One of Palatine's numerous societies, composed of young ladies, rode out to Dan Bergmann's Saturday night and enjoyed an evening with him and his family.

Professor G. M. Richie, a noted elocutionist, will give an entertainment in behalf of the Ladies' Aid society in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening, March 1st. Look for further announcement.

M. Richmond brought out the Robertson prize medal which was won by the Chicago Curling club from the Milwaukee club last week. The medal is an elegant gold badge and Mr. Richmond assisted in its capture.

Milton Foskett was badly hurt by one of his horses Saturday night. He was working in the stable when one of the horses kicked him on the leg near the body, and stepped on his foot, cutting off considerable of the big toe. It will be some time before he will be able to be around again.

One of our young men drove out in the country, two miles, one evening the latter part of last week to see his best girl and when he was ready to return he found that his horse had taken matters in its own hands and had gone home without him. He returned to Palatine on the run and found his horse and cutter all right and returned to the young lady's home to get his overcoat which he had forgotten.

The Chicago Telephone company is again making an effort to obtain enough subscriptions to their coupons to warrant the putting up of a stub line into Palatine. The company wants a guarantee of five hundred dollars and our business men should see to it that the company is given enough inducement to connect with our village. Robert Mosser has the subscription list.

Tickets have been issued for a dance to be given by the Barrington Social Athletic club at Stott's hall, Barrington, Monday, Feb. 21. A special effort is being made to make this a success and those who attend are assured of a pleasant time. Tickets 75 cents. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A sleigh load of young people went out to Mrs. Warren Taylor's for a good time last Tuesday night, and their fun started in sooner than they expected. The young men got out and walked after getting about a half a mile out of town, and it was "good walking" most of the way, but they forgot about muddy roads soon after reaching their destination and had a good time and a good lunch before starting home. They got back to Palatine about 2 o'clock.

The amusement committee of the Athletic club, composed of I. O. Clay, Bert L. Smith and Sim Snyder, have arranged an extra fine program for the next quarter as follows:

Feb. 11—Dance.
" 15—Duplicate Whist.
" 16—Ladies' Afternoon, from two to five.
" 24—Ladies' Night.
" 26—Duplicate Whist.
March 4—Business Men's Smoker.
" 12—Duplicate Whist.
" 24—Ladies' Night.
" 26—Duplicate Whist.
April 1—Ladies' Afternoon, from two to five.
" 9—Club Smoker.
" 2—Musical.

The Parlor concert given by the Ladies' Aid society at the home of Mrs. Al Smith last Friday night was well attended. The program was an extra good one and was listened to with flattering attention. The ladies cleared about seven dollars at the door. The program was added to by several numbers, Mr. Williamson being a special favorite with his elocutionary gift, and was rendered as follows:

Piano solo—E. L. Smith.
Song—Miss Clara Harrison and Miss Beaumont.
Reading—Howard M. Williamson.
Song—Miss Lillian Hopkins.

OLD RELIC GOES FOR $100.

William Hager Buys the Old Village Hall Building.

DOINGS OF THE BARRINGTON VILLAGE BOARD.

Pay Storage for Storing Household Furniture of Arthur Jaynes—Gray Brothers Allowed $800 on Their Well Contract—A Tramp House Talked of—Bills Allowed.

With the exception of Trustee Colleen, who was on a business trip to Iowa, a complete Board met in the old Barrington village hall (perhaps for the last time) to consider the best interests of the village of Barrington.

After the minutes of the previous meetings had been read and approved Willmarth moved and Robertson seconded that the proceedings of the session of January 19th be stricken from the records. Carried. [The meeting in question had been called to provide that labor employed by the contractors on the laying of the mains and pipes be paid 15 cents an hour, and that Barrington labor be given the preference.]

The following bills were allowed:
Hatje & Stiefenhofer, repairing $ 9 40
M. T. Lamey, insurance 24 00
Mrs. H. Sott, storing Arthur Jaynes furniture 5 00
Frank Hawley, wood 2 00
Barrington Review, printing and publishing 24 52
Plagge & Co., coal 3 60
H. S. Meyer, labor 2 10
F. C. Rossiter, drawing plat 3 50
H. A. Sandman, cash advanced for street labor 12 27
W. M. Carpenter, wiring new city hall, light 50 00
rebate for lights out 5 80
53 50
H. A. Sandman, marshal 35 00
Gray Bros., part pay for well 800 00
A. S. Henderson, night watch 35 00

The committee appointed some time ago to see what they could do with the old village hall building, reported that they had sold the same for $100.

The question of whether tramps should be given lodging in the new jail came up for discussion. It was decided that the best thing to do would be to build a tramp house 12 feet square in one corner of the lot, separate from the jail. The matter will be finally settled at a future meeting.

A letter from City Engineer Patten was read. In it he congratulates the Board on getting a good supply of water so cheap. He said the test revealed a capacity of 10,000 gallons an hour, and this will be increased when the new pumping machinery is put in.

Gray Bros., the contractors for the water works well, were allowed $800 to apply on the contract.

City Engineer Patten recommended that the village pay Gray Bros. a certain sum for guaranteeing the well for two years, and besides make a contract with the firm to let them go deeper with the well at the same old contract price provided the well gave out, but to this Peters seriously objected. He said there was no doubt the Board could get any number of contractors to sink the well deeper at a lower figure if the well gives out, and as far as paying for a guarantee he thought the village could save this amount. He could not see any reason why the village should give Gray Bros. any more money than they earned, because if the firm had made several thousand dollars out of the contract they would not have shared their profits with the village, and that is why he objected.

Surveyor Rossiter sent out the plat and blue print for Cook county for the Board's approval, but the matter was left to be decided at a special meeting.

Mrs. Edward Smith is Dead.

Mrs. Edward Smith, sister of James A. Kitson, died at Shelton, Neb., yesterday. Her remains will be brought to Palatine Monday where interment will take place.

Editor of Bryan's Paper.
Mr. Geo. W. Harvey, editor of the Omaha Weekly World-Herald, writes: "For years I was troubled with indigestion so severe as to make it impossible to take more than two meals a day without intense suffering. I tried three of the best physicians in the state but they failed to give me relief. I chanced to get Dr. Kay's Renovator and before I had taken a 25-cent box I had so improved that I was taking three meals a day, which I had not done for years. I continued its use and it has been eight months since I used it and I now have no symptoms whatever of my old trouble." If you have any disease write us giving your symptoms and we will send you free advice by our physician and a valuable 68-page book with 54 recipes giving various methods of treatment and a free sample of Dr. Kay's Renovator. THE MAN WHO LIVED.

He should have been dead.

But he wasn't, because

"There is nothing succeeds like success." There is no withstanding the living argument of the man who should be dead, but for a preserving medicine. That's about the way it seemed to strike Editor Lawrence, of the Ohio Farmer, Cleveland, Ohio. He was afflicted with one of those colds that have, thousands of times over, culminated in consumption, when not promptly cured. In this condition he met a friend, a consumptive, whom he had not expected to see alive. The consumptive friend recommended Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the editor's cold, on the ground that it had "helped him wonderfully." It helped the editor just as wonderfully, giving "almost instant relief." But read his letter:

"About two months ago, I was afflicted with a bad cold, and, meeting a friend, he advised the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral which, he claimed, had helped him wonderfully. As he was a consumptive, whom I had not expected to see alive for several years, I concluded there must be merit in this preparation. I accordingly bought a couple of bottles, one of which I keep on my desk all the time. This is certainly the best remedy for a cold I ever used. It gives almost instant relief, and the J. C. Ayer Co. are to be congratulated on possessing the formula for such a very valuable remedy."—W. H. LAWRENCE, Editor, The Ohio Farmer, Cleveland, Ohio.

Keep a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral handy, on the desk, in the office, on the shelf or in the closet at home, and you will have at hand a remedy that is capable at any time of saving you suffering, money, and even life. There is no malady so prolific of evil results as a neglected cold. There is no medicine so promptly effective in curing a cold and absolutely eradicating its effects, as Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Every traveler should carry it. Every household should keep it. It cures every variety of cough, and all forms of lung and throat trouble. Asthma, bronchitis, croup, and whooping cough, are promptly cured by it, and it has in many cases overcome pulmonary diseases in aggravated forms, when all other remedies failed to help and physicians gave no hope of cure. Those who for convenience have wanted a smaller sized bottle of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, can now obtain it of their dealer in half size bottles, at half price—30 cents. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, and read more of the cures effected by this remedy. The book contains 100 pages, and is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

"This is almost as good as a billiard-table," said Hildred laughingly; but the earl shook his head.

"It may be for you," he replied; "but it is not for me."

"Lord Caraven," said Hildred, "a thought has just struck me. We have been married—how long?—since the third of August, and it is now October; and do you know that you have never once addressed me by name? My school-fellows used to call me 'Dreda,' my father calls me 'Hildred.' You have so contrived as never to give me any name at all. You do not say 'Lady Caraven,' 'Hildred,' 'wife,' or anything of the kind. How is it?"

"I cannot tell," he replied, blankly. The question had evidently puzzled him.

"I do not expect you would ever care to use any pretty familiar loving name, but do you not think you might learn to use my own? Lady Courtenay used to look at me, when you addressed me in that general kind of way as 'you.' Could you not say 'Hildred'?"

"I—I really do not know," he replied; "it is an uncomfortable kind of name—'Hildred.'"

She raised her charming head with a haughty little gesture.

"Do you fancy so? I think you do not know what 'uncomfortable' means. I am rather proud of my name; it may be quaint, but it is not common. If you cannot say 'Hildred,' can you not call me 'Lady Caraven'? I am tired of being spoken to so vaguely."

"I will not do it again, Lady Caraven, if it annoys you," he said; and then there was silence between them, broken only by the sighing of the wind.

Would he let this hour pass without speaking freely to her? They were alone now—there was no one to listen. She raised her face, all bright with play of feeling, to his.

"Lord Caraven," she said, "will you be very angry with me if I ask you a question?"

"No; without knowing what the question may be, I predict that—certainly not."

"This question has troubled me very much; it has been the one thing which I have pondered night and day—a question that I cannot answer, one that I feel is the key to a secret."

"You alarm me with that long prologue. Briefly, what is your question, Lady Caraven?"

"Briefly, it is this: Why did you marry me, Lord Caraven?"

"Why did I marry you?" he echoed in astonishment.

"I ask you the question," she went on, "because I have watched you and studied you, and I am convinced at last that you did not marry me for love."

"Love!" he cried. "Why, what has that to do with it?"

"I thought," she continued, "that you had married me because you loved me. I knew that you were cold, unresponsive, that you had no sympathy, little kindness; but I believed implicitly that you married me for love."

"I had never seen you—I saw you only once," he said in astonishment.

"I know. I remember. Still, I repeat what I have said to you; I—I fancied—I am quite ashamed to tell you the truth, but I will do so—I fancied—that you had seen me somewhere and had liked me."

He laughed, but the laugh was not pleasant to hear.

"Did you really think that?" he asked musingly. "Poor child!" Then he turned to her with sudden briskness. "Do you really mean to tell me, on your word of honor, that you do not know why I married you?"

She raised her fair, proud face to his. "I assure you most solemnly that I do not. It is the greatest puzzle I have ever had."

"Did your father tell you that I—I loved you?"

"No," she replied, thoughtfully, "he did not. Indeed, he assured me that love was not needful for happiness. He never said you loved me. He said you wanted to marry me."

"And what else? Go on. What else?"

"That it was a grand position, in which I should be supremely happy."

"What else?" asked the stern voice.

"I hardly remember. That if I consented his highest ambition would be gratified."

CHAPTER XIII.

LORD CARAVEN murmured some terrible words between his closed lips.

"Then he never told you why this marriage was forced upon me?"

"Forced?" she interrogated, gently.

Perhaps the sudden paling of her lovely face startled him, or the sharp quiver of pain in her voice touched him.

"He—your father—never told you that he insisted on the marriage?"

"No, never," she replied, faintly.

"He never told you that he made it my only refuge from him—my only hope—my only alternative?"

"No; he never told me that."

"Then I will tell you now. He compelled me to marry you—and I begin to perceive that he has sacrificed you as well as myself."

"Sacrificed us?" she repeated. "You cannot mean the word!"

"I do mean it, both for myself and you," he replied. "I will tell you, Lady Caraven; it is right that you should know the truth. I have squandered a large fortune, and was deeply in debt. I owed your father the sum of sixty thousand pounds—I had mortgaged Ravensmere to him. I was also deeply in debt to others. I had literally come to my last shilling; disgrace, ruin, poverty and shame were all before me. Your father had the management of my affairs, and, when I asked him what I was to do, he told me that he had two hundred thousand pounds and a daughter."

A low cry came from her lips, and she covered her face with her hands.

"I am sorry to pain you," he said—"sorry to distress you—but it is better that you should know the real truth. Your father is ambitious; his hopes were fixed on your marriage. He offered me the alternative—I could choose beggary, ruin, shame, disgrace, the total annihilation of my house and name, or I could choose the money and marry you. I told him that I did not feel inclined to marry, that I had no affection for you, and I implored him to find some other way out of the difficulty. He refused, and you know the result. Bear in mind, though, that I am most deeply grateful to you."

I WOULD RATHER HAVE DIED.

ful to you. Your fortune has saved me from worse than death. I am sorry, too, to tell you this story; but it is best that you should know the truth."

"Yes," she agreed, despairingly, "it is best."

She drew her hands from her face and looked at him. What nature of man could he have been that the anguish and despair on that girlish face did not touch him?

"Then you have never loved me, never cared for me?" she said, faintly.

"No. I am grateful to you; I can say no more."

He saw her draw her silvery shawl round her shoulders and shudder as though she were seized with violent cold.

"I feel now," he said, "that it was a cruel thing to do. You are young, and your whole life is blighted. At first I thought and believed that you understood everything—that you were as mercenary and ambitious as your father—that you were as ready as he to give yourself and your money in exchange for my title; I thought that you, through him, knew the full value of the estate and everything on it—that you knew all the house contained—that you were as keen and shrewd as he was. I misjudged you—I beg your pardon for it."

She raised her pale face to his.

"I swear to you," she said, "that I would rather have died than have married you had I known the truth."

"I believe it and respect you for it. For some short time past I have fancied that in thinking as I did I was mistaken. Now I know it, and am glad to know it. I am sorry that you were sacrificed to me."

"Did you—do you—pray do not be angry with me," she said, "did you love any one else?"

"I have been amongst fair women what a butterfly is amongst flowers," he replied. "I have loved not one, but a hundred. I might say I have had as many loves as there are days in the year."

"But the one great love of your life—the love that is given only once—have you given that?" she asked.

"I understand. You ask me, in fact, if I have ever loved any one sufficiently to ask her to be my wife. No, I had not. My loves were for the day, not for all time. I have never asked any one to marry me, for the simple, all-sufficient reason that I have never seen any one whom I should have cared to marry."

"And are you very unhappy with me?" she asked gently.

"What a strange question! Unhappy? Well, no, I cannot quite say that. I am as I said before, grateful to you; and, now that I find you have been victimized, I am sorry for you."

"Do not be shocked if I ask you another question," she said, with down-dropped eyes and flushed cheeks. "Now that our marriage is an accomplished fact, do you think that we might make the best of it—might try to forget this wretched beginning? Could you never care even ever so little for me?"

He looked at her thoughtfully.

"I might deceive you—I might say 'Yes,' and play you false; but I will not. You are too good for that. No, not in the sense you mean—not to love you as a man should love his wife—never! You must forgive me if these seem hard words—you have asked me for them."

"It is better to speak frankly; then we shall both know what we are doing." She dropped the silvery veil that shrouded her head and face. "Will you tell me," she asked, meekly, "why you cannot care for me? Am I not fair enough to please you?"

"Yes, you are fair enough; but love is not to be taught or bought—it comes unperceived. I cannot express myself well on the subject, but it seems to me absurd for a man to say to himself, 'It is my duty to fall in love with such and such a woman, so I must do it.'"

"But if that woman were his wife?" she suggested, gently.

"No man can love against his will, wife or no wife," was the hasty reply.

"Then, Lord Caraven, am I to live in your house always as an unloved, uncared-for wife?" she asked.

"The fault is not mine," he replied. "I believed that your father had explained to you that the whole affair was—was distasteful to me. Believing that, I married you; now that I have found out my mistake, I pity myself and I pity you, Lady Caraven. I despise myself now for what I have done. If I had to choose again I should choose disgrace or death."

"I am grateful to you," he continued, "I will do all I can to show my gratitude; you are and shall be mistress of the whole place. It is yours in so far as your money has saved it; you shall have every desire of your heart, every wish gratified. Your position is one of the highest in the land; you shall have everything to grace it. You shall have entire liberty; you shall invite whom you like; visit whom you like; you shall go abroad when you will and remain at home when you will. You shall be your own mistress in every respect. I will always see that every honor is paid you."

"In short," she said, "you will give me everything but love."

"Well, if you choose to put it in that light, yes."

"I accept the terms," she said gently. "There are many women who have to find the happiness of their lives in the fulfillment of duty; I must do the same."

"You are a very sensible girl," commented Lord Caraven; "and I begin to think it is all for the best that we have had this conversation."

"I am sure of it; it will prevent my idealizing you in any kind of way, and I shall know better how to understand matters." She raised her head with wondrous grace. "It would be very strange," she added, "if you fell in love with me after all. I am cold; I will say good evening. Pleasant reflections, my lord."

He saw the purple velvet and silvery veil disappear amongst the trees.

"It is a thousand pities that she is a money-lender's daughter," he said, "and a thousand pities that I cannot love her. She has plenty of character, and she is really handsome, although she is not my style."

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, LA GRIPPE

CURED BY "5 DROPS"

"5 DROPS" is the most concentrated and powerful specific known. Free from opiates and perfectly harmless. Relief is usually felt the very first night. We have letters of grateful praise from thousands who have been cured by "5 DROPS," and who recommend it to suffer.

GOD BLESS YOU ALWAYS.

Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., Chicago. Dear Friends:—Yes, yes, I shall always think of you as my far away friends, and thank God for directing me to this advertisement to this place. Yes! oh yes! I will gladly tell the whole world what your "5 DROPS" has done for me. I found me racked with pain from head to foot day and night and I had dreadful sounds in my head. I could not eat, sleep, or do anything. The doctors gave me medicine and it would stop the pain for a short time but it would come again. I could not have suffered much longer. As times I cried out what became of me, and my kidneys were in a very bad shape. Every doctor I went to told me I had so many different diseases in my body that it was difficult to tell where to commence. I could hardly get across the street.

I CANNOT PRAISE "5 DROPS" ENOUGH.
Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., Chicago. Dear Sirs:—I thought I would write a statement of my case. I was taken in August with Sciatic Neuralgia, and was treated by two of the best physicians of my country, but they did not help me any. But happy for me I saw your "5 DROPS" advertisement and sent and got a bottle and it has cured me. I was very bad, could hardly get around at all, but now I can go anywhere. I cannot praise "5 DROPS" enough for what it has done for me. I am very, very grateful for what you have done for me. Yours truly, SARAH E. WILSON, Springfield, Kentucky, January 2, 1898.

As a positive cure for Rheumatism, Sciatic Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuritic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, Swelling, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Eruptions, etc., etc., "5 DROPS" has never been equalled.

"5 DROPS" taken but once a day is a dose of this great remedy and to enable all sufferers to make a trial of its wonderful curative properties, we will send out for thirty days more, 50c sample bottles, the each, prepaid by mail. Even a sample bottle will convince you of its merit. Send and despatch medicine on early. Large bottles (50c dose), $1.50; for 30 days, 1 bottle for $2.50. Not sold by druggists, only by us and our agents. Agents wanted in new territory. Write us to-day.

A Matter of Taste.
Strict censors of morals claim that nothing ought to be printed or enacted on the dramatic stage that a young lady in a boarding school might not properly read. Advocates of the artistic cult declare that the novelist and dramatist may properly deal with anything that takes place in the world of actuality; that they may analyze and depict any emotion of the human soul, whether it be conventionally good or bad. They say that confining fiction and the drama in such straitlaced limits as the moralists desire would take the life out of literature and art. These two opposing camps are ever warring against each other, and neither gains permanent victory over the other.

It is true that Puritanism and asceticism have a dwarfing effect on literature and art. Wherever a gloomy rigidity reigns there will be produced no play, picture or novel worth preserving. There is one view of the case, however, that does not seem to strike the contending schools. A human being who is clean and right minded abhors by nature the unclean and the morbid in literature and art. He would not willingly wallow in a gutter physically. No more would he willingly give his mind a gutter bath. He turns by instinct to the pure, the wholesome and the beautiful. He would not willingly lie down and sleep in a smallpox ward. No more will he enjoy mixing himself up with mental infection.

Those who do enjoy mental nastiness and rottenness perhaps ought to be permitted to indulge their tastes. The animal that fattens on putrid meat does not like wholesome food, but he has a right to live. The mental health and purity of a person may be infallibly judged from the class of literature and plays he most enjoys. The world is wide enough for people of all classes. Each to his taste.

West Australian Gold.
The largest producer of the world's gold is South Africa. Next comes Australasia and third the United States. The amount of the output for the years 1897 and 1898 will be looked for with much interest. The vast gold discoveries in Alaska and in various parts of our west and northwest the past three years would undoubtedly make the United States the second of the world's gold countries only that in Australia, too, heavy new finds have been made.

The gold which has been coming in by the millions to San Francisco from Australasia is mostly from the colony of West Australia. There in 1896 finds were made which can only be compared to those of our own Creede and Cripple Creek districts. Up to January, 1897, the West Australian gold output was about $500,000 a month. Then it began to grow "by leaps and bounds," as the Perth Herald says. In January, 1897, the amount was in round numbers $600,000. For the year 1897 the whole production will foot up in the neighborhood of $9,000,000. This from one Australian colony is a large output. Industrial interests in Australia, agricultural, mercantile and all branches, have received a new impetus by the gold discoveries, and thousands of laborers have obtained employment. It is to be sincerely hoped the same result will follow the great gold discoveries on this continent.

The conditions on which England will lend China money to pay her indebtedness show distinctly that John Bull has not lost in the least his capacity to look out for his own interests. China will be required to guarantee that no other nation shall obtain any part of the Yang-tse-Kiang valley. She will also have to promise to let the Burma railroad be extended through Yunnan. The third condition is one which British newspapers have trumpeted to the world as showing England's noble generosity and disinterestedness. It is that four additional ports shall be opened to all nations on the same terms as to England herself. This would sound fine indeed if it were not plain that by thus opening new treaty ports to all the world the commerce of China will be increased, her public revenues will be greatly enlarged, and England will be surer of getting her money back with interest.

New discoveries and inventions of wonderful devices in this marvelous century seem to show that there is hardly anything impossible.

A Suggestion.
We observe that some palace coaches lately turned out by a car building company are more magnificent than any that have gone before. The queen of England herself is not housed in quarters more costly and luxurious than these in which the plainest American citizen, if he has money enough, may be transported from one side of this continent to the other. A bewildering array of white and gold color, of the finest, richest silken plush, of mirrors that flash like diamonds, of rosewood, of English oak, of Circassian walnut and St. Jago mahogany greet the gaze of the traveler entering one of these gorgeous coaches.

'Tis well. Nothing is too fine for the common American citizen, if he has money to pay for it.

And yet—we are pained to say it—the American citizen would give up at least half this gorgeousness and costliness if he could be assured of just one comfortable day and night during a long journey. The magnificent coaches are horribly ill ventilated, the alleged sleeping berths are as bad and cramped as they can be, and the poor passenger is nearly strangled with smoke. He is peppered with dust and soot. Give us comfortable sleeping compartments, real little rooms, with the plainest bedding, so that it is clean and we can get some air. Abolish the frightful dust, smoke and jolting on your cars. You can do it. Put half the cost into one plain sleeping car and make two in its place, so that we shall have elbow room and breathing room. These be matters more vital to our comfort than carven ivory and Tabasco mahogany.

Railway Building.
By the beginning of the twentieth century the United States will have nearly 200,000 miles of railway in operation. When it is remembered that a mile of railway costs on the average $3,000, it will be seen how much money is invested in the iron roads.

The last great year of railway building in the United States was 1887. By that time the great impetus received from the civil war and the opening of the vast wheatfields of the northwest had spent itself. Roads west and south had been put through regions where they would not pay for a dozen years. Rival lines had been constructed where there was only business for one, and both were crippled. The only thing to do was to wait and let the people grow up with the railroads. In some localities they have done this, in others not.

In 1887 there were constructed in this country 12,983 miles of railway. Then the construction fever stopped. The next year the miles of new road dropped to 7,106. Since then year by year the number has fallen rapidly till 1897. Not even the development of the popular trolley system could swell the footings. In 1896 the figures were 1,848, the lowest in ten years. In 1897, however, the business began to look up a little, a very little, the figures reaching 1,864. The present year the increase will be considerably more than this. It is to be sincerely hoped the dividends of the roads' stockholders will increase even more in proportion than the rate of railway track laying.

A pure food and drug convention has been called to meet in Washington March 2. Its object is to urge congress to pass a law against the adulteration of food and drugs. Such a convention is welcome. In their haste to get rich both grocers and druggists in the United States have adulterated their preparations to a point where reputable dealers in these lines of trade have uttered a loud protest. The dirty, unwholesome and sometimes actively poisonous substances that have been mixed with foods and medicines by unprincipled druggists and grocers have cost many a life. The number and variety of these deleterious substances are beyond belief by one not behind the scenes. Their evil mysteries have only been revealed when states have passed pure food and drug laws and appointed inspectors to see that such laws were executed. It would be better if the matter could be left still to state legislation, if there were prospect that such legislation would reach the case. The most satisfactory feature of the movement for pure food and drugs is that the reputable grocers and chemists are themselves the leaders of it.

The pluck and persistence with which Japan maintains her policy as an independent nation call for the admiration of the world. With the powers of Europe hungry for her territory, eager to take advantage of her in trade, she yet holds up her head and gallantly fights to make for herself a place as a great nation and a modern civilized one. Americans at least unanimously hope she will succeed.

HERE AND THERE.
Agitation for a high school at Libertyville is growing general with the residents of that vicinity.

George Betts, who used to be a passenger brakeman on S. R. Crowley's train, has reached Alaska and expects to roll in gold soon.

Oswego and Plano are the only post-offices in Kendall county having the distinction of being international money order offices.

DeKalb law breakers will, when necessary, be pursued by Cuban blood hounds. A pair has just been received by the authorities.

The strike in the Illinois Iron and Bolt company's shop at Carpentersville has been adjusted, and the fifteen strikers are at work again.

At the meeting of the Elgin city council last week the saloon keepers petitioned for a reduction in the amount of license. They claim times are so hard they can't pay $1,000 per year.

A farmer in the vicinity of McHenry has the following inscription tacked to a board on his fence: "Hunt and shoot all you want to on this farm, and when the bell rings come in to dinner," and he might add "bring your game along."

Antioch is getting a reputation as a place for chicken fights, there being one held there last week that is chronicled in the sporting columns of the metropolitan papers as "the biggest cocking main held in America during the past ten years."

A. L. Burge has purchased a new 600 light dynamo to replace the 250 light machine now in use at Libertyville and expects to have the new machine in place in a couple of weeks. The change was made necessary to accommodate the increasing demand for lights.

The Chicago Telephone company has about completed connecting several of the business houses of Arlington Heights with the Exchange. The telephone in this village is found indispensable to those who have become accustomed to its use.—Cook County Herald. [Many of our Barrington business men anxiously await similar privileges.]

The Dundee correspondent of the Elgin Advocate says: "The farmers who bring milk to the Dundee creamery have agreed to have A. F. Chapman run the creamery on the co-operative plan until something definite is done with it. Oatman Bros. owed the farmers for two months' milk, amounting to from $150 to $600 each. As all the Oatman property has been attached the farmers feel pretty blue."

"The first effect or result of the consolidated American Wire Industries, or the American Steel & Wire Company seems to have happened," says the Waukegan Sun. "On Monday prices on the commodity were raised over a dollar per ton over what they were a week ago, and extreme advances as high as $3, $4 and $5 a ton over some of last week's prices, are also reported. Eastern papers have it that this is a sure indication that there is a wire trust now in existence in this country."

While digging a well north of Johnsbury, William Adams and Jacob Huemann met with an accident that might have proved fatal. When they had dug down about twelve feet they found the ground was so hard that they had to use dynamite. They lit the fuse and it burned within three feet of the charge and then apparently went out. Mr. Adams went down in the well to relight it when the dynamite exploded, giving him a bad shaking up, but fortunately did not severely injure him.—McHenry Journal.

As required by the new state law, the following days are ones on which flags should be displayed on the public school buildings: The Monday after vacation; October 12, Columbus day; Thanksgiving Day; December 17, anniversary of Whittier's birth; December 21, Forefathers' day; February 12, anniversary of Lincoln's birth; February 22, anniversary of Washington's birth; February 27, Longfellow day; Arbor day; Memorial day; June 14, Flag day; closing day of each term; days on which special exercises are held; July 4, Independence day, and other days designated by principals of school buildings.

The happiest man in France during the Dreyfus riots was Zola. He took up the cause of Dreyfus because it was unpopular. "What splash of mud has been cast on your name by this abominable Dreyfus affair!" he writes to the president of France. Then the mob smash in his windows and cry, "Down with Zola!" And he weeps tears of joy. "My burning protest is but the cry of my soul!" he screams. "Let them dare drag me into the assize court. I await them." He is as happy as the lady who went to the play and declared she never enjoyed herself so much in her life. It was so affecting that she "just cried and cried all the time," she said.

The list of fire losses is smaller for 1897 than for either 1895 or 1896. This is partly owing to the fact that some of the companies have put up their rates for fire insurance. It is owing partly, however, to another cause, and that is the general adoption of the steel frame for new buildings of the largest and most improved class.

Numismatists are coin collectors, and their fellow citizens are apt to consider them cranks. At present some of them are willing to pay as much as $2,000 for a silver dollar of the date of 1804. There are only three such dollars in existence, so far as is known, although 20,000 of them were coined.

The Hawaiian republic is a fixed fact so far as recognition by the United States state department is concerned. An official reception to President Dole and a state dinner at the White House such as would be given to any head of a foreign nation are fitting attentions from President McKinley to President Dole.

Some people think they are actuated by a sense of justice when it is only temper.

I desire to attest to the merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as one of the most valuable and efficient preparations on the market. It broke an exceedingly dangerous cough for me in 24 hours, and in gratitude therefor, desire to inform you that I will never be without and you should feel proud of the high esteem in which your remedies are held by people in general. It is the one remedy among ten thousand. Success to it.—O. K. Downey, editor Democrat, Albion, Ind. For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

If the Spanish minister thinks that of Mr. McKinley what must be his opinion of Billy Mason?

On the morning of February 20, 1895, I was sick with rheumatism, and lay in bed until May 21st, when I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. If we have read correctly her communication, Lady Somerset had her son pose as a horrible example until joined to another attraction.

A man stands no chance of being elected to the mayorship of a city unless he enjoys the confidence and esteem of his neighbors. Geo. W. Humphrey is the popular mayor of Swanton, Ohio, and under date of January 17, 1896, he writes as follows: "This is to certify to our appreciation of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My family and neighbors have tested it, and we know it is an excellent remedy for coughs and colds. George W. Humphrey." Sold by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

Sister Somerset should take warning from the fate of the Spanish mandolin player, Deputy De Lome. He wrote a letter, too.

There is one very suspicious fact about that De Lome letter. There was no postscript saying "Burn this letter."

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

FOR OUR COAST DEFENSES.

House Shows an Unusual Spirit of Liberality in Dealing with Measure to Provide Fortifications — Agricultural Bill Passed by the Senate.

Thursday, Feb. 3.

In the house the day was spent in considering the fortifications appropriation bill. All attempts to increase the appropriations in the fortifications appropriation bill or to amend it in any respect were voted down.

The agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration during the greater part of the senate session and was finally passed. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

Friday, Jan. 4.

This was private bill day, but by systematic filibustering the private calendar containing the bills reported by the committee on claims was not reached, the whole day being consumed in passing thirty-seven private pension bills favorably acted upon by the house at the session last Friday night.

No business of importance was transacted in the brief open session of the senate. After the executive session of three hours the senate adjourned until Monday.

Monday, Feb. 7.

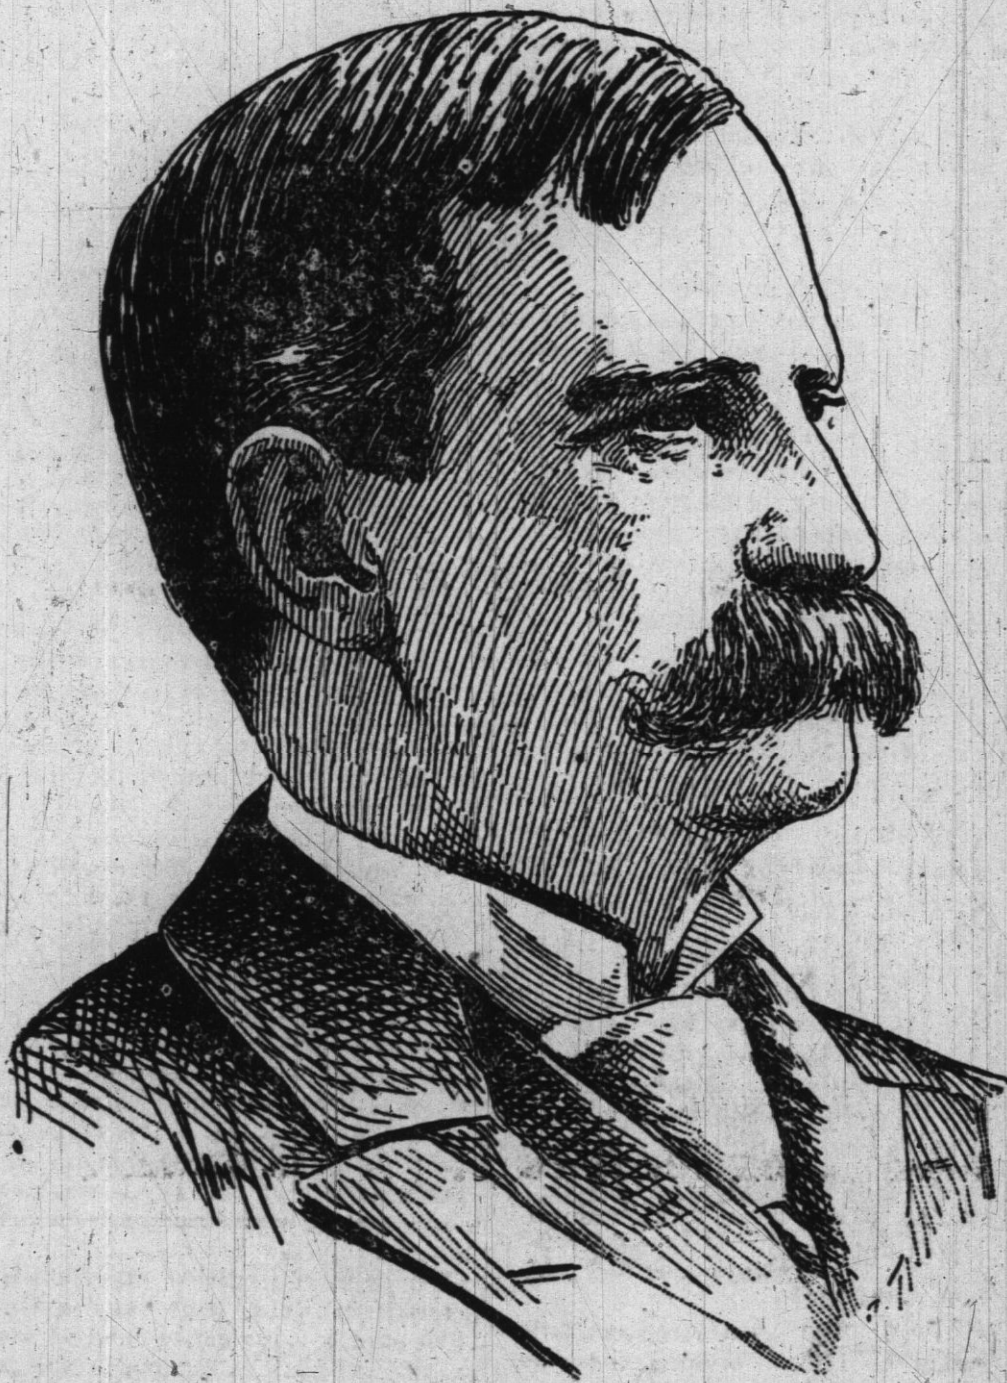

The house passed the military academy bill. The bill carries $453,540, being $26,032 less than the amount carried by the current law. The bill to limit the period for the refunding of the certificates of deposit of 1879 to Dec. 31, 1899, was passed.

In the senate Mr. Chandler urged that in view of the wonderful victory achieved by Lieutenant Worden, who commanded the Monitor in her fight with the Merrimac, something substantial should be done for the surviving members of his family, who are not in good financial circumstances. The Hawaiian question consumed most of the day.

Many Passengers Hurt.

Thirty-three persons were injured, six probably fatally, two cars were smashed and a locomotive ruined as the result of a rear-end collision at the Winter Hill station of the Boston & Maine railroad, five miles from Boston.

"FIGURES NEVER LIE, BUT LIARS WILL FIGURE."

Carroll D. Wright, United States commissioner of labor, who has just been honored with membership in the Institute of France and honorary membership in the Imperial Russian Academy of Sciences, is one of the foremost statisticians of the world. Commissioner Wright's services to the science of economics and to kindred sciences may not be measured. Few statisticians have been as careful as he to present bare facts and to present them as fully as the statistician can. It was he who originated the now famous and much misquoted saying, "Figures do not lie, but liars figure." The noted labor statistician began life as a country schoolmaster in New Hampshire, his native state, and went from pedagogy into law. Dropping his commentaries for his musket he went to the war, and, after fighting for his country to the end of the strife, he resumed his law work and was admitted to the bar. In 1871 and 1872 he was a New Hampshire legislator, and was soon thereafter placed in charge of the state labor bureau, to take which position he gave up a practice of $10,000 a year. In 1880 he supervised the national census in Massachusetts, and his work attracted much attention for its thoroughness. In 1885 he was made the first labor commissioner of the United States. His published works make a very considerable library of labor statistics and have been used by most living writers on economics.

IOWA LEGISLATURE.

Measures of Importance Introduced at Des Moines.

The ways and means committees of both houses Feb. 4 discussed the bill to reduce the rate of interest on state warrants. It is likely the rate of interest will be reduced from 6 to 4 per cent.

Bills have been introduced in both houses looking for an appropriation of $47,400 for the Iowa exhibit at the Transmississippi exposition in Omaha.

The senate printing committee decided in favor of the bill to put the cut rates on printing into immediate effect.

Senator Thomas D. Healy favors boards of control for state institutions. He advocates a board of three members to be appointed by the governor for six-year terms.

The ways and means committee of the house Feb. 7 killed the bill taxing mortgages on real estate.

Gen. John Cochrane Dead.

General John Cochrane is dead. In 1864 he was nominated for vice president of the United States on the independent republican ticket. General John C. Fremont being the candidate for president.

To Control Honduras Cattle Trade.

New York capitalists have completed the organization of a company to control the exportation and importation of cattle and live stock of all descriptions from and to the republic of Honduras.

Prevented a European Conflagration.

M. Melne, the French premier, says it was only because of the Franco-Russian alliance that Europe escaped a general conflagration and the European concert became possible.

With a Capital of $55,000,000.

The National Biscuit Company has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with a capitalization of $25,000,000 preferred and $30,000,000 common stock.

No Sugar Bounty Conference.

The sugar bounty conference, which was announced to begin on Feb. 15, is now indefinitely postponed, France having renewed her objections.

Indiana Gold Democrats.

S. O. Pickens, chairman of the state committee of the Indiana gold Democrats, has issued a call for a state conference of the party Feb. 22.

World's Fair for New York.

A bill has been introduced in the New York senate providing for a world's exhibition to be held in New York early in 1901.

LINCOLN AT FRONT.

RECEPTION BY THE COLORED TROOPS.

The Emancipator Presented a Rather Grotesque Appearance, but That Was Forgotten in the Admiration for the Man.

N his "Campaigning with Grant," Gen. Horace Porter gives the following description of Lincoln's visit to the front at City Point:

Mr. Lincoln wore a very high black silk hat and black trousers and frock coat. Like most men who had been brought up in the West, he had good command of a horse, but it must be acknowledged that in appearance he was not a very dashing rider. On this occasion, by the time he had reached the troops, he was completely covered with dust, and the black color of his clothes had changed to Confederate gray. As he had no straps, his trousers gradually worked up above his ankles, and gave him the appearance of a country farmer riding into town wearing his Sunday clothes. A citizen on horseback is always an odd sight in the midst of a uniformed army, and the picture presented by the president bordered upon the grotesque. However, the troops were so lost in admiration of the man that the humorous aspect did not seem to strike them. The soldiers rapidly passed the word along the line that "Uncle Abe" had joined them, and cheers broke forth from all the commands, and enthusias-

"GOD BLESS MASSA LINKUM." He shouts and even words of familiar greeting met him on all sides.

After a while, General Grant said: "Mr. President, let us ride on and see the colored troops, who behaved so handsomely in Smith's attack on the works in front of Petersburg last week."

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Lincoln; "I want to take a look at those boys. I read with the greatest delight the account given in Mr. Dana's dispatch to the Secretary of War of how gallantly they behaved. He said they took out six of the sixteen guns captured that day. I was opposed on nearly every side when I first favored the raising of colored regiments; but they have proved their efficiency, and I am glad they have kept pace with the white troops in the recent assaults. When we wanted every able-bodied man who could be spared to go to the front, and my opposers kept objecting to the negroes, I used to tell them that at such times it was just as well to be a little color-blind. I think, general, we can say of the black boys what a country fellow, who was an old-time abolitionist in Illinois, said when he went to a theater in Chicago and saw Forest playing Othello. He was not very well up in Shakespeare, and didn't know that the tragedian was a white man who had blacked up for the purpose. After the play was over the folks who had invited him to go to the show wanted to know what he thought of the actors, and he said: 'Waal, layin' aside all sectional prejudices and any partiality I may have for the race, durned if I don't think the nigger held his own with any on 'em.'" The Western dialect employed in this story was perfect.

The camp of the colored troops of the Eighteenth Corps was soon reached, and a scene now occurred which defies description. They beheld for the first time the liberator of their race—the man who by a stroke of his pen had struck the shackles from the limbs of their fellow-bondsmen and proclaimed liberty to the enslaved. Always impressionable, the enthusiasm of the blacks now knew no limits. They cheered, laughed, cried, sang hymns of praise, and shouted in their negro dialect, "God bless Massa Linkum!" "De Lord save Fader Abraham!" "De day ob jubilee am come, shuah!" They crowded about him and fondled his horse; some of them kissed his hands, while others ran off crying in triumph to their comrades that they had touched his clothes. The president rode with bared head; the tears had started to his eyes, and his voice was so broken by emotion that he could scarcely articulate the words of thanks and congratulation which he tried to speak to the humble and devoted men through whose ranks he rode. The scene was affecting in the extreme, and no one could have witnessed it unmoved.

A Belle Who Danced With Lincoln.

"The Inner Experiences of a Cabinet Member's Wife" is one of the most interesting contributions to the current Ladies' Home Journal. In a series of letters the wife of a cabinet member writes to her sister of office-seekers and of those in the departments. "You can have no idea," she anonymously declares, "how Henry (her husband) is persecuted by applicants for his influence with the president or with the heads of departments. He really has no influence outside of his own department, and he is wearing his sympathies into tatters listening to tales of woe. The saddest case that has come under my own observation is that of a maiden lady, fully fifty years old, who has worked in the departments ever since the war. Senatorial influence has kept her in all these years, but now that the civil service reforms are being introduced she is in despair, for, although perfectly competent in her work, she never in the world could pass one of those rigid examinations. She called upon me bearing a letter of introduction from Mrs. Arthur Folsom (Mary Allison), who married into one of the old families here. I don't know whether her family lost their means by the war or in some other way, but they did lose everything when she was a gay girl at the top of society in both Alexandria and Washington. She told me about dancing in a set of lancers opposite Abraham Lincoln, who, though awkward and angular in his dancing, seemed to enjoy it, and always had a gay word for everybody. She says her feeling for Mr. Lincoln was something more than respect; it was more like adoration; that she has often wondered if people did not feel just so toward the great religious prophets, who must have spread abroad what Mr. Lincoln did—an atmosphere of sympathetic kindness, trust, purity and nobility."

An Heroic Character.

Heroic characters are immortal. The memories of rare deeds and noble virtues never die. The names of Savonarola, Luther, Melancthon, Peter the Hermit, Joan of Arc, Cromwell and John Brown are carved upon the immortal tablets of everlasting fame.

John Brown was one of the mysteries of the human. No man has ever explained the philosophy of his life and character. We simply know him as a rare example of bravery, of moral worth and true manhood. His character was remarkable for moral purity and invincible tenacity of will. He displayed the deepest devotion to an idea—that of war against human slavery. He believed that "who would be free, themselves must strike the blow." He was a stern, uncompromising hater of human bondage. Slavery to him was a heinous crime. It meant the everlasting blighting and blasting of manhood. Upon the gallows he declared that slavery was "the sum of all villainies," and must speedily perish from the land. He possessed the will of a Hercules, the faith of an Aaron. He defied formal law and the sluggish public opinion of his time, in the interests of the one cause—"Justice to all men." There is nothing grander in history, more sublime, than the life of this strange man. Aye, truly "His soul goes marching on."

N the upright little sapling lives the mighty mountain pine. Straighter than an Indian chieftain with its long, unswerving line, Lifting high its sturdy branches, rooted in its rocky bed, Landmark to the valleys under, shelter for the weary head.

In the boys so true and fearless lived our hero good and grand, Through the days of stormy trouble shelter to his native land. For the unbent twig, believe me, ever grows as it began, And the child of noble nature makes the noble-hearted man.

LINCOLN'S BOYHOOD.

A Playmate Who Saved Him from Death by Drowning.

The child's life during the time the family lived in Kentucky appears to have been entirely uneventful, says St. Nicholas. He helped his mother after he was 3 years old in the simple household duties, went to the district school and played with the children of the neighborhood. The only one of young Lincoln's playmates now living is an old man, nearly 100 years old, named Austin Gollaher, whose mind is bright and clear and who never tires of telling of the days Lincoln and he "were little tikes and played together." This old man, who yet lives in the log house in which he has always lived, a few miles from the old Lincoln place, tells entertaining stories about the president's boyhood.

Mr. Gollaher says that they were together more than the other boys in school; that he became fond of his little friend, and he believed that Abe thought a great deal of him.

In speaking of various events of minor importance in their boyhood days, Mr. Gollaher remarked: "I once saved Lincoln's life." Upon being urged to tell of the occurrence he thus related it: "We had been going to school together one year, but the next year we had no school, because there were so few scholars to attend, there being only about twenty in the school the year before. Consequently Abe and I had not much to do, but as we did not go to school and our mothers were strict with us we did not get to see each other very often. One Sunday morning my mother waked me early, saying she was going to see Mrs. Lincoln, and that I could go along. Glad of the chance, I was soon dressed and ready to go. After my mother and I got there Abe and I played all through the day. While we were wandering up and down the little stream called Knob creek Abe said: 'Right up there,' pointing to the east, 'we saw a covey of partridges yesterday. Let's go over and get some of them.' The stream was swollen and was too wide for us to jump across. Finally we saw a narrow footing and we concluded to try it. It was narrow, but Abe said: 'Let's coon it.'

"I went first and reached the other side all right. Abe went about half way across, when he got scared and began trembling. I hollered to him: 'Don't look down nor up nor sideways, but look right at me and hold on tight.' But he fell off into the creek, and as the water was about seven or eight feet deep and I could not swim and neither could Abe I knew it would do no good for me to go in after him. So I got a stick—a long water sprout—and held it out to him. He came up, grabbing with both hands, and I put the stick into his hands. He clung to it and I pulled him out on the bank, almost dead. I got him by the arms and shook him well and then rolled him on the ground, when the water poured out of his mouth. He was all right very soon. We promised each other that we would never tell anybody about it, and never did for years. I never told any one of it until after Lincoln was killed."

A Persian Boudoir.

A Persian lady's rooms do not occupy much of her time or attention. They are very simple and taste plays no important part in them. The walls are either plainly tinted, ornamented with scrolls, carved in plaster, or inlaid up to the ceiling with fragments of looking glass. Her bedding by day is rolled up in a corner of the room she generally inhabits. On a shelf in every niche stands a turquoise colored vase, on which rests a strongly scented shaddock. This is the only decoration except the exquisite carpets and rugs which are spread about the floor. She is thoroughly domestic, and treats her woman servants and slaves much as if they were her equals, interesting herself in the cookery, and often making the sweetmeats in which an Oriental household delights.—Exchange.

Diamonds from Babylon.

Over 400 diamonds are known to have been recovered from the ruins of Babylon. Many are uncut, but most are polished on one or two sides.

The earliest complete clock of which an accurate record exists was made in the thirteenth century by a Saracen mechanic.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF LAST SIX DAYS.

Rev. Dr. Brown Must Face His Chicago Congregation—Undervaluation and Tax Dodging at Quincy—Wedding Trip to Alaska.

To Decide His Fate.

Chicago Telegram—The elders and members of the Green Street Congregational church, the latest house of God to receive the ministrations of Rev. C. O. Brown, the San Francisco divine who has been unfrocked by the California conference under circumstances that have been ventilated by the press throughout the length and breadth of the land, will decide this week whether, in the face of his confession of the last few days, they will stick to him, or whether they shall accept the resignation which was received yesterday by mail from San Francisco. If talks with some of the influential members afford any clew to the possible action the indications are that the congregation will stick by Dr. Brown, his confession to the contrary notwithstanding. Trustee Hanson, who has canvassed all the monied supporters of the church, says that he finds all of them want to retain the minister. Deacon William Tomlinson says that they are just as eager to keep Dr. Brown as they were before. The church is big enough and wealthy enough to maintain itself as an independent body, even though it should be thrown out of the Congregational fold by reason of its sticking to its pastor.

Undervaluation Charged.

Quincy Dispatch—Fleener & Carnahan, who have the contract for the collection of county taxes, which have been evaded through failure to make a full and complete showing of estates to the assessor, sprung a sensation by filing five suits in the Circuit Court under section 56 of the revenue act, which provides a fine of from $10 to $2,000 for each year that an estate was misrepresented to the assessor. The penalties sued for yesterday aggregate $66,000. They are against W. W. Benton, Charles and Edward Seymour, Cornelius Austin and the estate of Abraham Benton, among the oldest and wealthiest citizens of the county.

May Go Hungry.

Chicago Dispatch—The visible supply of wheat in the United States is less than 35,000,000 bushels, the smallest in years. Of this about 15,000,000 is what is known as contract wheat, and the Letter syndicate of Chicago is supposed to own nearly all of this. Hard Kansas wheat has been selling for $1.12 and cash wheat on the tracks at Minneapolis readily sells at one dollar. European reports are conflicting, but it is conceded that a shortage exists which threatens to become serious. The wheat in store at Liverpool will not meet the English demand for more than two weeks. All markets are steadily advancing and the wildest predictions are made as to the ultimate price of this most important cereal.

Wedding Trip to Alaska.

Hopedale—At 8 o'clock Sunday night, at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. F. R. Zipf, occurred the marriage of Miss May Zipf with Mr. Alexander Chalmers. The groom has for years been the American agent for a company of Paris, France. The bride is a native of this place, but has spent the last seven years of her life in Denver, Colo., where she was met and won by her husband. They left last night for an extended wedding tour in the gold regions of Alaska.

Denied Transmission.

Lincoln Special—John Edmonds and S. R. Moulden, accompanied by L. C. Schwardtfeger, attorney, went to Springfield yesterday afternoon, where it is said they will be required to give bond pending the action of the Federal grand jury. The trouble is over an article in the Semi-Weekly Courier of Friday last. Complaint was filed with Postmaster Stokes, and the edition was held up and denied transmission through the United States mails.

Minor State Items.

Shelbyville, Ill.—Daniel Meltzer, a prominent farmer, died while at his breakfast table.

LaSalle, Ill.—Chief of Police Doyle arrested Albert P. Michel on a charge of forgery at Des Moines, Iowa.

William Coleman committed suicide in Chicago the other morning in Milwaukee avenue near Will street by drinking carbolic acid in sight of many persons in the street and sidewalk. Coleman was a cab driver, and was 23 years old and unmarried. He lived at 209 North Cedar avenue. He is said to have been drinking heavily for some time.

AN AFFLICTED MOTHER.

From the Times, Paw Paw, Ill.

A resident of this town who has lost two children during the past six years, by violent deaths has been utterly prostrated by the shock, and seriously sick as a result of it. One child (aged 9) was killed by a cyclone in '90 while at school; another, three years later was run over by a Burlington R. R. train. That grief and misfortunes may so prey on the mind as to lead to serious physical disorders has been well demonstrated in this case. As a result of them, her health was shattered and she has been a constant sufferer since 1890. Her principal trouble has been neuralgia of the stomach which was very painful, and exhibited all the symptoms of ordinary neuralgia, nervousness and indigestion. Physicians did her no good whatever. She was discouraged and abandoned all hope of getting well. Finally, however, a certain well-known pill was recommended (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.) She supplied herself with a quantity of them and had not taken them two weeks when she noticed a marked improvement

A Constant Sufferer.

In her condition. She continued taking the pills until seven or eight boxes had been consumed and she considered herself entirely cured. She can now eat all kinds of food, which is something she has not been able to do for years. She is not troubled in the least with nervousness as she was during the time of her stomach troubles. She is now well and all because of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a complete cure has been made.

If any one would like to hear more of the details of her suffering and relief gained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People they may be obtained probably, by writing the lady direct. She is one of our well-known residents, Mrs. Ellen A. Oederkirk, Paw Paw, Ill.

Set on Fire by the Waves.

On the western coast of Ireland, at Ballybunion, the sea set fire to the cliffs. For centuries the great Atlantic rollers had been breaking them down and making great fissures in them. In their depths were masses of iron, pyrites and alum. At last the water penetrated to these, and a rapid oxidation took place, which produced a heat fierce enough to set the whole cliff on fire. For weeks the rocks burned like a regular volcano, and great clouds of smoke and vapor rose high in the air.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Easy to Learn.

Ferguson—But how do you know there is any money in the thing for you? Niderman—Oh, there's no doubt about it's being a good thing. The men who are in it are making money hand over fist. Ferguson—And how do you know that? Niderman—Know that? Why, haven't they decided to let anybody come in who wants to? Isn't that the way with all successful enterprises? I supposed you knew as much as that!—Boston Transcript.

Boy's Essay on Lynching.

This is the composition of a Georgia boy on one of the evil practices of the day: "Lynchin' is wrong. It hurts the limbs of the beautiful trees where the birds sing. It also hurts the people what's lynched. They should have a regular hangin' and sell peanuts an' lemonade. People what's hung regular, by law, always go to heaven, I don't want to go to heaven that way."

Many People Cannot Drink coffee at night. It spoils their sleep. You can drink Grain-O when you please and sleep like a top. For Grain-O does not stimulate; it nourishes, cheers and feeds. Yet it looks and tastes like the best coffee. For nervous persons, young people and children Grain-O is the perfect drink. Made from pure grains. Get a package from your grocer to-day. Try it in place of coffee. 15 and 25c.

Are Young Again.

A large number of the friends of Mrs. B. H. Sadt assembled at her home on Wednesday evening and helped her celebrate her birthday anniversary.

Social games of various kinds, intermingled with sweet music, furnished amusement for the happy congregation until late in the evening.

Tempting and palatable refreshments were served.

Could our readers have seen the radiant faces during the evening they would unanimously have voted that years had no effect in dampening the spirits of Mr. and Mrs. Sadt and their many friends. All left wishing the hostess many more enjoyable returns of the occasion.

A Pleasant Affair.

On Tuesday evening fifty-four friends of Mrs. C. Wessel assembled at the home of Ernest Rieke, and at 8 o'clock the ladies and gentlemen proceeded to her residence, and tendered her a pleasant surprise party.

Many social games were indulged in and hugely enjoyed, chief among which was "Thaler, thaler, du must wandern," and it is hard to tell how long the dollar would have wandered if "Bill" Peters and Fred Kirschner had not been present. Mr. Peters' long experience as an auctioneer gave him a quick eye to detect the "raise" of a dollar, and he had a close shave for the championship in Mr. Kirschner. Mr. Kirschner is assessor of the town of Cuba, and anyone that tries to hide anything from his eagle eyes must get up pretty early in the morning.

Refreshments of many tempting varieties were served.

The gathering must be classed as one of the most pleasant social affairs of the season, and when in the wee sma' hours the guests took their departure all were heard declaring Mrs. Wessel a most charming hostess.

Tell Stories and Feast.

A social and society event which has been looked forward to with more than ordinary anticipation was the annual sleigh ride of the W. R. C. of this village, which occurred on Wednesday.

Two jolly sleigh loads left Barrington at 9:30 o'clock a. m., William G. Waterman's home at Barrington Center being their objective point, and which place they reached about 11 o'clock. They were royally received by Mr. Waterman and his family. At noon a sumptuous luncheon was spread which was highly enjoyed, as each of the company seemed to have reserved their best appetite for this special occasion. After the luncheon an impromptu program was carried out, consisting of songs, recitations, stories, etc., which furnished amusement until 3 o'clock, at which hour the guests took their departure, after extending their most sincere thanks to Mr. Waterman and family for the many courtesies shown them.

Of for Sylvan Dell.

The special flyers put on by the North-Western and Burlington roads to Denver recently are insignificant when compared to the "double section" conveyances that left Barrington Tuesday evening for "Sylvan Dell," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Davlin near Wauconda. These conveyances were of the most modern pattern—commonly known as "bobsleighs." They were equipped with every device that would help them over some Klondike snow mountains, or the beautiful sheets of water and slush or the well-graveled-roads of the town of Cuba. Besides being pulled by two teams of horses of the "Nancy Hanks" pattern, each "bob" contained a load of passengers, who had equipped themselves with an extra quantity of good cheer. The trip was an unusual enjoyable one and lasted several hours, while the return trip was equally if not more enjoyed.

Arriving at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davlin, the guests were received by the Misses Davlin in their usual charming and gracious manner and everything was done that could conduce to the enjoyment and pleasure of the guests.

Some extra fine instrumental and vocal selections were listened to, the duet by Misses Marguerite and Priscilla Davlin being especially well rendered.

Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake, coffee and fruit were served.

After several hours' stay at this hospitable home the party started on their return trip, the unanimous expression of the guests being: "I had a real good time."

The excursion was composed of: Misses—Mamie and Edna Hutchinson, Sadie Krahn, Nellie Donlea, Della Gleason, Alta Gretton, Nellie Gray and Rose Sadt, Messrs—Charles Hutchinson, D. F. Lamey, Charles Dill, Carl Ernst, Charles Beinhoff, M. T. Lamey, Harry Vermilya and M. J. Rauh.

Remembered by His Friends.

A surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kirschner on Wednesday evening in honor of Will Rieke, the occasion being his birthday anniversary. Refreshments were served. An enjoyable evening was spent by the young people.

Surprised Their Friends.

The old saying that the woman cannot keep a secret has been proven false beyond a question of a doubt.

On November 7, 1897, Miss Carrie Meyer and Alvin L. Horn quietly took a pleasure trip to Milwaukee, and there were joined in holy wedlock.

They returned to Barrington and Mrs. Horn went to her home at Mr. Philip Hawley's, while Mr. Horn pursued the even tenor of his ways at his occupation on the C. & N-W railway, consequently great was the surprise of their many friends when they were informed this week that they were married.

The young couple has commenced housekeeping in the home of the bride's father, Mr. L. Meyer.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Horn join with THE REVIEW in wishing them long life and prosperity.

Elected Officers.

Election of officers took place at the regular meeting of Barrington Tent No. 79, K. O. T. M., in their hall Monday evening. The officers elected were as follows:

Commander—J. C. Plagge.
Lieutenant Commander—E. M. Blocks.
Sergeant—F. E. Hawley.
Record Keeper—M. T. Lamey.
Chaplain—Silas Robertson.
Finance Keeper—C. P. Hawley.
Master-at-Arms—D. F. Lamey.
First Master of Guards—Henry Berger.
Second Master of Guards—Henry Bauman.
Sentinel—W. C. Meyer.
Picket—F. A. Lageschulte.
Physician—Dr. C. H. Kendall.

After the election the officers were installed.

While Barrington Tent No. 79 has not increased in membership during the past year the Order, as a whole, has shown a healthy growth.

Palatine Board Proceedings.

Board met in regular session with President Battermann in the chair and the following trustees present: Stroker, Taylor, Ost and Meyer. Trustees Putnam and Horstman were absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The village treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $4,548.94.
