Village Board Proceedings

The meeting of the Village Board Wednesday evening was a very interesting one all around.

Hardly had the minutes of the previous meeting been read and approved when Night-Watch A. Henderson was called on to make any remarks that he might wish to bring to the attention of the members of the Board.

Mr. Henderson told the Board that our saloonkeepers were of the kind that didn't care whether they closed up 11 o'clock or later, despite his protests. He was given orders to see that the saloons close at 11 o'clock.

Bills to the amount of $274.12 were then read and allowed.

The cheerful information was also vouchsafed that the signs bearing the names of the streets would soon be ready to put up.

It was also mentioned that it was about time to begin work on Station street.

Clerk Powers was instructed to ascertain the freight rate on 50 cars of gravel from Cary to this place.

Trustee Hatje said that complaint had been filed with him to the effect that drug stores were selling liquors, and he made a motion that Marshal Sandman keep an eye open for the druggists. The motion was seconded by Granau, and went through without a dissenting voice.

Cuba Town Meeting.

The following resolutions were adopted at the town meeting held Tuesday afternoon:

WHEREAS, The legal voters of the Town of Cuba aforesaid find the condition of the roads and highways in said town to be such as to warrant and demand an extraordinary amount of labor thereon, it is therefore

Resolved: That the Commissioners of Highways for the Town of Cuba be and are hereby authorized to levy a tax, for the purpose of improving the roads and highways in said town, to the full amount permitted by Statute, to-wit: one per centum on the assessed valuation of the property in said town. And be it further

Resolved: That the Board of Auditors and Assessor in and for said town are hereby ordered and directed to certify to such levy as aforesaid.

VILLAGE CAUCUS.

The village caucus of Barrington held in the schoolhouse Saturday evening was attended by a large number of voters.

Clerk L. A. Powers called the caucus to order and F. E. Hawley was nominated for chairman by acclamation.

C. A. Alberding was chosen clerk and J. C. Plagge and T. H. Creet as tellers.

Henry Boehmer was nominated to succeed himself as president by acclamation, as were F. O. Willmarth and John Robertson for trustees.

A ballot was required to decide whether Wm. Peters was to succeed himself or give way to G. W. Lageschulte. The result was as follows:

Wm. Peters 120
G. W. Lageschulte 15

The next office to be filled was that of clerk, which office was bestowed on L. A. Powers, by acclamation, while M. C. McIntosh was nominated for police magistrate by acclamation.

Those present then took an informal ballot to ascertain whether the village should build a new city hall, and the question was decided in favor of a new hall by a large majority.

Village Election.

Notice is hereby given, that on Tuesday the 20th day of April next, at the village hall in the village of Barrington, Ill., in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, an election will be held for the following village officers, viz.: One President of the Village, three Village Trustees, one Village Clerk and one Police Magistrate, which election will be opened at 7 o'clock in the morning, and will continue open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day.

Given under my hand at Barrington, Ill., the 31st day of March, A. D. 1897.

LYMAN A. POWERS,
Village Clerk.

We've Got You Beat.

In speaking of the meeting of the Board of town auditors of the town of Antioch the Antioch News says:

"In one respect, at least, we think Antioch takes the cake, if not the entire cake shop, as we find the supervisor's book has done duty in continuous service since 1851 and the treasurer's book of the road commissioners since 1868. New books were ordered for the two officers and the old ones will be filed away among the archives of the town. If any of our neighboring towns can beat the record of these two books we would be glad to hear it."

The Town of Cuba can beat this record as far as the supervisor's book is concerned. The first record made in this book is dated April 2nd, 1850. The treasurer of commissioner's book dates April 7th, 1879. Both of these books are still in use and are good for many years to come. The town of Cuba was first known as Troy. The name was changed to Cuba in 1850. Philetus Beverly was the first supervisor.

Starting in Right

Lake Zurich is not very large but there is a whole lot to it in the way of enterprise, just the same. Lake Zurich has several times suffered severe losses by fire and has been taught the lesson that to build up a town, you must save from destruction what you have already built up.

Although this village has only been incorporated but a few months, they have had an eye from the start as to the greatest needs of the village. They have set an example in this respect that is commendable, and towns of a somewhat larger size might take a lesson from. Nearly the first act of the village board was to devise some means for fire protection, which resulted in the purchase of a large fire-engine, and four large wooden tanks of Arnold Schauble, of Barrington.

The tanks will be set in the ground in different sections of the village and will be kept filled with water to be in readiness in case of fire. They have organized a good fire-company. They have also erected a respectable town hall building, part of which is used for the storing of the fire engine, violators of the village ordinances, and for meetings of the Village Board.

We congratulate the Board of Trustees of the Village of Lake Zurich.

The next move that the Village of Lake Zurich should make is to co-operate with the Town of Elh and get one of the main roads in their town graveled to the Town of Cuba or Barrington line. A good gravel road between Lake Zurich and Barrington will not only tend much to building up Lake Zurich, but will raise the value of farm property in that vicinity. By all means let us try to get out of the mud.

Newspaper men are blamed for many things they cannot help; such as using partiality in mentioning visitors, giving news about some folks and leaving out others, etc. They simply print the news they can find. An editor should not be expected to know the names and residences of your uncles, aunts and cousins, even if he should see them off on the train. Tell him about it. It's news that makes a newspaper, and every man, woman and child in the neighborhood could be associate editors if they would.

Everyone interested in good roads should join the L. A. W. It only costs $1.00 per annum and the L. A. W. Bulletin which every member receives free is well worth the cost alone. M. T. Lamey has been selected as local consul for the organization in Barrington, and will be pleased to furnish you with application cards for membership.

NEW TARIFF IN FORCE

DINGLEY MEASURE PASSED BY THE HOUSE.

Republicans Vote Solidly for the Bill—Amendment Adopted to Affect All Future Imports—Lively Scenes in the Closing Hours of Debate.

April 1 the duties imposed by the Dingley tariff bill went into effect, and the present law is a thing of the past, if the last amendment attached to the bill before its passage in the house, fixing that date as the day on which its provisions shall go into effect, should be in the bill when it is finally enacted and should be held to be legal by the courts. The republicans presented an unbroken front to the opposition. The vote on the final passage of the bill stood: Yeas, 205; nays, 122; present and not voting, 21—a majority of 83. The events leading up to the final vote were replete with excitement and incident.

Mr. Grosvenor presented the amendment fixing April 1 as the date on which the bill shall go into effect. Mr. Bailey made the point that the amendment was out of order. Mr. Dockery (dem., Mo.) offered as an amendment the proviso to suspend the duties on articles controlled by trusts. It was ruled out of order.

In opening Mr. Grosvenor defended the retroactive amendment, claiming it to be both expedient and wise. Mr. Richardson (dem., Tenn.) contended that the Supreme Court had declared such action illegal. Mr. Bailey (dem., Texas) closed the debate with an argument to the same effect.

Mr. Grosvenor proposed an amendment to the amendment which was that the lien imposed on goods by this act imported between April 1 and the enactment of the act should be only to the amount of taxes of the duties of this act over the Wilson act. The amendment to the amendment was adopted. The vote was then taken on the original amendment fixing April 1 as the date on which the bill was to go into effect, and it was adopted, 150 to 129.

Before the final vote on the bill Mr. McMillin (dem., Tenn.) denounced the republican leaders for the short time they had allowed for debate. Mr. Dingley closed in a ten-minute speech. He assured his colleagues and the country that he felt confident the bill would accomplish the purpose for which it was framed.

The bill was then read a third time, after which Mr. Dockery (dem., Mo.) offered the motion of the minority to recommit the bill, with instructions. The motion was lost, 143 to 136. The roll call on the passage of the bill was then taken and was followed with intense interest. Not a break occurred in the republican ranks. Five democrats—Messrs. Meyer, Broussard and Davey of Louisiana and Kleberg and Slayden of Texas—voted with the majority. Mr. Howard (Ala.) was the only populist who voted for the bill, but twenty-one of the populists, fusionists and silverites declined to record themselves either way.

When the speaker announced the result—"ayes 205, nays 122, present and not voting 21, and so the bill it passed"—the republicans rose en masse and cheered. The house then adjourned until Saturday.

FARMERS ARE COMBINING.

National Organization to Control the Products of the Land.

The largest scheme the farmers of this country have ever inaugurated is under way. It is called the Agriculturalists' National Protective Association, originated at Lancaster, Pa., and incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. The ultimate design is the absolute control and marketing of all farm products and farm animals.

Tate, aged 70, was drowned near Brentwood. His daughter, Nellie Tate, aged 6, was drowned also. The missing are John O'Fallon, Phillip Phelps and 12 others.

Sherburne Robber Found Guilty.

The jury in the trial of Bank Robber Kellihan, at Fairmont, Minn., for murder returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. The Kellihan brothers robbed several banks, killing two men in the Sherburne bank. The jury recommended Kellihan to mercy.

A COUNTERFEITER CAUGHT.

The Police of Syracuse Make an Important Capture.

On Monday the 15th, Harold Marquisee, of Utica, N. Y., was arrested in Syracuse, N. Y., on a warrant sworn out by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., charging him with forgery. On the 15th of December Marquisee visited a photo-engraver in Syracuse, saying he was the representative of the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., and arranged for the making of a full set of plates for the direction sheets, labels, etc., of the famous Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. News of this reached the home office, and no time was lost in arranging for his arrest when he should return for the plates. He returned on the 15th and was accordingly arrested and is now in jail in Syracuse awaiting examination.

This arrest proves to be an important one. In addition to various plunder, such as medical books, typewriters, rugs, etc., found in Marquisee's trunk when arrested, the police also found counterfeit coin both in the trunk and on his person; and in a search of his apartments at Utica found a complete outfit for counterfeiting consisting of crucibles, bellows, nickel, lead, bismuth, antimony, a small blacksmith forge, a charcoal furnace, and several plaster-of-paris molds. The United States marshals want him just as soon as the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. are through with him, and, no doubt, he will be sentenced for a long period.

In selecting Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for his counterfeiting operations, he showed his knowledge of the proprietary medical business; for these pills are in such great demand that they are easily sold at any drug store in the United States. His scheme was to work the country druggists and sell his imitations at a discount of from 2 per cent to 5 per cent, explaining the reduced price by the fact that he had picked them up in small lots and at a discount from dealers who were over-stocked. By working fast and making long jumps, he would have secured many hundreds of dollars in a short time. The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are most fortunate to have caught the rogue, before he had fairly started, and to have thus kept these spurious goods out of the market.

In the Wrong Box.

"Well, that's a funny thing!" exclaimed Mrs. Snaggs, who had been reading the newspaper.

"What's funny?" asked her husband.

"A witness in court did not know in what month the Fourth of July occurred. What do you think of that?"

"What do I think of that?" repeated Mr. Snaggs. "I think that he should not have been called as a witness. He ought to have been a juror."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Smoking Meat Without Fire.

It may sound absurd to make a statement about "smoking meat without a fire," for it is a well known saying that "where there is smoke there must be fire." The advance of science, however, has made this idea obsolete, and today with the use of Krausers' Liquid Extract of Smoke it is possible to quickly, economically and successfully smoke meat without a fire. This liquid extract is made by distilling the smoke from hickory wood and is absolutely harmless. In fact, meat smoked by this method has a genuine smoke flavor, remains moist and soft, and is not infested with insects. Every objection of the old method is overcome, every trouble ended and the unsightly and dangerous smoke house is a thing of the past. Krausers' Liquid Extract of Smoke long ago passed the age of experiment, and thousands are using it today with profit and satisfaction. By writing E. Krauser & Bro., Milton, Pa., those who are interested can secure free of charge instructive printed matter about methods of curing and smoking all kinds of meats.

This Is Queer Enough.

A dozen expert doctors testified that an Emporia, Kan., woman had been so injured in a railroad accident that maternity must be to her a thing unknown. She got damages on this testimony, and the railroad appealed to the supreme court, where, after years of waiting, the decision of the lower court has just been affirmed. In the meantime the Emporia woman has given birth to three children.

Ponder Over It.

A prominent building owner, with years of experience, gave the following instructions to his architect: "I have had my experience with kalsomine and other goods claimed to be just as good as Alabastine. I want you to specify the durable Alabastine on all my walls; do not put on any other manufacturers' dope, if they furnish it for nothing. Alabastine is right, and when I cease to use it I shall cease to have confidence in myself or my own judgment."

Texas Rabbit Club.

The people of Wolfe Valley, Texas, have organized a rabbit club. The club pays one cent for each cotton tail scalp and two and one-half cents for each jack rabbit. The organization of this club is a necessity. Rabbits have ruined all fruit trees this winter which were not protected by oak bushes. If something is not done to destroy these pests the farmers will suffer great loss.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Above is a group picture of the present Supreme Court of the United States, the most powerful deliberative body in the world. We have the upper and lower houses of congress, and the executive to make laws; but no law ever really becomes a law until passed upon by the Supreme Court. The Sherman anti-trust law is an example. It passed both houses of congress, received the president's signature, but was never observed by the most powerful combinations until the Supreme Court decided that the law was constitutional and that promoters of trusts and pools are criminals. The income tax law decision furnished another instance of the court's precedence over the legislative and executive branches of the government.

Set Fires in Chicago.

William Bloom, under arrest at Cleveland, Ohio, on the charge of arson, has confessed that during the big railroad strike in Chicago he was a militiaman and set fire to a grain elevator, other buildings and fifty railroad cars. The strikers were charged with these crimes, which were the principal cause for the ordering of federal troops to Chicago.

Laramie Buried in Snow.

Business at Laramie, Wyo., is practically suspended. In the main streets the snow in places is ten feet high, while residences on the outskirts of the city are in some instances completely buried by drifts.

Chicago Bank Goes Up.

The Globe Savings Bank at Chicago suspended Monday. The failure was not unexpected. The bank's liabilities, chiefly to savings depositors, are about $450,000. Its assets will meet the liabilities handsomely—in fact, in full—and leave a margin. The failure caused no flurry in financial circles.

Illinois Turners in Convention.

The 26th annual convention of the Illinois Turn Bezirk was held at Moline Sunday. Bloomington was selected as the district headquarters for the next year, Moline having held it the last two years. Moline was selected as the place for holding the biennial turnfest in June, 1898.

SCENES FROM THE FLOODED DISTRICT.

Big Break at Flower Lake.
Another disastrous break in the Mississippi levee occurred Sunday morning at 8 o'clock at Flower Lake, six miles below Tunica, Miss. The crevasse, while not yet of great width, is fully fifteen feet deep and the water is pouring through the opening with fearful velocity. This will probably be the most destructive break that has occurred in the delta. The most fertile farm lands of Mississippi, lying in Coahoma, La Flore, Quitman and Tallahatchie Counties, in the northern part of the state are inundated, and the newly planted corn crops will be laid in waste.

No loss of life is reported, the inhabitants of this stricken section having made preparations for just such a catastrophe as exists there. The condition of the poorer classes throughout the flooded area is indeed critical. Thousands of refugees are huddled on levees and spots of land waiting for relief. The towns of Rosedale and Tunica report that everything possible is being done for these poor people, but that funds and provisions are fast becoming exhausted. In the little city of Rosedale alone 1,200 refugees are being cared for by the citizens.

Half a hundred towns stand in six feet of water and the yellow stream is creeping up slowly but surely.

Levee at Helena, Ark., Gives Way.

Advices received tell of a break in the levee two miles south of Helena, Ark. This is the levee for which the people of Southeastern Arkansas have made such a desperate fight. The wa-

On the Upper Mississippi.

The upper Mississippi continues to boom, the gauge showing eighteen feet above low water mark. It has been raining constantly for twelve hours.

Floods in Minnesota.

Ortonville, Minn., has been completely cut off from communication with the outside world. A train cannot go 20 miles from this city in any direction. Lac Qui Parle lake, Minnesota river, Big Stone lake and Lake Traverse form one vast sea. The lake and river are merged into one, rising at the rate of half an inch an hour. A heavy northwest gale is driving the ice, which is yet a compact and solid mass, out of Big Stone lake into the overflowed bottoms of the Minnesota river, where it is likely to do great damage. Bridges are gone in many places and boats are in demand in the vicinity of the depot and the railroad yards. Rain has been falling steadily for a week, making country roads impassable and keeping farmers off their fields.

Every record since that of 1849 has been broken by the Mississippi at Anoka, Minn. Fireman's grove is filled with water and the Rum river dam is expected to go out. Millions of feet of logs are floating down the river. North of Anoka millions of acres of farms are under from two to six feet of water and there are grave doubts as to whether or not it can be seeded this spring. River men tonight say that there will be a further rise here of at least six feet.

The Jim River Overflows.

The Jim river is creating general havoc with railroads in the valley east of Yankton, S. D. The water is a foot higher and threatens to take out bridges and tracks, as the approaches at both ends of the bridges are cutting badly. Three miles and over of track of the Great Northern, Milwaukee and Northwestern railroads is now completely disabled, thus cutting Yankton off from the outside world. Farmers in the bottoms are moving out with boats. Word was received asking for immediate assistance, and men and boats are departing for the flooded district. The water still continues to rise at Yankton. The ice is broken at Grand Forks, N. D., and trouble is expected from that source. Basements in Third street stores are cleared of all goods. Above Grand Forks the ice is still solid. Between there and Fisher a long trestle on the Great Northern went out Sunday. It will require a week after the water has gone down to repair this line.

enough to sadden the hearts of those far away who are now eagerly waiting for news and hoping against hope.

Reporter Gathering News.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent went by skiff from here to all points possible by water in a radius of fifteen miles in every direction from this city, says a telegram from Greenville, Miss. It was a common sight to see rabbits or domestic fowls floating on driftwood, deer on little islands here and there above the water, and the starving creatures do not now fear the approach of man. In one instance a negro was calmly smoking a pipe on the roof of a log cabin while a stream of water was running through the doors of her hut nearly up to the eaves of the roof.

Terrible Suffering at Many Points.

The floods of the Mississippi valley and its tributaries continues to grow apace. Millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed and millions more must be swept away before the waters recede. Hundreds of lives have been sacrificed and at least three hundred thousand people have been rendered homeless. The governors of Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Minnesota are receiving funds for the unfortunates in distress.

Secretary of War Alger has forwarded all the available tents in the department to the flooded districts, but these will be inadequate. He has also ordered the expenditure of $50,000 cash to relieve the sufferings of homeless citizens and their families. This is the first time that the war department has ever felt called upon to spend cash to relieve want outside of the regular army.*

Greenville, Miss., Being Swept Away.

One-third of Greenville, Miss., is a desert of water, a scene of desolation impossible to describe. The water is in nearly 200 houses and is kept out of the stores in the heart of the town only by the protection so timely thrown up by the citizens to stop its destructive progress. Mail goes and comes in skiffs, doctors visit their patients in skiffs, social visits are made in skiffs, and skiffs are property equal almost in value to what the mule was a few days ago. The water is deepest in the extreme northern limits, where it has reached a depth of about seven feet. From this point it shows a gradual decline.

New Town, Miss., a very thickly built district, peopled almost entirely by negroes, is under water, the depth ranging from a few inches to five feet. The Belle Air, which contains many pretty homes and was beautiful with green lawns and blooming shrubs, is a Venice, and the only means the people have of leaving or returning to their homes is by boats, which are numerous and various. The water is not as high as in 1890, but will soon reach and pass that mark. Greenville itself is a city of refugees of from 15,000 to 20,000 souls. Relief boats from the interior are bringing in nearly every hour loads of destitute flood sufferers suddenly caught by the waters and driven from their homes. Hundreds and thousands of head of stock are being driven in from every direction. The back water from four crevices is pouring in fearful floods every hour, and the situation is growing rapidly worse. At Helena, Miss., the river is still rising; at St. Louis, Miss., it is rising, and the Arkansas is threatening to rise in a few days. Business men are blue, but try to keep cheerful. The worst has not yet reached the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta, and the half of its tale of woe has not been told. As soon as the different towns and cities already submerged are reached by boat parties from Greenville and as soon as the remote districts and plantations can be heard from, there will be

LEAVING OLD HOME TO TAKE REFUGE IN THE HILLS.

"What are you doing there, aunty?" we halloed.

"Ise watered in," came the response. "Would you like us to take you in?" we offered.

"No, sah; I'll be skiffed out terectly."

Piaintive howlings of dogs, cackling of poultry and squealing of pigs keep the woods alive, and graphic scenes and incidents crowd upon the sight at every turn. There are dead carcasses floating in the water, fragments of houses and articles of household furniture of every kind.

P. S.—A later dispatch says that Greenville has been swept away.

ters from this break flood a great area and back up into the streets of Helena.

The relief steamer Ora Lee has arrived at Marianna, Ark., having made an expedition up the St. Francis River. There were on board 160 refugees and 200 head of cattle. The steamer went up the St. Francis River as far as Cut Off, and then worked her way down stream, rescuing people from perilous positions. The suffering along the St. Francis River is appalling. The water throughout the entire neighboring country is from six to fifteen feet deep.

The relief boat had on board the body of Mrs. McMann of Raggio City. The body was found at Raggio and it was taken to Marianna for burial, there being no land at the former place on which to give it interment. The St. Francis is rising from three to five inches daily.

Dispatches from Aitkin, Sauk Rapids, St. Cloud and Little Falls indicate that the river is still rising rapidly and that all records are likely to be broken at St. Paul within the next forty-eight hours. The levee at James street, that city, broke at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, sending the water all over that part of the city with a rush. The flood enroached into the freight house of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road. The Diamond Jo passenger station is in danger of floating away, and a force of men are busy tying it to the bank. Several of the manufacturing concerns on the west side have been obliged to shut down because water put their fires out. The relief societies of St. Paul are

At points below Vicksburg the river is rising. It is the general opinion of old river men here if the levees below Vicksburg hold the great volume of water in its regular channel it will be little short of a miracle.

Middlesboro, Ky., is again flooded. The water is four inches higher than in the flood five weeks ago. Most of the stores in Cumberland avenue are flooded. Sixty-five families have been washed out. Three hundred people are fed by the city. Boats are plying on the principal streets. At Pineville the Cumberland river is rising three feet per hour. West Pineville is under water. The Clinch and Powell Rivers are flooding the entire country.

Gov. McLaurin, of Mississippi, continues to make diligent inquiry touching destitute flood sufferers. He will perhaps be compelled to state to Secretary of War Alger that the amount of $10,000 mentioned in his telegram will be wholly inadequate to alleviate the want and suffering. Hon. J. W. SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1897.

The most splendid and heroic people in the closing years of the nineteenth century are, except the Cubans, the Greeks. Here in America it is easy to see what ought to happen and what would happen if the powers of Europe would mind their own business and keep their fingers out of matters which do not concern them in southeastern Europe. If Greece were let alone, she would go on and annex Crete to herself at the earnest wish of the Cretans themselves. By religion and political sympathy the independent countries of Montenegro, Roumania and Servia are with the Greeks. So is the principality of Bulgaria, still tributary to the Turk. The moment the Greek army sets foot in the Turkish province of Macedonia, on its way to thrash the Turk, the Macedonians would rise to a man to help their own blood brothers, the Greeks. Bulgaria and Servia would be glad to come to the aid of King George with many thousand soldiers if Russia would let them. With his own troops, with the Macedonian rebels on the south of Turkey, with the states of Roumania, Bulgaria and Servia aiding him on the north of Turkey and little Montenegro on the southwest, the king of Greece would sweep through Turkey like a prairie fire and obliterate her from the map of Europe. Then he and the states that had helped him could divide the remains of the rotten old empire among themselves. They would do it much more equitably than the great powers would too. That is how it ought to be.

Greece has already 60,000 soldiers on the frontier next Turkey. Her regular army is only 25,000, the same number as ours in the United States. She has, however, like other European nations, classes of trained soldiers, called reserves, who are regularly in private life, but may be called on by the government at any time for military service. Greece has of such reserves two classes, the first numbering 104,500, the second, to be called out last, numbering 146,000. King George has therefore at his command 250,000 men, much better equipped and drilled than the Turkish soldiers and bubbling over with patriotism besides. The Greeks fight for love of country, the Turks for love of their theology. The Turkish army is larger than that of Greece, but the setting foot of King George in Turkish territory would be the signal for 200,000 men from the Balkan states to flock to his banner. It would be a scene scarcely equaled by any since the crusades or the march of Joan of Arc.

Clearness of Statement.

Of the 70,000,000 people in the United States there are probably 100,000 who write more or less regularly for the press. There are 100,000 more whose business it is to instruct others in professional talks and lectures.

And among all these it is safe to say not more than 10,000 at most have trained themselves to say or write a thing in such a way that its full meaning shall be unmistakable, without a word too many or a word lacking. The person who desires to write must first have something to say. He should next get a clear picture in his mind of what that is, every part of it. Its points must follow one another—first this, then that, then the next, like mosaic bits. The picture being arranged in his own mind, he will be able to put it before the minds of his readers. This he should do in the clearest language consonant with good taste and literary culture.

The lamentable lack of writers who can produce strong, exact, clear cut work becomes painfully apparent when a notable event tests their powers of construction and description—such event, for instance, as the McKinley inauguration. Enough was written about it to stretch across a good part of this country if the columns had been placed end to end. Some of the heavy papers printed 30 columns concerning it. Yet after wading through the whole mass how many readers saw mentally a succession of tableaux as follows:

First, Major McKinley leaving the Ebbitt House at Washington at 10 o'clock, March 4, and going in a carriage to the White House to join President Cleveland? Then came the journey of the two presidents to the capitol and the senate chamber. From the huge mass of ill arranged matter could the reader see that the next living tableau was the outgoing vice president administering in presence of Cleveland and McKinley and a splendid audience in the senate chamber the oath of office to Mr. Hobart? After that the newly elected senators of the Fifty-fifth congress were sworn in, that there might not be for a single day a hiatus in the senate organization if it should become necessary to call a meeting of that body.

Following the taking of the oath by the new senators the complete newspaper writer next told the reader that the senate, the two presidents and everybody else passed out of the chamber to the beautiful east front of the capitol. There, upon a stand specially erected for the occasion, Chief Justice Fuller, in full black silk robes, administered the oath of office to McKinley, in presence of 30,000 spectators who mostly stood outside in the grounds. How many readers could tell that the grand parade came after this, and that the reviewing stand from which McKinley witnessed it was in front of the White House, a mile from the capitol building?

LIGHT OF THE FUTURE.

The Study of Light Producing Animal and Vegetable Life.

The incandescent electric light wastes and throws away 93 per cent of the energy utilized, only 2 per cent appearing in the shape of light rays. On the other hand, the light emitted by the firefly and the glow-worm wastes but 2 per cent. In other words, the animal light is 48 times cheaper.

In the course of recent experiments Dr. Raphael Dubois of Lyons has made elaborate studies of a great many kinds of light producing creatures. There is no lack of them in nature—in fact, thousands of species possess this curious photogenic power. Not a few plants have it also, and among the latter may be mentioned certain mushrooms that grow in Brazil and Australia. Some of them give enough light to make it possible to read by the aid of a single specimen. The luminosity frequently seen in autumn in the forests on dead leaves or on bits of wood is due to fungi. The yellow flowers of the nasturtium emit a small amount of light. But in the animal kingdom the torchbearers assume an immense variety of forms, from the minute organisms that are responsible for much of the ocean's phosphorescence to the deep sea fishes that carry lamps of their own and form endless torchlight processions through the otherwise black and gloomy marine abysses.

Many jellyfishes are luminous, and so are some of the starfishes. A few earthworms are light givers, and numerous crustaceans have a luminosity of their own. One kind of shrimp has a brilliant circle surrounding the eye, which is actually in a luminous socket. A European species of "thousand legs" emits light in autumn. But no animals are better light givers than certain insects, and even the eggs of some of these are luminous. From generation to generation the light bearing creatures transmit the torch that is never extinguished and which seems to have been lighted at the very dawn of creation. As for insects, a very minute species, found in parts of Europe, sometimes makes the surface of the ground luminous over considerable areas, congregating in inconceivable numbers.

The eggs of the glowworm are luminous, and it is the same way with the firefly of tropical America. The larva of the firefly carries with it at birth the torch transmitted to the egg by its ancestors. Indeed it has several lights, one on each segment of its body. These luminous spots may be lighted and extinguished successively, like the gas burners of a stairway swept by the wind, and it is a very curious spectacle to see two of the larvae struggling together and twisting about while emitting flashes of light. Imagine what the effect would be if the combatants were as large as pythons! In the adult state the firefly has three lanterns—two on the back and one on the belly. When the belly lantern, which is the brightest of the three, has been carefully separated from the body, dried and pulverized, it still gives out light when a drop of water is let fall upon the powder. This is only one of many interesting experiments made by Dr. Dubois. He has succeeded in making photographs by the firefly light, using very sensitive plates.—Rene Bache in Boston Transcript.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. John Catlow.

Mrs. Elizabeth Catlow (nee Kitson) was born on the 7th day of Dec., 1823, at Yorkshire, England, and died at her home in Barrington, Ill., on Friday morning, April 26, 1897, being 73 years 3 months and 26 days of age.

When she was in her 21st year she was united in marriage to Mr. John Catlow at the Independent church of Burntly, England, by the Rev. James Granall, March 7, 1843, and lived to pass her Golden wedding day by more than four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Catlow left England together in the fall of 1856 and have lived in Barrington or vicinity ever since, being among the oldest settlers in this part of the country.

Mrs. Catlow was a member of the Wesley Methodist society in England, having joined a few years after she was married. In the year 1890 she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Barrington, and has been a faithful, devoted member of the church as long as she lived.

To Mr. and Mrs. Catlow six children were born, of whom, two passed away to the Golden shore.

She leaves yet in the world to mourn her death her bereaved husband and four sons, all of whom feel deeply the loss of a devoted wife and a kind mother, but not only do the members of her own immediate family deeply mourn her departure, but the people of the entire community feel in her going they part with an esteemed neighbor and a beautiful Christian life.

A good life needs no praising—no eulogy—no declaration of its merits—and yet we cannot refrain from speaking a word in behalf of this most devoted Christian life.

She trusted God as her loving Heavenly Father; she believed in Christ as her Savior; and the Holy Spirit as her guide.

She joined and loved the church of Christ because she felt that it was the household of God's people. As a wife and mother her family was always in her heart and in her prayer. She has gone, but she is not dead; she is unseen, and yet she lives; we feel that there is one saint less on earth, but one more in heaven; and if we mourn others rejoice.

One little hour for watching with the Master Eternal years to walk with him in white. One little hour to bravely meet disaster. Eternal years to reign with him in light.

Rev. T. E. Ream of the M. E. church officiated at the services, which were held Monday afternoon at the M. E. church. Interment took place at Deer Grove.

It Pays to Raise Percheron Horses

It does not pay to raise cheap horses when horses are cheap. It does pay to raise horses that command a good price in the market. Percheron horses have always and are still commanding good prices, hence Percheron horses are the ones to raise for profit.

Already the demand for good working horses is on the increase and the supply is limited, with certain prospects that prices will advance rapidly in the next few years. Over 40,000 horses were shipped abroad during the years 1895 and 1896, with prospects for an increasing demand this year.

It is with confidence that I offer to the farmers of the surrounding district the services of my highly bred Percheron stallion
"BERESFORD," 17307.

This horse is 5 years old and is one of the finest specimens of his race in this country. His sire, Reaper 8076 (10437) was one of the highest bred Percherons ever brought across the water, as was his grand sire, Confident, 3647 (397), winner of the first prize and gold medal as a 3-year-old at the New Orleans Exposition, his owner at that time refusing $5,000 for him. Beresford 17307 is recorded with pedigree in the Percheron stud-book of America: "Dapple grey; weight, 1900 lbs; height, 16 3-4 hands."

A horse like BERESFORD cannot be stood at a "scrub" price, but owing to the hard times I have put the service fee for this horse down to the very nominal figure of $10.00 to insure colts. BERESFORD will stand in my barn at Palatine every week-day during the season of 1897. If you are interested we would be pleased to send you a descriptive circular.

The slips of paper were certificates—one of the marriage of Julian Lorraine and Margaret, the other of the birth of Viola.

Now I knew all—I rested still and pictured my poor girl's unspeakable horror when she read that fatal letter and learned that her husband was her father's son by what she supposed was a former wife. I seemed to see her struck down in the first flush of the wedded happiness, even as I had been struck down. I seemed to enter into her thoughts, to feel that it was impossible she could meet me again. I could hear her agonized entreaties to Grant to bear her away and hide her from me. I could understand now why she took no steps to clear her name in my eyes. How she even wished me to think her perjured and faithless, so long as the secret could be kept from me—so long as I did not suffer as she suffered. Yes! I could understand what, rightly or wrongly, she and Grant had striven to do for my sake!

On what a chance life turns! Why had I never told Viola the story of my birth and strange adoption? Why had I never told Grant? It would have cleared matters in a second.

Strange to say, it had never occurred to me to mention it to either of them. After I had succeeded to my reputed father's wealth my position was so assured—it seemed to me so natural to be thought and called the dead man's son—that in sober truth my real origin had all but faded from my mind. For years I had scarcely given it a thought. But I ground my teeth now, as I reflected how a simple chance might have made me speak, and so saved my wife and myself from more than two years of misery!

Then the idea came to me that every moment which elapsed before Viola learned the news was one of sorrow to her. I sprang to my feet and went in search of Grant.

Good fellow! I found he had already packed his portmanteau and was busily engaged on mine.

"If you make haste we shall just catch the Southampton train," he said.

I thanked him by a look. I tossed things into my portmanteau higgledy-piggledy, and in three minutes we were on our way back to France.

CHAPTER XV.

WE WERE in plenty of time. Indeed, as the boat did not leave Southampton until nearly midnight, we might have waited for a later train. It was better as it was. Although starting for London at once meant pacing for hours the quay at Southampton, I had the satisfaction of being so many miles nearer to Viola.

Shall I ever forget that crossing! The night was fair. No thought of sleep came to me. I sat on deck all night, gazing out over the sea: looking out for the two great lights on Cape de la Heve; listening to the steady, monotonous thump, thump, thump of the engines, and knowing that every revolution of the paddle-wheels was bearing me nearer to Viola; or I leaned over the side of the boat and watched the hissing water flying behind in a foaming white track. I felt that I was being borne away from all my troubles and that the path the sturdy ship plowed through the moon-lighted sea was one which led me to unspeakable happiness. I was alone with my thoughts nearly all the time. Grant, like a wise man, had gone below to court sleep. Perhaps, in spite of the joy he felt in the approaching happiness of his friends, my ceaseless and off-repeated questions became a trifle monotonous. He had to assure me a thousand times that one at least of his messages would reach Viola in time to stay her departure. He had telegraphed to the steamer, as well as to the Hotel de l'Europe, at which he knew she was staying. He had simply said, "On no account go to-morrow," and felt certain she would countermand her journey and await explanations.

Would she? Would a few words from him change her plans? What should I do if we reached Havre after the American steamer had sailed, and that after all Viola had gone in her?

"Do?" said Grant. "Take the next boat and follow her. It will be but the delay of a week, and the voyage will do you good."

But I could not contemplate with equanimity the thought of Viola's spending another week in ignorance of the truth. So Grant had again and again to assure me that we should certainly find her at Havre with his sister, who accompanied her thither and had promised to see her safely on board the steamer.

I had other questions to ask him; among them, when he first learned the true reason of my wife's sudden flight—how he learned it. He was silent for a while, then he said gravely:

"Lorraine, I will once for all make a clean breast to you. A month after I had placed Viola in my sister's hands I said to myself, 'This man, who should have made her life happy, has by his treatment forced her to leave him. Why should she waste her life in grief? I love her!' So I wrote to her—I could not have spoken the words—I wrote and told her I loved her. I asked her what the voice of the world mattered to us. The law might free her from you, and we might be happy! Her answer was to send me back my letter, accompanied by the papers which I gave you to-day. She knew that I would guard the secret. I knew that she left you, not because your love had waned. The hate I felt toward you, the passion I felt toward Viola, turned into the deepest pity. Now you know all."

It was just after saying this that Grant bade me good-night, and left me to my own reflections. So I watched and watched until morning dawned, then broke broad and bright; until the sun was well up; until at last we steamed into Havre and I could step on the broad quay and tell myself that in a few minutes my wife would be weeping in my arms.

We reached the hotel. We learned that the ladies were still there. Grant's telegram had done its work. My impulse was to rush in search of my wife, but Grant checked me. As he said, she knew nothing; his message had given no information as to the discovery he had made. Let him see her first and convince her that I was without a shadow of a doubt Julian Lorraine's adopted son. Then I might see her as soon as I liked.

I consented and curbed my impatience. I sat in the court-yard of the hotel counting the minutes. Grant must have told her by now. She must know what joy is awaiting us. She must be longing to throw herself into my arms. Why am I not summoned? Perhaps the joy has killed her! I will wait no longer!

I rose, but at that moment Grant appeared. His face told me that the good tidings had worked no evil. I ran toward him. He grasped my hand. "Stay a few minutes," he said; "she wishes it."

"She is well? There is nothing wrong?"

"She is well and happy. In ten minutes you shall see her."

Somewhat sullenly I reseated myself. Presently we were joined by the sweet-faced Sister of Charity, who had for the time discarded the spotless linen insignia of her calling and was dressed in simple black. She talked on various subjects, but if I answered at all I did so mechanically, her voice bearing no meaning to my ears. At last she rose, and I understood that she wished me to follow her. Grant wrung my hand as I passed him.

With a beating heart I followed his sister up the wide stairs, followed her until she paused before a door and placed her hand on the handle. Then, turning to me, she whispered:

"Mr. Lorraine, I know all the sad story of the last two years. I know what this poor child has suffered. There are some griefs which are too acute to bear even the mention of. Take her to your arms as if you had parted with her but an hour ago, and until she speaks of it let no word of the last two years pass between you."

She made the sign of the cross, opened the door and left me free to enter.

What did I see? Viola, even as she left that morning so soon after our wedding. Viola in the very dress she wore that day. How well I remembered it—remembered its hue, its very material. Long afterward she told me that during those months of separation she had treasured up and kept always near her everything that reminded her of the few happy days she had spent with me, before the fatal mistake crushed her to the earth. Yes, I saw Viola as of old—even down to the sparkling ring which I had, it almost seemed to me, that morning, given her. Viola, my love, my wife!

The door closed softly behind me. The Sister's care must have done this. I opened my arms. With a cry of rapturous delight Viola ran toward me, and in a moment was sobbing and laughing on my breast.

"Dearest," she whispered, when at last we found speech for more than ejaculations and broken words of love, "dearest, it has been a dream—a black, cruel dream!"

She shuddered as she spoke. Once more I pressed my lips to hers.

"Let us forget it," I said.

Then, hand in hand, out of that long night of dark dreams we passed into the full daylight of the joy which life can only know when brightened by such love as ours!

(The End.)

A NEW RECORD.

Deepest Spot in the Ocean Nearly Six Miles.

For twenty years and more the deepest spot in the ocean has been supposed to be to northeast of Japan, says the New York Journal. There the bottom lies 4,655 fathoms down, or more than five miles beneath the surface of the waves. In the latest hydrographer's report of admiralty surveys, made by the British government, this ocean record, which has stood so long, is beaten, for there is official information of a deeper sounding than has hitherto been made. The deepest spot in the ocean, so far as known at present, has been found to be in the neighborhood of the Friendly and Kermadec islands, in the South Pacific. Here the maximum depth is 5,155 fathoms, or close upon six miles. This observation, made by the officers on board the British ship Penguin, is all the more interesting for the fact that it bears out the result of previous researches, showing curiously enough as it does that the deepest parts of the sea are not far from land. Deep-sea sounding has come to be of late years an exact science in itself. One curious feature of it, and which is little known, is that the "leads" used have to be constructed with especial strength in order to withstand the enormous pressure of the mass of water which bears down upon them when they lie upon the bottom. So great is this pressure that the sounding apparatus in ordinary use would be crushed.

Had Many Offers.

Africa is the greatest place in the world for the new woman and the old maid. For the former it has its charms that would put the Bois de Boulogne in a total eclipse, and for the old maids it is a tropical paradise, where young, unmarried men, bloom in wild, tangled luxury the year around. Mrs. May French Sheldon, the African explorer, writer and lecturer, is neither a new woman nor old maid, and yet she had sixty proposals of marriage in one day from sixty separate and distinct chiefs, each of whom was more stalwart and ardent than the others, and Mrs. French Sheldon was compelled to give each separately the marble heart. And as for the new woman, why, the African explorer says they can give our brand-newest bloomer-rigged species any number of cards and spades and then discount them. Bebe Bwana, the woman master, or the white queen man, as the merry sultans and dusky chiefs called Mrs. French Sheldon, has penetrated farther into the mysterious heart of that dark continent than any other white woman has ever done, and the other day she told a reporter a number of interesting experiences which she had among the many tribes she visited.

The sixty offers of marriage were made one afternoon after she had formally received the sultan of one of the interior districts in her tent—which tent, by the way, Mrs. French Sheldon always arranged as near like a boudoir in a well-appointed private house as was possible. She was the first white woman who had ever invaded that district and the sultan appreciated the honor and in his poor way tried to give a sort of torchlight procession and strawberry festival in her honor. His resources, however, were extremely limited, and after he had sacrificed a double portion of goats and had salaamed before her until he was threatened with curvature of the spine he felt that something was still lacking and that his guest was not thoroughly enjoying herself. Suddenly a happy thought struck him. Whenever a straggling white man had wandered into his preserves it had been his custom to unload sixty or eighty wives upon him and then dismiss him with a sultan's "Bless you, my children." Why not reverse the ceremony with the woman master? he argued to his secretary of state for war. The secretary thought it was a capital idea and the chiefs of all the tribes or assembly districts were ordered before his majesty and ordered to propose to the Bebe Bwana at once.

ILLINOIS NEWSLETS.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Anton Torski, 10 years old, fell beneath the wheels of a wagon near his home, in Chicago, and died at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

After being out ninety hours, the jury in the murder trial of Ben McCoy, at Bloomington, Ill., accused of killing John T. Bullock, of Shirley, Ill., last May, reported they were unable to agree, and were discharged by the judge. McCoy will be admitted to bail.

Protests are coming in large numbers to the president against the pardon or commutation of sentence of Joseph Dunlop, of Chicago, for publishing and sending out obscene matter through the mails. It is intimated that nothing will be done in the way of clemency for the present at least.

Professor Freeman, assistant superintendent of public instruction, has received a message from Milledgeville, Whiteside county, saying Professor Samuel M. Inglis, state superintendent of public instruction, had been taken suddenly ill, and asking Mrs. Inglis to come there at once. A later telegram said the superintendent was threatened with a stroke of apoplexy, but nothing serious was imminent at that time.

Chicago has set another example for the world. The University of Chicago broke down the barriers of precedent and prejudice. It invited a woman to deliver its convocation address last week. This distinction fell upon the Countess of Aberdeen, and in accepting it the wife of the governor general of Canada conferred distinction upon the university. Chicago responded at the Auditorium with one of the largest gatherings that has graced any university function.

John W. Dawson and sister, Mrs. Maria Paist, of Bloomington, celebrated with a large dinner party the seventy-fifth anniversary of the settlement at Bloomington Grove, now Orendorf's Springs, two miles southeast of Bloomington. Mr. Dawson and Mrs. Paist are the only survivors of the arrival of the party in the grove, and they have lived in this county ever since that date, April 1, 1822. The Dawson and Hendrix families' cabins in Bloomington Grove were the first outposts of civilization in central Illinois north of Elkhart, where Colonel Latham built a cabin in 1822. The Dawsons, originally from Ohio, came to this region from Sangamon, Sangamon county, Ill. Mrs. Paist was five years old and her brother two and a half years. They are both in good health and in the enjoyment of all their faculties.

Brigadier General Frank Wheaton of Denver last week received a telegram from the war department asking him if he would prefer to move to Chicago and take command of the military department of the Missouri or remain in Denver during the remainder of his term of service. This telegram is taken to be a positive indication that General Wheaton will be made a major-general to succeed Major-General Ruger, who reached the age of 64 Friday. General Wheaton replied that he would prefer to remain with the department of the Colorado. The department of the Missouri is a major-general's command, and if General Wheaton had longer to serve he would accept the post, but as he goes upon the retired list early in May he believes that it would be more acceptable to the authorities to order to Chicago the brigadier-general who will be promoted to the next vacancy in the higher grade.

An old document unearthed from Chicago's archives Wednesday gives the proceedings of a meeting of the first board of trustees of the town of Chicago held Monday, August 12, 1833. The record is now faded and the paper is yellow and parched with age. It has evidently been undisturbed for years in the vault of the office of the city clerk. The proceedings show that there were present at the meeting Thomas I. V. Owens, Medore B. Beaubien, Edmund S. Timberly, George W. Dole and John Miller, all trustees of the original town of Chicago. The meeting was held in the Saganash hotel in South Water street, owned by Mark Beaubien, the father of Lieutenant Frank G. Beaubien, now on duty in Chief of Police Badenoch's office. The trustees had been elected at a special meeting the day before. The oath of office was administered by Richard G. Hamilton, notary public. The board organized by electing Thomas I. V. Owens president and Isaac Harman clerk. The paper is numbered "document 152." The Chicago Historical society, it is said, will make an effort to obtain possession of the rare old document to add to its list of early Chicago records.

Will Bees Destroy Grapes?

There has been in the past, and still is, and I suppose always will be, a difference of opinion among well-informed fruit growers as to whether the honey bee actually destroys ripe grapes without any outside assistance, says American Gardening. At almost every meeting of the State Horticultural Society this question comes up, and like the old notion of wheat turning to cheat, one man is positive that it will and another is equally certain that it will not. Neither has any positive information on the subject. In order that we might have some reliable data on this question some careful observations were made during the past season. A Worden grape vine, well loaded with fruit, was selected, and when the fruit was ripe all defective berries and surplus leaves were removed, so as to allow of the free movements of the bees. A colony of Italian bees was then placed close to the vine, and the whole inclosed with mosquito netting, giving the bees about 300 cubic feet of space in which to work. They were kept confined with the grapes just 21 days, and in the meantime were not allowed to get any other food to eat except the grapes, and what they already had stored in the hive. At the end of three weeks they were removed and the grapes carefully examined, but it could not be discovered that a single grape had been injured. The natural inference is that if the bees could not be induced to eat the grapes when kept in close confinement with them, they are not liable to injure them when at liberty to seek such food as they like best. We all know that certain wasps will cut the skin of grapes, and I have always held to the opinion that the wasp was the culprit which first opens the door for the bees to get in. The opinion has been confirmed the past season by seeing two species of the genus Polistes light on the grapes and with their sharp jaws tear open the skin and suck the juice. After this was done the honey bees would usually finish the work. In fact, it would be a very stupid bee that would not avail itself of such an opportunity.

Texas Horses in Cuba.

Some of the ranchers in Central Texas estimate that 5,000 horses have been shipped from Texas to Cuba within the past six months, the demand having been created by the war between the Spanish government and the insurgents, says Dallas News. The state of Texas supplied horses to both sides. An order was filled for the Spanish government within the past sixty days. Gen. Weyler, after studying the subject, gave the preference to Texas bronchos. He is quoted by Mr. W. P. Hall, who spent October in Havana, with saying that Texas horses make superior cavalry mounts in a rough country, where supplies were not regularly provided, and were more reliable in the Cuban climate than any other stock. Mr. Hall gave the News reporter an account of the landing of a shipload of horses at a Cuban port for the use of the insurgents. He said: "I got my information from a Texan who has been supplying tough Texas ponies for the insurgents ever since the Cuban war commenced. The horses were sent to the Atlantic seaboard from an interior point and were in a gale two days. When the ship ran into a Cuban inlet a Spanish cruiser was in the offing, but fortunately for the parties interested the horse ship went unobserved and made a safe landing of the cargo. One fine horse was sent as a present from a Texan to Gen. Maceo. The horses, my informant stated, bore well known Texas brands. Some of them were under fire within twenty-four hours after touching Cuban soil. From all that I learned from the military authorities in Havana, and from sympathizers with the insurgents, I conclude that half of the horses in military use on the island were raised in Texas."

Pruning Old Apple Trees.—Apple trees that have become unproductive may often be restored to usefulness by severe pruning, cutting out limbs that have begun to decay, as these lessen the vigor of the tree. If large limbs are cut off the cut should be made with a saw, and the cut surface quickly coated with a varnish made of gum shellac with rosin. With a new and smaller top, vigor will return to the old tree, and if supplied with mineral fertilizers, especially, potash, it will often be productive many years.

It is a good time to re-graft these old trees when pruning them, choosing some extra vigorous variety that is long in coming into bearing on young trees. The Twenty-Ounce apple and Northern Spy are both excellent kinds to re-graft on old and apparently worn-out trees.—Ex.

Gain in Flesh.—Dry food for flesh making, fed at eight state experiment stations to 132 cattle, shows an average gain of 1 pound of flesh for each 10.24 pounds of dry matter consumed. THE STATEMENT OF AN INDIANA WOMAN WHO WAS A DYSPETIC.

From the Journal, Logansport, Ind. The alarming prevalence of dyspepsia and kindred disorders of the digestive organs among the people of this section of the country has caused inquiry to be made among the physicians of this city as to the cause, and the remedy which is being applied thereto. Lending physicians assert that three-fourths of the patients who come under their care are affected in some degree with stomach trouble arising from biliousness, indigestion, irregularities of the liver and bowels. While these are common, the remedies applied, have, in most cases been but temporary measures of relief.

A report came from Idaville, Indiana, of a number of cases where sufferers from the causes mentioned had found welcome relief from pain in the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. A reporter was sent to investigate the matter and returned with the following statements of facts:

Druggist Reed, of the village, was first visited and from him was obtained the names of people who had purchased the Pink Pills, and who had spoken of the benefit they had received from the use of the medicine. The druggist cited to the reporter Mrs. Louisa Elder, who lived in the village. Mrs. Elder was found at her home, busily engaged in sewing. When asked if she could say that the Pink Pills had benefited her, she said:

"Yes, sir, I am sure that I have been greatly benefited by them. Before I began using the medicine I was troubled with my stomach. I had to be careful of what I ate, and then I was sick most all the time with my stomach. I would have fainting spells, and while walking about the house I would suddenly be seized with a spell of dizziness and fall to the floor. I could not go out of doors unless some one was with me to hold me when the dizzy spells came on me. I tried all of our doctors here and they could do me no good. I went to Monticello and tried a noted doctor there, but he helped me but very little.

"Finally my husband noticed the advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and he got a box to try them. I had not finished the first box before I felt better. I was able to eat, and my sleep was undisturbed by the bad dreams that had bothered me before. When the first box was gone I felt as though I must have some more of the medicine, for the improvement in my feelings was so great that I seemed like a new woman. My husband got five more boxes and I have used all but one of them. I feel now as if I could eat anything, the dizziness is all gone, and my stomach is not troubling me as it did. I sleep well, and I believe I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"D. S. Droke is a prosperous farmer living one mile south of Idaville, Ind. He has not been actively engaged in farm work for ten years until this year. 'I have been troubled with constipation and piles for forty years,' said Mr. Droke. 'My condition was such that I was forced to give up active work on the farm, so I rented my place. I took box after box of all kinds of pills and nothing gave me more than temporary relief. The doctors told me that I must not take so many pills; that it would cause permanent injury. But I had to have relief in some way, so I took the pills. Why, sometimes I would go a week without a passage and I suffered torment. I could not sleep and had no appetite. I was advised by a physician to eat nothing but vegetables, and I tried dieting but it did not do me any permanent good. Last spring I saw an article about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and concluded to try them. I bought six boxes, and have used all but one. I am able to eat heartily now, and I sleep well, I have done more work this summer than I have done in ten years before, and I do not know what it could have been that put me in such good shape if it was not the Pink Pills, for I have taken no other medicine since I began to use them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. They are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. and are sold by all druggists at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

AN EXPRESSION

From the Rev. Charles W. Savidge, the Famous Preacher, Author of "Shots From the Pulpit," and Other Books; Also Founder of the People's Church, Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., March 15, 1897.—I take pleasure in commending Dr. B. J. Kay and his work. Dr. Kay is well known in this and many other states in the union. I believe him to be an honest and honorable man, one thoroughly worthy of the confidence of the people. Those sending money to Dr. Kay may rest assured that they will receive the medicine ordered. He is a professed christian, and I believe a true one. He has been justly noted for his philanthropic and christian work. His gifts at different times through his life have been almost princely. I have good reason to believe that the Dr. Kay's Renovator and Dr. Kay's Lung Balm, which he makes and sells, are valuable to those who need them, as I have seen them used with excellent results. Mr. George W. Hervey, editor of the Omaha Weekly World-Herald, and quite a number of other Omaha people have been cured by these great remedies. I write this testimonial because I actually believe that it is deserved.

Sincerely,

Pastor People's Church, W. Savidge, Church, Omaha, Neb. Free pamphlets will be sent by writing to Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co., Omaha, Neb.

Too Cold for Moths.

The Department of Agriculture, through its entomologist, Doctor Howard, some time ago instituted experiments to determine at how low a temperature it is necessary to keep furs and woollen goods in order to save them from the ravages of moths, carpet-beetles, etc. The results show that a temperature of 40 degrees to 42 degrees F. during the summer is sufficiently low for the purpose.

"SHE DRESSES WELL."

But Her Clothes Often Cover a Living Death.

Beauty Is the Shrine of Men's Worship, and Women Vie With Each Other to Make Themselves Attractive.

The remark, "She dresses elegantly," is a very common one in this age of wealth and progress.

Women vie with each other in making themselves attractive, for men admire a stylishly dressed woman.

Good clothes add to the charms of the woman in perfect health, but are ill-befitting those who through ignorance or carelessness have suffered the inroads of female diseases to stamp them as physical wrecks. It is unfortunate, but true, that some physicians allow women to suffer needlessly, because man can only work from theory, and at best only patch up, without removing the cause. Proof is abundant that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removes the cause, gives strength to the weakened organs, vigorous health to the system, and therefore beauty to the face and form.

Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., gladly answers, free of charge all letters.

Here is one of the results: "Three months ago, I wrote you a letter describing my troubles, which were inflammation of the womb and bladder. I had not seen a well day since the birth of my second child, 16 years ago. I had spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicines.

"Such pains as I endured. My back ached, my feet and limbs were swollen, and it was almost impossible for me to stand; I could not walk any distance. I received your answer to my letter, and followed closely all your advice, and I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound for three months. Now I can work all day without pain. I have recommended the Compound to many of my friends, and gladly recommend it to all women in any way afflicted with female troubles."—LYDIA BATTIE, 227 Spring St., Greensburg, Pa.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

The Electric Light of Mowerdom

The pine knot—the tallow candle—the oil lamp—gas—these are stages in the evolution of illumination, which today finds its highest exponent in the electric light.

Similar and no less striking has been the evolution of grain and grass cutting machinery. In 1831 the scythe and the cradle were superseded by the McCormick Reaper. The intervening years have seen many improvements, until now we have that model Harvester and Binder, the McCormick Right Hand Open Elevator, and that veritable electric light of mowerdom, the Mayor Boehmer was a caller at Joliet Thursday, where he went in the interest of Herman Kaufman, who was sent up from Waukegan for horse stealing. The man was a laborer on farms in this vicinity, and was well thought of by all who knew him, until one Fourth of July he got too much under the influence of liquor, and took a ride in Charles Steffen's rig, but was overtaken in McHenry and brought to Waukegan, where he was given a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury. At a trial at Waukegan he was sent to the penitentiary. While it is necessary to the best interest of society to punish offenders according to their crime we believe that, considering the previous good character of Kaufman, it is no more than justice to show him some leniency. He has been punished enough already.
