VERY SUCCESSFUL

The Jubilee Camp Meeting
The Most Successful One in Barrington's
History.

The Jubilee meeting of the Barrington camp meeting of the United Evangelical church opened Friday evening, June 17, Rev. C. Schuster of Elgin preaching, and the opening service gave great promise for the success of the meetings.

Saturday morning Rev. Theo. Suhr, formerly pastor of the Salem church, but now of Ashton, preached. He was followed in the afternoon by Rev. Kaufman of Zion's church, Chicago. In the evening Rev. Schneider, who has for many years served God in the United Evangelical church, led the services.

Sunday morning Rev. Busse, the Presiding Elder, preached a sermon preparing the audience for Communion day. Rev. E. von Freedén of Washington, Ill., preached in the afternoon after a new departure in the way of a camp meeting Sunday school. Many scholars were present and the Sunday school, as well as the preaching services, were greatly enjoyed by all. In the evening Rev. Suhr again preached, and through his excellent sermon reached the hearts of all.

Monday was Communion day, and the promises given by a good Sunday were fully realized in a truly blessed Communion day. Rev. Schneider preached in the morning. In the afternoon Rev. Henry Messner of Northfield delivered a sermon, and in the evening Rev. C. Frey of Edison Park.

Tuesday was Old People's day, which, as the name would indicate, was devoted to the old people. They were addressed by Revs. E. von Freedén and Schneider in the forenoon. In the afternoon the services were under the direction of Rev. Meier. The fathers and mothers took great interest in the meetings and related their early experiences in a highly interesting manner. In the evening the gospel was powerfully preached by Rev. Lutz of Ashland Ave., Chicago.

Wednesday Rev. Kramer of Shannon, one of the oldest ministers of the church, delivered the morning sermon, followed in the afternoon by Rev. Henn of Chicago and Rev. Landwer in the evening.

Thursday was Missionary day. Bishop Dubbs delivered an interesting Missionary sermon in the forenoon, which was splendid. The afternoon exercises were under the direction of the Mission band and Woman's Missionary society, the programs rendered being very interesting, special music and good addresses by Mrs. Hintz of Chicago, Miss Ellerdling, a missionary from Brazil; Mrs. Hillman, Mrs. Zorno, and Mrs. Strickfaden being especially good. The evening service was conducted by Rev. Waltz, missionary, of Chicago.

The grounds are hardly recognized this year on account of the many improvements made. Pretty new cottages, a good new auditorium, and the well-kept grounds make a beautiful appearance.

Among the out-of-town visitors we mention the following: Misses Ida Miller, Emma Sigwart, Ida Wingert and Loise Wingert occupy the North Ashland Ave. church Young People's society tent; Mr. and Mrs. John Kersten and daughter, Miss Emma, of Ashton occupy a cottage, as do also Mesdames Weise and Baker of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Blum and family, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rebmam and daughter, Miss Gertrude, of Chicago. The W. M. S. of the Zion's church, Hoyne Ave., Chicago, is the name of a comfortable and substantial new cottage close to the new and pretty Strickfaden cottage.

The meetings are much blessed, many conversions having already taken place.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

Thursday Evening of Last Week
Twelve Pupils of the Barrington
High School Acquit Themselves
With Credit to Themselves and Their Instructor.

A large and attentive audience greeted the class of '98 at their commencement June 16th. The class displayed their patriotism not only in their orations, but by the beautiful decorations of the church, the national colors greeting one's eye on all sides. The church presented one of the most beautiful and inspiring appearances in its history. A pretty, tastefully arranged motto announced the purpose of the class—"Not for School But for Life We Learn."

The exercises were opened by a most delightful march composed by Prof. J. I. Sears, and played in his own masterful manner, during which the class entered the church and took their seats on the platform. The invocation by Rev. A. W. Stickfaden was one of deep earnestness, imploring divine guidance for the class and containing words of wisdom and admonition to them.

The salutatorian of the class, Fred Loco, in a pleasing, graceful manner, extended hearty welcome to all, followed with his oration, "Is War An Evil?" He at the outset captivated the audience not only by the truth of his arguments but by the enthusiastic manner in which he delivered his oration. His efforts showed him a talented young man from whom much is expected by his many friends and admirers. "A war tends to bring out all that is good in a country. The common struggle awakens the listless and enthuses the brave, and the people are drawn closer together in the ties of friendship. It allays party troubles so that the country can put forward a united front. It awakens the slumbering genius in man. Years of national commotion are always followed by years of great mental activity and the evils of war are always succeeded by the fruits of genius. Our Revolutionary War laid the foundation for a much purer civil liberty and a greater public happiness than had hitherto been the portion of mankind. Is that war an evil that united a severed people and freed the negro from slavery? The Spanish-American War will be conspicuous among the wars of the world. Instead of being a war of conquest and aggression, it is a war to aid the overthrow of injustice and the uplifting of humanity. We ought to be thankful that we live in a country to which has been entrusted the lamp of liberty for mankind. Let us carry it forward. In pursuing our own destiny on this continent we may be the means of giving freedom to every oppressed race and sending terror to the heart of every tyrant."

Miss Mary Cowden gave an interesting and entertaining oration on "Minstrels of the Air." Her work showed her possessed of a deep knowledge of birds and a love of a study of their habits. "Probably all of you have heard minstrels sing and call their singing grand, but have you ever listened to the 'Minstrels of the Air'?" These delicate and very beautiful creatures that inhabit our airy sphere? Their concerts are free, everyone can hear them if they only listen. The robin, the first harbinger of spring, returns from his sunny winter home and comes north to build his modest little home, rear his family and cheer us with his presence. If the robin, with his cheerful soprano call serves as an emblem of domestic peace and homely cheer the blue bird with his plaintive contralto warble serves as the poetic symbol of spring and stirs the imagination. His sweet disposition may well be a model for his human kinsfolk. His note truly well echoes his character. We commonly regard birds only as an ornamental feature of the landscape and fail to appreciate the importance of the service they render us. They are not mere fluffs of dainty feathers. They have character and will repay study. "Earth were not half so bright and fair, without these 'Minstrels of the Air.'"

Henry Sodt's oration on "Self Culture" was well delivered and contained many pointed truths by which to guide young men to success in life. "Self Culture makes us able to face this world and face it successfully, too. All persons who have accomplished much in this sphere have been noted for their firmness of purpose. Another quality which should go hand in hand with firmness and is another round to the ladder of success is politeness. Another sterling quality which is often found wanting in mankind is honesty. An honest man is the noblest work of God." The two qualities which are by far the most wanting, are power of utterance and perception of beauty. Many men have great imaginations and beautiful thoughts but lack the words to express them in their beauty. We are not estimated by the amount of thought we have, but by the power we have of bringing it out."

"Music and Its Influence" was an admirable production, and rendered in an entertaining and forceful manner by Miss Luella Plagge. Her pleasing appearance, spirited attitude and style of discourse entitle her to much praise. "Music has kept pace with civilization and has always been a strong civilizing agent. A home which has music in it is bright and merry, for its influence drives away sadness, anger and impurity. Into the life of childhood and youth it pours a tide of redeeming influence, physical, intellectual and moral. By its ennobling and elevating influence it creates homes of tenderness and love. By the magic tones of music the patriotic soul is caused to thrill within him, as the national air sweeps the chords of his being. It leads him to the temple of liberty where he offers his life upon the altar of his country. Music has a charm for every soul. It has a power to soften and subdue and it entwines its chords of harmony about the life, melting and soothing and linking hearts together in sympathy and love. It soothes and quiets the bed of death, while it breathes like a miracle of inspiration

Spanish Way of Doing Business.
When the Spanish warship Viscaya was in New York waters she needed some awnings, and a contract was made with a local manufacturer. His bill was $450. When the goods were delivered on board, the captain said everything was O. K., except the bill, which should read $1,650, instead of $450. The awning maker had no kick coming and he changed the figures to suit the Spanish captain, who made $1,200 on the transaction.

CHAPTER XXXIX.—(Continued.)

"Later on in the evening," she had said the words quite thoughtlessly; they returned to her afterward with a keen pain. She was reckless as to what followed: as to whether her husband would be angry or not she was indifferent. The only thing was that she had resolved upon preventing her husband and rival from jesting about her; that should never be.

She went round by the postern-door, and in the distance she caught a glimpse of the white dress and the silver veil.

To think that her husband did not recognize that silver veil as hers! She had worn it ever since she had been at Ravensmere; there was not a servant about the place who would not have recognized it in a minute; whereas her husband did not even know to whom it belonged.

"That proves what little notice he has bestowed on me," she thought, bitterly.

The grounds of Ravensmere were so well wooded that behind the safe shelter of the tall trees she could walk quite unseen by the earl and his companion. The sweet southern wind that scarcely stirred the leaves brought to her from time to time chance words, but none of them were of her. She did not want to listen to their conversation; she only wished to prevent the story of her marriage from being told. Sometimes the low, musical laughter of Lady Hamilton reached her, and then the rich ring of her husband's voice would sound cheerily in the gathering gloom; and all the time she, his wife, was slowly threading her way after him like the shadow of fate.

There had not been one word of her yet—the conversation had all been about people they had known years before; and now they stood on the borders of the lake, where the crimson waters, to the dazed mind of the young countess, looked like blood. She shuddered as the idea occurred to her. Some of the crimson glow fell on the white dress and on the silken veil. She saw Lady Hamilton hold out her little white hand and cry, gleefully:

"Look, Lord Caraven—my hand is dyed red!"

They had not spoken of her. The red sun was fast descending.

"That is what I wish you to see," said the earl. "The moment in which the sun seems to touch the water a red gleam passes through it; then the next moment it is quite dark."

They watched it in silence, while the dark figure stood motionless and still behind them. The sun, as it set, seemed to touch the outer edge of the lake; a red gleam came over it, beautiful and curious, and then, almost at once, it was dark.

"We will go home by the copple," said Lord Caraven; and his wife remembered that the long avenue of trees extended to the very gate. She could therefore walk almost side by side with them, yet quite unseen.

They had not mentioned her name. Could she have been wrong in her suspicion? Had she mistaken her husband's words? They were standing at the edge of the lake, a cold, dark sheet of water now, and she established herself behind a great group of alder-trees. It seemed to her that the silver veil on the fair woman's head and shoulders absorbed all the light there was. Presently she drew near. Another group of trees separated her from the two who were so unconscious of her presence—large trees with swaying branches; through them the night wind brought every word to her. They talked only of the light on the water and the sudden darkness there—of someone who had known and loved Lady Hamilton before her marriage. She laughed coquettishly over it.

How long was that nonsense to last? The unhappy young wife asked herself. How long was she to stand under the darkening evening skies, with the great alder branches swaying to and fro, and the sighing of the wind in her ears, the fire of love, the madness of jealousy raging in her heart—how long? It was almost unbearable. She felt inclined to cry out that it must end. She clinched her fingers, she bit her lip; then suddenly she heard the sound of her name—her maiden name—"Hildred Ransome!" What were they saying? Was the earl telling how he had been compelled to encumber himself with a wife he did not love? Was he saying that, although he did not love her, and they were strangers to each other, she cared for him? Was he laughing because she had owned that she was jealous of him?

"I cannot bear it!" she thought.

The next moment there was the sound of a shot—something seemed to rattle through the alder branches—there was a low cry, a startled exclamation.

"There are poachers in the wood," she thought; "he will surely go in search of them, and then he will find me!"

"She turned to fly; now that there was the danger of being caught, she seemed to wake to a full consciousness of what she was doing; the bare fact that she was listening seemed to come home to her as it had never come before. She turned to fly; not for anything that could be given would she be caught there. She wanted to hasten, but she could not; it was as though great weights of lead were fastened to her feet. Her brain was dizzy; the unusual excitement, the frenzy of love and jealousy, had been too much for her; her tall, graceful figure swayed for a minute like a leaf in the wind, a low moan came from her lips, and then, as in a dream, the white, angry face of her husband was looking into hers, and he grasped her arm in a hard, cruel grasp.

CHAPTER XL.

N EAR to the lake, across which the last red glimmer of the sunset had faded, husband and wife stood for one moment beneath the darkening sky, looking at each other. Lord Caraven's face was ghastly white, an unknown, untold horror lay in his eyes, his lips trembled with uncontrollable emotion. Hildred—pale, terrified, wondering—gazed at him like one fascinated.

"What is it?" she gasped.

"You guilty woman," cried the earl. "You cruel, guilty, jealous woman!" She shrank back as though he had struck her, her lips parted as though she would speak, but all sound died away on them.

"You guilty woman," repeated the earl, "own the truth! You followed Lady Hamilton and me here to watch, to listen. Speak!"

"May Heaven pardon me, I did?" she moaned.

"Here you must remain. I shall come back. I shall know where to find you, crouching at the end of the alder-trees, where you hid yourself to listen to your husband and his guest. Great Heaven, that a spy should bear my name! Stay here until I return. If "YOU GUILTY WOMAN!" you attempt to escape I will send the whole county after you. And I was beginning to care for you—to think you a noble woman!"

She shrank cowering from him. His angry face, the anger that shone in his eyes, the stern voice frightened her. She shrank lower and lower, until she fell on her knees, sobbing as though her heart would break.

"Stir at your peril!" he said, and then he left her.

For some few minutes afterward she heard sounds on the borders of the lake; murmured sounds, as of intense pity and compassion, followed by the tramp of many footsteps, and then all was still.

The ground was covered with dead and dying leaves. Lady Caraven flung herself down upon them, and as she lay there the old words came to her—"Let me die!" Death would have been a mercy.

The golden stars came out in the sky. Was it really herself, or was she dreaming? Was she Hildred, the beautiful, popular Countess of Caraven, lying there in all the abandonment of her misery, her husband's angry voice in her ears, the marks of his angry grasp on her arm? Outcast, wretched, despairing, there was only one friend for her in the world, and that was Sir Raoul; if she could but see him, if she could but tell him! The pitiless night hid her from all eyes. Surely there had never been a night so full of pain.

How long she had been lying there she never knew. Time was all ended for her. She was conscious only of infinite misery. She did not even feel the chill breath of the wind as it passed over her.

Then, after what seemed to her an age of suspense and agony, she heard footsteps amid the brushwood, and Lord Caraven calling her by name.

"I am here," she said.

In the thick growing darkness it was with difficulty that he discovered her. He saw her at length lying with her face hidden among the dead leaves.

"You may rise and thank Heaven," he said, in a stern voice, "that you have not succeeded; the evil is not so great as it might have been."

She rose and stood before him, the same dazed look on her face.

"I do not understand—you say such hard, cruel things," she moaned.

"Hard and cruel," repeated her husband, with bitter contempt; "did ever a woman live so cruel as you?"

"I am not cruel," she replied. "I have been driven mad."

There was such infinite sadness in the young voice, such dreary despair in the young face, that he was touched in spite of his anger and contempt.

"Tell me," he said, "what made you do this thing—this cruel, ungenerous, unwomanly deed?"

She thought he referred to her conduct in following him, and they seemed to her hard words.

"What made me do it? You will only despise and hate me the more if I tell you," she replied.

"Frankly speaking, Hildred, nothing that you can say to me will make the matter worse, but it may certainly be made better. Tell me the plain truth."

"Yes, I will tell you," she replied. "I see that all good understanding is at an end between us."

"That is certain," he said, with emphasis; "with my consent you shall never enter my doors again."

"Have I acted so very wrong?" she asked, sadly.

"Wrong?" he exclaimed contemptuously. "We will waive that, Hildred. You have done that which I will never pardon. Now tell me why you did it. You may speak the truth to me; you bear my name. I will shield you from all harm. No one knows but myself."

"Then she did not see me?" said Hildred, drearily.

"No—and you may be thankful for it," answered the earl, severely. "She did not see you. You may speak quite frankly; no one knows anything about it except myself. Now tell me."

"What have I to tell you?" she said. "I—I did it; I followed you here because—oh, how hard it is to tell!—because I was jealous of her. I thought that you were both ridiculing me, that you would tell her that you had been obliged to marry me to save yourself from ruin, but that you did not love me, you did not care for me, you disliked me, you hated me, you longed to be free from me—my accursed money was all you wanted—that you would never like me. And I fancied she would pity you in that soft, caressing voice of hers—pity you for being burdened with a wife you did not love. I believed that you would tell her that I was jealous of her, that then both of you would laugh at me."

The passion of her words had deadened all sense of shame. She had forgotten that which her jealousy had prompted her to do, and remembered only her great, bitter wrongs. She was no longer a heroine—only a passionate, injured, deeply loving woman. She rose to the occasion.

The earl was impressed more than he would have cared to own.

"I could not bear it," she continued, passionately. "I should have done worse than this, I am sure, if it could have been done. I was mad. I will tell you all. I was mad because I had learned to love you with all the strength of my heart and soul. I could not bear that you should jest about me with careless words; it was as though you stabbed me for pleasure."

"You love me?" he interrogated, incredulously.

The dark shawl fell from her, and she stood erect before him in all the dignity of her pale, passionate beauty. Her amber dress and her rubies gleamed in the starlight; the queenly head was held aloft; she no longer pleaded and wept; the memory of her passionate love and her bitter wrongs filled her with angry pride.

Solidified Petroleum as Fuel.

A Californian, by a special process, has succeeded in solidifying petroleum into a black, solid mass, which burns like coal, with less smoke, and throws out thrice the heat. It can be cast in bricks, is clean and gives out little petroleum odor.

AN OLD BULLY.

People who live in fear of his attacks.

How to avoid him or beat him off.

If biliousness isn't the bully of the body then what is? When once biliousness gets the upper hand you don't dare say your stomach is your own. "Don't you dare eat that fish says biliousness, or you'll see what I'll do." You take the dare and you do see or rather feel, the weight of the bully's revenge. The head aches, not a regular ache, but an open and shut ache. The eyes ache, not with a dull, tired ache, but with an aggressive ache, as if they were being bored by a gimlet. The stomach trembles with nausea. "The whole head sick and the whole heart is faint." There are scores of hundreds of people who live under the dominion of this bully biliousness that they don't dare eat or drink without his permission. There's no need of such slavery. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills effectually cure biliousness.

"For fifteen years I have used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, and find them very effective in all kinds of bilious complaints. They are mild in operation and easy to take. I prefer them to any other pill, and have yet to see the case where they have failed to cure."—A. SWANBER, Texarkana, Ark.

"I have used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills in cases of biliousness and general disorders of the stomach and bowels and have found them to be always reliable. They are less liable to gripe than other purgatives, and although mild in action, they are thorough in operation. They are the best family physic that can be had."—PETER J. DUFFY, Rockport, Texas.

"Having used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills for years and thoroughly tested them, both as a preventive and cure for biliousness, I can truthfully say that I believe them to be the best medicine for the purpose and they do all that is claimed for them."—JNO. E. KOLB, Shark, Ark.

Biliousness is in general but a symptom of a more stubborn disorder, constipation. Constipation is the root of almost all physical evils, and Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills cure almost all these physical evils by going to the root. They cure constipation, and the consequent maladies, biliousness, heartburn, palpitation, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, nervous irritability, foul breath, coated tongue, and a score of other miserable maladies that have their origin in constipation. Dr. Ayer's Pills are the surest and safest remedy for all diseases of the liver, stomach, and bowels. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook and read the story of cures told by the cured. Free. Address the J. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

GENERAL DEFICIENCY BILL.

Measure Carrying $224,000,000 Passed by the House—Debate on Hawaiian Annexation Is Begun in the Senate—Other Congressional News.

Friday, June 17. In the house the general deficiency bill occupied attention during the day. No action was taken. In the senate the bill to incorporate the International American Bank, in accordance with the recommendation of the Pan-American congress, was passed by a vote of 26 to 23. The design of the measure is to furnish such banking and exchange facilities as will promote trade between the United States and the countries of Central and South America. The bill provides that the bank shall have a capital stock of $5,000,000, which may be increased to $25,000,000.

Monday, June 20. The house passed the general deficiency bill, carrying $224,000,000. The bill passed practically as reported to the house from the committee on appropriations.

Discussion by the senate of the question of Hawaiian annexation was begun in open session. A motion to adjourn, the vote upon which was a test of strength between the friends and opponents of annexation, was defeated decisively—45 to 15.

Tuesday, June 21. After passing several bills of minor importance the house, in committee of the whole, considered a bill to refer to the court of claims certain claims of persons of property taken or destroyed by the confederate invasion into the southern counties of Pennsylvania.

In the senate the discussion of Hawaiian annexation was proceeded with. Mr. White (dem., Cal.), the leader of the opponents of annexation, spoke for three hours and a half. Mr. Mitchell (dem., Wis.), made a brief speech in opposition to the proposed annexation.

To Arbitrate Sealers' Claim. M. Rivier, professor of international law at the Brussels university, has been appointed arbitrator in the matter of Great Britain's claim for an indemnity against Russia for the latter's alleged illegal seizure of Canadian sealers.

Fifty Persons Drowned. During the launching of the new British first-class battleship Albion at Blackwall one of the lower stages of the yard collapsed, immersing hundreds of people. It is estimated that fifty persons were drowned.

To Investigate the Bank's Affairs. Attorney-General Maynard has been ordered to investigate the affairs of the People's Savings Bank of Mount Pleasant, Mich., which failed last year.

Illinois Building Dedicated. June 21 was Illinois day at the Omaha exposition, and the handsome building of that state was dedicated with elaborate ceremonies.

To Lead the Third Expedition. It is definitely announced that the third expedition to the Philippines will be commanded by Brig-Gen. Arthur MacArthur.

Warships Bombard Balquiri. Several American warships bombarded Balquiri, some distance east of Aguadores and near the railway line to Santiago de Cuba.

Re-enforcements for Shafter. The best efforts of the war department are being directed to preparations for sending re-enforcements to Gen. Shafter at Santiago de Cuba.

Third Call for Volunteers. Information from official sources shows that a third call for volunteers to the number of 100,000 is under consideration by the government.

Spanish Force at Santiago. Juan Santos, a Cuban pilot, reports that he entered Santiago de Cuba and found there a Spanish garrison of 15,000 men.

Say the Terror Was Not Sunk. The Spanish torpedo boat Terror, which was reported to have been sunk by the Oregon, is said to be safe at San Juan, Porto Rico.

Revenue Collections Increase. The monthly revenue shows the May collections of internal revenue amounted to $14,098,117, an increase over May last year of $3,281,225.

Large Army for Cuba. The operations in Cuba planned by the president and his advisers will find use for 170,000 men—the number for which Gen. Miles asked.

Wisconsin Democratic Convention. The Wisconsin democratic state convention will be held in Milwaukee Aug. 31, just two weeks after the republican convention.

WILL NOW STRIKE AT SPAIN.

American Ships to Attack the Coast Cities.

SQUADRON IS BEING FORMED.

Plans Are Completed for the Destruction of Admiral Camera's Fleet, No Matter Whether It May Go—Much Confidence at Washington.

Destruction will be the fate of Admiral Camera's squadron, whether its destination be the Philippines or the West Indies. This is the confident belief of Washington officials, based upon complete and satisfactory accounts of the defective condition of the vessels comprising the fleet, which have been officially confirmed. As a counter move—the result of the early prospective departure of the Spanish fleet from peninsular waters—the authorities have made official admission that plans have been perfected for the formation of a flying squadron to be sent against the Canary islands and the Spanish coast.

Germany to Acquire Philippines. There is talk in Europe that by agreement with France and Spain Germany will acquire sole proprietorship of the Philippine islands, in exchange for which she will return Alsace and Lorraine to France as recompense for this.

Republic Is an Impossibility. Well-informed persons regard the idea of a semi-independent Philippine republic as an absurdity. It is extremely doubtful whether a stable native government can be established.

Peace Negotiations on. The question of negotiating peace between the United States and Spain has been for some days the subject of lively correspondence between the European chancellors.

Sagasta Soon to Resign. Men in Spanish political life are convinced that Prime Minister Sagasta will soon submit to the queen regent a question of confidence, which will probably result in his resignation.

Bryan May Be Under Lee. It is regarded as probable that Col. William J. Bryan and the Nebraska regiment under his command will be assigned to the army corps commanded by Maj. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee.

Will Burn the City. Cuban spies report that the inhabitants of Calmanera have strewn the street with straw and oil, with the intention of destroying the city and fleeing to the hills.

Spanish General Killed. Spies report to Admiral Sampson that the Spanish general, Joral, and several officers were killed at the first trial of the batteries of the Vesuvius at Santiago.

Could Not Reach Agreement. The joint conference of the wage committee of the window glass manufacturers and workers adjourned without having reached an agreement on next year's wages.

Gives Americans Advice. The Cologne Gazette advises the Americans not to enter on a policy of colonial expansion, which, it says, is against their interests and beyond their resources.

War Will Be Pushed. It is asserted at Washington that the war will be pushed with all possible vigor until Spain says she has had enough.

Desert to the Cubans. Spanish volunteers and soldiers have been deserting in considerable numbers from the forces around Matanzas, and joining the Cubans.

No Knowledge of Peace Move. The vatican authorities profess to have no knowledge of or share in the alleged movement of the continental powers toward peace.

To Bombard Boston. Spanish advices say their warships are heading for Boston, Mass., with the intention of bombarding New England towns.

May Attack Porto Rico. News of the sailing of the Cadix fleet has given an impetus to plans for an attack on Santiago and the immediate invasion of Porto Rico.

Railroad Earnings Increase. Gross earnings of 132 American railroads for the first five months of the present year show an increase, as compared with the corresponding period of 1897, of $29,902,830. The aggregate gross earnings of these roads was $224,763,111.

Kansas Apple Crop a Failure. The Kansas apple crop this year will be almost a total failure. Not more than 15 per cent of a crop will be gathered.

Money for Paris Exposition. The conferees on the sundry civil appropriation bill have agreed to a provision for the Paris exposition. It limits the cost to $600,000.

A FATALITY AVOIDED.

(From the Democrat, Goshen, Ind.) When neuralgia is accompanied by a dull, heavy pain near the heart, frequently becoming intense, it generally terminates fatally. Mrs. Nancy Flynn, who lives near Goshen, Indiana, survived such an attack and her advice is worth heeding.

"In the fall of '92," she said, "I began to have trouble with my heart. There was a sharp pain in my breast which became rapidly worse. The doctor was puzzled and put me under the influence of opiates. These sharp attacks followed one another at intervals, and I became weak and had a haggard look. I was constantly in pain, seldom slept and had no appetite.

"At the end of two years I was confined to my couch most of the time and the doctors agreed that my death was only a matter of a short time.

"One day I noticed in a newspaper an item about a woman having been cured of neuralgia of the heart by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I concluded to try them. When I had finished one box I noticed an improvement in my condition, and when I had taken twelve boxes I was completely cured. These pills have done for you what we could not do," said one of my physicians, "they have saved your life."

"That was two years ago and my heart has not troubled me since. I believe I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I take pleasure in telling others about them."

Among the many forms of neuralgia are headache, nervousness, paralysis, apoplexy and locomotor ataxia. Some of these were considered incurable until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were formulated. Today thousands testify to having been cured of such diseases by these pills. Doctors frequently prescribe them and all druggists sell them.

Rats as Hair Restorers. Tsin Ching Chung, a Chinese gentleman who was a Yale student a few years ago, has undertaken the defense of the rat as an article of diet. He says: "What the carrot is to a horse's coat a rat is to the human hair. Neither fact can be explained, but every horseman knows that a regimen of carrots will make his stud as smooth and lustrous as velvet, and the Chinese, especially the women, know that rats used as food stop the falling out of the hair and make the locks soft, silky and beautiful. I have seen it tried many times and every time it succeeded."

Stand High at Court. The favor of the Rothschilds at the English court is very high. Queen Victoria has already paid one visit to Baron Ferdinand Rothschild at his country seat, Waddesdan Court, and now it is announced that she is shortly to pay him another.

Dr. Kay's Renovator.

I can't find words to tell the condition of my stomach, liver and kidneys. Among the multitude of medicines advertised in the papers I read of Dr. B. J. Kay's and sent for it, and I can't say enough in its praise.

If you have any of those old complicated ailments, do as I have done and you will thank me for this advice and feel under everlasting obligations to the Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co. I am fifty-two years old and served under Sherman in the war; since the war I have preached thirty years. I have no object in making this statement only to benefit my friends and brethren among whom I have preached the gospel, and to help them to have the best system renovator in the world introduced among the people. Your friend, JAMES A. SHEPHERD.

Subscribed and sworn to by Rev. J. A. Shepherd, before me this 30th day of April, 1898. G. W. McKEE, Notary Public in and for Pleasant township, Appanoose county, Iowa.

THE ILLS OF WOMEN

And How Mrs. Pinkham Helps Overcome Them.

Mrs. MARY BOLLINGER, 1101 Marianna St., Chicago, Ill., to Mrs. Pinkham:

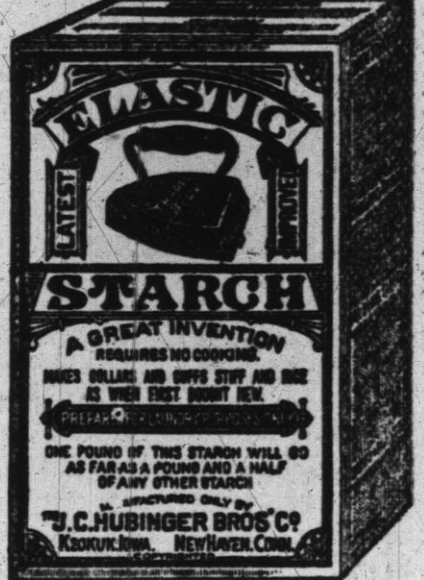

"I have been troubled for the past two years with falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, pains over my body, sick headaches, backache, nervousness and weakness. I tried doctors and various remedies without relief. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound, the relief I obtained was truly wonderful. I have now taken several more bottles of your famous medicine, and can say that I am entirely cured."

Mrs. HENRY DORN, No. 806 Findley St., Cincinnati, Ohio, to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For a long time I suffered with chronic inflammation of the womb, pain in abdomen and bearing-down feeling. Was very nervous at times, and so weak I was hardly able to do anything. Was subject to headaches, also troubled with leucorrhoea. After doctoring for many months with different physicians, and getting no relief, I had given up all hope of being well again when I read of the great good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing. I decided immediately to give it a trial. The result was simply past belief. After taking four bottles of Vegetable Compound and using three packages of Sanative Wash I can say I feel like a new woman. I deem it my duty to announce the fact to my fellow sufferers that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable remedies have entirely cured me of all my pains and suffering. I have her alone to thank for my recovery, for which I am grateful. May heaven bless her for the good work she is doing for our sex."

Unpatriotic Cranks.

Times of emergency and excitement are always certain to develop unbalanced faddists who will insist on rocking their hobby horses instead of riding straight on the living issue. Our late civil war exposed many of these abortive theorists, and some of them found themselves housed in Fort Lafayette. A fresh crop has sprouted. Two very recent instances are specially worthy of note. Mr. Alfred H. Love, president of the Universal Peace union, can see nothing not worthy of the severest reprobation in the American reasons for the present war, while he recognizes much more to praise than to blame in the Spanish dealing with Cuba. He has gone so far as to write an open letter to the queen of Spain, humbly apologizing for the wicked action of his countrymen. While a United States statute expressly provides punishment for giving aid and comfort to the enemy in time of war it would be only "breaking a fly on the wheel" to invoke it in this case, for Mr. Love is amorous for martyrdom no doubt. Laughter, not seriousness, is the proper mood in dealing with such an absurd creature.

Another example is that of a brilliant and well known writer, Mr. Moncure D. Conway, who has lived so long abroad that he has become in some measure denationalized. In an article in the New York Herald he makes a bitter indictment against the practical results of life and government in the United States as subversive of all true liberty of spirit. The subtle implication, the real animus of his paper, which gives it immediate pertinence, is that slavish obedience to the mob spirit is the underlying cause of the present war. The writer does not say this in so many words, but it is written plain between the lines. He marshals ingeniously a phalanx of isolated facts and tendencies culled out of 400 years of history to establish his point and examines them by looking through the reverse end of his telescope. The fact that in the United States, alone of all countries in the world, the most insignificant citizen has fullness of opportunity to make all out of himself possible in culture, wealth, and position he absolutely ignores. Any man has the right to believe any perverse theory, even to publish it if he chooses, but to make it the stalking horse of an insidious assault on the national government is another matter. There is an old maxim, "Inter arma silent leges." But if it is proper "to suspend law amidst the clash of arms" where law is hostile to the end in view, how much more so in the case of fantastic theories which assault the nation, whether or not they are put forth with the show of philosophy. Mr. Conway may not be malignant or consciously unpatriotic in his motive, but in effect he is more dangerous because more insidious and less palpably ridiculous than his brother "crank," who whines, "Not that I love America less, but that I love peace more."

Magazine Editorials.

We have been looking over the magazine editorials for the current month. Almost without exception they are disappointing. We mention no names, nor do we intend to, but it is a fact that if the average newspaper editorial writer were even for one week to pour upon the large type page such inanity as most of the magazines inflict on their readers and call it editorial he would lose his place at once.

The newspaper editorial is sometimes unreasonable. In the hurry of composition it is not polished so highly as it ought to be. The person who writes 2,000 words a day of editorial has no time for the fine points of rhetoric. But he is generally in earnest, generally has something to say. His words throb with the warm blood of living conviction and come straight out from his thought.

Your magazine editorial writer sits in his chair and spins out a few pages per month of trifling criticisms or mild humor over something that is of the least possible consequence. The great questions of the time, the issues that fill men with enthusiasm and furnish the mainspring of their actions from day to day, the things that the nation thinks about and talks about, the magazine editorial writer somehow misses. It is as if he were a high school girl writing a composition on friendship. We wish the magazine editorial writers would wake up.

Children's Books.

A prominent New York journal has been inviting discussion and suggestion as to the most desirable books for young people to read. Many lists have been contributed, most of which show good sense in their selection. Such names, however, as De Foe, Bunyan, Sir Walter Scott, Cooper, Kingsley, Hawthorne and in our own day Kipling, Conan Doyle, Stanley Weyman, Lewis Carroll and Miss Alcott at once appeal to all old and young, for adults as well as youngsters delight in them. Good wine needs no bush. In fact, it may be set down as certain that young people take keenest pleasure in many of the books which are scarcely less tidbits for their elders. The age has gone by when it was believed that goody goody wish wash was the seasonable pabulum for lusty young minds reaching out with ardent imaginings to the unknown and that they could grow on skimmilk.

The point to be made is this: Healthy minded and well nurtured boys and girls as a rule go as unerringly to good reading as ducks to water. They don't need much advice on the subject other than what they naturally get at home. Certain classic stories are of course lighthouses. The immense multiplication of wholesome "juvenile" authors, in addition to these the cheapening of books and the increasing number of public libraries, all of which nowadays make a feature of works for the young, put first rate reading within the reach of boys and girls everywhere. Gruff old Dr. Johnson once said to a friend bewailing his inability to give his son a good education, "Turn him loose in a library and let him graze at will." Without going as far as did the learned doctor in the full implication of this advice it may be said that the majority of boys and girls rightly brought up go straight to the best reading in fiction, history and travel as well as if they had been led there by the ear. The pointer puppy shows his instinct before he is broken to the gun.

The Chautauqua Season.

Notes of preparation are beginning to hum on beautiful Lake Chautauqua for the forthcoming season of combination school and picnic which has made the old Indian name as famous as it is mellifluous. Circulars flood the mails inviting to "the feast of reason and flow of soul" in homely language. The eyes of thousands of young schoolteachers of both sexes, as well as of others intellectually ambitious for at least a smattering of knowledge, are turned longingly to those blue waters of western New York where Minerva and Cupid have equal sway as patron deities. Yet it is not a vision of "sweet girl graduates" which is conjured up, but of more sober minded young women who have had their taste of the responsibilities of life. Here they find the means of a better equipment for work, while the facilities of rest, relaxation and enjoyment are those of a first class watering place.

The Chautauquan idea is peculiarly American. In no other country could it have blossomed into such lusty vigor. Lectures and courses of study on an immense gamut of subjects, from Egyptian hieroglyphics and the Greek digamma down to the art of cooking, are found quite consistent with much more than a dainty sip of the social goblet. Propinquity, that most wonderful of magicians, weaves its subtle web, and Hymen is always near by ready to promise his early benediction. Minerva herself wears a wreath of roses and no longer quarrels with the other laughing goddess. Let musty and cynical pedants laugh. The theory within its limits is sound to the core, and we say, "More power to the Chautauquan elbow" in practice. The mental stimulus and experience outflowing permeate every part of the country. American soil is so rich that "tickling it with the hoe makes it laugh with the harvest."

It would have belittled the massive proportions of Gladstone's greatness if he had accepted a title. Even a dukedom would have been a gimcrack jewel set on that mighty front. But not so with his family. It is a customary method in England to reward public service in this fashion. There would be nothing inconsistent in Mrs. Gladstone accepting the title of Countess of Liverpool or of his eldest son being brivettied Viscount Hawarden, as is now proposed.

There seems to be a difference of opinion as to the result of the great Leiter wheat deal in Chicago. Some estimate his profits as upward of $5,000,000. Others claim he has lost money. Whichever way it has gone, the authoritative announcement that the conjuror has ceased manipulating the bulls is welcome. Juggling with the prices of the great food staple is specially criminal at such a time as this.

All departed for their home at a late hour, after having spent a most delightful evening.

The commencement exercises of the Wauconda High school held at the Oakland hall on Friday evening of last week were attended by one of the largest and most select audiences Wauconda has ever seen. The exercises were opened by the choir singing "Fairy Voices," followed by invocation by Rev. Dutton. Miss Grace Mullen's essay entitled "Success" was of unusual merit, it being bright and original and was delivered in an entertaining manner. A duet, "When Life is Brightest," which was sang in an especially pleasing manner, was followed by Albert R. Roder's essay entitled "The Unhappy Isle." It was a masterpiece, showing the young man to be an observer and student of history. A selection by the quartet, "The Auctioneer," was well rendered, after which Miss Emma A. Welch delighted the audience by delivering a well prepared essay entitled "The Ruins of Time," followed by a solo by Mrs. C. K. Werden which was sung in an especially sweet manner. The class address delivered by Rev. D. C. Dutton bristled with good, common sense, and was listened to with close attention. John Golding presented the diplomas, and after another song the exercises were brought to a close by Rev. Dutton pronouncing the benediction.

BONNIE BESSIE.

BY Y. Z.

"BONNIE Bessie" every one called her, and rightly enough; for of all the Highland lassies who gathered at the little kirk Sabbath mornings, not one was half so pretty and winning as Bessie.

Squire Renfrew of the Red Pass was desperately in love with Bessie, and sought to make her his wife in spite of difference in rank. The herds at the Red Pass were the finest and largest in the neighborhood; the barn and storehouses were always well filled. He was a bachelor, something over two score years old. And he wanted "Bonnie Bessie" for his wife.

"If the lassie thinks she can fancy me," he said, addressing Bessie's grandmother, as he stood under the low, brown rafters of the little Black Lynn cottage, a hot flush mounting to the shining crown of his bald head. "If the lassie thinks she can fancy me, the bargain's made. I'm ready and willing to lead her to the kirk tomorrow; and if a good, true husband and some gold and siller will make her happy, she'll be as happy as a queen at the Red Pass."

Bessie listened, with wide, startled eyes, burning cheeks and quivering lips. She held her peace, standing, tall and slim, in a sort of stunned silence, until her gray-haired lover had taken his leave. Then she burst forth into vehement, passionate protest.

The old grandmother suffered her to storm until her passion was spent.

"Well, 'tis o'er now, and ye'll simmer down and keep quiet, mebbe. I've let ye have yer say, and now I'll have mine. We're poor folk, me and you. I found it hard to get bread when I had but my own mouth to feed, and since I've been burdened wi' you I've gone to bed morn' a night fit to cry wi' hunger. But I've borne it all an' done my best, an' always been willing to gi' you a share o' my last crust."

"But, dearest grandma—" "Now, lookee here, my lass," interrupted the old woman, lifting her bony finger, and glowering fiercely upon Bessie; "if ye're fule enou' to refuse this good fortin, that ends it 'ewist us two. You pack out o' my house, and ne'er cross the threshold again."

Bessie was silent. The great world beyond the Highland peaks seemed so dim and far away, and the old home scenes were so familiar.

The autumn days drifted on, and in the spring time she was going to the kirk with Squire Renfrew and be made his wife.

The spring time came and the wedding day was close at hand, when, one evening just before the gloaming, Bessie went to fill her pitcher, as usual, at the rocky spring near by. She had accomplished her task, and lifted the pitcher to her shoulder, and had started, feet twinkling prettily below her short petticoat as she stepped from stone to stone in crossing the little brawling stream, when suddenly she uttered a stifled cry, and staggering to a moss-grown bowlder, sat down and put the pitcher hastily on the ground, pressing her hand on her heart and trembling all over.

"It's his ghaist, it's his ghaist," she cried, "and oh, how sair he looked at me!"

Whatever she had seen, or fancied she had seen, there was nothing in sight when she next looked up; nothing except the overhanging rocks of the glen, the brook shimmering in the evening light, and the white birch trees swaying spectrally against the sky.

"He has come from his grave," she cried, glancing fearfully around. "I dare na, dare na do it. Oh! forgive me, Jamie, that I ever thought o' it."

She drew a silken cord, which encircled her throat, from her bosom, as she spoke, and kissed the slender hoop of silver which depended from it. "I'll never ha' peace if I marry the squire," she said, "and I ought na ta ha' it; I shall feel I am a traitor. And, oh! Jamie, Jamie, after all, I love no one but you, and never can."

Suddenly she rose, with resolution stamped on every feature.

"I must give the squire his ring back," she said, brushing the last tears from her eye. "It is hard for him; but there is no other way. Then, Jamie, then, perhaps, you'll forgive me, dear."

Leaving her pitcher there, she tossed back her abundant locks, as she finished this adjuration, and went speeding away, through the falling darkness, with the light foot of a chamouis. When she reached the Red Pass the bright glow of the warm ingle-side lit the windows. She approached the nearest one, and pressed her sad, tired, yet resolute face against the glass.

A minute, and she tapped lightly against the glass. The squire turned quickly, stared, and then started to his feet.

"Well now, well now, what's the meaning o' this?" he cried, rushing across the room and throwing up the window. "Bessie, my lassie, what's happened?"

"Something that never should ha' happened," she answered, looking at him with a sort of desperate defiance, and drawing the gold ring from her finger, as she spoke. "I've come to give this back to you, Squire Renfrew. I was wrong ever to let you put it on."

"Why, child, what do you mean?" "Take your ring," she said. "You've heard o' 'Auld Robin Grey,' maybe, haven't you?"

"Yes, I have. But what then?"

"Well, I had a Jamie once," she went on, clutching at the little silver ring suspended from her neck, a great throb of pain shaking her; "he gave me this, and I can't ever wear any other ring. He—he went off to seek his fortune," with another repressed sob, "and he was lost at sea. I tried to forget him, but I cannot. I can't keep my promise to you, Squire Renfrew—I—I couldn't feel like she did to 'Auld Robin Grey'—I should hate you—I should—"

And here she broke down completely. He took the ring she offered, and paused for a moment. A look of unutterable pain and regret came into his eyes.

"So," he said, slowly, "you have come to tell me this, and to ask for your freedom? And you really think, too, you have seen Jamie's ghaist?"

"Yes. And I shall never return to grandmother again. I dare not. So I am going away."

"Bessie, my darling," cried a voice, as his strong arm clasped her. The next moment she was on the breast of her lover, who had come back alive and safe.

A few days after there was a happy marriage at the kirk, Squire Renfrew himself giving away the bride, our "Bonnie Bessie."

RELIC OF LIVINGSTONE.

Coat Worn by the Explorer Found in the Heart of Africa.

From the London Daily News: The Charterhouse school contains a relic of Livingstone, presented to the institution by Bishop Maples. The relic is an old tattered coat, given by Livingstone in the course of his last journey to one of his native followers. This native gave it, many years after, to Bishop Maples. The bishop gave an account of the incident. The native African, he writes, described Livingstone: "A short man, with a bushy mustache, and a keen, piercing eye, whose words were always gentle, and whose manners were always kind, whom as a leader it was a privilege to follow, and who knew the way to the hearts of all men. . . . Then he showed me the coat, it was ragged now, he knew, but he had kept it those ten years in memory of the giver, from whom it had been a legacy when they parted at Mataka's. To no one but an Englishman would he part with it, but he let me have it as one of Livingstone's brothers (he said), and it now lies in the museum at Charterhouse school. The black, of course, did not talk in the above style precisely. But you can see what he was at. It will interest anthropologists to know that Maples and his white followers, when they visited a certain tribe which no European had reached before, took them for ghosts. Histories of adventures in the Australian bush contain like instances. Sir George Grey, long ago, described how a poor Australian black woman took him for the spirit of her dead son, and how she clung to him.

Women Criminals Outnumber Men.

Russia's penal statistics show that in the dominion of the czar the women criminals outnumber the men by nearly 50 per cent, just the contrary being the case in other countries. Most of the women criminals are unmarried, and the majority come from the laboring classes in the cities.

FOR WOMEN AND HOME

ITEMS OF INTEREST FOR MAIDS AND MATRONS.

Some Notes of Fashion—Empire House Gowns Favored by the Girl of Pretty Neck—Many Colors and Shades for Evening Gowns—Making Good Tea.

Not All the Gold in Klondike.

ITHIN my little cottage Are peace and warmth and light And loving welcome waiting When I come home at night The polished kettle's steaming, The snowy cloth is spread— And close against my shoulder There leans a smooth brown head!

Her eyes are lit with laughter (They light the world for me)— "For how much would you sell me? Now tell me, sir!" cries she, 'Tis then I answer, somehow, Between a smile and tear: "Not for all the gold in Klondike! The gold in Klondike, dear!"

When the cozy tea is over, With many a frolic fond, I sit and read my paper, And from the room beyond I hear the clink of china, The tread of nimble feet, And broken bits of singing That somehow ripple sweet. I hear a rush and rustle Behind my easy chair; Short, chubby arms enclasp me And choke me unaware! Into my arms is tumbled A crinkled golden head, A ball of fluffy whiteness That ought to be in bed. She asks her mother's question— I kiss the answer clear— "Not for all the gold in Klondike! The gold in Klondike, dear!"

In dim and dusty office I dig my bits of gold; I suffer not with hunger Nor perish with the cold. My nuggets need be tiny (I dig them with a pen), But the Yukon's golden gravel I leave for other men. My treasure lies exhaustless, My claim is staked with care; What is all the gold in Klondike Since I'm love's millionaire?

AN EVENING GOWN.

Evening Gowns.

One of the prettiest dancers on the vaudeville stage in New York has a skirt or rather a series of skirts shading from deep coral to the faintest pink in chiffon. Way underneath the skirt is deep coral growing lighter and lighter as the layers near the surface. The gown is typical of the evening gown of the season, which puts shade over shade, always using diaphanous materials. Such a gown is of pale yellow silk, covered with white chiffon. The chiffon, in turn, is covered with a lattice work of fine black lace insertion. The sleeves have the same lattice work, with short flounces falling over them. A novel idea and one that is comparatively inexpensive is to make the gown of silk muslin over a color. The silk muslin should be white and be covered with narrow horizontal bands of ribbon, set on at intervals of an inch. Some of the prettiest gowns have only the blouses covered in this way and have around the bottom of the skirt a few rows to match. An elaborate dinner gown has a skirt of pale gray brocade, with bodice of plain gray silk. Over the bodice is bloused gray chiffon, and above that dainty white lace falls. The décolletage is encircled by queerly shaped revers of vivid coral silk, and the same material is used to finish the waist. Long sleeves cover the arms and finish in bulging volumes of lace at the wrist.—The Latest.

To Make Good Tea.

Tea should never be brewed in a copper kettle—that positively must go, and an earthenware pot is an absolute necessity. Earthenware which is not glazed on the inside is the best. The kind of tea used is a matter of individual choice, but really good teas are expensive. The tea the Japanese use in offering entertainment to their best friends costs from $5 to $10 a pound. Sugar and cream are merely not tolerated—they are never used by people who really respect tea. Sugar may be allowable, but cream never. In fact, if tea is properly made, no one will want to spoil its delicious bouquet. The best way to make tea, although it is troublesome, is to pour boiling water into the teapot on the tea and let it stand a few minutes, and after the required strength has been acquired, pour the tea through a strainer into another earthenware pot over a spirit lamp which will keep the tea hot. This does away with all fear of tannin, which is derived from the tea leaves steeping in the water if it is left on them.

A Morning Dress.

The cut of morning dresses is monotonous and unbecoming, for though the overlapping fullness may make the figure appear slim, it is also apt to give an untidy bunched appearance, as though the wearer were slipping out of her skirt, and for stout figures it would be difficult to find anything more inelegant. The close fitting ruffled sleeves make the arms appear unduly long, especially when the cuffs fall over the hand. Such gowns nearly all display pretty embroidery applied to the front of the bodices; even the thicker ma-more expensive than the striped flannels, which are not quite so new, but still worn.

Opera Capes.

Many short opera capes are being made in white satin and feather boas carried round high collars have long ends, which fall in the front. An inexpensive make of moire in all colors has been utilized for the same purpose, the capes being very full, with a large, round hood at the back, edged with tipped marabout. Cerise poplin, lined with Thibet fur, is a beautiful opera cloak, while some in corded silk, with small crescents brocaded, have a V-shaped plait down the center of the back. Full mink capes, bordered with a frill of the same fur, serve for evening and morning, and for those who can afford it there is nothing to equal sable made in the same way.

Empire House Gowns.

In describing the house gown it may easily be divided into two classes—one for the girl with the pretty neck and the other for the girl who finds a high collar more suitable to her style of beauty. On other gowns may Dame Fashion lay down rigid rules regarding neck fixings, but where is the girl of pretty neck who would cover it with her house gown?

For the pretty neck Greek and empire gowns are modish. A girl bachelor of New York who is under the necessity of making few gowns answer the purpose of many has hit upon a brilliant idea. She has an empire house gown of a soft woolen material in brilliant red—a color most becoming to her. The gown is made with short, puff sleeves and a low, rounding décolletage. Sometimes she wears it in this way, but at other times she adds a sleeved guimpe, with high Medici collar of white silk. In either way is the effect charming, and unobtrusive man is readily deceived into thinking it two gowns instead of one.

An equally attractive house gown is of pale blue cashmere, with long jacket fronts of cashmere and insertion. The sleeves are tight and have caps of insertion.

Simulated bolero fronts, or genuine boleros of lace, are quite popular for the house gown. A very dainty model is made of satin ribbon and lace, banded together.—The Latest.

Servants' Recommendations.

Young Housekeeper is troubled about the best course to pursue when servants leave her. They ask her for references for a new place, and she in the kindness of her heart has given several that are by no means just to the new employer. She would like some advice as to how far she can conscientiously go. Answer: It is no more to one's credit to deceive about one thing than another. A woman who will give a good character to a dishonest servant is guilty of a very serious breach of good faith. Housekeepers must take maids on trust, and they should be very strict in investigating their previous record. All families are so much at the mercy of their help that something should be done for their protection. Tell the exact truth; it is always safest.

Waffles.

One quart of sweet milk, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder mixed in flour enough to make stiff batter; one cup of melted butter, six eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, and whites added last. Salt. Bake at once.

Orange short Cakes.

Make a light biscuit dough and bake in a pie dish. Take out and split as soon as cool. Cover the layers with sliced oranges, sprinkled with sugar, and serve with cream.

Friendship of Trip.

Cut fresh honeycombed tripe about two inches square. Cover with water in frying pan. When heated add butter, a dash of pepper, and thickening; boil and dish.

SHOW A MARKED IMPROVEMENT.

During the Past Week Prof. J. I. Sears' Pupils at Palatine, Barrington and Cary Give the Most Entertaining and Successful Concerts of the Season—Large Audiences in Attendance to Enjoy the Musical Treats.

Prof. J. I. Sears has just cause to feel proud of his hundred pupils that he instructs in music. The way that those that took part in the concerts during the past week acquitted themselves must be a source of great satisfaction to him. The large audiences that attended the concerts at Palatine, Barrington and Cary showed their appreciation of the marked advancement made by all the pupils during the past year by heartily applauding each number on the programs. There was not a pupil, from the youngest to the oldest, but what showed a great improvement, an evidence that they made good use of the instructions given them. It is a triumph for Prof. Sears that is well merited. There are no towns outside of the larger cities that can boast of a more competent and successful instructor in music than Prof. Sears, and the large patronage he receives is evidence that the people of this vicinity appreciate his efforts. ## NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

MINOR HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Dr. Murphy's Method Tested—William H. Kelly on Trial—Dr. Clark Elected President—Train Makes Quick Time—Bill Was Raised.

Decatur: A rare surgical operation for the cure of tuberculosis or consumption, after the method first attempted within the past few months by Dr. John B. Murphy of Chicago, was performed in Decatur last Tuesday by Dr. William Chenoweth, assisted by Dr. W. J. Chenoweth of Decatur. The subject was Michael Giblin, who is afflicted with acute consumption. The operation consisted in introducing pure nitrogen gas into the pleural cavity, this compressing the diseased lung. At the expiration of ten days the gas will be removed, when the result will be carefully noted. The operation caused no shock to the patient, who is resting tonight more comfortably than since he became sick, and his cough is greatly reduced. He is improved. The indications are that the treatment will be entirely successful.

Dr. Clark Elected President. Abingdon: Thursday morning at 10 o'clock occurred the forty-third annual graduating exercises of Hedding college. Among the diplomas awarded this year was one to E. S. Babcock, who left here in April, and is now in Camp Alger, Virginia, with company D, Sixth Infantry, Illinois volunteers. Dr. H. D. Clark, the newly elected president, was on hand, and was installed into the office to which he was unanimously elected. Rev. A. C. Piersol was elected vice president. Mr. Piersol has formerly been connected with the college, but is at present pursuing post-graduate work in Chicago university. He will be welcomed by all the students with whom he has been associated. This afternoon and evening the annual reunion of the alumni, old students, and friends was held.

William H. Kelly on Trial. Springfield: The trial of William H. Kelly, charged with embezzlement and larceny, was begun in the Sangamon Circuit court. The complaint against Kelly was made by Colonel D. J. Block, owner of the Palace hotel, who alleges that Kelly embezzled between $4,000 and $5,000 while in his employ as manager. When arrested, nearly a year after the crime is said to have been committed, Kelly was holding a responsible position with J. V. Farwell & Co. of Chicago and was drawing a large salary. The trial will probably not be concluded before the end of the week. Some sensational developments are looked for. Kelly has been in jail here since his arrest, over six months ago.

Bill Was Raised. Peoria: Rudolph J. Gerdes, son of Alt Gerdes, formerly city treasurer, was arrested today by United States Deputy Marshall I. O. Tripp on a charge of attempting to pass a raised $2 bill. J. H. Fischer, a groceryman, discovered the nature of the bill and informed the authorities. Gerdes is an employee of A. Schiller, 102 Franklin street, Chicago, and when not on the road has made it a practice to loaf in the state's attorney's office at the courthouse. A few months ago two men were arrested here for passing the raised bill. It is a good $2 note, but had been raised to a $20 bill, the work being particularly fine.

Coal Dealers Elect Officers. The Coal Dealers' Association of Illinois and Wisconsin met in annual session at the Great Northern hotel, Chicago, and decided to continue its war against the wholesalers and miners who persist in selling direct to the consumer. The following officers were elected: President, Delos Hull, Oak Park; vice president, J. F. Harral, Aurora; executive committee, C. M. Cutting, Lake Forest; F. M. Durkee, Lake Geneva, Wis.; I. C. Brown, Oshkosh, Wis.; W. N. Sanford, Freeport, Ill.; W. H. Simpson, Milwaukee. T. A. Bedwell, of Rockford, Ill., retains the office of secretary and treasurer.

Train Makes Quick Time. Decatur: Another fast run was made by the Wabash railroad's continental limited train today. It made the run from Tilton to Granite City, 176 miles, in 170 minutes. The train left Tilton an hour and thirty minutes late. It arrived at Granite City at 6:50 p. m., only twenty-nine minutes late. A stop of two minutes was made at Tolono for a crossing, two and a half minutes at Decatur for a change of engines and three minutes at Litchfield for water. The total loss of time for stops was seven and one-half minutes, making the actual running time 162 1/2 minutes.

Named by Tanner. Springfield: Governor Tanner has made the following appointments: Rev. Henry W. Bolten of Chicago, to succeed Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage as chaplain of the Second regiment, Illinois volunteers; Charles P. Wright, as captain of company B, second regiment; J. F. Scheying, as adjutant of the First battalion, Second regiment, Illinois volunteers.

HISTORY OF THE WAR.

Important Events Reviewed and Condensed Into Reliable Form for Our Readers.

Tuesday, June 14.

A dispatch received from Mr. Whigham, recently released from Cabanas, states that Havana is well nigh impregnable, the defenses having been strengthened by a double rampart of modern guns. He also says that there are 50,000 troops in the city, that two vessels with cargoes of provisions ran the blockade, and there is no danger of famine for months, and little sickness. In the second night attack of the Spanish on the marines at Guantanamo two of the Americans were killed and several others were wounded. A company of insurgents co-operated with the Americans, but rendered no practical aid. The marines are fighting bravely in the determination to hold the ground until the troops arrive. Dispatches from Manila dated June 8, received via Shanghai, reported the Spaniards had been driven back to the stockades surrounding the city and that American troops were expected June 15.—News from Cadiz via Gl-

Wednesday, June 15.

The first heavy fighting at close quarters between the American marines and the Spaniards took place at Guantanamo June 14. As usual, American pluck and discipline won. The little invading force showed splendid courage and spirit and was victorious in several engagements, without losing a man. Sixty dead Spaniards were left on the field at one point as the result of a brilliant attack, including a bayonet charge, led by Captain Elliott. Three expeditions were sent out from the fort this morning. The main body crossed the ridge two miles from camp under Captain Elliott with eighty Cubans. About noon a party heard firing in that direction and attempted to make a junction, but found the Spaniards in the path taken by Elliott. We fell back on Lieutenant Mahoney's outpost and learned from his men that Elliott's force had actually charged the Spaniards with bayonets fixed. This would only be possible on the other side of the hill, where the ground is clear. Cheers came from the Dolphin's crew, while shelling the enemy from the sea around the point of the harbor. By clever maneuvering Elliott had got a large body of Spaniards hemmed in and was inflicting terrible punishment. Elliott's force was operating from the north and Mahoney's from the west, while the Dolphin was firing with excellent effect from the sea at a range of about 1,000 yards. The Spaniards were on the crest of a mountain, having been driven from one point to another by the advancing Americans. The marines were so placed that they almost surrounded the Spaniards, who were surprised and bewildered. Every few minutes a shell would strike right in the midst of the panic-stricken Spaniards, killing and maiming. All the fight was soon taken out of them by the furious onslaught of the Americans. Once when they showed a bold front for a moment Elliott's men charged bayonets and completely routed them.

When the Spaniards saw their comrades falling by dozens under the attack of the land force and the shells from the Dolphin they gave up the fight and fled over the hills and into the brush, leaving about 100 Mauser rifles and several thousand rounds of ammunition on the field. Sixty of the enemy were killed at that place and many more in the surrounding brush. I recognized the uniform of the civil guard in the enemy's ranks. It had not been long since I was in unpleasant proximity to these chaps in Havana, and when I found them on the battlefield here at Guantanamo it was easy to conclude that Blanco had sent them to reinforce the troops and guerrillas already on the ground.

A telephone exchange is now established in Barrington. Those who now have telephones in their residences are Henry Boehmer and Dr. Clausius.

The property owners, living in Barrington on the Lake county side, received notice this week as to the amounts of their assessments due on water mains.

The town of Cuba Tax Reviewing Board will meet Monday, June 27th, to hear complaints, if any, in regard to the assessments made for this year on property and real estate.

The severe rain storm last evening caused such a large volume of water to congregate in the hole in Main street in front of George Foreman's new building that it forced its way through Foreman's 12-inch basement wall, tearing down twenty feet of it.

If you have a sweetheart bring her to the M. W. A. picnic at Barrington on July 4th. A valuable prize will be given the prettiest girl, and another prize goes to the most popular one.

A picnic will be given by the Jugendverein of St. Paul's church next Thursday. All are invited to partake of the hospitalities of the young folks and enjoy a good social time with them.

The water works system was given several tests the past week, and judging from the force of the stream and height attained, it will no doubt prove to do more than expected. It has not been definitely settled when the final test will be made.

There will be services at the M. E. church Sunday morning at 10:30 the usual hour. There will be no services Sunday evening on account of the Camp-meeting. Part of the services at the camp-grounds will be in English Sunday afternoon and evening.

The water works was put to a test Tuesday afternoon and proved very satisfactory. The water from the stand pipe was cut off and water was forced by the engine direct through the mains from the reservoir. The test was made at the village square and a large stream was sent several feet over the liberty pole.

The M. W. A., will give a grand celebration and pic-nic on July 4th. No pains have been spared to make this the best pic-nic ever given in these parts. ### Children's Day at the M. E. Church.

Last Sunday evening, one of the most popular and successful Children's Day exercises of the season was given by the Sunday-school of the M. E. church. The program lasted for more than an hour, consisting of speaking, and singing and class exercises, and was enjoyed by all present. The church was crowded to the doors, although the isles were filled with extra chairs. The church was beautifully decorated with palms, plants and flowers. While all the young people and children on the program are to be commended for their parts, yet special mention should be made of the young people's quartet, and the little children of the primary class. At the close of the exercises a "free will offering" was made by the school for the cause of missions and education.

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

through the soul of the living, elevating, refining and spiritualizing all.

Miss Cornelia Smith in an able manner told of the "World's Great Battle Fields." Miss Smith touched a responsive chord in the hearts of her listeners by her remarks on the Spanish nation, which were as follows: "Who has not heard of the defeat of the Spanish Armada by the English, thereby making England 'Mistress of the Sea,' insuring the independence of Holland and weakening Spanish influence in European affairs?" From this defeat dates the decay of Spain. We now see what she has come to be—one of the lowest nations of the world. Why has the U. S. taken up arms against her? Because of her inhuman treatment of the Cubans and her treachery to our brave sailors. She has refused to profit by her dearly bought experience, and it now becomes our duty to teach her a lesson she can never forget. Their glory and their might shall perish; and their very names shall be vile before all the people in the light of a World's Liberty.

Mr. Wilber Harnden gave good evidence of the truth that "America has been and is an Example for Nations." His well worded oration paid a tribute of high respect to America, and showed him a thinker of good ability. "The U. S. stands as the first great example of a lasting republic. The greatest republic of the old world imbibed her principles of government and freedom from the U. S. The nations of South America, gazing from the towering Andes upon the powers of the world for an example, pointed to our country. When Mexico threw off the regal power that was holding her in slavery, she found in our country her example. In 1890, the people of diamond bearing Brazil pointed in sentiment like one mighty index finger to our institutions and laws as her example. We command the world's admiration and esteem, because we have said to the most treacherous nation in the world's history: 'You can no longer ply your infamous work on American soil. You can no longer wantonly rob, outrage and butcher in our fair realms.' And we are first of the world's nations to enter upon a great war, not for aggrandizement but in answer to the cry of suffering humanity.

Mr. Alvin Meier presented the subject of "Citizenship" in an original, plausible way, showing clearly that he has formed the correct conception of true citizenship and one well worthy of imitation. "The consideration of the public good, the welfare of the nation and the interests of mankind at large are kindled and exists only where there is a patriotic emotion and moral enthusiasm for true citizenship. Good citizenship is not attainable if all training for it is deferred until manhood is reached. Such training should begin in infancy. The home is the first school of citizenship. Another and powerful factor in developing citizenship is the school. Here one ought to learn the principles by which to guide his footsteps through life, such as regularity, punctuality, order, quietness and prompt obedience. Thus fitting one's self for self government and acquiring the ability to use the largest liberty as a citizen. Much of the censure and disrespect for our laws lies in the fact of ignorance of them and their purposes. What we need is a more thorough understanding of our governmental institutions, studied in the right spirit, they cannot fail to command respect and obedience. It is only through right conceptions and practicing of politics that will enable our government to accomplish the best results."

Miss Luella Peters delivered a charming oration on "Social Life." Her ideas were excellent and presented with tact and energy. "The beginning of all social life is as an old rule states: 'He that has friends must show himself friendly.' It is within the power of everyone to show a friendly spirit. We are all aware that true society has its strong foundation in nobility of nature and purity of heart. What would man be without society and social organizations? Without society there could be no union of labor, no commerce, no fine arts, no enlarged ideas of benevolence, no religion; in fact, no common enjoyment. The requisites of good society are high moral character, a fair degree of intelligence, culture, a perfect command of temper and good habits. Every social rule ought to withstand the strongest test of reason and usefulness. Society wisely dismisses all conspicuous thoughts of personal feeling."

Reuben Plagge in his class prophecy painted their futures with roseate hues. If it should be their good fortune to ever attain half the greatness predicted for them, their lives will be indeed brilliant. Mr. Plagge displayed vivid imagination and a careful delineation of character. His work was quite meritorious.

"The Humble Origin of Great Men" by Ezra Suhr clearly demonstrated his study of biography and the great lessons of life learned therefrom. He cited as examples of Men who have risen from obscurity Columbus, Gutenberg, Stevenson, Watt, Fulton, Edison, Franklin, Grant and Lincoln. What makes the truly great man? It is the striving ambition which causes him to work and attain his way forward in the world. Whom may we consider great men? They who possessed great mental power and have exercised that power in accomplishing results that have influenced the world's history should be termed great.

From the lives of these men, we may learn a lesson. Columbus the wool-comber became an admiral. Stevenson, the gate keeper, became the inventor of the locomotive, Gutenberg the apprenticed block printer became inventor of movable types, Watt, the indolent schoolboy, set up the first steam engine. Franklin became the greatest statesman of the age. Abe Lincoln, the rail splitter became the emancipator of the slaves in America. Grant, the farmer boy, could be seen later commanding the armies of the U. S."

No biographer could have depicted the beautiful and noble life of Miss Frances E. Willard with more force and truthfulness than did Miss Lillie G. Colby in her oration "Frances E. Willard as an Example." Correctly did Miss Colby say: "Her beauty—that is, the exterior form which we all love to see and most people fall in love with at first sight—is not that which has won her fame and a good name, but it was her purity of heart and goodness of character which beamed in her countenance that made homely features beautiful and her character loved. If Abraham Lincoln was considered one of the greatest men that ever lived, Frances E. Willard is considered the greatest woman of all ages."

Karl B. Volker's subject, "Oratory," was delivered in such an admirable manner which left no room for doubting the young man's ability as an orator and his thorough conception of his subject. His definition of what an orator should be was splendid, and the way he brought out his points well merited the hearty applause that he received at the conclusion of his essay. The young man concluded as follows: "A true orator must be a hero. He is the challenger. He must stand with forward foot in the attitude of the defensive. His speech is not to be distinct from action—his oratory is the signal to the charge. He is the leader the world follows." At the conclusion of his essay he thanked the teachers, school trustees, parents of the graduates, in fact all who had given them encouragement.

The musical selections rendered by Prof. J. I. Sears' Orchestra and the Arlington Heights Mandolin club were excellent.

The Eighth grade was presented with diplomas by Rev. T. E. Ream, who made a neat and interesting talk.

President of the School Board John C. Plagge presented the diplomas to the graduates, making a few appropriate remarks. He gave them some good, wholesome advice and complimented them on their successful completion of the school course. He was listened to very attentively, an indication that his remarks had fallen on fertile soil.

Prof. F. E. Smith is to be complimented on the successful way in which he conducted the High school the past year.
