Lightning struck the spire of the M. E. church early Saturday morning, causing a damage of $200. Although insurance was carried it contained no lightning clause. Why it was omitted is something we can't understand, as it doesn't cost anything extra, and certainly a church is more liable to be struck by lightning than small buildings.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS.

John E. Russell is to be credited with a new simile. He says he is feeling as gay as a girl in a shirt waist. Happy thought!

In St. Louis a woman is advertising for a pair of lost bloomers. We have seen a number of bloomers loose in this vicinity.

Spain ought to send calomel and guinea to Cuba as ammunition to her soldiers. Doctors are needed more than generals.

Two men with a banjo and a mandolin have accumulated $450 while crossing the continent on their wheels. It is evident that people have paid well to get them to move on.

Six boys who played ghost in the cemetery at Carlton, Minn., were caught in the act and fined $10 each. Had they not defaced the tombstones and tampered with the graves the "ghosts" would undoubtedly have been overlooked.

Three secret service men are now guarding Gray Gables from tramps and peddlers. They are each on duty eight hours out of the twenty-four. They don't keep dogs, but can wing tramps easily at sixty rods.

So far as the most searching inquiries go, it appears that only two women wear bloomers on bicycles in Washington. The men who are apt to know about such things report but two women who have so far braved the eyes of the public with the bloomer costume. As a matter of fact, if women are going to discard skirts, why not adopt knickerbockers? They are more natty, and look as if the women using them were not half afraid.

Emily Soldene, who will be remembered as an exponent of English blonde burlesque and of comic opera years ago, has been heard from again in an interview. She has no use for the new woman, but wants "the old-fashioned woman, who is sweet and gentle." The bloomer she regards as the most hideous garment of the day, and how a pretty woman can destroy her charms by wearing bloomers she cannot see. Emily, it will be recalled, did not wear much of anything, except the patience of her audiences.

Statistics of circulation show decreases both for the month of June and the year ending therewith. The net decrease in June amounted to $2,047,588, while for the year the decrease amounted to nearly $60,000,000. The total circulation on July 1st this year amounted to $1,604,131,968, as compared with $1,664,061,232 on July 1st, 1894. The gold coin in circulation amounted to $480,275,057, which represented a decrease of nearly $17,600,000 as compared with the corresponding period last year. The gold coin in the treasury, on the other hand, showed an increase of a little over $12,500,000 as compared with a year ago, the amount in the treasury on July 1st being $99,147,914. The money of all kinds in the treasury showed an increase for the month of June amounting to $10,552,112. Treasury experts estimate that the population increased from 68,397,000 on July 1st last year to 69,878,000 at the beginning of the current month. On the basis of the latter estimate they figure out a per capita circulation amounting to $22.96 on July 1st. This represents a decrease of 6 cents for the month and $1.37 as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

The lessons of history teach us that the Chinese can only be brought to terms by a show of force. Their word is lightly given and lightly broken. They promised to investigate the murders at Ku Cheng, but now the American and English consuls sent with the commission to see to it that the inquiry was searching have been excluded. Left to the Chinese prefect and his auxiliaries, the investigation will be as farcical as its predecessors. A pretense of punishing the criminals will be made and the agents of the empire at Washington and the European capitals will be commissioned to deceive the offended countrymen of the victims. The course of Sir Halliday Macartney, councillor of the Chinese legation at London, is proof enough that only ocular demonstration is reliable in dealing with Chinese envoys or their Caucasian mouthpieces. The incautiousness of the missionaries in invading China is not a plea in abatement. They are American citizens, under the protection of the flag whenever and wherever found. American gunboats are now cruising in Chinese waters. The appearance of one of them, cleared for action, in a Chinese port would do more to compel proper punishment of the murderers and relief for the frightened Americans in Canton and other towns than another month of juggling with diplomatic forms.

HANDY WITH HIS RAZOR.

Jealous Indianapolis Molder Furnishes a Sensation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 10.—Lon Rooker, a molder employed at the Indianapolis Car works, murdered his wife last night by cutting her throat. He also attempted to kill Mrs. Emma Pees, of No. 79 Rhode Island street, slashing her about the head and face with a razor, making wounds from which it is believed she will not recover. Rooker made an attempt to escape, and stepped to the front door with the bloody razor in his hand. Seeing that it would be impossible to do so on account of the crowd of men who had gathered about the door, he made some remark about killing the first man who attempted to lay hands on him, and then cut his own throat. The blood spurted from the wound and the man after staggering about for a few minutes, fell. The crowd started for him, but he arose and held the men at bay with the razor. He then left the house and ran three squares, followed by a great crowd. He was finally captured. Jealousy was the cause of the crime, which was premeditated. Rooker lay in wait all afternoon for the opportunity, which came about 6 o'clock.

VICTORY FOR CUBAN REBELS.

Insurgents Said to Have Captured the City of Puerto Principe.

New York, Sept. 10.—A great Cuban battle has been fought in Puerto Principe, with the defeat of the Spanish and the capture of the capital by the insurgent forces, according to a dispatch to the New York World from its special correspondent sent to Havana.

It is said that a strong force of Spanish troops left the City of Puerto Principe to make a bold attack upon the insurgents, who were besieging the town. The insurgents fled after making a weak resistance, but it was only to draw the Spanish troops into an ambush. Once in the trap the Spanish were attacked in the front by Gen. Antonio Maceo and in the rear by Gen. Gomez. The rebel forces obtained a complete victory and entered the capital triumphant, 14,000 strong. How near the truth this statement is cannot be ascertained, but Gen. Campos' immediate departure for Neuvidad the very day he arrived here is suggestive of the happening of something serious.

ANOTHER DURRANT RUMOR.

Startling Disclosures Promised by Attorneys for the Defense.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10.—An evening paper prints a sensational story about the defense which will be offered in the trial of Theodore Durrant for the murder of Blanche Lamont. The statement is credited to a person connected with the defense, and is as follows: "The alibi will be strong, but the defense has witnesses to show that Durrant not only did not commit the murder, but will indicate who did it. There will be more than one implicated in the murder. Witnesses will testify that they saw the girl enter the church on the fatal afternoon with a certain man, and at that time a second man was in the church. There the defense will rest its inquiry. It will not attempt to prove that these parties did commit the murder. The statements as to this are so direct that they will leave no ground for the prosecution to stand on, so far as Durrant is concerned."

Coffins Are Again on Trial.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 10.—The second trial of Perceval B. and Francis A. Coffin, charged with having assisted in the wrecking of the Indianapolis national bank, begins today in the United States court. The accused men were tried fourteen months ago and were convicted. Francis A. Coffin was sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years and Percival B. Coffin for seven years. After they had served ten days in prison they were released by Justice Harlan of the Supreme court. Last January the Supreme court granted them a new trial. They were then proprietors of the Indianapolis Cabinet company, which was in debt to the bank about $800,000 at the time of the failure of the bank.

Anarchist's Identity Revealed.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The Liberte says that the identity of the miscreant who attempted to explode a bomb in the vestibule of the Rothschilds' banking house, in the Rue Lafitte, on Thursday, has been discovered. He was formerly in the employ of the Northern Railway company, and belongs to an honorable family. He is a professed anarchist, according to the Liberte, but was actuated by motives of personal revenge in his attempt to destroy the Rothschilds' bank for his dismissal from the Northern Railway's employ.

South Carolina Convention.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 10.—The constitutional convention meets to-day at noon. It is composed of 110 reform democrats, forty-four conservative democrats, and six negro republicans. The object in calling the convention is to adopt a constitution, having in view a modification of the election laws. Governor Evans will be elected president of the convention without opposition.

Hillsboro.—The action of the democratic congressional committee of the eighteenth district in calling a delegate convention to nominate a candidate to succeed Congressman Remann, instead of a primary election, and in naming Shelbyville as the place for holding the convention, is regarded as favorable to ex-Congressman Lane. It was agreed by the congressional committee that the convention should be composed of seventy-one delegates, as follows: Bond county, 5; Fayette, 10; Madison, 21; Montgomery, 14; Monticello, 7; Shelby, 14.

Rockford.—The feature of the day at the Winnebago county fair was the address of ex-Congressman George E. Adams of Chicago, who spoke for half an hour to a great throng. He dwelt on the sturdy character of the pioneers of this state and the sacrifices made by them that the people of this day might enjoy the benefits. Touching on the tendency of the people to drift from the country to the city to do business, but who still desired to rear the children under country influences, he predicted that the suburbs of Chicago would yet extend 100 miles into Illinois. There were 15,000 persons on the grounds.

The Illinois weekly weather crop bulletin says: The past week has been a favorable one for crops; plenty of warmth followed by a short period of cool weather and frequent showers have caused vegetation to advance rapidly. The rainfall average for the state has been somewhat above the normal, also the average temperature for the week. Late corn is filling and maturing rapidly, and with three weeks of immunity from frost, all will be ready to cut. Early corn is being cut quite generally and much will go into the shock this week. Pastures and meadows have revived wonderfully, and fall feed seems assured. Sown rye is up with good stand; sowing continues with the ground in excellent condition. Wheat land is generally prepared, and sowing will begin the following week. Millet and buckwheat are doing well, also young clover. The second crop of clover, which has just been cut, is being hulled. In east-central counties broom corn cutting continues, with about three-fourths of the crop safely housed. Late fields have been somewhat damaged by chinch bugs. The bugs have also damaged some late corn and in the south central and southeast counties damage is also reported from grub worms. Well water is still quite scarce, although tiles and streams are running.

Governor Altgeld has restored the rights of citizenship to Albert D. Leaf of Mansfield and Viola E. Booth of Swan Creek.

Abram Mitchell, of Pecatonica, and S. L. Hough, of Hinsdale, have been appointed state fish wardens by Governor Altgeld for the counties of Winnebago and Dupage, respectively.

Naperville.—Ground has been broken for an appropriate monument to be erected in the public park under the direction of Walter Blanchard post, No. 386, of the department of the Illinois Grand Army of the Republic, to be built of Naperville stone, and is to be a memento of the soldiers of Naperville and vicinity.

Bloomington.—There are no surface indications whatever of any disposition on the part of the coal miners of Bloomington to strike on October 14 or any other time, and careful investigation today has failed to reveal any plan or intention of a demonstration at that time. There are about 150 miners at present at work in the shaft of the McLean County Coal Company, the only mine in Bloomington. The scale under which the Bloomington men are working has not been changed in any important particular for about six years and seems to give satisfaction to all concerned. The Bloomington miners so far are not closely affiliated with any particular mining district. They are not of the striking kind.

Wheelmen James W. Kelly and Frank Majors on the steamer Puritan were arrested by Chicago station officers when the boat reached the city early Thursday morning and locked up on a charge of abduction. Mrs. Lydia Powers of Benton Harbor, Mich., says the men abducted her 14-year-old daughter Blanche. The mother says her daughter was seen getting on the boat late Monday night, and as she did not return to Benton Harbor the next day Mrs. Powers came to Chicago and swore out the warrants. Both of the prisoners admit bringing the girl to Chicago, but say that when the boat arrived she left them and went away. They insist they do not know where she is, but this is not believed by the police. The federal authorities may be asked to take some action.

Jacksonville.—In the missionary convention of the fifth district of the Christian Church T. T. Holton of Lincoln scored the idea of depending on paid choirs and instruments, which are all right in their places, he said, but should always be subservient to the voice and congregational singing. Rev. A. P. Cobb of Springfield discussed the subject of a fund for superannuated preachers. He advised the ministers to save up something. Miss Ida Lewis of Chambersburg, Rev. L. W. Morgan and F. M. Collins of Litchfield read papers on features of the Endeavor movement. Rev. C. T. Spittler, state superintendent of the Christian citizenship movement, spoke on his favorite theme and in the evening Miss Anna M. Hale of Peoria, state Sunday school evangelist, spoke of the state work.

Harvey's women citizens repeat the declaration that they will adopt forcible measures to defeat the liquor ordinance of that town if it becomes necessary. At a meeting of the W. C. T. U. held the other morning in Willard hall, Lucy Page Gaston asserted that hatchets would be adopted as weapons of warfare if no other means can be found to prevent the sale of liquor in Harvey. A friend presented Miss Gaston with a small hatchet some time ago as a token of his admiration for her pluck, and this the latter exhibited to the audience as she told them she had informed the aldermen that similar implements of larger size might be utilized to batter down the grog shops and destroy their contents in the future. She praised Judge Gibbons for having issued the writ of certiorari and asked the women present to sustain the temperance workers in Harvey in their fight for prohibition. At the close of the meeting a resolution was passed expressing the gratitude of the organization to Judge Gibbons for his decision touching the Harvey liquor question. The resolution further said if there were more judges of this stamp the way of evil doers would be made harder than they now find it.

G. A. R. VETERANS GATHER AT LOUISVILLE.

Commander Lawler Received with Great Pomp—City is Handsomely Decorated and Ample Accommodations Provided for Its Guests.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 10.—The twenty-ninth encampment of the G. A. R. was opened yesterday with a parade on the arrival of Commander-in-Chief Lawler and staff, at 7:30 a. m. General Lawler and the Columbian Post of Chicago and other organizations on the escort special Monon train were met at the Union depot by members of the committees on invitation and reception in carriages. The Kentucky National Guard, local posts and other organizations were formed on

The big parade of the Grand Army of the Republic comes Wednesday morning.

All the railroads from the southern states are running trains as close together as possible, and their reports indicate that the demand for passage will continue all night. The attendance of confederate veterans is very large, and they are active in helping the people of Louisville entertain the "yankees."

Commander-in-Chief Bunday of the Sons of Veterans is quartered with Commander Lawler, and the Sons of Veterans will spend the week here en route to Knoxville, as will many who are en route to the meeting of the Army of the Tennessee and dedication of the monumental park at Chickamauga.

A SLAUGHTER HOUSE FOR HORSES AT CHICAGO.

The attorney general of the state of Illinois has just been appealed to by the Humane Society of Chicago, the officers of which want to know if there is some law by which the slaughter of horses can be prohibited. Several slaughter houses in the vicinity of Chicago have been doing a thriving business of late buying horses for from $1 to $5 each, converting them into meat and shipping it to Europe. The most extensive one of these places is pictured, together with the proprietor. The latter is by the way all that he looks in the picture. The method of killing the animals (burying the edge of an ax in their brain while blind-folded) is little short of murder.

Broadway, awaiting the arrival of the special train, which was on time to the satisfaction of the multitudes assembled along the line of march from the Union depot on Broadway, Third and Main streets to the Galt House. At the Galt House the headquarters of the national officers are beautifully decorated, and elaborate arrangements were made for receptions during the day.

While the reception of the commander-in-chief and his staff was the most imposing event of the day, the receptions at the depots of G. A. R. posts and veterans arriving in other groups were equally interesting. Special trains arrived as fast as they could be handled in the depots and the local escorts were kept busy. From early morning and throughout the day drum corps were heard in all directions as the veterans were being escorted to their respective headquarters on their arrival. Reports from all the railroads indicate that the roads are full of extra trains and the arrangements here are

Hundreds of tents have been erected in each of the city parks, while all the city schoolhouses and a number of halls and other meeting places have been cleared of their furniture and will be used for temporary sleeping quarters.

The sentiment of the delegates to the encampment already on the ground seems to favor the selection of Colonel I. N. Walker of Indianapolis, as the next commander-in-chief. Colonel Walker was senior vice from 1893 to 1894, and would have been promoted to the highest office in the gift of the order at Pittsburg last year but for the unexpected fight that was made by the friends of Colonel Lawler, who carried everything resistlessly before them. So far St. Paul is the only city seeking the honor of the next encampment, and its delegation is already on the ground.

COL. THOMAS G. LAWLER. the finest diamond badges ever made in this country. More than $4,500 was thus collected and the order for the badge was placed in the hands of one of the most famous jewelry firms in the country. The badge has been made and delivered, and it is said to be one of the handsomest pieces of work of the kind ever made. It is solid gold and imbedded in the metal are several large diamonds and other precious stones. All of the emblems of this order are engraved on it, and on the reverse side is an appropriate inscription giving the date of presentation and other data.

TELL OF FRESH OUTRAGES.

Turkish Troops Sack Villages and Kill Armenians.

London, Sept. 10.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Kars, Armenia, says that the entire district of Kemaks is surrounded by Turkish troops dispatched by Zekki Pasha under the plea of arresting Armenian revolutionaries. The villages of Carni, Tiruguegner, Tortan, Horopot and Marig are reported to be completely sacked, and the population, aggregating 5,000 people, were ill-treated. The men were tortured and the women and children were assaulted. The four monasteries of Auakwauk, Sourphop, Thervorithoga and Soupphagop were sacked and the altars and images were destroyed. Authentic information from Moush is to the effect that an anti-Christian society of Turkish officials has been formed there and at Bitlis with the avowed intention to slaughter the Christians in the event of the acceptance by the porte of the scheme of reforms presented by the powers.

Once more that Aurora borealis, the great literary "light" (not heavy) of the North more commonly known as the Wauconda Leader, appears on the scene, phoenix-like, to chronicle another fire. As usual, flattering comments on the article from the editor to himself appear in the issue following that containing the account, as likewise does the customary recognition of THE REVIEW's feeble effort at getting an item.

With many apologies to our literary (?) friend for our daring to mar the product of his "brains" with our vulgar, everyday scissors, we take the liberty of reproducing a few clippings from the "far-famed but little known" Leader.

Under date of Sept. 7 we find the following:

The BARRINGTON REVIEW got out a little 8x10 supplement last Saturday, announcing the fire at Libertyville the night before, which contained only one fact, and that there was "A fire at Libertyville Friday night." Everybody within a radius of twenty-five miles knew that, but it was the Leader to give the public the exact extent of the fire, the buildings burned and the estimated loss.

The supplement to THE REVIEW with its "one fact" was out in time to reach the breakfast tables of the majority of our readers Saturday morning, announcing to them the particulars as then known. We are inclined to think that Bro. Mullen meant to say instead of "everybody within a radius of twenty-five miles knew that," that "anybody whose cranium contained within it a vacuum space large enough to permit that 'great Niagara' fire engine to make the revolutions required to empty that milk cooler at Lake Zurich ought to have known it."

For the benefit of those of our readers who may not have been able to secure the "post re-union fire special" which introduces the "fire fiend" in the anthropophagous act of "licking up a large slice, etc.," gotten out Aug. 31, we reproduce it verbatim without further comment, leaving its merits to the judgment of our readers:

Great Havoc at Libertyville—A Large Slice of the Business Portion of the Village Licked up by Flames Last Night.—Last night about midnight fire broke out in the rear of the Sneek block destroying Schenck's hardware store, the Independent printing office, postoffice, meat market, barber shop, tin shop and Commercial hotel, when the building between the hotel and the Methodist church was blown up which checked further progress of the fire west. The fire crossed the street east of Schenck's store, destroying the corner grocery, a millinery shop, drug store and the Knight block. Northward, towards the depot, a tailor shop, blacksmith shop and other buildings, barns, residences, etc., went up in flames.

We had just made up our mind to fire our still "loaded" quill aside, preparatory to placing the names of many new subscribers on the subscription books when our eagle eye was attracted by a piece of paper in the waste-basket. Picking it up we saw in black and white these mystic words: "BARRINGTON REVIEW." On closer inspection we made the discovery that those words were only a part of the incoherent, stuttered mutterings of a self-styled "editor" of a "weakly" newspaper in a neighboring burg which began with:

"That wishy-washy slush that the BARRINGTON REVIEW is giving through its columns about a fire that occurred in Lake Zurich some time last August, A. D., 1895, and which has been forgotten these many days, seems to the imaginative brain (?) of the editor of the aforesaid 'newspaper' to be mighty interesting reading. * * * Tweedledey-tweedledum."

Truly these are great words, great beyond the comprehension of poor "we" whose only resource is a back-number of "Webster" and our file of The Leader, in neither of which authorities were we able to find direct mention of the aforesaid orthographical treasures. We have often noticed that when a child got the worst of an argument that it would invariably shake its rattle, blow its tin whistle and emit ear-splitting noises, which would no doubt, if analyzed, have been found similar in their composition to those employed in that "wishy-washy" article of our friend and brother. We can't make ourselves believe that he borrowed those high sounding phrases from his Chinese laundryman right along with his laundry check—but who knows? Only the Chinaman, and he won't tell.

We are of the private opinion, publicly expressed, that if we couldn't step out and meet an article that was devised for our special amusement with anything better than that "wishy-washy" attempt, we would, with many apologies to G. Cleveland, relegate ourselves to a condition of "innocuous desuetude," there to remain.

Au revoir, but not good-bye."

The Maelstrom.

From time out of memory up to within the last 25 or 50 years, the geographers, the hydrographers and the common people alike believed in the existence of an immense whirlpool in the ocean off the coast of Norway.

The English of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries thought it to be a subterranean abyss, penetrating the globe in such a manner as to communicate with the ocean on the opposite side of the earth, and the ancients of most European countries had an idea that it was in some mysterious way connected with the waters of the gulf of Bothnia. According to the popular accounts published and firmly believed down to the middle of the present century, the maelstrom was the most startling and gigantic of nature's curiosities. Its mighty whirling current, it was said, was powerful enough to draw within its influence whatever approached within a distance of several miles of its vortex. Immense trees, lumber rafts, bears, ships, whales, etc., were drawn in as though they were straws and ground to pieces by the whirling, seething waters miles beneath the surface.

What has become of this terror of the ocean? We never hear it mentioned nowadays, and the very existence of even a rough piece of sea in the region in which the maelstrom was formerly located is denied by the very best authorities on ocean tides, currents, etc. Its existence was first questioned, I believe, by Bayard Taylor in a letter to the New York Tribune on Oct. 6, 1857. A few days before the letter was written Taylor sailed over the spot where the whirl was generally located without noticing anything out of the ordinary. During the same year (1857) W. M. Williams, in a lecture on Norway, delivered at Birmingham, England, declared that no such whirlpool had ever existed.—St. Louis Republic.

BISMARCK'S DIG HEAD.

Measurements Showing That the Space For Drains In It Is Extraordinary.

Bismarck's head, says a correspondent of L'Anthropologie, has been carefully measured according to the rules of anthropometrics by the sculptor Schaph of Berlin, who made the statue of Bismarck set up at Cologne. The measurements prove that Bismarck has a head of extraordinarily large size. Measured horizontally from the frontal bone to the occiput the head is 212 millimeters, or more than 8.35 1/2 inches. The distance from temple to temple is 170 millimeters, or a trifle over 6.69 inches. Bismarck's cranium has a capacity of 1,965 cubic centimeters, and his brain should weigh 1,867 grams.

These figures become especially significant when compared with the measurements of other heads. Of 2,500 heads measured at Baden Baden only one exceeded 200 millimeters horizontally from front to back, and that one measured 206 millimeters, or six millimeters less than Bismarck's. The mean measurements of 30 members of the Natural Science society at Karlsruhe were 195 millimeters from front to back by 155 millimeters from temple to temple. The biggest of these heads measured 205 by 162 millimeters. The cubic measurement of 245 German heads was nearly 500 cubic centimeters under Bismarck's, while the estimated weight of Bismarck's brain is 35 per cent above that of the average adult European brain. In fact, Bismarck is a man not only of blood and iron, but as well of brains.

Now is the time for an enterprising farmer to discover a Holmes clew in his unplowed fields—the detectives will do the rest.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50 cents for large bottle. At A. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years since, and before leaving home wrote, asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds and croup; Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. No DISEASE has ever presented so many peculiarities as LaGrippe. No disease leaves its victims so debilitated, useless, sleepless, nerveless, as LaGrippe.

Mr. D. W. Milton, state agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Kentucky, says: "In 1899 and '00 I had two severe attacks of LaGrippe, the last one attacking my nervous system with such severity that my life was despaired of. I had not slept for more than two months except by the use of narcotics that stupefied me but gave me no rest. I was only conscious of intense mental weakness, agonizing bodily pain and the fact that I was hourly growing weaker."

When in this condition, I commenced using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In two days I began to improve and in one month's time I was cured, much to the surprise of all who knew of my condition. I have been in excellent health since and have recommended your remedies to many of my friends."

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

DANIEL. THE COEUR-DE-LION OF ALL AGES.

Golden Text: "His Windows Being Opened in His Chamber Toward Jerusalem"—Daniel, VI: 10—Delivered at New York Sunday, September 3.

HE scoundrelly princes of Persia, urged on by political jealousy against Daniel, have succeeded in getting a law passed that whosoever prays to God shall be put under the paws and teeth of the lions, who are lashing themselves in rage and hunger up and down the stone cage, or putting their lower jaws on the ground, bellowing till the earth trembles. But the lionine threat did not hinder the devotions of Daniel, the Coeur-de-Lion of the ages. His enemies might as well have a law that the sun should not draw water, or that the south wind should not sweep across a garden of magnolias or that God should be abolished. They could not scare him with the red-hot furnaces, and they can not now scare him with the lions. As soon as Daniel hears of this enactment he leaves his office of secretary of state, with its upholstery of crimson and gold, and comes down the white marble steps and goes to his own house. He opens his window and puts the shutters back and pulls the curtain aside so that he can look toward the sacred city of Jerusalem, and then prays.

I suppose the people in the street gathered under and before his window, and said: "Just see that man defying the law; he ought to be arrested." And the constabulary of the city rush to the police headquarters and report that Daniel is on his knees at the wide-open window. "You are my prisoner," says the officer of the law, dropping a heavy hand on the shoulder of the kneeling Daniel. As the constables open the door of the cavern to thrust in their prisoner, they see the glaring eyes of the monsters. But Daniel becomes the first lion-tamer, and they lick his hand and fawn at his feet, and that night he sleeps with the shaggy mane of a wild beast for his pillow, while the king that night, sleepless in the palace, has on him the paw and teeth of a lion he cannot tame—the lion of a remorseful conscience.

What a picture it would be for some artist: Darius, in the early dusk of morning, not waiting for footmen or chariot, hastening to the den, all flushed and nervous and in dishabille, and looking through the crevices of the cage to see what had become of his prime minister! "What, no sound!" he says. "Daniel is surely devoured, and the lions are sleeping after their horrid meal, the bones of the poor man scattered across the floor of the cavern." With trembling voice Darius calls out, "Daniel!" No answer, for the prophet is yet in profound slumber. But a lion, more easily awakened, advances, and, with hot breath blown through the crevice, seems angrily to demand the cause of this interruption, and then another wild beast lifts his mane from under Daniel's head, and the prophet waking up, comes forth to report himself all unhurt and well.

But our text stands us at Daniel's window, open toward Jerusalem. Why in that direction open? Jerusalem was his native land, and all the pomp of his Babylonish successes could not make him forget it. He came there from Jerusalem at eighteen years of age, and he never visited it, though he lived to be eighty-five years. Yet, when he wanted to arouse the deepest emotions and grandest aspirations of his heart, he had his window open toward his native Jerusalem. There are many of you to-day who understand that without any exposition. This is getting to be a nation of foreigners. They have come into all occupations and professions. They sit in all churches. It may be twenty years ago since you got your naturalization papers, and you may be thoroughly Americanized, but you can't forget the land of your birth, and your sympathies go out toward it. Your windows are open toward Jerusalem. Your father and mother are buried there. It may have been a very humble home in which you were born, but your memory often plays around it, and you hope some day to go and see it—the hill, the tree, the brook, the house, the place so sacred, the door from which you started off with parental blessing to make your own way in the world; and God only knows how sometimes you have longed to see the familiar places of your childhood, and how in awful crises of life you would like to have caught a glimpse of the old, wrinkled face that bent over you as you lay on the gentle lap twenty or forty or fifty years ago. You may have on this side of the sea risen in fortune, and, like Daniel, have become great, and may have come into prosperities which you never could have reached if you had stayed there, and you may have many windows to your house—bay-windows, and skylight-windows, and windows of conservatory, and windows on all sides—but you have at least one window open toward Jerusalem.

When the foreign steamer comes to the wharf, you see the long line of sailors, with shouldered mail-bags, coming down the planks, carrying as many letters as you might suppose to be enough for a year's correspondence, and this repeated again and again during the week. Multitudes of them are letters from home, and at all the post-offices of the land people will go to the window and anxiously ask for them, hundreds of thousands of persons finding that window of foreign mails the open window toward Jerusalem. Messages that say: "When are you coming home to see us? Brother has gone into the army. Sister is dead. Father and mother are getting very feeble. We are having a great struggle to get on here. Would you advise us to come to you, or will you come to us? All join in love, and hope to meet you, if not in this world, then in a better. Good-bye."

Yes, yes; in all these cities, and amid the flowering western prairies, and on the slopes of the Pacific, and amid the Sierras, and on the banks of the lagoon, and on the ranches of Texas there is an uncounted multitude who, this hour, stand and sit and kneel with their windows open toward Jerusalem. Some of these people played on the heather of the Scottish hills. Some of them were driven out by Irish famine. Some of them, in early life, drilled in the German army. Some of them were accustomed at Lyons or Marseilles or Paris to see on the street Victor Hugo and Gambetta. Some chased the chamois among the Alpine precipices. Some plucked the ripe clusters from Italian vineyard. Some lifted their faces under the midnight sun of Norway. It is no dishonor to our land that they remember the place of their nativity. Miscreants would they be if, while they have some of their windows open to take in the free air of America and the sunlight of an atmosphere which no kingly despot has ever breathed, they forget sometimes to open the window toward Jerusalem.

No wonder that the son of the Swiss, when far away from home, hearing the national air of his country sung, the malady of homesickness comes on him so powerfully as to cause his death. You have the example of heroic Daniel of my text for keeping early memories fresh. Forget not the old folks at home. Write often; and, if you have surplus means and they are poor, make practical contribution, and rejoice that America is bound to all the world by ties of sangulinity as in no other nation. Who can doubt but it is appointed for the evangelization of other lands? What a stirring, melting, gospelizing theory that all the doors of other nations are open toward us, while our windows are open toward them!

But Daniel, in the text, kept this porthole of his domestic fortress unclosed because Jerusalem was the capital of sacred influences. There had smoked the sacrifice. There was the Holy of Holies. There was the Ark of the Covenant. There stood the temple. We are tempted to keep our windows open on the opposite side, toward the world, that we may see and hear and appropriate its advantages. What does the world say? What does the world think? What does the world do? Worshipers of the world instead of worshipers of God. Windows open toward Babylon. Windows open toward Corinth. Windows open toward Athens. Windows open toward Sodom. Windows open toward the flats, instead of windows open toward the hills. Sad mistake, for this world as a god is like something I saw in the museum of Strasburg, Germany—the figure of a virgin in wood and iron. The victim in olden time was brought there, and this figure would open its arms to receive him, and, once enfolded, the figure closed with a hundred knives and lances upon him, and then let him drop one hundred and eighty feet sheer down. So the world first embraces its idolaters, then closes upon them with many tortures, and then lets them drop forever down. The highest honor the world could confer was to make a man Roman emperor; but, out of sixty-three emperors, it allowed only six to die peacefully in their beds.

But, mark you, that good lion-tamer is not standing at the window, but kneeling, while he looks out. Most photographs are taken of those in standing or sitting posture. I now remember but one picture of a man kneeling, and that was David Livingstone, who in the cause of God and civilization sacrificed himself; and in the heart of Africa his servant, Majwara, found him in the tent by the light of a candle, stuck on the top of a box, his head in his hands upon the pillow, and dead on his knees. But here is a great lion-tamer, living under the dash of the light, and his hair disheveled of the breeze, praying. The fact is, that a man can see further on his knees than standing on tiptoe. Jerusalem was about five hundred and fifty statute miles from Babylon, and the vast Arabian desert shifted its sands between them. Yet through that open window Daniel saw Jerusalem, saw all between it, saw beyond, saw time, saw eternity, saw earth, and saw heaven. Would you like to see the way through your sins to pardon, through your troubles to comfort, through temptation to rescue, through dire sickness to immortal health, through night to day, through things terrestrial to things celestial, you will not see them till you take Daniel's posture. No cap of bone to the joints of the fingers, no cap of bone to the joints of the elbow, but cap of bone to the knees, made so because the God of the body was the God of the soul, and especial provision for those who want to pray, and physiological structure joins with spiritual necessity in bidding us pray, and pray, and pray.

In olden time the Earl of Westmoreland said he had no need to pray, because he had enough pious tenants on his estate to pray for him; but all the prayers of the church universal amount to nothing unless, like Daniel, we pray for ourselves. Oh, men and women, bounded on one side by Shadrach's red-hot furnace, and the other side by devouring lions, learn the secret of courage and deliverance by looking at that Babylonish window open toward the southwest! "Oh," you say, "that is the direction of the Arabian Desert!" Yes; but on the other side of the desert is God, is Christ, is Jerusalem, is heaven.

The American aborigines look forward to a heaven of illimitable hunting grounds, partridge, and deer, and wild duck more than plentiful, and the hounds never off the scent, and the guns never missing fire. But the geographer has followed the earth round, and found no Homer's elysium. Voyagers have traversed the deep in all directions, and found no Hesiod's islands of the blessed. The Mohammedan's celestial debauchery and the Indian's eternal hunting-ground for vast multitudes have no charm. But here rolls in the Bible heaven. No more sea—that is, no wide separation. No more night—that is, no insomnia. No more tears—that is, no heart-break. No more pain—that is, dismissal of lancet and bitter draught and miasma, and banishment of neuralgias, and catalepsies, and consumptions. All colors in the wall except gloomy black; all the music in the major-key, because celebrative and jubilant. River crystalline, gate crystalline, and skies crystalline, because everything is clear and without doubt. White robes, and that means sinlessness. Vials full of odors, and that means pure regalement of the senses. Rainbow, and that means the storm is over. Marriage supper, and that means gladdest festivity. Twelve manner of fruits and that means lucious and unending variety. Harp, trumpet, grand march, anthem, amen, and hallelujah, in the same orchestra. Choral meeting solo, and overture meeting antiphon, and strophe joining dithyramb, as they roll into the ocean of doxologies. And you and I may have all that, and have it forever through Christ, if we will let him with the blood of one wounded hand rub out our sin, and with the other wounded hand swing open the shining portals.

Day and night keep your window open toward that Jerusalem. Sing about it. Pray about it. Dream about it. Do not be inconsolable about your friends who have gone into it. Do not worry if something in your heart indicates that you are not far off from its ecstasies. Do not think that when a Christian dies he stops, for he goes on.

An ingenious man has taken the heavenly furlongs as mentioned in Revelation, and has calculated that there will be in heaven one hundred rooms sixteen feet square for each ascending soul, though this world should lose a hundred millions yearly. But all the rooms of heaven will be ours, for they are family rooms; and as no room in your house is too good for your children, so all the rooms of all the palaces of the heavenly Jerusalem will be free to God's children and even the throne-room will not be denied, and you may run up the steps of the throne, and put your hand on the side of the throne, and sit down beside the king according to the promise: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne."

But you cannot go in except as conquerors. Many years ago the Turks and Christians were in battle, and the Christians were defeated, and with their commander Stephen fled toward a fortress where the mother of this commander was staying. When she saw her son and his army in disgraceful retreat, she had the gates of the fortress rolled shut, and then from the top of the battlement cried out to her son, "You cannot enter here except as conqueror!" Then Stephen rallied his forces and resumed the battle and gained the day, twenty thousand driving back two hundred thousand. For those who are defeated in battle with sin and death and hell, nothing but shame and contempt; but for those who gain the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ the gates of the New Jerusalem will hoist, and there shall be an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord toward which you do well to keep your windows open.

An Unpopular Minister.

It was one of those cozy villages of bonnie Scotland, where gossip is the chief barter and church the chief duty of every "mon" and all the "weem-in." For once gossip and church were traveling the same way, for Dougald McSorlie, the minister, had suddenly grown unpopular, and the numbers of his congregation were steadily diminishing.

No one knew better than he that something must be done; so he concluded to do a little house to house missionary work, and thus arouse more interest in church affairs.

But his enthusiasm was short lived. The first man he accosted was Donald Campbell, a sturdy old Scot of well-known free-thinking tendencies.

"Tonalid," began the minister, "for why were ye no' at the kirk last Sabbath?"

"I was at Mr. McShouter's kirk, meenister."

This was hardly the reply that was expected, but the minister continued, with added gravity: "I dinna like ye rinnin' about the strange kirk i' this way. I am pairfectly sure ye yersel' widna like yer ain sheep strayin' awa' into strange pastures."

"I widna care a grain, meenister, gin it was better gress."—Boston Budget.

A Good Cheese.

How true it is that fame and fortune both hinge on some trivial circumstances. The most successful artist at the annual exhibition of the French Salon one year was a young gentleman named Baldwin Sowers.

Mr. Sowers' particular line is the delineation of still life, and so he painted a cheese.

After it was hung some malicious person slipped into the gallery the night before the exhibition and cut a round hole in the canvas, completely removing the cheese. When the examining committee were on their rounds they came to the defaced picture and angrily sent for the artist to give an explanation. An ordinary individual would have been overcome with despair at the outrage. Not so Mr. Sowers. When the chairman said, sternly: "Where is the cheese?" he responded calmly:

"Alas, gentlemen! I perceive I have painted it with too great fidelity. The mice have eaten it."—Exchange.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

THE bulletin recently published by Prof. H. L. Russell, of the Wisconsin Experiment Station, contains the following:

Pasteurized and sterilized milk does not suffer decomposition changes nearly as readily as ordinary milk. The heating process eliminates by far the larger portion of the bacteria present in the milk, and with this diminution there is a corresponding increase in the keeping properties of the product; either milk ought to remain sweet for a considerable longer period than raw milk. Pasteurized and often the sterilized product, however, undergo sooner or later a fermentation induced by the bacteria spores remaining in the milk. These changes differ from those remaining we observe in raw milk. The milk curdles, but the character of the curd is entirely different, and to the taste is not usually very sour. These conditions are brought about by the presence of bacteria that are able to excrete rennet, and the soft, jelly-like curd seen in bottled or heated milk is due to this ferment. Lactic acid or sour milk bacteria, as a rule, do not form spores, so they are easily destroyed by heat. The destruction of these widely-spread organisms leaves the milk seeded with a spore-bearing rennet and butyric acid bacteria, which brings the peculiar change which is noted in pasteurized or sterilized milk.

The physical characteristics of milk treated by heat compared with raw milk as a rule are much less certain. With the sterilized milk there is a marked change in the physical constitution of the milk that cannot be readily detected. The application of heat at a temperature exceeding 153 degrees F. for 15 to 20 minutes produces a coagulation of certain proteid elements, and at the same time the milk acquires a peculiar cooked taste. With pasteurized milk this change is not so apparent, in fact, no cooked flavor should be perceptible. The physical constitution of the milk is undoubtedly somewhat modified, even with the lower degree of heat used. This is shown in the way rennet acts on pasteurized milk. The coagulation produced by this chemical ferment is entirely different in character, and appears much more slowly than when acting in fresh milk.

For butter-making purposes, or for milk or cream consumed directly, the pasteurized process seems to have no injurious effects on the physical constitution of the material. Butter can be made from pasteurized cream, and aside from the difference in flavor, which is produced, there is no observable difference in the texture of grain of the product.

Pasteurized cream can also be used indiscriminately for ordinary purposes, for ice-cream, whipped cream, and for general use. Milk treated by the pasteurized process yields as large a percent of butter fat, when separated or raised by the gravity system, as the raw milk. By either process the milk is freed from any diseased bacteria that may have been derived from the cow, or may have fallen into the milk after the milk has been drawn from the animal.

Pigeons for Profit.

It was in the spring of 1880 that a large farmer was induced by the writer to breed common pigeons for profit. Accordingly six pairs of mated white and blue pigeons were sent from the city to the farm and a place boarded off for their accommodation above a part of the hay mow. The space was about 20x16 feet, with a door for the entrance, and a ladder extending from the upper beams of the barn. In the center of this room a square was partitioned off by railings. In this inclosure were spread sharp, coarse sand and gravel, the railing about the inclosure being necessary to prevent the pigeons from scattering the sand. A box in one corner of this inclosure was kept filled with egg-shells, broken mortar and clay in lumps. In another box at the opposite side a piece of rock salt was kept, all this being necessary to keep pigeons in health. The nest boxes were made of low, shallow soap boxes. A box 10x12 inches square and 3 inches deep serves the purpose. Some of these boxes were nailed a few feet above the door, some higher up, and quite a number were put on the floor. Any place will suit a common pigeon. All being ready, the six pairs of birds were set at liberty in the coop. The light was admitted by a small window at the extreme end of the barn. In the course of a week after the pigeons were liberated in their new quarters two pair had built nests, a little hay for that purpose having been provided. The following week these had laid five eggs each, and the four other pairs were building their nests. Thus two pairs were on eggs and four others laying and ready to sit. The following week all were at work. Pigeons lay two eggs for each clutch. It takes eighteen days to hatch them, three to five weeks before they lay again. Usually a new setting of eggs may be expected three weeks after the first hatch. It takes the young ones five weeks to begin feeding themselves, but the male pigeon usually looks after them until they are able to attend to their own wants.

The first twelve months the six pair hatched and reared fully eleven pairs of young, or sixty-two pairs in all. These sold for $26.40, or 40 cents per pair, delivered in the city. It cost just $7.65 to feed and keep them. The profit is plainly visible. Who says pigeons are not worth their keeping? This old farmer was very bitter against pigeons of all kinds until convinced to the contrary. The next season he kept one hundred pairs of breeders, and his success was equal to the first season, but the first coop had to be enlarged. He tells me now that his pigeons keep himself and wife in shoes and clothes and leave something over.

One of the essential points in keeping pigeons is to have the sexes equal. If there is an extra male, he will make an attempt to secure a mate from the other males, and thus break up the matings as well as keep the colony in perpetual turmoil. He must be taken out, or a mate for him must be procured from elsewhere.—Ex.

A Cheap Silo.

The Colorado State Agricultural College is reported to have an underground silo which is certainly a miracle of cheapness of construction. It has a capacity of sixty-four tons and was built at a cost of forty-three cents for each ton of capacity, which would make $27.52 for the silo, or, including the cost of four partitions by which it is divided, the cost is placed at sixty-five cents a ton of capacity, which would make the total cost, including the partitions, $41.60. It is built on a spot which remains dry the whole year. Here a hole twenty feet square and eight feet deep was dug chiefly with a scraper and team. The stud-ding, two by six, rest on two by six inch sills and are held at the top by a plate of the same size. A single layer of unmatched boards lined with tar paper is held in place by perpendicular slats and these constitute the sheeting. Dirt is filled in against the sides. The silo has no roof and the silage is covered with straw and six inches of moistened dirt, which is said to preserve it well. A silo could hardly be provided for less money than this is said to have cost.

Raising Geese for the Liver.

It was an archbishop of Strasburg, a native of Toulouse, who introduced in the district during the last century the rearing of the Toulouse goose for its liver, says an English writer. In the region of the Garonne, the poorest of the humblest peasants rears every year a dozen geese, and fattens them on maize or millshorts. The goslings are brought up like the chickens and turkeys—members of the peasant's family. The geese are only reared for their liver; that, duly extracted, is sold, and the proceeds pay the rent. The flesh is kept by the family, and potted in melted lard, and this preserve enters into a variety of succulent dishes in the regions of Bordeaux, Pau, etc. The peasants flavor their cabbage soup with a little of it, and it is more liberally served at family fetes, and on holidays. The geese are kept confined and literally stuffed, until there follows a fatty degeneracy of the liver, and just as this shows itself with the animal and death is threatened, the bird goes to the block, and the liver, now developed into enormous proportions, goes to the epicure, who pays a fancy price for diseased liver.

Prof. Warrington has given the following figures as representing the fertility sold in $100 worth of the foods named: Eggs, $3.56; wheat, $42.25; milk, $14.08; cheese, $18.88, and timothy hay, $95.84. The above speak well for biddy, and comparatively so for milk, though the milk was figured on a higher basis of valuation by the quart than farmers realize. It brings out once more the great amount of fertility carried from the farm in the sales of timothy. Hay is a soil robber for the returns it gives to the exchequer.

Save the Feed.—With a short crop of hay reported from all of the principal hay growing states, he will certainly be a wasteful farmer who does not stack the straw carefully and preserve it in good condition for winter feeding. Choice new timothy hay is now selling for $12 to $13 in Chicago, and choice upland wild hay is bringing almost as much. At these prices we can well afford to sell hay and buy cheap by-products, if necessary, to feed with the straw and corn fodder. We do not advocate raising hay to sell, but we believe in holding the platter right side up after one year of panic and another of drouth.—Farm and Dairy.

Some of the Japanese postmen make their rounds mounted on bicycles.

Greased the Wrong End.

An old gentleman, before getting into an express at Euston, tipped the guard and said: "I wish you would make sure of catching the 11:45 at Crewe."

The guard goes to the engine-driver, who has been a witness of the tipping business, and says: "Here, Billy, this gentleman wants to catch the 11:45 at Crewe."

They arrived at Crewe just in time to see 11:45 leaving the station.

Old gentleman, in a rage, to the driver: "Weren't you told to catch the 11:45?"

Impassive driver, with a solemn wink: "Yes, sir; but you greased the wrong end of the train."

Our old friend will tip the driver next time he wants to travel unusually fast.—London Answers.

Unexpected.

He had been trying to impress upon the children in the school, in the capacity of a temperance lecturer, that though it was right and proper to relieve suffering and poverty, it was much better to find out the cause of it all—drink, of course—and remove that; and so with everything.

"Now," said he, "suppose your father one morning came downstairs and on going to the cellar found it flooded; what would he do first? Would he begin bailing the water out?"

"No! of course not."

"Now, what would be the first thing he would do?"

After a short silence, a shrill, piping voice cried out:

"Why, he'd carry on awful!"—Ex.

Absentminded.

"I believe that absentmindedness is a sort of insanity," declared Mr. Boggs as he walked down town with his friend Beggs. "The extraordinary freaks of persons afflicted with it cannot be accounted for on any other reasonable hypothesis. Now, there is Fogg, who has worn glasses for ten years and can't see ten feet ahead of him, walked clear down to his office the other day before he discovered that he had left his glasses at home. That must be temporary suspension of intelligence."

Boggs started to bite off the end of a cigar.

No Brains to Speak Of.

Dudley Canesucker went into a restaurant on Broadway and gave an order for some fried calf brains. After he had waited almost half an hour Dudley said to the waiter: "Well, what about the calf brains?" The waiter shook his head and intimated that the outlook was gloomy.

"What is the matter with my brains?"

"There ain't any, that's all," replied the waiter, looking at Dudley sadly.

Let It Rest.

Jonesy came home very late the other night, and his wife found a suspicious lump of chalk in his pocket. "I wish you'd give up those horrid billiards that keep you out so late," she observed, "and take a longer rest."

"My dearsh," he replied, huskily, "I took the longest rest there was and then I couldn't see the ball when I tried to strike it!"—Ex.

What the Nations Eat.

A statistician compiles the following figures, showing the cost of nourishment for the various nations: The average Englishman consumes $250 worth of food a year; Germans and Austrians, $216 worth; Frenchmen, $212; Italians, $110, and the Russians only $96 worth of eatables per year. In the consumption of meat the English-speaking nations are also in the lead, with 128 pounds of meat a year per capita of the population, the Frenchman using 95 pounds; Austrians, 79; Germans, 72; Italians, 52, and Russians 50 pounds of meat per year. The consumption of bread, however, is reversed, being compared to that of meat. The English use 410 pounds a year; the Frenchman, 595; the Austrians, 605; Germans, 620; Spanish, 640; Italians, 660; and the Russians, 725 pounds of bread per year.

Killed in Crossing the Railroad tracks at Cary.

Sunday afternoon two young men of Nunda, Charles Sweet and Lewis Cox, hired a rig of Thomas' livery, and jokingly remarked they were going for a pleasure drive.

They left Nunda at 1 o'clock and at about 8:45 o'clock that evening they were returning by way of Cary. As they approached the railroad crossing they did not notice a train bearing down at a terrific speed. When they reached the middle of the tracks the train, which proved to be the St. Paul limited, struck them, killing both young men and the horse instantly.

At the coroners inquest held over the remains of the two bodies, the jury brought in a verdict holding the railroad company responsible for the accident.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE PARTY.

Mrs. C. M. Vermilya gave her son, Harry, a pleasant surprise Monday evening, the occasion being the celebration of his 21st birthday. A short musical program, in which H. A. The guests were served with dainty refreshments. A number of useful presents were received. Among those present were:

Misses Sadie Hutchinson, Rose L. Sott, Maude E. Otis, Nellie Gray, Lydia Robertson, and Helen Kusche, of Oshkosh, Wis.

On last Saturday the Palatine Stars crossed bats with the Barrington Second nine. The game was a one-sided one from the start, our boys just walking away with the game. The score stood 30 to 6. Theodore Suhr umpired the game, and Eddie Ernst kept track of the score. The Palatine's took their defeat like little gentlemen. Quite a number of spectators enjoyed the game.

The Barrington Maroons went to Elgin last Saturday to play ball, but through some misunderstanding they were not expected. However, the South Elgin nine tackled them and were worsted by a score of 8 to 12. An enthusiastic crowd from Elgin was present.

Today will mark an epoch in the history of the Maroons. They play a strong nine, and the game will, no doubt, be the best of the season. Go up to Wauconda to win, boys.

Since its opening as a continuous vaudeville theatre the Olympic in Chicago has made the most astonishing success ever known in that city. No such programmes have ever before been provided for the patrons of a variety theatre. Each week the bill is changed, and the best stars from Europe and of this country succeed each other. The Olympic is recognized as the leading variety house in the country. It is located on Clark street just north of Randolph, and is within a stone's throw of the courthouse. The matinees are especially well patronized by ladies. The prices are 10, 20 and 30 cents.

He Knew Her Perfectly.

The outspoken ways and caustic sayings of Dr. Jephson of Leamington, celebrated in the forties and fifties, have furnished the kernel of many anecdotes. One day he was called on by one whom Brantome would have called "une grande dame de par la monde," the Marchioness of —. Having listened to a description of her malady, the oracle pronounced judgment:

"An egg and a cup of tea for breakfast, then walk for two hours; a slice of cold beef and half a glass of madeira for luncheon, then walk again for two hours; fish, except salmon, and a cutlet or wing of fowl for dinner, with a single glass of madeira or claret; to bed at 10 and rise at 6, etc. No carriage exercise, please."

"But, doctor," she exclaimed at last, thinking he was mistaken in his visitor, "pray, do you know who I am? Do you know—ahem!—my position?"

"Perfectly, madame," was the reply. "I am prescribing for an old woman with a deranged stomach."—Nineteenth Century.

A Reminder.

"I do not hesitate, Mr. Stalate," she remarked gently, "to say that you are a young man of excellent habits, but I am very much afraid that you would spend too much of your time away from home."

"Why do you think so?"
"Because," and she yawned a little, "you spend so much time away from home now."—Washington Star.

Heat and the Eyes.

The fact appears that there is a very marked difference in the way temperature is borne by the eyes when it is below 2,000 degrees F. and when above that heat. Up to such a degree a man can look at the metal in a furnace with comparative ease, but before it reaches 3,000 degrees he is compelled to wear colored glasses.
