From Chicago to Buffalo and Return.

BY MRS. E. C. M'INTOSH.

July 15th we took a Grand Trunk train for Buffalo. The weather was hot, and the sleeper was crowded to suffocation. Grand Trunk indeed! we soliloquized. We thought of a big trunk in our attic and wondered whether sleeping in it would not be as comfortable, although not so "Grand." By midnight, however, the conditions changed as we sped through Michigan into Canada, and we were glad to avail ourselves of all the extra wraps at hand to keep us comfortable.

We arrived at Buffalo at 8 o'clock the next morning, when for the first time in forty-four years my feet touched the soil of my native state. Street cars had not been introduced when last I was in Buffalo, and bicycles had not been invented, now both are swarming in the city.

After a fine breakfast at the Geneva House we repaired to the Armory where the B. Y. P. U. convention was in session. Temperance reform and patriotism were both ably discussed and enthusiastically applauded—such clappings I never remember to have heard. Red, white and blue, both in bunting and flowers, prevailed everywhere, and could only be equalled in variety by the shirt waists worn by the lady delegates. At noon the meetings closed for the day and the young people en masse repaired to the Falls. As we were not young people we excused ourselves and took the 3 o'clock train for Arcade to visit relatives. About 5 o'clock we met them at their home, but oh! how changed. What havoc forty-four years with attendant afflictions and disasters does make with the human frame!

After a very pleasant visit we returned to Buffalo on the 22d. We took a cable car to Niagara Falls where we spent twelve hours taking in the sights, the grandeur of which to be appreciated must be seen. This pen cannot do it justice. We left the Falls at 11 o'clock in the evening and reached Chicago at 3 p. m. the next day. Such a "snoozing" trip I never witnessed before. Everybody seemed sleepy, and just as I was about to succumb to a blinding headache a dining car was attached and we feebly traversed the labyrinth through a long train for a cup of tea. We thought of Eliza going a day's journey into the wilderness. In the strength of that tea we reached Chicago and thence home.

Mrs. Charles McLaughlin Laid to Rest.

Mrs. Charles McLaughlin nee Delia Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Palmer of this place, died at her home in Otsego, Mich., Saturday, July 23, 1898.

Mrs. McLaughlin was born in Barrington on December 30, 1875, and where she attained womanhood. On November 23, 1897, she was united in marriage to Charles McLaughlin at Chicago, and accompanied her husband to Otsego, Mich.

Her remains were brought to Barrington on Monday. The funeral took place at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, services being conducted at the Baptist church, Rev. S. S. Hageman officiating. A large concourse of people attended the services and followed the remains to their last resting place in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. McLaughlin was an industrious lady of quiet disposition, and possessing all the qualities of a true, Christian woman.

CHAPTER XLV.

LADY CARAVEN decided to follow the advice of her friend Sir Raoul, and forgive her husband. She received him in the pretty little boudoir in which the few months of her girlish life at home had been spent.

She was standing by the window when he entered. His step was so light and quiet that she did not hear him at first; and he looked at her for half a minute in silent admiration. "Hildred!" he called, and at the sound of his voice a crimson flush seemed to burn her neck and face. She was quite silent for a minute, and then she turned to him and held out her hand.

"Can you—do you really forgive me?" he asked. "I hardly dare to hope that it is true."

"It is quite true," she replied; and he detected a slight tremor in her voice. "Let me ask a question in my turn. Is it true that you love me?"

"Yes," he answered. "It is as true as that heaven is above me."

"Will you tell me how long you have loved me?" she asked quietly.

"I will answer you quite truthfully, Hildred," replied the earl. "I cannot tell you. When I first married you—I sin of mine, Mrs. Glenvil, is very ill, and is ordered to Nice. I ask you to let me go with her. She will be away a year—see what that year will effect. If love of me has sufficient influence over you to keep you good, industrious, active, for the benefit of others, as you are now, I shall believe that you love me. If in a year's time you come to me and tell me that you love me better than ever, that time and absence have not changed you, I will return with you, and will make you a most loving, devoted wife. Do you accept my proposal?"

He stood for a few moments in thoughtful silence, and then he said—"Yes, I accept it—I shall be pleased to prove my sincerity to you."

The earl returned to Ravensmere, to show all needful politeness and respect for Lady Hamilton. It was a great relief to him when the doctor pronounced her well enough to return home, and he was a little surprised when he found that she regretted leaving Sir Raoul more than anyone else. The noble, honest soldier had made a great impression on the fashionable, beautiful coquette. "He is a man worth loving," she said to herself.

Then the earl returned to London to see his wife and Mrs. Glenvil off. He went with them to Dover—they had decided upon going to Paris first. He stood for a few minutes on the deck of the steamer before it sailed; he looked with longing, wistful eyes at the face of his young wife.

"Hildred, how I wish that I were going with you," he said.

"So do I," she replied, with a frank, charming smile. "But that would not do—you must stand the test. You will come to fetch me and the year will not seem so long."

He sighed as he looked at her.

"I have a kind of fear that I shall be like the naughty boy in the story book," he said—"I shall meet with my just punishment. Hildred, if anything should happen to me before the year is out—"

"I promise you to return at once if you are ill or in trouble," she replied, earnestly.

"My darling, give me one kiss," he cried, suddenly.

But the countess drew down her veil. "No," she said, "that would make the parting even harder. Good-by. Heaven bless you, Ulric."

"Good-by, my wife," he said; and his eyes filled with tears as he watched the steamer cutting her way through the blue waves.

CHAPTER XLVI.

NO MAN ever set to work with greater zeal than did the handsome earl. He did not delay one hour in London; he went back at once to Ravensmere, only eager to begin work. There was to be no more idleness, no more dissipation, no more self-indulgence. He made up his mind that all the plans his wife had contemplated and begun for the benefit of the estate should be carried out before she returned home. The model cottages should be built, and men with their families residing in them; the schools should not only be erected, but open; the almshouses should be finished, and the old women occupying them. She should find her protegee, Mary Woodruff, installed as portress in one of the lodges; every wish his wife had ever expressed should be carried out, every desire fulfilled; houses should be repaired, farms put in good order—he would neglect not a single thing that she had ever proposed or thought of. No matter what it cost, it all should be done. He took Sir Raoul into his confidence, and they found that by employing extra hands the work could be done in time.

Lord Caraven, in the midst of his labors and toils, did not forget to correspond continually with his wife. He wrote to her every week, never telling her what he was doing, but dwelling continually on his passionate love for her, on his intense desire to see her again.

So the year passed away. It was thought advisable for Mrs. Glenvil to return before the English winter began, and the beginning of September was fixed upon as the time for her and the countess' return. The earl prayed his wife to allow him to go to Nice to escort them home, as was at first arranged. She answered, "No," that her father would do that. She did not wish to meet him again until she met him at home. Her father would bring her to Court Raven station; he could meet her there and take her home.

"She is right," said Sir Raoul; "that seems to me more fitting. She is right, as she always is."

So the day came—a bright September day—when all the world seemed changed to the Earl of Caraven. The train was due at the Court Raven station at 3 in the afternoon, and the earl was to meet it.

Lord Caraven kept his word. The day was celebrated as a wedding day. Great tents were erected in the park, and all the children and the tenantry were feasted therein to their hearts' content. There was nothing but rejoicing and merriment and happiness.

The earl stood by the carriage door when the train stopped. There was not much time for greeting then. He clasped his wife's hands between his own, hesitated for a moment, and then kissed her.

"My wife—my darling—welcome home!" he said.

Then he helped her into the carriage and took his seat by her side. He saw her face grow pale with emotion as the ringing cheers of men, women and children fell upon her ear, and, as the carriage drove slowly along, more than one rough voice cried, "Heaven bless your ladyship! Welcome home!"

They drove slowly, for the crowd was great. It increased as they drove through the park, and when the carriage stopped at the great entrance it was wonderful to see the throngs of people. The earl stood up to thank them for their kind and spontaneous greeting. Then he took his wife's hand in his, and a beautiful smile brightened her face as she looked round upon them—there was hardly one in the vast gathering who had not received some kindness, some favor or benefit from her hands.

"My friends," he said, "every man who loves his wife has a pet name for her. My wife is the good angel of my house." Then they passed indoors, followed by the good wishes of all who knew them.

There was a small and early dinner party at the castle; the members of it were the earl, the countess, Sir Raoul, Arley Ransome and Mrs. Glenvil.

MY DARLING.

vil. After dinner Lord Caraven drew his wife's arm within his own.

"This is our real wedding day, Hildred," he said, "so I am not going to apologize for taking you away from our guests."

They walked across the long drawing room to the balcony, where the last roses of summer were hanging, and where the creepers formed a bower.

"It is not cold," he said. "Will you come out here?" They went out together and stood watching the sun set over the trees in the park.

"First of all, Hildred," said the earl, "guess what news I have for you."

"I cannot guess," she replied.

"You would never have thought it," he said. "I told you in one of my letters how sorry Lady Hamilton was to leave Sir Raoul."

She looked up at him, her face full of interest.

"Yes; you did," she assented.

"It has ended in this way. He met her again in London, and again at Brighton, and they are to be married at Christmas. She has given up flirting, and cares for nothing under the sun but her soldier lover."

"I am glad of it," said Lady Caraven. "She is a beautiful woman, sweet, gentle and gracious. Her only fault was coquetry. I think she is safe with Sir Raoul. He will not allow much of that."

"Still you will own that you are surprised, Hildred?"

But she did not answer him. She had placed her hand in his and was looking away at the light of the setting sun, as one in a happy dream.

"I want to say something else to you, my darling," he continued, putting his arm round her and kissing her fondly, while she nestled to his side. "I want to thank you for all you have done for me, and to tell you that I think the greatest blessing heaven can confer upon a man is the gift of a patient, unselfish, devoted wife—such as has been given to me."

SKILL OF DOCTORS TESTED.

"I thought I should surely die."

When the stomach begins to fail in its duties, other organs speedily become affected in sympathy, and life is simply burden almost unbearable. Indigestion and dyspepsia are so common that only the stronger characters are able to resist the possibilities of misery that inhere in them. A typical example of the sufferings of the victim of indigestion is furnished by the case of a man who was afflicted on for fifteen years, from bad to worse. In spite of doctors he grew constantly weaker, and thought he would die. He got well, however, and thus relates his

"For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from indigestion in its worst form. I tested the skill of many doctors, but grew weaker and worse, until I became so weak I could not walk fifty yards without having to sit down and rest. My stomach, liver, and heart became affected, and I thought I would surely die. I tried Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills and they helped me right away. I continued their use and am now entirely well. I don't know of anything that will so quickly relieve and cure the terrible sufferings of dyspepsia as Dr. Ayer's Pills."—J. C. FRITCHARD, Brodie, Warren Co., N. Y.

This case is not extraordinary, either in the severity of the disease or the prompt and perfect cure performed by Dr. Ayer's Pills. Similar results occur in every case where Dr. Ayer's Pills are used. "They helped me right away" is the common expression of those who have used them. Here is another testimony to the truth of this statement:

"I formerly suffered from indigestion and weakness of the stomach, but since I began the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, I have the appetite of the farmer's boy. I am 46 years of age, and recommend all who wish to be free from dyspepsia to take one of Dr. Ayer's Pills after dinner, till their digestive organs are in good order."—WM. STEINKE, Grant, Neb.

Dr. Ayer's Pills offer the surest and swiftest relief from constipation and all its attendant ills. They cure dizziness, nausea, heartburn, palpitation, bad breath, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, biliousness, and a score of other affections that are, after all, only the signs of a more deep rooted disease. You can find more information about Dr. Ayer's Pills, and the diseases they cure, in the book, "The Cures," a book, a story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Some Naval Lessons of the War.

It is too soon yet to focus all the side lights which will have been shed on the problems of naval warfare by the outcome of the Spanish-American conflict. The failure of the enemy's navy to justify many of the expectations which had been formed of its effective fighting strength precludes some of the light which might have come from a great naval battle on the side of sea tactics and strategy. This probably would not have been much greater, however, in the case of armorclads than of wooden ships, for the broad principles which won at Salamis, Lepanto and Trafalgar will always hold good.

Some things have been made clear. The apprehension felt over the power of the torpedo boat as a sea weapon has been greatly allayed. The battle which annihilated Cervera's fleet proved conclusively that a multiplicity of rapid firing guns, well served, is a pretty sure defense against such a fighting factor. The torpedo boat is, like the cobra, deadly in its stroke, but easily killed before reaching the striking distance. One mysterious terror has received a douche of cold sea water. Only by a union of great skill and daring in the service of torpedo warfare and under most favorable conditions, can it be raised to its Nth power. Again, the importance of increased speed in our battleships has been signally enforced. The Cristobal Colon would unquestionably have escaped had it not been for the Oregon, an unusually swift battleship, and the fast Brooklyn. All the foreign admiralities are planning battleships with minimum speed of from 17 to 18 knots, and yet our naval department fatuously lays out its new ships for a minimum 15 knot speed and rejects the chief engineer's recommendation for the most improved boilers and engines, because they will take up too much room. The need of a greater ratio of armored cruisers with a very high speed has also been made clear as noonday. The great Nelson's cry was ever: "Frigates, more frigates! I have sail of the line enough." High powered, armored ships with their lighter heels and greater firing radius are likely to be quite as valuable an element in triumphant sea fighting as the slower liners with their maximum battery strength. Not fewer battleships, but more armored cruisers should be the shibboleth of coming naval estimates, if we crave a well balanced navy.

The most notable lesson of all is the tremendous potency sheathed in the phrase, "The man behind the gun." More than ever now that the agency of attack involves the skillful command of the most complex, ingenious and nicely adjusted mechanism, do the discipline and intelligence of the purely human factor count. The knowledge of our men and officers, trained by practice to the most prompt and efficient work, has excited the admiration of the world. Here we have had the biggest odds against the Spaniard. And in this element of preponderance we could probably challenge the world for a match.

The wisest disposition of the relics of the civil war, such as captured guns, flags, etc., has been for a good while a mooted question. Now that there is such a perfect fusion of good will and mutual sympathy between the quondam enemies of 1861-5 into a harmonious people, it is but proper that something should be done which should honor the pride of both sides in that great controversy of war. A good suggestion is that of the New York Confederate veterans, that all captured flags, emblems, trophies and other relics, either in public or private possession, shall be preserved in a national war museum at Washington at the expense of the government. If this is done, it will bring forth valuable souvenirs from a thousand hiding places, where they now keep company with rats and mice only, and insure their preservation. Aside from the question of sentiment this disposition of the matter will be of great historical value. There is already a magnificent collection, lately on exhibition in Chicago, which would be a desirable nucleus for such a museum. It could probably be had at moderate cost.

The price of modern warmaking is well illustrated in the case of the Brooklyn in the recent naval engagement. The missiles she hurled at the Vizcaya in a few minutes cost $31,000.

Hawaii.

With the settlement of the Hawaiian question renewed attention is fixed on the advantages which this beautiful group of islands, one of the world's paradises, will give us. Its value as a half way house between America and the east invests the new possession with a commanding interest. The stimulus injected into the desire for annexation by war conditions greatly quickened the result. It became the easier to see how big a factor it would become, whether in the service of peace or war, to strengthen our hands in kneading the future. But putting aside consideration of the Hawaiian Islands as a fulcrum for other ends it seems eminently worth while to have acquired them for themselves alone.

The bureau of statistics, in a recent publication, has given full information about our latest territory. According to these figures, Hawaii imports nearly everything she uses with the exception of sugar, rice, coffee and fruits, and the United States now supplies her with 76 per cent of these needs. Hereafter we shall probably furnish the islands with at least 95 per cent of their imports. On the other hand, we have taken from them practically all the output of their labor, except such as is consumed at home. It is a little interesting to note that the productions of the islands are articles for which the United States has sent money away from its own limits, things of primary and constant demand. The acquisition of Hawaii still further strengthens our independence of the rest of the world as a home producer of the things we need and feeds our sources of export to supply the demands of the rest of the world. The salubrity of the climate and the boundless fertility of the soil make it indisputable that ten years of American management and energy will quintuple its productive power, other things being equal. The yearly jumps for the last half decade have been quite wonderful, but in the future we may look for them to be exploited in "seven league boots." Many other things will no doubt be introduced to diversify the agriculture, such as tea, indigo, cacao and vanilla (the last named indeed are indigenous). There is scarcely anything grown in the Philippines which may not be successfully raised in Hawaii. The most perplexing question will be the labor problem. This can be most easily solved by using the Chinese and Japanese. But that means a further entanglement of the question, which has already so greatly perplexed the Pacific coast.

Practical Points of Amity.

The friendship of Great Britain, which has shown its warmth so unmistakably in sentiment during the last three months, is also evident in more practical stages. In no direction have clashing interests sounded their discord more frequently than in our relations with the Canadian Dominion. Scarcely a year has passed without more or less wrangling to annoy if not to alarm the authorities at Washington, Westminster and Ottawa. Full provision has now been made for the final settlement of the questions at issue between the United States and her northern neighbor in the form of a joint commission. All matters of dispute which have arisen during the last 30 years down to date, including the Alaska boundary, the sealing problem, the Atlantic fisheries, reciprocity and hostile tariffs, general trade interests and Klondike regulations, will be treated with a view to permanent arrangement. The commission, with earlier sittings at Quebec, will probably finish their work at Washington.

Still more interesting, however, is the organization of an Anglo-American committee of 500 members to work for and cement Anglo-Saxon friendship. Made up entirely of British membership, it includes the most eminent and influential men of the land, representing all parties, all ranks of social life, all professions, all religions. Its roll is blazoned with the names of the most illustrious as well as the less known personalities, and it constitutes the most powerful corporate agent of public opinion ever created in the country. The classes and the masses are behind it. This amazing outburst betokens not only the belief that old irritating sores are forever healed, but it points to a profound sympathy and unity of feeling, making future sores, if not impossible, at the worst only childish trifles, which need only to be kissed to be cured.

The $200,000,000 war bonds have been quadruply oversubscribed. They have been taken at home, too, by the masses of the people. This is a pregnant war lesson, more eloquent even than the bellow of the 13 inchers and the whiplash snap of the Krag-Jorgensen.

East Indian officials are uneasy over the form which the ever teeming discontent of the country is taking. The vast composite of races and religions inhabiting Hindustan, saturated in time worn usage and belief, is murmuring bitterly again utterly unable to compare the relative prosperity under English rule with the cutthroat conditions of a not very remote past. It is not now the cry of the greased cartridge, which heralded the sepoy mutiny. It is the superstitious notion that because English sanitary management seeks to inoculate against smallpox, the bubonic plague and other epidemics the white sahibs are seeking to poison them.

It has been suggested with pertinence by a great New York newspaper as a lesson of the Bourgogne disaster that there should be a compulsory boat drill at least twice on every voyage of an ocean passenger liner. The dexterity and discipline which come of practice might easily become of inestimable value. We believe that this was at one time the habit of the Cunard line, if it is not today. It ought to be carried out in every ship which undertakes the responsibility of crowded human life.

The Spanish prisoners at Portsmouth, N. H., are quite happy over their kind treatment and tight waistbands, as they had been told before capture that they would all be put to death by the American savages. Perhaps some of the ignorant fellows believe that the unaccustomed amplitude of feeding only means fatter and tenderer "long pig," as the cannibal south sea islanders dub their favorite grill.

Messrs. Orton Hubbard, Fred Grosvenor, Earl Harrison and Misses Grace Hill, Laura Harrison, Ada Hicks and Lillian Tidmarsh went to Lake Bluff Saturday to spend a week camping. By the number of utensils they carried with them a person would expect they were bound for the Klondike.

Mr. Louis Grosvenor, one of our prominent young men, was united in marriage to Miss Clara Ritta of Grayslake at Kenosha, Sunday evening, July 24, 1898. Miss Daisy Grosvenor accompanied them and witnessed the ceremony. The happy couple will for the present make their home in our village with the former's mother, Mrs. J. Grosvenor. We extend congratulations to the happy couple.

A pleasant reception was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Miller of Chicago at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Green last Friday evening. The evening was spent in playing social games. Refreshments were served. Only a few invited guests were present, and all spent a very enjoyable evening. Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for their home in the city Monday morning.

What's the matter with our sprinkler? Are we to be swallowing this dust all summer? Come let's wake up and hire a man to sprinkle each day, which is a necessity. You will never regret it. J. W. It would cost no firm more than $2 per month and this is but a small sacrifice in comparison to the benefits received. Let someone start the ball arollin'.

War and Literature.

Whatere: tends to stir the imagination and enthusiasm of a people very deeply awakens all its powers to fresher vigor. As literature is the record of the thought wherein man surveys his own actions and the things related to them, the result of war is quite sure to stimulate what may be called this efflorescence of national life. The influence may not be perceptible in wartimes themselves. The intense interest in the actual at such a period rather finds its outlet nowadays in the newspaper and the magazine than in bookmaking and book reading. But after the war is over and thought subsides from its effervescence to the reminiscent mood then the effect is apt to show its strength. The lover who writes a sonnet to his mistress' eyebrow is not at that moment the victim of a grand passion in all its fury, but he must have felt something like it previously. Petrarch could not have written his exquisite poems if he had been actually sighing at the feet of Laura.

There was a magnificent outburst of literature in England during the Napoleonic wars, it is true, but there were influences at work besides the current war spirit to produce the result. It was rather the fruit of the French revolution which preceded Napoleon's rise. So in the magnificent Elizabethan period, when England was fighting a life and death struggle with Spain, then at the apex of its power, the chief fertilizing force was the vision of a newly discovered world, with all its boundless possibilities, which intoxicated the imagination as men speculated on its marvels. During our civil war, which shook the country to the roots, there was but little done in literature. But the fertilizing effect was very evident after the war ended, and the period since has been one of brilliant literary activity. It would be easy to multiply proofs that the stimulus to literature from war takes its active form after the intense excitement has subsided alike for the people who make books and those who read books. Then human energy finds in its reminiscent and reflective attitude a greatly enriched field in which to work. It will be natural to expect some increment of literary vigor as the outcome of our war with Spain, and it will be a matter of curious note to measure the effect as the tide of immediate excitement ebbs with the coming of peace. The gauge of the nilometer pretty generally accorded with the lushness of the crops.

The erstwhile lean and ragged auxiliaries of the American troops before Santiago are for the most part fat and well clad now. These friendly jackals have zealously profited by the impatience of the Yankees in throwing away all superfluous weight in marching and fighting under a tropical sun.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine, Ill.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

MINOR HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Non-Union Miners Armed by Their Employers Four Volleys of Lead Into the Strikers—No Serious Injuries—Wage Scale Fixed—Late Telegrams.

Fires on the Strikers.

Pana, Ill.—The attempt to operate the mines with nonunion miners came near resulting in a tragedy. Union miners and their wives, as has been their day and night custom, had surrounded the Springside, Penwell, and Pana mines to intercept nonunion miners. No men showed up for work at the Penwell or Pana. Two men started for the Springside mines and were met by union miners, who, approaching them, asked for an interview and were answered by one of the men drawing a revolver and firing into the crowd. The miner who was aimed at dodged the bullet, but his face was burned with powder from the explosion. He then attacked the two men, and Charles Spires, one of them, was so severely beaten that a surgeon's services were necessary. Mayor Penwell, one of the operators of the Penwell mine, said today he would operate his mine if he had to use a stockade. A committee of thirty miners stand guard on the streets leading to each of the three mines nightly, being relieved at midnight by the same number of union miners, to watch for nonunion men expected to go down at night and intercept them. They are re-enforced by all the miners and their wives in the morning. Operators and miners are determined and, although the mayor has kept armed deputies and extra police at each mine every morning to escort and guard nonunion miners to mine, the union men are still masters of the situation.

Sad Story of Mrs. Innis.

Mrs. Lydia Innis, who refused to tell where she lives, was found on the lake shore at the foot of Forty-first street, Chicago, last Sunday evening by Patrolman Thomas Grace. To him she told a story of want and suffering and hunger. Thursday she appeared before Justice Jones in the insane court. "Where is your home?" inquired the court. With a smile and a shake of the head the woman answered: "Do not ask me, judge. I would not tell my address or the names of my relatives. It would disgrace them." The woman then spoke of her boy. "He is 18 years old," she said, "in ill health, and has not earned a dollar in his life. He came to Chicago with me to seek work, and we tramped the streets in vain until our feet were blistered. I had to send him to his father's relatives. I have worked for five weeks for lodging and food. For two weeks I had nothing to do, and I sold my clothing and effects piece by piece to get something to eat. I do not know whether I would have jumped into the lake Sunday night or not. I went down there to get off the streets to keep from being arrested." The woman is about 40 years old, neatly dressed and apparently well educated. She was remanded to the care of Dr. Fortner, to be discharged when work is given her or when relatives become known.

Mine Strike Inquiry.

Springfield, Ill.—The mining price fixed by the state board of arbitration for the Pana mines is 33 cents a ton, run of mine. The price fixed by the Springfield scale, effective April 1, was 40 cents. The companies refused to pay it and closed the mines. The men, about 600, have been idle ever since. The men offered to work for 35 cents, but this was ignored. They then asked the board of arbitration to fix a price, and the operators not joining in the proceeding, the opinion does not bind them, but is only advisory. Taking into consideration the existing conditions and circumstances it is the opinion of the board that the mining price at the Pana mines should be 33 cents per ton, run of mine, the company in each case furnishing all supplies except powder, and that payment of wages should be entirely in money or its equivalent, and that the coupon system be abolished.

Young Woman Goes Insane.

Louisville, Ill.—Miss Geneva Walker, daughter of Thomas Walker, a well-to-do farmer in Oskaloosa township, disappeared from her home Sunday night. She was in company of a young man when last seen, about 8 o'clock. This morning as Mrs. Brown was picking berries she noticed a woman off some distance from her and that she would dodge behind the bushes every little while, seemingly afraid someone would see her. Mrs. Brown at once notified her neighbors and a posse was made up, surrounding and capturing her after a fierce resistance. She has had nothing to eat for three days and fails to recognize anyone. Her parents are grief stricken, as she is the only child.

JEFFERSON'S VIOLIN.

An Old Instrument Which Is Said to Have Belonged to the Statesman.

From New York Sun: The ways in which violins of famous make and great value emerge from obscurity are varied, and no greater proof of this fact has been advanced for many years than the discovery of Thomas Jefferson's favorite violin in the hands of an octogenarian negro near Charlottesville, Va. The violin bears date of 1671, and its maker was Nicolaus Amati. The relic of Jefferson and of the skill of its Italian maker was found by Albert Hildebrandt of 19 North Liberty street, Baltimore, Md. Mr. Hildebrandt is an amateur musician. The story of his discovery and what led up to it is told by himself: "I happened into a barber's shop kept by a negro at Charlottesville and incidentally asked him my favorite question: 'Do you know of an old violin, as I want to buy one?' Said he: 'I knows of an old fiddle, boss, that belonged to Thomas Jefferson, and old John Scott owns it now.' The barber was so interested that he sent one of his men with me, and soon we were on the road to Scott's home, about two miles from Charlottesville, at the base of the Monticello Mountains and adjoining the old Jefferson plantation. John Scott I found to be an active, bright negro of 93 years. When I saw him he was working in the garden. I asked to see the violin, and he brought from the cupboard a dilapidated double violin case that had once been covered with leather. So many years had elapsed, however, since the leather was first placed on the case that a large part of it had come off in patches. Opening it I saw that the moths had had a feast with the red lining. The instrument was wrapped carefully in a piece of old cloth, and the minute I looked at it I saw it was the best specimen of Nicolaus Amati's violins I had ever seen. After a while I managed to strike a bargain with the old man, and the violin became my property. In it I am certain I own one of the very best violins existing today. The scroll is most artistically carved, the model and workmanship beautiful. The varnish is of golden yellow color and the pegs are of ivory. All that was needed was a few repairs, and now it is a singing beauty. John Scott, from whom I bought the violin, told me that he inherited the instrument from his father, who was a slave of Thomas Jefferson. After returning to Charlottesville with my prize I learned that Jefferson was quite a good musician, a lover and player of the violin, and that he had owned several valuable instruments of Italian make. The one I had bought he had christened 'Pet,' and this makes me believe that it was his favorite violin." The violin is today being constantly used by a friend of Mr. Hildebrandt, who is one of the orchestra of a Baltimore theater.

SAN JUAN'S HEROINE.

When the bombardment of Admiral Sampson's fleet began, Senorita Pauline Macias, the Governor General's daughter, was in the Governor's palace. She made her way to the batteries and from there to the forts. She saw the Spanish gunners, panic stricken, fleeing from that hell of exploding shells. Seizing a sword she raised her voice so that it could be heard above the din of the battle. She called upon the soldiers to return to their guns. Her face glowed as one inspired. She waved her sword above her head and cried to them in the name of their country to rally about her and fight until no life was left to fire a gun. No man with blood in his veins could stand such an appeal. The soldiers ran back as swiftly as they ran away. They turned their guns and fought with more coolness and greater desperation than before. And Pauline Macias stayed among them, like a battle fury. Only when the guns were disabled was she led away, and the men cheered her as they should have done. And had the men on the ships known of her daring and courage, they would have cheered her more heartily than did her own people. History will call Pauline Macias the Joan d'Arc of Porto Rico.

His Mistake.

"That politician is a 'has been,' isn't he?" remarked the observer. "No," replied the captious friend, "he isn't even that. He's merely a 'used-to-think-he-was.'"—Washington Star.

HISTORY OF THE WAR.

Important Events Reviewed and Condensed Into Reliable Form for Our Readers.

Wednesday, July 20.

Two transports sailed from Charleston, S. C., loaded with troops comprising the first expedition for the invasion of Porto Rico. A third transport will leave in the morning. General Miles is believed to be on his way from Guantanamo to Porto Rico. It is stated with authority in Washington that no peace negotiations are under way. President McKinley is determined to carry on the war with such vigor that Spain will beg for terms. Contract for transporting Spanish prisoners from Santiago to Spain has been awarded to the Spanish Transatlantic Company. Its ships are to be manned by Spaniards, but are assured protection. The company was the lowest of a number of bidders. Reports from Santiago are that the Spanish and American soldiers are fraternizing, and that the people are glad to be freed from Spanish misgovernment. Transports are landing supplies, and the distress is being relieved. Stores are opening and business is going on. Sentiment in Madrid is said to be pronounced in favor of an American protectorate in Cuba in preference to independence, on the theory that property rights would thereby be more secure. An official note issued in Madrid declares that General Toral was not authorized by General Blanco to surrender Santiago, and that he will have to answer before a court-martial. The transport Seneca has arrived at New York from Siboney with many sick on board. Quarantine will be enforced. General Brooke has returned to Chickamauga, but will not announce what troops are to be sent from there to Porto Rico. An unconfirmed report comes from Cuba by way of Jamaica that General Garcia has been shot dead. Members of the Cuban Junta in Washington declare there is no doubt that Cubans will submit to the will of the United States government.

Lieutenant Miles of General Shafter's staff left Santiago with a troop of the Second cavalry, mounted, under Captain Brett, to make the rounds of the entire military district of Santiago de Cuba, and for the purpose of receiving the formal surrender of the Spanish forces. He will go first to San Luis, where there are about 4,500 of the enemy's troops. Lieutenant Miles will then receive the surrender, in order, of 800 men at Cobre, 1,200 at Catalina, 2,500 at Guantanamo and 3,500 at Baracoa. A total of 20,000 Spaniards are expected to yield their arms to this one troop of cavalry. To reach Baracoa, Lieutenant Miles will be compelled to ride straight across the island to the northern coast, led by a Cuban guide. He will ride under a white flag, for protection, but General Toral has sent members of his staff ahead to notify the post commanders of the terms of the surrender. Orders were sent to Admiral Sampson to start at once with his fleet for the landing place in Porto Rico which has been determined upon by the war authorities. No information could be obtained at the war department as to whether the fleet had actually sailed. J. A. Campbell, who was General Sheridan's scout all through the civil war, has been appointed captain of volunteers, and will be attached to the staff of General Brooke as chief of scouts. He will accompany the general to Porto Rico. It was of Captain Campbell that General Sheridan wrote this: "The people of the United States will perhaps never know of his inestimable services to this country."

Thursday, July 21.

Seven of our little gunboats entered the harbor at Manzanillo, July 18, and destroyed three Spanish transports, a pontoon used as an ammunition ship, and five gunboats. Not one of our vessels was injured. Gen. Miles left Guantanamo for Porto Rico Thursday afternoon. As the result of the ill feeling between our troops at Santiago and the Cubans, Gen. Garcia and Castillo have determined to cease cooperation with our troops, and will conduct an independent campaign against the Spaniards, first attacking Holguin. It is announced by Secretary Long that the expedition to Spain has not been abandoned, but has been deferred until the Porto Rico campaign permits the withdrawal of the ships. Spain's Judge Advocate General at Santiago in an interview gives the Spanish version of the situation preceding the fall of the city. He says the Spaniards had fought Cubans so long they were surprised by the valor of our soldiers. Spanish troops at Manilla delos on being attacked. The second expedition from San Francisco has arrived, and news of an attack on the city by our army may be expected any day. Madrid advices say there is no indication of peace proposals. The government continues inactive, while the people are demanding peace at any price. The converted yacht Mayflower captured the British steamer Newfoundland, from Halifax, which attempted to run the blockade at Havana. Gov. Tanner has been asked by commanders of provisional regiments to prohibit wholesale enlistments of Illinois men to fill quotas of southern regiments. Great activity prevails at Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, over orders for troops to move to Porto Rico. It is thought there feared the insurgents with considerable that 30,000 men will be sent to the front. Raddatz's submarine boat is given a successful trial at Milwaukee. The following is the official account of the latest naval victory—that at Manzanillo—modestly told by Commander Todd of the United States gunboat Wilmington. In his report to Admiral Sampson: "At 7 o'clock on the morning of July 18 the vessels on blockade duty in this vicinity—the Wilmington, Helena, Scorpion, Hornet, Wampatuck and Osceola—approached the harbor of Manzanillo from the westward. At 7:30 o'clock the Wilmington and Helena entered the northern channel toward the city, the Scorpion and Osceola the mid-channel, and the Hornet and Wampatuck the south channel, the movements of the vessels being so timed as to bring them within effective range of the shipping at about the same moment. At 7:50 fire was opened on the shipping, and after a deliberate fire lasting about two and a half hours three Spanish transports, El Gloria, Jose Garcia and La Purissima Concepcion, were burned and destroyed. The pontoon, which was the harbor guard and store ship, probably for ammunition, was burned and blown up. Three gunboats were destroyed, another was driven ashore and sunk, and a fifth was driven ashore and is believed to have been disabled. The firing was maintained at a range which is believed to be beyond the range of the shore artillery. It was continual until, after gradual closing in, the shore batteries opened fire at a comparatively short range when the ships were recalled, the object of the expedition having been accomplished and the ideas of the commander-in-chief carried out, as I understood them—that is, to destroy the enemy's shipping, but not to engage the field batteries or forts. No casualties occurred on board any of our vessels. Great care was taken in directing the fire that as little damage as possible should be done to the city itself, and so far as could be observed little if any was done. All of our vessels were handled with sound discretion and excellent judgment by the several commanding officers, which was to have been expected from the men commanding them. The Spanish loss is believed to have been in the neighborhood of a hundred killed. The gunboats destroyed or driven ashore were the Delgado, Guantanamo, Ostralla, Continola and Guardian. The committee appointed by Admiral Sampson to examine the wreck of the Reina Mercedes reports that the vessel can probably be raised and added to the American navy. Her guns have been recovered by the Iowa.

Friday, July 22.

An attack upon Manilla by the naval forces under Dewey and the American land forces under Gens. Greene and Anderson is expected at any moment. Gen. Miles sent a cable to Washington, announcing the arrival at Mole St. Nicholas of the first detachment of the expedition to Porto Rico. Gen. Brooke will sail tomorrow with a large force on the St. Paul to join the force under Gen. Miles. Gen. Haines' brigade, 4,000 men, leaves Chickamauga for Newport News to embark for Porto Rico. Garcia's letter to Gen. Shafter announcing his resignation as a Cuban army officer because he had been ignored by the Americans in relation to the Santiago surrender, is discussed at a cabinet conference. Lieut. Hobson reaches Washington. Visits Long with a view to saving the Spanish warship Cristobal Colon. Senor Gamazo, Spanish minister, says peace honorable to the army will soon be arranged. Nine hundred troops go aboard the Rio de Janeiro at San Francisco and will start for Manilla this morning. Col. Bryan, with the Third Nebraska regiment, was given an ovation by all the troops upon his arrival at Jacksonville. Lieut. Hobson reached Washington from New York at 2:35 o'clock. There was no official there to meet him and his reception was truly democratic. He succeeded in escaping observation as he passed through the trainshed, coat and umbrella in hand, and followed by a porter proudly carrying his bag, but before he emerged from the station some one espied him, a hurrah went up, and in a moment the station resounded with vociferous shouting. The cry of "Hobson, Hobson!" rang out and the crowd closed about him, shaking his hand and pushing him about until he was rescued by the police and escorted to his carriage. He stopped long enough to announce that all of the men who formed the crew of the Merrimac were safe and in the best of health, and that after he had made his report to the navy department he expected to return immediately to New York. The officer was driven at once to the Army and Navy club, and after brushing himself up he drove over to the navy department. This time he carried with him under his arm a large official envelope which bore in the corner the inscription, "North Atlantic Squadron." As he approached the office of the secretary of the navy there ensued another demonstration. A large crowd had gathered about the doorway, and the hearty welcome it gave the young officer brought blushes to his cheeks. Lieut. Miles of Gen. Shafter's staff has gone to the interior to bring in the Spanish soldiers who garrisoned the small towns in the surrendered district. It is believed that trouble will follow between the Americans and Cubans, as it will be next to impossible to prevent the latter from plundering the remoter towns on the withdrawal of the Spanish garrisons. Cubans to-day looted some houses in the outskirts of Santiago and stole a number of horses. The Spanish residents of Santiago like President McKinley's proclamation and seem satisfied with their condition as subject to the government of the United States. The work of cleaning the streets and putting the city into good sanitary condition was begun in earnest to-day. The Red Cross organization has been feeding 20,000 persons daily since last Monday. It has divided the city into sections, formed local committees to look after the needs of the different neighborhoods and opened soup kitchens, so that nobody in Santiago need be hungry.

THE OLYMPIA—ADMIRAL DEWEY'S FLAGSHIP BEFORE MANILA.

Fifth Army Corps, Santiago de Cuba, July 23, 6:25 p. m.—Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.: Colonel of engineers Spanish army has just arrived from Guantanamo. He heard from French consul there that Santiago had surrendered and that they had been included. Not crediting it, he was sent here to verify the fact. They will be glad to accept terms of surrender. Short of rations and I shall have to begin feeding them at once. He tells me there are 6,000 men at that place. Am now feeding 6,000 well prisoners here 1,600 sick in hospital. Expect 2,000 men in to-morrow from San Luis and Palmas. Will send an officer to-morrow or next day with one of General Toral's to receive surrender at Guantanamo and then go on to Sagua and Baracoa to receive surrender there. Think the number of prisoners will be fully up to the estimate, 22,000 of 23,000.—SHAFTER, Major General Commanding.

President McKinley this afternoon took a brief respite from his arduous labors of the last few months, and, accompanied by a distinguished party of guests, en-deeds of the army, and to its officers and men the major general commanding offers his sincere thanks for their endurance of hardships heretofore unknown in the American army. The work you have accomplished may well appeal to the pride of your countrymen, and has been rivaled upon few occasions in the world's history. Landing upon an unknown coast, you faced dangers in disembarking and overcame obstacles that, even in looking back, seem insurmountable. Seizing, with the assistance of the navy, the towns of Balquira and Siboney, you pushed boldly forth, gallantly driving back the enemy's outpost in the engagement of La Quasina, and completed the concentration of the enemy near Sevilla, in sight of the Spanish stronghold at Santiago de Cuba. The outlook from Sevilla was one that night well have appalled the stoutest heart. Behind you ran a narrow road, made well-nigh impassable by rains, while to the front you looked out upon high foothills covered with a dense tropical growth which could only be traversed by bridge paths terminating within range of the enemy's guns. Nothing deterred you; you responded eagerly to the order to close upon the foe, and, attacking at Caney and San Juan, drove him from work to work until he took refuge within his last and strongest intrenchments, immediately surrounding the city. Despite the fierce glare of a southern sun and rains that fell in torrents, you valiantly withstood attempts to drive you from the position your valor had won. Holding in your viselike grip the army opposed to you, after seventeen days of battle and siege you were rewarded by the surrender of nearly 24,000 prisoners, 12,000 being those in your immediate front, the others scattered in the various towns of eastern Cuba, freeing completely the eastern part of the island from Spanish troops. This was not done without great sacrifices. The death of 230 gallant soldiers and the wounding of 1,284 others show but too plainly the fierce contest in which you were engaged. The few reported missing are undoubtedly among the dead, as no prisoners were lost. For those who have fallen in battle with you, the commanding general sorrows, and with you will ever cherish their memory. Their devotion to duty sets a high example of courage and patriotism to our fellow-countrymen. All who have participated in the campaign, battle and siege of Santiago de Cuba will recall with pride the grand deeds accomplished, and will hold one another dear for having shared the sufferings, hardships and triumphs together. All may well feel proud to inscribe on their banners the name of Santiago de Cuba. By command of Major General Shafter.

E. J. MCCLERNAND,
Assistant Adjutant General.

The number surrendered was larger than General Toral reported. Three thousand and five Spanish troops and 350 volunteer guerrillas gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone to work. Three thousand stands of arms were turned in, loaded on ox carts and started to the railroad. Spanish troops accompanied him to San Luis, and all were apparently greatly delighted at prospects of returning home. They were on the verge of starvation, and I have to send them rations to-morrow.
