From investigations in different quarters we can state positively that the husiness during the year from the Park Ridge office alone amounts to about $25000 and from the sale of tickets about $12000. It will be seen from the above facts just where the obligation rests and it certainly is not with the patrons of the road. It would also appear to us that when the above company makes assertions they are simply, as it were, - 'talking through their hat.'' As an evidence that we are a growing community in Park Ridge, we call attention to the fact that ticket sales have increased the past year about $1000.

Improvements are constantly going being made and an immense amount of money has been spent upon the place in the past few years which his unprecedented success with his horses would seem to warrant.

Grand Orchestra Enterprise.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO LEARN MUSIC.

Send Your Names at Once.

Mr. William Florance, of Irving Park, has consented to accept a class in concert orchestra music. He tninks there is material enough between Maplewood and Des Plains to make a good orchestra, but what is needed is a first class director. Mr. Florance, although at present retired from professional life, has a wide reputation for ability as an orehestra director. He was Musical Director of the Academy of Music, Chicago, in 1885-76, when only such companies as are seen at Hooley's today were engaged. His orchestra consisted then of fourteen picked men, any of whom could play a solo on his instrument. Besides being a director Mr. Florence is a first-class violin soloist. His idea is to form a class in orchestra at such hours as will permit those living at Maplewood, Avondale, Jefferson, Norwood Park, Park Ridge and Des Plaines to attend. Mr. Florance is one of the best schooled violinists in the country, and is a particular friend of Ovide Musin, the celebrated Belgian soloist, who presented him copies of all the solos he has composed at various periods.

A first-class orchstra of large dimensions would be a feature in the Northwest section. Mr. Florance considers that Irving Park would be a central place to meet and rehearse. Players on all instruments used in large orchestras will be accepted, provided they can read p s a 1 fair. Such persons as would like to join this interesting enterprise and learn how to properly render music in orchestra style, can address Mr. Florance at Irving Park by note

BRIGGS ON BIBLE ERRORS.

The Scriptures Can Not Be Considered as an Infallible Guide.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 .- The Rev. Dr. C A. Briggs preached last evening to a large cungregation in the church of the Covenant at Park avenue and Thirty-fourth street on the question of "Are There Errors in the Bible?" He declared that the bible contained many errors and that it can not be considered an infallible guide in the affairs of this world. His opponents, he said, admit the presence of errors in the translations of the scriptures, but maintain that they do not exist in the original. Dr. Briggs' conclusion was to the effect that the errors in the bible are like spots on the sun. The spots do not obstruct the sun's rays; neither do the errors intercept the light of the divine authority which shines from the scriptures.

CRISP IS THE MAN.

THE GEORGIAN NOMINATED FOR THE SPEAKERSHIP.

Springer Decided It - Thirty Ballote Required-Men Who Got the Other Jobs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 .- Charles F Crisp of Georgia will be Speaker of the House of Representatives in the Fiftysecond Congress. William M. Springer of Illinois brought about his nomination last night on the thirtieth ballot. Crisp is Speaker and Springer is the Warwick of the hour. Every stage of the Speakership contest has been leading up to the point where Springer and his handful of hearty supporters would have the deciding influence. So when the crisis came he cast the decisive vote for Crisp, and with him were the Illinoisans, Durborrow, McGann, Busey and Steward.

Crisp was nominated on the thirtieth ballot of the caucus and the thirteenth of the day, the result being reached after the following fashion:

Twentieth ballot-Crisp 92, Mills 90, Springer 17, McMillin 17, Hatch 5, Stevens 1.

Twenty-first ballot-Crisp 94, Mills 91, Springer 17, McMiltin 17, Hatch 5, Stevens 1

Twenty-second ballot-Crisp 95, Mills 93, Springer 17, McMillin 19, Hatch 4, Stevens 1. No result was reached until the thirtieth ballot which stood: Crisp 119, Mills 104, Springer 4.

Necessary to choice 114. About 7 o'clock last evening Mr. them for their votes released them from further allegiance to him. The meeting is said to have been very affecting. Bryan of Nebraska and others wanted to go down with Springer, but that gentleman said he would no longer ask or expect them to support him. In the future each man must act for himself and vote for the candidate of his choice as his judgment dictated for the best interests of the party. Mr. Springer saw all the afternoon and evening what other bright folks failen to discover. He saw that at some period near or remote he would have an opportunity, either in person or by some trusty friend, to cast a decisive vote. So he quietly bided his time.

When he entered the caucus-room Mr. Springer knew that the McMillin forces had gone pretty strongly to Mills, but that Crisp was still in the leal, though lacking an actual major ty. Durborow and McGann had started the procession on the early evening balloting by voting for Crisp, but the others of the sp inger guard were still holding off waiting the word. He gave it when the voting stood 112 for Crisp to 108 for Mills, and seven Springer men still holding out. When they got the word enough were assured to (r.sp to elect him, but it was left to Springer to give the vote which gave a majority. He said: "Mr. Chairman, I desire to tote."

"The clerk will call Mr. Springer's name," came from the Chairman. The name was called and Mr. Springe : responded calmly; "Crisp."

He had exercised the same right as the other candidates, McMillin and Hatch. The cheers were terrific, and for several minutes nothing could be heard butcries of "Crisp, Springer."

Mr. Crisp took his horo s modestly. It was what I expected." he sa'd. Mr. Mills had been sick a'l day, but when the news came he took it calmly and philosophically.

The other House officers re-elected were: James Kerr of Pennsylvania, clerk; S. S. Yodder of Ohio, sergeantat-arms; C. H. Turner of New York, doorkeeper; L. G. Dalton of Indiana, postmaster.

COAL FAMINE IN IOWA.

Winter Will See the Greatest Suffering in Years.

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Dec. 7 .-- A heavy snow storm raged here most of last night and to-day, practically blockading the city for a number of hours. This early and heavy snow emphasizes the prediction of mine operators in this region that there will be a coal famine in Iowa this winter the like of which has never before been seen. The strike of the early summer, the subsequent difficulty of getting men, and the present car famine, combine to render the output small and difficult to market.

CHILE MUST ATONE.

STRONG RECOMMENDATIONS IN THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

An Ultimatum Proposed—Naval Preparations Pushed with That Object in View.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 .- President Harrison has determined that his annual message shall go to Congress the day after the organization of the House s perfected. This relieves the strains somewhat. The message will have one sensational feature. The Chilean chapter will be the most vigorous utterance that has been contained in an elective message for a long while. It will show that the seriousness of the situation has at no time been underestimated by the President and Secretary Blaine. A hint of the importance the subject was contained the full information

Secretary Tracy's report. But the diplomatic situation is left for the President to lay down. There will be no hint of recalling Minister Egan. If anything is to be said on that point it will be more likely a word of praise than anything else. But the Minister's personality is not likely to be considered at all, as the question on which the Presiden and the Secretary of State want to give Congress the fullest information relates to the attack on the sailors of the Baltimore and the unsatisfactory action of the Chilean government.

The difference between that attack and the New Orleans lynching will be fully explained, and then a hint will be given that it may yet become necessary to present an ultimatum to the Chilean government. Every naval commandant in the United States has received instructions to fit out and put in commission all the sea-going menof-war lying in American waters; and the result is two powerful fleets now have their bows turned toward the south, whereas the Baltimore was alone in the Bay of Valparaiso when the outrages were committed. One of these fleets lies at St. Thomas and the other at Hampton Roads.

The wisdom of these preparations will be shown when it is known that in the six weeks which have passed since Minister Egan delivered the President's friendly message there have been no further instructions given him, because the only second message that could be sent would be to direct his withdrawal and the breaking off of dirlomatic relations. This could not well be done until a reasonable time had been given the Chilean authorities to investigate the outrages on the Baltimore's sailors. They have had this time, and the evidence has multiplied that they have no intention of granting satisfaction. So President Harrison will probably hint to Congress the steps which it may be necessary for the United States to take in order to insure reparation, the meaning of which is threefold-indemnity for the outrage, punishment for the offenders, and apologies to the flag insulted.

Hit at Antietem.

Hooker was trying to drive Jackson at Antictem. It was one of the mysteries of war that he did not annihilate him and then take Lee in flank. We ontnumbered him, and we extended our lines until only a skirmish line of gray fight so fiercely. It seemed as if every single company had been told to hold its ground until the last man was wiped out. We breasted up to the gray lines time after time, but they would back before the burning ceased and not give back. They faced us and then he was compelled to saturate the died. If they lost a rod of ground they General's clothing with cologne to kill charged back and recovered two.

I remember how the corn waved and who was never much of a humorist, rustled as we pushed through it that failed to appreciate the joke, but he day-how the silken tassels became detached and floated into our faces like spider-webs on a dewy summer's morning. They were waiting for usthe men who had come up from Harper's ferry without a halt-foot-sore. hungry, thirsty, but ready to die to save Lee's left wing. They made never a halt to moisten their parched throats at the wells of Sharpsburg-never a halt for the laggards to come up. Lee was in danger, and old Stonewall rode at their head. The politicians simply slur them. Those who breasted up against them on the battle-field remember only how gallantly they died.

At first a scattering fire-a man falling out here and there. The pop! pop! pop! increases in rapidity-now it becomes a continual roar-here comes the command to charge! There is a cheer-a rush-and we are checked. Men cannot dodge bullets, but we dodge as they zip, and spit, and whistle by our ears. A storm of bullets cannot be breasted like a gale of wind laden with snowflakes, but we bend our heads and advance.

What is it? Why am I lying on the ground? . Is the fight over that the din of battle has so nearly died away? I wonder and wonder. It is like waking out of a sound slumber. Now I know what it is-I'm hit! A bullet has crashed into my shoulder, spun me around like a top, and then dashed me to the earth in a heap. Men struck that way lose consciousness for a minute or two. The roar swells out again; I hear men cursing and cheering, and I finally understand that our lines have been driven back. I lift my head for a hasty look around and I find that I have lots of company. The dead and wounded are as numerous as corn-hills.

A bullet in the shoulder is nothing. A pint or two of blood lost from the body is of no account. I turn over. seize a dead man by the arm and pull myself up, but everthing dances before my eyes and I sink down in a heap. It isn't the wound itself, but the shock of the nervous system. I've seen a sixfooter drop in a heap and cry like a woman because a bullet had made one of his fingers an inch shorter, and he was never charged with being a cow-

There is no such thing as time on a battle-field. A General may watch its flight, but a private soldier has no thought of it. The sun may have been at the meridian when the battle was opened. All of a sudden he is amazed that the orb has gone from sight. He had fought on, giving no heed to time.

Only half conscious-only half realizing that I was hit-I by and by felt the cool breezes of evening and lost the glare of the sun. Some one gave me water, but I felt too dreamy to open my eyes. Some one pulled a dead man off my legs—a wounded comrade who had over to me in search of water and died. But I did not open my eyes; I could not. It seemed as if great weights had been placed on my eyelids to keep them shut. There was a babel of sounds round me, but I heard only one voice. hat sounded miles away, as it said: w, then, you all be mighty keermuch, though I reckon I'm good for a TABERNACLE PULPIT. timber!"

Liniment for Logan's Back. While the story that follows is not justly a camp-fire story, it relates to one of the most distinguished volunteer soldiers in the Union army. During the Garfield campaign Gen. Logan came to Indiana to fill a number of appointments which were through the northeastern part of the state. Col. Jas. L. Trumbull, now general superintendent of the American Express company at Chicago, was detailed by the State Central committe to accompany Gen. Logan on his tour. Their second appointment was in a county-seat where there is a very strong temperance sentiment, and Gen. Logan and Col. Trumbull were entertained by a rich exparmer who had recently moved to town and built himself a nice home. After Gen. Logan had concluded his speech he was driven rapidly back to his room in order that he might change his underclothing and thus prevent his taking cold. As soon as the General and Col. T. were in their room, Logan said: "Colonel, my throat is inflamed and I must have a drink of whisky.' The Colonel replied: "I did not bring any with me, and I have no doubt that our host is a strict temperance man and does not keep liquor about the house, but I will ask his wife," which he did, telling her that Gen. Logan's back was all broken out from the effects of the intense heat and he wanted to rub it with whisky. The wife said: "Oh! Pap's got something better than that," at the same instant shouting at the top of her voice to her husband who was out near the stable. "Pap get that liniment you have in the stable and come here and give Gen. Logan's back good rubbin', he's all broke out with heat." Col. Trumbull remonstrated with the good woman and the husband but without avail, and the farmer rushed off up stairs to Logan's room. Col. Trambull made for a drug store and procured a half pint of good whisky and when he entered Logan's room, the General, who did not know what his hoste intended to do had just compelled opposed us, but on no field of battle in the old man to desist from rubbing his the whole war did the Confederates horse lin ment on his back, which now began to smart and smell unto heaven. The battle of Prairie Grove was an unusually severe one for the numbers engaged. Herron's division sustained the assault of overwhelming numbers from 10 o'clock in the morning until he was reinforced about 1 p. m. Gen. Herron reports that he had sent many of his troops to Gen. Blunt and entered the battle with but six infantry regiments, three batteries, and about 500 cavalry, making altogether about 3,500 men. He tost out of these 104 killed, 353 wounded, and 83 mirsing, or 540 in all. Gen. Blunt puts the entire force engaged on the Union side at 7,000.

DR. TALMAGE ON OUR ROYAL BLOOD.

"There is a Fountain Filled with Blood Drawn From Immanuel's Veins."-"Each One Resembled the Children of " King."

Zebah and Zalmrima had been off to battle, and when they came back they were asked what kind of people they had seen. They answered, that the people had a royal appearance; "each one resembled the children of a king." I stand to-day before many who have this appearance. Indeed, they are the sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty. Though now 'n exile, they shall yet come to their thrones. There are family names that stand for wealth, or patriotism, or intelligence. The name of Washington means patriotism, although some of the blood of that race has become very thin in the last generation. The family of the Medici stood as the representative of letters. The family of lood of that race has become very thin in the last generation. The family of the Medici stood as the representative of letters. The family of the Rothschilds is significant of wealth, the loss of forty millions of dollars in 1848 putting them to no inconvenience: and within a few yerss they have loaned Russia 12,000,000 of dollars, Naples 25,000,000, Anstria 40,000,000 and England 200,000,000; and the stroke of their pen on the counting-room desk shakes everything from the Irish sea to the Danube. They open their hand and there is war: they shut it, and there is peace. The house of Hapsburg in Austria, the house of Stuart in England, the house of Bourbon in France, were families of imperial authority.

But I come to preach of a family more potential, more rich, and more extensive—the royal nouse of Jesus, of whom the whole family in heaven and on earth is named. We are blood relations by the relationship of the cross; all of us are the children of a King.

First, I speak of our family name. When we see a descendant of some one greatly celebrated in the last century we look at him with profound interest. To have had conquerors, Gings, or Princes in the ancestral line give lustre to ine family name. In our line was a King and a Conqueror. The Star in the East with baton of light woke up the eternal orchestra that made music at his birth. From thence he started forth to conquer all nations, not by trampling them down, but by lifting them up. St. John saw him on a white horse. When he returns, he will not bring the nations chained to his wheel, or in iron cages, but I hear the stroke of the hoof of the snow-white cavalcade that bring them to the gates in triumph.

Our family name takes lustre from the star that heralded him, and the spear that pierced him, and the crown that was given him. It gathers fragrance from the frankincense brought to his cradle, and the lilies that flung them gathers fragrance from the frankincense brought to his cradle, and the lilles that flung their sweetness into his sermons, and the box of alabaster that broke at his feet. The comof alabaster that broke at his feet. The comforter at Bethany. The resurrector at Nain. The supernatural oculist at Bethaaida. The saviour of one world, and the chief joy of another. The storm his frown. The sunlight his smile. The spring morning his breath. The earthquake the stamp of his foot. The thunder the whisper of his voice. The ocean a drop on the tip of his linger. Heaven a sparkle on the bosom of his love. Eternity the twinkling of his eye. The universe the flying dust of his chariot-wheels. Able to heal a heart-break, or hush a tempest, or drown a world, or flood immensity with his glory. What other family name could ever boast of such an illustrious personage?

personage? Henceforth, swing out the coat of arms! Great families wear their coat of arms on the dress, or on the door of the coach, or on the helmet when they go out to tattle, or on flags and ensigns. The heraldic sign is sometimes a lion, or a dragon, or an eagle. Our coat of arms worn right over the heart hereafter shall be a cross, a lamb standing under it, and a dove flying over it. Grandest of all escutcheons! dove flying over it. Grandest of all escutcheons:
Most significant of all family "coats of arms."
In every battle I must have it blazing on my flag—the dove, the cross, the lamb; and when I fall, wrap me in that good old Christian flag, so that the family coat of arms shall be right over that the family coat of arms shall be right over my breast, that all the world may see that I looked to the dove of the spirit, and clung to the cross, and depended upon the lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.

Ashamed of Jesus!—that dear Friend, On whom my hopes of life depend; No! when I blush be this my shame— That I no more revere his name.

Next I speak of the family sorrows. If trouble come to one member of the family, all feel it. It is the custom, after the body is feel it. It is the custom, after the body is lowered into the grave, for all the relatives to come to the verge of the grave and look down into it. First those nearest the departed come, then those next of kin, until they have all looked into the grave. So, when trouble and grief go down through the heart of one member of the family, they go down through them all. The sadness of one is the sadness of all. A company of persons join hands around an electric battery; the two persons at the ends of the line touch the battery, and all the circle feels the shock. Thus, by reason of the filial, maternal, and paternal relations of life, we stand so close together that when trouble sets its battery, all feel the thrill of distress. In the great Christian family, the sorrow of one ought to be the sorrow of all. Is one persecuted? All are persecuted. Does one suffer loss? We all suffer loss. Is one bereaved? We are all bereaved.

Their streaming eyes together flow For human guilt and mortal woe.

If you rejoice at another's misfortune, you

If you rejoice at another's misfortune, you are not one of the sheep, but one of the goats; and the vulture of sin hath alighted on your soul, and not the Dove of the Spirit.

Next I notice the family property. After a man of large estate dies, the relatives assemble to hear the will read. So much of his property is willed to his sons, and so much to his daughter and the property of the societies. Our Gen. Robert E. Lee, according to all accounts, was nearly as much given to kissing the girls as Gen. Sherman was. Another relic of the war has been discovered in Virginia. A few days ago wille a log two feet in circumference was being cut in two near "Hoody Angler" in Spottsylvania county. He saw went through the butt end of a twelve-pound shell which was imbedded in the log out of sight. It is supposed that the tree was about nineteen inches in diameter at the time the shell was fired in 1863, as these trees grow about a quarter of an inch in a year.

The German army has a singular and touching manner of preserving the memory of the soldiers killed while carrying the colors. Every staff that has been clasped in action by a dead soldier's fingers is encircled by a sivering, on which is insertibed the mais name and these words: "Died a hero's death with this color in his hand."

Richard Knowles, the sallor who hashed Farrugat to the rigging of the hards of the hard of the hard that never part, the procession that never halts, the trees that never wither, the walls that never can be captured, the sun that never sets, until we can no longer gaze, and we hide our eyes, and exclaim: "Eye hath not seen, nor car heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him!" As these tides of glory rise, we have to retreat, and hold fast lest we be swept off and drowned in the emotions of gladness, and thanksgiving, and triumph.

What think you of the family property? It is considered an honor to marry into a family where there is great wealth. The Lord, the bridegroom of earth and heaven, offers you his heart and his hand, saying, in the words of the Canticles: "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away:" and once having put on thy hand the signet-ring of his love, you will be endowed with all the wealth of earth, and all the honors of heaven.

the signet-ring of his love, you will be endowed with all the wealth of earth, and all the honors of heaven.

Almost every family looks back to a homestead—some country-place where you grew up. You sat ca the door-sill. You heard the foot step of the rain on the garret-roof. You swung on the gate. You ransacked the barn. You waded into the brook. You threshed the orchard for apples, and the neighboring woods for nuts: and every thing around the old homestead is of interest to you. I tell you of the old homestead of eternity. In my Father's house are many mansions. When we talk of mansions, we think of Chatsworth, and its park, nine miles in circumference, and its conservatory, that astonishes the world: its galleries of art, that contain the triumphs of Chantrey, Conova, and Thorwaldsen: of the Kings and the Queens who have walked its stately halls, or, flying over the heather, have hunted the grouse. But all the dwelling-places of Dukes, and Princes, and Queens, are as nothing to the family mansion that is already awaiting our arrival. The hand of the Lord Jesus lifted the pillars, and swung the doors, and planted the parks. Angles walk there, and the good of all ages. The poorest man in the house is a millionaire, and the lowliest a King, and the tamest word he speaks is an anthem, and the shortest life an eternity.

It took a Paxton to build for Chatsworth a covering for the wonderful flower, Victora Regia, five feet in diameter. But our flily of the valley shall need no shelter from the blast, and in the open gardens of God shall put forth its full bloom, and all heaven shall come to look at it, and its aroma shall be as though the cherubin had swung before the throne a thousand censers. I have not seen it yet. I am in a foreign land. But my father is waiting for me to come home. I have brothers and sisters there. In the bible I have letters from thee, telling me what a fine place it is. It matters not much to me whether I am rich or poor, or whether the world hates me or loves me, or whether I go by land o and laugh, and cry, and talk over old times, and, although you may be forty-five years of age, act as though you were sixteen! Yet soon it is good-bye at the car-window, and good-bye at the steamboat wharf. But how will we act at the reunion in the old family mansion of heaven? It is a good while since you parted at the door of the grave. There will be Grace, and Mary, and Martha, and Charlie, and Lizzie, and all the darlings of your household—not pale, and sick, and gasping for breath, as when you saw all the darlings of your household—not pale, and sick, and gasping for breath, as when you saw them last, but their eyes bright with the lustre of heaven, and their cheek roseate with the flush of celestial summer.

What clasping of hands! What embracings! What coming together of lip to lip! What tears of joy! You say: "I thought there were no tears in heaven." There must be, for the bible says that: "God shall wipe them away:" and if there were no tears there, how could he wipe them away? They cannot be tears of grief or tears of disappointment. They must be tears of gladness. Christ will come and say: "What! child of heaven, is it too much for thee? Dost thou break down under the gladness of this reunion? Then I will help thee." And, with his one arm around us and the other arm around one arm around us and the other arm around our loved one, he shall hold us up in the eterna tubilee.

our loved one, he shall hold us up in the eternal jubilee.

While I speak some of you, with broken hearts, can hardly hold your peace. You feel as if you would speak out and say: "O blessed day! speed on. Toward thee I press with blistered feet over the desert way. My eyes fail for their weeping. I faint from listening for feet that will not come, and the sound of voices that will not speak. Speed on, O day of reunion! And then, Lord Jesus, be not angry with me after I have just once kissed thy blessed feet, I turn around to gather up the long-lost treasures of my heart. O! be not angry with me. One look at thee were heaven. But all these reunions are heaven encircling heaven, heaven overtopping heaven, heaven commingling with heaven!"

I was at Mount Vernon, and went into the dining-room in which our first President entertained the prominent men of this and other lands. It was a very interesting spot. But oh! the banqueting-hall of the mansion of which I speak! Spread the table, spread it wide; for a great multitude are to sit at it. From the Tree by the River gather the twelve manner of fruits for that table. Take the clusters from the heavenly vineyards and press them into the golden tankards for that table. On baskets carry in the Bread of which, if man eat, he shall never hunger. Take all the shot-torn flags of earthly conquest, and entwine them among the arches. Let David come with his harp, and Gabriel with his trumpet, and Miriam with the timbrel; for the prodigals are at home, and the captives are free, and the Father hath invited the mighty of heaven and the redeemed of earth to come and dine! heaven and the redeemed of earth to come and

The Deadly Alternating Current. One of the engineers employed at the Lauffen (Swiss) generating station met with a fatal accident through touching a wire through which a high-tension current was passing. The deceased, whose name was Rau, was discovered lying dead on the floor of the transformer-house by the engineer-in-chief. it appears that Rau, in defiance of the instructions given him, entered the transformer-room to attend to a defective lamp, and coming into contact with a high-tension wire, was killed instantaneously.

To Improve Public Schools. A project for the introduction of

It provides that the course shall be free to such scholars as exhibit the necessary proficiency and that all the expense of it shall be borne by the city. The "Holey" Coins of Cuba.

A recent traveler in Cuba reports that all the small silver coins in that country have holes in them. Most of them are American dimes and quarters. The perforation is done to keep this kind of money in the country. The number of holes in a piece does not seem to affect its changeable value. This is a hint to street car companies.

Be Your Own Weather Prophet.

By placing two iron bars at seven or eight yards distance' from each other and putting them in communication on one side by an insulated copper wire and on the other side with a telephone, it is said that a storm can be predicted twelve hours ahead through a certain dead sound heard in the receiver.

It is understood that arrangements are completed for the transfer to an English syndicate of the five milk condensing factories operating under the Borden patents at Carpentersville, and at Brewster, Wassaic, and Walden, N.

Y. They have been owned by the Borden and Millbank families for over twenty-five years. The purchase price is not stated, but as their net revenue last year is said to have been over $750,000, it must be $12,000,000 or $15,-000,000. The Borden heirs living at Elgin and in California are now in New York on this business.

Zachariah Robertson, a wealthy and respected farmer of Newell, aged 70 years, was acquitted by a jury in the County court on the charge of insan'ty brought against him by his sons. The trial lasted three days and was hotly contested. Fifty witnesses testified on each side. His children charged that he bought too much live stock, but it was proven that he never bought more than he was able to pay for. It is said that the old gentleman contemplated marriage, and this so enraged his children that they endeavored to have him declared insane.

The longest freight train eve pulled over the Illinois Central, and one of the longest on record, was pulled over the Cairo division one day recently. It was a test for one of the new 100-ton engines, on pulling long trains, and consisted of 103 cars—a train over 4,000 feet long.

MASCULINITIES.

The greatest truths are the simplest; so likewise are the greatest men The highest and most profitable lesson is a true knowedge of ourselves.

Self-consciousness is one of the greatest hindrances to the best manners.

A man is known by the company he keeps. It would be odd if they didn't

Men are the builders of their own destiny, and more especially of the destiny of their children.

It is as cowardly to talk about a man behind his back as it is to throw stones at his house in the dark.

It is a singular thing, but blue-eyed boys are more frequently lost than those with brown or black eyes. One element of shrewdness is to realize that the man you are dealing with may be more shrewd than yourself. The man who swears at his children would want to hide his head forever if he could just know how mean he is. Disappointment first comes in life to the haby who has a horn given him for a present and then finds he hasn't wind enough to blow it.

When men go into a store to select furniture, so a lady says, they invariably choose the most massive styles they can get for the least money.

Whenever you see a man handling a young woman as if he were afraid he would break her you may make up your mind that she is a bride.

A wise physician once said that the opinion that a good woman should stay closely at home has killed more women than any other one cause. It would be an unspeakable advantage, both to the public and private, if men would consider the great truth that no man is wise or safe, but he that is lionest. A Georgia judge keeps such strict watch over his sleeping moments that, if he loses a few hours one night he makes a note of it, and sleeps that many more the next night to make up the loss. Of all the most provoking people in the world, the man who says, "I thought of something a moment ago that it was very important that you should know, but I can't remember what it is now," is the worst. McFingle: 'Graball is a very economical man, isn't he!" McFangle: "I should say so! Why, he has built his new house next to a graveyard, so in case any of his family dies the hack fares for the funeral will be smaller."

There are more clever women in the world than men think for—our habit is to despise them; we believe they do not think because they do not contradict us: and are weak because they do not struggle and rise up against us. A man only begins to know women as he grows old; and for my part, my opinion of their cleverness rises every day.

One of the most heineous crimes ever perpetrated in this ward was committed Thursday night, Nov. 26, at Forest Glen. The case is remarkable for the audacity of the criminals and the remarkable success of the police in capturing them.

Annie Handeland, a young Swedish girl working for James McGrane, attended the Swedish church at Forest Glen Thanksgiving night, and was returning home, when she was assaulted by two young men. She reported the fact to Sergeant Collins, of this (the 32d) police precinct, who detailed Officers Spikings, Griffen and Kipley on the case. Immediately Collins, assisted by the three officers, set to work and Saturday morning, after a hard night's work, they arrested Charles and John Peterson, two brothers living at Forest Glen. The brothers had a preliminary hearing Monday before Justice Severson and were held in bonds until Saturday when the justice held them in bonds of $3,000 each to the Criminal court. The people of the entire ward express great satisfaction at the prompt arrest of the cuirrits, and place great confidence in the efficiency of the police, which has been demonstrated so many times recently. Sergeant Collins and Officers Griffen, Kipley a d Spikings merit great credit for nothing to work from, but nevertheless succeeded in capturing the guilty parties on the morning following the report of the crime. This case is only one of several. It is more prominent, it is true, but the officers have shown equal skill in numerous previous cases. We have a system of police protection of which four citizens are proud. Some of the ablest and best officers on the force are stationed at the 32d precinct station, and this ward has the reputation of being a bad place for

> Mr. Bussey undoubtedly has the finest store and office building, not only of Irving Park, but also of adjacent suburbs. He will not occupy the entire building himself but has rented the south store to Dr. Parker who will run a first class drug store. The barber shop will be in charge of two competent tonsorial artists and the bath rooms will supply a long felt want. The cigars, newspaper and boots and shoes departments will occupy the well fitted appointment on the north. The steam laundry is the principal feature of the Flat Iron.

> The most approved machinery has been put in at great cost and the laundry will turn out the finest work possible. Mr. Bussey carries a very complete line of cigars, both imported and domestie, and his competent workmen will furnish everything in the line of fine boots and shoes.

FOOTPRINTS OF THE A ORLD'S HIS TORY

It is a relief to pick up a new book that as at once thrilling, romantic, wholesome, pure and true. Such a work is "Footprints of the World's History," the latest and greatest work of the two celebrated historians, John Clark Ridpath and William. S. Bryan. These distinguished gentlemen, having won their laurels by independent writhings, having co-operated on this work, and produced a gem "of the purest ray serene," It is not a dry, uninteresting statement of the plain facts, but rather each of the most important events of history has been taken up and described by a master of language, who holds the reader entranced as he wends his way along the path of history, following carefully in the footprints of progress,

We are delighted with this superb volume. Perfect in thought, suberb in style and magnificent in execution. The bindings are sumptuous, as are also the many illustrations and colored plates, The Publishers have rightly concluded that such a gem should have a rich setting.

It is a valuable addition to literature. It us a book for the old as well as the young. the married as well as the single; the gay as well as the grave. Everybody will read it with equal eagerness and profit; It is sold only through agens, and the Publish ers' advertisement eppears in another column-[Christian Record, Reading, Pa.

zardy in its nature. After the regular rout-architect of the new town hall presented certain grievances to the Board growing out of his business relations with the contractor and masons at work on the building. Messrs Kraft and Maske, the contractor and mason, were there to speak for themselves and the discussion waxed warm, but as the Architect stated that he was now satisfied with the work as far as the job had progressed, it did not seem clear to the minds of the members what the point was under dispute. An outsider, who was no forward and volunteered suggestions as to how the work ought to be done. The Presated that there was too much whisky aboard of his craft. This aroused the ire of the aforesaid individual and he scored two points on the President by declaring, firstly, that he could pay for all the whisky that he drank, secondly, that whisky was not his favorite drink. Finally the angel of peace spread his wings like a wet blanket over the scene and all was calm and placid as Senne's duck pond on a summer; day. After the storm had blown over Trustee Thoma proposed that they should have a grand "blow out," when the corner stone with appropriate ceremonies, speeches, music, etc., and that the village officers should each contribute toward the expenses at 2 o'clock p. m., be designated as the time for the corner stone to be laid. When it was proposed to pay for the music that should be engaged the president thought that the band ought to have patriotism enough to blow their bugles for nothing. This met an approval of all but the village clerk who incontinently declared that they might carve his name on the rock and hand it down to posterity if they wantstrike a cold chill to the heart of the president and he remarked that they might as well throw up the whole thing. CHAPTER XVIII.

HAVING MADE the necessary explanations to account for her sudden appearance, Unorna found herself installed in two rooms of modest dimensions, and very simply, though comfortably, furnished. It was a common thing for ladies to seek retreat and quiet in the convent during two or three weeks of the year, and there was plenty of available space at the disposal of those who wished to do so. Such visits were, indeed, most commonly made during the lenten season, and on the day when Unorna sought refuge among the nuns it chanced that there was but one other stranger within the walls. She was glad to find this the case. Her peculiar position would have made it hard for her to bear with equanimity the quiet observation of a number of women, most of whom would probably have been to some extent acquainted with the story of her life, and some of whom would certainly have wished out of curiosity to enter into nearer acquaintance with her while within the convent, while not intending to prolong their intercourse with her any further. It could not be expected, indeed, that in a city like Prague such a woman as Unorna could escape notice, and the fact that little or nothing was known of her true history had left a very wide field for the imaginations of those who chose to invent one for her. The common story, and the one which on the whole was nearest to the truth, told that she was the daughter of a noble of eastern Bohemia, who had died soon after her birth, the last of his family, having converted his ancestral possessions into money for Unorna's benefit, in order to destroy love had of late assumed and she saw all trace of her relationship to him. that she was indeed ready, as she had The secret must, of course, have been said, to dare everything and risk confided to some one, but it had been everything for the sake of obtaining kept faithfully, and Unorna herself the very least show of passion in rethemselves with fruitless speculations regarding her origin. If from the first, from the moment when, as a young girl, she left the convent to enter into possession of her fortune, she had chosen to assert some right to a footing in the most exclusive aristocracy of the world, it is not impossible that her head high, confidently exthe protection of the Abbess might pecting that the mask of inhave helped her to obtain it. The difference would soon be shivered. secret of her birth would, however, have rendered a marriage with a man of that class all but impossible, and would have entirely excluded her from the only other position considered dignified for a well born woman of fortune, and wholly without living relations or connectionsthat of a lady canoness on the crown foundation. Moreover, her wild bringing up, and the singular natural gifts she possessed and which she could not resist the impulse to exercise had in a few months placed her in a position from which no escape was possible so long as she lived in Prague, and against those few-chiefly men-who for her beauty's sake, or out of curiosity, would gladly have made her acquaintance she raised an impassable barrier of pride and reserve. Nor was her reputation altogether an evil one. She lived in strange fashion, it is true, but the very face of her extreme seclusion had kept her name free from stain. If people spoke of her as the Witch, it was more from habit and half in jest, than in earnest. In strong contradiction to the cruelty which she could exercise ruthlessly when roused to anger, was her wellknown kindness to the poor, and her charities to institutions founded for their benefit were in reality considerable and were said to be boundless. These explanations seem necessary in order to account for the readiness with which she turned to the convent when she was in danger, and for the facilities which were then at once offered her for a stay long or short; as she would please to make it. Some of the more suspicious nuns looked grave when they heard she was under their roof, others, who had not, yet seen her, were filled with curiosity, others, again, had been attached to her during the time she had formerly spent smong them, and there were of her presence, held their peace, in the anticipation that the rich and Unorna was familiar with convent life, and was aware that the benediction was over and that the hour for the evening meal was approaching. A fire had been lighted in her sitting room, but the air was still very cold, and she sat wrapped in her furs, as and despair; but it would pass, and when she had arrived, leaning back he would fall again under her influin a corner of the sofa, her head inclined forward, and one white hand resting on the green baize cloth which covered the table.

short and passionate life, had so many events been crowded into the space of a few hours. Since the morning she had felt almost everything that her wild, highstrung nature was capable of feeling -love, triumph, failure, humiliation -anger, hate, despair and danger of sudden death. She was amazed when, looking back, she remembered that at noon on that day her life and all its interests had been stationary at the point familiar to her during a whole month, the point that still lay within the boundaries of hope's kingdom, the point at which the man she loved had wounded her by speaking of brotherly affection and sisterly regard. She could almost believe, when she thought of it all, that some one had done to her as she had done to others, that she had been cast into a state storms of years in the lethargy of an hour. And yet, despite all, her memory was distinct, her faculties were awake, her intellect had lost none of its clearness, even in the last and worst hour of it all. For awhile, indeed, the pride of a woman at once youg, beautiful and accustomed to authority, had kept her firm in the determination to be loved for herself, as she believed she deserved to be loved; and just so long as that remained, she had held that the eyes she adored would soften with warm light, that the hand she worshipped would tremble suddenly, as though waking to life within her own. But that pride was gone, and from its disappearance there had been but one step to the most utter degredation of soul to which a woman can descend, and from that again but one step more to a resolution almost stupid in its hardened obstinacy. But them." as though to show how completely she was dominated by the man whom she could not win, even her last determination had yielded under the slightest pressure from his will. She comforted herself with the thought that the Wanderer would come to her once, at least, when she was pleased to send for him. Unorna's confidence was not misplaced. The man whose promise she had received had told the truth when he had said that he had never broken any promise whatsoever. In this, at least, there was therefore comfort. On the morrow she would see him again. She might still fix her eyes on his, and in an unguarded moment cast him into deep sleep. She remembered that look on his face in the old cemetery. She had guessed rightly; it had been for the faint memory of Beatrice. "We have just finished," said Sister Paul, entering readily enough. The other lady who is staying here insisted upon supping in the guests' refectory of sleep and been forced against out of curiosity, perhaps, poor her will to live through the thing, and I met her on the stairs as she was coming up."

"Are she and I the only ones here?" Unorna asked carelessly.

"Yes. There is no one else, and she only came this morning. You see it is still the carnival season in the world. It is in Lent that the great ladies come to us, and then we have often not a room free.'

The nun smiled sadly, shaking her had retained all, and there was not head again in a way that seemed

"You know almost as much as I

The sister looked long and earnestly into Unorna's face, as though searching for something.

"What is your life. Unorna?" she asked, suddenly. "We hear strange tales of it sometimes, though we know; also, that you do great works of charity. But we hear strange tales and strange words."

"Do you?" Unorna suppressed a smile of scorn. "What do people say of me? I never asked."

"I know!" she cried. "How foolish of me! They call me the Witch-of course!

Sister Paul's face grew very grave, and she immediately crossed herself devoutly, looking askance at Unorna as she did so. But Unorna only laughed again.

"It is not said in earnest. Do you know why they call me the Witch? It is very simple. It is because I can make people sleep-people who are suffering, or mad, or in great sorrow-and then they rest. That is

QUEENS' DIVERSIONS.

THEY ARE ALL CRANKS ON SOME FORM OF PASTIME.

Queen Victoria and Her Ponles---Queen Christina who is so Fond of Playing with Children--The Czarina of Russia Devoted to Charity.

In all ages of the world's history the women have achieved the greatest distinction in every line of human effort, whether in art, learning, politics or literature, have been largely devoted to some form of pleasure to which they have given a large share of their time and attention. If we review the names of all the distinguished women whom we can call to mind, no matter upon what their claim to distinction may be founded, we shall find that each, without exception, has some favorite diver-sion to which she devotes a considerable portion of her time, and which occupies a large share of her thoughts.

Queen Victoria's favorite diversion is driving. She is intensely fond of the open air and hence in pleasant weather and especially while residing at her castle at Balmoral in Scotland always drives in an open-air carriage, often driving thirty miles or more. So fond is she of being out of doors that while at Balmoral it is her custom to have her correspondence, to which she always gives attention immediately after breakfast, carried into a tent or summerhouse upon the lawn in favorable weather, and there, after reading and answering her letters in full view of Lochnagar, with its surrounding mountains and the Valley of the Dee, she transacts her other business for the day.

The Czarina of Russia, who was the Princess Dagmar when she married Alexander III, is a daughter of the King of Denmark and a sister of the Princess of Wales, and as she inherits all the virtues for which the women of her family are famous, she finds her principal diversion in the direction of good works, which occupy a large share of her leisure. She has exerted her influence over her husband to the utmost to improve the condition of the women in Russia, and to her is due the recently issued imperial ukase giving women the right to practice medicine anywhere within the confines of the Russian empire, and conferring upon them special privileges in parctising in women's hospitals, schools and charitable institutions, and providing that when giving evidence in courts ing that when giving evidence in courts of justice"their womanly modesty shall not be outraged by impertinent exam-

Christina, the widow of King Alfonso of Spain, and since his death, the Queen Regent of that country, as she will continue to be during the minority of her 5-year-old son, Alfonso XIII., finds her chief diverson with her three children, of whom the other two are daughtersthe Infanta Marie-de-las-Mecedes, born in 1880, and the Infanta Maria Theresa. born in 1882. She spends a great portion of each year at the lovely town of San Sebastian. She is an early riser, and devotes the hour from 6 to 7 in the morning to her prayers and her toilet. Then she enters the sleeping apartment of her little daughters, and, after wishing them good morning, repairs to the room of the little King, whose dressing she carefully superintends.

She next enjoys her cup of tea or chocolate with a little bread, which is the only breakfast that anyone ever thinks of eating in Spain. After partaking of this with her children she devotes her attention to state business until 11 a. m., when she goes with her little ones for a bath in the sea, of which she is extravagantly fond and which is really her chief diversion.

She is so much attached to the fine sea bathing at San Sebastian that she is now building there a palace on the model of an English mansion-more comfortable than sumptuous. The prudence she displays in the building of this structure is well worthy of imitation. She devotes to it only a certain portion of her savings from her royal income, and when that sum is exhausted work is suspended until she as again saved a similar amount.

He was visiting the mistress of the place when some loud raps were heard at the door. Three young men from a neighboring town asked for admission and were refused. They thereupon proceeded to break down the door. Succeeding in this they began shooting at the woman and Church. One of the bullets severed

CHICAGO AMUSEMENTS

A List of Chicago's Most Popular Theaters.

M'VICKER'S.

The success of the "Country Circus" t McVicker's is not to be wondered at when the character of the performance and the artists taking part in it are considered. The usual "standing-room only" sign is nightly exhibited. The play is sufficiently humerous in itself to amuse an audience and to it is added a complete circus performance by the very best and most noted performers in the business. The names of Miss Marie Meers, Prof. Conrad, whose trained dogs are marvels, Master Leon and his ponies, the wonderful Glinserettis, Miss Kate Halloway, whose menage act is the very acme of high school equestrianism, are sufficient guarantee of the particular merrit of the performance. All the new features added last Sunday and which have achieved remarkable success during the past week will be continued. The usual matinees will be g ven this week and hundreds of little ones will enjoy the performance to their hearts' delight.

To the children: A $200 prize pony will be presented as a Christmas gift by C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger, to the boy or girl whose number may be decided by lot as the winner. "Numbered checks will be given each child helding reserved seat coupons at the Wednesday and Saturday mat nees. Further particulars to follow. Bring the little ones to the country circus.

CHICAGO OPERA-HOUSE. There is no cessation to the crowds that nightly v'sit "Sindad" at the Chicago opera-house. The piece never grows old because new features, specialties and songs are continually being intro luced. Foy's song, "There Are Mo-ments When One Wants to be Alone" has become immensely popular, and is rival-ing that jingly, musical conceit, "The Bogie Man" in the favor of the audiences. The statue specialty in the fourth act introduced by Jessie Villars and Edwin Foy is cleverly done and very amusing. Arthur Dunn's parody on 'the P.c. ure tlat Was Turned Fo ward the Wall" is also quite pleasing.
"True as Steel," "The Bogie Man"
"That's What the Wild Waves Are Saying 'and "I'm Seventeen-To day" never eem to lose their popularity, ant the audiences appear to be untiring in their appreci tion of the brilliant scenes of sinbad. particularly the artistic ableau representing the bottom of the sea, the beautiful tropical scene in the third act, the frozen valley of diamonds and the lovely allegor cal transformation, "The Morning of Life." Next week will be the last time "Sinbad' will be presented in Chicago, as it goes east to fill engagements for the remainder of the winter season.

THE PEOPLE'S. Manager Baylies tikes great pleasure n announcing for next week, beginning Sunday matinee, Dec. 13, the Several of the handsome stage settings seen in "The Boy Rarg r merit more than a passing ment on. The prairie fire, showing the resone of a young girl by the Boy Ranger and their terrific dash for life on his Indian pony, Sitting Bull, forms one of the most thrilling scenes ever witnessed The rescue from the road agents, the firing of the fort, the home of the Lov Ranger, interior of the Palace gambing den, etc., etc., form a succession of stage pictures that are full of interest. brilliant in effect and grand in detail. 'The Boy Ranger" is unlike all other plays portraying western life. The sensational hand-to-hand conflicts and blood-curdling scenes, so common in border plays, have been entirely obliterated, and only the real, the exciting and comical incidents of every day lite on the plains are held up to nature.

LIBBY PRISON WAR MUSEUM.

Next Monday evening the manage ment of the Libby Prison War museum will inaugurate a series of promenade concerts, to be given by the celebrated Royal Hungarian crehestra. These concerts will occur every evening except Sunday. This orchestra has al ready been heard by thousands of Chieagoans-its music has been enjoyed. Chicagoans are looking for more of it, and while the orchestra is rendering its program on the main floor of the spicious museum, visitors will enjoy the beautiful and tuneful music while wandering about the building, seeing its vast collection of war material, the new famous Gunther "Columbus," the celebrated "Yankee tunnel," and the hundreds of other interesting things about Libby Prison and the greatest civil war the world has ever known.

CHARLES R. MACLOON. Acting Manager. GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

Next week commencing Dec. 13. Mr. Roland Reed will begin an engagement at the Grand opera-house with a bright and clean comedy entitled "A Clu') Friend," written by clever Sydy Rosenfeld. It is more in the class o' genteel come iy than any of the p eces in which Mr. Beed has been seen s nee he became a star, and is so distinet an advance in artistic way that it has accepted him in it, and given en- e c., for Xmas presents. couragement to his laudible ambition to get away from farc'al plays into leg amat comedy. "Lend Me Your W.fe." an earlier version of "Jane." in which Mr. Reed was so successful last gagement.

NEW WINDSOR. It is with pleasure Mr. B. Levitt ann unces the engagement at his theater dur ng the week of Dec. 13 of Barney Ferguson, the exceedingly funny comedian, in that big success, "McCarthy's Mishaps." This play is well known to the patrons of the Windsor as one of the liveliest and jolliest of its kind before the public. Comedian Ferguson anks high in his class of actors, and is prime favorite with North Side theatre goers. As an attraction for the greatest of holiday seasons Ferguson in "Me-Carthy's Mishaps" has few if any superiors.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The next concerts of the Chicago orchestra, under the direction of Theodore Thomas, will be given on Friday afternoon, Dec. 18, Saturday evening, Dec. 19. Soloist, Emil Fischer, basso. Sale of eats begins Monday, Dec. 14.

HAVLIN'S THEATER. It is with pardonable pride that Mr. Havlin informs the patrons of his cozy theater—the home theater of the South Side—that his attraction for the week beginning with the usual matinee Sunday, Dec. 13th, will be Thos. E. Murray, in "Our Irish Visitors." This simple announcement in itself is sufficient to insure full houses, but for the bene-fit of those who have forgotten the excellence of this strong attraction, it may not be out of place to refreshen their memory. Mr. Murray was the leading member of the comedy firm of Murray & Murphy, who, in "Our Irish Visitors," and under the management of J. M. Hill, became famous throughout the United States. Mr. Murray possesses an Irish dialect so droll, pe-culiar, and funny that it has no equal on the stage although numerous comedian have tried to imitate. Then again his manners and actions are peculiar to him-self, and are extremely ludicrous. In the role of Colonel, alias "Lord" Gilhooley, Mr. Murray has wen wide scope in which to display his ex-cruciating ecmedy efforts. The fun begins with his first entrance, and rip-ples along uninterruptedly until the closing climax. This seasion he is adding new laughs to his big stock of old ones. The play, "Our Irish Visitors," is very funny without partaking of the nature of a farce-comedy. The fun is relieved at intervals by clever, bright and pleasing specialties by the members of the company. These specialties, which are introduced at proper intervals, include the brightest and latest musical gems, and jolly, jovial songs and dances. The present company is, by far, the strongest and best that has ever appeared in "Our Irish Visitors." It includes Katie Rooney, the talented daughter of the famous Pat Rooney, and some of the brightest light on the comedy stage.

CLARK STREET THEATER.

Beginning with the mating next Sunday, Dec. 13, "The Ivy Leaf" will be the attraction for one week. Mr. W. H. Power's company scored juite a triumph in this highly interesting if not sensational Irish drama in the Grand opera-house last evening. The company carries its own scenery, some of which is very pretty, and the piece was put upon the stage in firsteless style. The Eagle Crag by moonlight, and the Ivy Tower were very attrective scenes. The company is capitally balanced and the play gives each and all plenty of scope to show what is in them. There is no lack of exciting scenes and thrilling climaxes, and the fun is at times both fast and furious. The quartette and other singing was really good, and the dancing caught the gods by storm. Smith O'Brien is a very clever young man and reminds one not a little of Joe Murphy in the "Kerry Gough." His rescue of the child from the eagle's talons and his leap from the ivy tower worked the audience up to a high pitch of excitement. Mr. Smith is a capital dancer and no mean vocalist. Mr. Morton's Darby Flynn caught on from the first, his jig with Miss Morton greatest sensational drama of the age. (Mrs. Deelish) being amusing enough Frank J. Frayne, Jr., in "The Boy to make a horse laugh. The ladies, Ranger." Magnificent special scenery. Miss Kent, Miss Strickland and Miss to make a horse laugh. AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The theatrical managers, E. L. Hunt and W. H. Vanetta, when they announce that their star, Miss Olive Grove, is supported by "McVicker's Theater company," know that they are deceiving the public. Mr. McVieker, who has managed the theater bearing his name in Chicago for thirty-five years, never sends out a company unless he accompanies it himself, and his name should not be used for the purpose of deception. It would be more creditable for Vanetta and Hunt to follow the example of Manager Me-Vicker and a m to build a name for themselves rather than to use one which does not belong to them. Such managers as they are unworthy of support.
