It Should Not Have Ended Thus.

Being built on a short-circuit, a young man allowed himself to become entangled in the conduct of the conductor. The latter important official seemed to be in a hurry. He was making it a practice to give the "let's go" signal before stopping passengers were fairly on the ground. Once or twice he had frightened women in this manner, and many an angry glance followed him as he hurried on.

Near South street the angry young man arose to leave the car. He stopped and he started to swing the railing round.

The conductor had jerked the bell cord. The young man, strong and athletic in build, could have dropped off without effort, but he didn't. Instead he reached up and jerked the bell cord a single jerk. The car, in the act of gathering momentum again, stopped suddenly.

"What do you mean by that?" demanded the conductor.

"I'm taking the time you should have given to those ladies," answered the athletic young man with a satisfied grin. Then coolly, carefully, still grinning at the angry conductor, he stepped off into a puddle of dirty water.

It should not have been so, but the conductor had the last laugh—Indianapolis News.

Haynes Class Wins.

The ball game Saturday afternoon between the Y. M. C. A. and the Haynes class of Chicago resulted in the local victory by a score of 11 to 6.

The visitors hit the Y. M. C. A.'s Chicago pitcher, Elmore, so much that they were obliged to take him out of the box before the game was over.

Whether the Haynes were one of the home boys. The Haynes class is the team which played the Y. M. C. A. a close game a few weeks ago, and doubtless they would have won that time had they been given a "square deal."

Short Names.
An English clergyman, Dr. Frederick Lee, had a prejudice against a long string of Christian names and held that if such names were proposed the clerk should read them at baptism.

One day he was willing to do this. It was said of him that he christened all the boys Frederick after himself and all the girls Mary after the Virgin. The author of "The Life of Walter Pater" gives Dr. Lee's method of christening as follows:

"Name this child, he would say in his authoritative voice.

"Archibald Chomondolei Constantine Frederick!" perhaps the mother would whisper.

"Frederick," she would hear, to her amazement, and then would follow the formula of baptism.

In the vestry of course there would be objection.

"This child," Dr. Lee would reply, "will have to get his living in the world, and what do you want to handicap him with? Archibald Chomondolei Constantine and all the rest of them for? Anyhow, it's done now and can't be altered."

Better Unknown.
Into the yard of the great factory, except the ragged scum, while the owner of the establishment watched him from the doorway.

Presently the scum bent down and picked up a piece of string. This moved the heart of the merchant.

"My lad," he said, "I have a vacancy for an office boy at 10 shillings a week. If you like, I'll give you the job. For I'm sure you'll be a new career."

I saw you pick up that string, and a boy who is careful in little things will be careful in big things. He is a bargain."

It was, just as the scum bent down to tell his mother about his good fortune he muttered darkly:

"If he only knew that I picked up that string to fix a tin to his dog's tail!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Lesson in Shopping.
Managers and clerks in large department stores of necessity have to deal with all kinds and classes of people, and they often have most amusing experiences, owing to the peculiarities of their customers, says the Philadelphia Record.

While waiting for an express establishment yesterday a clerk told a West Philadelphia shopper a story which she has since been circulating among her circle of friends.

"An uptown customer," the clerk said, "last week had six yards of a most expensive silk sent to D. D. The next day the package was returned to us, and upon it was written: 'Returned. I was only teaching my daughter how to shop.'"

Ever Notified It.
A man stood on the eighth floor of a skyscraper and pushed the button for the elevator.

In a moment another man came along on the same floor and did the same thing. He also knew the first man had pushed the button.

Presently a third man came along pushing the button and gave the button a vicious jab. She also knew the previous two had pushed the button.

In a few moments more an elderly woman came along, stepped on the crowd and rang for the—but she got no answer.

"What a nuisance!" she muttered, and rang with my sister, Mr. Stowboy. Mr. Stowboy (elder's sister)—And what did I get?

Small Bigney—I heard her tell Cousin Jimmie this morning that she was going to check you outboard—St. Louis Enquirer.

"What a nice table that girl has."
"That! Why, it's so this she ought to sing all her songs in a staid tone!"—Baltimore American.

The Head of the Family.
Mrs. Bigney—Mr. Bigney is looking for a home that a woman can drive him. Doyle—That's a lot of home, getting things she can drive. Her husband is that kind of a man.—New York Tribune.

I had a thing done by halves. It is to dig it in today. If it is wrong, I'll dig it in tomorrow.—Baltimore American.

SAINT DICKS, LANE ZIMMER, ILLS

The Modern Way.
"Will you have this lady woman to be your lawful wife?"
"That's what I want!"
"Will you love, honor and obey her?"
"I will, and I'll stick to her for the rest of my life!"
"That's the bridegroom's part!"
"John," said the bride elect, "don't you reckon the priest knows his business?"
"Yes, sir," said the bridegroom meekly. "I reckon I'll have to!"—Atlanta Constitution.

All Bluff.
"You," boasted the fortune hunting count, "all of our old family estates were on high mountains. My ancestors all lived on high bluffs."

"Indeed," replied the wise brewer, "and I see that you take after them count!"

The Worst He Had.
"Then you have never had education?"
"No, ma'am, not at all. I know of it. I've had it myself. If what you said is true, that I don't want to be like him!"

The Head of the Family.

I had a thing done by halves. It is to dig it in today. If it is wrong, I'll dig it in tomorrow.—Baltimore American.

"I tell you for a modern business."
"Black is white."
"That's because he's gone yet."
"I don't agree with either of you. I think white is better than black."
"Oh, that was for a moment's time. It is a mistake about turning gray on."—Baltimore American.

You Business

Do you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you, study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in this paper every issue, no matter how small. It will not cost as much as you think. If you do not employ an ad writer and do not wish to write your own copy we will get up your ads in a manner which will satisfy you, and at no additional charge. We will be pleased to quote you prices.
