Girls' Club Holds Meeting

A meeting of the Girls' club was called to order by the president, Caroline Scherman, on Thursday, Nov. 30. The vice president, Marjorie Soderberg, has made a record of all the programs for the past of the term. She gave a report of these at this meeting. The president gave permission for an open discussion and Marjorie's report was given the "once over."

Heavies Lose, Ponies Win

The Ela ponies won the preliminary game with Huntley by a score of 10-4. This game was unusually exciting in that the Ela boys took the lead in scoring at the beginning of the game. Buesching and Soderberg showed exceptional skill in tipping the ball in the basket.

The Ela heavies were defeated by Huntley in a hard fought game by a score of 10-12. Huntley took a 40-point lead in the first half. In the second half Ela played basketball, by rolling the score up and making Huntley fight for their victory.

Given Typing Demonstration

An interesting general assembly program was given by the commercial class on Friday, Dec. 9, with Marie Grover as chairman. The purpose of the program was to acquaint people with the knowledge of typewriters. During this program modern noiseless portable and the silent standard machines were demonstrated.

Pauline Fisher gave facts about early typewriters. Marjorie Soderberg then told about the first practical typewriter which was the Remington in 1874.

Caroline Friedman told about the recent development of the typewriter. Vivian Maloney gave facts about the many uses of the typewriter after which a three minute test was given to the advanced typing class. In this test Gladys Kropp ranked first, writing 70 words a minute. A one minute test was then given to the beginning class. Pauline Fisher led this class by writing 61 words per minute. After this the Ela loyalty song was sung and this was followed by a pep meeting conducted by the four girls who were chosen cheer leaders.

Cheer Leaders Are Chosen

Last Tuesday night, at the Ela-Huntley basketball game, a number of girls tried out for cheer leaders. They were Mary Blank, Ethel Keiser, Evelyn Pedersen, Evelyn Stelling, Kay Pathe, Marjorie Soderberg, and Ella Buesching. Two alumni, Alfred Giese and Eugene Frank, also helped in leading cheers.

Democratic Candidate for Auditor Asks for Recount and Baring of Voliva Votes

Declaring that republican votes cast in Zion under orders from Voliva should be thrown out, Edward McDermott, democratic candidate for county auditor, has filed a petition for recount of votes.

He declared that in place of losing by 212 votes he was actually elected by 3000 votes over Robert Pearsall, republican candidate who was inducted into office last week. He said that 1800 votes cast under the direction of Voliva should be thrown out.

In addition he said he was deprived of 204 votes by judges who ruled that they were "scratched."

The request was made for County Judge P. L. Persons to impound the ballots.

The ballots now are in the possession of the county clerk.

Ela Grain Judging
Team Wins Ribbons
at Sycamore Contest

The grain judging team of Ela Township High school composed of Norman Nehmer and Claude Britt won two more ribbons for the agriculture room display last week at Sycamore. They scored 704 points out of a possible 800 for a percentage of 88. In individual work Norman Nehmer scored 392 points out of a possible 400 for a percentage of 98 which is excellent work. Having a grade of 98 percent gave Norman a ribbon for individual work.

The poultry and corn teams placed well up the list but did not win any prizes. Competing in the contest were the high schools from the counties in northeastern Illinois. There were about 200 boys in the contest.

Minister Would Testify
Against Man Demanding
Apology on "Slot Machines"

Rev. H. S. McKeevan of Grayslake will have the privilege of testifying before the grand jury of Lake county against Lawrence "Murphy" Baskin, alleged collector for the slot machine syndicate, on a complaint that Baskin appeared three times at the home of the minister and asked the latter to write an apology for an article the minister had caused to be published against slot machines.

The whir of the slot machine, frequently heard through the summer, is a thing of the past as the machines have been removed from the county, according to State's Attorney Charles E. Mason.

Mason in his first day in office, announced that he would not tolerate racketeers or gangsters to dictate to shopkeepers on what machines, or beer they should use. He said at the time that he did not intend to dictate whether people should drink beer or play the machines, as he could not be construed as a regulator of morals, but that he intended to strip gangsters of their attempts to control rackets in the county.

Reverend McKeevan expressed his willingness to appear before the grand jury against Baskin.

"I cannot and do not intend to stop anyone from appearing before a grand jury. That is the right of any citizen with any testimony to offer. I heard of this incident, but no charges have been made to this office since I became prosecutor."

"I thought I made myself plain on my intentions when I took office, and I intend to stand by what I said, and each complaint made to this office will be recognized," Mason said.

Reverend McKeevan said he did not grant Baskin's demand for an apology, and would not.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Motoring through Vermont, near the village of Montpelier, Philip Starr, young architect, makes the acquaintance of a unconventional fashion of Blanche Manning, girl of seventeen, who whom he is immediately enamored. From her, in conversation, he learns something of her family history, dating from Revolutionary times, and star is convalescing from a serious illness, and it being a long distance to Burlington, she is determined to stay in the small village. Blanche suggests, the small village, not boasting a hotel, that he become, for the night, a guest of her cousin, Mrs. Manning.

"This is Mr. Philip Starr of Boston, Mary. I met him by the brook. He's an architect. He's been sick with typhoid fever, and is on his way to Burlington in a motor to make a visit while he's getting strong, but he got lost. I told him I was sure you'd take him in for the night."

"I'm afraid I'll dreadfully interrupt him," interrupted Philip, sitting up at Mary, but she in turn interrupted him.

"Of course not. Father and I'll both be awfully glad to have you. When you put your motor in the shed, I'll get it out for you. I'll take you to the guest chamber and bathroom, and a minute, and show you where the guest chamber and bathroom are."

She was already downstairs when they returned from the shed, brought over the guilty but contented Moses.

"I'm afraid you won't have any dessert for supper," she said, laughingly. "Moses seems to have cleaned out the pantry while I was busy with Alex. But I can open a jar of preserves, and there are cookies. You go upstairs and turn on the water, Moses. I'll be there in just a minute—Hello, Paul!"

Her voice, soft and friendly, attracted perceptibly at the last words, Philip, turning quickly, saw a boy who seemed to be simply a larger and masculine replica of Blanche—there was an almost unobtrusive family resemblance between all those Manning—coming up the walk toward them.

"Hello," he said hesitantly. "Hello, Blanche, you're going to catch it for running away. Hello."

"This is Mr. Starr of Boston," put in Mary, quickly, repeating the somewhat scanty information which Blanche had been able to give her about him. "My cousin—Paul, Mr. Starr—Blanche's brother."

"How do you do?" said Paul, without much enthusiasm. "Glad to see you—Mother's gone to bed with a sick headache—all used up after cleaning the north parlor. So I thought I better come over here for supper."

"Of course," agreed Mary warmly. "Will you show Mr. Starr where to go while I get Moses settled? Come, Moses."

She disappeared up the stairs again. Philip picked up his bag, which Paul had made no effort to take from him, and followed. Little as he knew of the customs of New England farmers, he thought it unlikely that there were many who looked like this one, or who were at leisure to appear in white flannel at six o'clock on a May evening.

He resented both the boy's beauty and his clothes. Paul stopped at the open door of a small room and motioned him to enter.

"I hope you'll find this fairly decent," he said, deprecatingly. "It's not much of a housekeeper—there's probably some dust about. That's the bathroom at the end of the hall—there's only one."

"Thank you—have I time for a shave before supper?"

"I guess so—Mary'll wait for you anyway."

The family was waiting for him, when he went downstairs again. Blanche had gone home and changed her dress for another while one, softer and flatter than the one she had worn in the afternoon. Mary, apparently, had had no time to freshen up, and had simply tied a crisp apron of generous proportions over the faded blue gingham; without a necktie and with a smoky coat slipped on over his khaki shirt trousers, came forward to welcome Philip.

"Pleased to meet you," he said with the same unquestioning cordiality that Mary had shown. "Blanche has been telling us how the happened to find you and that you've been sick. I'm real sorry, but I guess our good Vermont air'll fix you up. Come and set down to supper. It's all ready—such as 'tis. I understand Moses has set up a good share of it."

There was, however, no scarcity of supper. There was, on the contrary, a good deal of it—two big slices of ham, with a quantity of clear, golden-brown gravy, fried eggs, baked potatoes, dandelion greens. Philip thought he had never been so hungry, that nothing had ever tasted so good.

"Want to smoke?" asked Paul at last.

Barrington Woman's Club

Eighty little people who are daily the guests of the Little Wanderer's Nursery in Chicago will be made happy with Christmas toys which our women so graciously contributed this year. The gifts all beautifully wrapped and tied were brought to the meeting Wednesday afternoon and placed beneath the tree in the lobby of The Catlow theatre. Besides the gifts, a sizeable check for the milk fund of the institution was given by our members. Mrs. William Pretzel, chairman of the philanthropic committee, will have the pleasant task of delivering toys and money to the nursery next week.

About 40 women attended the Christmas party. A short business meeting preceded the program. Mrs. Elma Schauble, our relief committee representative, gave a brief report of the collections and expenditures for November. She said that 43 families had been helped.

The program consisted of carol singing under Mrs. York's direction and some exceptionally fine readings. Mrs. Hammond read of the inception and growth of the Christmas idea and told of some of the interesting traditions and customs of this best loved of all festivals. Mrs. Pundt read passages from some of the Christmas essays and stories of Dickens and Washington Irving and gave a portion of Bess Streeter Aldrich's novel, "A Lantern in Her Hand" which told of the first Christmas celebration of a pioneer family in their prairie home.

An invitation to a meeting of the Physician's Fellowship club of Chicago for Friday, Dec. 9 was received by this club. Mrs. Roy Hutchinson, president of the seventh district, is a member of the organization.

The study class met Thursday afternoon for a review of Marcia Davieport's "Life of Mozart." Mrs. William Dotterer was the speaker. A short review of her talk will be printed in this column next week. Mrs. R. B. Hammond announced that at the next meeting on January 20, Mrs. Gilbert Hardacre would review "Peter Ashby," a new novel by Dubose Heyward.

Advisory Group Suggests Appeal May Be Necessary

into the creek, even though treated to make it 100 per cent pure.

Any compromise made with the present complainants cannot, under any property owners lower down the creek.

If decree is not appealed it becomes absolutely final, can never be changed except by consent of complainants, with possibility that similar suits by property owners below proposed plant site may be started.

Condemnation Proceedings

This will then force village to undertake the installation of a sewer system at once, by special assessment and condemnation process, to be further suits by lower property owners.

The main offer of the Country Club and complainants, when fully analyzed, is not sufficient in effect or value to persuade the village not to appeal because:

A. The amount stated as $31,500 is really only $22,500 because $9,000 is given by an owner whose property will be assessed that amount or more.

B. While this amount is to be secured by mortgages, in the case of the largest contributor of $15,000, it will be only a second mortgage.

C. The village does not wish to underwrite the financial responsibility of the contributors. It does recognize the possibility of many changes in a lapse of five or ten years, as demonstrated in past few years.

Native Assessments

The assessments would not be reduced if the village should accept the offer, as the property of all complainants (except one) is located outside the village limits and the full amount of the assessment must be spread over village property regardless of contributions.

D. The amount is not payable in a lump sum but over a period of 15 years, thus each installment would be so small that the benefit would not be felt by any property owner and it would most likely be "swallowed up" as is usual for special assessments.

E. These annual installments are not payable fully but a certain amount ranging from less than $100 and upwards each annually and should any fail to pay their installment, it would not be practical for the village to sue for so small amount, with the result that it would not be worthwhile to attempt to force collection until the end of the 15 year period or some 20 years hence. The benefit of this amount may therefore be quite negligible and remote to the village property owners.

The committee again emphasizes that while it does not unduly insist any such result, if the result in the hands of present complainants should change hands by death or sale, etc., at any time within the next 20 years—and such changes do happen—the new owners may not feel so kindly disposed toward the village as the present ones do.

Mrs. Robert Work to Head Bird Club for Another Year

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Barrington Bird Club was held Monday night. Mrs. Elmer Hammon was the hostess. Mrs. Robert Work was elected president. Mrs. Clifford Stout was elected vice-president. Mrs. Peter Pedersen secretary and Mrs. Arthur Donovan treasurer.

A paper written by John Blanke on "Factors in Bird Migration" was read by Mr. Stout in the absence of the versatile author. Mr. Blanke strove to outline and explain the various reasons for migration. The paper was supplemented by several elaborate charts showing routes of migration, speed of travel of migrating birds, and the relation of sunshine, insolation, and other conditions affecting bird migration. "The club feels indebted to Mr. Blanke for all the work he put into composing the paper and charts. A lively discussion followed the reading. Delightful refreshments of coffee, sandwiches and cake were served from a table gay with Christmas decorations.

The Bird club is planning a Christmas bird walk and census to take place during Christmas week. Anyone interested should attend a meeting Wednesday evening, Dec. 21 at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Work, when Mr. Stout will explain the project and plans can be made.

Variety of Film Entertainment at Catlow Next Week

"Rackety Rax," "Hell's Highway" and "The Old Dark House" Booked

Saturday night will see the third of the Merchants' Co-operative film events at the Catlow theatre. The last one will be held just one week later, Saturday, Dec. 24.

Tom Mix will provide adventure some thrills for the Saturday program. Assisted by Raymond Hatton and Fred Kohler he will portray the west in a series of breath-taking episodes heightened by marvelous bits of scenery. Short subjects for this program will include comedy, cartoon, scenic and pathé news.

A strong comedy cast appears in support of Victor McLaglen in "Rackety Rax," which comes to the Catlow theatre for Sunday matinee and evening and Monday night. The film is said to afford McLaglen the most comical role of his career.

Greta Nissen, who has the role of a platinum blonde sweetie in "Rackety Rax," shares honors in the comedy scenes with Nell O'Day, personality starlet from the musical comedy stage.

The action of the picture takes place in Broadway night clubs, on the campuses and in the studio of many colleges from Yale boy to Soldiers' field and thence out to the glitzy of the Pacific coast.

A group of selected short subjects will add to the interest of this bill. "Hell's Highway" is the title of an epic of the sorrows and laughter of road camp convicts, coming next Tuesday, with Richard Dix heading an unusually powerful cast.

As the tough, large hearted, realistic convict, Duke Ellis Dix is said to strike a tremendously appealing note.

While much pitiful human misery is depicted in "Hell's Highway," one hears that two themes of great tenderness runs like threads of beauty through the story. One deals with the love of Duke Ellis for his brother, Johnnie Ellis, for a girl.

Tom Brown plays the brother, Rochelle Hudson the girl.

This terrifically tense drama is laid in the sinister setting of an ancient house in the lonely Welsh mountains where a group of travelers caught in a violent storm seek refuge for the night, only to discover that the inhabitants are tainted with insanity and ruled over by a gigantic, brutal servant who, becoming inflamed by drink, menaces the entire group. The desperate situation is heightened when the evil brute going mad himself with lust and ferocity decides to lunge upon the house the murder-craving brother kept in his charge in a locked room.

"The Old Dark House" features an exceptional cast of talented stage favorites.

The Catlow theatre, the American Legion and the Lions club will play Santa Claus to all kiddies of 12 years and under Friday night, Dec. 23. No admission will be charged these children. A real Santa Claus will be on hand to see that each child has a Christmas box. The picture will be Ziegfeld's "The Golden West," starring George O'Brien.

State News

The Reconstruction Finance corporation at Washington has made an additional loan of $1,935,078 to the state for relief for the month of December. It is expected that the legislature, meeting in regular session in January, will act on a state-wide sales tax to raise funds for further needs. Including the December loan, the state will have received from the Reconstruction Finance corporation more than half of its limit under existing law which fixes the maximum at $45,000,000.

Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, was elected president of the Illinois conference on social welfare at its annual meeting at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, Nov. 28-Dec. 1. Governor Emerson, in speaking before one of the sessions of the conference, expressed satisfaction of the welfare accomplishments of the state during the past four years but declared that much remains to be done, due to the fact that curtailment of the state's revenues made full completion of his program impossible.

The national swine show will be held in connection with the Illinois state fair of 1933. It has been decided at a meeting of the organization held recently in Chicago. The invitation was extended by Governor-elect Henry Horner. The show has been held in Springfield for several years and attracts breeders from all parts of the country. General Manager Milton E. Jones of the Illinois State Fair is to be congratulated upon his success in securing national shows for the Illinois state fair.

New Chevrolets on Floor Saturday at Gordon Motor Sales

The salesroom of the Gordon Motor Sales at 110 E. Station street, will be the center of automobile interest on December 17 according to an announcement that has just been made by Mr. Heckmiller, Chevrolet dealer. Mr. Heckmiller is more enthusiastic than ever about the splendid line of cars Chevrolet, a leader of the industry, is introducing for 1933 and feels confident that the public will share this enthusiasm when they have seen this new line.

According to Mr. Heckmiller the new Chevrolet presents a distinctly new body styling which offers new features revolutionary in the low priced field. The cars are larger with more powerful motors and represent a substantial step forward in modern automobile safety engineering.

Many of the Chevrolet dealers have already visited the General Motors proving ground at Milford, Mich., and have returned elated over the way the new cars perform on every kind of road and under every driving condition.

Mr. Heckmiller further states that the Chevrolet salesroom will present a particularly attractive setting for the new cars and believes that all records for attendance will be broken on announcement day.

Lake County Money in Postal Mail Robbery in Chicago Last Week

The $500,000 mail robbery in Chicago included $7000 of Lake county treasury money in transit to a Chicago bank, according to Jay B. Morse, county treasurer.

The government Friday started compiling a list of the loot, but no notice has been sent to Morse. The county will not lose as the money was in the hands of postal employees and the federal government is responsible for the loss, it was learned.

The five gunmen who made the half million dollar haul are being sought throughout the entire middle west by K. P. Aldrich, chief postal inspector for the government, whose department bears the reputation of 100 per cent efficiency in solving mail robberies.

The robbery was staged across the street from the First National bank in Chicago, where the pouches of checks were being delivered.

The mail robbery was one of the most daring ever perpetrated in the Chicago district and was staged during the noon rush hour in one of the busiest sections of the Chicago loop.

Investigation of the holding by federal operatives included a probe of all of the hundreds of persons who were seeking part time employment in the post office department during the Christmas holiday rush.

Philip hesitated. He had not visited in many families where "they did their own work" but he had a vague feeling that he ought to offer to be useful.

"Don't we help with the dishes first?" he asked.

"Mercy, don't you think of such a thing!" Seth exclaimed. "Mary! I have 'em done in no time, while I finish milkin'. You and Blanche and Paul go and set on the front porch and take it easy."

"I'm going to Wallaceton, to a show," said Paul briefly.

"Oh, don't tonight!"

Paul turned to his cousin, impatiently. "What are you so down on Wallaceton for?" he asked crossly.

"I've got all my plans made—I didn't know we were going to have company, did I? I'd have asked you to go with me, of course, only I knew you wouldn't care for it anyway, even if you weren't too busy."

"It'll be nine o'clock before you get the dishes done and the bread set. Then, seeing that Mary's face was still clouded, he added, more pleasantly and very persuasively, "Mary—you like me to have a good time, once in a while, don't you?"

"Of course I do, but—"

Here we go... on a CHRISTMAS-GIFT HUNT!

It is a problem, isn't it, finding Christmas gifts that will be just a little bit different for all the names on your list. Have you tried the Public Service Store for ideas? If not, we suggest you hurry right over! You'll find some mighty thrifty solutions for your "what-to-give" worries. For instance:

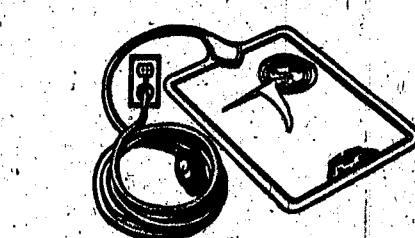

Here's a new electric casserole that cooks everything from pot roast to baked potatoes—from vegetables to brown bread! It holds two quarts and has both a high-speed and low-speed heating element. Finished in ivory and green porcelain enamel and decorated with an attractive colonial design, it will complement any dining room table. And priced at only $4.95 it's a real buy.

This coffee-maker by Hotpoint is another brand new suggestion. It brews delicious clear coffee the way the best restaurants do. Glass parts are Pyrex—metal parts are chromeplated. Complete, $7.95.

A lamp always makes an individual gift—and this one with large pottery base is an unusual value. It comes in green, pumpkin, black, onyx or yellow, with decorated parchment shades to match. Only $3.55.

And have you seen Hotpoint's new all-rubber heat pad? Because it is absolutely waterproof it can be used either for wet or dry packs whenever heat applications are needed. It's easy to sterilize, too. With long rubber cord, only $5.95.

Almost any one will appreciate a bedside clock like this. It never has to be wound because it runs electrically. Its polite alarm will see that every day is started on time. A tiny light inside illuminates the dial at night. In a trim walnut case, the "Firefly" is $4.75.

Why not give some one an electric waffle iron? This one has an automatic signal to tell when its aluminum grids are ready for the batter. And it is beautifully finished in non-tarnishing chromeplate. An attractive and useful gift—and only $3.45.

While doing your shopping, don't forget Christmas decorations for your home. This good-looking window wreath, wrapped in red silk, with an electric candle set into it, is only 95 cents. The electric candle (right) standing 11 inches high and finished in red and silver, is 95 cents.

These electric corn poppers are great conveniences because they can be used wherever the family happens to be gathered. Finished in chromeplate, the quart-size is only $7.70. In blue steel (less cord), 98c.

Do you know a man who likes to tinker with his car? Then a garage light will surely make a hit. This one has a handle for carrying, a hook for hanging up, a cage to protect the lamp bulb, and a bright reflector. With cord, only $1.59.

There isn't room to mention all the other useful Christmas gifts your Public Service Store is now featuring on its special gift tables. We urge you to come over as soon as you can and see for yourself.

Other local electrical dealers also have special gift displays

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Several outstanding facts about this Company probably are not as well understood as I think they should be. (1) It is purely an operating company and is not owned or controlled by any other company. (2) The majority of its stockholders live right here—in "home owned." (3) All of its officers and employees live here. (4) Its future is irrevocably dependent upon the growth and prosperity of northern Illinois.

"Of course I do, but—"

"Then may I hope I'll have it like a good girl?"

He slipped his arm around her, rubbing his head against hers, and kissing her cheek. She smiled and returned his kiss.

"Then Say You Hope I'll Have It, Like a Good Girl!"

"All right, run along," she said cheerfully. "Blanche, you can keep Mr. Starr amused, can't you?"

"Of course she can," said Philip hastily. But he stood with looking at Mary with a slightly puzzled expression. Was it possible that Paul—engaged—he had the boy's sister's word for it—to this wonderful creature, was going to Wallaceton, wherever that might be, to a "show," his privilege to do so practically unquestioned, leaving her to wash dishes and make bread? To his chagrin, Mary seemed to guess what was passing in his mind.

"It's awfully dull on the farm for Blanche and Paul," she said, as she moved about, clearing the table. "I'm glad there's something amusing for him to go to. We don't often have a good show in Hamstead. And I'm glad that Blanche can have a pleasant evening with you. It's lovely on the porch. You can find your way out there all right, can't you?"

Customs of chaperonage in Hamstead are simple, not to say primitive. As a rule, however, they work out surprisingly well. Seth, coming in after dark from the barn, lighted the kitchen lamp, and read the Wallaceton Bugle and his farm paper. Then he took off his shoes, and tiptoed up the stairs to bed. Philip, going up to bed about eleven, found Mary in his room, treading down his bed.

"I say, Miss Manning—may I speak to you for a minute?"

"Of course," answered Mary, turning to him with a smile. "What is it?"

"Your cousin Blanche—she isn't engaged, too, is she?"

Mary flushed. "What makes you say 'too'?" she asked quietly.

"Why—she told me about you and her brother. I hope you won't think I'm fresh if I tell you I consider him awfully lucky."

"It's I that am lucky," returned Mary slowly. "Paul's the dearest boy in all the world, after you get to know him. I feel much older that he is, though as a matter of fact, we're almost exactly the same age. But—we're not exactly engaged. We're a sort of an understanding—keeping company. It's called, here in Hamstead. But—Paul isn't bound at all."

"Well, I should think he'd want to be," said Philip with visible admiration. "But now, about his sister? Has she got an understanding? Or anything awkward like that with anybody?"

"No," said Mary, smiling. "She's very young yet, you know—barely seventeen. Why?"

"Because," Philip burst out, "I've fallen in love with her—head over heels. Of course I haven't told her."

He had not visited families where they were but he had a plan that he ought to offer help with the dishes.

"You think of such a thing," Mary said. "I have no time, while you and Blanche are on the front porch."

"Wallacetown, to a moment," he said.

"You had cousin impatience you so down on me?" he asked crossly. "My plan made—"

"I was going to have you to help me with the dishes, only I don't care for it any more."

"I don't believe you'll need an awful lot of help with Blanche," she said, whimsically. "But I'll say a few things to Cousin Violet that might make a difference. Good night."

"You are good! And you don't think I'm an awful chump going at night?"

"I think you're rather nice," said Mary, still whimsically. "If you must know."

She was closing the door gently behind her when Philip pulled it open again.

"Mary," he said, "I may call you Mary, mayn't I—tell me the superstition about Lady Blanche—about all the Blanches."

"Well," said Mary, hesitating a little, "all the Blanches so far have fallen in love at first sight, and married strangers and gone away from their own homes to live. Their husbands have adored them, and they've been rich and beautiful and—"

"Is that all of the story?"

"Is there anything," asked Mary, suddenly, "that I could tell you that would make you want her any less? Anything that would make you afraid to try and get her?"

"Anything in the way of an old superstition, you mean? Good Lord, no!"

"Then," said Mary, "I think that's enough for tonight. And good enough for any night, too, isn't it? Especially for a man who has just said he was in love with Blanche—it ought to make you feel as if the suit were half won already! Good night."

CHAPTER III

VIOLET MANNING was an extremely pretty woman with an infinite capacity for doing nothing. She had been the only child, much spoiled and petted, of a shopkeeper in White Water, the next village to Hamstead, who had stunted himself to give her "advantages." She was sent to a would-be-but-didn't-quite-make-it-fashionable boarding school, and acquired a veneer of culture, and a contempt for her parents, and her neighbors, and her home town, but not very much else. On her return to White Water, after she was "finished" at school, and had taken a three months' trip to Europe, she might have been the belle of the countryside if she had been as pleasant as she was pretty. But her would-be swains fell off, one by one, before the disdain of her manner; and it was with secret relief that, at the age of twenty-five, she accepted Manning, and went to live on Lady Blanche farm.

She was careful to convey the impression, to him and to everyone else, that she was doing him a great favor to marry him, and he at least, believed her. A sturdy couple from "out-back"—Horace, or as he was more frequently called, "Hod" Evans and his wife Myra—were installed in the big brick house as "help." And Violet lay in bed late in the morning, and sat in the north parlor—heretofore used only for weddings and funerals—embroidering center-pieces, and went to church on Sunday, dressed considerably better than anyone else in Hamstead. A woman with more brains would soon have been bored into activity by such an existence. But Violet was not bored. She was supremely satisfied at the easy and pleasant lines into which her life had fallen.

When she was a little over thirty, Martin, who still worshiped her blindly, died, leaving her with two small children, and enough money to live on comfortably, if simply. Every Sunday morning she went to church with Blanche and Paul at her side, her heavy black dress trailing down the aisle behind her. Every Sunday afternoon she went to the cemetery to place flowers on Martin's grave, taking the children. When the role of bereaved and sorrowful widow began to pall a little, and no one stepped forward to relieve her of it, Violet's business took refuge in that of the model housekeeper and devoted mother. Fortunately, with a contentment rare in New England, Myra and Hod stayed on; Myra ran the house to suit herself. Hod helped the hard-working and plodding Seth with the farm labor which Paul was supposed to be too delicate to perform, since an attack of scarlet fever, which had left him in a weakened condition, had given his mother the fixed idea that he had heart trouble. To be sure, Paul mowed the lawns and weeded the garden, but he always under her careful supervision. He had been away to a nearby seminary to school, and drifted half way through a course at an agricultural college; but he was not a natural student, and the farm ran along "well enough" without his help. When for no very clear reason, he stated that he had decided not to finish his course, his mother did not try to force him to do so. More through lack of vital interest than through viciousness, he became dissipated. Violet excused him. There were some things, she said, that she couldn't, with modesty, discuss with him. Boys always sowed wild oats for a time, and then settled down and married some nice girl, just as Paul was going to settle down by and by and marry dear Mary. There was no use worrying or making a vulgar fuss over what was coming out all right in the end, anyway. And meanwhile Blanche was such a comfort! Blanche had also inherited her mother's good looks, and the discontent which the latter had felt in her youth, but there was "more Manning" to her. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

About the cost of your Gas and Electric Service

prevented it. The drastic reductions recently made in commodity prices only bring them down to levels that electricity and gas have been on for years.

In addition to the decreasing costs of electricity as compared to the cost of living, this chart also shows how the use of electricity in homes has mounted upwards during the last few years.

In the communities served by this Company electric rates have been lowered four times in the last 12 years, and most of these reductions were made when general commodity prices were either going up or maintaining high levels. In spite of the lowered cost of living at the present time, it is a fact that the 1932 dollar spent for living expenses will buy 26% less than the 1913 dollar—and yet the same dollar spent for electricity will buy 85% more than the 1913 dollar.

The reductions that have been made in both gas and electric rates since August 1, 1930, have actually saved residential customers of this Company more than three and a half million dollars over the amount they would have paid for these services if the reductions had not been made.

It is also true that the conveniences we get from gas and electricity in our homes and businesses are so constant and so much a part of our daily lives that we are likely to forget that we use them as much as we do.

IN TIMES like these it is perfectly natural that people should scrutinize expenditures more closely than ever before. Gas and electricity bills are always among the first things people are skeptical about. Particularly with many commodities selling for half what they formerly did, some people are asking why gas and electric rates haven't been reduced, too.

THE REASON IS THIS: The prices of gas and electricity never were up during the prosperity years. Regulation

Baptist and St. Paul Cagers Win; Salem Has a Bye

Church Athletic League Opens Season With Five Teams on Tuesday Night

The Church Athletic league opened its basketball schedule Tuesday night with the Baptists defeating St. Anne's 41 to 20, and St. Paul turning back the Methodists 30 to 24. Salem drew a bye.

The Baptist-St. Anne's tussle became exciting in the third quarter when St. Anne's crawled within two points of their opponents. From then on "Speed" Miller lost his basket eye and the Baptists stepped out in front. Both teams missed a number of under-the-basket shots, and at one time St. Anne had the ball under their basket for about ten consecutive shots without dropping any.

The second encounter was even most of the way with the Methodists holding a 9 to 8 lead at the half. In the second half, Wolf broke out in a scoring rash, making five buckets to put St. Paul out in front. "Jock" Catlow was the only player to be put out on fouls, but he insists that it would not happen again.

The playing was a little ragged, but the teams expect to work more smoothly as they gain experience. Next Tuesday night there will be two games, starting at 7:30 with Salem playing St. Anne's, and the Methodists playing the Baptists, with St. Paul drawing a bye.

Miller Bros. Pin Quint Wins Series From Jefferson Ice

Jefferson Team Holds Lead in League by One Game; Winning Halted

The Miller Bros. bowling team completely outplayed the Jefferson Ice team to win the three-game series on Tuesday, Dec. 6, to come within one game of tying that team for first place in the Barrington Bowling league in the week's schedule. J. C. Cadwallader led the Miller quint in scoring and also turned in the highest individual series score for the week. The Greenard Grill, Pohlman Drugs and Barrington Review teams each won two of their three-game series. All the teams in the league retained the same position in the standing that they had the week before.
