CONSOLATION.

I am a splendid fellow, and my record's simply great.
I went to Yalevard college, and I struck a lovely girl.
I played on the eleven, and I rowed upon the crew.
But when it came to scholarship I didn't quite pull through.
Endurance was my specialty, however, and I staid.
Another year in college, and my laurels didn't fade.
For in the spring athletics I just broke all records up.
And Yalevard was accordingly the winner of the cup.

Again I tried to graduate, but, no, it couldn't be. I found myself too popular with all the faculty. They said: "This man's a dandy in athletics; it won't do."

To let him pass, and weaken thus the crimson and the blue."
And so I staid another year, and when the spring came round,
Again a splendid champion in me the college found;

For I could toss a hammer such a distance, do you mind,
The judges had great trouble that there hammer for to find.

But now the play is over; they have put me out at last.

By some strange fluke my papers by the faculty are passed.

And I am now upon the world, and face to face with life.

But what to do—that problem's filled my soul with horrid strife.

The broker doesn't need a map with blocs that are large;

No dry goods man will ever place a sprinting man in charge.

Of interests that are vital; and I cannot find a trade.

In which a hammer thrower can embark. I'm much afraid.

That men who go to college have been placed beneath a ban;

The athlete doesn't stand a chance against a weaker man.

Who's groaned and boned away his time. But here is joy, I wis:

I've had a grander span of fame than ever will be his!

And while he's making ducats that will make his life complete.

And while he has his carriage whilst I walk upon the street.

I've had a glimpse of glory which he'll never never know.

And one brief day of fame, I say, redeems a life of woe!

The DARK ROOM.

By EDWARD ELLIOTT

EVERY room in Harley hall was occupied; omnibus, brougham and luggage cart had been to and from the station so often that Mr. Binder, the head of the stable department, had been heard to murmur something not very complimentary about people who went about with "trunks as big as 'aystacks," and who expected to find "carriages and 'osses awaiting for 'em everywhere to drag 'em up the 'ills." Men were glad to be bidden to Harley; they found they could kill time and pheasant more pleasantly there than at other places; and besides well stocked coverts there was a peculiarly attractive stretch of lowland, through which a small river ran, which produced a great variety of feathered fowl, and which enabled a man keen about sport to get away occasionally from the everlasting bang, bang and barn door fowl business.

Among the latest arrivals were two young men who were as unlike each other in every respect as two young men could be. Gilbert Hurst was a barrister, whose father owned a certain number of acres of land in the country, and who found like many other fathers of the present day that farming your own land and feeding, clothing and educating a family were pursuits that led to a small balance at your banker's and many sleepless nights. Gilbert was doing fairly well at the bar, and was a steady, right-minded, level-headed young man, with a pair of broad shoulders and a pair of honest gray eyes that told the story of a frank and honest nature. John Beasley, his companion, on arriving, was tall, fair, narrow-shouldered, well groomed and very rich. His father had made a large fortune out of small beer and was therefore ripe for the peerage. Mothers smiled on John Beasley, but John Beasley smiled mostly (when he had the chance) on a certain enterprising widow at South Kensington, who gave charming little dinner parties in a house so draped with art silks that it was called "Liberty Hall," the only object in the house that was not over-draped being the widow herself. Beasley senior had heard something about this lady and had lectured his son, and advised him to marry as soon as possible, and if possible to "marry money."

As Gilbert entered the drawing-room his heart gave a mighty leap when he saw that Dorothy Lane, whom he had been for two years desperately in love with, was helping Lady Harley with the distribution of teacups. He had met Dorothy often in London, and to make her his wife was the cherished dream of his life; but he feared she would think he cared for the thousand a year which she was supposed to possess, that he was not well off enough to marry, and, more than all, he feared she did not care for him.

John saw her, too. His heart gave no leap—it was not of the leaping kind; but he thought he had never seen her to such advantage as now, as she stood in the soft light of the shaded lamps, her dark red dress edged with sable at the throat and wrists, fitting her to perfection, and showing every curve of her graceful figure. John remembered his father's advice and, like a dutiful son, promptly rushed into conversation with a Miss Green, who was among the guests assembled, and who was favored by a fortune to the extent of five thousand a year, and who thought John one of the most charming men of her acquaintance.

He was not pleased later in the evening to find himself next Dorothy at dinner, while opposite him sat Gilbert Hurst, who already seemed on the very best of terms with his neighbor, Miss Green. After answering some questions of Lady Hartley respecting his journey he looked across the table and said: "By the way, Hurst, I did not see you in the train. Did you get in at Euston?"

"Yes," answered Gilbert. "I came by the 2:10, and was close to you on the platform some time."

"Oh yes, I remember now. I saw you get into a third-class carriage with my servant."

Lady Harley looked up, and wondered why her husband had asked John Beasley to stay with him. But John did not wonder at all, and he felt a glow of satisfaction when his servant opened the shutters of his bedroom next morning and his eye lighted on the coronet worked in red wool on the blankets, and he thought of the society he was going to distinguish himself in during the next ten days. In the half hour devoted to his toilet he made three resolves—first, that he would make himself so agreeable to everyone that he would be asked again to stay at Harley; secondly, that he would "make the running" with Miss Green, with a view to matrimony and the possession of five thousand a year, at the same time amusing himself with Dorothy, whose looks pleased him mightily; thirdly, that he would write to the South Kensington widow, omitting in his letter any mention of either Dorothy or Miss Green.

He attired himself with great care, in shooting clothes that were a great deal too new, and a soupcon of scent hung about him as he walked with a self-satisfied air into the breakfast room. He cast a sharp and critical eye over Gilbert hoping to find that want of means or want of taste would betray itself; but not a fault could be found with the shooting suit that looked worn, but was well worn, and John realized, as he looked, that there was an indescribable something about the wearer that he, John, could never arrive at.

He played his cards very well, he thought, during the days that followed—days in which Gilbert had plenty of opportunities for finding himself with a bad headache, as he watched John making secret love to the girl he cared for so much.

The men started early one morning for an outlying cover that was generally supposed to produce rocketers, and that was kept as a bonne bouche for the end of the week's shoot. The ladies were to drive out to lunch, and Dorothy and Miss Green, who were rival photographers, were to send their cameras out in the luncheon carts.

On arriving at the side of the wood Mr. Ridge, the headkeeper, had a few minutes' conversation with Lord Harley, and then set about placing their guns. "Will you get through that gate, if you please, Mr. Beasley, and stand at the end of that hedge; and you, Mr. Hurst, if you please, will you stop about where you are now?" and Ridge hurried off to place the great men of the party at the corner of the covert, at which point the birds were expected to break, Lord Harley taking a middle place.

Soon silence reigned in the ranks; it was a perfect early winter day, and as Gilbert turned his head and looked away over the beautiful English landscape his thoughts were far more of Dorothy than of pheasants, and it was not until a great hare had come loping out of the covert and had run almost between the feet of the keeper's son, who, weighed down with importance and cartridges, was acting as a loader, that he turned his thoughts to the business before him. Soon something more than the "tap-tap" of the "stops" could be heard, and a sound as though Bedlam was let loose gave the pheasants and the guns an idea that it was time to be up and doing.

A few shots at some stray birds, then a muttered "Here they come" from Lord Harley, and soon everyone was blazing away.

Contrary to Ridge's expectation, the birds broke John Beasley's end of the covert, and not only did that gentleman let fly at everything that came his way, but he had a turn at everything that was rightly Gilbert's—a more systematic robbery was never perpetrated; and Lord Harley, who was not getting much shooting, had plenty of time to see what was going on, and to wonder, as Lady Harley had wondered, why he had asked John to stay with them.

Gilbert, though a very good shot, had lost his temper and had shot badly; he swore at the lad for not being quicker with the cartridges, and could have kicked Beasley when he sauntered up to him after the beaters were through and remarked: "Not quite up to the mark to-day, Hurst; you let a lot of these birds get away. Heavily handicapped, not having a good loader; my man is a capital chap, was with Lord Greystone, you know, six years, and has been two with me—ought to know something about it."

"I am afraid you were not very well pleased, Hurst," said Lord Harley, coming up and casting a glance full of meaning at John; "we must look after you better next time;" and there was a kindly ring in the old man's voice that did much to soothe Gilbert's ruffled temper.

Dorothy and Miss Green came out before lunch to enable them to see a drive down in the low ground. As the guns were placed behind a high, straggling hedgerow John was sorely tempted to ask Dorothy to stand by him to witness his skill and prowess, but prudence conquered, and Miss Green was selected as his companion.

"Will you stand by me, Miss Lane?" asked Gilbert. "I am afraid you will not see any brilliant shooting, but I will do my best. Let me unroll your waterproof and I can make you a comfortable seat here in these dry leaves, and you will be sheltered from the wind."

"I am so afraid," said Dorothy, scanning the sky that had become somewhat overcast since morning, "that it will be too dark for photography, and I wanted so to get a group; it is getting late, too, and the beaters seem a long time getting into line." She knelt down in the leaves that carpeted the side of the hedge, and peered through a small opening.

"Oh! I can see them now quite plainly. Just look—they are down by the osiers, and will soon be here."

Gilbert knelt by her side, and held back some brambles that intercepted his view, his heart beating furiously and his hands trembling as he found his face so dangerously near to Dorothy's.

A sudden peal of laughter, and John Beasley's voice calling: "Are you two saying your prayers?" brought Gilbert to his feet and the blood to Dorothy's face.

Angry words sprang to his lips, but he was silenced by an appeal from a pair of very soft brown eyes, and turning toward Dorothy, he said:

"Yes, I was kneeling by your side; can't you guess what—"

"Look out, sir, there's a lot of duck coming over." This from the loader, who had been munching twigs in a ruminative manner.

Gilbert picked up his gun, but it was too late, and he knew that Beasley would have another chance to say something unpleasant about his shooting. After that there was no time for talking; it was hot work for about ten minutes and a big, mixed bag was the result.

Before lunch was over Dorothy settled to go home by a returning dog cart that had come out with a fresh supply of cartridges, and as she was leaving she saw Miss Green preparing her camera for action, a young man in attendance busy with the tripod and the legs.

John helped her with her wraps, saying as he did so:

"I am so sorry you are going home, Miss Lane, I wanted you to be in the group;" and then in a lower voice: "You know very well I shall not care to have a copy unless you are in it."

"Never mind, Miss Green will be there," said Dorothy as she clambered up into the dog cart.

John made a pretense of settling the rugs around her feet, and whispered: "Thank goodness she will be busy with her camera; I have had enough of Miss Green's society for one day, and you know very well that at all times I infinitely prefer yours."

Seeing a doubting look in Dorothy's face, he added: "You do not believe me, Dorothy, but it is true. I swear I will not go near Miss Green again to-day."

The cart moved off, and Dorothy had plenty to think of during her homeward drive. She knew very well that she had cared for Gilbert Hurst, and that she had cared for him ever since she met him on the river two years ago; they had often met since, and now had been for a week together under the same roof. Surely those gray-honest eyes could not lie; yet why did he so often avoid her and why did he always make way for John Beasley whenever he tried to monopolize her society? Yet surely he must have meant something just now—or was he only amusing himself, and did John really care more for her than Gilbert did?

After dinner that evening she was playing some dreamy German music that seemed to have a particularly soothing effect on Lord Harley, who was half buried and half asleep in a big arm-chair before the fire, when John came up, and leaned over her shoulder till his lips almost touched her hair, and said in a low voice:

"I kept my word this afternoon; what is to be my reward?"

"That you shall be allowed to turn over the next two pages of music for me," she answered. "And this, after," she added, nodding toward a gardenia that she had left with her gloves and fan on the piano.

Gilbert's jealous ears heard the answer, and he went off with a rage at his heart to lose his money in the billiard room.

The following day it rained in torrents. Miss Green and several of the guests were leaving, and Dorothy went off to the dark room at the far end of the house to develop some negatives that she had taken of a ruined castle in the neighborhood.

She found all in order as she had left it and soon had everything ready for business, developing solution, alum, hypo, all in their respective places, the red lamp lighted, the matches close at hand and the candle blown out. She reached up to the shelf for the slide, took out the negative and slipped it quickly into the developing tray for the preliminary wash and then poured the solution over its surface. She gently rocked the tray to and fro in the dim red light and saw the high lights make their appearance one by one. She searched in vain for the turrets of the ruined castle and for the high belt of trees on the hill beyond, and began to fear she had taken the two pictures on the same plate.

Presently odd shapes and strange figures began to appear, which, after a little fresh developer had been poured over them, took the form of folding chairs and benches, and Dorothy saw the shooting party at lunch before her. Her hand groped about for the match box, but the thought struck her that the negative was not hers and must not be wasted, so it was left in the alum a few minutes and after a wash was left in the hypo bath; but her quick eyes had seen enough to tell her that John Beasley had lied to her, for fixed in her memory as surely as it was now being fixed on the plate was the picture of that young man sitting by the side of Miss Green, his head turned toward her, his hand almost touching hers. She sat thinking for some time, and was only aroused by hearing footsteps in the passage, followed by a knock at the door.

"Yes, who is it?"

"It is I," answered Gilbert's voice. "They are trying some new music in the drawing-room, and Lady Harley wants your help. May I come in?"

"Yes; the negative is fixed now, the light will not hurt it. You can come in."

Gilbert groped his way into the room, and found Dorothy seated at the developing table. "May I see the photograph you have taken? Has the old castle come out well?"

She lifted the plate from under the running water tap, and held it up before the red lamp for him to see. She turned her head and their eyes met for a second as he leaned over her shoulder, but before he could say a word of surprise there was a sudden flare, a snap and a gurgling sound, and with one wild flicker the lamp went out and they were in darkness. "Where is the door? I know I shall tumble over something and do some damage. Will you lead me? You know this room better than I do."

A small soft hand was slipped into his, and though Dorothy did know that room quite well they were a very long time finding the door—but then, you see, the room was very dark.—N. Y. Advertiser.

THE prize ring seems at least to have a large surplus of heavy-weight talkers.

"THE Polar expeditions" will all be in by the time the freeze-out of Democracy in November occurs.

THERE has been a great deal of froth on "the Worlds Fair bee" but the award has finally been made.

Dont be absent from home the day of registering. Every voter this year must register in person or lose his vote.

EMPTY Chicago beef cans will be strewn all along the path of the Japanese army from the sea to the walls of Moukden.

It is reported that the sugar refineries of Philadelphia will shut down and wait for the new crop and better prices.

BOSTON put seventy-three additional letter carriers on its streets Oct. 1. Chicago will make one on a bicycle do two mens work.

CHINA will have to change to a diet of Chicago corned beef or move from Pekin. Beef will do much more for China than the Chilian navy.

IN Warsaw they are so determined to stamp out cholera that they burn down a house infected by the disease without the formality of removing the patients.

IF the crow is as smart a bird as is reported he will amediately wing his way southward where the Democratic party don't need to eat crow as a steady diet.

GOOD for St. Louis. The Globe-Democrat says: "St. Louis is on the crest of a business wave, and is going to stay there." Everybody will welcome "the crest of the business wave."

"I would rather trust that medicine than any doctor I know of," Says Mrs. Hattie Mason of Clinton Carter Co., Mo., in speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by A. L. Waller.

ENGLAND is ahead this year in everything. She outsailed us, she cleaned us out on the tariff, she swiped us on foot-ball, and now she has welloped our champion eleven at cricket. Come home, Wilson; come home, and stop rubbing it in.

THERE is being a good deal said in a jeering way about Editor Mallroy, of the Nunda Herald, as to the step he has taken in the political issue of the day. Some say he has turned Democratic. This he denies in black and white, and says he is as good a Republican as lives. (Stick to it Bro. Mallroy.) What if a man does turn Democratic. If he so desires, it is his divine right. Mr. Mallroy is probably as well onto the ropes as those who jeer him, and we hope to see him abundantly successful.

THE policy of the sugar trust is to limit the product so as to control prices. President Havemeyer, of the American Sugar Refining Company, says that the operation of the new tariff law will throw 10,000 out of employment. This is the "return of prosperity" with a string to it.

—IN the issue of the Cary Enterprise, of September 27, the Editor, "Mr. Brown," says; "From this time on I will fly the Republican ensign." Good for Mr. Brown, we think he is walking in the propen light, and we are glad to welcome a sheet into the ranks that is for McKinley and Republicanism in '96.

PUT away the straw hat and shake the camphor out of your winter flannels and save doctor bills, and cough syrup, and rheumatic liniment bills at the druggist's. Health and life even depends upon proper changes in clothing during the fall months. Half lung troubles are do to thoughtlessness and carelessness in clothing.

THE city of Buffalo, N. Y., is astir with excitement over the prospective jubilee to celebrate the "harnessing" of Niagara Falls to generate electric power. Knowing the value of energy and the power of a name, "Buffalo" Bill should camp in that neighborhood a few days and observe whether or not water is more difficult to handle than a bucking broncho.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first symptom of croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the cough has developed it will prevent the attack. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. L. Waller.

PHILADELPHIA is the only city in the Union that is always "long" on catfish. This horny variety of the bony tribe has for more than a generation been regarded as a dainty morsel by Philadelphians, while out West the finest kind of catfish when caught are thrown away. But Philadelphians are right. The catfish is of a much finer flavor than the carp, now being placed in Western waters. The lovers of luxury in Philadelphia have established "a catfish hatchery at Fairmount park," and "a waffle divan" near by, and have thus solved the problem, "Is life worth living."

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache will be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or a scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A pain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in which insures a cure in one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious, A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the chest or side relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For Sale by A. L. Waller.

FLORIDA'S LOSS.

Damage of Over $1,000,000 from Wind and Rain.

See Wall No Protection Against Raging Waters—Wharves and Floors Washed Away and Many Houses Flooded.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 1.—Communications with southern Florida is being restored and dispatches are pouring in relating to the damage done by the West Indian cyclone which raged in the state Tuesday and Wednesday. They all tell the same story of houses wrecked and crops destroyed, but no loss of life is reported.

Buildings Wrecked.

At Tampa several large cigar factories were wrecked. The three-story brick factory of Heidenberg & Co. and the factory of C. A. Joyce were demolished, as were also the factories of Yabor & Manarara, Theodore Perez & Co., and O'Halloran. The First Presbyterian church and the palatial hotel, Tampa Bay, were badly damaged. Several smaller structures were also demolished. The loss on buildings at Tampa is estimated at $50,000.

Steamers Suffer.

During the storm at Fernandina the British steamships Boston City and Elmville collided and were badly damaged. The steamer Princess was sunk between Palatka and Picolata. She was valued at $12,000. The steamer Edith was driven ashore. The steamer Debarey was driven against the drawbridge and wrecked. The steam yacht Maude was sunk near Crescent City.

St. Augustine Flooded.

Advices were received from St. Augustine which had been cut off since Tuesday. No lives were lost, but several houses were wrecked and the losses will run far into the thousands. Nearly all the windows in the city were blown in and the houses flooded with water. The Ponce de Leon hotel was damaged in this way. The loss on the hotel's furniture is heavy. The waves dashed over the sea wall and made rivers of the streets. Many wharves were blown away.

Orange Growers Lose.

Between Green Cove spring and Palatka, on the St. Johns, twelve wharves have disappeared. Between Jacksonville and St. Augustine not a telegraph pole was left standing. The damage to the orange growers is incalculable. In the large groves the ground is completely covered with green oranges. The loss is fully 20 per cent.

On the East Coast.

The east coast is still cut off from communication below St. Augustine and Palatka. Every effort is being made to hear from Jupiter and Key West, which are supposed to have been in the storm center. The storm was as severe in the interior of the state as on the coast.

DUN'S STATEMENT.

Review of the Past Week's Trade—Some Comparisons.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Special inquiry has been made this week at all commercial centers regarding the state of retail trade. Wide diversity appears in different trades. The main facts disclosed are: First, marked improvement in the last month and a considerable excess over the business done a year ago, particularly in the necessities of life. But, second, it appears that the volume of trade at present is on the whole considerably less than in a normal year at most points, and in the more important trades is apparently about 20 per cent. smaller than in September, 1891.

Evidence of continued improvement in wholesale trade and manufacture does not appear this week. There is large distribution on orders given some time ago, but new business going to the manufacturers is everywhere slackening. The completion of orders for replenishment of stocks leaves a narrower demand and it is yet too early for consumption to provide further orders.

The depression in prices of farm products will have some influence. Unprecedented records have been made in cotton and wheat, though as to wheat only in contracts for future delivery in which the prices are the lowest ever made. The available stocks are about 15,000,000 bushels greater than a year ago, and western receipts for the week were 5,252,716 bushels, against 6,191,034 last year, and since August 1, 51,000,000 bushels, against 28,000,000 last year.

It is encouraging that the speculation in corn has broken and the price has fallen five cents, less gloomy estimates than those of the department having gained general acceptance. It is now supposed that the yield is not far from 1,500,000,000 bushels, which will compel much economy in feeding, but speculation in pork has also broken, and the price has fallen 75 cents, while lard has declined half a cent.

Failures are few and small for the week, liabilities amounting to $5,278,285, of which $2,582,313 were of manufacturing and $2,575,112 of trading concerns. The failures during the week have been 235 in the United States, against 324 last year, and 55 in Canada, against 55 last year.

MOVE OUT OF GOREA.

Chinese Abandon the Contested Territory and Go to Chin Lieu Ching.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 1.—It is reported that the Chinese troops have evacuated Gorea and are now massed at Chin Lieu Ching, 30 miles westward of the Yalu river. It is stated that there have been numerous desertions from the Chinese army of late because of the faulty condition of the arms and ammunition supplied to the troops.

It is also reported that the emperor has granted Li Hung Chang's request to take the field in person and that Li Hung Chang will make his headquarters at Lui Tai, near Kai Ping, the present headquarters of the provincial commander in chief of Chihai Li.

SLAIN AND ROBBED.

Well-Known Railroad Man Murdered Mysteriously in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 27.—A horrible murder shrouded in mystery was committed in the very heart of the city some time during Monday night, and the police are completely baffled for lack of a clew. James B. Caven, general freight agent of the Valley railroad (Baltimore & Ohio), was shot and killed by some unknown assassin. Five bullets pierced his body, and when picked up shortly after he was stone dead. Parties living near the scene of the murder heard the shots and a woman's scream. No one was found near the body and the police so far have been unable to secure the slightest clew.

The body was removed to the morgue, where it was stripped of its clothing. Then it was discovered that the body had been robbed. A finegold repeater which the dead man carried in life was missing. His money, of which he always carried a large amount, was also gone. The pockets had been turned inside out. The fact that a robbery had been committed was plainly evident, and a search was made for the wounds. They were found, five in number. Several hours must have elapsed since the shots were fired, as the blood had congealed and closed the wounds. Every inch of the yard where the body was found was gone carefully over by the detectives in the hope of finding a clew. Not a thing did they find to reward their search.

PENNANT WINNERS.

Baltimore Sure of National Championship—Sioux City Wins in Western League.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—By defeating the Cleveland club on Tuesday the Baltimore baseball team made sure of the National league championship, its percentage of .696 being such that the New York club, its closest rival, with a percentage of .664, cannot pass even should it win all of the remaining games of the schedule. New York, however, stands second in the race, Boston two defeats on Tuesday settling this position in her favor.

The season in the Western league closed yesterday with the Sioux City an easy winner of the pennant. The contest at no time has been as close between the clubs as it was in the Western association. Early in the season Sioux City placed herself at the head and Milwaukee at the foot of the list, and neither luck nor good playing could dislodge them.

The clubs ended the season in the following position:

CLUBS.	WINS.	LOS.	PER CT.
Sioux City	74	51	.592
Toledo	67	55	.549
Kansas City	59	58	.543

About $650,000 was paid to pension examining surgeons and the balance of the total disbursements was for expenses of pension agents.

HILL IS CHOSEN.

New York Democrats in Convention Name Him for Governor.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 28.—At 1:50 o'clock Chairman D. B. Hill rapped the convention to order. After the transaction of some routine business Galen R. Hitt proposed John Boyd Thatcher as nominee for the governorship. Senator Hill ordered the roll called. When Allegany county was reached Delegate Reynolds arose and amidst intense silence said: "The united delegation from Allegany county desire to place in nomination for governor their first and only choice, David Bennett Hill."

Union of All Churches Urged.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—"The Mutual Relations of the Catholic and Protestant Churches" was the title of a paper read by Judge William D. Robinson, a Catholic layman of Connecticut, before the national conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches, Rev. Thomas J. Connerty, a Catholic clergyman of Worcester, Mass., spoke in favor of unity between the Catholic and Protestant churches in all good works, and more especially on the lines of temperance and morality.

Costly California Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Fire in the business portion of the town of Mission San Jose, Alameda county, early Friday morning destroyed $50,000 worth of property.

LEFT THE TRACK.

A Passenger Train on the Wabash Wrecked at Maumee, O.

Some Unknown Mischance Tampered with a Switch and the Engine and Several Cars Are Derailed—Two Lives Lost.

AN OPEN SWITCH.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 1.—The Wabash mail and express, due here at 7:30 a. m. Sunday, while running at the rate of 50 miles an hour plunged into an open switch, killing the engineer, F. N. Smith, instantly, and terribly mangling the fireman, A. N. Day, so that he has since died at the Toledo hospital. Several of the mail clerks were badly shaken up and somewhat injured, but none of them seriously.

The switch had been tampered with and was partially thrown, with the target placed to indicate that the track was clear for trains to pass. The dead men were not very well known here, both having recently come from Buffalo, N. Y., to take the places of men who were dropped during the recent strike. An effort is being made to discover who threw the switch. It is believed to have been the work of tramps with the motive of robbery.

The wreck was planned to occur at the west end of a long siding, just beyond the Maumee station. The road at the lower part of the switch target had been removed and the switch was partly thrown. The target indicated a clear track, and Engineer Smith was probably not aware of the situation many minutes before his engine was bumping along on the ties.

As soon as the engine struck the switch it leaped into the air, fell toward the ditch and turned completely over. The trucks of the mail cars followed the engine, but the cars themselves went in an opposite direction. Under them were found later the dead body of Engineer Smith and Fireman Day, the latter suffering from a fracture of the skull from which he died soon after. The postal cars were torn entirely from the trucks and were lying side by side.

The express and baggage cars were literally reduced to splinters, yet the occupants escaped unhurt. There were several passengers in the combination smoker, which was wrecked beyond repair, yet not a scratch could be shown by any of them. The passengers in the Pullmans were made aware of the accident only by the severe jolting which they experienced.

GEN. A. M. WEST DEAD.

Close of the Career of a Prominent Mississippian.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Gen. A. M. West, candidate for vice president of the United States in 1884 on the greenback-labor ticket with Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, died at Holly Springs, Miss., Sunday. Gen. West was the first president of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans railway (now the Illinois Central) and was the pioneer railroad-builder of the south.

[Gen. West was born in Alabama in 1818. In 1837 he moved to Mississippi. In politics he was a whig and was elected to the legislature in 1845 and twice to the state senate. After the secession of the southern states he was appointed brigadier general and subsequently quartermaster and paymaster general and commissary general in the confederate army, holding all three of these offices at once. In 1864 he became president of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans railroad (now the southern division of the Illinois Central) and was its builder. Gen. West was elected to congress after the war, but congress refused to seat him and all others from the seceding states. In 1876 he was an elector from Mississippi for the Tilden and Hendricks ticket, but later in the year he identified himself with the greenback party and was nominated in 1884, without his knowledge, for vice president on the greenback ticket with Benjamin F. Butler. He at first declined on account of southern prejudices against Butler and for fear of a split in the democratic party furthering republican success in Mississippi, but upon being urged he consented upon condition that there were to be no electors from Mississippi. Gen. West was an extensive planter and a prominent member of the Methodist church and a member of the Farmer's Alliance.]

SEVEN DROWNED.

Mrs. Scharf, Five Children and Her Sister Victims of a Drunken Husband.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 1.—Seven persons were drowned at Chaska, Minn., Saturday evening. Louis Scharf and family, who had attended the fair, started home at 7 o'clock. Scharf was intoxicated and was driving fast. When within a block of the river he was stopped by J. Kunz, of Minneapolis, who told him to drive slower. Scharf promised to do so, but no sooner was he released than he whipped his horses and furiously dashed down the river bank, over the ferry and into the river. His wife, five children and Miss Mary Roskus, Mrs. Scharf's sister, were drowned, as were the horses. Scharf clung to the wagon box and was rescued. The bodies of Mrs. Scharf and two of the children were recovered.

PERISHED BY FIRE.

Charred Remains of a Man Found in the Ruins of a Barn.

TURNER, Ill., Oct. 1.—The farm of James Pierce, 6 miles east of here, was the scene of a disastrous fire Saturday night. Mr. Pierce was awakened by the smell of smoke and discovered his barn on fire. He heard groans and cries coming from the haymow and after the fire had burned itself out the charred bones of a man were found among the debris. Friday night four tramps slept in the barn and it is supposed the bones are those of a tramp who went to sleep with a pipe in his mouth.

THE SEASON ENDS.

Close of the Baseball Year of 1894—Baltimore Wins.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The National league games on Sunday brought the baseball year to a close. Contests for the Temple cup remain to be played, it is true, but only the first and second clubs in the race, Baltimore and New York, are concerned in these, and besides they cut no actual figure in the championship; they are merely a series for a trophy. The wind-up of the championship season brought only one important change. That was the unexpected jump of St. Louis into ninth place, displacing Cincinnati at the very last moment.

The clubs stand as follows:

CLUBS.	WINS.	LOS.	PER CT.
Baltimore	89	39	.696
New York	88	44	.667
Boston	83	49	.629
Philadelphia	71	56	.559
Brooklyn	70	61	.534
Cleveland	68	61	.527
Pittsburgh	65	65	.500
Chicago	57	75	.432
St. Louis	56	76	.424
Cincinnati	54	75	.419
Washington	45	87	.341
Louisville	36	94	.277

Final arrangements for the series of seven games to be played for the Temple cup by the Baltimore and New York baseball teams were completed Saturday between Manager Hanlon of the Baltimores and Manager Ward of the New Yorks at a meeting held at the Tremont house. The games will be played as follows: Thursday and Friday, October 4 and 5, at Baltimore; Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, October 6, 8 and 9, at New York; Wednesday, date open; Thursday, October 11, at Baltimore, and Saturday at some place to be decided upon by the two managers. In case they are unable to agree upon a place for playing the last game it is to be decided by the toss of a coin. Three umpires are to be used, two under the double umpire rule and a third as reserve. The names of the umpires are to be kept a secret until the teams appear upon the field.

KILLED FOR THEIR CASH.

Robbers Murder Two Inmates of the Dayton (O.) Soldiers' Home.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 1.—The dead bodies of Adolphus Burgan and John Barrett, inmates of the soldiers' home, were found at an early hour Sunday morning on the pike that skirts the home grounds and a short distance from the south gate. Both men had been murdered for the small amount of change each possessed. The back part of the skull of each was crushed in, showing that the crime was committed by the same bludgeon and the same person, with robbery as the motive.

The body of Burgan was discovered about 3 in the morning by a country boy, who stumbled over it. Later that of Barrett was discovered about an eighth of a mile distant. The bodies were cold and stiff, indicating that the murder had been committed early in the night. Burgan fell an easy victim to the murderer's blow. The ground where Barrett lay suggested that he had fought desperately for life. The back of his head was battered in and his face lacerated. Barrett borrowed a quarter when he left the home grounds in the evening. Burgan displayed a gold coin in a saloon about 9 o'clock at night, and it is supposed that this excited the cupidity of the murderer, who followed the two men from a saloon. A number of suspects have been arrested, but as yet there is no substantial clew to the criminal. Burgan was 50 years old and a member of the furlen legion, Maryland. Barrett was 52 and was in the navy. His parents reside at Chester, Pa.

VALUE OF FOREIGN COINS.

The Director of the Mint Issues His Official Statement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The director of the mint has estimated and the secretary proclaimed the value of foreign coins as required by section 25 of the act of August 28, 1894. The changes made are as follows:

	Value July, 1894.	Value Oct. 1, 1894.
Bolivians of Bolivia	$0.457	$0.464
Peso of Central American states	0.457	0.464
Shanghai tael of China	0.753	0.763
Hankow tael of China	0.753	0.763
Tien-Tsin tael of China	0.727	0.737
Chefoo tael of China	0.717	0.727
Peso of Colombia	0.457	0.464
Sucre of Ecuador	0.457	0.464
Rupee of India	0.217	0.227
Yen of Japan	0.493	0.500
Dollar of Mexico	0.497	0.501
Sol of Peru	0.457	0.464
Ruble of Russia	0.366	0.371
Mahabub of Tripoli	0.413	0.418

The estimate of the value of coins of countries having a single silver standard is made upon the average price of silver for the three months ending September 29, 1894, viz.: $0.64-127. There has been added to the list the Tien-Tsin and Chefoo taels of China. These values are stated to govern in the settlement of customs duties.

SAY CHINA IS HELPLESS.

Her Army Mutinies and Is Thus Rendered Useless in Corea.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says: "The Chinese army at Wi Ju on the Yalu river, which is opposing the advance of the main Japanese army in Corea, has mutinied. The men are throwing away their arms because they have no ammunition, being cut off from their base of supplies. The Chinese defenses have completely collapsed. There is a panic in Pekin and the very name Japan inspires terror everywhere. China is perfectly helpless."

PULLMAN SCORED.

Gov. Altgeld Declares His Taxes to Be Ridiculously Low.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 27.—Gov. Altgeld was present at Tuesday's meeting of the state board of equalization. The governor disclaimed any intention of interfering with the work of the board, but said he felt it his duty to lay before them some facts which he had recently collected.

Pullman's Palace Car company, according to the records in the secretary of state's office, has a capital stock of $36,000,000. Mr. Pullman had testified before a commission, among other things, that this capital stock was paid in cash and had been enlarged from time to time during the twenty-seven years of its existence.

Mr. Pullman had further declared under oath that the company had no bonded debt and had accumulated $25,000,000 in undivided profits, the governor continued. Adding this $25,000,000 to the capital stock makes $61,000,000 which the stock of the Pullman company represents. The market reports show this stock to be worth more than $61,000,000.

The governor continued to give facts and figures from the company's own reports and showed that the company's surplus had been upward of $3,000,000 a year for many years. If the stock of the Pullman company were assessed like other property it would make an assessment of from $12,300,000 to $15,000,000. Instead of this it was assessed at only $1,650,000 in the state, the company having represented that its property was assessed in other states, but failed to show where.

It appears that in sixteen states the company pays no taxes at all. In several other states and in Canada no assessments are shown, and in seventeen the total amount of tax paid by the Pullman company is only $21,425. In the remaining seven states the taxes paid are not given, but the total assessment is only $1,104,359. The calculation based upon the ruling percent of taxation would place the total amount of taxes paid by the company at $40,751 outside of Illinois. This in Chicago would pay the taxes on less than $4,000,000 of property.

The governor estimates that the Pullman company pays taxes on only about $2,000,000 in America, and that nearly $60,000,000 entirely escapes taxation, and the company has now in its possession millions of dollars that should have been paid into the public treasury. The board could not, the governor said, reach back and compel the company to pay what it should have paid in the past; but it could assess the company as high in proportion to the market value of its property as others are assessed.

DOWNFALL OF LI HUNG CHANG.

Report That the Viceroy Is to Be Soon Superseded.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says Li Hung Chang will shortly be superseded as viceroy of China by Wu Ta Cheng, late governor of Hu Pei.

Lord Li, late Chinese minister to Japan, has been degraded. Yu Lu, the military governor of Moukden, will succeed Li Hung Chang as superintendent of northern trade.

Four imperial princes are watching events in the emperor's behalf at Tien Tsin.

A massacre of foreigners at Pekin is regarded as not unlikely to occur, and the legations have asked that blue-jackets be landed to protect them.

One hundred and eighty thousand men, partially armed cavalry, have assembled to defend Moukden. A battle is expected to take place before a fortnight has elapsed.

The Japanese warships are scouting in the gulf of Pechili. Naval experts say that the Chinese vessels will never again appear on the scene.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 29.—In an imperial decree issued yesterday the dowager empress commands a curtailment of the festivities in celebration of her birthday. She will dispense with the grand ceremonial of congratulation, and everything will be on a reduced scale. The money thus saved is to be devoted to meeting war expenses.

ARE ACTUALLY STARVING.

The Wretched Condition of Many of Pullman's Residents.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—When 600 destitute men, women and children went to the headquarters of the Pullman relief committee Wednesday morning they found nothing there for them. The provisions were all gone, and when and from where more will come is a matter of speculation. That is the sad condition of affairs that confronts County Commissioners Kallis and Lundberg. They were appointed a committee by the county board to go to Pullman and investigate the condition of the people and devise means for their immediate relief and for their support during the coming winter. They found things far worse than they had ever dreamed.

"There is no doubt," said Commissioner David Kallis, after the investigation was over, "that the people of Chicago will have to support the destitute in Pullman during the coming winter. It must be done. If they do not the people will starve to death, and that condition of affairs cannot be permitted."

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

An Interesting Subject Discussed by an Intelligent Lawyer.

When one person has a right to pass over the land of another, this right is called a right of way. There are three methods by which this right can be acquired: First, by purchase or land grant from the owner of the land; Second, by long-continued use or prescription; Third, by necessity. To obtain a permanent right of way by the first method, there must be a complete deed of it, with all the formalities required in the deed of the land itself. It is such an interest in the land as the law requires to be by a deed. If the bargain was an oral one, or even in writing, if not in the form of a deed, it would not hold. It should be granted under seal and acknowledged in those states where the law requires a deed to be sealed and acknowledged.

A right of way is acquired by prescription by an adverse use for 20 years. In some states 15 years or some other period is the time needed. By adverse use is meant a use under a claim of right. If used by consent of the owner of the land it will not be sufficient. If one person allows another to pass over his land as a favor, this permission will never ripen into a legal right which the owner of the land cannot put an end to. The way must have been used in an open, peaceable manner and continuously during all these years. Its use must have been an uninterrupted one, but not necessarily by the same person. It is sufficient if by the owner of the estate, for which the right is claimed, continued from seller to buyer, or from ancestor to heir.

When the right is once acquired it continues to belong to the estate in favor of which it exists, and is called an easement in the land of the other. A way by necessity arises when a landowner sells off the back part of his lot and there is no legal way by which the purchaser can get onto his purchase except by passing over the remaining land of the seller. He has then the right to pass over this remaining land to go to his own so long as the necessity exists. If the purchaser buys some adjoining land over which he can get out to the highway, or if a new road should be opened to the land, the right of way is ended, although the new way may not be so direct or convenient as the old one. It is said to be a poor rule which will not work both ways. So if a landowner sells the part of his land nearest to the street and there is no means by which the seller can get out from his remaining land except over the part sold, he has a right to pass and re-pass for that purpose over the land sold, even if he has conveyed the property by a deed warranting it free from all incumbrances. Unless the extent of the right is defined in the deed conveying it, it must be exercised in one place and in a reasonable manner.

The owner of the right cannot go just where he pleases over the property of the owner of the land. Generally the landowner can designate where the way shall be, and it need not necessarily be the shortest or most convenient route. If the landowner does not designate the owner of the right may select his route, but should do it in a proper place, with reasonable regard to the interests of the owner of the land. When the right has been acquired by prescription, it must be continued in the particular place where the claim was used which has become the right by user. In fact, a claim to wander at will over the property of another cannot become the foundation of a legal right. When the person owning the right has selected the place for his right, he cannot change it, but if it becomes suddenly impassable or if it becomes obstructed he may deviate from it, passing over adjoining land, but doing as little damage as possible, till the place is made passable or the obstructions removed.

The owner of the land is not bound to keep the way in repair. His duty is ended when he allows the owner of the right to pass. The owner of the right may repair it himself, and remove all obstacles to the use of the right. The owner of the land may, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, erect suitable gates and bars at the entrance of the way, and if so erected the person using the way must close them after they have passed through. If they do not they are liable for all damages done by reason of cattle escaping from the land or cattle coming on the land from the outside.

In the case of a right gained by prescription if it was acquired for some particular purpose, as for carting wood from a wood lot, it cannot be used against the permission of the landowner for other purposes, after the wood has been cut off, if it increases the travel over it, or the burden of the way. A right acquired for passage on foot does not carry with it a right to go with a team. The use of the right is not confined to the owner of the adjoining land, but can generally be used, if not limited by any of the principles above stated, for ordinary access to or from the property. Such a right is not generally a personal right, but passes with the estate to which the right belongs, from one owner to another.—Orange Judd Farmer.

BROWN SWISS CATTLE.

Description and Characteristics of This Milk-Producing Breed.

The prominent position held by Switzerland as a manufacturing center of cheese and butter is largely due to the superiority of its two most numerous races of cattle—the Simmenthal or spotted Berne breed, and the Schwytz or brown breed. The former is but little known in this country, but the latter under the name of Brown Swiss breed, has sprung into prominence within the last two years.

The native home of the Brown Swiss cattle is the canton of Schwytz, Switzerland. The first importation to this country was made about 1870. This was succeeded by a few other importations, and the demand slowly increased until the remarkable record made by Brienz, a fine specimen of the breed, during the fat stock show, at Chicago, in 1891, placed the Brown Swiss cows in the front rank as butter producers.

In size the Brown Swiss are above medium, mature bulls weighing from 1,800 to 2,200 pounds, and cows from 1,100 to 1,300 pounds. The color is as the name indicates, brown, varying, however, from a light to a dark chestnut shade. The hoofs, tongue, nose and switch of the tail are always black, while the light line is particularly observable in a narrow line along the back, in the inside of the ears and in tufts of hair between the horns. The head is large; horns are rather short, smooth and tipped with black. They show the same mealy ring at the muzzle so characteristic of the Jerseys, to which they bear a somewhat general resemblance, being, however, more robust in build and heavier and larger animals. They have short and straight legs, wide thighs and deep quarters, their general outline showing the milk breed. The cows have excellent escuteheons, well formed udders and give large quantities of good milk. They mature early, and their disposition is extremely kind and docile. Their marks are very persistent, a circumstance which proves the purity of the breed. The estimation in which the Brown Swiss cows are held in their native land is perhaps best shown by the fact that the Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk company, of Cham, is supplied almost entirely with their milk.—N. Y. World.

AN AID TO MILKING.

The Collegian's Advice to His Father Results Disastrously.

A college student in one of our western states recently returned home after his course was finished to find that his father, a clergyman with a small salary, was eking out his living by running a small farm. One of the adjuncts of the farm was a cow, a pretty good animal, which, however, had a strong aversion to being milked. Here was an opportunity for a display of the lately acquired knowledge of the juvenile collegian.

"Father," said he, "Prof. G— says if one will place a weight upon a cow's back it will make her give down the milk."

The reverend gentleman, favorably impressed with this information that his son had learned from Prof. G—, decided to try the simple remedy. Instead, however, of placing a weight upon the cow's back, the clergyman placed himself upon it. But then he answered the purpose. The cow, however, was still obstinate.

"Tie my legs under the cow," said the father to his son.

The son did so. But the cow, unused to such unusual and arbitrary proceedings, manifested her displeasure by rearing and plunging, entirely unmindful of the dignity of the person astride her spinal column. It was getting altogether too interesting for the two bipeds concerned in the transaction.

"Cut the rope! Cut the rope!" shouted Mr. V— to his dutiful son, meaning the rope by which he was attached to the cow.

But the son, being somewhat excited, cut the rope by which the cow was fastened to the stanchion. At once availing herself of the liberty thus offered, the cow took an unceremonious exit from the stable, and down the street she went. The minister accompanied the cow, but in a manner not exactly befitting the dignity of his profession.

As it happened, one of the sisters of the congregation was on the street as the race was in progress. Surprised at such a sight the good sister cried out: "Why, Brother V—, where are you going?"

His sense of the ludicrous coming to his aid, Brother V— shouted back: "The Lord and the cow only know. I don't!"

The clergyman was eventually rescued from his awkward perch, and never attempted the feat again.—Voice.

TAKE STEPS

In time, if you are a sufferer from that scourge of humanity known as consumption, and you can be cured. There is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its early stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent, are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power, over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write to those who have been cured and profit by their experience.
