A SUCCESS IN EVERY WAY

The Entertainment Given by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society Tuesday Evening is Appreciated.

The "tea" given Tuesday evening in the M. E. church by the Woman's Foreign Missionary society was a success in every particular. A good-sized crowd was in attendance. After listening to an entertaining program the ladies treated the audience to ice cream, cake, etc. The balance of the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner. The refreshments were done ample justice to. The following is a copy of the program as rendered:

Singing by quartette.
Recitation, "Her First Railroad Ride," by Miss Myers.
Recitation, "The Chopper's Child," by Mrs. McIntosh.
Reading, "A Living Sacrifice," by Miss Kingsley.
Recitation, "Uncle Ben's Sermon," by Miss Grace Genereaux.
Singing by Quartette.
Address by Rev. T. E. Ream.
Each and everyone of the participants did splendid.

Funeral of F. J. Nelson.

The funeral services of F. J. Nelson were held Thursday, at 11 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Nelson, mother of the deceased.

Mr. Nelson was born at Stockbridge, New York, April 2, 1849, and died at Shreveport, La., August 22, 1895, of malarial fever.

He was well known to the people of Barrington, having resided here the greater part of his life. He traveled considerably on account of his health, visiting California, and then going South, where he died.

Mr. Nelson leaves an aged mother, a brother in Nebraska and a sister in Dundee, Ill., to mourn for him, besides a great many old friends here at Barrington.

The Rev. T. E. Ream, of the M. E. church, conducted the funeral services.

PHILIP GIESELER DEAD.

In His Death McHenry Mourns the Loss of One of Her Most Valuable Citizens.

Died—At the residence of his son-in-law, George Meyers, in the village of McHenry, August 30, 1895, of heart failure, Mr. Philip Gieseler, aged 69 years 5 months and four days.

Mr. Gieseler was born in Hanover, Germany, March 25, 1826, and came to America in 1852, settling at Louisville, Ky., where he remained four years. From there he came to Chicago, where he engaged in the mercantile business for four years, going from there to Des Plaines, and a few years later removing to McHenry, where he lived upwards of twenty-two years, being engaged in business part of that time and living on his farm a few miles west of McHenry the remainder of the time.

About four years ago he engaged in the hotel business at Fairfax, Iowa; returning to McHenry last fall.

He was a man of sterling integrity, and was honored and respected by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was of a social disposition, and had a kind and pleasant word for everyone, and we believe it can be truly said that he did not have an enemy among his wide circle of acquaintances.

He leaves an aged wife and six children—four daughters and two sons—to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and a kind and indulgent father. A whole community joins with THE REVIEW in extending its sympathy to the sorrowing family.

The funeral services were held from the Johnsbrough Catholic church, and was attended by a large concourse of relatives and sympathetic friends.

Last Saturday the Barrington Maroons distinguished themselves in a hotly contested game of ball with the Northwestern's at Spinner's park. The visitors put up a good game, but the battery work of the Maroons was too much for them, Drewes striking out fifteen men. As the Northwestern's had to return on the 5:02 train the game closed at the end of the seventh inning, the score being 6 to 2, in favor of the Maroons. Do it again, boys.

The Soldiers' Reunion.

The Seventeenth Annual Reunion of the Lake County Soldiers and Sailors' association, which was held at Wauconda Thursday and Friday of last week, was a success in every way. Wauconda just simply outdid herself in trying to make it pleasant for the defenders of the "Stars and Stripes" and their friends. Thursday night was magnificent, a huge bonfire was built, around which the old soldiers seated themselves and told war stories and sang songs. After the exercises were over the ladies served coffee and hardtack.

The reunion was rendered celebrated by the distinguished presence of Mr. Lawler, the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic; Quartermaster-General Burst, General Tibbbs, Major Blodgett and others.

At 9 o'clock Friday morning the Wauconda band headed the procession of the boys as they marched to the grove, where the business meeting of the association was held. The report of the treasurer showed the finances in fine shape. The speakers during the afternoon were Lawler, Burst, Blodgett, and Mr. Orvis of Waukegan. Rev. MacGuffin, of Libertyville, made the opening prayer. The vocal music led by Rev. Money, was splendid, and added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. Little Miss Grace and Miss Alice Smith read; and both did splendidly. It was 4 o'clock before the audience reluctantly separated.

Mr. Vanderbilt has well named his new mansion, "The Breakers." It took lots of rocks to build it.

The Bannock Indians, strange to say, are quietly hunting and fishing, just as if there had been no "outbreak."

The number of people believed to have been murdered by Holmes is now up around twenty, and the returns are not all in.

The Pennsylvania justice of the peace must have had a dude in mind when he ruled that a calf was not necessarily a farm product.

The older generation of men and women can at least be thankful that while they were young courting was not done on a bike.

Hugh Talley told a girl at a dance near Columbia, S. C., that Talley Moore was a "kid." A duel was prevented by the sheriff. Talley one for the sheriff.

The laundress who starches a handkerchief no doubt thinks she is doing a good thing. The bicycle rider who thinks a "boiled shirt" is the proper caper for cycling is not much nearer right.

Robert C. McCabe, a Philadelphian, has memorized the whole of the bible and can recite it word for word. But what better off is Robert than the man who can repeat only the ten commandments?

Chili wants to borrow $20,000,000, and the Dallas, Texas, sport who is to manage the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight says, if the Chilean government will wait until that fight is pulled off, he will make the loan at a low rate of interest.

In some of the cantons of Switzerland, all the dead, rich as well as poor, are buried at public expense. Coffins and all other necessary articles are furnished on application to certain undertakers designated by the government. Everything connected with the interment is absolutely gratuitous, including the grave and the religious service. The graves follow each other in regular order, according to date of burial, in uniform rows, and the dead are all laid side by side, without distinction as to standing in life or religious belief.

The signal corps and the Oregon Mazamas who had expected to accomplish grand results this year in their heliographic work were greatly hindered by the forest fires. Stations had been made and signals were to pass from the highest peaks of the Cascade and Sierra ranges to the peaks in Colorado. Last year with a small glass Mount Hood communicated with Portland, sixty miles away, and messages were also sent from Mount Hood to Mount Adams, which is about the same distance. In California, with a clearer atmosphere, heliographing has been successful between Shasta and St. Helens, a distance of 192 miles.

Increased vigilance has been enjoined upon the revenue marine on the south Atlantic coast for a double purpose; in the first place to prevent filibustering expeditions for Cuba setting out from the ports of the United States, and in the second place to guard against the introduction of yellow fever from Cuba. After directing the officers of the marine, in addition to their regular duties under the customs and navigation laws, to pay strict attention to the enforcement of the neutrality laws, the treasury department directs the officers to send fishing smacks, or other vessels from foreign ports which may be found near the coast with or without the intention of making a port of the United States, and not having on board a bill of health, signed by the consular officer of the United States at the foreign port from which the vessel last sailed, to the nearest quarantine station, to report there to the medical officer in charge for his action.

A bloomer girl on a wheel came to grief in front of the Sun office in New York the other day. She attracted no special attention as she wheeled up Park row, until her pneumatic tire was punctured, and she jumped from her wheel. Then it was evident that her bloomers were of a material not much heavier than cheese cloth, and they looked as if they were home made. The girl was not more than 18 years old, and as a crowd of small boys gathered around her she looked as if she were very uncomfortable. Her tire was so seriously injured that the wheel would have to be trundled home. Her bloomer costume was not constructed for that kind of work. It was so thin as to be almost transparent. Her attention was called to this fact by several small boys. Miss Bloomers was in despair. She trundled her wheel to a drug store and rang for a messenger boy. After taking his name and number, she entrusted her wheel to him and told him to take it to a Brooklyn address. Then she sprinted for the bridge.

LABOR OUT IN FORCE.

THE HOLIDAY APPROPRIATELY OBSERVED.

Men of Prominence Address Workingmen in Various Cities of the Union—Parades and Gatherings Are the Largest on Record.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Although there was a split in the ranks of organized labor and two rival parades were formed, there was no hint of trouble and everybody was good-natured. Neither the Labor Congress nor the Building Trades Council can claim any advantage in the matter of the street parade. Each body turned out about 15,000 men, the marchers were splendidly arrayed, and both parties were memorable sights. A grand demonstration was given at the Auditorium in the evening. Keir Hardie and John Swinton were the speakers of the occasion, and an immense crowd was in the big theater to hear the famous socialist and author.

SENATOR VOORHEES TALKS.

Imprisonment of Debs Bitterly Denounced at Terre Haute.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 3.—Labor day was celebrated here with a parade in the morning and exercises and amusements at the fair grounds in the afternoon. There were 10,000 at the grounds, many of whom listened to the speeches of Senator Voorhees and Colonel McLean, ex-deputy commissioner of pensions. Senator Voorhees, referring to Debs' imprisonment, said: "A ranker, grosser and bitterer piece of injustice never blotted the page of our federal judiciary. I am the last person to be responsible for William A. Woods, because I opposed his confirmation by the Senate. I did so because he is a narrow man. He has plenty of ability, but he lacks the underlying principles of honesty." The senator advised his hearers that they must not violate the laws, but should elect men to make laws that would be acceptable to them. A letter from Debs was also read.

George Howard Speaks at Joliet, Ill.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 3.—Labor day was observed in this city and through Will county. Business and manufacturing of all kinds were suspended. In this city a grand celebration took place under the auspices of the Central Trade and Labor council. George W. Howard, general secretary of the American Industrial union, who served a three-months' jail sentence in this city for the part he took in the railway strike last year, spoke.

At Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 3.—The biggest Labor day demonstration that this city has ever known occurred here yesterday. Business houses were generally closed and the city was in holiday attire. A parade in which every labor union in the city took part marched through the principal streets in the morning. There were about 10,000 people in line.

At Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—Labor day was duly observed in this city. The weather was perfect. Two thousand union men paraded in the morning and in the afternoon several thousand people gathered at the state fair grounds and were addressed by President John McBride of the American Federation of Labor. Most of the business houses were closed during the afternoon.

At St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 3.—Beautiful weather contributed to the success of the Labor day celebration here. All the banks, exchanges, courts, and the city offices were closed and many retail stores gave their clerks a holiday. The labor organizations united in a parade of the principal streets at noon. Four thousand were in line.

At Boston.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 3.—Organized labor yesterday observed its holiday with its usual parade, and with almost innumerable sports and amusements. The spectacle of the day was the parade of the labor organizations of the city and vicinity, in which over 9,000 men participated.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

Young Arkansas Physician Kills His Mother and Himself.

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 3.—Dr. E. M. Remington, a prominent young physician who came here about eight months ago from Atlanta, Ga., and his mother were found dead in their residence on Whittington avenue yesterday morning. Their bodies were badly decomposed, and after an investigation it became apparent that it was a case of murder and suicide. The bodies had evidently lain in the building since Friday night last. It appears that Dr. Remington was in hard lines financially and being unable to provide for his widowed mother in that style of comfort that was his desire he made up his mind to end her existence as well as his own. He crept into her room after she had fallen asleep and crushed her skull with an ax. He then went into an adjoining room and stabbed himself three times in the left breast and severed the arteries in both wrists. The murderer and suicide left no word of explanation as to why he committed the terrible deed.

Speakers' Ill. Gives Way.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 3.—During the Labor-day exercises here, just after the speakers had finished their addresses, the stand on which they stood gave way. Thirty persons went down to the ground with a crash, and were soon struggling to get out of the broken timbers and boards. Those most seriously hurt are:

Doner, Miss Emma.

Garten, Miss Emma.

Garten, Miss Mary.

Others received bad bruises and had pieces of skin scratched off their bodies.

DR. FRAKER CAUGHT.

Notorious Insurance Swindler in the Clutches of the Law.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 3.—George Fraker, of Excelsior Springs, Mo., who was supposed to have been drowned in the Missouri river two years ago, was captured in the woods near Tower, Minn., Monday. Fraker's life was insured for $53,000 and the heirs brought suit in the Kansas courts to recover. The case went to the Supreme court and was one of the most famous insurance cases of the country. The insurance companies were defeated in the final decision, it being recorded last month. It was always maintained by the companies that Fraker was alive, but his whereabouts were unknown. Recently it became known in some way that Fraker was near Tower, where he was known under the alias of Schnell.

Attorney Robert T. Herrick and Deputy Sheriff Wilkinson of Topeka came here and organized a party to search for him. Fraker was found in the woods and his capture was effected by strategy. He was brought to Duluth and started with the officers for Topeka in the afternoon. He goes without a requisition. He has been living near Tower for six months. He admitted his identity, and said he did not leave home on purpose to defraud the companies, but that while he was near the Missouri river he fell in. He swam across the river and got on land. The next day he read in the papers that he had been drowned, and concluded to carry out the deception and allow his heirs to collect the insurance. A reward of $20,000 for Fraker's capture was offered some time ago by the insurance companies.

BY A RUNAWAY HORSE.

Several Persons Badly Hurt at Indianapolis, Ind.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—A runaway horse came dashing down Washington street, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the crowd had assembled on the sidewalks to witness the Labor-day parade, and created a panic along the entire length of the street. At Delaware street the frightened animal turned to the sidewalk, and, without a moment's warning, dashed into the crowd that stood on the pavement. There was a stampede of men, women and children for the court-house yard, but before they could reach a place of safety six persons were run down and more or less seriously injured, one receiving hurts that will prove fatal. The injured:

Aukenbrock, Herman, skull crushed by the horse's hoof; fatally injured.

Dennis, Allie, struck over the eye with the point of the shaft, producing concussion of the brain.

Patton, Reddy, cut on the head by a buggy wheel.

Swigert, Edward, knocked down and run over; leg broken.

Swigert, Gertrude, bruised about the body; carried away unconscious.

Walters, Mrs. Maria, knocked down and badly bruised about the head.

Several men grabbed the horse and succeeded in throwing him down on the pavement and thus prevented further injury.

INDICT THE MAYOR.

Chief Official of Spring Valley, Ill., in Trouble.

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 3.—Mayor Martin Delmargo of Spring Valley was indicted by the grand jury here yesterday, charged with giving aid and encouragement to the recent mob that drove the colored people from the city, by failure and refusal to perform his official duties. An indictment was also returned against fifteen other persons, who are charged with being active members of the mob and participating in the assaults upon the colored people. Other indictments charge Mayor Delmargo, Ald. Hicks, Ald. Riva and thirty-five other persons in Spring Valley and Seatonville with operating saloons on the Sunday of the riots and on other Sundays in violation of the state law.

Hinshaw's Trial to Begin.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—The trial of Rev. William E. Hinshaw, the young Methodist minister who is jail under indictment charged with the murder of his wife, will begin tomorrow morning in the Hendricks County circuit court, at Danville, Ind. Over two hundred witnesses have been subpoenaed and a special venire of 100 talesmen has been drawn from which to select the jury. Some of the best legal talent in the state is employed on each side. The town is greatly excited over the approaching trial and nearly every residence has been turned into a boarding house.

English View of German Celebrations.

London, Sept. 3.—In a leading article the Globe expresses the opinion that the German celebrations endanger the peace of Europe. The tone of the Berlin papers, says the Globe, has been offensive, and such as to needlessly wound the feelings of the French people. The emperor has allowed himself on more than one occasion recently to use language which is at least capable of being misunderstood. While the Globe does not believe that the emperor desires war, his utterances, it is said, are assuredly not such as further peace.

MADE FIERCE FIGHT.

Negro Murderer Takes Refuge on a House Top and Defies a Posse.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 3.—A tragedy closely followed by a desperate gun fight occurred at an early hour yesterday morning. Hill Carter assassinated his wife, Eliza Carter, on the street. The Carters are colored. They separated a few years ago, since which time Carter has made frequent attempts to kill his wife. Knowing that Mrs. Carter was to pass a certain place, he concealed himself in an alley and rushed out upon her as she passed and began firing. One shot passed through her abdomen, inflicting a mortal wound. Their son, Gus Carter, aged 22, heard the shots and rushed to the defense of his mother. Carter ran and the son fired three shots at him as he fled. The son then gave the alarm and soon a posse surrounded the house in which Carter roomed and to which he had gone. The building is a two-story brick building. After a search Carter was seen upon the roof. He was heavily armed and defied arrest. Soon a battle began, in which thirty shots were fired. Finally Deputy Sheriff Bryant shot Carter in the face with a double-barreled shotgun, blinding him so that when two officers ascended to the roof, the negro surrendered. In the fusillade Carter was shot twice, but neither wound is fatal. The colored people threaten to lynch him. Carter has served a term in the penitentiary for attempting to kill Chief of Police Louis Hahn.

VETERANS REVIEWED.

Germany's Emperor Says Kind Words to Americans.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Kaiser Wilhelm reviewed the German-American war veterans, including several fresh arrivals from Chicago, on the Tempelhof field yesterday. The emperor said he was gratified that the veterans had not forgotten their old home. He remained on the ground fifteen minutes. After the parade was finished, the King of Wurttemberg rode up and saluted the veterans from America. Many officers of high rank saluted the Americans and had Mr. Schlenker and others presented to them. The emperor and empress were cheered enthusiastically along the route from the palace to the parade ground. After saluting the Americans the emperor and empress reviewed the entire bodyguard and at the conclusion the emperor took his place at the head of the colors and led the regiments back to the city. He was received with enthusiastic ovations along the entire route, which was thronged with people who pelted him with flowers.

A COSTLY WRECK.

Santa Fe Railroad Loses Many Thousand Dollars.

Wenona, Ill., Sept. 3.—The Santa Fe railroad, which runs three miles south of this city, had a big wreck yesterday, which resulted in thirteen cars being piled up. It was caused by a broken flange on the third box cars from the engine. The cars were laden with household goods, baled hay, lead, wax, etc. Those that contained the lead went to pieces as if they were mere cigar boxes. Two wrecking crews went immediately to work, and by 5 o'clock the track, which was torn up for a distance of 150 yards, was relaid and traffic resumed. A brakeman who was standing on top of the train at the time of the accident had his left leg dislocated. The loss to the company will amount to several thousand dollars.

Public Health Endangered.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—The state board of health has been asked to suppress the epidemic of diphtheria at Sharpsburg. Two new cases were discovered, making twenty in all. For three years there has been a deadlock between the council and board of health over the appointment of an inspector. As a consequence there were no health regulations in the borough. When diphtheria broke out it became epidemic because the authorities would not act. The deadlock was broken last night and health offices were opened in the town hall.

Amateur Blows Open a Safe.

Sharon, Pa., Sept. 3.—Two residences were wrecked and two people injured in a peculiar manner. The combination of William Goldberg's safe failed to work, and he placed a large quantity of dynamite in an aperture made in the safe and set it off. The safe was shattered to fragments and $5,000 in notes and securities, together with $500 in cash, was destroyed. The safe door, in descending, crashed through Joseph Hockey's house from roof to cellar, over a quarter of a mile distant. Goldberg and a workman were painfully injured, but will recover.

Railroad Bridges Out.

Mexico City, Sept. 3.—All rail communication with American cities in the Mississippi valley and eastward has stopped owing to extensive washouts and the destruction of bridges on the Mexican National railway. The wires are also down, but it is hoped to re-establish communication tomorrow. This is the first time for many years that traffic has been seriously interrupted. Twelve bridges are down.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

SEVEN DAYS DOINGS IN THE PRAIRIE STATE.

Minor Events Condensed for Our Readers—Latest Telegraphic Brevities from All Sections—Political, Religious, Social and Criminal.

Hog cholera prevails at Wapela, De Witt county.

Mayor Skinner of Princeton has issued a proclamation warning bicycle riders to keep off the sidewalk.

Charles Johnson fell from the top of an ice house at Peoria and broke his neck, death resulting instantly. Johnson came from Kansas City.

Toledo.—Allen Paul and Ida Eveland have just been jailed on an indictment for kicking and choking a child to death. Mary Paul, who is not expected to live, is under guard for the same offense. The indictment was found last week.

Harvest home was celebrated at Heyworth, the people flocking in from the country and hundreds from Normal, Clinton and other adjacent town to celebrate. The demonstration was in the nature of a rejoicing over the development of the natural gas supply of that vicinity. Addresses were delivered by Col. H. G. Reeves and R. S. Russell of Bloomington.

County Clerk Charles Rudel of Peoria has begun suit against Duncan McPhail of Peoria and Benjamin Cover of Limestone, both police magistrates, for disobeying the law requiring marriage licenses to be returned to the county clerk within thirty days after they are issued. The cases will be fought hard. The county clerk is determined and says the law must be obeyed.

The East Moline Company has struck a flow of artesian water of strongly magnetic properties at a depth of 980 feet. The tubing, pumps, and drill are all highly charged with magnetism, suspending large quantities of iron, nails, etc., when brought near them. The well will be deepened to 1,350 feet. Samples of the water, which is believed to have rare medicinal qualities, have been sent to Chicago for analysis.

George Dennis died at St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet last week from wounds inflicted during a quarrel last June with Thomas Duncan. Duncan and Dennis worked on the drainage channel near Lockport. The weapon used was a revolver. Duncan has been confined in the jail since the shooting under $1,000 bond to await the action of the next grand jury. The prisoner declares the shooting was accidental, but by-standers declare it a premeditated murder.

Decatur.—A state warrant has been issued for the arrest of Charles M. Lane, a Decatur attorney and reformer, on a charge of criminal libel. He printed, signed and caused to be distributed a circular charging Mayor Conklin, Marshal Mason, State's Attorney Mills and Sheriff Nicholson with being perjured scoundrels and with having sold out to the gamblers. Lane is the party who was put out of the race track grounds for taking names of citizens who were buying pool tickets.

Streator.—Eddie Myer, one of the principals in the recent Boyle-Myer fight, John Hoobler and Arthur Wolf, his backers, and Edward St. Clair were arrested here upon state warrants sworn out by Rev. J. Stewart, of the Park Street Congregational Church, who is the head of the local Civic Federation. The charge was instigating and promoting a prize fight. They were brought before Justice Ryan and were dismissed for want of sufficient evidence. Mr. Stewart says he will now take the case before the October grand jury.

Alton.—Timothy Driscoll, a laborer of this city, while digging for a sewer at St. Joseph's Hospital, came upon the skeleton of a mastodon. The ditch was being dug at the depth of fifteen feet, on the brow of a hill that had previously been graded off thirty feet for building purposes and the workmen came squarely upon the head. The remains recovered include several monster teeth, one molar weighing twenty-five pounds, and many bones of the head and neck. The trunk lies in the clay bank and can be easily dug out. A complete skeleton of the kind was once found in that locality by the late Prof. McAdams.

Rockford.—At 4 o'clock the other morning, during the electrical storm, a bolt of lightning struck the American Heating company's and the Rockford Galvanizing company's buildings, occupied by Spengler Bros. The building was damaged to the extent of $1,000 and was owned by Robert Tinker. There was no insurance. Spengler Bros. are the heaviest losers, their loss being $2,000, with $1,600 insurance, divided between the Farmers' of Pennsylvania and the Merchants' of New York. The other companies are not seriously damaged. About the same time the barn, four miles east of the city, owned by Will and Richard Tigswell, valued at $2,500, was struck, and burned to the ground. In it they lost two horses, 1,500 bushels of shelled corn, forty tons of hay and a large amount of farm machinery.

The Winnebago county fair opened at Rockford Monday.

Miss Pearl Hayden of Sullivan died as the result of eating ice cream in competition with another young woman.

John Skinner, a prominent business man, died at Bloomington, aged 30, from malarial fever, while the funeral of his father, David Skinner, a venerable resident of Normal, who died on Tuesday, was being held. He leaves a wife and two children.

William Hiatt, a Spring farmer, in a delirium from fever, jumped out of bed and, seizing his wife, dragged her outside and attempted to throw her down a well. Failing, he jumped in the well himself, and though rescued by his wife, cannot recover.

Mrs. Edwards came into Metzger & Co.'s drug store at Arthur with a large buggy whip and began to flail Mr. Metzger unmercifully. Her explanation was that Mr. Metzger had insulted her at a circus Tuesday night. Her action is not generally approved, however; as there seems to be another side to the story.

The creditors of the defunct firm of Hearst, Dunn & Co., which made a voluntary assignment in the Peoria county court a few days ago, met Friday. The First National Bank of Peoria, the largest creditor, offered 20 cents on the dollar for all outstanding accounts, but the other creditors held out for 25 cents. They did not come to terms.

Springfield.—The attorney-general is receiving many inquiries as to the scope of the "flag laws" passed by the thirty-ninth general assembly, and it is likely that he will soon give an opinion as to whether or not they are valid and of binding force as to private and parochial schools. In reply to an inquiry Assistant Attorney-General Newell said: "Boards of directors of public schools cannot make a contract binding upon the school district for the adoption and use of a particular series of school books excepting at a regular or special meeting of the board for that purpose."

Jacksonville.—The Ministers' and Deacons' Association of the Colored Baptist churches of the state closed their annual meeting last week. The first paper was by Rev. J. E. Jackson, of Jerseyville, on "The Relations of Created Beings," and was a discussion of the theory of evolution and its dependent doctrines. Rev. R. Debaptist, D. D., of Chicago, the Nestor and head of the body, read by request a paper on the question, "What is Meant by the Expression in the New Testament, 'the Kingdom of Heaven?'" Rev. L. M. Leonard read a paper on "Open Communion is Open Rebellion Against God." George Mason, a student of Chicago University, was examined for holy orders.

Lemont.—The Sag Bridge Roman Catholics are indignant over the report of Mayor McCarthy's winnings at their church fair, not because of their regard for McCarthy's feelings, but because it was not desirable that the fact of their fortune wheel at a function of that kind be so widely known. It is a familiar feature of the fair in small towns, but never before has the resources of one been so severely taxed. Mayor McCarthy is a winner in most things he undertakes, all games of chance not excepted. He went to the fair with many others for the purpose of contributing to the net proceeds, but instead of that came away many dollars ahead. Just how much is not known, but the resources of the wheel were so crippled that it suspended operations for the evening and may be abolished altogether.

Monticello.—The old settlers and early pioneers of Piatt county and central Illinois held their tenth annual reunion at the Piatt county fair grounds last week. The welcoming address was made by Maj. Charles F. Mansfield, eldest son of Gen. John L. Mansfield, after whom the city of Mansfield, Piatt county, was named. The response was made by Philip Dobson of Cerro Gordo. W. E. Lodge delivered the annual memorial address and Judge William E. Nelson of Macon county was the orator of the day. Nathan Haneline told of his trips to Chicago in 1830 when the Indians were there. He helped haul the brick that built the first church erected in Chicago. Among the speakers was Allan Sadorus of Champaign county, whose father built the first house in Champaign county, in 1824. His father also helped Commodore Perry to prepare his fleet when he gained the famous victory on Lake Erie. The reunion was held at the old log cabin, which has been preserved and moved to the fair grounds. This was the first residence for white men ever erected in Piatt county. It was built by a Mr. Haworth seventy-three years ago. The Pottawattamie and Kickapoo Indians were here then and assisted Mr. Haworth in putting up his residence. Among the oldest settlers present were Mrs. Nancy Ingram and Uncle Nathan Haneline, who came here in 1822, seventy-three years ago; William and John Pratt and Mrs. Ann Stickle, who came in 1829; Joseph Howell, who came in 1828. These are divided into three classes, the Snowbirds, who came to Illinois before the great snow in 1830, the pioneers who have lived here forty years and old settlers who have lived in Illinois twenty-five years.

HOW TO TRAVEL FREE

IT IS EASY, SAYS A GLOBE TROTTER WHO HAS BEEN THERE.

His Account of a 50,000 Mile Journey Without Money, Passes or Influence. Riding on Brake Beams and the Tops of Coaches—How He Worked It.

The "night shift" was waiting to relieve the "day gang," and as these veteran railroaders loitered about the Lake Shore yard office at Forty-third street they fell a-telling stories.

They drifted around to the subject of "dead heading," and some one spoke of starting penniless to encircle the globe. One after another gave his opinion of the practice. At last an old "switchie" took his turn. He said:

"If I had some one to back me and there was anything in it, I believe I could make a trip of 100,000 miles, never miss a meal or handle a cent of money, complete the distance inside of a year and get back with clothes as good as, if not better, than I have now, and I wouldn't work a day."

This brought up a lot of argument, but the man continued:

"How much worse would that be than the trip my partner and myself have just made? A year ago last May the coal strike down in West Virginia put us on 'the hog train,' and since then I can prove that we have traveled a distance that altogether would make over two trips around the world. Of course most of the trip has been on land and over railroads, but we have found water just as easy when we wanted to travel that way."

"We started for China to go railroad-ing out there, and got as far as Liverpool on the trip when Jack backed out and we 'stowed away' and came back. On the trip over a captain on one of the cattleboats carried us on a card, but the man coming back didn't recognize letters and we had to 'make a speak.' When we landed, we hadn't a cent, but that cut little figure. We had to have work, and we had to go to some place where business was good, so we made a start. We got out of New York over the New York Central to Buffalo and the Lake Shore from there to Chicago. The big strike had just started when we got here, and as we didn't want any 'scab' job we didn't stay here long. We went south to New Orleans, and from there to the Pacific coast over the Southern Pacific and came back east over the Santa Fe."

"The Santa Fe was the only tough streak we struck. Why, the men out there have got the 'marble heart' in its worst form. They won't carry you in a caboose or on a passenger train without a pass, and that the officials won't give you, so you have to watch your chance and 'ride the rods.' I am not much stuck on riding underneath a train. It's liable to induce nervous prostration, but if it has to be done to get over a road I can do it."

"On the new big box cars the truss rods hang a foot and a half below the body of the car and it's an easy matter to grab the slide iron of the door and swing yourself under. If you can't fix yourself comfortably on the rods, why, you can work along toward the end of the car and lower yourself down to the brake beam."

"How do you get on top of a passenger train?" he was asked.

"That's easy enough. Just watch your chance and when the train is about ready to leave pick two cars—the baggage cars are the best, because no one is watching them generally—stand up on the brake wheel and you can reach the top of the cars. If you have strength enough it is an easy matter to swing yourself up, and, once up there, you can, if you keep quiet, ride till daylight. You have to lie down flat to hang on, but that is not bad, because if you sat up or stood up the cinders from the engine would cut your face and hands to pieces. They come back across the top of the cars like birdshot out of a gun, and with almost as much force."

"If you have nerve enough you can stow yourself away on the truck of a passenger car so no one can see you. I have done it, and rode over 200 miles before I was caught. For that job you want a little board about six inches wide and a foot long, with two cleats in the middle on one side. Then find your four wheel truck—a six wheeler won't do because you can't get inside—get on the side of the track opposite the depot, and as she starts to pull out grab a truss rod with one hand and a corner of the truck with the other and slide in on the brake beam feet first."

"Bolted to the middle of the brake beam and reaching from front to rear is the brake rod. Put your 'ticket' (the little board) on the brake rod, the cleats will hold it in place, put your feet on the back brake beam and your back against the center beam of the truck, and you can ride almost as comfortably as you could 'up stairs' in a seat. You are in behind the wheels, and it will take a pretty sharp eye to find you if you keep quiet. Oh, I tell you a man can do a heap of traveling on nothing if he is a hustler."

"Since we started my partner and I have been in every state and territory of the United States, and I figured it up last night, and we have traveled over 50,000 miles, and if there has been any one time that we have had over a dollar I don't recollect it."

"How did you get food on that kind of a trip?" asked a listener.

"Sometimes the boys were good and would 'throw a meal into you,' but if they didn't, why there was nothing else to do only to 'hit a back door' and try to 'batter out' a 'lump.' It sounds tough, but I've had it to do several times in the last year. I tell you when I get to work steady I'm going to sink my dough, and when I get enough I'll go to some new country and get me a piece of land. Railroading is getting to be too much of a 'hot foot' job for me."

—Chicago Record.

HE WAS A BAD SHOT.

Yet Every Time He Fired the Bullseye Gong Rang.

A good story on the late General Dan McCauley of Indiana is related by Judge John N. Scott, now of Port Townsend, Wash.

On Judge Scott's last visit to Washington he, with his old college chum, General Joe Fullerton, and General McCauley, went on a trip, up the river to one of the clubhouses.

The two former gentlemen wanted to indulge in some target practice. General McCauley protested vigorously.

Being pressed for his reason, he said the fact was he was such a bad shot he had made up his mind to quit it last time he tried it. He had never hit the bullseye in his life, he confided to them, and he was a little ashamed of it.

After some little trouble they convinced him that they were both worse shots than he, and they'd shoot for "place."

First the judge shot and made a fair showing, and then General Fullerton, making a better, and last General McCauley, who hit the bullseye.

No one was more astonished than the general himself. He began to be interested. They took another turn. Again he hit the bullseye, and yet again and again, and the ringing of the gong was music in his ear.

The others declared they'd shoot no more with him and threatened dire revenge for his deception.

In vain he assured them that it was the first time in his life he had hit the bullseye. He treated liberally, and they all enjoyed the jaunt, particularly the boy who tended the target, who was several dollars wealthier for their visit. They came back to town, dined at General McCauley's expense, and he declared he had made the hit of his life.

"Dan never suspected us," laughed the judge, "of having bribed that target boy to ring the gong every time he shot. And he couldn't see the trick in it because his bullets never even touched the target, not one!"—Washington Star.

She Was Frightened.

The first railway ride is naturally a somewhat exciting experience. A correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald says that he was taking a trip through the hilly part of Alabama, where the road-bed is intersected by trestles from 50 to 175 feet high, and from 50 yards to half a mile in length. At a small station in the pine woods an old gentleman, carrying a carpet bag and accompanied by an old lady, evidently his wife, boarded the train.

They took the first seat, the old lady sitting next the window. It was apparent from their expression of curiosity mingled with anxiety that this was their first railway journey. The train started, and they both looked eagerly from the window, and as the speed increased a look of keenest anxiety gathered on the old lady's face. She grasped her husband's arm and said in a voice plainly audible to those about her:

"Joel, we be goin' awful quick. I know 'tain't safe."

A few minutes later the train ran onto one of the long trestles. With a little shriek of terror the old lady sprang to her feet and seized the back of the seat in front of her. There she stood, trembling from head to foot, staring from the window.

Meantime the train sped onward and was soon once more on solid earth. The old lady was quick to note the change. Her features relaxed, and she sank into her seat with the fervent exclamation:

"Thank goodness, she's lit again!"

An Exasperated Lawyer.

"I've got a typewriter," began an exasperated man. "She is very good at copying, spells better than usual and is, in some respects, more satisfactory than any I ever had. She is one of those women's women, however, who always have a string of females running after them at all hours. I spoke to her about it, and she looked at me with a hurt expression and said, 'Oh, Mr. L., how unfair!' So I stood it awhile longer and said something else. She gave me a glad-I'm-not-your-wife look and sniffed a little. Still the troop comes and goes. Why doesn't the new woman learn that business hours mean business hours and do the social act outside? I would gladly give her an hour every now and then rather than to go into my own office and find a set of idle girls. I can face a jury without flinching, but I wilt like a gourd vine before the senseless stares and giggles of a lot of half grown girls."

Its Value Recognized by Physicians.

As a rule I am opposed to proprietary medicines. Still I value a good one, especially when such is the source of relief from pain. Coxey's pocket was picked while he was making a speech the other day. This is the only free silver issue on record.

In a recent letter to the manufacturers Mr. W. F. Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, Rushford, N. Y., says: "It may be a pleasure to you to know the high esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines are held by the people of your own state, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years since, and before leaving home wrote, asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds and croup; Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learned that they are articles of great worth and merit, and unequaled by any other. They are for sale here by A. L. Waller, druggist.

It would be interesting to get Campbell and Coxey together in a Foraker lot of Republicans and watch them dodge questions.

THE LIBERTYVILLE RUINS.

The Business Portion of the Town Almost a Solid Mass of Ruins.

The sun set over the peaceful village of Libertyville last Friday evening, its inhabitants little dreaming that when it would rise the next morning it would do so over the smouldering ruins of the business portion of the village, but such was the case. The accumulations of nearly a lifetime of honest toil and saving were swept away in a few hours by that ever-hungry fiend—fire.

At midnight the sleeping people were awakened by the terrible cry of fire. In a short time the quiet streets were filled with people, hurrying to a common goal. The Schanck building, a frame structure standing in the midst of the business portion of the town, and occupied by Schanck's hardware store and The Independent office, was on fire. One fact flashed through the minds of the hurrying people, and it was one that always strikes terror to the people living in small villages in time of fire, and that is: "There is absolutely no fire protection." Libertyville had not so much as a public well or bucket brigade. Fortunately no wind was blowing, or the village would undoubtedly have been wiped off the earth.

Libertyville's business portion was built up almost entirely of frame buildings; most of them had stood for years, and burned as rapidly as paper, the fire spreading with lightning-like ing debris and begin life again at the bottom of the ladder, with nothing but their indomitable will and the confidence of their friends to help them along. Money they have none. Hope and resolution they have enough and to spare.

The men who carried insurance consider themselves more than fortunate. The insurance men had raised their rates recently, and people felt they could not afford to carry any at the high rates.

The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin, and started in the basement of Schanck's building.

THE LOSS:

G. H. Schanck & Son, loss on buildings and stock $30,000; insurance, $2,000 on stock.

H. C. Paddock, printing office, $3,000; no insurance.

H. B. Eger, hardware, building and stock, $3,000; insurance, $1,200.

Seavey & Austin, meat market, building and stock $4,000; no insurance.

Joffey & Joffey, stock of clothing, $500; was mostly saved, and is covered by insurance.

Proctor Bros., Commercial hotel building and barns, $3,500; insurance, $2,000.

Geo. Mason, hotel furniture and oats, $400; covered by insurance.

Photographer Lewis and Parkhurst & Dymond, two buildings blown up by dynamite, $300; no insurance.

M. E. church, damaged by the effects of the explosion and fire, $200; covered by insurance.

Triggs & Taylor, grocery, building and stock, $5,000; insurance, $3,000.

Acme Camp, M. W. A., $150.

rapidity. Schanck's building stood on the corner of Sprague street and Milwaukee avenue. Across the street stood the building of Triggs & Taylor, dealers in general merchandise. It quickly succumbed to its fiery foe, and for a while it seemed as though Dr. Knight's brick block next to it on the south would go up also; but luckily, the wind veered to the north at just the critical moment, the building being saved, but was damaged to the extent of about $100, and the occupants of the building suffered severe loss from breakage and other damage in removing their stock.

The fire spread, practically unchecked, to the north and east until the M. E. church was reached on the north and Mr. Schanck's residence on the east. Heroic work of the bucket brigade stopped the fire on the east, and dynamite was used to blow up two buildings on the north line of the fire. This measure succeeded in stopping the fire, although it was a rather desperate means. The windows of the church were smashed in, and the buildings across the street suffered severely from the explosion.

While the fire was raging the streets were in a state of chaos impossible to describe. Stores were hurled from second-story windows; everything heard of and unheard of, that a panic-stricken populace will do was done at Libertyville that night. The women worked also, and their work was just as effective. There was no order; no system; everything was done without forethought or afterthought either, for that matter, and the only wonder is that there is a building left standing east of Milwaukee avenue. Along the west side of Milwaukee avenue the damage is principally through the breaking of plate glass windows by the heat.

The postoffice was located in one of the burned buildings, and Saturday people were drawing their mail from a temporary office in the barber shop across the way. Part of the mail boxes were saved and the broken remnant was perched upon a couple of soap boxes—not aesthetic, but practical.

The most unfortunate part of the disaster is the lack of insurance. Hardly anybody carried any worth speaking of, and there are many men in Libertyville to-day who have turned into the shady side of life, with families depending on them for bread, who will have to clear away the smok-

Dr. J. L. Taylor, medical instruments and library, $200; no insurance. J. E. Saunier, wagon shop, $300; no insurance.

Matt Pester, blacksmith shop and tools, $500; no insurance.

W. C. Triggs, shoemaker, building and stock, $2,750; no insurance.

Fred Croker, tailor, household furniture, $500; no insurance.

Dr. Knight's, brick block, damaged to the amount of $300; covered by insurance.

F. B. Lovell, druggist, damage to stock in removing, $500; covered by insurance.

F. C. Smith & Son, general merchandise, damage to stock in removing, $500; covered by insurance.

Dr. C. R. Galloway, library and instruments, $100.

Dr. E. H. Smith, dentist, $150; no insurance.

Special credit is due to Frank Protine for the prompt organizing of a bucket brigade, and thus checking the spread of the fire on the south; and to J. B. Ayers, who checked the fire on the north by blowing up two adjoining buildings with fifteen pounds of dynamite.

Gordon G. Schanck had a narrow escape. He was carrying out fixtures, etc., from the doomed postoffice building when he was overcome by the smoke. He was rescued just in the nick of time.

The people of Libertyville are a good deal like the girl who starts in to satisfy her appetite by eating her dessert and winding up with soup. They have nearly finished an expensive electric light plant and spent immense sums on roads, but no thought have they given to fire protection.

They are now going to establish fire limits, and like Chicago, in 1871, we expect to see this sad blow turn out to Libertyville's gain. Her citizens are full of grit, and now is the time to show it.

Schanck & Son are gentlemen of the highest integrity and unlimited credit and will lose no time in rebuilding.

Mr. Paddock, through the burning of the Independent office, had the savings of twenty-five years swept away in a few hours, but he has too much grit to cry over spilt milk, and has already made arrangements to put in a new plant, and until it is put in shape The Independent will be issued from the office of the Waukegan Register. He has saved a copy of his subscription list.

A REMARKABLE RIDER.

E. C. Bald, Who Holds the World's Competition Bicycle Record of 1:58 1-5.

E. C. Bald, the star rider of the Columbia racing team, has shown far greater speed and racing ability than any other man during the present season, and has so far distanced all competitors in climbing to the top of the cycling ladder that it will be almost impossible for anyone to approach him. He is the only man that has ever lowered the world's competition record for a mile twice within four months, and three times within a year, and won eighteen of twenty-six one mile scratch events in which he has started, all in the remarkable average time of under 2:10.

It takes a good heart in addition to speed to push a wheel to victory, and Bald is a man who wins his races by conscientious work from start to finish. Being so continually pitted against the fastest men never seems to alter his determination to win, but gives him additional strength to pull out ahead on almost every occasion.

It is to be regretted that at the recent Chicago races, when he again lowered the one-mile competition record to 1:58 1-5, the intermediate distances were not recorded, as undoubtedly every fractional distance mark was lowered. His remarkable spurt at the finish has caused him to be dubbed the "Cannon Ball," and it is accompanied by a terrific wiggle that only the staunchest of machines can withstand.

Bald is held in high esteem by wheelmen on and off the track, and his gentlemanly bearing, agreeable manners and wonderful speed win for him not only many prizes, but a host of friends wherever he goes.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"THE CHIEFTAIN" SUBJECT OF DISCOURSE.

The Golden Text: "The Chiefest Among Ten Thousand"—Canticles, Chapter V, Verse 10—Jesus Christ Is Chief of Heaven.

THE MOST CONSPICUOUS character of history steps out upon the platform. The finger which, diamonded with light, pointed down to him from the Bethlehem sky, was only a ratification of the finger of prophecy, the finger of genealogy, the finger of chronology, the finger of events—all five fingers pointing in one direction. Christ is the overtopping figure of all time. He is the "vox humana" in all music, the gracefulest line in all sculpture, the most exquisite mingling of lights and shades in all painting, the acme of all climaxes, the dome of all cathedral grandeur, and the peroration of all language.

The Greek alphabet is made up of twenty-four letters, and when Christ compared himself to the first letter and the last letter, the Alpha and the Omega, he appropriated to himself all the splendors that you can spell out either with those two letters or all the letters between them: "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end."

What does that Scripture mean which says of Christ, "He that cometh from above is above all?" It means after you have piled up all Alpine and Himalayan altitudes, the glory of Christ would have to spread its wings and descend a thousand leagues to touch those summits. Pelson, a high mountain of Thessaly; Ossa, a high mountain; and Olympus, a high mountain; but mythology tells us when the giants warred against the gods they piled up these three mountains, and from the top of them proposed to scale the heavens; but the height was not great enough, and there was a complete failure. And after all the giants—Isaiah and Paul, prophetic and apostolic giants; Raphael and Michael Angelo, artistic giants; cherubim and seraphim and archangel, celestial giants—have failed to climb to the top of Christ's glory they might all unite in the words of Paul, and cry out, "Above all! Above all!" But Solomon in his text prefers to call Christ "The Chieftain," and so today I hail him.

First, Christ must be chief in our preaching. There are so many books on homiletics scattered through the country that all laymen, as well as all clergymen, have made up their minds what sermons ought to be. That sermon is the most effectual which most pointedly puts forth Christ as the pardon of all sin and the correction of all evil—individual, social, political, national. There is no reason why we should ring the endless changes on a few phrases. There are those who think that if an exhortation or a discourse have frequent mention of justification, sanctification, covenant of works and covenant of grace, therefore it must be profoundly evangelical, while they are suspicious of a discourse which presents the same truth, but under different phraseology. Now, I say there is nothing in all the opulent realm of Anglo-Saxonism, of all the word treasures that we inherited from the Latin and the Greek and the Indo-European, but we have a right to marshal it in religious discussion. Christ sets the example. His illustrations were from the grass, the flowers, the barn-yard fowl, the crystals of salt, as well as from the seas and the stars; and we do not propose in our Sunday-school teaching and in our pulpit address to be put on the limits.

I know that there is a great deal said in our day against words, as though they were nothing. They may be misused, but they have an imperial power. They are the bridge between soul and soul, between Almighty God and the human race. What did God write upon the tables of stone? Words. What did Christ utter on Mount Olivet? Words. Out of what did Christ strike the spark for the illumination of the universe? Out of words. "Let there be light," and light was. Of course, thought is the cargo, and words are only the ship; but how fast would your cargo get on without the ship? What you need, my friends, in all your work in the Sabbath-school class, in your reformatory institutions, and what we all need, is to enlarge our vocabulary when we come to speak about God and Christ and heaven. We ride a few old words to death, when there is such illimitable source. Shakespeare employed 15,000 different words for dramatic purposes, Milton employed 8,000 different words for poetic purposes, Rufus Choate employed over 11,000 different words for legal purposes, but the most of us have less than 1,000 words that we can manage, and that makes us so stupid.

When we come to set forth the love of Christ we are going to take the tenderest phraseology wherever we find it, and if it has never been used in that direction before all the more shall we use it. When we come to speak of the glory of Christ the Conqueror, we are going to draw our smiles from triumphal arch and oratorio and everything grand and stupendous. The French navy have eighteen flags by which they give signal, but those eighteen flags they can put into sixty-six different combinations. And I have to tell you that these standards of the cross may be lifted into combinations infinite and varieties everlasting. And let me say to these young men who come from the theological seminaries into our services, and are, after awhile, going to preach Jesus Christ: You will have the largest liberty and unlimited resource. You only have to present Christ in your own way.

Brighter than the light, fresher than the fountains, deeper than the seas, are all these gospel themes. Song has no melody, flowers no sweetness, sunset sky no color, compared with these glorious themes. These harvests of grace spring up quicker than we can sickle them. Kindling pulpits with their fire and producing revolutions with their power, lighting up dying beds with their glory, they are the sweetest thought for the poet, and they are the most thrilling illustration for the orator, and they offer the most intense scene for the artist, and they are to the ambassador of the sky all enthusiasm; complete pardon for direst guilt; sweetest comfort for ghastliest agony; brightest hope for grimmest death; grandest resurrection for darkest sepulchre. Oh, what a gospel to preach! Christ the Chief! His birth, his suffering, His miracles, His sweat, His tears, His blood, His atonement, His intercession—what glorious themes! Do we exercise faith? Christ is its object. Do we have love? It fastens on Jesus. Have we a fondness for the church? It is because Christ died for it. Have we a hope of heaven? It is because Jesus went there, the herald and the forerunner. The royal robe of Demetrius was so costly, so beautiful, that after he had put it off no one ever dared to put it on. But this robe of Christ, richer than that, the poorest and the weakest and the worst may wear. "Where sin abounded, grace may much more abound."

"Oh, my sins, my sins!" said Martin Luther to Staupitz, "my sins, my sins!" The fact is that the brawny German student had found a Latin bible that made him quake, and nothing else ever did make him quake; and when he found how, through Christ, he was pardoned and saved he wrote to a friend, saying: "Come over and join us great and awful sinners, saved by the grace of God. You seem to be only a slender sinner, and you don't much extol the mercy of God; but we that have been such very awful sinners praise His grace the more now that we have been redeemed." Can it be that you are so desperately egotistical that you feel yourself in first-rate spiritual trim, and that from the root of the hair to the tip of the toe you are scarless and immaculate? What you need is a looking-glass, and here it is in the Bible. Poor and wretched and miserable and blind and naked from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot, full of wounds and putrifying sores. No health in us. And then take the fact that Christ gathered up all the notes against us and paid them, and then offered us the receipt! And how much we need him in our sorrows! We are independent of circumstances if we have His grace. Why, He made Paul sing in the dungeon, and under that grace St. John from desolate Patmos heard the blast of the apocalyptic trumpets. After all other candles have been snuffed out, this is the light that gets brighter and brighter unto the perfect day; and after, under the hard hoofs of calamity, all the pools of worldly enjoyment have been trampled into deep mire, at the foot of the eternal rock, the Christian, from the cups of granite, lily-rimmed, puts out the thirst of his soul.

Again I remark that Christ is chief in dying alleviations. I have not any sympathy with the morbidity abroad about our demise. The Emperor of Constantinople arranged that on the day of his coronation the stone mason should come and consult him about the tombstone that after awhile he would need. And there are men who are monomaniacal on the subject of departure from this life by death, and the more they think of it the less they are prepared to go. This is an unmanliness not worthy of you, not worthy of me.

Saladin, the greatest conqueror of his day, while dying, ordered that the tunic he had on him be carried after his death on his spear at the head of his army, and then the soldier, ever and anon, should stop and say: "Behold all that is left of Saladin, the emperor and conqueror! Of all the states he conquered, of all the wealth he accumulated, nothing did he retain but this shroud." I have no sympathy with such behavior, or such absurd demonstration, or with much that we hear uttered in regard to departure from this life to the next. There is a commonsensical idea on this subject that you need to consider—there are only two styles of departure. A thousand feet underground, by light of torch, toiling in a miner's shaft, a ledge of rock may fall upon us, and we may die a miner's death. Far out at sea, falling from the slippery ratlines and broken on the billiards, we may die a sailor's death. On mission of mercy in hospital, amid broken bones and reeking leprosy and raging fevers, we may die a philanthropist's death. On the field of battle, serving God and our country, slugs through the heart, the gun carriage may roll over us, and we may die a patriot's death. But, after all, there are only two styles of departure—the death of the righteous and the death of the wicked—and we all want to die the former.

God grant that when that hour comes you may be at home. You want the hand of your kindred in your hand. You want your children to surround you. You want the light on your pillow from eyes that have long reflected your love. You want your room still. You do not want any curious strangers standing around watching you. You want your kindred from afar to hear your last prayer. I think that is the wish of all of us. But is that all? Can earthly friends hold us up when the billows of death come up to the girdle? Can human voice charm open heaven's gate? Can human hand pilot us through the narrows of death into heaven's harbor? Can any earthly friendship shield us from the arrows of death, and in the hour when Satan shall practice upon us his infernal archery? No, no, no, no! Alas! poor soul, if that is all. Better die in the wilderness, far from tree shadow and from fountain, alone, vultures circling through the air waiting for our body, unknown to men, and to have no burial, if only Christ could say through the solitudes, "I will never leave thee, I will never forsake thee." From that pillow of stone a ladder would soar heavenward, angels coming and going; and across the solitude and the barrenness would come the sweet notes of heavenly minstrelsy.

Gordon Hall, far from home, dying in door of a heathen temple, said: "Glorious to thee, O God!" What did dying Wilberforce say to his wife? "Come and sit beside me, and let us talk of heaven. I never knew what happiness was until I found Christ." What did dying Hannah More say? "To go to heaven, think what that is! To go to Christ, who died that I might live! Oh, the love of Christ, the love of Christ!" What did Toplady, the great hymn-maker, say in his last hour? "Who can measure the depths of the third heaven? Oh, the sunshine that fills my soul! I shall soon be gone, for surely no one can live in this world after such glories as God has manifested to my soul."

What did the dying Janeway say? "I can as easily die as close my eyes or turn my head in sleep. Before a few hours have passed I shall stand on Mount Zion with the one hundred and forty and four thousand, and with the just men made perfect, and we shall ascribe riches, and honor, and glory, and majesty, and dominion unto God and the Lamb." Dr. Taylor, condemned to burn at the stake, on his way thither broke away from his guardsmen, and went bounding, and leaping, and jumping toward the fire, glad to go to Jesus and to die for him. Sir Charles Hare, in his last moments had such rapturous vision that he cried: "Upward, upward, upward!" And so great was the peace of one of Christ's disciples that he put his finger upon the pulse in his wrist and counted and observed it; and so great was his placidity that after awhile he said: "Stopped!" and his life had ended here to begin in heaven. But grander than that was the testimony of the worn-out first missionary when, in the Mamertine dungeon, he cried: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand; I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me in that day, and not to me only, but to all them that love his appearing!" Do you not see that Christ is chief in dying alleviations?

So, also, Christ is chief in heaven. The Bible distinctly says that Christ is the chief theme of the celestial ascription, all the thrones facing His throne, all the palms waved before His face, all the crowns down at His feet. Cherubim to cherubim, seraphim to seraphim, redeemed spirit to redeemed spirit, shall recite the Savior's earthly sacrifice.

Edward I. was so anxious to go to the Holy Land that when he was about to expire he bequeathed $160,000 to have his heart, after his decease, taken to the Holy Land, in Asia Minor, and his request was complied with. But there are hundreds to-day whose hearts are already in the Holy Land of heaven. Where your treasures are, there are your hearts also. Quaint John Bunyan caught a glimpse of that place, and in his quaint way said: "And I heard in my dream, and lo! the bells of the city rang again for joy; and as they opened the gates to let in the men I looked in after them, and lo! the city shone like the sun, and there were streets of gold, and the men walked on them, harps in their hands, to ring praises withal; and after that they shut up the gates, which when I had seen I wished myself among them!"

Jean Paul Richter had only five or six books, all philosophical.

Cowardice of a Large Eagle.

The claim of the eagle to the title of king of birds seems to be slightly clouded by an eagle reported from Stafford County, Virginia. A gentleman down there was watching an unusually fine bald eagle grandly sailing around in the air a few days ago, when he noticed a little bee martin rise in the air and make straight for the eagle. He wondered what the martin's object could be, and was surprised to see it sail in boldly to tear the feathers out of the big eagle. But he was amazed to see the eagle, after a few moments of effort at beating off the little bird, sail away in full flight, making every effort to escape from the martin. The martin followed up closely for awhile, making a savage jab at the eagle every few yards, but was finally left behind through the superior retreating powers of the big eagle.

Saved by a Friend.

From the Evening Post, Chicago, Ill., William H. Theel, who is employed by the Title, Guaranty and Trust Company, in the Stock Exchange, Chicago, was seen one evening last week at the residence of his parents, 358 East Blackhawk street. His experience is an interesting one indeed, which will prove more interesting in allowing him to tell it in his own words. He says: "Some time ago I had an attack of typhoid fever which kept me in bed for several weeks. Having from childhood always been in very delicate health, my physician and also my parents feared that I must surely succumb to the disease. But I gradually passed the danger point and after some time became convalescent, and in due course of time became strong enough to go down town and attend to my clerical duties. But for some reason I could not get back my strength and I found that the effects of the malady were still present in my system. I had no appetite, and the most tempting dishes which my anxious mother could prepare had no attractions for me. I became pale, languid, gained no strength, and, in fact, became weaker day after day. I became morose and peevish, and added to this state of my nervous system there was every evidence of quick consumption—such as short breathing, a deathly pallor, relieved only by hectic flushes and, in fact, a general breaking down of my whole system. My condition was such that my parents became very much alarmed, although of course they did not communicate their fears to me. The fact is that while I saw their alarm and felt myself surely and slowly losing my hold on this life, I really did not care, for life had become a burden to me the way I felt.

"It was while I was in this desperate frame of mind that one day my fellow clerk handed me a pamphlet and two boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which he brought me from the drug store across the street. I took both the boxes and pamphlet home and showed them to my mother. She was of the opinion that if the medicine would do as it was claimed, it might save my life, and she advised me by all means to give it a fair trial. I did so and the result exceeded my fondest hopes. Although I have so far only used three boxes of the pills, the improvement of my general condition is almost marvelous. The severe headaches from which I suffered untold torments have wholly disappeared, my appetite is again good, I eat hearty meals now three times a day and digest the food splendidly, and my strength is returning. My complexion, as you can see for yourself, is quite clear. My lungs are sound and, in fact, I am now a healthy and strong man."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

TURKEYS will soon be in order again, and raisers of these birds should be devoting all of their attention to the work of making them large, fat, plump and juicy in time for Thanksgiving. It should be remembered, says a writer in the American Cultivator, that the best turkeys always bring the greatest profit to the owners, and that in times of a glut in the market they are usually the ones that work off, while the inferior birds are left behind. Try to raise fancy turkeys for Thanksgiving, and you will get your reward. There will be plenty of poor stock from all parts of the country, and the chances are they will sell cheap.

The bronze turkeys usually are the best for raising, as they can be made to produce very tender, sweet meat, while their carcasses when properly fattened are very heavy. In fact, they surpass all other breeds, both in weight and hardness. The young turkeys before this time should be good-sized birds, and those that have gathered up a living on the farm and in the fields and woods during the summer are in excellent condition for fattening for the holidays. As a rule, turkeys can find their living in the woods and fields better than chickens, but they should not be kept without grain feed too long. If they have been accustomed to the fat, juicy worms of summer they are very ready to make a change of diet. But even in the summer time they should be fed night and morning with some good food, such as corn or wheat.

The fattening period for market should cover several weeks. It is better to give them all they will eat for four weeks than to force them to eat more than they want for two weeks. Give them good food only, for everything that they eat now goes to make meat, and if such things as onions, bitter weeds and decayed fruits and vegetables are given to them their meat will have a bad odor and flavor. The food during the fattening period really has much to do in giving the turkeys fine, white, well-flavored meat. Too much exercise is also bad for them, and they should be shut up most of the time. Avoid anything that will bruise the birds. If they are inclined to be quarrelsome they should be separated. Corn is the great fattening food, and if one is so situated that chestnuts are easily obtained, it is well to feed them on these too. They certainly flavor the meat a little and the turkeys are very fond of them. Plenty of pure water and milk help the turkeys at this time. Sweet, rich milk is good for them, and they are very fond of it.

Finally the marketing should be done with the same care and intelligence that the fattening has been performed with. In many cases it pays better to keep the turkeys until after Thanksgiving, as the market is good then, and there are fewer birds for sale. Some years the glut around Thanksgiving time is so great that very poor prices are realized.

Rapid Growth Desirable.

It is the chick that grows rapidly from the start which pays. Growth is increase of weight, whether the bird is fat or not, and as the large bird can be made fat, the size is an advantage. The breed influences rapid growth. It is well known that a calf of the Short-horn breed not only grows more rapidly but also largely exceeds in weight a calf that is a scrub in the same period of existence. This increase applies to poultry also. A chick of some large breed will grow rapidly from the start, and in gaining size it will secure weight also. It is what the scales show that gives the value. The large chick may eat more food than one that is smaller, but there is a saving of time. If a chick can be made to reach two pounds when three months old, while another attains but a pound and a half, it is equal to a gain of twenty-five per cent, equivalent to the weight of twenty-five more chicks in a hundred. In hatching early broilers this winter the matter of selecting the large breeds should not be overlooked.—Ex.

Poultry and Asparagus Beetle.

It has been found that the best remedy for the ravages of the asparagus beetle is a hen with a brood of young chicks. A diligent search is made for the beetles by them, and instances are known in which a hen and chicks saved the bed from destruction. No damage can be done by the hen, and it is an experiment worthy of a trial. Perhaps it may not be known that a block of turkeys will keep down the tobacco worms in a tobacco field. If a flock is turned in on the field every plant will be carefully searched, and not a worm will escape their keen eye. As the turkeys will not harm the tobacco, and can find a full supply of worms, it is not only an economical mode of raising them, but puts them to good service at the same time.—Ex.

Packing the Dairy Butter.

Packing butter in the summer time is a common plan among most farmers with a few cows. Good butter can be packed and kept in a very cold room until prices begin to advance in the fall and winter. Poor butter packed at this season of the year will not improve any by packing. The soft butter and the rancid butter will quickly deteriorate in quality and become unfit for use. Those who can not make good butter would do well not to pack it.

In order to make butter for packing the cream should not be kept more than a day or two. The mistake is made on many farms of churning only once or twice a week, and the cream is frequently five days old before churned. The finest butter can not be made from cream kept that length of time. But skillful butter makers have produced very good butter with cream three days old, and probably the line should be drawn at this. Each day that new cream is put into the stone pot the whole mass should be stirred evenly, and this will prevent it from settling in layers.

First dissolve a piece of saltpetre in water, and mix this with the first cream put into the pot. Then by stirring up the whole mass each time additional cream is put in the saltpetre goes into every part of the cream, and helps to preserve it. The stone pot for the cream naturally should be kept in a very cool place, in the ice box if one keeps ice, or in a cold cellar. The night before churning take it out and stand it in an ordinarily warm room. In the morning get the temperature of the cream down to 58 or 60 degrees. If handled in this way the butter ought to come in summer in five or ten minutes. When the butter is in small granules, draw off the buttermilk. Wash the butter in the churn until the cold water runs off clear. Work the salt carefully into the butter, and let it stand until next day.

Early in the forenoon of the following day re-work the butter with the hands until the salt is thoroughly dissolved and every drop of the buttermilk is out of it. A little buttermilk left in the butter will be sufficient to taint the whole pot full, and eventually spoil it.

A stone crock is the best thing to pack the butter in, and each churning should be packed firmly into the pot. Dissolve as much salt as possible in water, and into this put one-half ounce of saltpetre to each gallon of brine. Boil this until everything is dissolved. Strain it through a cloth, let it stand for a few hours, then skim off the scum on top, and pour off the liquid carefully, leaving the sediment at the bottom in the pail. The brine will then be clear, and is ready to pour over the butter in the crock. Each time a new quantity of butter is to be packed, pour off the brine, and put the butter down hard, and then pour brine over again. In this way butter can be kept sweet and clean for a long time.—Ex.

Indian Corn for Forage.—By reason of its large yield, great feeding value and the many different climates and conditions under which it can be profitably produced, corn has been, and always will be, the favorite ensilage crop, as it is the great roughage crop of the United States. While all the other forage plants can be made into ensilage, there is more labor and less profit in the work. It is an excellent feed not only during winter, but in summer, when a season of abundance is often followed by a drouth and the pastures are burned up.—Ex.

Saved in the Silo.—As to the superior value of silage over dry food, no one can reasonably have a doubt. Beyond the fact that the crop siloed contains its constituents as nature arranged them, and in that condition is most wholesome, from an economic point of view, there is no comparison. The more plants are exposed to the air, the greater is their loss of organic matter, until, in time, they become valueless. All this loss is saved by using the silo.—Southern Planter.

Crowding the heifers.—Is it best to crowd heifers at two years to their full capacity? Give them what they will eat and assimilate and keep them at work from the first. Often they will not do as well the second year as the first, but do better the third year. A study of the nature of rations is absolutely necessary, because, as the cow grows older, more carbonaceous food is necessary.—Fanciers' Review.

How to Detect Oleomargarine.—Dr. Leffman, a Philadelphia chemist, recommends the following test: Place some of the questionable butter in a tin cup, about the size of a teacup, heat it, and if when hot it sputters and flies, as lard does when it is frying, and if salt gathers on the top, you can believe it is oleomargarine. Butter, on the other hand, will not sputter or fly, nor will salt gather on top; butter will foam up until it runs over.—Ex.

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not a case, but a large percentage of cases, we believe, fully 98 per cent, are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.
