

BARRINGTON REVIEW.

Vol. 11. No. 38.

BARRINGTON, ILL., SATURDAY, JAN. 30, 1897.

$1.25 A YEAR.

PUT IN "LINGO."

John Cieslinski and Mike Schultz Are BOUND Over to the Grand Jury by Justice Plagge.

Thursday afternoon of last week two men, of the "hobo" pattern, passed through town. As they passed the winter camp of Thomas McGregor, a railroad grading contractor, located near Barrington, they ran into a "bonanza"—at least, that's what they thought.

In a box they found about 80 pounds of brasses, and having been staunch believers in the yellow metal during the late political campaign they thought it would be wise to pocket the whole 80 pounds and convert them into the gold standard money, and so they did—unobserved by anyone. Although their stomachs were empty their pockets were filled to overflowing when they reached Dundee after a "forced march." They were unsuccessful in disposing of their plunder at this place, but this did not discourage them and they turned their faces toward Elgin and looked for a "junk" shop. The men were seen by a policeman to enter a "junk," and he followed. After they had tried to dispose of the stuff the policeman asked them several questions and not being able to give a good account of themselves were locked up. After inquiries had been made by the police it was learned that the brasses belonged to some railroad grader's outfit, and being informed by the North-Western railroad agent of Elgin that a grader's outfit was located at Barrington they sent a dispatch to Agent Powers of this place, requesting him to ascertain whether anything was missing from the camp. Agent Powers immediately notified Mr. McGregor, and a careful examination of the place revealed the loss.

A description and the weight of the brass was immediately sent to Elgin, and on Saturday an answer was received to the effect that Mr. McGregor's description and weight tallied with the stuff recovered at Elgin. Another dispatch was sent to the Elgin police to hold the men, and Mr. McGregor swore out a state's warrant before Justice Frank Plagge, and accompanied by Constable John Brasel, Mr. McGregor left for Elgin, returning with the prisoners Saturday afternoon, when they were given a hearing by Justice Plagge. The men gave their names as John Cieslinski and Mike Schultz, and admitted they stole the goods. Justice Plagge bound them over to the grand jury, and they were taken to Waukegan Monday by Constable Brasel.

Silver Weddings.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Church entertained a number of their friends at a dinner, Monday, to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. A most delicate spread was served, to which the guests did ample justice. The following intimate friends and relatives were present:

Barrington Choral Union Concert.

One of the best entertainments given in Barrington for a long time was that given at the Zion's Evangelical church Wednesday evening by Prof. M. R. Harris' singing class, assisted by Mr. Lincoln Higgins of Chicago. The following program was rendered:

"Zion's Glad Morn"—Class.
Song by Grace Freeman, Rosa Landwer, Hulda Suhr and Malinda Boehmer.
"The Editor's Guest"—Mr. Lincoln Higgins.
"Solo, 'O, Happy Day'"—Prof. M. R. Harris.
"Village Blacksmith"—Class.
"Serenade"—Male quartet composed of Fred Lines, Frank Plagge, J. E. Heise and Fred Plagge.
Duet, "Whispering Hope"—Miss Carrie Kingsley and Prof. M. R. Harris.
"The Debating Society"—Mr. Lincoln Higgins.
Quartette, "Down Where the Wild Thyme Grows"—Miss Mary Frye, Mrs. Rev. Hageman, Prof. M. R. Harris and H. A. Drewes.
"Sailor's Chorus"—Class.
Ladies' Quartette, "Cuckoo Song"—Misses Allie Myers, Mary Frey and Carrie Kingsley and Mrs. H. N. Clute.
"Home of My Childhood"—Miss Allie Myers and Class.
"Woe to Blame?"—Miss Carrie Kingsley and Prof. M. R. Harris.
"The Irish Philosopher"—Mr. Lincoln Higgins.
"Gaily Launch"—Class.
"Little Tom Tinker"—Class.
"When Shall We Meet Again?"—Class.
The singing was especially good, and the impersonations of Mr. Lincoln Higgins were especially well received by the large audience present. Prof. Harris has proved himself beyond question an instructor of unusual competence, as the singing of the class Wednesday evening evidenced.

Prof. Harris has been importuned and consented to teach another term. All those wishing to take advantage of this term should be present the first night of the term, if possible, which will be next Wednesday, February 3d.

Canal Bill — Proposed Arbitration
Treaty Criticized by Mr. Pettigrew—
Venezuela Has Not Received Justice.

Wednesday, Jan. 20.

The house spent the day debating the Yost-Tucker contested election case from the Tenth Virginia district. No action was taken.

In the senate Mr. Pettigrew criticized the proposed treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and America, and claimed that under its provisions
Venezuela had not received justice. Mr.
Turpie concluded his speech in opposition to the Nicaragua canal bill. Mr.
Chandler asked for an agreement that the bill for an international monetary conference be taken up on Monday next at the close of the routine business. This was amended to Tuesday and the agreement effected. The senate then resumed consideration of and passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill.

Thursday, Jan. 21.

After a two days' debate the house decided the contested election case of Yost vs. Tucker, from the Tenth Virginia district, by denying the seat to Mr. Yost (rep.) and confirming Mr.
Tucker's title thereto.

In the senate Mr. Hill (Dem., N. Y.) spoke against trusts and monopolies in general as a serious menace to the public welfare. The people were rising against these vast syndicates, he said, notwithstanding they were formed by many very eminent men, including members of the church. Mr. Turpie concluded his speech against the Nicaragua canal bill, the third day being a continuance of the former bitter invective directed against the measure.
Mr. Hill called up his bill, recently introduced, establishing a term of four years for postmasters. The bill finally went over.

January 22.

This was private bill day in the house, and most of the time was consumed with small bills.

In the senate Mr. Sherman presented a letter from Minister Rodriguez, the representative of the Greater Republic of Central America (including Nicaragua), in effect protesting against the execution of the Nicaraguan canal project by the United States under the concession granted in 1887 to the Nicaragua Canal Company. Mr. Morgan declared the letter was inspired by Great Britain, who sought to drive the United States from the isthmus by using the Central Americas as a cat's paw. Senator Vilas said it struck a death blow to the canal project proposed by the pending bill. After this debate Senator Turpie criticized Secretary Olney for his published utterances upon the Cuban situation, alleging discourtesy to the senate therein.
This led to a discussion of the proposed Anglo-American arbitration treaty, many senators presenting their views.

Saturday, Jan. 23.

Short sessions of the national legislature were held, but no business of importance was transacted.

Monday, Jan. 25.

After consuming most of the time in disposing of District of Columbia business the house took up the Indian appropriation bill and made fair progress with it before the hour for adjournment was reached. The bill carries $7,525,791, $366,294 more than the current law, and $246,265 more than the estimates. Twenty of the seventy pages of the bill were disposed of. Mr.
Johnston (rep., Ind.) read a speech in favor of an early reform of our banking and currency laws. He insisted that those who believed the enactment of a protective tariff would restore prosperity would be disappointed.

In the senate Mr. Turpie (rep., Ind.)
delivered a speech on Cuba, contending that the right of recognition belonged to congress and not to the president. He was very severe in his denunciations of Spain.

TRAIN GOES INTO A RAVINE.

Disaster on the Pittsburg & Western Road in Pennsylvania.

At 2:55 o'clock Saturday afternoon,
one-half mile east of Shippensburg, Clarion county, Pa., occurred one of the most frightful wrecks in the history of the Pittsburg & Western railroad in which three trainmen lost their lives and many passengers were seriously injured. The accident occurred immediately at the sharp curve upon the high trestle which spans Paint creek at this point. Without a moment's warning to the fireman and engineer, the whole trestle gave way, precipitating the train fully seventy feet.

Orphans in Danger.

Fire at Council Bluffs, Iowa, Sunday morning partially destroyed the boys' dormitory of the Christian Home Orphanage. One hundred boys were sleeping in the building when the fire broke out. All were rescued. Damage to the building is $3,000, with no insurance.

SENATOR SPOONER.

Wisconsin Legislature Choose Their Representative at Washington.

Tuesday morning John C. Spooner was elected United States senator, but he was not declared elected until Wednesday.

Each House cast its Republican vote for him Tuesday and on Wednesday the two Houses met to announce the vote. Mr. Spooner having secured a majority of the votes in both Houses was declared elected without a formal vote of the joint convention. He was notified at once and responded with a speech of acceptance.

Drunkard Kills His Wife.

Mrs. Anson Gregory died at Gales-

He was ordered committed to jail with-against those who sold her husband liquor has been begun.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE

REPORTED BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

January 19. Springfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—Both houses of the legislature went through the motions of electing a United States senator. The democrats and populists cast their full party strength for John P. Altgeld, the nominee of the democratic caucus, but the republicans simply cast a single vote for each of the candidates angling for the republican nomination in the joint caucus. The result of this condition was that the democrats had the pleasure of seeing their nominee receive more votes than any republican in an overwhelmingly republican legislature. Altgeld received 62 votes and each republican candidate one. This was the result of the first ballot taken in the house for United States senator. Speaker Curtis announced that no quorum was present and that there had been no election. Then the house adjourned after the democrats had made the republicans show by the roll call that there was a quorum present, even if they failed to show it in the vote for senator.

In the senate the vote was taken with even less seriousness than in the house. There was but one nominating speech made, and that was a short one by Senator Mahoney, who placed Gov. Altgeld before the senate. Senator Baxter in one sentence nominated Robert R. Hitt, Senator Bogardus nominated Joseph G. Cannon, Senator Case named William E. Mason, Senator Evans nominated A. J. Hopkins, Senator Fitzpatrick named S. W. Allerton, Senator Harding named Clark E. Carr and Senator Sullivan nominated William Lorimer. Each of the republican candidates received one vote, and ex-Gov. Altgeld received thirteen. As there was no quorum voting, the lieutenant-governor declared there was no election. Before the house voted for United States senator, Speaker Curtis announced the appointment of the following committee on elections: Sherman, Miller of Cook, Fred A. Busse, Booth, Giffin, Anderson, Selby, Thomas, Kinchelse, Eldredge, Hammers, Walleck, Salmoni, Alschuler, Compton, McGee, Shepherd, Webb and Sullivan.

January 20. It took but a few minutes to call the roll of the house and senate, and then the business of making the senator began without delay. A hundred and fifty members of the house responded to their names, and the senate was reasonably full, too. The only absentees were Senator Sullivan (Rep.) and Representative English (Dem.). Then came the formal reading of the journals of the house and senate showing that no election had been made yesterday. After this order of business was concluded Speaker Curtis ordered the balloting to begin. He was following the formula with which the older legislators were familiar. Then he called for nominations, and Sharrock of Christian took the floor. As Sharrock warmed up he proceeded to pitch into the Democrats, and he gave the other side of the house a tastefully administered roasting for the speeches made in behalf of Gov. Altgeld. Presently Sharrock, like all the speakers, lapsed into biblical lore and he made a break, saying: "You remember, after Christ had fasted forty years the tempter came to talk to him." This broke up the house, because Sharrock was only about thirty-nine years and 325 days shy on time. But what's the difference? What's the difference between forty days and forty years to a man who is nominating a United States senator? For twenty minutes or half an hour Sharrock talked history, religion and what the Republican party had done for the country. He made a good campaign speech, it is true, and by easy stages led up to the proper task before him. Several additional speeches were made and William Ernest Mason was declared the next United States senator from Illinois on a strictly party vote. No other business of great importance was transacted. Both houses voted to adjourn from Thursday to Monday.

January 21. There was no quorum present, and adjournment taken until Tuesday.

January 22. No business was transacted in the senate to-day. When Secretary Padlock announced at 5 o'clock that the lieutenant-governor and president pro tempore were absent there was less than a quorum present.

On motion of Senator Chapman, Senator Kingsbury was chosen president pro tem. Senator Kingsbury then called the senate to order, immediately after which an adjournment was taken until 10 a. m. to-morrow.

The house met at 5 o'clock with a better attendance than is usual on Monday afternoon. No business, however, was transacted. The house immediately adjourned until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Champaign Rowdies. From the Chicago Record: There is but one way to deal with the young rowdies who took part in the disgraceful affair at Urbana. They should be expelled from the University of Illinois. The time has gone by when young sophomores who pretend to be gentlemen can excuse ruffianly pranks on the score of youthful exuberance and irresponsibility. The Champaign sophomores, when they broke in upon a social gathering of freshmen, throwing dangerous chemicals about, inflicting severe injuries and perhaps causing the loss of one young woman's eyesight, have no more claim to consideration than any young loafer who may be brought into a police justice court on a charge of assault and battery or disorderly conduct. In fact, their treatment should be even harsher, for, as college men, they are supposed to know better. It is time that this egregious tomfoolery and rowdiness in college life be terminated once for all. Hazing, assaults on freshmen, and rowdy "larks" on the street are relics of an older and less civilized time. This sort of "joke" is worn out. It is threadbare. It stamps the would-be joker as a "jay" of the most uncouth pattern and as a lawbreaker. Young college men who haven't sense enough to know that this sort of brutality is looked upon with disgust—that it puts them exactly on a par with the poorest drunken vagabonds who drift into town from village Podunks—must be made to learn the fact in the same way that the vagabonds do. A little rude handling by a policeman, a night or so in jail, and a serious interview with the police magistrate next morning, would do a great deal to abolish this contemptible practice.

The representative of a milling firm, in writing from northern Illinois, says ten-pound packages of cornmeal are being retailed there at 4¢6 cents; buckwheat flour at 16 cents and rye flour at 15 cents. With wheat flour held at $4.50, he reports that the cereals named are being freely used as a substitute, and are materially cutting down its consumption. This is a point that those who are sanguine of dollar wheat should take into their calculations.

HAPS AND MISHAPS OF A NAME

What would a man do without a name? A very poor name, even, is better than none. But here and there one hears of a person whose name is so peculiarly difficult or otherwise troublesome as almost to make it seem as if he would be better off if he were anonymous. One of the most singular cases of this kind is reported by the Scranton Truth.

The man's name is John Ditto, and it is apparent at a glance that it must often get its owner into embarrassing predicaments. At one time he went to St. Louis, and at the hotel happened to register after a man named Hinkleschneider. The clerk thought he had written John Ditto to save labor and ink, and called him Mr. Hinkleschneider. Worse than that, the daily papers announced his arrival as that of "John Hinkleschneider, a prominent citizen of Somerville, Texas," and as news of the affair preceded him back to Texas, his neighbors persisted for some time in calling him Mr. Hinkleschneider.

However, his name sometimes serves him a good turn. For instance, it was the means of getting him a wife. At a country fair he was invited to join a friend and some young ladies in a refreshment tent. When beverages were proposed he said he would take lemonade, and the strange young lady at his side said, in all innocence, that she would take ditto.

This mild joke was cultivated, as such jokes are, and in the end, acquaintance having ripened into affection, the young lady really did take Ditto for better or worse.

In war time he escaped the draft because his name, as copied from the original list, was written not John Ditto, but John Smith, or whatever the name happened to be that preceded his

DEVOID OF ANIMAL LIFE.

A Ceaseless Struggle Between Fire and Water in Antarctica.

"The Antarctic, then, is a continental land unique in the world," writes Gen. A. W. Greely in an interesting article on "What May Be Found at the South Pole," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Its desolate shores, rarely approachable under most favorable conditions, are laved by an ocean the richest on the globe in its marine life—animal and vegetable. Seals and whales in incredible numbers abound in its waters, and countless seabirds cover with nests and eggs the few favored land spots which are free from snow during the brief, comfortless summer. It is a continent where abounds no land animal life, either mammals, birds, insects, spiders or reptiles. No mammal exists within six hundred miles of its borders. It is also devoid of land vegetation (except the lowest forms of cellular tissue, lichens, which have been found in two places only), having neither ferns, flowering plants, shrubs nor trees.

"Here, however, nature displays her forces on a scale elsewhere unknown. Over the millions of square miles of this austral continent ceaselessly continues a titanic struggle between the opposing ancient elements of fire and water. In vain the volcanoes pour forth streams of molten lava and shoot upward pillars of fire. Welcoming the lava as a protecting, non-conducting covering of its lower strata of flowing glaciers, the continental ice cap resistlessly advances, certain that in time, when the processes of erosion have lowered the elevation of the volcanic craters, its countless, tiny snowflakes will quench the apparently inexhaustible fires that now shake from end to end the continent of Antarctica."

OUR UNKNOWN EARTH.

Only a Slight Portion Has Been Fully Explored.

It is the very general supposition that there is very little of the world we live in that has not been explored by geographers, and that the very little that yet remains to investigate is on the African continent. But the fact is that about 20,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface is yet a terra incognita. To-day, outside of the polar regions, all the seas have been explored, but this is far from being the case with the land. After the two polar regions, Africa is the part of the world of which we have the least information. Notwithstanding the general scramble among nations to possess the land, only a vague idea of what the continent contains exists, over 6,500,000 square miles being yet unexplored. After Africa, Australia offers the greatest field to the investigation of explorers; we must remember that even its seacoast was not fully explored till 1843. Since that time, at the price of great suffering, it has been crossed from south to north, but no traveler has yet traversed it from east to west. While North America has been very well explored, the whole central region of the southern continent has not been mapped with any degree of accuracy. To sum up, the yet unexplored parts of the globe cover an area of about 20,000,000 square miles, approximately divided thus:

Africa	6,500,000
Australia	3,000,000
America	2,000,000
Asia	200,000
Islands	400,000
Arctic regions.....	3,600,000
Antarctic regions.....	5,300,000

Total 20,000,000

Vitality of Insects.

It is a standing puzzle to the entomologists and others interested in the study of insects how the frail little creatures of the mosquito and butterfly order can brave the cold of an arctic winter and yet retain their vitality. Of late some light has been thrown on this wonderful faculty of the insect world by the experiments of a London naturalist. He took the larva of a common milk-weed butterfly and exposed it to an artificial blast 68 degrees below zero. Upon taking it out of the range of this artificial blizzard and gradually thawing the creature out, the naturalist was surprised to find that the worm was able to creep in less than half an hour afterward. According to the testimony of all the arctic explorers, butterflies and mosquitoes, as well as a great variety of other insects, have been found flitting joyously about in the highest latitudes ever penetrated by man. It is even declared by those who have made tours of exploration to the far north that the mosquitoes of those regions are the largest and healthiest varieties of that species of pest that have ever been discovered by man.

OUR SPRINGFIELD LETTER.

What of Cullom?

Springfield, Jan. 23.—The belief that Senator Cullom is to go into the McKinley cabinet has gained strength here within the past few days. An intimate friend of the senator said to the writer to-day: "The announcement of Mr. Cullom's selection will be made through the press within the next few days." The new conditions that would be brought about in Illinois by the selection of Cullom for the cabinet has caused a stir among the lawmakers. Already there is talk of his successor in the senate. In this connection I will dare to make a prediction: If Cullom goes into the cabinet either Tanner or Hitt will go to the senate in his place. Tanner does not want the seat himself. Left to his own wishes, he would sooner be governor for the full term of four years. But his friends will urge him to go to the senate. Mrs. Tanner is also said to be using her influence in the same direction. At the same time, if the prospective vacancy occurs, Mr. Hitt will not be without strong support. His conduct during the scramble for Senator Palmer's seat won him many friends. With Tanner and Hitt the only candidates the contest would be very close.

Going to Inauguration.

Gov. John R. Tanner is going to Washington to witness the inauguration of William McKinley, and he is going in style befitting the chief executive of Illinois. James R. B. Van Cleave is arranging one part of the trip, and the governor is lying awake nights trying to map out the rest of the display. Mr. Van Cleave is just picking out the places where the governor and his party are going to eat and sleep, but the governor is trying to figure out the party itself. For Gov. Tanner is going to Washington attended by his full staff of newly appointed colonels. He is working hard to make up his mind as to who shall form his personal staff, so that the men selected will have time to procure their uniforms and wear them a couple of times. The party will go in special cars, which are now being prepared for the trip.

Reece for Adj.-General.

While Mr. Tanner himself is silent upon the subject, it is generally understood that he intends to make his personal staff out of politicians. Almost all of Mr. Altgeld's colonels were men who could carry their primaries and who would not hesitate any longer to don the uniforms and gold braid for a political scrimmage than they would when there was a chance to appear in the parade. Mr. Tanner feels that his colonels should come up to the mark of those of the Altgeld regime, so he is studying the lists of politicians in each of the congressional districts to pick out men who will make a good background for him at Washington and who, when that occasion is over, can take a hand in bringing in delegations. It is the general opinion that Gen. Reece will be the adjutant-general of the Tanner administration, and that the governor is going to consult him concerning his staff. The appointment of the Cook county colonels will probably be delayed. Mr. Tanner wants the politicians to know whether they are going to fight or make up before he begins parceling out the honors to Chicagoans.

Got Mixed in the Scramble.

It has developed that there will have to be some fall explaining done between Henry L. Hertz, William Lorimer and Dr. Jamieson before these three become political bedfellows again. Mr. Hertz wants to know something, Mr. Jamieson wants to know something and Mr. Lorimer wants to know something. It has been agreed that before there is a final rupture the "big three" will meet in Chicago and try to make the needed explanations. It was learned today that Henry L. Hertz did not know that the members of the legislature controlled by Tanner were working for the success of Congressman Hitt, while the Cook county men were working for Lorimer.

Senator Charles Crawford of Chicago was in the Hitt deal, as was Representative Fred Busse. They were also on Lorimer's steering committee. Lorimer and Hertz intend to make Dr. Jamieson tell why they were on the Lorimer steering committee and in favor of Hitt at the same time.

Then John R. Tanner, before he plays with the Cook county ex-bosses, will want to know why they did not take him into their confidence and tell him that they were going to throw the Cook county delegation to Mason when they had been told that Hitt was the only man who could successfully oppose Mason.

Hertz in a Dilemma.

One thing is considered certain by the politicians who are here waiting for a chance to whisper in the governor's ear, and that is that Henry L. Hertz is not going to fight with the governor for the next two years. Mr. Hertz will be state treasurer that time and his sole chance of making his office worth while is to continue to hold the friendship of the governor. Mr. Hertz' salary is but $3,500 a year, but he can keep one-fourth of the interest under the existing law. Should Mr. Tanner, however, see fit to follow the example of Gov. Altgeld and divide the money as soon as it comes into the state treasury among the treasurers of the various state institutions, Mr. Hertz' position will be a financial delusion. The governor has not gone on record just how he feels personally to Hertz, but it is said he has indicated that he will do all in his power to fill the now depleted treasury so that Mr. Hertz will find life worth living for the next two years.

Rumored Turndown Denied.

The stories heretofore published that the governor intended to turn down the Cook county organization in the matter of appointments was flatly denied today by a man who is very close to Governor Tanner and has his confidence. This man said that every recommendation made by the Cook county organization as to the allotments of state patronage would be considered by the governor. The only condition he makes is that the men that they recommend shall be competent for the positions they seek, and of good character, so that the governor may have nothing to regret in appointing them.

The work of selecting the committee was continued today by Speaker Curtis. It is probable that no announcement of committees will be made until the latter part of next week. An exception may be made in the case of the judiciary committee, the chairman of which will probably be Representative Charles Allen. Nothing will be done with regard to the senate committees until the members return next Monday.

Some Prospective Appointments.

There is every indication that Edwin J. Noble will be appointed chief grain inspector at Chicago. This may slip through on account of the complications growing out of the senatorial fight, but Mr. Noble's chances are good. Joseph E. Bidwill will be the Chicago representative on the railroad and warehouse commission. There seems to be no doubt about this. The governor likes him and he is in favor with all sections of the party in Chicago. Mr. Bidwill, who was sick here during the last few days of the senatorial struggle, went home to-day, and before he started Governor Tanner went from the executive mansion and called on him. Charles S. Rannels, chairman of the republican executive state committee, will be another of the railroad and warehouse commissioners, and E. W. Hyman of Effingham will be the third.

Major R. W. McClaughrey will probably remain as superintendent of the reform school at Pontiac. It was practically settled that Colonel Thomas W. Scott of Fairfield will be adjutant general. Colonel Koch, formerly commander of the First regiment, was an applicant for the place and was here to-day, and it understood he was told that the position had been tendered to Colonel Scott. Colonel Leroy Stewart of Chicago will probably be inspector general.

Chance for a Statesman.

One custom that seems to grow in favor with every successive legislature is the weekly adjournment feature. This week the majority of the legislators left for home Wednesday night to return Monday. This is all wrong. The legislature should remain in session six days of the week and attend to business. The people do not elect legislators for the purpose of wasting so much time. There is a future before the senator or member of the house who leads an assault against the custom.

Fourth Estate in Control.

I clip the following from a local paper: "There is a remarkable increase here in the number of newspaper correspondents over previous years. Nearly every weekly paper of any consequence in the state is represented. The Western Newspaper Union, the leading ready print house, with several hundred papers in Illinois, is also represented." A well filled press gallery is a wholesome sign of the times. It shows that the people are looking on and that tab will be kept on promoters of bad legislation. In years past the people took little interest in legislative doings. They elected men to make good laws and then turned to their private affairs. But good laws were not always made. Legislators took advantage of the lack of public interest in their doings and the "Third House" was allowed full sway. But the signs of the times are to the effect that the days of the "Third House" are gone forever. The "Fourth House," or "Fourth Estate," as Edmund Burke called the press gallery, is now in full control. If there is any inclination on the part of any member of the present legislature to assist in the passage of questionable bills they will hear from the press gallery.

Stricken India.
The plague in India is the indirect product of dirt and bad food. With a population of 200,000,000 peasants, whose annual supply of food depends upon a decidedly uncertain rainfall, it is little wonder that India suffers frequently from famines and the plague. The present deplorable condition in that country is another repetition of history. Although during the present century no single famine has attained great magnitude, a score or more disasters of that kind have carried off between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 lives. That which occurred in the two years following 1875 resulted in the death of nearly 6,000,000 persons. A class numbering about 40,000,000 are always so near starvation that a season of drought reduces them at once to the extremity of hunger.

But the people did not wait for charitable relief in the old days. They sacked the shops of the grain dealers and murdered their owners. When that had been done, the next step was to besiege the government, and when the royal granaries were emptied and things got about as bad as they could be they sought the favor of the gods with sacrifices, ending with the slaughter of human victims and the distribution of their flesh over the barren fields. This experience has taught the government of India to inaugurate a system of machine-like relief which can be put into effect at any time. Every official is made to feel his responsibility and is fully instructed as to his particular duty in each stage of the scarcity of food. The good people of this country who are sending corn to that stricken land may be sure not only that the need is great, but that the grain will be systematically distributed.

Horoscopes For Royalty.
The reliability of certain "professors" who lay claim to astonishing gifts as readers of the heavens and students of the stars and makers of horoscopes in general has received a terrific shock at the hands of a philosophic Englishman who writes leaders for one of the London newspapers. He has been figuring out the horoscopes of various European rulers by means of physiognomy viewed in the light of the planets.
Kaiser William, for example, is described as being active, cunning, inventive, unscrupulous, reckless of danger, ungovernable of temper and oblivious of sin. With such a fine assortment of characteristics there cannot be the slightest doubt that their possessor would make one of the most successful bandits or highwaymen that the globe has ever seen.
King Humbert of Italy is almost the reverse, for he is said to be of the "happy lunarian" sort, jealous and afraid of death.
M. Felix Faure, the president of France, say the stars, is overfond of the table, but has much common sense. He may go to prison eventually, however. These indications are drawn from a study of M. Faure's cranium in addition to the dictum of Jupiter, Mars and Saturn.

The czar is of the "Venusian type," and the outlook for domestic broils in his own family is extremely good. He is instinctively honest, easily led, but not courageous, and it is quite likely that he will end his days in exile, if the stars do not lie.

General Weyler's campaign in Cuba the past year has cost Spain the sum of $120,000,000. This covers the payments made to build the two trochas, feeding, clothing and paying the army and defraying the secret expenses in Washington. According to the former commander, Campos, Spain would need 200,000 men, two years' time and $200,000,000 to conquer the island. Since Weyler took charge, however, he has spent considerably more than half that sum in less than a year, and so far as is known he has had all the men he wanted. Even if Spain were to finally conquer Cuba, it is very doubtful if the game would be worth the candle, since the island is devastated by the effects of the war plague.

A List of Reforms.
That progressive journal, The Outlook of New York, asks its readers to help forward several reforms during the present year. Among them are the following:
Adequate support of the American flag and adequate protection to American life and property on foreign soil.
A financial system which will provide a currency increasing with the increase of population and of business, and so substantial in its foundation as to inspire confidence and credit at home and abroad.
Taxation adjusted according to the possessions and incomes, not according to the expenditures, of the persons taxed and levied on corporations at the same valuations of property as on individuals.
Municipal ownership of all "natural monopolies." In lieu of such ownership, no franchises granted for more than one generation.
Reform of the primaries, so that the people shall nominate the candidates as well as elect them.
A direct practical recognition and adoption of the referendum and the initiative in state and municipal politics.
In manufacturing centers and great cities, adequate homes for wage-workers, with free access to pure water and bright sunshine—no dark bedrooms, no unventilated halls, no basement living rooms, no rear tenements.
Co-operation of all denominations in home missionary and foreign missionary work. No fighting of Christians among themselves. All Christian forces joined to fight the world, the flesh and the devil.
Absolute freedom of discussion of all ethical, Biblical and theological topics within the church of Christ. No turning reverent souls out to carry on their discussions outside the church.
Nobody will be inclined to urge strenuous objections to most of these reforms, and the consummation of some of them is devoutly to be wished. The list is fairly comprehensive, but it might be extended—for instance, an effective law against iniquitous trusts by prohibiting and declaring void all contracts preventing free competition as well as all combinations between persons and corporations designed to advance, reduce or control prices.

Boys For the Farm.
Scarcely a day but the old question of the city versus country life is forced upon thinking men and women for repeated discussion. In our large cities the schools are overcrowded, and gangs of young hoodlums, idle and reckless, hold forth upon the street corners. Meanwhile in the country the sturdy lads who formerly "helped" about the farm are growing few and far between, and the farmers are complaining.

At a recent meeting of the New Jersey State Horticultural society the members adjourned after expressing themselves on the allurements of the world in enticing the young men from the peach orchards and the strawberry patches. The drift of the discussion was that young men do not care any more for the art of pruning and grafting and fruit culture.

The boys will stay on the farm, and those who do cannot be interested. This discussion was provoked by some strong references made by President J. B. Ward in his annual address. He expressed himself as follows:
Farming communities are decimated of the boys of the most active intellect. They are sent off to the city or colleges to follow other pursuits more respectable in the estimation of the family. As surely as in ancient days feats of valor and of arms being alone the theme of song and story and winning alike the smiles of beauty and the applause of the powerful sited the masses of genius, energy and courage, so in modern days the brilliancy of great fortunes and professional renown have attracted a large portion of its capacity and energy from the rural population. The victims are tempted by a siren's song. Ruined health, doubtful reputation, bankruptcy and sometimes crime tell the story of regiments of infatuated men who leave the farms for the cities.
There is more truth than fancy in Mr. Ford's remarks. He has not painted a worthless picture.

The law has finally decided the legal status of the trapdoor. The supreme court of Massachusetts has given decisions in two cases affecting the use of trapdoors, the plaintiffs in each case being employees who sustained personal injuries by falling through trapdoor openings. Ellen Hogarth, in her suit against the Pocasset Manufacturing company of Fall River, testified that she did not know of the trapdoor, though she passed over it many times a day. The court affirmed a verdict for $1,150 given in her favor. Fremont Young, in his suit against Oliver A. Miller of Brockton, testified that he did not know of the trapdoors. The court held that the defendant's duty did not extend to giving notice or warning that the doors were open to one who knew that they were liable to be so at any time, and judgment for the defendant was sustained.

The proposed deep ocean cable between Canada and Australia is soon to become a reality. Uncle Sam may protest against the scheme, however, as the cable is to be for the private use of the two British colonies named and is not intended as a public institution for general commercial business.

For many years the state of Nevada has had but one Baptist church. It may be remembered in this connection that Nevada is a land of deserts and water is a scarce commodity.

Spent a Million.

It is said in railroad circles that the North-Western company is making arrangements to lay a heavy steel double track between Chicago and St. Paul. The line to Elroy will have a twin track within the course of another year, and it will be only a matter of a short time until the track gaps will be closed. The North-Western company has within the last few months spent something like $1,000,000 in the work of doubling the track of its Chicago-St. Paul line, and in doing so has performed an extraordinary engineering feat. The track of this line was doubled to Barrington some time ago, and the recent work was to complete a greater stretch of thirty-five miles between Madison and Baraboo. The heaviest work was done in the Baraboo mountains, where the road was cut out of rock. The grade has been reduced 111 feet between Madison and Baraboo, and reverse curves taken out. Engineers claim that the work, considering its magnitude, was completed in a wonderfully short time.

Cow that Thrived on Hardware.

The Chicago Chronicle is authority for the following:

GREENSBURG, IND., Jan. 24.—A peculiar story comes from Millhouses. Mike Herring butchered a cow with startling results, the most complete line of hardware ever known to be in the "interior department" of a cow being discovered. The animal was slaughtered in the presence of several men, they going in on shares for their winter's meat. The following is an accurate list of articles found in the cow's stomach: One bolt two inches long, one padlock and key, one small file, one two-penny wire nail, one four penny, two six-penny, eleven eight-penny, four three-penny cut nails, five four-penny, one five-penny, five six-penny, seven eight-penny, three ten-penny, one eight-penny wrought nail, thirty-nine pieces of nails, from three inches down to a quarter of an inch, two two-inch screws, two half-inch screws, three pieces of wire, three stones as large as a walnut, one hog ring, one threshing machine spike two and a half inches long and a top of a three-eighths-of-an-inch bolt. The cow was in the best of health when killed and would probably have added considerably to her hardware store had she not met with an untimely death.

The Lanark Gazette relates how "a well dressed gentleman appeared at a livery stable in Galena to hire the best double rig in the city for a five days' trip through the country. Upon being informed that 'we are no suckers' and 'you will have to deposit $500, buying the team and guarantee the rig's return' the gentleman promptly put up the lucre. At the end of five days he brought back everything in good order and was given his money, when he proceeded to walk away. The liveryman remarked, 'Excuse me, but you have forgotten to pay your livery hire.' 'Why I don't owe you anything,' was the response. 'I used my own team.' The gentleman was immediately sued for the amount, but it could not be collected, as the stranger had in fact used his own team. The Galena liveryman is now $25 wiser."

The Republican county convention held on Saturday at Libertyville was given a very cold and stormy day by the weather man. Of the fifty-six delegates from the Town of Waukegan only ten attended, and it was nearly as bad from other towns. Two towns were not represented at all. The committee was organized with A. W. Fletcher as chairman and A. H. Storms as secretary, and seventeen delegates to the judicial convention were elected as follows: Chas. Whitney, W. C. Upton, E. J. Heydecker, C. T. Heydecker, S. D. Talcott, E. L. Clarke, A. H. Storms, H. Wright, C. G. Wenban, D. Smith, Paul McGuffin, C. M. Gorham, A. J. Raymond, H. S. Prehm, A. W. Gilmore, D. L. Zook, S. M. Millard.

The Chicago & North-Western road is using the ax very freely on employees. Fifty men in Chicago have been laid off within a week. Belvidere trainmen have received notice either that their services are not at present required or that they have been set back. It is said whole trains are now manned by conductors who have been set back, while the brakemen whose places they have taken work as extra or accept a lay-off. Men who have had charge of trains for years work as brakemen and again await promotion.

At a meeting of the Lake county Swamp Land committee at Waukegan, Jan. 12, 1897, the following named persons took deeds from the county: William Bros., Charles Tiffany, Joseph Savage, Isaac Smith, Mrs. Sawyer, H. Bock, I. H. Gerbracht, Lewis A. Paddock, William Lasco, E. A. Bower, — Cole, Oscar Carman, W. M. Davis, William Westlake. Geo. D. Paddock, who is chairman of the Swamp Land committee, says that there are many more who contemplate taking out deeds and urges them to do so at once as there is no assurance that they will be permitted to do so after March 4th. At a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors, it was decided to give quit claim deeds for $1.50 an acre to all property owners having swamp lands in which it appeared that the county had any title.

The Antioch News says: "Our sister village of Grayslake boasts of electric lights, but in the matter of graveled streets and street crossings we are away ahead, and, in addition to this, we have an ordinance preventing chickens from running at large. Electric lights will follow in due season."

Our Village Board levies a village tax of $3,000 in addition to $2,000 received annually from saloon licenses. We cannot boast of either electric lights or good graveled streets. Why, we haven't even an ordinance prohibiting chickens from running at large on our village streets.

The will of Daniel R. Holmes, who died in Elgin a short time ago, was admitted to probate Tuesday, Jan. 19th. It is dated March 20, 1895, and George S. Bowen is the executor. The will gives to decedent's brother, Truman Holmes, and wife, some household goods, books and $25 in money. To George L. Congdon is given $25, to Mrs. Congdon $50, and to Mrs. Kate Homan $75. The testator was a spiritualist, and bequeaths $1,000 to the Elgin Spiritual society, provided it gets $500 more to put with it, for the erection of a temple. Besides, from the estate there is to be given the society $100 per year for the purpose of securing lecturers, etc.—Elgin Advocate.

Wednesday Philip Malman of Wauconda accepted a position with the Cooper Baking Powder Co. in the capacity of agent for their product through Lake county. Mr. Malman is a hustler, has a wide acquaintance with Lake county business men that will materially aid his work, and we wish him success.—Waukegan Gazette.

Libertyville now has electric lights. Mr. Loring, who has the contract for lighting the village, expects soon to furnish several of the residences with light, and in all probability the county buildings at the poor farm will be lit by electric lights, as the present mode of lighting the various departments makes the danger of fire very great.

The Lake County Independent has moved into a new office. Their business has so increased that more room was found necessary. Messrs. Just & Woodmen are to be congratulated upon their success in business.

There is talk among business men of Dundee of organizing a mutual fire insurance company, the patronage to embrace only Kane county cities and villages with satisfactory fire protection. It is thought a much cheaper insurance rate may be secured.

The Hub store of Chicago made its annual profit-sharing distribution to employees, aggregating $5,000. One hundred and fifty employees received checks of from $10 and upward.

GEN. GRANT'S BREAKFAST.

Fought All Day on a Cup of Coffee and a Dish of Cucumbers.

In the December Century Gen. Horace Porter says of the entrance of Grant's army into the Wilderness: After the officers at headquarters had obtained what sleep they could get, they arose about daylight, feeling that in all probability they would witness before night either a fight or a foot race—a fight if the armies encountered each other, a foot race to secure good positions if the armies remained apart. Gen. Meade had started south at dawn, moving along the Germania road. Gen. Grant intended to remain in his present camp till Burnside arrived, in order to give him some directions in person regarding his movements. The general sat down to the breakfast table after nearly all the staff officers had finished their morning meal. While he was slowly sipping his coffee a young newspaper reporter, whose appetite, combined with his spirit of enterprise, had gained a substantial victory over his modesty, slipped up to the table, took a seat at the farther end, and remarked: "Well, I wouldn't mind taking a cup of something warm myself, if there's no objection." Thereupon seizing a coffee pot he poured out a full ration of that soothing beverage, and, after helping himself to some of the other dishes, proceeded to eat breakfast with an appetite which had evidently been stimulated by long hours of fasting. The general paid no more attention to this occurrence than he would have paid to the flight of a bird across his path. He scarcely looked at the intruder, did not utter a word at the time, and made no mention of it afterward. It was a fair example of the imperturbability of his nature as to trivial matters taking place about him. The following is an incident of the next morning: The members of the headquarters mess soon after assembled to partake of a hasty breakfast. The general made rather a singular meal preparatory to so exhausting a day as that which was to follow. He took a cucumber, sliced it, poured some vinegar over it, and partook of nothing else except a cup of strong coffee. The first thing he did after rising from the table was to call for a fresh supply of cigars. His colored servant "Bill" brought him two dozen. After lighting one of them, he filled his pockets with the rest. He then went over to the knoll, and began to walk back and forth slowly upon the cleared portion of the ridge.

The Craze for Tweeds Revived.

The attention of all fashionable Londoners is now directed to the conspicuous revival of the craze for tweeds. Those of the present season are of fine texture and cost a handy sum. Canvas materials, too, of the thickest and coarsest qualities are putting in appearance, most of them displaying at least two colors, violet, dark blue and green making favorite combinations. The short, loose black coat is trying valiantly to make its appearance, but most of the tailor suits still adhere to the close, tight styles, the skirts growing narrower, and the coats being cut in the style of a man's morning coat. For street and out-of-door sport the Norfolk jacket is being seen frequently, but this is a trying fashion. A gown was recently seen at a Scotch country house, which combined the rare attractions of a tea gown and a dinner gown. It was made of black mouseline de sole, striped with narrow lines of fine jet, and falling from a square yoke of fine lace, with tight sleeves of the same, surmounted by double frills of kilt-platted mouseline. This was always worn with the hair arranged in the latest French fashion, which consists of a waved fringe in front and waved hair at the back of the neck, with a small tight knob on the extreme top of the head. Another attractive evening dress seen at the same country house had a moire silk skirt, shot with green and blue, completed with a pale green chiffon bodice high in the neck and formed entirely of tucks running crosswise. This has a yoke hanging in points to the waist of cream-color lace, studded with heads and jewels matching the three colors of the skirt.

Jules Verne.

Except when he brings out one of his marvelous books we hear little of M. Jules Verne, but the fact is that he is leading a very quiet life at Amiens. Although 68 years of age and wearing the appearance of a retired general, he is full of energy and as hard working as of yore. He is now busy in the execution of his plan for publishing a series of stories bearing on different countries. Before beginning a particular work M. Jules Verne reads up a number of geographical, historical and other books treating of that part of the world, and as he goes on the plot gradually germinates in his mind. He is indeed an active and laborious toiler. He rises regularly at 4 o'clock in the morning, and writes steadily until noon. He retires to rest at 9, except on two evenings in the week, when he accompanies his wife to the Grand theater, dining before at a restaurant opposite the building. This is his great treat and he is fond of remarking that on these occasions he and his wife enjoy themselves just as if they were a young couple on their honeymoon. As a matter of fact, M. and Mme. Jules Verne have not been near Paris for the last eight years and find that their life at Amiens suits them perfectly.—Paris Correspondence London Telegraph.

Resented the Policeman's Presence.

CHAPTER III.

HIS WAS ABOUT this time, I think that such training as Mr. Loraine had indirectly given me began to bear its first crop of fruit. When first I stepped into the world, the novelty and freshness of all I saw had kept the evil which I had imbibed in the background. But now that I was a man, now that the glamour with which a boy surrounds everything had faded away, much of Mr. Loraine's teaching, many of his cynical axioms, came back, perhaps unawares, to me. The certainty which he had always felt as to some selfish motive being the hidden mainspring in every action of man or woman, with me became at least suspicion. I had already met with false friends, who had, under the guise of friendship, robbed me not only of money, but of what I value more, trust in my fellows. After a while, I began to persuade myself that such popularity as I enjoyed was not due to my own merits, but to my worldly possessions; that I was by no means a fine fellow—merely a young man of large property. This feeling is a danger which continually besets a rich and sensitive man, especially if his companions are poorer than himself, and his own nature is not such as can accept flattery as his due. Under such circumstances, it is easy to develop much of the cynicism of Julian Loraine. Women had as yet done nothing to lower my self-esteem. Until now, I had not found the woman I could love. One reason for this was, that I was still of a romantic nature, and was resolved that whomsoever I asked to be my wife should love me for myself, not for my money.

I wish, so far as possible, to keep this tale free from any sarcastic remarks of my own, but at that time I often wondered if the mothers of fair daughters would have found me such a charming fellow had not Julian Loraine made that brief will.

But at last I was in love—hopelessly, unreservedly in love. My nature is, I believe, a passionate one, and now that it had found its aim, I gave it full and free scope. I loved madly, blindly, and, alas! jealously.

I had set my heart upon the daughter of no wealthy or well-born family. The girl I loved was not one whom I met in society; yet I proudly thought of the day when every eye would turn and be dazzled by her beauty—when people who appraised the charms of fair women would rank those of my wife high above all.

Of course I was partial—all lovers are—but now, as I glance from my paper to the portrait which hangs on the wall facing me, I tell myself that my love did not lead me far astray.

The soft, thick fair hair growing low down on the forehead, and swept back over the ear to join the knotted, silky mass at the back of the head. The head itself, small, well-shaped, and, above all, well-poised. The large, soft, dark blue eyes. The fringe of long, straight lashes—yes, straight, not curved—falling, when the eyes are closed, literally on the cheek. The girlish, yet perfect figure. Ah! I need not look at the portrait to recall and describe my love!

For the rest, her name was Viola Keith. She was an orphan, and all but alone.

How I met her, when I met her, matters little. Nearly all first meetings take place under prosaic circumstances. Anyway, as my eyes met hers, I told myself that I looked at the one woman whom it was possible for me to love with an eternal love.

I knew nothing of her family or her surroundings. I cared to know nothing. One question only I asked myself: can I win her, and win her for my own sake? Here, even here, in the first flush of my new love, suspicion of motive must be guarded against.

So when at last I was able to tell her what name I bore, I changed it, and called myself Mr. Julian Vane. She should, if she loved me, marry me, thinking she was marrying one in her own station of life.

Not that her station was anything to be ashamed of. So far as I could gather, she was one of the many whose parents leave their children a slender provision, yet large enough to live upon in respectability and comfort. Viola, I found, lived in a small house, with a prim old dame, the pink of dignity and propriety, and who had formerly been the girl's school-mistress; a solitary, lonely life it must have been for the girl.

I laughed as I thought how, if she loved me, I would draw her from her dull home, and show her the great world and the glories thereof. How was I to woo her? We were not likely to meet at any mutual friend's house. I had no sister, cousin or any one who could do me a friendly turn in the matter. Yet every moment of suspense would be an age to me. I must do something. So one day I waited until I saw Viola leave the house. I watched her tall, graceful form pass out of my sight, and by a great effort repressed my desire to follow her. Then I walked to her house, and requested to see Miss Rossiter, the prim old maiden lady aforesaid.

I told her in plain words the object of my calling. I spoke frankly of my love for her companion, and begged that my hearer would aid me to remove obstacles which stood in the way of a closer intercourse. No doubt, with a lover's cunning, I made myself most agreeable to the ancient old gentlewoman. Permission was graciously accorded me to visit the house—as a friend.

I wanted no more. I rose to take my leave, longing for to-morrow to come, as I did not like to venture two visits on the first day. Just then the door opened, and Viola appeared.

A look of surprise flashed into her face—surprise, but not displeasure. A faint blush crossed her cheek, and these signs told me I should win her.

Now that my foot was inside the citadel, I went to work fiercely, impetuously, to gain my desire. The days that followed are to me too sacred to be described; but not many passed before I knew that Viola's love was my own.

We went to the kindly spinster, who was responsible for Viola's safety, and told her the glad news. The old lady dropped her knitting-needles, and looked bewildered.

"No, no, no!" she cried, in horrified tones; "you can not mean it!"

Viola's blush and my words showed her we were in solemn earnest. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" sighed Miss Rossiter. "What shall I do? You have only known each other a week!"

"A day would have been long enough on my part!" I cried, looking rapturously at Viola.

"It is so sudden," continued Miss Rossiter. "I never dreamed of such a thing. In old days matters were managed much more decorously. I thought, Mr. Vane, you would be at least three months in making her acquaintance. Oh, dear! I am too much to blame!" The old soul seemed so distressed that Viola ran over and kissed her.

"Oh! what will Eustace say? He will blame me terribly. He is so masterful, you know, Viola."

"Who is Eustace?" I asked. I thought that Viola's face grew thoughtful as she heard the name.

"Mr. Grant, my guardian and good friend," she said.

"Then I must see him. Where can I find him?"

"He is away," said Miss Rossiter, plaintively. "Oh, I am so much to blame! I ought to have made all sorts of inquiries about you Mr. Vane."

"Your friend can make them on his return. When will that be?"

"No one knows. To-morrow, perhaps; next month, next year. One never can say. Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

I laughed and drew Viola away. We were so happy that we forgot all about Miss Rossiter's plaintive sighs, and I troubled nothing about Viola's guardian. I did not even ask what manner of a man he was.

But two days afterward I knew. In the evening I called as usual at Miss Rossiter's. Viola heard my knock and met me in the hall.

"Eustace came back to-day. He is here," she said, joyfully.

I kissed her and followed her into the room to make the acquaintance of her guardian. Although she called him by his Christian name, I fully expected to find him a sober, middle-aged man; but in the easy chair, lounging as if the place belonged to him, and talking volubly to Miss Rossiter, I saw a strongly built, sun-burned man who could be but a few years my senior. He rose as I entered, and Viola shyly introduced us.

He was tall—taller than I was. His shoulders were broad; his limbs strong and muscular. A man who, if not handsome, would certainly be noticed anywhere. The thought which succeeded my astonishment at his unexpected appearance was, "By what right is this man the guardian of the woman I love?"

He gave me his hand; but not, I fancied, cordially. He looked me full in the face, and I knew he was trying to gather from my looks some knowledge of myself. Then suddenly I saw a surprised expression on his face—saw the corners of his mouth droop as in half-suppressed scorn; and from that moment my feelings toward him were those of distrust and dislike.

He stayed so late that I was the one to make the first move. For once I was not sorry to leave Viola. The appearance of this man among us, the close terms of intimacy upon which it was clear he stood with Miss Rossiter and Viola, cast a kind of gloom upon me. I chafed at the thought that my happiness was in any way dependent upon his favor. I grew moody and silent, and for me the evening was a dull one.

But not for my friends. This Grant was evidently a brilliant and clever talker. He narrated, in an amusing way, his experiences in some out-of-the-way Alpine village, in which, for some reason which did not transpire, he had been staying. Yet at times I fancied that his merriment was forced, and again and again I saw his keen eyes turned on me with a searching glance, which annoyed me beyond measure.

When at last I rose, he followed my example, Viola, as was her custom, accompanied me to the door of the house, but this evening I noticed, or fancied I noticed, a certain reluctance and hesitation in her manner. Eustace Grant passed on in front of us. He opened the door and stood on the steps. I lingered for a moment to bid Viola a last good-night.

Presently Grant turned, as if impatient at my delay. There was a lamp exactly opposite the house, and the hall was also illuminated. I could, therefore, see the man's face distinctly, and there was an indescribable look in his eyes which told me the whole truth. This Eustace Grant, whoever he was, loved Viola even as I loved her! All my jealous and mistrustful nature surged to the surface. I grasped Viola's hand and hastily drew her into a little sitting-room close by. She looked at me in a startled manner.

"Viola," I said, "who is this man?"

"Dearest, I told you; Eustace Grant, my guardian!"

"Who is he? What is his profession?"

"Ah! that is a secret as yet. He will tell you some day; for, Julian, you will love him like a brother when you know him."

"Never! Listen, Viola. That man is in love with you!"

She made no answer, and by the light which passed through the half-opened door I saw a soft expression of pity and regret upon her sweet face.

"You know it?" I asked.

She sighed. "I am afraid it is so, or has been so. Poor Eustace!"

The intonation of the last two words carried comfort to my heart. It told me that I need fear no rival. I embraced Viola, and left her. Grant was still on the door-step. He was evidently waiting for me. I paused in the road, looking for a vacant hansom.

"Do you mind walking a little distance with me, Mr. Vane?" said Grant.

"I have some distance to go. I would rather drive."

"I will not take you far, but I have something to say to you."

He turned in an authoritative manner, as though fully expecting I should follow him. I hesitated; then joined him, and we walked side by side.

There was a frigid silence between us; but as I glanced at the tall, manly figure by my side, as now and again by the light of the gas lamps I saw that powerful striking face, the demon of self-distrust began to rise again. How, I asked myself could it be possible, all things being equal, for a woman to choose me in preference to this man? And thanks to my concealing my name and true position, the chances apparently were that Grant had as much to offer the woman as I had.

By and by my companion stopped and opened the door of a house with a latch-key. He invited me to enter, and showed me into a room on the ground floor. Once inside his own house, his manner changed. He was now a host, and I was a guest. He apologized for the state of confusion which reigned in the room. He had only returned to his lodgings yesterday, and had not yet got things straight. The rooms, although plainly furnished, showed that its tenant was a man of taste and culture. Books were scattered broadcast here, there, and everywhere. Grant swept a pile off the chair which he offered me.

"You smoke?" he said, producing a cigar case, "I can give you some brandy and soda, too."

He opened the cupboard and brought out the bottles. I declined his proffered hospitality, and awaited his communication. He stood with his back to the mantel-piece, and mechanically filled a pipe. He did not, however, light it; and, although I looked as carelessly as I could in another direction, I knew that he was attentively scanning my face. This scrutiny became unbearable.

Several weeks ago old Mr. and Mrs. William Byron of Aurora, Ill., discouraged over and tired of the dissolute habits of their 17-year-old grandson, Richard Walsh, turned the young man from their door and bade him shift for himself. Richard departed vowing vengeance. Saturday night he returned, set his grandfather's chicken coop afire and when the flames had a good start, walked down town and asked a policeman to arrest him, as he wanted to go to the reform school.

C. L. Sparks, a colored debater of the University of Chicago, has been forced off the University of Iowa-Chicago debate. The men who were interested in seeing C. L. Sparks off the team assert that the action was taken because Sparks had numerous conditions in his work and consequently by a ruling of the faculty he could not rightfully participate in the debate. Sparks as yet will not discuss the matter, but his confidential friends say he was displaced purely on account of his color; also that he will protest the ruling of the oratorical association. Men of southern birth are said to have had a hand in retiring Sparks.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

McKinley Gatten School.

Up in the North Carolina mountains an old man has a cabin which is a resort for hunters. He has a grandchild of whom he is very proud. She is a pretty, golden haired girl and a pet of the hunters, who warm the cockles of the old man's heart by singing her praises. On a recent trip one of the hunters, after a little skirmish with the child, went out to the old man, who was doing some work about the cabin, and said:

"I say, grandpop, Nellie is smarter than ever."

"Yes," responded the old man, proudly. "When she was in the city a visit-in' of her aunt she went to one of those McKinley gatten schools and learned a heap."—Washington Star.

The promise of attractive things which the Illustrated American makes for the current year is very alluring.

Questions of the day are discussed by Senators, military men of high rank and well-known leaders of thought.

Special series of articles by experts are announced on "American waste" and American architecture.

Just about to begin is a series of realistic tales of the Cuban war by a Cuban officer, Captain Mario Carrillo.

Later will come a thrilling international serial story, "A Dare to Bismark," by Clinton Ross, the popular author.

The short stories, week by week, are by the brightest story-writers in America.

The editorials of The Illustrated American are striking and notable.

Its literary and its athletic departments are conducted by specialists, and its woman's department is peculiarly unique.

The pictures are most profuse and highly finished. Photographers from every part of the United States contributed instantaneous views of stirring American events. The cartoons and other drawings are on a high standard.

The title of this paper accurately expresses its character.

SIGNS OF THE STARS.

SOME TALES TOLD BY THE HEAVENLY BODIES.

Correspondents Should Be Careful to Follow Instructions as to Full Names and Addresses—Date, Place and Hour of Birth.

HE, Astrologer again insists that all persons writing him with a view of obtaining free readings in this column, must send full name and address. The name will not be published. The data are often meagre, in which case it becomes necessary to address a personal letter to the applicant. It will therefore be seen that it is quite necessary to give name and post office address. These readings are free, and will be published in order as received. Persons wishing the same length reading by mail can obtain it by sending twelve two cent stamps. Write name and address, year of birth, day of month and hour of day, whether a. m. or p. m. Also state place of birth. These are important points and without them an accurate reading of the planetar indications cannot be given. Persons who are not sure as to data should write the Astrologer for special instructions by mail. In doing so send four cents in stamps for reply. Address: Prof. G. W. Cunningham, Dept. 4, 194 So. Clinton street, Chicago.

The following readings are for this week:

Miss Meg, Mendota, Mo.

According to the data furnished, the zodiacal sign, Scorpio, which Mars rules, was rising at your birth, therefore Mars is your ruling planet or significator.

You are medium height, with a well set figure, and will grow stouter as you grow older. Your complexion, hair and eyes, medium; the eyes have rather a sharp, piercing sight. You are very energetic and ambitious, do not like opposition, and will display quite a spirited temper at times; you are a leader, and have the ability to execute plans in a creditable manner; you are fond of soldiers, fireman, surgeons, all manner of military parades, news, etc. If a war would come you would like to go and be right at the front of the battle; you would make a good surgeon. You have far better command of language than this sign usually denotes. Your husband is, or will be, a peculiar temperament, and rather hard to understand, and marriage will only be a trifle over average fortunate. You are under both a good transit of Jupiter and an evil transit of Saturn.

F. B. Oceola, Ohio.

According to the data the zodiacal sign Aquarius, which Uranus rules, was rising at your birth, therefore Uranus is your ruling planet or significator. The sign Pisces, which Jupiter rules, was intercepted on ascendant, therefore Jupiter is co-significator. You are of medium height; medium to light complexion, hair and eyes; when young your hair was flaxen; you will grow stouter as you advance in years; you are reserved in your manners, yet quite a busy talker; you are inclined to investigate any of the occult and mysterious forces in nature; you are a seeker after truth no matter where you find it; you are naturally an advanced thinker, and was born with a kind of knowledge which you never had to study to learn; you just know many things without ever having had to study them, and if asked to explain how you knew this or that you could not tell where it came from; you feel and know things in advance. If you would thoroughly understand this it could be made valuable to you. Saturn will make an evil transit for you soon.

Miss S. S. Marionville, Mo.

According to the data furnished the Zodiacal sign Sagittarius, which Jupiter rules was rising at your birth, therefore Jupiter is your ruling planet or significator. You are tall, with slender, well formed figure; medium to light complexion and eyes; the hair, auburn; in general appearance you are commanding, you are jovial, cheerful, happy temperament, you are very ambitious and will be a leader in anything you are interested in; you are kind to animals and especially fond of a horse. You are very courageous even to a reckless degree at times. You will be looked up to by your neighbors; they will expect you to take the lead, and they will follow. You should secure an education in art for you are gifted in that direction, but there will be something to hinder you from getting a proper education in it unless you make special effort and overcome the obstacles that will be in your path, yet you are otherwise quite fortunate.

Note.—Those who have sent in their stamps (26 cents) for readings by mail, will usually be promptly answered. In cases where there is an apparent delay the astrologer should be notified at once and the mistake will be rectified.

WAIT ON UNCLE SAM.

Europe Won't Take Initiative for Monetary Conference.

London, Jan. 25.—It is rumored that Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado, who has been visiting England in the interest of bimetalism, is not quite satisfied with the progress of his inquiries here. He finds that the position here remains unchanged from the time of the Brussels conference—namely, that the British government and the house of commons are committed to do all in their power to secure by international agreement the stable monetary par of the exchange of gold and silver.

But Great Britain under no circumstances will take the initiative in calling a new conference. She wants to see what practical steps other governments are willing to take. The continental powers are equally unwilling to take the lead in calling a monetary conference, as they unanimously believed that the United States, both by its position and importance, must take the initiative.

HOMES SWEEP AWAY.

Fire Ruins an Iowa Town—No Fatalities Reported.

Pacific Junction, Iowa, has been wiped out by flames. Scores of people are homeless. The blaze originated in a small grocery store from unknown cause, and before it was brought under control twenty-three buildings comprising the main section of the place, had been wiped out. Among the buildings destroyed were the Pacific Hotel, valued at $8,000, and the Odd Fellows' Hall of about the same value. Both structures were three stories in height. The total loss is estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000.

The whole town is built of wood, and the flames had an easy progress from building to building under the stimulus of a strong north wind. But little of the contents of the buildings were saved. No fatalities occurred.

Blizzard Was Widespread.

The severe cold wave Saturday and Sunday extended as far east as the Ohio valley and southward to Texas, where the temperature fell from twenty to forty degrees in twenty-four hours. It was below freezing in Tennessee and Central Texas; is below zero in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and 20 degrees below zero over the Dakotas and Minnesota. The temperature fell near zero from Virginia northward, and freezing weather extended southward to the gulf and South Atlantic coasts.

Firemen Are Badly Frozen.

Seven firemen are suffering from being frozen at a fire at Muncie, Ind., Monday morning. The injured men are: Chief Granville Shepp, Frank Buchanan, John Casey, Chat Taylor, Ollie Hall, Grant Bisel, John Fahner. The men worked from 2 to 5 o'clock at the home of C. E. Wiley, and when the fire was extinguished their clothes had to be cut from their backs. Mrs. Wiley, with her child in her arms, was blinded by smoke, and stumbled and fell downstairs. She clung to the child and both were dangerously injured.

To Relocate Schweinfurth's Heaven.

Colonel George Jacob Schweinfurth, his chief apostle, John Weldon, and Attorney J. C. Woodburn of Byron have gone to Poteau, I. T., to look up land suitable for the removal of the "heaven" which has been maintained south of Rockford, Ill., for many years. The trio will spend some time in Arkansas and Missouri on the way back, and pick a location in one or the other should they find nothing to suit them in the Indian Territory.

Potsdam, N. Y., Bank Goes Under.

The National Bank of Potsdam, N. Y., closed its doors Monday. The bank is one of the oldest institutions in the county, having been organized in 1851 under the name of the Frontier Bank. In the bank's last statement the capital stock was given as $200,000; surplus, $40,000; undivided profits, $8,000; deposits, $350,000; loans and discounts, $500,000.

Will Buy No Implements.

The farmers in a number of northern Indiana counties have perfected an organization whereby it is agreed not to purchase any farm implements this year. A system of exchange has been agreed upon. The leaders in the movement disclaim the establishment of a boycott on manufacturers or dealers, and declare the organization is the outgrowth of business and financial depression.

Minority Law Declared Valid.

Michigan's famous minority representation law was declared constitutional by the Supreme Court. The question was raised by the directors of the Michigan Mutual Life Insurance Company of Detroit, which will appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court. The law provides that minority stockholders may cumulate their stock and vote the entire amount for one or more directors.

Mattoon's Rate Inspector Speaks.

(From the Commercial, Mattoon, Ill.)

Mr. W. J. Coombs is the "Rate Inspector" residing in Mattoon, Ill., and though but a young man of thirty-three, his life for the past two years has not been by any means a bed of roses.

The disability with which he was afflicted was a complication of disease of stomach and indigestion. Medical skill could not help him and the outlook seemed dark for him until Providence threw in his path the means of relief. It will be better to give his own story as he told it to a reporter:

"Very nearly three years ago, I was taken with a bilious attack and a bad cold, and this I think was the beginning of my trouble. My stomach went back on me altogether, and was a source of constant trouble. My digestion was altogether impaired, and the doctors could not help me, and in this wretched condition I remained until nearly one year ago. At that time Mr. George Coen, a conductor on the St. Louis Division of the 'Big Four' recommended me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I did so and before I had taken half a box knew that they were curing me. I only took two boxes in all and then was well. I always keep the pills by me and always shall do so. I recommend them to very one I hear complaining of stomach difficulty, and I believe many have been benefited."

(Signed) "W. J. Coombs," W. J. THOMAS.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are old in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE BLUES.

A Graphic Description of the Dreadful Feeling.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute Misery—Where Doctors Make Mistakes.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:—

She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly; been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling. Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES. Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs. Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman. Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.

IT'S CURES THAT COUNT.

Many so-called remedies are pressed on the public attention on account of their claimed large sales. But sales cannot determine values. Sales simply argue good salesmen, shrewd puffery, or enormous advertising. It's cures that count. It is cures that are counted on by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its sales might be boasted. It has the world for its market. But sales prove nothing. We point only to the record of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as proof of its merit.

Miss Emma, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jahnke, was given a genuine surprise Saturday by a host of her comrades and friends, in the way of a surprise party. It was a gathering as enjoyable as only a happy crowd of young people can make it, and the "goodies" were done ample justice to. It was a party at which all present had a good time.

Viola, the little daughter of Lawyer and Mrs. M. C. McIntosh entertained about eighteen of her young friends Saturday afternoon, it being her 6th birthday. During the afternoon the little guests were bidden to seat themselves at a table that was filled with "goodies." There never assembled a happier crowd of little folks than those that were present at Viola's party Saturday.

Thursday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, while Mr. S. W. Kingsley was walking up Station street, he slipped and fell to the sidewalk, receiving injuries which at first it was believed had dislocated his hip. Herman Schwemm, assisted by several young men, ran to Mr. Kingsley's assistance, and conveyed him to his residence in a cutter. Dr. Richardson was immediately summoned, and after a careful examination—which was rendered very difficult, owing to the corpulent form of the gentleman—expressed the hope that Mr. Kingsley had only received severe bruises.

I will be at the office of J. D. Lamey & Co., Barrington, on Saturdays of each week, commencing with Saturday, Feb. 6th, 1897, to collect taxes for the Town of Cuba. ROBERT FRICK, Collector.

George Searles had his leg injured while out hunting, near Cary, with a hunting party from Chicago. He was taken to a hospital in Chicago for treatment, returning home Wednesday evening.

For the first time in about eighteen months Ned Duers, the popular stage driver between Barrington and Wauconda, was unable to make his regular trip Thursday on account of a lame back, and he had to put on a substitute for that day.

An unusually important meeting of the Jugendverein will be held at the St. Paul's church tomorrow evening, January 31st. All members should make it their duty to attend this meeting and help elect officers. The Jugendverein, although young, is one of the most enterprising church societies of Barrington, and its members have just cause to feel proud of the work it is doing.

The Waukegan Herald of Wednesday evening says: "Yesterday Nicholas Connolly, a brakeman on the E. J. & E. railroad, suffered a painful injury and had a narrow escape from death. While riding on top of a freight train that was running at a twelve mile an hour gait past Lake Zurich, he was struck in the nape of the neck by a rope that was strung across the track from one of the ice houses. He was thrown violently upon his face and he received several bad bruises, but luckily he was not hurled from the car. He was given surgical care in this city and was able to go to his home today.

A little son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Nightingale on January 20th.

The Wayside Literary society of the Deer Grove school elected officers for the ensuing year, as follows: Chester Catlow, president; Herman Weisman, vice-president; Dollie Wilson, recording secretary; John Listharke, corresponding secretary; Percy Elfrink, treasurer. All those present had a good, social time.

NOTICE.—The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Evergreen Cemetery Association will be held at the Village Hall, Barrington, Ill., on Tuesday, February 2, 1897. Polls of said election will be open from 2 to 4 o'clock p. m.

M. B. MCINTOSH, President.

Thursday evening's Waukegan Herald says: "The first consignment of ice from Lake Zurich this season came over the E. J. & E. railroad last night. The consignment consisted of seven carloads of ice of fine quality and the consignee was the Bluff City Ice company. The harvest will be pushed rapidly, and the indications are that all the ice houses of the city will be supplied before a thaw makes further cutting impossible."

WAUCONDA.

Fine sleighing at present.

A. R. Johnson of Chicago was a pleasant caller in our village Tuesday.

John Ladd made a trip to Barrington Sunday.

Miss Nellie Kirwan, after a few day's visit with her parents, returned to her school at Antioch Sunday.

Gary Rendler of Chicago is spending a few days with relatives in our vicinity.

Walter Sensor is home to spend a short time with his parents.

A little daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Pratt Thursday morning.

Prof. R. C. Kent was called to Indiana Saturday to attend the funeral of a brother.

Some of our ice men are making preparations for filling their ice houses. We will have fine ice this year.

Simon Stoffel of McHenry was a pleasant caller in our village Wednesday.

Will Harris made a trip to Antioch Sunday. He had a very cold drive—at least he thought so when he got home and discovered that his fingers were frozen.

Miss Agnes Meyers of McHenry is spending a few days with relatives in our village.

Ned Duers, our stage driver, is having some pretty cold trips this week.

A book-keeping class will be organized in our village in the near future by two of our young men. The tuition will be reasonable, and everyone who can spare the time should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity to take a course in book-keeping. Watch for further particulars in next week's issue of THE REVIEW.

The entertainment given at the Oakland hall Friday evening of last week by the young ladies of the Catholic church was a grand success—both socially and financially. The literary program was short, but was highly appreciated, after which Rev. Lawrence Meehan of Morris, Ill., delivered a lecture. Father Meehan is a very able speaker, which was clearly shown in the way he handled the temperance and other questions. It is well worth one's time to go and hear the gentleman, and we hope he will again favor us with his presence in the near future. An elaborate spread of the delicacies of the season had been prepared in the dining room to which ample justice was done by those present after the lecture. The evening was very much enjoyed by all present.

The Literary Society held its fourth meeting Saturday evening. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Hubbard, after which the election of officers for the ensuing two weeks was taken up. The result of the election was as follows: M. W. Hughes, president; A. R. Roney, vice-president; E. Harrison, secretary. The program committee appointed by the newly elected chairman was as follows: Miss Lilah Golding, Chester Sowles and Herman Malman. After the election the program for the evening was taken up. The literary program was short, owing to so many being absent who should have taken part. The debate: "Resolved, That the United States government should own and control all inter-state railroad and telegraph lines," was very ably handled by G. Fitch, H. E. Malman and A. Roney for the negative and M. W. Hughes, F. L. Carr and A. L. Mullen for the affirmatives. The verdict resulted in favor of the affirmatives.

There will be a "dime" social at Dr. C. R. Wells' home on Saturday evening, February 6th. A short literary program will be rendered. The chief feature of the evening will be the study of a penny. This will be interesting to both old and young. Suitable prizes, which will be worth while striving for, will be offered. Everybody is invited to attend and enjoy a pleasant evening."

In the Connecticut legislature 100 of the 276 members are farmers, while the lawyers number only 22. It would appear from this that the members of the legal profession have discovered at last that there is no money in politics. The lawyers have learned the lesson that the farmers have yet to learn.

In Boston lives Joseph D. Jones, and the number of his years are ninety and nine. He is the oldest surviving Boston schoolboy, which in itself is glory enough for an old man.
