Says a contemporary: "One of the first uses to which the current generated at the large Niagara Falls electric plant has been put is the manufacture of aluminium from bauxite by electrolysis. What the value of such a source of electric current may be to factories in the neighborhood of Niagara, to say nothing of those at a distance, is suggested by the fact that, although the present aluminium works are constructed to produce 5,000 pounds of pure aluminium a day, the complete success of the electrolytic process has convinced the management that the doubling of the resources of the factory by its means is a comparatively simple matter. More pots are to be put in as rapidly as possible, until 10,000 pounds of the pure metal, worth in small quantities 50c a pound, is being turned out daily."

CHICAGO THEATERS.

AMUSEMENT ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK

What the Managers of the Various City Play-Houses Offer Their Patrons—Drama, Vaudeville and Operatic Engagements.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—The Garrick Burlesque Company in "Thrilly" begin their second and final week at the Chicago Opera House next Sunday evening, November 10. The company was organized by Mr. Richard Mansfield, and the burlesque was produced at his theater in New York, the Garrick, for nearly 100 nights, where it tested the capacity of this beautiful theater. During the run of "Thrilly" in New York and Boston, the entire press spoke of the original ideas, scenes and music, and gave Mr. Herbert, the author, the highest praise for his work. "Thrilly" will be produced in Chicago with the same cast, the original scenery and effects that made it so successful in the East. The company comprises such well-known people as Elvia Crox Seabrooke, Carrie Perkins, Margaret MacDonald, Jennie Reynolds, Gertrude Murray, Gracey Scott, Edyth Murray, Alice Lorraine, Sol. Aiken, Louis Westley, Joseph Roberts, George Herbert, R. P. Crollins, Mark Murphy, Willis P. Sweatnam and a chorus and ballet of 50. The orchestra at the Chicago Opera House will be augmented during this engagement.

M'VICKER'S THEATER.—Aside from the literary and dramatic worth of Sidney R. Ellis' romantic singing play, "Bonnie Scotland," which will be one of the big successes the coming season, a number of novelties are introduced that will be of special interest to theater-goers. A band of royal bagpipers, under the direction of Prof. Robert Ireland, of Glasgow, who has the diamond medal for being the champion player of the Scotch bag-pipe, will discourse characteristic Scotch melodies while clad in the picturesque costume of highland bag-pipe players. A corps of Scotch dancers will execute Terpsichorean diversions that will include all the historic and picturesque dances of Scotland, under the leadership of Prof. Wm. Cameron.

Dramatic Notes.
Just thirty-eight years ago last Tuesday McVicker's Theater was thrown open to the public for the first time, Nov. 5, 1857. During all this time Mr. McVicker has never relinquished the management and has only once veered from the policy originally adopted by him, and that was when he changed from a stock company system to the present combination system. The first theater was entirely destroyed in the great fire of 1871, and the present building has been once burned out. It has also been remodeled and improved on three occasions. McVicker's theater promises to be a lasting monument to the generous and whole-souled veteran actor-manager, Mr. J. H. McVicker.

Mr. E. H. Sothern at the close of the engagement at the Lyceum Theater, New York, will come to Hooley's with his great success, "The Prisoner of Zenda." Manager Powers succeeded in adding two weeks to the time originally booked. The date is early in December.

Frank Cushman, the well-known minstrel performer and black-face comedian, will be tendered a testimonial at the Schiller Theater on Sunday evening, November 10. A big programme will be prepared, there being already some forty or fifty volunteers. Henry Guy Carleton's new play, "Ambition" is said to give Nat Goodwin an excellent opportunity to demonstrate his ability as an actor who has mastered both serious and comic methods. The play deals with political life in Washington and in some respects is similar to "The Senator." Mr. Goodwin's part is that of a prominent politician, whose party ambitions are played upon by schemers who wish to silence his outspoken opposition to a corrupt measure. In the cast are national legislators, diplomats and lobbyists, and the principal objection to the play is that these notables are made too informally American and too much like ward politicians. The play has made a good impression in New York and will doubtless be brought to Chicago.

DEATH OF ENGHEN.

ONE OF THE BLACKEST BLOTS IN CAREER OF NAPOLEON.

Taken from Prison at Night and Shot by the Glare of Torches—His Brave Bearing to the End—His Last Act on Earth.

THE SCENES OF that awful night defy description. The castle of Vincennes was beset with guards when finally, at about an hour before midnight, the various members of the court assembled. Their looks were dark and troubled as they wondered who the mysterious culprit might be. None knew but Hulin the president, the judge-advocate, and Savary the destined executioner. In a neighboring room was the duke, pale and exhausted by his long journey, munching a slender meal, which he shared with his dog, and explaining to his jailer his doleful thoughts at the prospect of a long imprisonment. It would be ameliorated if only he could gratify his passion for hunting, and surely they two, as prisoner and keeper, might range the forest in company. But at last he fell asleep from sheer fatigue.

The jailer, Harel, a picked man who had kept guard over Arena and his fellows (who, it will be recalled, had been executed on unproved charges of conspiracy to assassinate Bonaparte), was a sometime fiery Jacobin. He could not well encourage the expectations of his new prisoner, dreary as they were, for he had that morning supervised the digging of a grave in the castle moat. At midnight the duke was awakened and confronted with the judge-advocate. Réal was unaccountably absent, and the interrogatory so carefully prepared by the chief magistrate was not at hand. To the rude questions formulated by Hulin, with the aid of a memorandum from Murat, the prisoner, in spite of repeated hints from the members of the court-martial as to the consequences, would only reply that he had a pension from England, and had applied to her ministers for military service; that he hoped to fight for his cause with troops raised in Germany from among the disaffected and the emigrants; that he had already fought against France. But he stoutly denied any relations with Darnouriez or Pichegru and all knowledge of the plot to assassinate the First Consul.

He was then called to the bar in the dimly lighted sitting-room where the commission sat. To the papers containing questions and answers he was ironically permitted to affix a demand for an audience with the First Consul. "My name, my station, my mode of thought, and the horror of my situation," he said, "inspire me with hope that he will not refuse my request." The Revolutionary tribunal followed its instincts; its members, knowing well the familiar statutes under which such bodies had acted since the days of the Convention, but not having at hand the words or forms of a verdict as prescribed by the pitiless laws concerning those who had borne arms against France, left in the record a blank to be filled out later, and pronounced their judgement that the "regular sentence" be executed at once. They were actually engaged in composing a petition for clemency to the First Consul when Savary entered the room and informed himself of what had been done and what they were then doing. Snatching the pen from Hulin's hand, he exclaimed, "The rest is my affair," and left the room.

It was now two in the morning of the 21st. "Follow me," said the taciturn Harel, "and summon all your courage." A few paces through the moat, a turn of a corner, and the flare of torches displayed a file of troops not far from an open grave. As the adjutant began to read the sentence, the victim faltered for a moment and exclaimed, "Oh God! what have I done?" But in an instant he regained the mastery of himself. Calmly clipping a lock of his hair, and drawing a ring from his finger, he asked that they might be sent to the Princess Charlotte. A volley—and in an instant he was dead.

Little Martha Flays Detective.

Little Martha Flynn of Chicago, 7 years old, is probably the youngest detective on record. The other day she saw a colored boy snatch a lady's pocketbook. No policeman was in sight, but little Martha followed the boy and saw him mount a span of wooden zebras at a merry-go-round. Then she scampered to the nearest police station and excitedly told her story. An officer accompanied her to the merry-go-round, where she pointed out the young thief, who had spent 10 cents of the $5 contained in the stolen pocketbook, and said he had intended to spend the entire $5 on the zebras and thus break the record. Little Martha was given a bag of candy, and invited to call again when she had a hot tip.

AS SOMETIMES WRITTEN.

Queer Phrases of Native and Foreign Bookmakers.

All editors are astonished at the poor English written by many of their would-be contributors, whose spelling and penmanship indicate that they have had a fair degree of education. Usually this stupidity in the use and choice of words seems to arise from a lack in the sense of humor. Even a university course, as every one knows, cannot make up for this essential quality, which is absolutely necessary to literary success. A writer need not be humorous; but he must have a quick perception of what is ridiculous, in order to avoid making himself so.

Thus, only a person deficient in this vital respect could have written of her heroine that she had "deep, dark hair"; that she had "that rareness of expression which baffles the most learned to understand"; that "Maud had grown weary of setting in the porch"; that her lips were "wreathed in a smile that strangely reminded me of an angel"; and that "her strange nature enchained my fancy." Also, only such a one, or a person phenomenally ignorant, could conclude a stanza of poetry, as did one young woman, with the line:

May gladness and joy be your doom.
This individual may have been related to him who chanted:
"Oh, put me in no sepulchre,
Or dim vault, sad and gloomy;
But let my narrow bed be lain
Within some meadow roomy."

When even native Americans make such havoc with their language, it is not singular that foreigners have severe struggles to master it. Translators, who consider themselves competent to express in English the literature of their own lands, sometimes prove themselves amusingly unequal to the task. This was the case with the courageous gentleman who sent to an editor a story containing the following passages:

"He said with an air of most despising disdain."
"His whole attire gave him a most distinguished and gentlemanly appearance."
"Oh" burst Marguerite, terrified.

"To solicit in the name of the German Republic, the annexation of his native city to France."

"He wore velvet trouser, all spotted with ink."

"He was beginning to resume himself."

"It seemed as though his heart would bound from its envelope."

"She gave him by look a most elegant thank."

"The rain, pushed by the wind, beat-ed his handsome face."

PRaise OF THE MOUTH.

The Picayune's Rhapsodist Eulogizes This Useful Member.

Some one has fallen in love with a mouth, and his mouth is full of praise and song. To him some mouths look like peaches and cream, some like a hole chopped in a brick wall to admit a door or window. The mouth is a hot-bed of toothaches and a baby's crowning glory. It is patriotism's fountain head, and the tool chest for pie. Without it the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth, and the cornetist would go down to an unhonored grave. It is the grocer's friend, the orator's pride and the dentist's hope. Rosalind wished all her friends were one mouth so that she might kiss it. Much more than a mustache depends upon the mouth.—New Orleans Picayune.

What Is an Edition?

London Graphic: What is an edition? Does it consist of 1,000 volumes or of 500 or fifty or five? The word is not a technical term like "gross" or "dozen" or any like expression bearing a fixed numerical significance, and there is, of course, no reason why it should not mean anything from the lowest to the highest of these numbers, according to the taste and fancy or it may be the tactics, of the particular publisher who employs it. Only now that that enterprising person shows himself so anxious to keep the public regularly informed as to the sales of the works issuing from his house it might be as well to come to some understanding on this point. We know what is meant when we read that Miss Ahena Daring's new novel is "in its twentieth thousand," whereas that statement that it is "in its forty-fifth edition" conveys to us simply no information at all.

Some Strange Visiting Cards.

Calling in Corea must be a very difficult performance, if, as a London journal has recently stated, the ordinary visiting cards there are a foot square. The same journal goes on to say that the savages of Dahomey announce their visits to each other by a wooden board or the branch of a tree artistically carved. This is sent on in advance, and the visitor, on taking leave, pockets his card, which probably serves him for many years. The natives of Sumatra also have a visiting card, consisting of a piece of wood about a foot long and decorated with a bundle of straw and a knife.

MADE A RICH HAUL.

TWO BOLD ROBBERS SECURE $20,000.

Wells-Fargo Company's Safe in the Santa Fe Depot at Colorado Springs Looted—Agent Compelled to Open the Strong Box.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Special: A few minutes after midnight Monday night news reached police headquarters that the Santa Fe Wells-Fargo express agent at this point had been held up and relieved of $20,000 in cash.

The Santa Fe fast Chicago train arrived here at 9:42 and stopped. The agent, George Krout, stepped out on the platform to attend to the express matter, and after arranging everything waved his hand at the messenger on the train and it pulled out of the depot, south-bound toward Pueblo.

The train moved out and after its departure the night agent busied himself as is customary for a time on the platform arranging matters for a later train.

The departing train was out of sight in a few moments around the bend in the road and the agent was on the point of turning back into the station when someone commanded:

"Throw up your hands."
He whirled around to see two short, thick-set and heavily masked men, each of whom held a revolver in his hands. "Move quick, and get into the station," came the order.

The agent passed back into the room, where he was told to open the safe. This he at first refused to do, but the cold steel of the muzzle of the revolvers staring him in the face was too much for him. He started to say something, but was told to keep quiet.

When the robbers first entered the place they found a $15,000 package lying on the table. This Krout told them was all he had, but he finally admitted that there was $5,000 more in the safe. They forced him to open the strong box and give them the $5,000, but when he closed the door he shut in $35,000 that the robbers knew nothing about.

FREEDMAN'S AID SOCIETY.

Gathering of Representative Methodist Clergymen at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Representatives of the Freedman's Aid and Southern Educational Societies of the Methodist Episcopal church met yesterday at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. R. S. Rust, of Cincinnati, who is spoken of as the founder of the society, gave a brief account of its origin and history. The first business of the meeting was to hear the report of the board of managers for the years 1894 and 1895, which was read by Dr. J. C. Hartzell. In brief the report shows that during the past year forty-four institutions of learning have been maintained. Of these twenty-two are among the colored people, with 304 teachers and 4,845 students. Twenty-two schools are among the white people, with 169 teachers and 2,880 students, thus giving a teaching force of 473 and a total enrollment of 8,725. The school property is valued at $1,969,800, of which $1,691,800 is owned by the society. During the year ending June 30, 1895, the total receipts were $367,860 and the expenditures were $358,560, leaving a balance in the treasury amounting to $9,369. Of the above amount $250,560 was expended directly in school work. The indebtedness of the society is $185,390. This morning the question of how the collections from the conferences can best be increased will be taken up. Tonight the greater part of the representatives present will leave for Denver to attend the session of the missionary society.

EUROPE IN A FLUTTER.

Dealers in Stocks Uneasy Over Rumors of War.

London, Nov. 12.—The stock markets here reflect the uncertainty on the continent over the rumors of war. The action of the Imperial Bank at Berlin in raising its discount rates and the fall of the price of securities in Paris left a general state of insecurity. Prices were better yesterday in all departments. The recovery would have been more marked but for the anxiety felt in regard to the coming settlement. A series of failures is feared here and abroad. It appears already that the

KINDLING A THANKSGIVING FIRE.

WITH PROSPECTS OF A LIVELY TIME AT THE FEAST.

Krout was then made to undress himself and go to bed and cover himself, and while lying there the thieves made their escape.

The place where the robbery occurred is on the outskirts of the town east of the city, and is brilliantly lighted by great arc electric lights on all sides. The place where the money was kept was in a small house two hundred yards from the depot and divided into two compartments. Krout sleeps there.

There had been shipped by Wells-Fargo yesterday upward of $50,000 to the Cripple Creek gold fields, and the thieves must have known of it, for they were abrupt and seemed to know what they were doing.

They escaped in the direction of Pike's Peak avenue, and M. D. Andre, the Wells-Fargo head agent here, is now in pursuit with blood hounds.

Chicago Block Burned.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Fire which started in the factory building at 177 to 181 Division street last night at 11 o'clock did damage to the amount of $140,000. The building is a four-story and basement brick structure at Penn and Division streets, and was the property of the Jones estate. The three upper floors of the building were occupied by clothing manufacturers. All of these suffered total losses. The first floor and basement, which is occupied by a typewriter factory, were not so badly damaged. The value of the material and stock on these floors were placed at $150,000. It was estimated the loss would be at least one half of this amount. A large number of persons will be thrown out of employment until the various concerns can secure new quarters.

accounts of a firm interested in 60,000 shares, of which 30,000 are Chartered, are now being closed. Many others, mostly small, will, it is feared, succumb.

Paris, Nov. 12.—The Rappel says the great financial houses have decided to place at the disposal of the market from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 francs ($9,500,000 to $19,000,000) in order to facilitate a settlement. The speech of the marquis of Salisbury, delivered in London on Saturday last, has had a good effect here.

PATENT DECLARED INVALID.

United States Supreme Court Renders an Important Decision.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The United States Supreme court decided the important case of the Consolidated Electric Light company against the McKeesport Light company in favor of the defendants. The court holds the Sawyer-Mann patent invalid. The decision was handed down by Justice Brown.

The court denied the motion of the Bell Telephone company to dismiss the appeal of the United States in the case involving the Berliner speaking microphone. The court holds that it has jurisdiction to try the case.

Maxim Guns for Venezuela.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 12.—British Guiana advices report that Maxim guns have been started toward the Venezuelan frontier. The expedition consists of three guns, fifty men and nine canoes. A force of Venezuelan troops is supposed to be awaiting the arrival of the expedition, prepared to capture the guns. The Guiana newspapers ridicule what they term Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's opera-bouffe campaign.

CANADIAN OPINION.

SENTIMENT FAVORS WARSHIPS ON THE LAKES.

Our Northern Neighbor Interprets the Treaty on Broader Lines Than Does the United States—Her Armament Is Superior to Ours.

Opinion on the Canadian side of the line appears to differ from President Cleveland's interpretation of the treaty of 1817 regarding the right of Canada or the United States to build warships on the great lakes. Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian minister of justice, formerly minister of marine, being asked whether Canada has not infringed the treaty in constructing cruisers on the lakes, said they were only revenue cruisers. The treaty stipulates that the naval force of each country shall consist of not more than one vessel not exceeding 100 tons burden and armed with one 18-pound cannon on Lake Ontario, two such vessels on the upper lakes and one such vessel on Lake Champlain.

A doubt has arisen over the clause in which it was agreed that all other armed vessels on those lakes should be dismantled and that no other vessels of war should be there built or armed. The Canadian government has built three armed cruisers on the lakes since 1891—the Curfew, the Constance and the Petrel. The Constance and her sister ships are armed with three quick-firing guns, and are far superior to the boats maintained on the lakes by the United States revenue department, and in case they were ever needed for such purpose they would make very formidable lake commerce destroyers.

It will be an interesting question to solve as to how far the equipment and armor of a revenue cruiser may be carried in her construction, and where the line is to be drawn between a revenue cruiser, available for revenue purposes only, and that may be put to more severe defensive or offensive purposes when national exigencies demand it.

USES STRONG LANGUAGE.

Capt. Miller Says Spaniards Have No Respect for Our Flag.

New York, Nov. 12.—Captain Frank L. Miller, of the American brig Harriet G., which on leaving the Cuban port of Nuevitas, October 3, was searched by Spaniards, who claimed to be looking for arms, said last night: "It has been incorrectly stated that I was not flying the stars and stripes when the search was made. This was not the case. The search was made by nine men, under the leadership of a Spanish officer. My protests were unavailing. The American consul witnessed part of the search and joined in the protest. It was useless, however. The Spaniards don't care a continental for American rights and would insult our flag whenever opportunity offered. Had my vessel flown the British flag not a Spaniard would have dared attempt a search."

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, Nov. 12.—The visible supply of grain Saturday, Nov. 9, as compiled by the New York produce exchange, is as follows: Wheat, 56,937,000 bushels; increase, 3,947,000. Corn, 4,627,000; decrease, 227,000. Oats, 5,289,000; increase, 290,000. Rye, 1,160,000; increase 96,000. Barley, 3,840,000; increase, 467,000.

Additional Indemnity to Be Paid.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The Japanese minister has received a telegram to the effect that a convention has been signed at Peking providing for the payment of an additional indemnity by China for the evacuation of the Liao Tung peninsula. The amount is 30,000,000 taels, and is to be paid Nov. 16, 1895.

The daily papers of Chicago have come to the inevitable point of "root, hog or die." They are now selling their papers for 1c in the city, and we predict it will not be long before they will extend this rate to outside points also. Chicago has the best papers of any city in the world, and the prices are the lowest. There is not a 2c paper printed in Chicago—all coming down to 1c. Good, brethren, go it for all it is worth.

Barrington should and must see to it that the roads leading to her gates are kept in passable condition during winter months if they wish the trade of the farmers in the surrounding country. Why, it is almost wellnigh impossible to get through the mud between here and Lake Zurich in winter, and with one or two exceptions the rest are quite as bad. Let's organize into a "committee of the whole" on good roads. THE REVIEW would like to hear from parties interested, especially from farmers.

One good thing which is being pushed by our village authorities is the sidewalk along the north side of Main street between Ela and Williams streets. When all the property owners have complied with the notice served on them it will make a better appearance and be less dangerous to travel after dark. There are lots of other walks, though, that need attention just as bad, and our village authorities must see to it that they are given immediate attention lest some may form the opinion that they are extending privileges to some while others are compelled to live strictly up to the law. Keep the good work up, gentlemen; and you will gain the gratitude of our fellow citizens.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE INTERESTING TO YOUNG MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

TO SCARE BURGLARS

A FEW DEVICES SOMEWHAT OUT OF THE COMMON RUN.

They May Happen to Frighten People Who Are Not Burglars, but There Is No Doubt That Most of Them Are Calculated to Scare Every Time.

A little party of women, brought together last week by a family reunion over in Brooklyn, had under debate a communication recently printed in The Sun respecting domestic devices to serve as burglar alarms.

"We believe in tin," said one. "John cut a little groove like half of an auger hole across the tops of the front and back doors, a few inches back from the outer edge, and before we go to bed we poke into each one a stick supporting some old tinware on the extreme end. A leaky watering pot, with some old tin-cups inside, hangs on one, and on the other an old dishpan, with a couple of baking tins tied to it. So long as the door stays shut nothing happens, but if it is pushed open the least mite of a crack down comes the tinware with a clatter fit to wake up everybody in the ward."

"That's all well enough for your doors, but how about the windows? A thief can open one of these new fangled catches by pulling a table knife up between the sashes, as easy as you'd say scat."

"But that wouldn't open our windows. John has bored holes slanting in through the window casing into the sashes and put long iron pins in them. It is just as if every window was nailed fast, and a burglar, to get in, would have to cut away the whole sash."

"Did any of you ever try newspapers?" asked another. "No? Well, let me assure you, from my own experience, there is nothing better. Lay one or two dry newspaper sheets in the lower hall and pin a couple on the stairs. It is impossible to step on them without making a noise that, in the stillness of night, would surprise you if you never tried it before. And you can't pick them up or fold them or slide them out of the way or step over them without more noise. As for the ones on the stairs, they are simply the thief's despair. My husband jumped at me when I first put them down, but within a week, as it happened, their efficacy was proved. I was awakened one night by the rustling of paper in the hall below and awoke my husband. We lay quiet and listened. Presently there was another rustle. Then a long silence. Then more rustling, and as the sound of it died away we could hear somebody swearing in a whisper. It was so funny that my husband burst into a roar of laughter, and the fellow down stairs jerked the front door open and fled."

"I don't think scaring a burglar away is enough punishment for him," commented an elderly woman. "He ought to be hurt somehow. Mr. B. thinks so, too, and his 'warm welcome for the uninvited' is something that, as he says, 'just about fills the bill.' The bolts on our front door and the arc light before it free us of all apprehensions of attack from that direction, but twice our house was entered by petty thieves through the back door, which faces a dark garden and is in the shadow of a vine covered porch. The second time inspired Mr. B. with an idea. At one side of the door, about the height of a man's face, he fastened to the wall a springy bamboo cane, with a tin cap wired to its free end. During the day it can be turned up on the wall out of the way, but at night, when he sets it for business, it is sprung out about 1 1/2 feet and held there by a short stick and a figure 4 trigger so set that opening the door will trip it. The tin cap, I omitted to mention, holds a good ounce of cayenne pepper."

"For a month after Mr. B. rigged that contrivance up nothing happened, and he was getting low spirited over the neglect of the burglars to take note of his new invention. Then, one night, the sharp 'spang' of the cane against the wall rang sharply all through the house and woke us up. That was followed immediately by language on the back porch fit to make your blood run cold. We got to the window in time to see two men in the garden, one leading the other, who was howling and swearing terribly. We fancied that some of the pepper had got into his eyes. Before Mr. B. could get his pistol they had disappeared in the shrubbery, and we have not been troubled since."

"That trigger, set to go off when the door was opened," remarked another woman, "reminds me of a horrid thing my husband brought home with him from a trip out west last year. It was like a pistol barrel, with a long screw on one side for fixing it to the door frame and a long spring on the other to project over the edge of the door. A little touch would make the spring fall hard on a cap and fire the thing off. The first night after Jack got home, when I was setting a chair upside down against the door, as I always did, he stopped me and put on his new contraption. When I got up first in the morning, as usual, I had forgotten all about that thing, which was down as low as my knees, and did not notice it when I went to go out. Then it suddenly seemed to me as if the world had exploded. The thing had worked all right, and in addition to making a noise louder than the sunset gun at the fort, had riddled the vestibule wall with buckshot. Jack said 'it would have filled a burglar's legs with lead,' and I believed him, but I never would allow him to put it on the door again. One such scare is enough for a lifetime."—New York Sun.

RED TAPE IN SENEGAL

How a Traveler May Get a Bath in That Country.

A young French explorer, M. Gaston Donnet, contributes to Le Reve Bleue some vivid descriptions of the French colony of Senegal. The following happened at St. Louis, the capital, a dull, unprogressive French colonial town, eaten up with red tape and officialism. M. Donnet tells us that he and a fellow traveler wanted to take a bath. There is no establishment in the capital of Senegal. Rumor had it that it was possible to hire baths at the hospital. We asked, he says, one of the servants there for a bath.

"Certain. Take seats. Your names, surnames and birthplace?"

"But we only want a bath."

"Exactly. What is your name, and where and when were you born, and are you government servants, soldiers or officers? No. Well, the rules do not provide for this. Wait a minute. I will read them over again. Yes, here is your case. You first make out on stamped paper an application to the governor of the colony. After favorable notice from the governor you send another application to the chief colonial doctor, who will send for you and will examine you."

"But we are not ill."

"It is the rule. Having examined you, the doctor will give you two non-commissioned officers' bath tickets, to be delivered to the assistant doctor."

"Why non-commissioned officers' bath?"

"Mon Dieu! In our accounts we recognize only two categories of persons, officers and civil servants, the latter taking rank with officers. You are not official at all. If officers were to find you in their baths, they would probably make a row."

"How long will all these formalities take?"

"Oh, nothing at all—two or three days, provided that your application is approved at government house."

A MILLIONAIRE'S AMUSEMENT.

The Now Wealthy Ex-Junkman Spends His Time in Whittling.

A millionaire must be allowed to have some amusements, and if he is disposed to amuse himself in ways that would not be at all amusing to the big public made of men who are not millionaires he must certainly be accorded the privilege.

One of Chicago's greatest stockmen and packers was once a dealer in junk, and it is said that he once went about gathering old iron himself. Now he is reputed to be worth $25,000,000, and rumor says that he has his property in such shape that he could, if he chose, raise a larger sum in cash than any other man in Chicago.

Each morning the millionaire's man comes into his office with a bundle of clean pine sticks, which he places in a corner not far from the millionaire's desk. When the millionaire has read his morning mail, and business men come in to see him, he takes one of the sticks, and with a big, old-fashioned jackknife whittles it into bits, the shavings falling on the floor. Sometimes he walks up and down—he walks much—and whittles. By the time business is done for the day his office looks like a carpenter shop and the bundle of pine sticks has vanished. The harder the business problems he has to meet the harder he whittles. And that is the way he amuses himself.—Chicago Record.

The Making of Tubing.

One of the most important parts of the bicycle, because it is the most in evidence, is the tubing. The manufacture of tubing is now carried on to a large extent in this country, although it is but recently that the home production has reached a stage of perfection where it could successfully compete with that of the English concerns.

There are a number of methods of making tubing, but the one mostly in vogue at present is what is termed the cold drawn process, and it is of this style of tubing that all the high grade machines are at present being made. The machinery required is ponderous, and the power required to draw out a piece of steel without heating it is another exhibition of the perfection of modern machinery.

There are a number of variations to the method employed, one of which consists in taking a piece of steel in the shape of a bar or ingot. This is bored through the center. It is then passed through a die, after which it is heated and treated to a bath in a secret preparation which removes the temper that the drawing process imparts. This is repeated a number of times, and each die used is smaller than its predecessor, with the result that the tube grows smaller and longer. This is continued till the tube is the right diameter and gauge.—Chicago Tribune.

SOME PERSONAL PECULIARITIES.

Eccentricities That Fasten Themselves on Men With the Firmness of Habit.

The late Senator Reagan of Texas used to do his thinking with a short string on his fingers, and this string he wound up and twisted and untied and tied again mechanically as he followed the debate. Senator Vest always chews a quill toothpick. Carlisle used to tear paper into bits and drop the pieces one by one on the floor. The latter is a tobacco chewer and spitters when he talks, making it uncomfortable for the interviewer.

Max Freeman, the expert stage manager, pulls you by the coat lapel and then pushes you away with his thumb in the most embarrassing manner. He will suddenly pull you, and then, as if he feared you are likely to tread on him, push you away from him quite as unexpectedly.

Jim Thompson, who aspires to be the best dressed man in town, and comes pretty close to it, has been trying to raise a mustache, but his habit of fingering one side of it wears that section out, and then the whole must be shaved off and he has to begin over again.

A gentleman comes down through Herald square every day who may be seen glancing at his left shoulder and flicking at it with his right hand. There isn't anything there—not even the nap of his coat, which he has thus worn away. Yet he will keep pecking at it about twice a minute. Another man of my acquaintance is always glancing from one shoulder to the other, as if to see if they are yet really there. A popular Pittsburger on the square sounds your lungs with his forefinger while he talks to you—tapping away like a woodpecker on a hollow limb. Another from the same burg—a good story teller—always emphasizes his stories with liberal punches in your ribs.—New York Herald.

His Words Verified.

About 25 years ago a certain southern man brought a suit against the South Carolina railroad for damages to his property. He lost the case in the superior court, but insisted upon carrying it to the supreme court, where he represented his own cause. He began his argument by saying whimsically:

"May it please the court, there is an old French adage which says, 'A man who is his own lawyer hath a fool for a client.'"

The next week the supreme court pronounced its decision, which was adverse to the southerner. He was in Augusta at the time, but received the announcement of his second and final disappointment by means of a telegram sent him by a prominent judge, who was an intimate friend of his.

The telegram read as follows: "Judgment for defendant in error. French adage affirmed by supreme court."—Youth's Companion.

A Bird's Revenge.

A lady who was one day watching a pair of redstarts as they worked in a tree was startled by a violent commotion that arose in the shrubbery hard by. Catbirds screamed, wrens scolded and the robins shouted "Quick!" with all their might. A chipmunk was dragging a baby catbird by the leg from its nest and all the birds round about had come to help make a row about it, including a Baltimore oriole. The screaming and the swish of wings as the birds darted about made the squirrel abandon its prey and then the commotion subsided as quickly as it had risen. All the birds but the oriole went about their business elsewhere. The oriole had not said a word so far, and beyond the countenancing the hubbub by his presence had had no part in it.

The squirrel, having dropped the baby catbird, cocked itself upon a limb and began to chatter in a defiant way, while the oriole sat not far away looking at it, but doing nothing else. But in a few moments the squirrel left its seat and ran out on the limb it had been sitting on until it had to use care to keep its hold, and then the oriole's opportunity for a terrible assault had come. Flashing across the space he struck the chipmunk in one eye with his sharp pointed beak, and then turning instantly struck the other eye in a like manner. Quivering with pain, the squirrel let go the limb and dropped to the ground, where it rolled and struggled about apparently in the throes of death. The oriole flew away to his favorite elm, where he sang in his most brilliant fashion. The lady put the squirrel out of its misery and then saw that the oriole had destroyed both eyes.—Chicago Record.

His English Fit.

"What makes the rhinoceros so sulky today?" asked the gun. "Some one told him his clothes did not fit him," explained the springbok. "Dear me! And he is very angry at that? He is so thin skinned."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Memorial to Her Pet.

Lowell has on one of her roadsides a large urn, which is kept constantly filled with fresh flowers at the expense of a wealthy lady who resides in the vicinity as a memorial to her pet poodle, which was killed by the cars at that point.—Boston Herald.

MINISTRY OF WOMEN.

Growth of Order of Deaconesses in the Episcopal Church.

The ministry of women in the church has always been a potent factor in the influence of Christianity, says the Churchman. A great impulse was given to the somewhat desultory and in some ways irregular work of women in the field of evangelization by the passage of the canon of deaconesses in the general convention of 1889. Mrs. Twing, in her fourth triennial report of the woman's auxiliary, draws attention to evidence, derived from her wide travels, of how literally the church was taken at her word in passing this admirable canon. Deaconesses are actively engaged in prosecuting their ministry in fourteen diocese and missionary jurisdictions of this country. The dignity and power given by the diaconate to female workers has resulted in commending the deaconess movement in all quarters. Two admirable schools are now flourishing, one in New York, the other in Philadelphia, where ladies of cultivation and refinement are studying the practical, intellectual and devotional sides of their future profession. From many large cities and from large parishes in other quarters calls are constantly being made for the services of women, thus prepared, trained and set apart. It has been found that a deaconess becomes an almost indispensable agent in carrying on certain branches of philanthropic and eleemosynary work in a parish. A new race of educated Sunday school teachers and superintendents is also being introduced into the city parishes, in the persons of deaconesses who have undergone a theological course before venturing to teach children what they ought to know and believe for their soul's health. As teachers, nurses, visitors of the sick and of the poor deaconesses have proved a godsend to many a parish. We are not, therefore, surprised to find that in the far east the missionary churches are seeking to strengthen the hands of the clergy by instituting deaconesses. Mrs. Twing tells us that a canon of deaconesses, a translation into Japanese of the American canon, is now before the church in Japan and will be acted upon at the next synod. The bishop has already four candidates for the sacred and honorable office. This is a very hopeful prospect. We quite expect, before long, to see educated women from all parts of the country seeking in the diaconate a sphere of activity, which is among the most exalted and useful to be found. The training schools in New York and Philadelphia are already pretty well supplied with students, but this growing movement will, ere long, necessitate much larger institutions for the satisfaction of its requirements.

Marriages of College Women.

Under 25 years old, college women rarely marry; of 277 graduates of the latest three classes, but ten are married. If these youngest classes are left out of account, so that we consider only women who have passed 25, we find 32.7 per cent married; after the age of 30 is passed, 43.7; after 35, the rate becomes 49.7; while of those who have passed 40 years, 54.5 per cent are married. The census tables do not fix exactly the general marriage rate for women of this age, but it is not far from 90 per cent. The ultimate probability of a college woman's marriage, therefore, seems to be below 55 per cent, against 90 per cent for other women—not quite two-thirds as great.

Desperate Redeemers.

The patients at the Topeka Insane Asylum are writing letters to republican papers defending republican management of that institution. Hitherto that duty has fallen upon the editors of those papers and the lunatics in the asylum evidently think so bad, a mess has been made of it that it is necessary for them to help the editors out. The two efforts are so similar in character that it would be difficult to distinguish the one from the other if it were not for the headlines under which they are published.—Advocate.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"HANDWRITING ON THE WALL" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

"When God Writes Anything on the Wall a Man Had Better Read It as It Is"—The Opening and the Close of Sin's Banquet.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—Since his coming to Washington, Dr. Talmage's pulpit experience has been a remarkable one. Not only has the church in which he preaches been filled, but the audiences have overflowed into the adjoining streets to an extent that has rendered them impassable. Similar scenes were enacted at to-day's services when the preacher took for his subject: "Handwriting on the Wall," the text chosen being Dan. 5: 30, "In that night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain."

Night was about to come down on Babylon. The shadows of her two hundred and fifty towers began to lengthen. The Euphrates rolled on, touched by the fiery splendors of the setting sun; and gates of brass, burnished and glittering, opened and shut like doors of flame. The hanging gardens of Babylon, wet with the heavy dew, began to pour, from staff flowers and dripping leaf, a fragrance for many miles around. The streets and squares were lighted for dance and frolic—and promenades. The theaters and galleries of art invited the wealth, and pomp, and grandeur of the city to rare entertainments. Scenes of riot and wastefulness were mingled in every street; and godless mirth, and outrageous excess and splendid wickedness came to the king's palace, to do their mightiest deeds of darkness.

A royal feast to-night at the king's palace! Rushing up to the gates are chariots, upholstered with precious cloths from Dedan, and drawn by fire-eyed horses from Togarmah, that rear and neigh in the grasp of the charioteers, while a thousand lords dismount, and women, dressed in all the splendors of Syrian emerald, and the color-bleeding of agate, and the chasteness of coral, and the sombre glory of Tyrian purple, and princely embroideries, brought from afar by camels across the desert, and by ships of Tarshish across the sea.

Open wide the gates and let the guests come in. The chamberlains and cup-bearers are all ready. Hark to the rustle of the silks, and to the carol of the music! See the blaze of the jewels! Lift the banners. Fill the cups. Clap the cymbals. Blow the trumpets. Let the night go by with song, and dance, and ovation; and let that Babylonish tongue be palsied that will not say, "O, King Belshazzar, live forever!"

Ah! my friends, it was not any common banquet to which these great people came. All parts of the earth had sent their richest viands to that table. Brackets and chandeliers flashed their light upon tankards of burnished gold. Fruits, ripe and luscious, in baskets of silver, entwined with leaves, plucked from royal conservatories. Vases, inlaid with emerald and ridged with exquisite traceries, filled with nuts that were threshed from forests of distant lands. Wine brought from the royal vats, foaming in the decanters and bubbling in the chalices. Tufts of cressia and frankincense wafting their sweetness from wall and table. Gorgeous banners unfolding in the breeze that came through the open window, bewitched with the perfumes of hanging gardens. Fountains rising up from inclosures of ivory, in jets of crystal, to fall in clattering rain of diamonds and pearls. Statues of mighty men looking down from niches in the wall upon crowns and shields brought from subdued empires. Idols of wonderful work standing on pedestals of precious stones. Embroideries stooping about the windows and wrapping pillars of cedar, and drifting on floor inlaid with ivory and agate. Music, mingling the thrum of harps, and the clash of cymbals, and the blast of trumpets in one wave of transport that went rippling along the wall and breathing among the garlands, and pouring down the corridors, and thrilling the souls of a thousand banqueters. The signal is given, and the lords and ladies, the mighty men and women of the land, come around the table. Pour out the wine. Let foam and bubble kiss the rim! Hoist every one his cup and drink to the sentiment: "O King Belshazzar, live forever!"

Bestarred head-band and carcanet of royal beauty gleam to the uplifted chalices, as again, and again, and again they are emptied. Away with care from the palace! Tear royal dignity to tatters! Pour out more wine! Give us more light, wilder music, sweeter perfume! Lord shouts to lord, captain ogles to captain. Goblets clash; decanters rattle. There come in the obscene song, and the drunken hiccup and the slaving lip, and the guffaw of idiotic laughter, bursting from the lips of princes, flushed, reeling, bloodshot; while mingling with it all hear, "Huz-What is that on the plastering of the wall? Is it a spirit? Is it a phantom? Is it God? The music stops. The goblets fall from the nerveless grasp. There is a thrill. There is a start. There is a thousand-voiced shriek of horror. Let Daniel be brought in to read that writing. He comes in. He reads it: "Weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Meanwhile the Medes, who for two years had been laying siege to that city, took advantage of that carousal and came in. I hear the feet of the conquerors on the palace stairs. Massacre rushes in with a thousand gleaming knives. Death bursts upon the scene; and I shut the door of that banquet hall, for I do not want to look. There is nothing there but torn banners, and broken wreaths, and the slush of upset tankards, and the blood of murdered women, and the kicked and tumbled carcass of a dead king. For "in that night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain."

I go on to learn some lessons from all this. I learn that when God writes anything on the wall, a man had better read it as it is. Daniel did not misinterpret or modify the handwriting on the wall. It is all foolishness to expect a minister of the Gospel to preach always things that the people like, or the people choose. Young men of Washington, what shall I preach to you to-night? Shall I tell you of the dignity of human nature? Shall I tell you of the wonders that our race has accomplished? "Oh, no," you say, "tell me the message that came from God." I will. If there is any handwriting on the wall, it is this lesson: "Repent! Accept of Christ and be saved!" I might talk of a great many other things; but that is the message, and so I declare it. Jesus never flattered those to whom he preached. He said to those who did wrong, and who were offensive in his sight, "Ye generation of vipers! ye whited sepulchres! how can ye escape the damnation of hell?" Paul the apostle preached before a man who was not ready to hear him preach. What subject did he take? Did he say, "Oh! you are a good man, a very fine man, a very noble man!" No; he preached of righteousness to a man who was unrighteous; of temperance to a man who was a victim of bad appetites; of the judgment to come to a man who was unfit for it. So we must always declare the message that happens to come to us. Daniel must read it as it is. A minister preached before James I. of England, who was James VI. of Scotland. What subject did he take? The king was noted all over the world for being unsettled and wavering in his ideas. What did the minister preach about to this man who was James I. of England and James VI. of Scotland? He took for his text James first and sixth: "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed." Hugh Latimer offended the king by a sermon he preached; and the king said, "Hugh Latimer, come and apologize." "I will," said Hugh Latimer. So the day was appointed; and the king's chapel was full of lords, and dukes, and the mighty men and women of the country, for Hugh Latimer was to apologize. He began his sermon by saying, "Hugh Latimer, bethink thee! Thou art in the presence of thine earthly king, who can destroy thy body. But bethink thee, Hugh Latimer, that thou art in the presence of the King of heaven and earth, who can destroy both body and soul in hell fire." Then he preached with appalling directness at the king's crimes.

Here is a man who begins to read loose novels. "They are so charming," he says; "I will go out and see for myself whether all these things are so." He opens the gate of a sinful life. He goes in. A sinful sprite meets him with her wand. She waves her wand, and it is all enchantment. Why, it seems as if the angels of God had poured out phials of perfume in the atmosphere. As he walks on he finds the hills becoming more radiant with foliage, and the ravines more resonant with the falling water. Oh, what a charming landscape he sees! But that sinful sprite, with her wand, meets him again; but now she reverses the wand, and all the enchantment is gone. The cup is full of poison. The fruit turns to ashes. All the leaves of the bower are forked tongues of hissing serpents. The flowing fountains fall back in a dead pool stenchful with corruption. The luring songs become curses and screams of demoniac laughter. Lost spirits gather about him and feel for his heart, and beckon him on with "Hail, brother, hail, blasted spirit, hail!" He tries to get out. He comes to the front door where he entered and tries to push it back, but the door turns against him; and in the jar of that shutting door he hears these words: "This night is Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain." Sin may open bright as the morning. It ends dark as the night.

I learn further from this subject that death sometimes breaks in upon a banquet. Why did he not go down to the prisons in Babylon? There were people there that would like to have died. I suppose there were men and women in torture in that city who would have welcomed death, but he comes to the palace; and just at the time when the mirth is dashing to the tiptop pitch, Death breaks in at the banquet. We have often seen the same thing illustrated. Here is a young man just come from college. He is kind. He is loving. He is enthusiastic. He is eloquent. By one spring he may bound to heights toward which many men have been struggling for years. A profession opens before him. He is established in the law. His friends cheer him. After awhile you may see him standing in the American senate, or moving a popular assemblage by his eloquence, as trees are moved in a whirlwind. Some night he retires early. A fever is on him. Delirium, like a reckless charioteer, seizes the reins of his intellect. Father and mother stand by and see the tides of his life going out to the great ocean. The banquet is coming to an end. The lights of thought, and mirth, and eloquence are being extinguished. The garlands are snatched from the brow. The vision is gone. Death at the banquet!

I have also to learn from the subject that the destruction of the vicious and of those who despise God, will be very sudden. The wave of mirth had dashed to the highest point when the invading army broke through. It was unexpected. Suddenly, almost always, comes the doom of those who despise God, and defy the laws of men. How was it at the deluge? Do you suppose it came through a long northeast storm, so that people for days before were sure it was coming? No; I suppose the morning was bright; that calmness brooded on the waters; that beauty sat enthroned on the hills; when suddenly the heavens burst, and the mountains sank like anchors into the sea that dashed clear over the Andes and the Himalayas.

The Red sea was divided. The Egyptians tried to cross it. There could be no danger. The Israelites had just gone through; where they had gone, why not the Egyptians? Oh, it was such a beautiful walking place! A pavement of tinged shells and pearls, and on either side two great walls of water—solid. There can be no danger. Forward, great host of the Egyptians! Clap the cymbals and blow the trumpets of victory! After them! We will catch them yet, and they shall be destroyed. But the walls begin to tremble. They rock! They fall! The rushing waters! The shriek of drowning men! The swimming of the war horses in vain for the shore! The straggling of the great host on the bottom of the sea, or pitched by the angry wave on the beach—a battered, bruised, and loathsome wreck! Suddenly destruction came. One half hour before they could not have believed it. Destroyed, and without remedy.

I am just setting forth a fact, which you have noticed as well as I, Annanias comes to the apostle. The apostle says: "Did you sell the land for so much?" He says, "Yes." It was a lie. Dead! as quick as that. Sapphira, his wife, comes in. "Did you sell the land for so much?" "Yes." It was a lie, and quick as that she was dead. God's judgments are upon those who despise Him and defy Him. They come suddenly.

The destroying angel went through Egypt. Do you suppose that any of the people knew that he was coming? Did they hear the flap of his great wing? No, no! Suddenly, unexpectedly, he came.

Skilled sportsmen do not like to shoot a bird standing on a sprig near by. If they are skilled, they pride themselves on taking it on the wing; and they wait till it starts. Death is an old sportsman; and he loves to take men flying under the very sun. He loves to take them on the wing. Oh, flee to God this night! If there be one in this presence who has wandered far away from Christ, though he may not have heard the call of the Gospel for many a year, I invite him now to come and be saved. Flee from thy sin! Flee to the stronghold of the Gospel! Now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation.

Good night, my young friends! may you have rosy sleep, guarded by Him who never slumbers! May you awake in the morning strong and well! But oh! art thou a despiser of God? Is this thy last night on earth? Shouldst thou be awakened in the night by something, thou knowest not what, and there be shadows floating in the room, and a handwriting on the wall, and you feel that your last hour is come, and there be a fainting at the heart, and a tremor in the limb, and a catching of the breath—then thy doom would be but an echo of the words of the text: "In that night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain."

Oh! that my Lord Jesus would now make Himself so attractive to your souls that you cannot resist Him; and if you have never prayed before, or have not prayed since those days when you knelt down at your mother's knee, then that to-night you might pray, saying:

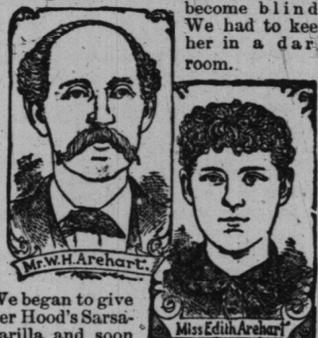

Just as I am, without one plea But that thy blood was shed for me, And that thou bidst me come to thee, O Lamb of God, I come!

But if you cannot think of so long a prayer as that, I will give you a shorter prayer that you can say: "God be merciful to me, a sinner!" Or, if you cannot think of so long a prayer as that, I will give you a still shorter one that you may utter: "Lord, save me, or I perish!" Or, if that be too long a prayer you need not make it. Use the word "Help!" Or, if that be too long a word, you need not use any word at all. Just look and live!

Agricultural Chemistry.
Chemistry as the handmaiden of agriculture has achieved a wonderful success. Fertilizing the fields has not only become a well understood business, but is an exact science. There are methods of recovering waste products and utilizing heretofore useless matter. It is known what is required to produce the best potatoes and other crops, each one having supplied to it the chemical necessities of its existence. Land, sea and the elements are taxed to furnish the constituents necessary to the best growth of vegetation. It would have been a surprise to our ancestors had they been told that there are common plants which derive a very small portion of their subsistence from the soil, but are fed from the air and water; therefore, to understand the theories of drainage, rainfall, evaporation and absorption are matters of the utmost moment. To nothing does agriculture owe such a debt as to science, for by its means the waste places of the earth can be made productive, and by the introduction of new chemical elements malarial and unwholesome soils are made fertile and transformed into healthy and agreeable dwelling places.

Surprised His Friends.

A PROMINENT ILLINOIS MAN HAS A REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE.

The Story of the Wonderful Change in Mr. Shepherd's Condition.

From the Pantagraph, Bloomington, Ill.

Mr. A. A. Shepherd, a prominent and responsible citizen of Lytleville, McLean County, Illinois, was taken down with rheumatism about five years ago. He suffered with terrible pains in his hips and at times, when he was able to walk, would fall down when taken with the severe pains. He also had very severe pains in the region of his heart and at times thought he surely would die. He tried a number of good physicians but could get no permanent relief. At times he was down in bed and could not turn himself without help. Was not able to work any to amount to anything for five years or more. But now his neighbors and friends are surprised to see him stout and hearty and able to work. In fact he has worked all the present season and worked hard and feels well. He has a number of men at work in the woods this summer getting out cooper material and he has not only overseen their work but has worked with them all the time. Some time last fall while he was suffering so his wife's attention was called to a wonderful cure of a case of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and while in Heyworth one day she stepped into the drug store of Mr. F. H. Hill and purchased two boxes of the pills. After he commenced taking them the pains left his limbs, all the pains disappeared from his heart and he began to improve at once. He can cheerfully recommend them to any one afflicted as he was. Mr. Hill, the druggist, said:

"I have several customers using the Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for the relief and cure of rheumatism, among whom is A. A. Shepherd, whose case has been one of unusual interest, and Pink Pills have surely performed a wonderful change in his condition." F. H. Hill, Druggist.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Shenectady, N. Y.

MAHONE AND THE BISCUIT.

Punishment of a Negro Cook Who Did His Baking Badly During the War.

"I remember," said a former surgeon in the confederate army, "General Mahone as he appeared before Petersburg in 1864 and 1865. He was already famous throughout the army for his fighting qualities, for his peppery temper, and for his keen eccentricities.

"My duty as surgeon took me frequently past his headquarters, and one morning I saw Mahone pacing solemnly up and down in front of his tent, while a negro man sat in the doorway gorging himself with fresh-baked biscuit. I turned to an officer, who was looking on at some little distance, and asked the meaning of the strange performance at Mahone's tent. Then came the explanation that the negro had baked a pan of sour and heavy biscuits for breakfast, and Mahone, by way of an object lesson, had set the cook down to eat all of his own product. The negro ate away as fast as possible, and Mahone kept up his patrol until the last biscuit had disappeared. The performance was characteristic of the eccentric but determined little man who hit upon this strange method of punishment."

Personages of the Hive.

There are three personages in the bee hive proper, the queen, the worker-bee and the drone. The queen is of first and greatest importance. The queen is a fully-developed female, and is the mother of all the bees in her hive, of whatsoever kind they may be. The queen is produced in 16 or 16½ days from the time the egg is laid. The peculiar food fed to her and the cell she is reared in account for her complete development. If this egg and larva had not been treated for a queen it would have made a worker bee. The queen will leave the hive when she is from five to ten days old, fly away and will meet and mate with the drone or male bee while on the wing, which act is fatal to the drone. The queen returns to the hive, and in two or three days commences to lay, and becomes the mother of the colony. A colony left queenless will soon die out.

The worker-bee is of next importance. She performs all the work of the hive, gathers in honey and pollen and water, secretes the wax, builds the combs, ripens and caps the honey, nurses the brood, queen and drones, and defends the colony against invasions, and lives during the working season about forty-five days on an average. A good strong colony should contain about 40,000 to 60,000 bees. So it is apparent at once, that to be prosperous, every colony of bees must have a vigorous and prolific queen, a queen that is able to lay from 2,000 to 4,000 eggs per day.

The worker-bees are all undeveloped females, but under certain circumstances they are capable of producing eggs, and when a colony is hopelessly queenless, a worker-bee will often lay eggs in the hive. These eggs will always produce drones, and a colony thus affected will soon die out.

The drone-bee is the male bee, and his only office work is to fertilize the queens. One time mating with a drone lasts as long as the queen is able to do good service in the hive. When the old queen becomes exhausted, the bees supersede her with a young queen.

Bee keeping is a poor man's business, and the poorer he is, the less excuse he can find for not having plenty of honey for himself and family to eat. Bees are no respecter of persons; they will work as well for a peasant as for a prince. He does not have to own the broad acres they glean, nor build costly houses and barns for them; they work without clothes or harness or machinery, and the poor man with his little home and small business has the more time to devote to his bees and provide an article of food that will make his children prettier, his wife sweeter and his home happier.

Don't talk about luck in bee keeping; it will expose you. Quit killing your bees, quit robbing them, only take from them what they can spare and leave them enough to live on. Learn to breed your hives full of bees the last thing you do before going into winter, and then breed them brim full of bees again the first thing you do in the spring. Have your new hives ready and your colonies running over full of bees when the honey flow comes; there is where luck comes in, and it is always good luck.—G. P. Morton.

Thayer's Berry Bulletin.

For November, 1895. Berry plants in the north have cast off their summer drapery and are prepared for their long winter sleep.

Let them be carefully laid down, covered with earth and nicely tucked up for this needed rest.

Delay this necessary work no longer. If you have doubts as to the benefits of winter protection, even in mild climates, protect a part, leave a part without protection, and mark the results.

After ground is well frozen, strawberries should be covered lightly with clean straw or marsh hay.

In spring this covering to be placed between the rows for summer mulch. Various systems of pruning grapes are now in use. All are good in their special way, but confusing to beginners.

A good farmer bearing in mind the following facts can easily care for his own vines:

The object in pruning is to get a well-formed vine and a large yield of best fruit.

At least two-thirds of the new growth should be cut away for this purpose.

Unless severely pruned more fruit will form than can be well matured.

Remember, the vine bears its fruit on new wood only.

Canes grown this year are the ones to preserve for fruit next season.

Cut back the vigorous canes to three or four buds each.

Canes that have borne one season never bear again, hence the necessity for keeping a supply of new wood every year.

One and two-year-old vines are not expected to bear fruit and are cut back to two or three buds.

Trim your grape vines in the fall.

Remove all weeds, trimmings and surplus rubbish from the garden. See that every plant and bush is properly protected for winter. Cover the ground with finely composted manure and you may then look forward to a fruitful resurrection in the spring.

M. A. Thayer.

An Experience With Quicksand.

Josh Skains, a negro, went down into a well to clean it out. As soon as he put his feet on the bottom quicksands closed around them; and he could not move an inch. He told those at the top that he was fastened in sucking sand, and for them to pull him up. They pulled and pulled, but could not move the man. The suction was so great that try as they would they could not move him. For forty-eight hours he remained at the bottom of the well, and all the time those above were doing their best to pull him out. He had been pulled at with rope and windlass until his joints were so sore that this had to be abandoned. Finally a box was sunk around him and the sand and mud were dipped out of the box. After several hours the man was released more dead than alive.—Atlanta Constitution.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. ### A Tontine Hotel.

The ancient Tontine hotel of New Haven, built in 1824 by a company organized under the tontine plan, is now owned by forty-four "nominees" holding fifty-one shares of stock. The company started with 117 stockholders, and the number was increased to 243. Under the original agreement, when only seven stockholders are left the property becomes theirs. The original capital was $24,300; it was intended to start with a capitalization of $30,000, but the company was not successful in reaching that amount. As most of the surviving shareholders are aged people, it will be only a few years before the number, seven, will have been reached, and then they will take the property absolutely and the company will go out of existence. So far as is known, this is the only company of this character in this country, one which existed in New York having gone out of existence several years ago.

The placing of those sidewalks across the tracks, is another good thing; as there will not be so much danger for the children who cross; the tracks daily. The next thing we will expect our city fathers to do, is to establish fire limits in the business blocks of the village.
