GONE TO REST.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words,
We must forever part.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Mrs. Katherine Langenheim, wife of Louis Langenheim from whom Langenheim postoffice derived its name, died Sunday morning of pneumonia, after a short illness.

Before her marriage in 1869 she was Miss Katherine Klineschmidt. Mrs. Langenheim was born in Bensonville, DuPage county, Ill., on April 2, 1851, and removed to Barrington when but 15 years of age.

The deceased leaves a husband, seven children, four grand children, one brother and two sisters to mourn the loss of a devoted wife, a kind mother, a dear sister and a beloved grandmother.

Interment took place Tuesday afternoon in Barrington, Rev. E. Rahn officiating. One of the largest funeral processions ever seen in Barrington followed the remains to their last resting place, and gave evidence of the high esteem in which she was held by the citizens of this community.

WAS THE "RIPPER."

ALLEGED WHITECHAPEL FIEND ELECTROCUTED.

Carl Zahn, Who Died in the Electric Chair at Sing Sing Monday, is Declared by His Lawyer to Have Been the Noted Monster.

"Jack the Ripper" sat in Sing Sing's death chair Monday and was killed. His lawyer declared that the man executed was the fiend who set the world horror-stricken with his revel of blood in Whitechapel, and who was put out of existence for the murder of a woman in New York.

This remarkable criminal, who was electrocuted for killing Mrs. Johanna Hoffmann, defied the police of all the continents. He murdered when and where he chose. And now no detective is to reap the glory of bringing the worst assassin of the century to his doom.

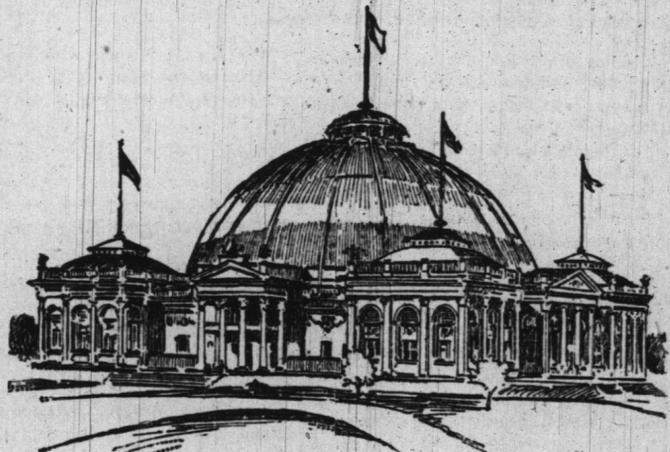

To a lawyer belongs the credit of revealing the probable identity of the man who, as Carl Fliegenbaum, was executed Monday.

As the murderer's body was being carried from the death chair to the autopsy-room, William Sanford Lawton, his counsel, who fought for more than a year and a half to save the life of his miserable client, made a statement, declaring his full belief that Fliegenbaum was "Jack the Ripper," author of many of the Whitechapel murders.

During the following night Michael Hoffmann awoke to find the boarder in the act of cutting his mother's throat. Fliegenbaum ran at him, knife in hand, and the boy sprang out on a window ledge. Fliegenbaum stabbed the woman again, jumped from a rear window into an area, threw away the knife, and escaped.

Mr. Lawton's idea is that he had planned a murder of the "ripper" order, and that the boy's cries prevented him from carrying out his intentions. The man was caught red-handed that night. He was questioned at length through an interpreter, for he professed entire ignorance of English.

Mr. Lawton frequently conversed with Fliegenbaum in English while the man was confined in the Tombs, but on every occasion when anyone else was present—even today, when he declared his innocence to Warden Sage—he demanded the assistance of an interpreter.

Once in a burst of confidence he told his lawyer that he was a victim of the mania to mutilate women, that it was beyond his control at times, and that it was that which had got him into trouble. He said that in the "sight of heaven he was innocent, and added: "God will not let me die."

The lawyer was greatly impressed by what the man told him. A little later he thought of the Whitechapel crimes and looked up the dates and selected two. When he saw Fliegenbaum again and was talking with him confidentially, he said: "Carl, were you in London from this date to that one," naming those selected.

"Yes," the prisoner answered, and relapsed into silence. But as time went on the lawyer, in tracing his movements prior to the crime, discovered that Fliegenbaum had never lived in any house which was not in charge of a woman. Mr. Lawton once put the question of the Whitechapel murders to Fliegenbaum, whose reply was that the Lord was responsible for his acts and that to Him only could he confess.

By his will, which he signed "Fliegenbaum," and not "Zahn," the murderer made Warden Sage his executor, bequeathed $80 to Father Bruder to pay for his burial, and left the rest of his property to his sister, "Magdalene Strohhand, widow, in Ganbickelheim, Alzei, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany." He directed that a house and lot, which he said he owned in Cincinnati, be sold and the proceeds sent to this sister.

SHOES OFFERED IN EVIDENCE.

Scott Jackson, on Trial for Murder, Relieved of His Footwear.

The Scott Jackson murder case was resumed Monday morning at Newport, Ky. Jackson's appearance was the source of much comment, and the feeling is prevalent that he will break down and make a confession.

Detective Cal Crim was the first witness called. Witness was detailed on the Fort Thomas case by Chief Deitsch of Cincinnati. The witness noticed a lady's footprint in the ground about ten feet from where the body lay. This would sustain the theory that Pearl Bryan was alive and walked to the place where she was murdered. Witness searched Jackson's rooms after his arrest. Found the stockings, which have been identified as Pearl Bryan's, behind Jackson's trunk. Also found the blood-stained cap secreted in a corner of a closet adjoining Jackson's room. Found two pairs ladies' white kid gloves, three ladies' handkerchiefs and a lady's pocketbook in the trunk. These articles have been identified as having belonged to Pearl Bryan.

Harry Hayes, a shoe merchant of Greencastle, sold Pearl Bryan a pair of shoes November 18, 1895. The witness described and identified the shoes found on the Fort Thomas victim as the ones sold to Miss Bryan. The witness sold Jackson a pair of shoes about a year ago. The defendant was requested to remove his shoes, and the witness identified them as the ones Jackson purchased. Colonel Crawford then introduced the shoes in evidence. Colonel Nelson asked what Jackson's shoes had to do with the case, and Crawford replied: "You will find out when the proper time comes."

Will Wood was recalled for further cross-examination by the defense. He admitted that a letter handed him was written by him to Jackson. He went to South Bend February 3, and wrote Jackson another letter. After having read the letters Judge Helm requested all the ladies in the court room to withdraw while the letters were read to the jury. The first one was dated Plymouth, Ind., Feb. 1, and requested Jackson to let him know what had been done, and added: "If you have grown chicken-hearted, you ought to be shot."

Buffalo Has a Mystery.

Buffalo, N. Y., special: Buffalo has now a Pearl Bryan case. The head of a woman was found on the farm of John Hoag, near Orchard Park, late Saturday afternoon. It was wrapped in a Buffalo newspaper and had a bullet hole in the occipital region. It seems impossible to trace the head definitely. Meanwhile the police are trying to find a body to fit.

An investigation of the sudden death of Miss Ollie May Mills at Greenville, Ohio, developed that she was the victim of a criminal operation.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

A RECORD OF THE DOINGS OF SEVEN DAYS.

Some Social, Religious, Political, Obituary, Matrimonial, Criminal and Miscellaneous Happenings That Have Taken Place Since Our Last Issue.

The board of education of Bloomington has a woman member in the person of Mrs. Stephen Akers. She was chosen at the late election held in that city.

David Gow, one of the oldest residents of Union county, died last week, aged 72 years. He was the first station agent at Cobden, thirty-six years ago. He resigned his office with honors to himself and the company and purchased a farm two miles east of that place, where he has resided since, devoting his time to fruit culture. He raised the first tomatoes in Illinois to be shipped to the Chicago market.

Acting on the opinion of Corporation Counsel Theodore B. Pape, of Quincy, to the effect that the city council had the power to regulate the fares of the electric street railway, the Trades Assembly petitioned the council to adopt an ordinance requiring a slight reduction in the price of tickets. The matter has been investigated by a special ordinance committee and it will report that no action should be taken, there being no apparent cause for complaint.

Ed. Polen is a surly customer. He has no regrets for having murdered his wife and her mother at Clinton. He goes on playing cards seemingly unconcerned as to what the people at Clinton will do with him when he is taken back to that town to stand up in court for a preliminary hearing. The other day Polen wanted ice cream, cake and pie. The officer told Polen he probably ought to get all the fine grub he could as he thought he would not be long on earth for the chances were that he would be hanged for the crime. Polen replied that he didn't think he would. Evidently the young man has bright hopes.

Morton's pottery for the making of brown ware is a thriving concern. It employs some forty of fifty hands, and which pays out about $100 a day in wages. Brick and the tile are also made at the same factory, a machine turning out 25,000 brick a day having recently been added. These shops are run by Omish people and a very good business is done. The earth for the pottery is all shipped in from northern Illinois. It is ground, mixed with water into a stiff paste and then formed into sheets, greatly resembling gray, woolen blankets. From these sheets the various articles of pottery are formed and moulded and then baked in immense furnaces.

The formation of the Septemvirate committee for the government of Lombard University, Galesburg, has been completed. The committee will have charge of matters of department and discussion, but the president is to determine what matters are to be referred to them. The student members, by winning over one member of the faculty in any case, will have a plurality. President Nash says that so far as he knows the plan is new. Other colleges have tried the self government plan, but have made failures of it, he says, because they have vested the students with too much power. The Lombard system will be tried this term and if successful will next fall be made permanent.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Chicago has sent "a union call" to the white ribboners asking for subscriptions to the amount of $50,000 to build a temperance hospital on the west side. Such a hospital has existed there for ten years, but it has been obliged to use rented quarters. Now the women have secured a site on the west side in the hospital district and purpose to build them a permanent home for the institution. They ask that the $50,000 required be raised by pledges of $100 from each district or county. Individual subscriptions also are urged. A gift of $25 will make the giver a life member and $5 an annual membership of the hospital association.

The old C. M. Smith residence at Springfield has been demolished and only the fine old staircase remains. The building is historic in central Illinois, being closely identified with the family of the wife of President Lincoln, as well as with the girlhood of the new Mrs. Benjamin Harrison. The house was built by General John Cook about the time of the opening of the war. It was of brick, with limestone and marble trimmings and was a mansion in the strict sense of the term. General Cook has built a number of very fine houses in his day. It seemed to be a hobby with him. He never occupied any of his houses very long, and he did not do so in this case. Not very long after the house was built his wife died and he moved elsewhere; now he has his home in Michigan. The place was sold to C. M. Smith at that time the merchant price of Springfield. Mr. Smith's wife was Ann Todd, a sister of Mary Todd, the wife of President Lincoln.

The inventory and appraisal was filed in the estate of Jacob Keller, deceased, of Mehlville, showing the estate to be worth nearly $50,000. The personal property alone is appraised at more than $12,000. The last will of George Nelhoff, late of Eureka, was filed for probate in Clayton.

John McKenzie, of Alton, had a narrow escape Sunday evening from serious consequences by taking an overdose of medicine. McKenzie was indisposed and was given a prescription. Instead of taking it in doses two hours apart, he took the whole prescription in two doses about ten minutes apart. He was taken very sick, but Dr. Taphorn administered an antidote, and got him out of danger.

H. W. Shyke, of Chicago, accused of being a Russian Nihilist is said to be in Washington. He is reported as being very much surprised at the report that he is wanted by the agents of a Russian society, who claim that he is the Nihilist refugee, George Krashnow. In an interview he said: "I know of no such man as Gregor Krashnow, and have no idea how any one came to make such a mistake in my identity. I have lived in Chicago since 1883, and always have been a law abiding citizen."

The evangelical churches of Ottawa have declared war upon the Sunday newspapers, the Free Trader and Journal, and are leading a fight by means of which they hope to compel publishers to suspend the issue on the first day of the week. Both papers were issued as usual last Sunday and will continue as heretofore, as the judgment of the city has already condemned the action of the ministers, of whom the leader is Rev. Harris H. Gregg of the Presbyterian church. The Catholic and Episcopal rectors have taken no part in the affair and will not do so, holding that the Sunday paper is doing a valuable work in the community, especially for non-church-going people. The general public is with the papers.

At the meeting of Monmouth Presbyterian held in Monmouth last week Rev. J. G. Stewart, of St. Louis, applied to be reinstated into the church, but admission was denied him. About two years ago he was removed from the ministry for preaching faith cure doctrines, which were contrary to the creed of the United Presbyterian Church. Since then he has made several attempts to get back into the church, but as he refuses to give up his peculiar belief he is refused admittance. Rev. Mr. Stewart was on the ground and addressed the presbytery. A very heated discussion followed and his course of action was soundly censured. Rev. Mr. Stewart built a small tabernacle in St. Louis, where he works as an evangelist.

More than fifty Presbyterian ministers, representing every synod in Illinois and Indiana, held a secret meeting in Danville last week. The object of the meeting was to prepare a defense against the charge which the Home Missionary Board of New York has preferred against the Illinois and Indiana synods. In other states the different congregations remit all the funds collected to the New York board and afterwards receive back their proper share. In Illinois and Indiana the synods first satisfy all local demands from the funds collected and then send the balance to the New York board. This method deprives the New York board of the opportunity to handle the major portion of the money collected. The case will come up in the Saratoga meeting.

Deputy United States Marshal Chambers went down from Springfield to Marion the other day and arrested Isaac Groves on a charge of selling intoxicating liquors without having paid the government tax as a retailer. He was taken before United States Commissioner Caldwell at Carbondale, where an examination was waived and he gave bond for his appearance at the next term of the United States grand jury. This is another one of those non-intoxicating beer cases that have caused so many people a trip to Springfield and a fine and costs of suit; and all because they placed confidence in the representations of the manufacturers of the stuff and violated the law ignorantly. Before the county fair in Marion in 1894 there was established in that city a wholesale agency for the sale of non-intoxicating beer. When the fair came on most all the booth men and lemonade and pop dealers bought a good supply of this beer, on the representation of the manufacturer that it was no violation of the laws to sell it, and sold it at retail to the thirsty. But the lynx-eyed sleuths of Uncle Sam caught onto the "non-tax" racket and sent a bottle to the internal revenue commissioner at Washington, who took a different view of the matter from the manufacturer. He ordered his subordinates to have all the dealers in this beverage indicted and fined for violation of Uncle Sam's revenue laws. Some of the best citizens were caught in the snare and have been carried up before Judge Allen and fined. Some of the more prudent ones, when it became known that the laws had been violated through ignorance, did not wait to be indicted by the grand jury, but made haste to Springfield and pleaded guilty before the judge, thus saving the heavy costs of a suit.

CHICAGO THEATERS.

AMUSEMENT ATTRACTIONS FOR COMING WEEK.

What the Managers of the Various City Play-Houses Offer Their Patrons—Drama, Vaudeville and Operatic Engagements.

McVICKERS—On Monday evening, April 27th, Mr. Thomas Keene will commence the second and last week of his current engagement. "Richard III." and "Hamlet" have already been announced, and during the week other favorite characters in Mr. Keene's repertory can be seen. On Monday evening, May 4, a grand production of Shakespeare's comedy "As You Like It" will be presented at McVicker's with a great special selected cast and appropriate stage settings. Especial attention will be devoted to the rendition of the beautiful music of the play.

On the McVicker's stage Monday evening, May 11th, will occur the first presentation upon any stage of the historical romantic opera, entitled "John and Priscilla," music by Prof. H. H. Thiele, book by Harry G. Sommers.

The opera will be given only four evenings and one matinee, namely: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings and Wednesday matinee, May 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th. Seats for any of the five performances can now be obtained at the ticket office. Mr. Sommers solicits the hearty co-operation of his friends to make these five performances an event of unusual interest, and to assist in giving his new venture a boom.

GRAND—The Grand Opera house will be closed the major part of next week in order to prepare for Eugene Tompkin's production of the latest English dramatic success, "An Officer of the Second," with Otis Skinner in the leading role. Rehearsals are now in progress, and, while it might be possible to open next week, it has been thought wise to postpone the opening until later on account of the magnitude of the production.

SCHILLER—Alexander Salvini and company begin the second week of the Chicago engagement Monday evening, April 27th, with the production of "Othello," which occurrence will be the first time upon any stage with Mr. Salvini as the "Moor of Venice."

Mr. Salvini's D'Artagnan of last Monday evening was much different from the Hamlet of Tuesday evening. "The Three Guardsmen" is Mr. Salvini's most popular play, and he was greeted Monday evening by a large and cordial assemblage. It was an immense satisfaction to see one who can put all the energy, the action, the bluster, the youthful spirit into such a part as D'Artagnan. One would expect creditable work from Mr. Salvini for his natural parts and his blood. But he adds the qualities of an earnest student, a hard worker, to the others. As D'Artagnan Salvini needs no more praise than he has always had. The supporting company this year is entirely satisfactory.

Dramatic Notes.
Mr. Eugene Field and Mr. McVicker are both said to have expressed high commendation on the merit of the book of the opera "John and Priscilla," by Harry G. Sommers. The entire production will be under the personal direction of Mr. Sommers, who will give the opera an elaborate staging. It will be given one evening and four matinee performances and should it prove a success with the public will be put on later for a run of two weeks.

The advance sale of seats and boxes for the production of "The Rivals," which is to be given three presentations at McVicker's Theater, Friday night, Saturday matinee and night, May 15 and 16, by the big all-star cast of players, is announced to begin at the box office of that playhouse on the morning of Friday, May 8. The distinguished players who will interpret the reproduction of Sheridan's famous comedy in Chicago are as follows: Joseph Jefferson, William H. Crane, Nat C. Goodwin, Francis Wilson, E. M. Holland, Joseph Holland, Robert Taber, Julia Marlowe-Taber, Fanny Rice and Mrs. John Drew.

Two-Cent Drinks.
The sensation just now in Berlin is a company founded by English capitalists which deals wholesale in sweet wines, cognac, liquors, chocolate, tea and coffee. It owes its popularity to the original idea it has put in practice of allowing every customer to sample the goods he is to buy. For this purpose there is a large "automatic tasting room" attached to the establishment. The prospective customer enters this and drops a coin of the value of 2 cents in the slot and, as a result, gets a small sample of sherry, port, marsala, malaga, liqueur, coffee, with or without milk, tea or chocolate, all of which is said to be excellent. Cognac is the only exception to the universal price of 2 cents, a sample of this costing just double that amount.—New York World.

The Baritone and the Donkey.

Mr. Clifford Hale tells the following amusing anecdote: It was at Port Elizabeth (South Africa) where I was announced to give a concert. The room in which I sang was situated in a part of the town where the population seemed to consist mostly of geese, ducks, pigs, and other domestic animals. It was hot, and the main entrance was kept open to admit the fresh air.

I had run through a couple of items, after which I began to sing the well-known song, "Bruder, gehst du hier vorüber?" (Brother, comest thou this way?) to the apparent satisfaction of the audience. The song ends with the words, "Bruder, Bruder, sage Ja" (Brother, Brother, do say yes—yah), when just at that moment one of the four-footed asses of Port Elizabeth thrust his head in at the door and bellowed out a "Y—ah," which drowned all other noises. The audience roared with laughter. The governor's wife was convulsed; her husband stepped up to me with tears in his eyes and said:

"Dear Halle, if you want to be taken seriously by our people here in Africa you had better leave your relations at home."—Gartenlaube.

Was Rather Startling.

Son—Papa, what is a schooner?
Papa—A schooner, my son, is a fore and aft rigged vessel with two or more masts.

Son—Well, say pop, don't you think that was a pretty tough story you told about Mr. Brown swallowing eight of them without affecting him?

From Her Dearest Friend.
"Yes," she said, "you may congratulate me. I am engaged."

"I had heard of it," replied her dearest friend, "but I wasn't quite sure who—"

"Oh, it's Mr. Wilkinson. I finally accepted him after declining four other offers."

"Four!"
"I believe it was four, but it may have been five. Does it surprise you?"

"Why, yes," admitted the dearest friend. "I didn't know there were four worse catches in existence."—Chicago Post.

What Would It Be?
A dear little girl, whose small presence is the big sunshine of her own particular Paradise Alley, was sitting lost in the deep, deep thoughts and big dreams that come the way of childhood and never beyond the turn in the road that leads to age. Suddenly she looked up at her mamma. "Mamma," said she, thoughtfully and wisely, "if nothing was something what would it be?" "My darling," answered her mother, "ask me something easier."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

A Hint to Householders.
Winks—I've got a new way of sifting coal at my house.

Binks (with languid interest)—Have you?

Winks—Yes. I used to have the man pick out the good pieces of coal from the sifter and throw the rest away. Now I have him pick out the cinders and burn the rest.

Binks—Well, what difference does that make?

Winks (proudly)—Oh, about two tons a year.—Somerville Journal.

Outlined.
"Mr. Insite, give the class your idea of optimist and pessimist."

"Yes, sir. An optimist is a man who is happy when he's miserable, and a pessimist is a man who is miserable when he's happy."—Chicago Record.

With the Wits.
"In battle musicians are always kept in the rear." "That's not fair. Many of them richly deserve killing."—Chicago Record.

"I never destroy a receipted bill, do you?" said Bunting to Giley. "I don't think I ever saw one," replied Giley.—Amusing Journal.

"Say, Wilkins, that $5 bill you loaned me last night was a counterfeit." "Well, you said you wanted it bad."—New York Herald.

Old Bachelor—Now that your sister has married, it is your turn. Young Lady—Is that meant as an offer?—Lustige Blaetter.

Unique—She is the most original woman I ever knew. "How is that?" "When she hasn't anything to say she doesn't talk."—Life.

"If I had your pull," said the small boy who was struggling with a large kite in a March breeze, "I could get purty high up in the world, too."—Chicago Tribune.

"Blykins has his own way in his house." "Yes. But his wife always tells him what it is going to be beforehand."—Washington Star.

CHEAP RATES.

Via Missouri Pacific Railway and Iron Mountain Route.

To the South and Southwest—Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, South-west Missouri, Kansas and Arizona. On March 10th, April 7th and 21st, also May 5th, tickets will be sold at one fare plus $2.00 for the round trip, good for 21 days, with stop-over privileges. For particulars address Bissell Wilson, D. P. A., 111 Adams street, Chicago.

Free Attendant Service—The North-Western Line.

A new departure has been inaugurated at the Chicago passenger station of the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y) which will be found a great convenience to the traveling public. A corps of uniformed attendants has been provided to render both incoming and outgoing passengers all necessary attention, directing them to carriages, omnibuses and street cars, carrying hand baggage, assisting persons in feeble health, and making themselves useful in every way in their power. The attendants wear blue uniforms and bright red caps, and the service is entirely free. The North-Western Line is the through-car route between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Ashland, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Sioux City, Denver, Salt Lake, San Francisco, Portland and many other important cities of the west and northwest.

Telegraphing to the Sun.

Sir Robert Ball has answered the question as to how long it would take to send a telegram to the sun. Measuring space by time, he takes as his unit a circuit surrounding the equator of the earth seven times, along which a telegraphic message can be sent the whole distance in 1 second. It would take just 8 min. for a similar message to reach the sun, but to reach the stars is not a matter of minutes. Even the nearest of them, the Alpha of the Centauri, could not be reached in less than four years, while it would take centuries to most of them. An express train would have to travel at a pace of forty miles an hour, not alone for days and for weeks and for years, but even for centuries. Indeed, not until 265 years had elapsed would its journey to the sun be ended.

A Spring Trip South.

On May 5, tickets will be sold from principal cities, towns and villages of the north, to all points on the Louisville & Nashville railroad in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and a portion of Kentucky, at one single fare for the round trip. Tickets will be good to return within twenty-one days, on payment of $2 to agent at destination, and will allow stop-over at any point on the south bound trip. Ask your ticket agent about it, and if he cannot sell you excursion tickets write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., or J. K. Ridgely, N. W. P. A., Chicago, Ill.

Dangerous Hypnotic Experiment.

Hypnotic experiments of a groomskind are being kept up at the Royal Aquarium in London. The latest is the burying of a man, who has been put into a trance, in a pit eight feet deep, which was then filled with earth, leaving only a small funnel open over the man's face, through which he is watched. He is to be dug up after a week.

Cheap Excursions to the West and Northwest.

On April 21 and May 5, 1896, the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y) will sell Home Seekers' excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in Northern Wisconsin, Michigan, Northwestern Iowa, Western Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, including the famous Black Hills district. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address W. B. Kniskern, G. P. & T. A., Chicago, Ill.

Half Fare to Virginia and Carolina.

On May 5 homeseekers' excursion tickets will be sold from all points in the West and Northwest over the "Big Four Route" and Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. to Virginia and North Carolina at one fare for the round-trip. Settlers looking for a home in the South can do no better than in Virginia. There they have cheap farm lands, no blizzards, no cyclones, mild winters, never failing crops, cheap transportation and the best markets. Send for free descriptive pamphlet, excursion rates and time folders. U. L. Truitt, N. W. P. A., 234 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

All About Western Farm Lands.

The "Corn Belt" is the name of an illustrated monthly newspaper published by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. It aims to give information in an interesting way about the farm lands of the west. Send 25 cents in postage stamps to the "Corn Belt," 209 Adams St., Chicago, and the paper will be sent to your address for one year.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

On May 5th, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway company will sell tickets at very low rates to points in Missouri, Kansas and Texas. For particulars address, H. A. Cherrier, 316 Marquette Building, Chicago, Ill., or T. B. Cookerly, 503 Locust street, Des Moines, Iowa.

"Hello" Don't Go Now.

In answering a telephonic call it is much better to say "yes," with a rising inflection than "hello." In fact, "hello" is now tabooed in select circles.

The Quality That Tells.

Two young people, each equally well qualified intellectually and physically for their work start, out to make a career for themselves. At the end of a year it is easy to see which will be successful. One may be thoroughly correct in his work, doing all that is necessary mechanically and conscientiously. He goes to his task every day, does exactly what he is told to do and as he is told. Yet he is not advanced in pay or place and the chances are that at any time he may be dropped out and his place given to somebody else.

The other, not any better qualified, does his work no better than the first one in the beginning. Yet he is advanced rapidly and will be a success in whatever he undertakes, while the coldly correct one will never be fully successful in anything.

The reason is not far to find. The second one has an enthusiasm for his work. That mysterious quality of warm interest in whatever he undertakes creeps out from him to his task and envelops as an atmosphere all about him. He loves his work, he likes to please his employers, and best of all he likes to please himself by bringing out of his task all there is in it. He has enthusiasm. He suggests new plans, he finds opportunities for improvement, he sympathizes with the aims of his employers and fellow men. They like him and he likes them. These are the qualities that tell in achievement—enthusiasm and human sympathy.

The True Labor Question.

Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright has ideas of his own on the present social strife. He considers this strife inevitable. It is the heritage of the Aryan race. In a lecture Colonel Wright said lately:

I have come to the conclusion that the labor question is something more than the adjustment of any process, method or condition. The labor question is simply the everlasting and undying unrest that, born in the human breast, carried the Aryans far from their home in the east, almost around the globe, until they seek again their starting point. They have been fighting with obstacles from the beginning, overcoming them and meeting with new ones. In strife they have populated the earth and brought us civilization, and we today have in our veins the lifeblood that ran in the veins of those Aryan ancestors of ours. We have inherited all the unrest and all the push and drive that have made them powerful everywhere.

Strife has been necessary to all progress; but, while of old the conflict was one of arms, it is now one of ideas and views. There has been a change from militarism to industry; hence we have economics. Society is now struggling with the so called unrest. The labor question is the everlasting struggle to reach a higher place, to secure something better than humanity had before.

The only real remedy for existing evils is to be got not by abolishing but by softening the inevitable strife.

The true remedy of present evils consists in the practical application of the highest ethical principles, and these are perhaps best found in the Christian religion. There is coming a revival in which we shall have a religion that shall include the whole church, industry, commerce and the whole social fabric.

Rise in Silver.

In January two years ago the price of silver bullion was 70 cents an ounce. Then it began to drop down, down, till it reached a fraction less than 50 cents. At such a price the white metal could no longer be mined profitably. During 1895 many of the mines in Colorado were closed, and the properties and plants fell into decay.

But meantime, although silver mining was comparatively idle during 1895, silver exporting was not. As the mining decreased, the exports, owing to the unprecedentedly low price, became heavier. These shipments continue. During the month of January they amounted to over $3,000,000 more than they did in January, 1895.

The shipments at last began to tell on the price. The payment of the Chinese indemnity to Japan falls due May 7. It will be made in silver and will amount to $35,000,000. Most of this silver was bought weeks ago by bankers and speculators, who expected to make a good thing in selling it again. Undoubtedly the prospect of this payment, which will all be made in silver, has had considerable effect in bringing up the price.

At any rate, the white metal may now be considered to be on the rise. February, 1896, saw it reach 70 cents an ounce again, the highest price since January, 1894.

Balancing Accounts.

When railroads were invented, the cry went up that the stagecoach industry would be ruined. But the railroads and attendant branches of labor give employment to a hundred men where the stagecoach business gave it to one.

Machine weaving was invented. A wail of despair sounded from the hand loom people. But the machine looms give employment to 50 times as many persons as the hand looms did. There are 30 times as many people as there were in the day of the hand loom. What is more, they wear better clothes and get new ones oftener than they did in the day of the hand loom. The same consequence followed the advent of the sewing machine.

The typesetting machine was invented. It undoubtedly threw printers out of employment. But the men to whom it gave work as operators, agents and manufacturers have nearly balanced these, and the number will be more than balanced in bookstores and newspaper offices by the additional purchase among the people of cheap reading matter. Already the influence of machine printing is noted in the cheapening of books and newspapers, the greater number of buyers of reading matter among the common people. The machine has brought the best literature of the time within their reach, and they appreciate it.

Did the invention of the bicycle lessen the profits of horse breeders and break up livery stables? Where one of these was injured at least ten other persons have obtained good paying work in the manufacture and sale of bicycles. In the grand round up all things are evenly adjusted.

Children of the Revolution.

This is the name of a very admirable society organized by Mrs. Margaret Sidney Lothrop of Boston. It is an organization of children and young people under age. Its object is to foster love of country and to familiarize its members with American history and preserve places and objects made famous by their connection with events in the story of the republic.

Too much cannot be said in praise of this organization or of the motives which prompted its establishment. There is only one thing to be urged against the society, and that is the ironclad narrowness of its membership. To it may belong only those descended from "patriotic ancestors who helped to plant or to perpetuate this country in the colonies or in the Revolutionary war or in any other way." Whether this may include the descendants of men who fought in the war of 1812 or in the civil war is not plain.

But one thing is certain. The youthful patriots' society ought to be enlarged, so that every child under age in this country may belong to it and get its benefits. Those who need such an organization most of all are the children of foreign parents. If these were admitted as members and taught patriotism and American history along with the rest, the organization's usefulness would be multiplied a hundredfold. There would be no danger then either of the fostering of a spirit of caste because of ancestry among the youth of the United States.

The plan of introducing reindeer in large numbers into Alaska has much to be said in its favor. Reindeer can live the year around on the moss which grows so abundantly in Alaska in the desolate cold regions where nothing else will germinate. The reindeer will furnish both food and clothing to the natives of Alaska and to the miners who continue to flock there in great numbers. Commissioner of Education Harris points out in the New York Sun that the destruction of the seal herds will take away the chief part of the revenue we derive from Alaska and throw the territory a dead expense on our hands. Professor Harris would have congress make an appropriation large enough to bring from Lapland at one time a herd of 5,000 of the arctic deer, bringing along Laplanders enough to teach the missionaries how to care for them. A herd of reindeer increases 50 per cent a year. As a source of profit Professor Harris thinks the reindeer might in time take the place of the seals. They not only give food and clothing, but also a safe and comparatively rapid means of traveling over the country.

The Liberian fever is on again among the negroes, this time in Texas. The Liberian government, according to its agent, W. J. Lowery, will give 30 acres of land, a yoke of oxen and food for three months to every family that will settle within its borders. Here is a good opportunity for Americans of African descent to return to the home of their ancestors. Many are availing themselves of it.

It is claimed in some quarters that business is not materially better, but the iron and steel trade shows generally to the contrary, and this trade is a good general index to manufacturing prosperity the country over. Large machine shops in various places have orders enough ahead to last them a year. Iron and steel plants in Pennsylvania are in full blast. The trade has been greatly stimulated by the new fashion of putting up iron and steel frames for heavy structures, such as bridges and buildings of all kinds. The skyscraping city building alone will this year put millions of dollars into the pockets of iron and steel workers.

For a place the size of Lake Zurich we are not far behind the times. Mr. Carr of The Leader ought to know that all railroads run freight trains. No doubt, he was surprised to learn that the E. J. & E. is the greatest road on earth, hence his "attraction" since he called here last week.

Owing to the heavy increase of traffic on the E. J. & E. it is currently reported that it will double its tracks from Spaulding to Waukegan. This is a step in the right direction. Now, if we can prevail upon the company to put on two passenger trains this section of the country would be happy. We want prompt mail service on the "J," and the people along the line are entitled to this.

HOW TO TREAT A WIFE.

(From the Pacific Health Journal.)

First get a wife; second be patient. You may have great trials and perplexities in your business, but do not therefor, carry to your home a cloudy or contracted brow. Your wife may have trials, which, though of less magnitude, may be hard for her to bear. A kind word, a tender look, will do wonders in chasing from her brow all clouds of gloom.—To this we would add always keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. It is the best and is sure to be needed sooner or later. Your wife will then know that you really care for her and wish to protect her health. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

The way the weather juggler changed from December weather to balmy June breezes leaves suspicion that spring overcoats are not plentiful about the weather bureau.

For every quarter in a man's pocket there are a dozen uses; and to use each one in such away as to derive the greatest benefit is a question every one must solve for himself. We believe, however, that no better use could be made of one of these quarters than to change it for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, a medicine that every family should be provided with. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

It's about time for Gen. Maceo to have another funeral.

Mr. D. P. Davis, a prominent liveryman and merchant of Goshen, Va., has this to say on the subject of rheumatism: "I take pleasure in recommending Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, as I know from personal experience that it will do all that is claimed for it. A year ago this spring my brother was laid up in bed with inflammatory rheumatism and suffered intensely. The first application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm eased the pain and the use of one bottle completely cured him. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE LIVTH CONGRESS.

A Brief Report of the Doings in Upper and Lower Houses of the National Legislature — The Work of a Week Condensed.

One Hundred and Third Session.

The Indian appropriation bill was taken up in the senate, the question being on Mr. Platt's amendment extending the services of the Dawes commission with a view to the taking a roll of the Cherokee and kindred nations. The commission is given directions toward terminating the tribal relations of the Indians and dividing their lands in severalty. The debate was protracted. In the course of it Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) spoke of the conditions of the Indian territory as constituting a national pest-house and a nuisance, a harbor of refuge for criminals, depreciating property in adjoining states one-third. Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) spoke vehemently against the rule of crime and outrage in the Indian country and appealed to the senate to put an end to it by this reformatory amendment. Mr. Bate (dem., Tenn.), on the other hand, spoke of the "bummers, land-grabbers and thieves seeking to rob the Indians and who would be given further powers by this amendment."

Mr. Platt, author of the amendment, declared that nowhere in Russia, Armenia or Cuba do more brutal and savage conditions exist than in this Indian country. Five hundred white men, masquerading as Indians, had seized the property and the government of the Indians, making the experiment of Indian self-government a failure. The money appropriated for these Indians was used in hiring lobbyists to send here and prevent legislation.

Mr. Platt declared that he had never, during his senatorial service, known of the use of so much money on lobbies to defeat legislation. It was time congress put an end to this foul blot and disgrace on our national honor.

In the house consideration of the Pickler general-pension bill being resumed, Mr. McClellan (dem., N. Y.), spoke in opposition to the measure as intended as a republican sop to the soldiers and a reflection on the administration of the pension laws by the present executive officers.

Mr. Talbert (dem., S. C.) was particularly opposed to that paragraph permitting deserters from the confederate army to draw pensions.

Mr. Mahany (rep., N. Y.) supported the bill, and remarked upon the strange sight of a son of Gen. George B. McClellan standing on the floor of the house opposing justice to the men whom his father had led to battle. He then turned his attention to the gentleman from South Carolina "blocking pension legislation while the men who saved the union were starving in the almshouses." A bitter personal controversy followed between Mr. Mahany and Mr. Talbert.

One Hundred and Fourth Session.

At 2 o'clock the bond resolution was laid before the senate, and Mr. Peffer, its author, proposed modifications to meet criticisms in the recent speech of Mr. Hill. As modified the resolution strikes out the direction that the special committee of five senators shall inquire whether any officer of the government made any contract or agreement in connection with bond issues with the intent to receive commission or personal reward, and also the proposition that not more than two of the senators on the committee of inquiry shall be members of the same political party. The resolution then went over by agreement.

Senator Stewart and his free-silver friends have served notice that they will oppose the early adjournment scheme unless they can get action on the Peffer bond investigation resolution. The only opposition to the proposition of the republican caucus to quit and go home May 18 comes from the populist-silver quarter. The democratic leaders seem to have been won over entirely to the rush program. Senator Allison, chairman of the republican steering committee, will confer with Gorman, of the democratic steering committee, in a day or two as to the order of business during the next three weeks. To placate the silverites it may be found necessary to include the Peffer resolution in the list of things to be considered, though conservative republican sentiment is opposed to the idea.

Although it was private bill day under the rules, the house proceeded with the Pickler pension bill, and the whole day was consumed in the discussion of that measure. The feature of the debate was the opposition of Mr. Connolly (rep., Ill.) to the section of the bill which grants pensions to confederate soldiers who deserted and oined the union ranks ninety days before Lee's surrender. It is not probable that a vote will be reached before Monday. A motion of $50 per month and General W. A. Morris $75.

One Hundred and Fifth Session.

The debate on the adoption of a rule brought in by the rules committee in the house for a vote on the Pickler general pension bill was rather sensational.

Mr. Henderson, from the committee on rules, at 1.30 p. m. brought in a special order for the consideration of the Pickler pension bill for one and one-half hours under the five minute rule, the previous question then to be considered as ordered on the bill and pending amendments, with provision for a final vote today immediately after reading the journal.

Mr. Crisp (dem., Ga.) characterized the rule as a remarkable one. The practical consequence of the adoption of this rule would be to force the house to vote on the bill without amendment.

Mr. Henderson said he made no disguise of the fact that the purpose of the rule was to bring the bill to a vote. He said the situation in the senate must be taken into consideration and also the president in the white house, and urged all the friends of the old soldiers to stand by the bill as the best that could be written on the statute books at this time.

Mr. Crisp reiterated his statement that the purpose of the bill was to destroy the right of amendment, and followed this with the charge that the bill had been framed, not by the committee on pensions, but by the leaders in control of the house, who had resolved that the house should pass the bill as drawn or nothing.

The rule was adopted, 119 to 88. Thirty-four republicans voted against the adoption of the order. When the vote was announced, on motion of Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriation committee, the senate amendments to the sundry civil bill were non-concurred in and the bill sent to conference.

Under the rule adopted the pension bill was taken up for amendment under the five-minute rule.

Mr. Hepburn (rep., Iowa) offered an amendment providing that the pension office should construe the pension laws liberally in the interest of the claimant, and that no claimant should be required to produce proof that would exclude all reasonable doubt, but the claims should be decided in favor of the preponderance of the proof. The amendment was agreed to without division.

Mr. Pickler asked unanimous consent that the vote on the passage be taken at once, saying that the members who were absent could place themselves on record. Objections were made and Mr. Pickler withdrew his request.

The minority report on the Pacific railroad bill was submitted to the house by Representative Hubbard of Missouri. It deals exhaustively with the financial conditions of the companies concerned in the proposed funding plan. It argues that the majority bill should not be adopted for three reasons:

1. The committee has not learned enough of the affairs of the debtor companies to be able to tell the house what is best to do.

2. The companies made offers before the committee and are undoubtedly ready to concede terms very much better for the government than those embodied in the bill.

3. The propositions in the bill are neither good nor safe for the government.

Chinese Distinctions.

Chinese buttons of honor are one of the Flowery land's chief distinctions. The mandarins of the second class wear a button of coral red, suggested, perhaps, by a cock's comb, since the cock is the bird that adorns their breast. The third class are gorgeous, with a robe on which a peacock is emblazoned, while from the center of the red fringe of silk upon the hat rises a sapphire button. The button of the fourth class is an opaque, dark blue purple stone, and the bird depicted on the robe is the pelican. A silver pheasant on the robe and a clear crystal button on the hat are the rank of the fifth class. The sixth class are entitled to wear an embroidered stork and a jadestone button; the seventh a partridge and an embossed gold button. In the eighth the partridge is reduced to a quail, and the gold button becomes plain, while the ninth class mandarin has to be content with a sparrow for his emblem and with silver for his button.

A Spaniard's Invention.

An enterprising Spaniard has solved the problem of publishing a news-sheet without paper. It is printed on a pocket handkerchief. The reader, having made himself acquainted with the contents, can send the rag to the wash, when it can be put to its ordinary use as a pocket handkerchief. The odd paper is a weekly satirical illustrated publication, and the price is 5 cents. In an introduction to his readers, the editor is quite eloquent on the subject of pocket handkerchiefs. They serve, he says, to dry one's tears, to wave a fond adieu, to cover inopportune laughter, to hide an article one wishes to pick up unperceived, and in a hundred other ways they are useful.

START TO REBUILD.

NO TIME LOST AT CRIPPLE CREEK.

Saturday's Fire Destroyed One Million Dollars' Worth of Property, but the People Are Not Dismayed — Disaster Charged to Incendiaries.

The work of rebuilding the burned district in Cripple Creek, Colo., has begun already. At a meeting of the city council a resolution was passed allowing the erection of temporary buildings within the fire limits, with the provision that all must be removed within sixty days, to give place to buildings of stone and brick. As soon as the debris had cooled sufficiently the work of clearing was commenced, and before nightfall Sunday fully twenty-five buildings were under way and quite a number were occu-

It is asserted that positive evidence has been secured to prove that the fire was the work of an incendiary for the purpose of making a raid on the First National bank, which now appears to have had on deposit something over $100,000 on account of the near approach of pay day at the leading mines.

Kansas Cyclone the Severest Ever Experienced in the State.

Concordia, Kan., April 27.—The cyclone which swept through this section of the state Sunday evening was probably one of the severest that Kansas has ever experienced. Its path was about four hundred feet wide and extended fully twenty miles. It formed about 7 o'clock Saturday evening near St. Joseph, in the eastern part of Cloud county, and passed in a northeasterly ried. The first to open its doors was a dance hall and the second a saloon, but the other branches of business were soon represented. With 3,000 people rendered homeless in a day, of course lodging-houses are in greatest demand, and many of these are rapidly progressing. Fortunately, the weather is remarkably fine, so that sleeping in the open air does not entail suffering, and few have been compelled to do this. The best of order prevails. Hundreds of special policemen are on duty guarding the thousands of dollars' worth of property from stores and private houses. One of the first steps taken by the business men of the place was the organization of a relief committee to look after the destitute. At direction through the northern part of Clay and probably into the southern edge of Washington counties. Fortunately it struck no towns, but its course was through a thickly settled portion of the Republican Valley. The cyclone was funnel-shaped and its power seemed unlimited. Houses and barns were lifted into the air and dashed back to earth. Trees were uprooted or broken off, and everything in its track was destroyed.

The number of killed and those who have died from their wounds was last evening reported to be eleven, but the list will doubtless be increased by another twenty-four hours. Over twenty-five persons are said to have sustained serious injuries. Over twenty families

These were turned over to the committee, who replied with thanks, but declined the kindly offers. Cripple Creek will take care of her own. It is not believed that this will be difficult, for there is work for every man able to wield a shovel or a hammer.

None of the losses are as large as would appear from the burning of so large an area in more substantially built cities, but the losers are numbered by hundreds, so that the aggregate will

CHAPTER IV.

POMONA VILLA, situated in its own park-like grounds on the borders of Blackheath, was a select seminary for young ladies, conducted by the Misses Prism. The 'park-like grounds' consisted altogether of about half an acre of the terrestrial sphere, the chief part of which was laid down with shingle, affording an excellent opportunity of research for such pupils as were studying geology. As this fact was found, however, on discovery, to depress the spirits of parents, and cause them to imagine they might be deceived in other particulars as well as the grounds, the Misses Prism always hastened to correct the erroneous impression by assuring their would-be patrons that they only received young ladies of the highest families, and from the most select circles of society.

The Misses Prism forgot to mention, whilst alluding to this part of the subject, that Miss Jane Prime, of the first class, was the eldest daughter of the gentleman who provided them with beef, and that he had been gradually induced, as the young lady advanced in years, to increase his deduction from the weekly butcher's bills, from one pound to thirty shillings. It would also, doubtless, have been wasting the time of their visitors to explain that the reason the two Misses Candy were numbered amongst the select, was, that their papa was the principal grocer in the town, or that the two Misses Waters represented a certain number of quarts of milk, and that to make a long story short, they accepted any pupils they could get, without the slightest reference to their ancestors or antecedents.

The seminary at Pomona Villa was conducted on precisely the same principles as the generality of its kind, and turned out as finished women, with some few exceptions. This was the boarding-school to which Ruthven decided to send Margaret O'Reilly. In his dilemma, he had gone, naturally enough, to a married lady friend, the wife of one of his bons camarades; a woman who had no children of her own, but had heard of the Misses Prism through some one else, and Ruthven seized on the first opportunity presented to him, and made all the arrangements for the reception of his protegee at Pomona Villa, through the penny-post. He wrote frankly that her education had been neglected; but that was no drawback in the eyes of the Misses Prism. "They would give all the more attention to the sweet child, that she might realize every hope her excellent guardian entertained for her."

Ruthven winced under the correspondence, but considered that a few years with the Misses Prism could do the girl no harm.

"As soon as she can read and write," he thought, "I shall put her under Mrs. Delamaine, who'll make an excellent little chambermaid of her, or train her for any other line she may prove able to fill. I can't hear of her going into burlesque or the ballet with that face. It's quite enough responsibility for me to have picked her out of the gutter without incurring more. I often think I've done a hair-brained thing; but I'm in for it now, and the only course to take is to go through it as creditably as I can. So first to close with Miss Prism."

Both Ruthven and Mrs. Garrett had anticipated some difficulty when they told Peg she was to go to school, but to their astonishment the girl evinced the greatest delight at the prospect.

"Oh! I am glad," she ejaculated; "it is real good of Mr. Ruthven to send me to get some learning. I want to be a lady so much, and read all the books Master Hamilton does, and do beautiful writing like he can."

"Lor' bless the gal!" exclaimed the irate housekeeper, "you don't go to suppose that reading and writing will make you a lady? You'll never be a lady, live as long as you may, so the sooner you get that notion out of your head the better."

"Shan't I never?" said Peg, in a tone of disappointment, clasping her little thin hands together; "not if I tries very hard? Why, I heard Mr. Ruthven say the other day 'twas drawing, painting, music and such things that made people ladies and gentlemen, and I thought if I learned them at school I might be a lady, too."

"Well, I know nothing of what Mr. James said; but you can't be a lady unless you were born to it, and that's a settled fact. But why don't you call him 'master,' instead of Mr. Ruthven? 'Twould be much more suitable in my ideas, for a young gal like you."

"Never mind that, Garrett," exclaimed Ruthven, who had overheard this conversation; "I would rather Margaret continued to call me 'Mr. Ruthven.' It will make things less awkward when she goes to school."

"Just as you please, sir," responded the housekeeper; but from the way in which she grumbled over her work afterward, it did not seem as though, in this instance, his pleasure was her own.

Meanwhile, Peg O'Reilly's feelings at the contemplated change in her life were very mixed. This poor child, who had been reared in a work-house, made the drudge of a grocer's wife, and as a waif of the streets, had yet preserved amidst all her wanderings an instinctive knowledge that she was capable of better things.

With the face and form of a child of ten years old, she had the prematurely forced mind of a woman twice that age, which began to show itself as soon as ever it was placed in a congenial atmosphere. Her first feelings, when Ruthven carried her off so unceremoniously to his house, had been those of fear and curiosity; but she had fallen into the customs and manners of civilized life so naturally, as almost to incline one to believe it could not be her first introduction to them.

Her conversations with the housekeeper had imbued her with a terrible shame of her past life, whilst those with Hamilton Shore had given her a thirst to raise herself above even its recollections. But beyond all this, as her mind awakened to a consciousness of the utter want of claim she had upon Ruthven's benevolence and generosity, came the deep, heartfelt gratitude which she never ceased to entertain for him. She was very shy still with her patron, and totally powerless to express her feelings toward him. But if ever a girl believed a man to be more than mortal, Peg O'Reilly, in her silent adoration, credited James Ruthven with that attribute. She was sadly disappointed when Mrs. Garrett affirmed she would never be a lady; but she had heard what Lake Addison said to his friend on the subject, and she determined she would try to be one, for Ruthven's sake.

There was a great lamentation on the part of Hamilton Shore when he found that he and Peg were so soon to be separated, and he derived no consolation whatever from Mrs. Garrett telling him that so long as his bed was properly made and his supper ready when he required it, "it could make no possible difference to him, who came into the house and went out of it." Ruthven parted with his protegee in the same un-demonstrative manner in which he had adopted her. He nodded his head to her in passing, put a sovereign into her hand, and told her to be a good child and learn all she could, and got into his cab and drove away.

Mrs. Garrett, according to instructions, conducted the girl to Blackheath, and delivered her over to the charge of the Misses Prism. Once happily freed from the kisses which the preceptresses lavished on her as long as Mrs. Garrett was in sight, Peg felt dreadfully shy on being introduced to the bevy of young ladies in the school-room, until she discovered that the Misses Waters, Candy, and Prime spoke as ungrammatically as she did herself, and that, thanks to the liberality of her guardian (as Ruthven had desired her to call him), she was as well dressed as any girl there.

Indeed, until the neat black leather trunk with brass nails, which had accompanied her to Pomona Villa, was unpacked, Peg had no idea of the wealth of which she was the possessor. The young ladies of the highest families were all witnesses to its dismemberment, and as the handkerchiefs, scarfs, ribbons, collars and such like easily transferable wares, came to the surface, the affection of her new companions developed itself as though by magic. One girl in particular, a tall, handsome creature of fourteen years of age, whose black eyes and hair and olive complexion proclaimed her to be not all of Saxon blood, was vehement both in the praises of the wardrobe and its owner.

"Stand one one side, girls, and don't push so," said she, authoritatively. "Miss O'Reilly is going to be my friend; we were to sleep in the same room, and Miss Prism has put her under my especial care, so I won't see her put upon in any way."

"Which means that she intends to get that scarlet ribbon she is fingering for herself," grumbled one of the select; "it's just like Carmen Flowers—to pounce upon every good thing that comes into the school."

"Greedy!" said Miss Candy.

"Vain!" sneered Miss Prime.

"Stuck up!" chimed in Miss Waters.

By which it may be seen that Carmen Flower—Spanish by her mother's side, and English by her father's—although she was strongly suspected of turning out a beauty, was not much of a favorite at Pomona Villa.

Whether on account of Ruthven's liberality, however, or because some secret attraction drew the two girls together, Carmen Flower and Margaret O'Reilly were fast friends from the first day of meeting. On Peg's side a vast deal of admiration mingled with the affection she conceived for her new companion.

Carmen was only one year older than herself; yet she appeared almost a woman by comparison with her, and Peg thought she had never seen anything more beautiful than her flashing black eyes, and long, straight limbs, and the abundant dark tresses with which her head was crowned. Carmen was an orphan, too, who could not remember either father or mother, and lived with her uncle and guardian, Sir Frederic Flower, in an old house in the country called Abbotsville. It was rumored in the school that Miss Flower was an heiress, and would inherit all her uncle's money, and Carmen was fond of boasting to the same effect; but that circumstance made no difference to Peg. Her heart had known too little of affection not to respond eagerly to that semblance of it which school girls exhibit toward each other, and which has its outlet in kisses, secrets and terms of endearment. She mistook all this gilt for gold, and before a month was over her head she adored Carmen Flower as a being of superior order to herself, and was never so happy as when she was running her errands, doing her commissions, or waiting on her pleasure.

Carmen liked this adulation; it was as balm to her conceited spirit, and if she had ever felt an attachment to anyone it was to Margaret O'Reilly. Inheriting from her Spanish mother a haughtiness and thirst for admiration which had rendered her obnoxious to her companions, her beauty and wealth had not met hitherto with the consideration she thought they deserved. The British girl is almost as ready as her brother to put down anything like self-assurance and conceit, and the butcher's and baker's daughters had been irritated rather than awed, by the assumption of importance maintained by Miss Flower.

But poor Peg had no dignity of her own to keep up. She could not assert loudly, like the Misses Prime and Candy, that she was as good as others; she was only anxious to conceal the past, and let it die in silence. Even to her friend, Carmen Flower, she said nothing on the subject. Her feminine instinct had already taught her that the confession would do her harm, added to which Mrs. Garrett had especially cautioned her, on her master's behalf, not to reveal anything of her past life.

So all that the young ladies discovered was that she was an orphan and lived with her guardian, the same as Carmen Flower did. They thought her dreadfully vulgar at first, but natural timidity made her expose her deficiencies as little as possible, and natural intelligence quickly taught her to remedy them. It was Easter when she was sent to Pomona Villa, and by mid-summer no one would have recognized her as the same girl. Her face and figure had filled out, her cheeks bloomed with health, and her language was at least as correct as it is with most of her age. In fact, Margaret O'Reilly had become the prettiest girl in the school, and, though their attachment continued unabated, Carmen Flower was more than disposed to be jealous of the attention she attracted. When Mrs. Garrett arrived on one of her monthly visits to see how the girl was progressing, she held up her hands in amazement.

"Lor' bless me, Miss Margaret, I never did see such a change! Well, Blackheath must agree with you, and these ladies must be doing their duty for you to look so well. I should think you must weigh double what you did when you came here."

But it was nothing more than fresh air and wholesome food and the absence of fear that had wrought the miracle. For the first time in her life Peg's little mind and body were having fair play, and they responded gratefully to it. It was a great disappointment to the girl when the midsummer holidays arrived to find that she was to spend them at Pomona Villa, in company with Miss Tarbrush, whose parents lived in Calcutta. But so it had been arranged by Ruthven from the beginning.
