President Boehmer reported for the committee appointed at the last meeting to settle with the property owners along Station street. He said everything was now ready for opening and grading the street.

Motion made by Collen, seconded by Peters, that the work of grading the street be commenced at once. Carried.

Moved by Grunau, seconded by Collen, that nothing but 18-inch glazed tile be used.

President Boehmer then asked those present to state their business, if they had any.

The first one to take advantage of the opportunity was George Foreman, who asked where he should build his sidewalk. He said he wanted to put in a new walk, and he wanted to know whether he should put it on grade line or not. This fairly started the sidewalk question at a 2:40 gait. Nearly every trustee had seen holes in the sidewalks, and thought they ought to be repaired. The matter ended by Foreman getting no satisfactory answer, and the street commissioner was instructed to report to the clerk every sidewalk which needed repairing, and then serve both written and verbal notice on the property owners to repair same.

President Boehmer said that he had read in THE REVIEW that Mr. Jahnholz had sold his saloon to Mr. Grom, but no action was deemed necessary by the Board, as Mr. Grom is only running the business for Mr. Jahnholz.

Mr. J. Catlow took the floor to vent his feelings. He claimed that Robert Purcell (who was given permission to change the tile on his premises some time ago), was changing the natural water course to the detriment of the adjoining property and street. He wanted the Board to prevent Mr. Purcell from changing the tile at all. Mr. Purcell was represented by Steve Palmer. Mr. Palmer, who is doing the work for Mr. Purcell, said that the way they were laying the tile would not do any more injury than they do at the present time. He also said that Mr. Purcell instructed him to lay those tile the way that the Board wanted them laid, and in a way that would satisfy everybody. The matter was turned over to the street committee with power to act.

No further business being before the meeting the Board adjourned.

SALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES

Sunday evening was devoted by the Salem church to receiving the reports of Messrs. F. H. Freye and B. H. Sadt, delegates to the Sunday School convention held in Chicago some time ago, and also to the report of the Secretary of the Salem Sunday School. The Secretary's report for the three quarters just ended showed the Sunday School to be in a very flourishing condition. One noticeable feature was the increase in the penny collection, which amounted to $103.00, divided as follows: First quarter, $35.59; second, 36.06, and for the third quarter $41.43. The girls beat the boys in committing to memory scripture verses, as the following table will show:

	Boys.	Girls.
First quarter.....	1,896	3,023
Second quarter.....	848	1,400
Third quarter.....	507	827

The Sunday School has a membership of 236; not counting the senior bible class, which numbers about 38, and has a staff of 29 teachers.

The scholars that were present at each meeting for the three quarters were: Sam and Ella Naehner, Hulda Suhr and Herbert Plagge.

The teachers that were present at each meeting were: Carl and Emil Naehner and Mrs. Rev. Suhr. The number of scholars that did not miss a meeting the first quarter was 44; second quarter, 70, and the third, 28. The only officer that did not miss a meeting for the three quarters was the secretary, F. H. Plagge.

HER SUFFERINGS ENDED.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 6th, at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Henry Wolthausen peacefully passed away to that shore from which no mortal ever returns. A land in which pain is unknown, and where angels are the inhabitants.

Mrs. Wolthausen had been in delicate health all last winter, and in April was confined to her bed—a sickbed which God, in his wisdom, saw fit to decree that she should not leave alive.

Through all these weary months of sad affliction, suffering physical pains which few human beings are called upon to bear, she showed a true Christian spirit. She was resigned to take whatever God had in store for her—never a murmur of complaint, always full of hope.

Mrs. Wolthausen was born May 2d, 1868, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiseman. At the age of ten years she entered Christ's vineyard by joining church, always doing what she could to bring others to the spring of everlasting life.

On February 2d, 1890, she was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Wolthausen, three children blessing the union: Alma, 4 years of age, and Walter, 2 years old, the third, an infant, died about six weeks ago.

Interment took place yesterday in Miller's Grove cemetery.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM.

C. T. Heydecker and Rev. T. E. Ream Address a Large Audience Thursday Evening at Stott's Hall.

One of the most enthusiastic audiences assembled in Stott's hall this year was the one that greeted the Hon. C. T. Heydecker, of Waukegan, Thursday evening.

The marching club, with their canes made into torches for the time being, made a most creditable showing, and was a sight well worth going miles to see. After parading in the principal streets of the town they marched to Stott's hall, where a general all-round good time was had.

The platform was occupied by Rev. E. R. Troyer, of the Zion's church, Mayor Boehmer, President Castle, C. T. Heydecker, and Rev. T. E. Ream of the M. E. church.

After a selection by the band the quartette sang a campaign song. The quartette is one of the best drawing cards that the McKinley club could have secured. They arouse the enthusiasm of the audience to the highest pitch every time. The McKinley and Hobart club may well feel proud of their quartette.

Rev. Ream was first introduced by President Castle. He said he did not come to the front platform voluntarily, but that he was ushered on to the platform. He said he was not ashamed of his membership in the McKinley and Hobart club. He was proud of it, and was proud to stand up for that great statesman, Maj. McKinley, because he thought McKinley and the Republican platform represented the best interests of the laboring masses. This campaign was not one of money, but it was one of upholding the dignity of labor. Free coinage means repudiation, and repudiation means the destruction of a nation, and nowhere was this more plainly illustrated than by the downfall of the Roman empire years ago, when they attempted repudiation. The reverend gentleman's remarks were convincing, and made a deep impression on the audience.

After Rev. Ream's address President Castle introduced C. T. Heydecker, the principal speaker of the evening.

Mr. Heydecker, who is the State's Attorney for Lake county, and a candidate for re-election, is a speaker that takes his hearers by storm. He opened his address by a brief sketch of his life from the time he chased cows on a farm to the present time.

He said what this country needs is not more money but more work. He said that the two banks in his own little city, Waukegan, had $750,000 lying idle, while the Chicago banks had $24,000,000. He wanted an administration that would inspire enough confidence in the owners of this money in the business world so that they will invest the money and give employment to the laboring man. He further said that at no time was wheat so cheap, yet lots of poor people cannot buy it for want of the necessary money.

In reference to the bankers being able to corner the gold he said he could only find one instance where such a corner was effected, and then it only lasted a very short time. That one instance was recorded in the book of Genesis, as follows: "And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought, and Joseph brought the money into Parah's house." Mr. Heydecker denounced the platform of the Democratic party as unpatriotic, in that they denounced the administration of Cleveland for crushing the big strike at Chicago, and for upholding the national honor. He wound up his address with an earnest appeal to the voters to back up the boys that have stood by the flag, namely, McKinley and Tanner. He further advised them to vote the straight ticket.

Mr. Heydecker's speech must be classed as the best one delivered here this year, and one that convinced those present that the Republican party was entitled to their support.

Mr. Trevlyn had the diamonds, which were the wonder of the city, richly set, and Margarie was to wear them on her bridal night, as a special mark of the old man's favor. For, next to the diamonds, the sordid man loved Margie Harrison.

Linnere's gift to his bride was very simple, but in exquisite taste. Mrs. Weldon decided. A set of turquoise, with this initials and hers interwoven. Only when they were received, did Margie come out of her cold composure. She snapped together the lid of the casket containing them with something very like angry impatience, and gave the box to her maid.

"Take them away, Florine, instantly, and put them where I shall never see them again!"

The woman looked surprised, but she was a discreet piece, and strongly attached to her mistress, and she put the ornaments away without comment.

The tenth of October arrived. A wet, lowering day, with alternate snatches of rain and sunshine, settling down toward sunset into a steady, uncomfortable drizzle. A dismal enough wedding-day.

The ceremony was to take place at nine o'clock in the evening, and the invited guests were numerous. Harrison Park would accommodate them royally.

Mr. Linnere was expected out from the city in the six o'clock train, and as the stopping place was not more than five minutes' walk from the Park he had left orders that no carriage need be sent. He would walk up. He thought he should need the stimulus of the fresh air to carry him through the fiery ordeal, he said, laughingly.

The long day wore slowly away. The preparations were complete. Mrs. Weldon, in her violet, moire-antique and family diamonds, went through the stately parlors once more to assure herself that everything was au fait.

At five o'clock the task of dressing the bride began. The bridesmaids were in ecstasies over the finery, and they took almost as much pains in dressing Margie as they would in dressing themselves for a like occasion.

Margie's cheeks were as white as the robes they put on her. One of the girls suggested rouge, but Alexandrine demurred.

"A bride should always be pale," she said. "It looks so interesting, and gives every one the idea that she realizes the responsibility she is taking upon herself—doesn't that veil fall sweetly?"

And then followed a shower of feminine expressions of admiration from the four charming bridesmaids.

"Is everything ready?" asked Margie, wearily, when at last they paused in their efforts.

"Yes, everything is as perfect as any one could desire," said Alexandrine. "How do you feel, Margie, dear?"

"Very well, thank you."

"You are so self-possessed. Now I should be all of a tremble! Dear me! I wonder people can be so cold on the eve of such a great change! But then we are so different. Will you not take a glass of wine, Margie?"

"Thank you, no. I do not take wine, you know."

"I know, but on this occasion. Hush! that was the whistle of the train. Mr. Linnere will be here in a few minutes! Shall I bring him up to see you? It is not etiquette for the groom to see the bride on the day of their marriage, until they meet at the altar; but, you look so charming, dear! I would like him to admire you. He has such exquisite taste."

Margie's uplifted eyes had a half-frightened look, which Alexandrine did not understand.

"No, no!" she said, hurriedly, "do not bring him here! We will follow etiquette for this time, if you please, Miss Lee."

"O well, just as you please, my dear." "And now, my friends, be kind enough to leave me alone," said Margie. "I want the last hours of my free life to myself. I will ring when I desire your attendance."

Margie's manner forbade any objection on the part of the attendants, and they somewhat reluctantly withdrew. She turned the key upon them, and went to the window. The rain had ceased falling, but the air was damp and dense.

Her room was on the first floor, and the windows, furnished with balconies, opened to the floor. She stood looking out into the night for a moment, then gathered up her flowing drapery, and covering herself with a heavy cloak, stepped from the window. The damp earth struck a chill to her delicately shod feet, but she did not notice it. The mist and fog dampened her hair, unheeded. She went swiftly down the shaded path, the dead leaves of the linden trees rustling mournfully as she swept through them. Past the garden and its deserted summer-house, and the grasper, where the purple fruit was lavishing its sweets on the air, and climbing a stile, she stood beside a group of shading cypress trees. Just before her was a square enclosure, fenced by a hedge of arbor vitae, from the midst of which, towering white and spectral up into the silent night, rose a marble shaft, surmounted by the figure of an angel, with drooping head and folded wings.

Margie passed within the enclosure, and stood beside the grave of her parents. She stood a moment silent, motionless; then, forgetful of her bridal garment, she flung herself down on the turf.

"Oh, my father! my father!" she cried, "why did you doom me to such a fate? Why did you ask me to give that fatal promise? Oh, look down from heaven and pity your child!"

The wind sighed mournfully in the cypresses, the belated crickets and katydids droned in the hedge, but no sweet voice of sympathy soothed Margie's strained ear. For, wrought up as she was, she almost listened to hear some response from the lips which death had made mute forever.

The village clock struck half-past eight, warning Margie that it was almost time for the ceremony to take place. She started up, drew her cloak around her, and turned to leave the place. As she did so, she felt a touch on her hand—the hand she laid for a moment on the gate—as she stood giving a last sad look at the mound of earth she was leaving; a touch light and soft as a breath, but which thrilled her through every nerve.

She turned her head quickly, but saw nothing. Something like the sound of receding footsteps met her ear, nothing more, but she was convinced that there had been a human presence near her. Where? Her heart beat strangely; her blood, a moment before so chilled and stagnant, leaped through her veins like fire. From whence arose the change?

She reached her chamber without meeting any one, and unlocking the door, rang for her attendants. The house was in a strange confusion. Groups were gathered in the corridors, whispering together, and some unexpected trouble seemed to have fallen upon the whole place.

After a little while, Alexandrine came in, pale and haggard. Margie saw that her white dress was damp, and her hair uncurled, as if by the weather.

"Where have you been, Alexandrine?" she asked; "and what is the matter?"

"The girl turned from white to crimson."

"I have been in my room," she replied.

"But your clothes are damp, and your hair uncurled."

"The air is wet, and this great house is as moist as an ice-shed," returned the girl, hurriedly. "It is no wonder if my hair is uncurled. Margie, the—the—Mr. Linnere has not arrived."

"Not arrived! It must be nine o'clock."

As she spoke, the sonorous strokes of the clock proclaiming the hour, vibrated through the house.

"We have been distracted about him for more than two hours! he should surely have been here by half-past six! Mr. Trevlyn has sent messengers to the depot, to make inquiries, and the officekeeper thinks Mr. Linnere arrived in the six o'clock train, but is not quite positive. Mr. Weldon went, himself, to meet the seven-thirty train, thinking perhaps he might have got detained, and would come on in the succeeding train, but he did not arrive. And there are no more trains to-night! Oh, Margie, isn't it dreadful?"

CHAPTER IX.

ALEXANDRINE'S manner was greatly flurried and ill at ease, and the hand she laid on Margie's was cold as ice. Margie scrutinized her curiously, wondering the while at her own heartless apathy.

Something had occurred to stir the composure of this usually cool, self-possessed woman fearfully. But what it was Margie could not guess.

Mr. Trevlyn burst into the room, pale and exhausted.

"It is no use!" he said, throwing himself into a chair, "no use to try to disguise the truth! There will be no wedding tonight, Margie! The bridegroom has failed to come! The scoundrel! If I were ten years younger, I would call him out for this insult!"

Margie laid her hand on his arm, a strange, new feeling of vague relief pervading her. It was as if some great weight, under which her slender strength had wearied and sank, were rolled off from her.

"Compose yourself, dear guardian, he may have been unavoidably detained. Some business—"

"Business on his wedding day! No, Margie! there is something wrong somewhere. He is either playing us false—confound him!—or he has met with some accident! By George! who knows but he has been waylaid and murdered! The road from here, to the depot, though short, is a lonely one, with woods on either side! And Mr. Linnere carries always about his person enough valuables to tempt a desperate character."

"I beg you not to suppose such a dreadful thing!" exclaimed Margie, shuddering; "he will come in the morning, and—"

"But Hayes was positive that he saw him leave the 6 o'clock train. He described him accurately, even saying that he had a bouquet of white camellias in his hand. Margie, what flowers was he to bring?"

She shook her head.

"Mrs. Weldon knows. I do not." Alexandrine spoke.

"White camellias. I heard Mrs. Weldon ask him to fetch them."

Mr. Trevlyn started up.

"I will have out the whole household, at once, and search the whole estate! For I feel as if some terrible crime may have been done upon our very threshold. Margie, dear, take heart, he may be alive and well!"

He went out to alarm the already excited guests, and in half an hour the place was alive with lanterns, carried by those who sought for the missing bridegroom.

Pale and silent, the women gathered themselves together in the chamber of the bride, and waited. Margie sat among them in her white robes, mute and motionless as a statue.

"It must be terrible to fall by the hand of an assassin!" said Mrs. Weldon, with a shudder. "Good heavens! what a dreadful thing it would be if Mr. Linnere has been murdered!"

"An assassin! My God!" cried Margie, a terrible thought stealing across her mind. Who had touched her in the cypress grove? What hand had woke in her a thrill that changed her from ice to fire? What if it were the hand of her betrothed husband's murderer?

Alexandrine started forward at Margie's exclamation. Her cheek was white as marble, her breath came quick and struggling.

"Margie! Margie Harrison!" she cried, "what do you mean?"

"Nothing," answered Margie, recovering herself, and relapsing into her usual self-composure.

They searched all that night, and found nothing. Absolutely nothing. With the early train, both Mr. Trevlyn and Mr. Weldon went to the city. They hurried to Mr. Linnere's room, only to have their worst fears confirmed. Pietro informed them that his master had left there on the 6 o'clock train; he had seen him to the depot, and into the car, receiving some orders from him relative to his rooms, after he had taken his seat.

There could be no longer any doubt but that there had been foul play somewhere. The proper authorities were notified, and the search began afresh. Harrison Park and its environs were thoroughly ransacked; the river was searched, the pond at the foot of the garden drained, but nothing was discovered. There was no clue by which the fate of the missing man could be guessed at, ever so vaguely.

Every person about the place was examined and cross-examined, but no one knew anything, and the night shut down, and left the matter in mystery. Pietro, at length, suggested Leo, Mr. Linnere's grayhound.

"Him no love his master," said the Italian, "but him scent keen. It will do no hurt to try him."

Accordingly the next morning Pietro brought the dog up to the Park. The animal was sullen, and would accept attentions from no one save Margie, to whom he seemed to take at first sight. And after she had spoken to him kindly, and patted his head, he refused all persuasions and commands to leave her.

Mr. Darby, the detective, whose services had been engaged in the affair, exerted all his powers of entreaty on the dog, but the animal clung to Margie, and would not even look in the direction of the almost frantic detective.

"It's no use, Miss Harrison," said Darby, "the cur won't stir an inch. You will have to come with him! Sorry to ask ye, but this thing must be seen into."

"Very well, I will accompany you," said Margie, rising, and throwing on a shawl, she went out with them, followed by Mrs. Weldon, Alexandrine, and two or three other ladies.

Leo kept close to Margie, trotting along beside her, uttering every now and then a low whine indicative of anticipation and pleasure.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

How Seals Catch Sea-Gulls—Bazin's
New Steamboat—The Flying Machine.

GREAT curiosity has recently been brought into England from Mongolia, in Asia—the Upr of the Chaldees. It is an ordinary white wine glass bottle of unmistakably European manufacture.

Finding its way to the orient, it fell into the hands of some ingenious Asiatic, who inscribed upon the interior of the bottle one of the odes of Hafiz. How this was accomplished no European has been able to discover. Not George III puzzling over the problem of how the apple got within the dumpling could have been more dumb-founded.

Coal Production of the World.

Just how long the "black diamonds" will last is being continually discussed, but even the earliest period set down when the coal of the world will be exhausted is too remote to induce the present generation to take much interest in the subject. But the annual production of coal is something wonderful. The geological survey at Washington has just issued a bulletin showing the coal production of the world during the last twenty-eight years. The total output in 1863 was about 225,000,000 tons, of which the United States yielded 14 per cent. It gradually increased until in the years 1892-93-94 it exceeded 500,000,000 tons annually, of which, on an average, the United States contributed 30 per cent, and Great Britain only a little more, though formerly the latter used to contribute fully 50 per cent of the total production.

The produce of 1890 was: United States, 157,788,657 tons; Great Britain, 203,408,003 tons; Germany, 98,179,309 tons; France, 28,756,638 tons; Austria-Hungary, 30,323,195 tons; Belgium, 22,453,471 tons; Russia, 6,633,219 tons; other countries, 12,048,616 tons; total 559,592,108 tons. In 1895—United States, 193,117,530 tons; Great Britain, 212,320,725 tons; Germany, 114,524,186 tons; France, 30,273,599 tons; Austria-Hungary, 33,570,358 tons; Belgium, 22,607,371 tons; Russia, 8,367,337 tons; other countries, 14,250,993 tons; total, 628,805,239 tons.

An X-Ray Apparatus.

From the Scientific American: The expense of special Crookes tubes, powerful coils and batteries has deterred many from entering this interesting field of experiment; but Mr. R. McNeill, of this city, has recently devised apparatus in which an ordinary incandescent lamp is substituted for the Crookes tube, and an induction coil of common form is made to supply electricity of sufficiently high potential to produce the X ray phenomena.

The lamp, which is a 52 volt, 16 candle power Sawyer-Man lamp, is made of German or lime glass. For convenience, it is mounted in an insulating standard. The top of the lamp is covered with aluminum foil, which is connected with one terminal of the secondary of the induction coil, and the bottom is connected with the other terminal of the secondary, as shown. The X ray proceeds from the cathode. By means of the fluoroscope the shadows of the bones of the hands and feet, also of the limbs, may be seen, when they are placed between the instrument and the lamp.

It has been found in this experiment that when a blue fog appears in the lamp, the vacuum is too low for the best results. By placing the lamp in the house circuit for fifteen or thirty minutes the high vacuum is restored by the heat and will remain good for about fifteen minutes.

The coil is capable of giving a three-inch spark, and the X ray produced by this simple and inexpensive apparatus is sufficient for making radiographs.

Bazin's New Steamboat.

The Family Herald some months ago gave an illustration of the proposed steamship to be built by M. Bazin, a French marine engineer, wherein the vessel was shown mounted on huge wheels, which enable it to roll over the waves. The idea lying behind his proposition can be shown by an experiment. Take a hollow lens shaped disk, something like two saucers joined together, which can be held vertically in the water. Plunge this disk into the water and push it forward. You will find that it will go ahead for some feet, and will then be stopped by the resistance of the water. But if, before you push it, you give it, by means of a spindle crossing its center, a sufficiently rapid rotary movement, you will find that the disk will, so to speak, saw the water instead of cleaving it, and will thus make ten times the distance. The first rolling boat constructed under these conditions will shortly be launched on the Seine. What spectators will see in this vessel will be a large platform, holding the boilers, machinery, saloons, cabins, etc., supported on each side by movable hollow wheels. The inventor predicts that by these boats a speed of a mile a minute will be obtained—a speed sufficient to bring the continents of America and Europe within four days of each other.

How Seals Catch Sea-Gulls.

The sea lion is probably the clumsiest animal in the world. He likes to bask in the sun all day, and when he moves he is exceedingly sluggish and awkward.

It has often been wondered how this animal manages to secure its favorite food—wild sea fowl. Sea gulls are so wild that it is difficult even for man to get within gun shot of one. The seal seems to realize that it would be a waste of time to attempt to crawl up upon the gulls as they rest upon the water, and catch them unawares. So he watches until the gulls are soaring slowly through the air close to the waves. Then the seal dives into the sea and swims underneath the water for some distance. By the time he has managed to swim about a hundred feet the gull has forgotten the presence of its enemy. This gives the seal his opportunity. He cautiously rises to the surface of the water at some distance from the point at which he dived, and allows merely the tip of his great nose to appear above the water. Remaining in this position, he gives his enormous body a rotary motion, so that his nose describes a circle on the surface of the ocean. He does this so skillfully that to the gull his nose looks like a water bug at play. This catches the gull's eye, and it at once darts down with the speed of an arrow, aiming straight for the little dot. The seal sees it coming, and sinks a few inches, and as the gull strikes the water with tremendous force, the seal's jaws close upward, and the gull disappears.

The Flying Machine.

It is an old story now that the aeronauts of the day have abandoned the search for light materials and buoyant gases in attempts on aerial navigation. The flimsiness and large area of exposure that attend the use of such means place the aeronaut at the mercy of the elements. Their hope now lies in the principle of the oyster shell which boys sail to such gratifying distances and comparatively small muscular effort, and the laws which account for soaring birds like the buzzards. Prof. Langley, Mr. Maxim and Herr Lillenthal are one in their reliance on this aeroplane theory. The mechanical peculiarity of the aeroplane's motion is similar to the gliding of a rapid skater over thin ice—the faster he goes the less danger is there of sinking. So Prof. Langley has used in the building of his last and most successful machine substances actually a thousand times heavier than the air which promised to support them, and he relies entirely on the extensive area of the planes, shaped something like the wings of a hawk, and their angle to the currents of air, to achieve buoyancy. The oyster shell analogy affords luminous explanation to every man who remembers the ecstasy of seeing the white disc soar away and up long after the earth should, by all experiences of stone-throwing, have claimed her own. The flatter and thinner the shell within the limits of weight, the more astonishing the flight that resulted, unless, indeed, the edge of the missile were inclined downward instead of slightly upward. In the former case the shell darted instantly to earth and the throw fell so much short of the average heaving of a pebble as the more scientific skim would have exceeded it.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

ILL SINCE GIRLHOOD, NOW A PICTURE OF HEALTH.

From the Star, Valparaiso, Ind.
 The attention of the Star having been called to several cases of radical cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, it was determined to investigate some of the more notable of these cases, with a view to disseminating exact information on the subject and benefiting others who were suffering. Prominent among those who had experienced benefits from the use of this remedy was mentioned Mrs. Mary Noren, wife of John Noren, a prosperous farmer, living northeast of Valparaiso, Ind., and to her a reporter was accordingly dispatched.

Mrs. Noren was found busily engaged in household duties, but she found time to detail her experience, and was willing and even anxious that the benefits she had felt should be told for the benefit of those who had suffered as she did.

"I had been ill since girlhood with a complication of complaints," said Mrs. Noren, "never so much as to be confined long in bed, but I suffered intense misery. My chief trouble was with my stomach. I felt a constant gnawing pain that was at times almost distracting, and which had been diagnosed by different physicians as dyspepsia and sympathetic derangement dependent on the condition of the generative organs. I had pains in the back, sometimes so great as to make me unable to work, and frequent bilious attacks. I also suffered greatly from constipation, from which I never could find permanent relief. Then these symptoms were aggravated by rheumatic pains between the shoulder blades, which were most excruciating in damp or cold weather. After my marriage about five years ago, and when my baby was born the trouble seemed to increase, and I was frequently so sick that I could not do my household work. I tried different physicians and used numerous remedies but all in vain, until one day last fall I happened to read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. My husband got three boxes from Mr. C. D. Rushton, the druggist, and I began to use them. From the first I began to feel relief, and before the three boxes were gone I was nearly well. The constipation was cured and the other troubles were so much relieved that I felt better than I had felt for years. As I continued in the use of the pills I grew better and stronger, my appetite was more natural, and my flesh increased, until I am in the condition you see me now."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

REGISTRATION DAY.
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13—DON'T FAIL TO REGISTER.

Tuesday, October 13, will be registration day and all voters should see to it that their names are on the register in their voting precinct. For the purpose of registration the election judges and clerks will be at the polling place at nine o'clock in the morning. The following is an extract from that part of the election law relating to registration:
"The * * * judges of elections in any town, city or ward or other election districts or precincts, shall constitute a "board of registry" for their respective towns, cities, wards, districts or precincts, and shall meet on Tuesday, three weeks preceding any state election, at nine o'clock a. m. and proceed to make a test * * * of all persons qualified and entitled to vote at the ensuing election in the election district of which they are judges."

FIRE LIMITS.
The Review appreciates the necessity of having a fire limits established in the village of Barrington. It is something that the people need. Who is in favor of it? [Answer will be published next week.]

FAILURE OF THE SECTIONAL CRY.

There has been talk during this campaign about arraying section against section, especially of the south and west being arrayed against the east. This attempt at arraying parties on sectional lines has failed, a fact for which every true American rejoices.

Instead of genuine Americanism being in the decline in any section of the country the reverse is true, and it is doubtful whether for half a century the American people as a whole have given more convincing evidence of their loyalty to American institutions than in the present campaign. Whether populist, silver democrat, gold democrat or republican in political preferences, there can be no doubt as to Americanism in the political parties of to-day, although all do not agree as to what is best for the future of a republic that all are loyal to. The idea that any section of this broad land is going to the dogs, and that therefore the people of that section are desperate and ready to accept any remedy that seems to promise relief, is preposterous to any one acquainted with actual conditions. Times have been, and are, hard, but they will have to be much harder before the American people will be willing to stake their future upon any measure or any man of whose Americanism, rightly or wrongly, they have any doubt.

Under these circumstances it is not strange that there should recently have been a notable decline in calamity howling.

OPEN THE MILLS—NOT THE MINTS.

Congressman Nelson Dingley, of Maine, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the present Congress, will be at Woodstock, Ill., Monday, Oct. 12, 1896.

Congressman Dingley, who is one of the ablest statesmen in America and who will have much to do with the tariff and monetary legislation of the future, will speak in the public park at Woodstock at 2 p. m. on the day indicated, devoting himself to a discussion of the money and tariff questions and the other issues of the campaign.

Ex-Congressman George E. Adams, of Chicago, will address the evening meeting. Mr. Adams is one of the ablest debaters and most polished orators in the United States.

Capt. John R. Tanner and the other candidates for state offices are expected to be present during the day.

Two great parades, in which marching clubs from all the surrounding towns, including Elgin, Rockford and Belvidere, are expected to participate, will take place—afternoon and evening.

It is intended to make this the largest and most enthusiastic political demonstration ever held in McHenry county, and the people of Woodstock will put forth every effort to make the day an enjoyable one for all who may come.

Reduced rates from all points on the North-Western Railway have been secured.

A FIRE limits ordinance gives the Village Board of Trustees power to restrict anyone from building a cheap wooden shack beside an elegant brick block, or anywhere else in the business portion of the town. A fire limits ordinance will tend to decrease the rate of insurance in the business portion of the town. A fire limits ordinance will in time see the business portion of Barrington built up with good, substantial buildings, in place of the fire traps we now have. Who is in favor of such an ordinance? Give us your answer.

OUR Village Board devoted considerable time to the dilapidated sidewalks. So far so good. They instructed the street commissioner to make note of all sidewalks that need repairing, and report them to the clerk, who will write notices to the property-owners to repair them at once. This is still better. Now, we want to see what the times will bring forth. Will the property owners comply willingly, or will they want to have the Board compel them to make the needed repairs. Will our Village Board have the "sand" to back up their command with the power conferred upon them by the law? We believe they will.

Treasurer—Sam Lageschulte.

Corresponding Secretary—Miss Ida Gleske.

Program Committee—Misses Mary Freye and Lydia Kampert and Henry Schroeder.

Organists—Misses Lydia Beinhoff and Esther Lageschulte.

The ushers and librarian were elected by acclamation, the election resulting as follows:

Librarian—Charles Schaefer.

Ushers—John Kampert and Newton Meier.

It was also decided at Tuesday's meeting to hold the annual meeting on Sunday evening, Oct. 25th, in the Salem Church auditorium, and that last year's officers be requested to preside at that meeting. A good program has been prepared, and the event is looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure.

GRATIFYING RESULTS.

There is not a music teacher in this state whose services are more sought after than Prof. J. I. Sears. The professor's large class of '96 has been eclipsed in numbers by that of '97, and still there are a large number of young people right in this vicinity who would like to take lessons, yet cannot be accommodated by the professor, the hours from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. already being filled. Prof. Sears has a class at Crystal Lake, Cary and Algonquin, while at Barrington and Palatine he has two classes in each.

The people of this vicinity appreciate good talent, and that the professor is an artist in his profession is beyond question.

THE REVIEW congratulates Prof. Sears on his well deserved success.

A FINE PROGRAM.

An unusually good program was rendered at the Salem church Sunday afternoon by the Mission band of that church. Miss Luella Plagge, president of the Mission band, called the meeting to order, after which the following program was rendered:

Song, by Mission Band.

Response of scripture verses by members of Mission Band.

Song—Esther and Rose Kampert, Emma and Rose Lageschulte.

Dialogue, "Why have you left the Sabbath School?"—Herbert Plagge, Ben Schroeder and Willie Sott.

Solo—Ada Landwer.

Dialogue (German), "The Stray Lamb"—Lydia Sott, Alma Stiefenhofer, Nora Plagge.

Song—Myrtle, Almeda and Newton Plagge.

Address—Rev. Suhr.

Song—By Mission Band.

The song, "Bim, Bam, Hoert der Glockenlang," was especially fine, as was also the song by Ada Landwer.

FRED BROEMMELKAMP DEAD.

The uncertainty of life has never before been illustrated with more force than in the sudden death of Mr. Fred Broemmelkamp, on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, after an illness of only a few days.

Mr. Broemmelkamp was a healthy-appearing man. Although taken sick on Wednesday, a little over a week ago, he was able to be around until a few days before his death.

Mr. Broemmelkamp was born April 16, 1861, on a farm 2½ miles southwest of Barrington.

In the year 1883 he was united in marriage to Miss Louisa Wolf, three children blessing the happy home—Frank, 10 years of age; Cora, 8, and Florence, 3 years old.

In the year 1887 he engaged in the general merchandise business in Barrington in partnership with Charles Alberding, which business they conducted for several years. After dissolving partnership Mr. Broemmelkamp again moved on the farm where he has since resided.

Mr. Broemmelkamp was a hard-working man, and was well known to the citizens of this community, and had many friends.

Interment will take place in Evergreen cemetery Sunday, Rev. Suhr, of the Salem church, assisted by Rev. T. E. Ream, of the M. E. church, officiating. Services will be held at his late residence at 10 o'clock, after which services will be held in the Salem church.

Mr. Edward H. Taylor, The American Contract Company, Chicago.

Dear Sir:—I have examined a sample contract and the proposition you have made me regarding my Royal League insurance, and can say with pleasure that it is a very fair one indeed. I heartily recommend the plan to all persons who are in a position to save a small sum each month for use in old age. The extended insurance feature also strikes me as being a very good thing for the contract holder.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) GEO. EDMUND FOSS,
Commonwealth Council No. 72. Member of Congress Seventh Congressional District.

F. H. Cosby, Esq., Special Agent, American Contract Co., Chicago.

My Dear Sir:—The contract for which I gave you my application a few days ago has been received by me, and I am much pleased with the liberality of its provisions and its equitable and profitable guaranteed results. It is certainly a desirable plan by which persons are enabled to save small amounts and without feeling it, accumulate a small sum of money.

As your company is composed of some of the leading men of the city, I take special pleasure in saying to you that I will be glad at all times to help you secure further business and recommend your company and its propositions heartily. I am,

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) JAMES L. MONAGHAN,
County Comptroller.

Chicago, December 19, 1894.

The American Contract Company, Chicago.

Dear Sir:—I am pleased to acknowledge the receipt of a contract in your company, and upon examining it with care pronounce it a very good plan and one that should appeal to all members of the League. The idea of saving a small sum each year for future use is a most excellent one and should be encouraged in all young men. The extended insurance feature is also a good one. A great many people carry insurance for years and when they need it most, meet with misfortunes and are compelled to give it up. Under your plan they receive full benefit for all money they have expended. I shall take pleasure in giving your company a sincere endorsement whenever you may desire.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) A. F. CAMPBELL,
Sec'y Dept. Police.
Imperial Council No. 8, Royal League.

Chicago, January 3, 1895.
The American Contract Company, Chicago.

Gentlemen:—I take pleasure in stating that I have a contract with your company, and consider it one of the best investments that I have. You ask the reasons why I took the contract, and why I consider the investment a good one? All that I can say is, that a company managed by such prominent men as your company cannot fail to be successful in its undertakings. Furthermore the fact of your having a Trust Agreement with a company like the Title Guarantee and Trust Company is additional evidence that the interest of your contractholders will be most fully protected.

I trust that this may assist you in securing additional business.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) WILLIAM MAMLER,
City Oil Inspector.

Chicago, November 27, 1894.
Mr. Frank D. Ketcham, Secretary American Contract Company, Chicago.

Dear Sir:—I herewith acknowledge the receipt of Contract No. 1176, written in combination with my Benefit Certificate in the Royal League, and after examining carefully pronounce it far superior to endowment life insurance policy in an old line insurance company, because I get insurance at actual cost and have the investment entirely separate and under my control.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) CHARLES H. COLES,
Imperial Council No. 8, Royal League.

Linseed Oil Takes a Drop

We wish to call the attention of the public to the fact that Linseed Oil has taken another fall in price, and we are now selling both the Best Linseed Oil and D. B. Shipman's White Lead at the Lowest Prices on Record!

The large crop of flax seed just harvested has caused the linseed oil to drop another notch recently. We always follow the market, and therefore have dropped our prices accordingly. This places both white lead and linseed oil at astonishing low figures, in fact, they are so low that it would seem impossible for the market to hold at this point but for a short time. Parties who have been thinking of doing painting will, in our opinion, find no better and profitable time to do so than right now.

Our sales of Painter's Materials in Barrington and vicinity has been large, and is still growing. We cut the prices down close for the purpose of securing the trade in particular from the surrounding community, and we are pleased to say that we are getting a good part of it.

If you want anything in the paint line let us know. We want your trade and would like to talk with you.

LATEST NEWS OF THE CYCLONE IN FLORIDA.

Fearful Loss of Life and Property Reported from the Interior of the State—Hundreds Homeless and Suffering from Hunger—Death List Is Large.

As communication with the interior of the state of Florida is restored the news of the destruction of life and property by Tuesday's hurricane becomes appalling. Hundreds of persons are homeless, and must suffer from hunger unless relief shall be quickly furnished. Reports from seventy-six towns, including all the important towns in Levy, Lafayette, Suwanee, Columbia, Bradford and Baker counties, show that sixty-seven persons were killed and sixty-two injured. These are the known casualties. To this total probably a considerable number must be added to cover those not yet heard from.

The loss of life was greatest at Cedar Keys, on the gulf of Mexico, where the hurricane entered the state. Over half of the known deaths occurred at that place. The destruction of valuable timber, turpentine trees, farm crops, phosphat works and buildings of every description in the counties mentioned, forming a belt across the state from southwest to northeast, will aggregate hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars.

ALEXANDER SALVINI, NOTED ACTOR, NOW DANGEROUSLY ILL.

Alexander Salvini, the actor, who is lying dangerously ill at his father's home, Monte Catino, near Florence, is familiar to thousands of Americans for his splendid personation of Dumas' hero, D'Artagnan, in "The Three Guardsmen." Mr. Salvini has looked forward to a career of greatness upon the stage, and his hopes have been encouraged by most of the critics. He has been the foremost among young men who essay the drama of romance, and his capability in that regard has been universally conceded. In his attempts at more profound study he has been less fortunate. As Hamlet he was perhaps a little too theatrical, and his lack of repose was commented upon. At the same time, his conception of the character was original and in some respects worthy. The younger Salvini is about 30 years old and his earliest recollections are of the theater. It was his intention to take his father's place in tragedy, and it was not impossible that his genius might have broadened with age to the desired scope. In physique there was nothing wanting. A young giant of marvelous inherited strength, he had the force and the presence to follow "Othello," "The Gladiator" and the other tragedies so well presented by the elder. The young man never completely conquered English. His foreign accent was just perceptible in most of his stage speech. It was especially prominent in his Hamlet, and this fact somewhat marred the dignity of his work in that play.

NATIONAL MASONIC UNIVERSITY TO BE ERECTED AT GIRARD, PA.

The new National Masonic University, soon to be erected near Girard, Pa., is an institution in which masons over all the country are deeply interested. It will occupy a prominent position on the beautiful Ridge road which runs from Erie to Girard, overlooking the lake. Ample grounds have been secured just outside the city limits of Girard. These grounds consist of farm lands, orchards and vineyards, well watered by natural springs. In point of location, healthfulness, accessibility to railroads and other desirable features this site is unsurpassed for its purpose in America. The buildings will be confined to a general plan, and will be substantially constructed. The university, with the exception of an acknowledgment of the "Grand Master," who is above, will be non-religious. Children more than 10 years of age, resident anywhere in the United States, whose fathers, if deceased, were master masons, will be entitled to its benefits. While in no sense a charitable school, the university will educate children of master masons whose circumstances are not such as to provide them with an education elsewhere. Indigent children of masons will be on a parity with the students who are paying for their education. All the students will be dressed alike in university costume, and the purpose will be to bring up the whole body of pupils without granting special privileges to any.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

President—J. Irving Pearce, Chicago. Secretary—W. C. Garrard, Springfield.

Mrs. Claude Dabler, wife of a well-known young man of Princeton, Ill., shot herself. Family troubles are said to be the cause.

Gov. Altgeld appointed Frank E. Goodman of Chicago a trustee of the northern hospital for the insane at Elgin, vice Charles Nieman, of Elgin, resigned.

The Smithboro mines, located four miles east of Greenville, have been closed down by Joseph Somers, the owner. The men recently made a demand for a raise of 5 cents per ton. Mr. Somers considered the proposition a few days and then posted a notice to-day at the mine discharging every miner.

George S. Newman, a wealthy mine owner of Leadville, Colo., has disappeared, and the police have been asked to assist in finding him. Saturday morning he left the residence of his sister, Mrs. O. R. Hall of Chicago, promising to return for lunch at 11 o'clock. He did not come back, and since he left the house no trace of him has been found. It was at first thought that he might have returned to Leadville, but telegrams from that city say that nothing has been seen of him there.

A pool-room, patronized exclusively by women, was raided by Lieutenant Bonfield at Chicago. Bonfield found seventeen women and two men employed about the place as markers, and placed them under arrest. The pool-room was in a three-story building in Thirty-third street. On the second floor was a large blackboard, on which was written the results of races at the different tracks. The seventeen women all gave fictitious names. Three patrol wagons took them to the station house, and they were soon released on bail.

Weak from the effects of hunger, Philip Flife, a German, forty-two years old, was found lying in a ditch alongside the Illinois Central railroad at One hundred and second street, Chicago, the other morning. He informed the policeman that he had not touched food for three days. He left his wife and four children three weeks ago in Jersey City to search for work. While stealing a ride on a freight train, he was put off at One Hundred and Second street. He was so weak that he could not walk, and decided to lie in the ditch to die.

Waukegan special: Another attempt is being made to settle the ownership of the swamp lands in the Grass Lake region, now valuable as summer resort property. Last year the government decided that this county owned them. The county proposes to quit claim them to the present holders at $1.25 per acre. A subland commissioner is now here from Washington taking testimony regarding these lands. The point is to determine what land is still swamp land and what part was swamp land when settled. It is probable that the old settlers will get the valuable land claimed by them at wild land prices.

First district, Charles H. Dolton, Dolton Station; Second, Iru Coy, Chicago; Third, Martin Conrad, Chicago; Fourth, John N. Young, Chicago; Fifth, J. Harley Bradley, Chicago; Sixth, Andrew Dunning, Dunning Station; Seventh, H. J. Carter, Libertyville; Eighth, W. D. Stryker, Plainfield; Ninth, A. J. Lovejoy, Roscoe; Tenth, E. B. David, Aledo; Eleventh, George H. Madden, Mendota; Twelfth, Len Small, Kankakee; Thirteenth, Lafayette Funk, Shirley; Fourteenth, D. W. Vittum, Canton; Fifteenth, A. D. Barber, Hamilton; Sixteenth, W. H. Fulkerson, Jerseyville; Seventeenth, W. A. Young, Butler; Nineteenth, J. K. Dickinson, Lawrenceville; Twentieth, John Landrigan, Albion; Twenty-first, B. Pullen, Centralia; Twenty-second, J. M. Richart, Carbondale.

An up-to-date wedding that has excited much interest is that of Mr. Alexander S. Frazer and Mrs. Minnie F. Hendricks, the latter a young widow who until recently has been a teacher in the public schools. The feature of this wedding is that the bride and bridegroom, both of whom are expert bicyclists, rode their wheels to the Church of the Redeemer, where the ceremony was performed. After the marriage they and their attendants remounted their wheels and rode home again. Later Dispatch: Mrs. Frazer, a bride of four days, shot herself through the heart, dying instantly. No reason can be given. The young couple were prominent in church and society and were both members of the choir of the Church of the Redeemer, in which church they were married last week, going from the altar to their handsome home, where the young bride now lies dead.

In Chicago, Grace Clark Conway, age 18, shot and killed her husband, Harry M. Conway, age 21, and then killed herself.

Peoria special: The internal revenue collections in this district for the month of September were $1,574,801, which is $550,000 larger than a year ago, and larger than they have been since the Wilson bill went into effect in August, 1894. They would have been $2,000,000 if the tax had been paid on spirits shipped out in bond.

Quincy special: The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy fast mail from Chicago ran down a section crew coming in on a handcar near the soldiers' home. All except Patrick Burke of Quincy escaped with their lives by jumping. Burke and the handcar were hurled into the air above the locomotive's smokestack, injuring him so that he died.

P. S. Bartlett, who now resides at Evanston, came to Elgin last week and identified a gold watch and some chains and charms which were found in the box of jewelry discovered by the police in a barn at Dundee and secreted there by Hart P. Wolaver, an Elgin merchant, who claims to have taken them for security on a debt. Bartlett states that these goods were stolen from his safe, together with diamonds valued at $500, in January, 1892. At that time he occupied an office jointly with Wolaver and the jewelry firm of Corthell & Gillette, to whom the other goods found belonged.

Jacksonville special: Dr. McFarland, who conducts a retreat for the insane, and against whom the state board of charities has authorized proceedings for operating without a license, has written Attorney General Moloney that he is patiently awaiting court proceedings. He states that he never had a license and that the Illinois statutes have no provision compelling private asylums for the insane to take out such license. Dr. McFarland concludes with the statement that court will soon be in session and requests the attorney general to give the matter his prompt attention, after first looking up the state laws bearing on lunacy.

Arcola special: The Salvation Army planted its barracks in this city last Monday night. Thursday night a riot took place at the hall which resulted in the arrest of Henry Dennis, a local gardener. Dennis, who was badly beaten, claimed the Salvationists had induced his wife to leave him. He left the meeting and proceeded to get drunk. Returning to the hall where the army was in session, he attempted to break up the gathering, but was prevented by Henry Wilkinson and one of the women Salvationists. Mrs. Dennis says she intends to leave the city in the interests of the army. The couple have five small children. More trouble will probably result. Dennis is now under $500 bond. He swears vengeance and says he will break up the meetings of the army.

The Bankers' Association of the state of Illinois meets at Springfield next week. Rev. Dr. John F. Davies will open the first day's session with prayer, and F. W. Tracy, president of the First National bank, will make the address of welcome, to which President W. P. Halliday will reply. Then will follow reports of officers and addresses by Attorney George A. Sanders of Springfield on "Municipal Securities," and by Judge S. P. Wheeler on "The Necessity of a Universal Law Governing Commercial Paper in the United States." The prayer opening the second day's session will be delivered by Rev. E. B. Rogers of Springfield. The Halliday prizes will then be awarded, and E. S. Lacey, William A. Hammond of Chicago, will report on the American Bankers' Association conventions at Atlanta and St. Louis. Vice President D. B. Dewey of Chicago will discuss "Bank Credits" and H. H. Marbold of Greenview will talk on "Consideration Due a Customer by a Banker." "Express Money Orders" will be presented by E. L. Wahl of Vandalia. Election of officers and adjournment will follow.

Daniel J. Wren, ex-county commissioner of Chicago is critically ill. He has been practically given up by the doctors, though Mrs. Wren still entertains hope of his recovery. Dr. P. S. Macdonald, the family physician, called in for consultation Dr. Billings, Dr. Quine and Dr. J. B. Murphy, all of whom agreed with Dr. Macdonald's serious view of the case. Mr. Wren's illness began three weeks ago with an attack of typhoid fever, from which developed acute nephritis, and this constitutes the present grave danger. Heart failure has also set in. Dan Wren, as he was familiarly called, figured conspicuously in the county boodle cases, and, along with Van Pelt, Varnell, Wasserman and McGarrigle, was convicted and sent to Joliet. When he returned to Chicago he went into the business of building livery stables in residence districts, and it was charged he did this to sell the property for an advanced price to his wealthy neighbors. He now has a large livery stable in Cottage Grove avenue, near Forty-seventh street. Mr. Wren is 50 years old and has a wife and grown-up daughter.

DR. SEWARD WEBB.

HE HAS LATELY BEEN CHOSEN TO VERMONT LEGISLATURE.

Once a Poor Physician in a Charity Hospital—Romantic Meeting With Lila Vanderbilt—Their Marriage and His Wall Street Career.

HE phenomenal success Dr. W. Seward Webb has made of his life has been added to by his recent election to the Vermont legislature. Dr. Webb, though a poor man, married Lila, one of the daughters of the late William Vanderbilt, who dowered her with $15,000,000. The marriage, of course, laid the foundation of his fortunes. It came about in a romantic way. Dr. Webb was of an old revolutionary family and founded the "Sons of the American Revolution." There were several boys in the Webb family, all well educated, thoroughly aristocratic, but poor. Seward devoted himself to medicine and in and brought her sweets. He thought nothing much about it and was all unaware that the child was also telling the "lovely young lady" all about the good young doctor. Finally the little girl grew very ill and Dr. Webb stayed with her all day. The young lady called to see the child while he was there and it was over the bedside of a dying charity patient that Dr. Seward Webb and young Lila Vanderbilt first spoke to one another. It turned out to be a case of love at first sight. After leaving the hospital the doctor changed his mind as to his career and entered Wall street with Daniel Worden. A few years later, when he had accumulated a little money, he married Lila Vanderbilt. He was made president of the Wagner Palace-Car company, and when in New York he and his wife live in a handsome Fifth avenue residence. Their principal home, however, is at Shelburne, Vt., from which district he was sent to the legislature. Dr. Webb has his eye on the United States senate and thinks this is a stepping-stone to his ambition. He has a weakness for horses and owns a large stock, his particular fad being the breeding of hackneys. He is unsurpassed as a whip. He is a very domestic man and detests balls and receptions, preferring his own home circle. Several years ago the doctor published a book, "California and

MRS. NATHAN GUTMAN.

Nathan Gutman, widower, a well-to-do German saloonkeeper of 217 Avenue B, New York, and Eliza Fass, widow, of 71 Amberg street, Brooklyn, were married at the residence of the latter the other evening, thereby winding up a romance begun in Germany a good many years ago. In days long gone by Gutman was a schoolmaster in the market village of Birkenau, Hesse-Darmstadt. Eliza Goldman, the pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of a prosperous burgher, thought much of the handsome young schoolmaster and the young people became engaged. The girl's parents objected and the lovers separated. Gutman, despondent and broken-hearted, came to the new world to forget his unfortunate attachment and to win fame and fortune for himself. Time healed his wound and he married Miss Helena Wolf, and by frugality and hard work saved money and established himself in the liquor business at 217 Avenue B. For fifteen years he devoted himself to business and accumulated a fortune. Three years ago his wife died. The dainty Eliza Goldman, in the meantime, at her parents' command, married Samuel Fass, and with her husband came to America, and made Brooklyn their home. After ten years of married life Fass died.

One of Gutman's friends who knew the story of his early disappointment in love told him four months ago that the one-time Miss Goldman, now the widow of Fass, lived in Brooklyn, and Gutman began to act as if he were young again. He bought a gay necktie, a fancy vest and lovely crash clothes. Then, after visiting the barber, he went to Brooklyn with electricity in his step and an old-time longing in his heart. Eliza Fass received him in her best widow's gown and her blushes were as noticeable as in the olden days. A little bit of color and bright ribbons here and there had brightened up her attire when he called again, and after a third visit Gutman told his friends he was a happy man, and the engagement was announced. Only a few intimate friends were invited to the long-deferred ceremony, at the conclusion of which the reunited lovers started for the west on a wedding tour.

Alaska," which was the result of his observations during a trip made with his family and a few guests through those regions. The train in which the party traveled was especially magnificent, being composed of library, dining-room, sleeping apartments, observation and baggage car and another car for the servants. Dr. Webb is a republican. He is in the early 40's and a very popular man.

Eastern Oysters for Oregon.

J. J. Brice, United States fish commissioner, has decided to stock suitable Oregon waters with eastern oysters, being convinced from reports received that these will thrive on the Oregon coast, and he has notified Fish and Game Protector McGuire to this effect. A shipment of eastern oysters will be sent out by the commission to Oregon some time this fall and in the meantime Mr. McGuire will make a personal investigation to find a suitable location to plant them. Eastern oysters require water of just a certain temperature, neither too fresh nor too brackish, otherwise they will not thrive. Mr. McGuire thinks that good beds can be found at Yaquina bay, and to make sure, he will make a trip there as soon as he has the time.—Portland Oregonian.

THE TRADE REVIEW.

MANY FAILURES REPORTED IN THE LAST QUARTER.

Business Has Been in an Extremely Bad Condition. But Unmistakable Signs of Improvement Are Apparent—The Rise in the Price of Wheat.

R. C. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The complete report of failures for the quarter which ended with Wednesday shows a great increase. In number 6½ per cent less than in the panic quarter of 1893, failures for the quarter show liabilities 11.16 per cent less, amounting to $73,853,349, against $97,869,682 in the previous half year. Manufacturing liabilities were $32,479,196, or 37 per cent greater than in the same quarter of 1893, while trading were $28,738,217 and "other commercial" were $12,967,236. To this must be added $11,712,960, liabilities in fifty bank failures, making exclusive of railways nearly $85,000,000 for a single quarter. Comparisons are given showing that in only six quarters in twenty-two years have defaulted liabilities been as large; that the ratio to solvent business has been $6.06 per $1,000, against $2.34 for the same quarter last year; that the average per firm in business has been $63.57, against $26.92 last year, that the proportion of increase has been greatest in the western states, both in amount and in average liabilities per failure, and much larger in manufacturing than in trading.

The continued advance in wheat may prove of the utmost importance. It has been 1.12 cents for the week and 10 cents since Sept. 2, and is mainly due to short crops abroad and foreign demand. Atlantic exports for the quarter ending with September, flour included, were 23,195,214 bushels, against 14,320,020 last year; the output of wheat separated nearly doubled, in spite of higher prices. No lack of visible domestic supply causes or supports the advance, and western receipts for the exact quarter were 57,742,941 bushels, against 43,790,499 bushels last year.

Cotton has weakened after its sudden rise because the demand for goods has relaxed into hand to mouth buying and print cloths are lower at 2.56 cents. Some injury has been done by recent storms, but the market seems not now in the humor to magnify them.

There are unmistakably encouraging signs in the great industries, although the actual gain in working force employed or in new orders received is slight. But the strong demand for materials, for pig iron, hides and wool, as for cotton, does not diminish, and has already gone far enough to stiffen prices.

Buying of Bessemer pig again lifts Pittsburgh quotations to $11.75, without any general gain in the demand for finished products, and steel bars for the first time are sold at 1 cent, against 1.2 cents asked by the association for iron bars. Plates and rails are in less demand, but there is heavy buying of sheets at the west. Confidence that reviving business must bring a greater demand than all the works can meet induces the various associations to make no change in their prices. The minor metals are not strong—lake copper at 10½ cents, tin at 12.90 cents, and lead about 2.8 cents.

Merchants and manufacturers are waiting, but there are not wanting signs that many have the confidence to invest and push forward, as though the dawn of prosperity were close at hand.

Large Cotton Crop in Egypt.

Vice Consul Gen. Washington, writing to the department of state from Cairo on the prospects of the cotton crop of Egypt, says that the present season's crop promises to surpass all previous years in quality. There are under cultivation this year 1,050,000 acres, as compared with 1,000,000 acres last year. Last year's crop amounted to 520,000,000 pounds, so that on the basis of area alone a crop of 550,000,000 pounds is probable this year.

Cardinal Satolli's Plans.

Cardinal Satolli left Washington Wednesday and will sail from New York on Saturday, Oct. 17. He went from Washington to Newark, N. J., where he is visiting the bishop of Newark and the institutions of that diocese. His plans contemplate no participation in formal functions of any kind. Archbishop Martinelli has been already inducted into the administration of the apostolic delegation.

Elections in Connecticut.

The Republicans have carried nearly every town in Connecticut in the local elections held Monday. Lieut. Gov. Cook, the republican candidate for governor, is exultant over the returns. The license people were generally victorious, and no large town has shifted on this issue from last year.

Follows Hoke Smith.

William A. Little of Georgia, assistant attorney general for the interior department, has sent his resignation to President Cleveland.

Mr. A. W. Meyer and family attended the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Felton, at Sharon, Wis., Sunday. They returned by way of Williams Bay and Geneva Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Felton will be remembered by our old settlers. They lived in a house for a long time which stood on the site on which the Barrington depot is now located.

A PLEASANT TIME.

The Epworth "Quilt Sociable" and "New England Supper," held at the M. E. church Wednesday evening, was in every way a complete success. The old were there, the young were there, and even the little children were there to add to the enjoyment of the event. The supper was of the very best quality, and the parties who had charge of the four groaning tables took special pains to outdo each other; but perhaps the table presided over by Mr. Leroy Powers led the others in patronage, for the congenial, beaming face of Mr. Powers was a standing advertisement from beginning to end, while the table presided over by Mr. E. M. Blocks did a land-office business.

Other important features of the evening were the song of welcome to Rev. T. E. Neam, written very ably by Mrs. Emma Lines, and sung by Mr. Lines; also the visiting Epworth Leaguers from Palatine, who came by the score to enjoy our sociability, and the sale of the well-known album quilt. The members and friends of the Epworth League have been months preparing this quilt. It contains about seven hundred names, including nearly every family in Barrington, also many names of friends from other places. Mr. Peters, our village auctioneer, commenced the sale about 9:30 o'clock, and in fifteen minutes struck it off to Chas. Hawley, Jr., for $7.35, and all agree that Mr. Hawley now possesses one of the best autograph albums in the town of Barrington. At about 10:30 the crowd of about two hundred returned to their homes, all wishing that such an event could soon be repeated in the future. Financially the Epworth League is about $32 better off because of this gathering, and is now able to pay all that it owes on its parsonage subscription. The League desires to thank the public and all donors in this successful event.

We extend our congratulations and wish them a long and happy life.

Wauconda sent quite a delegation to the Republican rally at Long Lake last Thursday evening, headed by the band. One rig had the misfortune to lose the way, but by crossing a number of cornfields and passing through several gates, it again gained the road and arrived safely at its destination. Two able speakers were present to address the meeting, but on account of the building being let to some Chicago people for dancing after 10 o'clock the last speaker had to make his speech very short. The silver question and the tariff question were both ably discussed, and the meeting on the whole proved a grand success. The Apollo quartet, of Wauconda, was present and rendered a number of very amusing campaign songs, which were executed in an excellent manner.

FREE SILVER MEETING.

On next Wednesday evening, Oct. 14, there will be a meeting at Stott's hall at which good speakers will address those who attend on the financial question in behalf of 16 to 1. Everybody is cordially invited to attend. W. J. Morley and Samuel Shaw Parks will be the principal speakers.
