a "wound stripe" or white bar across it is to be given. This is tantamount to a public confession by the employe that he is in financial difficulties. For it is assumed that the white bar would be given only to those who are financially unable to comply. It will be withheld from those seeking to evade the increased expense of the blanket agreements but really can comply.

"Any such stigma therefore which produces in the mind of the passer-by a sense of discrimination or classification injurious to the store in question would seem plainly to be 'oppression' and 'discrimination' within the meaning of the law though doubtless it would take a court action to make a judicial finding to that point. By the time some small business man made a legal test his business would undergo the same 'economic death' referred to by officials the other day as waiting for the ratonators of the blue eagle code.

"A simple solution of the whole dilemma would be to award the blue eagle to the honest employes who are keeping people employed and continuing to operate their businesses. No one would be withheld from those who can afford to comply but who are too selfish to comply."

RESTORE REALTY VALUES

There is a general demand in the state for a revision of the tax laws which will take the load off real estate. This demand is rapidly crystallizing to urge Gov. Hornor to include the subject in his call for the special session of the legislature to be held later in the year. George F. Harding, veteran politician and owner of between 400 and 500 pieces of property in Chicago, on which all taxes have been paid, has this to say on the subject:

"Today anyone who owns real estate knows that it is no asset. It cannot be sold without great sacrifice, and banks, trust companies and insurance companies will not loan on it. The solution is lower taxes, with attendant government economic, and the shifting of some of the burden of real estate and on to whatever can pay taxes.

"All authorities agree that real estate is carrying from 80 to 85 per cent of the tax load in Illinois. I have always been taught that real estate is practically the basis of prosperity. Real estate includes farms, forests, ranches and so on. If that is so, then we cannot have prosperity unless real estate is restored to both a selling and a borrowing value."

MOUTH WASH HOKUM

Much ado has been made these days about bad breath, and most of it is sheer nonsense or downright hokum. The American public has been exploited by nostrums. As a matter of plain fact, any prolonged condition of halitosis (unpleasant breath) requires far more than a mouth wash to correct it. It may come from unhealthy conditions in the intestinal tract, or from several other causes. At any rate it calls for the attention of your family physician. If a temporary condition exists, the quickest and most effective remedy is simply gargling several times daily with salt and warm water (one teaspoonful of salt to the glass). Salt is a mild lavage and is recognized by authorities as an ideal mouth wash.

The bachelor comforts himself with the thought that disappointment in love has one consolation—it may have saved him a greater disappointment in marriage.

Wandering From This to That

Don't Want Job
For the first time since the boom days of the last decade, the civil service commission is having difficulty in getting a man to fill a government job.

The commission has just announced an examination for the position of post and production superintendent of the shoe factory at the federal penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kans. A vacancy exists at this time.

The job pays $2000 a year, less the 15 per cent cut under the economy plan and 3 1/2 per cent for retirement allowance. Applicants must have special qualifications for the post.

More Skins
For weeks in the Pribilof Islands herd have increased nearly 10-fold since the bureau of fisheries took over supervision of this valuable asset in 1931. The take of fur seal skins this season was the greatest in 44 years. This year 54,500 skins were taken, as compared with 49,230 skins last season.

Whereby the United States government assumed control of the Pribilof herd, both Japan and Canada are entitled to 35 per cent of the skins secured.

In past years, according to the bureau of fisheries, these countries have taken 15 per cent of the seal proceeds, after the share of the finished skins, but this year Canada has indicated it will take only 15 per cent of the unfinished skins.

When the bureau took over supervision of the seal herd, it had 100,000 numbered but 33,000 animals. Northwestward that more than 600,000 seals have been killed and the surplus of 3-year-old males since 1910, the herd has increased to a total of about 1,200,000 seals in the herd.

The prohibition against killing seals on the high seas has caused a materially increased increase, according to the bureau.

Whiskey Production
Distilleries probably will be permitted to increase their production of alcohol in 1933. The bureau of alcohol will be taken to protect the interest of the industry in the event of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. How large an increase in production distilleries may be allowed to make was not announced by the bureau. The production quota for the current calendar year is 10,000,000 gallons.

Medical stocks of whiskey have shrunk under the demands for liquor for medicinal use until there are only 200,000 gallons in the country, and much of this is not sufficiently pure to be usable. Medical demands have been increasing about 2,000,000 million gallons a year and some increase has been apparent since the repeal of liquor control three months ago.

Old Age Pensions
The movement toward old-age pensions has made more progress during the last year and a half than during any similar period in the history of the United States. Payments of old-age pensions in 1932 were $10,000,000 larger than any previous annual amount, and a record number of that amount was paid in 1932.

The bureau of labor statistics reports that $22,000,000 was received in old-age pensions during 1932. The 12 states with pension laws were as follows: Alaska, 1932; Arizona, 1932; California, 1932; Colorado, 1932; Connecticut, 1932; Delaware, 1932; Florida, 1932; Georgia, 1932; Idaho, 1932; Illinois, 1932; Indiana, 1932; Iowa, 1932; Kansas, 1932; Kentucky, 1932; Louisiana, 1932; Maine, 1932; Maryland, 1932; Massachusetts, 1932; Michigan, 1932; Minnesota, 1932; Missouri, 1932; Montana, 1932; Nebraska, 1932; Nevada, 1932; New Hampshire, 1932; New Jersey, 1932; New Mexico, 1932; New York, 1932; North Carolina, 1932; North Dakota, 1932; Ohio, 1932; Oklahoma, 1932; Oregon, 1932; Pennsylvania, 1932; Rhode Island, 1932; South Carolina, 1932; South Dakota, 1932; Tennessee, 1932; Texas, 1932; Utah, 1932; Vermont, 1932; Virginia, 1932; Washington, 1932; West Virginia, 1932; Wisconsin, 1932; Wyoming, 1932.

Napoleon's Wife
Marie Louise, Napoleon's wife, died at the age of 82. She was born in Austria and was married to Napoleon in 1810. She died in 1847 in Vienna. Her son, Napoleon III, was born in 1838 and died in 1879.

Animal Tamed in Stone Age
A collection of animals, those who have developed deepest into the world's remote past assure us, began to be tamed in the Stone Age, when the hunter dog was first tamed and buried with him. The dog is believed to have been the first animal to live with man, but just how it came about is not known. "It may have been," suggests a famous French paleontologist, "that the young wolves were taken home to please the children"—Gas Logic.

The Last of the Yaguans
Scientists predict that within a few years there will be no more Yaguans. This tribe, which Darwin described as the lowest order of humanity, has been reduced from 2,500 to a handful during the 60 years of the last century.

Rattlesnakes Held Sacred
Rattlesnakes, believed to be the "little brother" of the rattlesnake, are particularly sacred to Navajo Indians, because they are the literal go-between of the human and the spirit of the people to the deities in the dark and mysterious underworld where the gods, good and bad, are supposed to dwell in times of drought and crop failure; any disrespect shown to rattlesnakes would render these prayers useless.

REVIEWPOINTS

BE STRONG

Tomorrow comes the song. In last week's edition of this publication two sides of the sewer question were presented for your deliberation and consideration. One in favor of continued legal action and the other against appeal to the higher courts.

Read them over again if you are interested in this question. The one favoring appeal went into quite some detail as to the payment each new overburdened home owner has to face and that any additional burden would be a heavy one.

The other realizing that the new overburdened public needs relief, used less matter-of-factly language to comfort them and to guide them toward a more ethical solution.

The former did not disclose the real reason for all this heavy expense of litigation, especially as regards this sewer problem. The latter tried to clothe the reason in such a manner that the average citizen would not understand. This reviewer concludes that the reason would justify the action suggested.

Now in rebuttal it seems that this question warrants the open disclosure of the raw facts. I have continually been asked why I have not done this and time again. I would not consent to run for reelection as a trustee last year because I did not know the raw facts that are back of this sewer question. I respect the human feeling of the average citizen who is impatient; the facts must be told to save other innocent people continual hardship.

So much for the raw facts. I will state it as quickly as possible and have it over, and when you read it you will see that there is in this world something greater than dollars and cents, something greater than the things of this world, something greater than material things and that right is right and right is right.

Back seven or eight years ago just after the starting of this sewer problem, I was called to the bar by the then sitting board of trustees. They asked me to be a trustee and to go ahead and build that sewer. These trustees knew of a threat of court action, yet they had the nerve to stand alone and commit this act. As time went on they began to realize their mistake. Some of the trustees were indicted in this case.

Way back there at the start this sewer was excusable for we are all human and subject to error, but this continued over-expense policy has been the cause of all our troubles and all the unbearable expense Mr. Blanke so kindly epitomized.

Now I feel that I am correct in pleading that instead of continued real estate taxes, I should like to see an excusable error. I should like to see new residents of this village, and to do the right thing, I should like to see an error and do our best to correct it even though we cannot materially help now we can make a start. I pleaded anti-fair, I pleaded plain in the future. I pleaded not to accept the blame for the error which was an answer to clean up this sewer problem. It might have been possible, it came from a visual inspection, but I leave it with you to correct for yourself whether I am correct or not in assuming and making an appeal of this case.

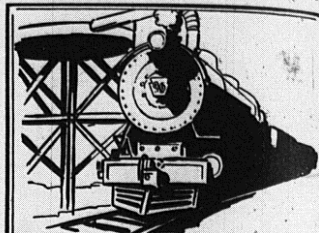

Many times while a trustee I had some such remark as this thrown at me: "You new-comers can't tell us how to run this town." (Not in decent language as I have stated it here.) Now isn't that a fine state of mind? I should like to see a type of man who would say such a thing. Now let's correct such insinuations. I have been a trustee in Barrington since here, bought lots, built new homes, and after we had our first sewer system, I have heard about this sewer deal. Before our sewer system was all wrong and before we had the sewer system, I have heard about this sewer deal.

Now please remember this, we the so-called new-comers had no voice in the sewer system, we were not there when it was built. We were not there when it was built. We were not there when it was built. We were not there when it was built.

Now if we were made of the wrong stuff we would refuse to pay a cent on your present sewer until it was corrected by the law as correct. We are not that kind of citizens, we have faith yet in Barrington and are willing to join hands with the old timers here to correct the error and pay our share of the cost.

Barney Oldfield, famous driver of the speedwagon, has signed a contract with the 1933 Illinois state fair, to attempt to break a world's speed record on Farmers' day, Aug. 25, instead of driving one of his specially designed racing cars, the "Oldfield Submarine," in which he has been swept down at the Illinois state fair in 1928. Barney will pilot a high speed tractor race over held at the Illinois state fair.
