FIRE IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Closed by fire!

At frequent intervals that happens to American factories and other places of business. Gutted buildings, empty windows, a litter of ash and rubbish—these are all that remain of a once-busy enterprise.

In all probability, the actual physical loss is wholly or largely covered by insurance. But that doesn't mean the "fire bill" is paid. Far from it—the indirect costs of fire are several times as great as the direct costs.

When a business establishment is gutted, it no longer pays its normal taxes. Its employees are discharged. Their purchasing power is brought to an abrupt stop. They are no longer able to pay rent and bills. Many of them may leave the town to search for employment elsewhere. Others become burdens on the community, looking to charity or relief for support. Every merchant, every professional man, every citizen feels the adverse effects of empty pay envelopes.

Thus a large fire touches us all. Its consequences extend throughout the entire community. In time, the building may be replaced, new machinery installed, and men again given jobs. But in the meantime, the community has suffered an irrevocable loss in wages, taxes and business turnover.

Fire is your business and everybody's business. If you think a blaze that destroys someone else's property doesn't hurt you, you were never more mistaken in your life. For all of us pay the bill for fire—and all of us reap the benefits when fire loss is reduced.
